DECLARED OLD IDEAL

WASHINGTON.—Although the full employment bill is being pushed through congress into law by a preponderant favor for it-and there is no objection to the basic hopefulness of its theory-no one seems to know what it means, or even where it came from. By great odds, it is the most uncertain and unclarified piece of legislation of my time here.

I have been calling it a CIO bill because the CIO has campaigned for it in the usual expensive and prepossessing manner which obscures other backing and monopolizes the publicity. But CIO planners did not write it.

The numerous senators whose names are attached as co-authors will give you little satisfaction if you inquire where they got the notion of passing a law proclaiming the right to work which has always existed, legally, constitutionally and by custom. The original draft of their bill was probably composed, as nearly as I can ascertain, by the Farmers Union, farthest left of the three farmers lobbies and often called the farmer branch of the CIO. But of all things the farmers need right now, a law declaring their right to work must run behind help shortages, equipment shortages, price fears and practically every other existing agricultural consideration. The Farmers Union people will say they got the idea out of a speech Mr. Roosevelt made in which he mentioned a lot of rights, including the right to work. But Mr. Roosevelt did not say there ought to be a law, and before he mentioned the matter it had gotten into a resolution of an international labor office meeting in Philadelphia. Sir William Beveridge, whose vast social security hopes were swamped in the last election, was an ardent champion of legislation to declare the right to work. Going behind and beyond him, an investigation will bring you to the fact that such a right is declared in the Soviet Russian constitution.

There it has some meaning because under a dictatorship fixing salaries, controlling hours, renting homes and even cooking and charging for the workers' meals, while restraining the worker from freedom, a law promising to share whatever work the government gives is a realistic right. But this is all far behind American ideals and rights which already go much further, promising among other things, freedom of work at one place or another and the right

Even this would not be so perplexing except that both sponsors and amenders of this right-to-work bill agree it carries no legal rights. Coauthor Thomas of Utah may not have been pinned down on that point yet, but Co-author Murray and Amender Taft, and all the others, seem agreed no citizen could sue an employer or the government for a job or get out an injunction, or that a labor union could sue, or get the courts to make someone establish jobs or wages, hours or anything. This, they all say, is just a declaration of policy by congress, no matter how it is worked. authors particularly deny that it is a trick to establish a legal basis for a whole new conception of law in which the unions or individual workers could build up decisions through this new Supreme court to indict the government or employers and perhaps establish criminal penal-

If it does not do this, then what does it do? Well, its sponsors rather frankly indicate they look on it as a political propaganda step, establishing a policy-peg upon which they can hang future legislative demands. Particularly they want big spending appropriations made in the future, and they will then say: "The policy of every man a job has been established so this appropriation must be made to give him a job." Or they can build up a demand that the Aluminum company be broken up for that reason, or that all black hair be made white because it would create jobs in the hair dyeing industry.

This makes it seem unimportant because congress retains the right to appropriate or not appropriate regardless of this undefined declaration of an unagreed policy. Frankly, then I do not know what it means, except that everyone will ask for government funds.

A decline in work-week is another provision. Plans to cut the government work-week again from 40 (it was 48) to 30 have already been proposed in bills. This keeps salaries where they were and prevents normal utilization of the talents, abilities and aptitudes of the nation's manpower. It does not increase purchasing power or create more employment opportunities; it merely shares-the-work, less work for the nation as a whole, therefore less productivity and less tax revenues to sustain a high economy, needed for full employment.

Home Building Resumed, but It Will Be a Year or More Before Most People Can Expect Their 'Dream House'

Material Shortages Delay Construction On Any Large Scale

By W. WADSWORTH WOOD

Government restrictions on building of private houses ends October This comes as heartening news to the 12 million families who are said to be ready and anxious to build new homes. Now these people are wondering: Should we sell our present home or give up our lease in the hope of building right away? What plans can we safely and confidently make right now?

This question raises several other ones, which may be summarized

1. What will building COSTS be, in comparison with those of prewar years?

2. Will conventional materials such as lumber, brick, etc., he of poorer quality than prewar?

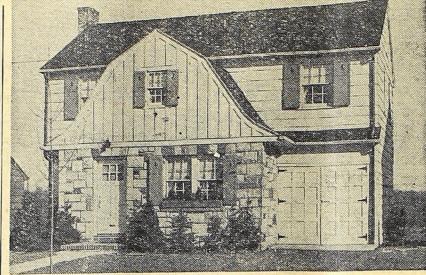

3. What are the new and different features and materials so widely discussed for coming homes? Are those miracles in terms of revolutionary heating, streamlined kitchens, and pushbutton laundries yet available?

Here is the result of serious thinking, first on the subject of costs. While the government unofficially estimates that home building costs have increased one-third (requiring one thus to pay $8,000 for a house that could be built for $6,000 before the war)-these costs are really apt to run somewhat higher. It may take $9,000 to build that former $6,000 home. This is partly because labor costs are steadily rising, and 73 per cent of the total building costs are directly or indirectly labor

Residents in some sections of the country, such as in the South, may confidently expect lower prices due to the fact that the less severe climates permit the elimination of basements, sub-floors, etc. Less expensive insulation, also less expensive central heating plants, prove adequate.

Recent wide and authoritative studies, such as the two-year survey conducted by Small Homes Guide, reveal very pointedly why this fact is so important. They show that 47.4 per cent of families now planning to build, expect to spend from $4,000 to $6,000. Another large percentage, 30.7 per cent, plan to build in the $6,000 to $10,000 class, while only about 6 per cent are planning to build in the $10,000 and better

If these families are to get full value for their money, the home for planning.

Stone and wood combine to make this attractive house. The built-in garage is one of its most appealing features. Contractors estimate it could be constructed for about $9,000, which is within the range about onethird of home builders are willing to pay.

a flurry of questions always centers around: "What's new?" For example, and the same around the same pensive site labor costs.

While the home building restrictions are being lifted, as of October 15, the announcement carries with it a six-point program that involves several directives aimed at correcting the present situation. These will seek to hasten production of scarce building materials; will strengthen inventory controls to prevent hoarding; will expand OPA price control of building materials to prevent inflationary pressure; control mortgage practices; facilitate action by industry groups and widely advise on home values. In the directive, great stress is put upon the rapid expansion of the home building industry as the greatest single added source of jobs in our entire economy, and the statement is made "we also know that the present housing shortage is bound to continue for some time and that there may be pressure to increase the price of new homes in response to an active demand."

In the light of these facts, thousands will be asking such questions as this: "Should I renew my present lease which expires in six months, or try to build a new home right away?" Wise advice would appear to be this: Renew for one year. A year and a half is not too much time for thoughtful planning and careful working out of your family's requirements-from site selection to the details of built-in storage facilities. There are countless houses that could have been good houses if a few extra months had been used building industry must hasten to eliminate the traditional "hammerand-saw" practices of "cut-fit-andtry." Certain union practices and antiquated building codes, too long held intact by local pressure groups, must also be changed.

We are frequently asked: "When can we be sure of being able to get good quality building materials?" To this, our best authorities quickly tell us that most of the hard materials such as cement, sand, lime, stone, etc., are plentiful. Brick and cement block vary with the regional manpower picture. Good, dry lumber is scarce, and the precise local situation here should be carefully checked with a reputable lumber dealer in your community.

Someone else asks: "What are the newest developments in construction material that I can expect to get within the next six months?" Our reply indicates that waterproof plywood, plastic-finished wallboards, fireproof asphalt shingles, light metal framing, complete package units: windows, doors, built-in closets, cabinets, fireplaces, will all be avail-These new developments foling: "Should I sell the home I own now, rent for several years and then plan to build?" To such, wise counsel would be: Hold your home, as rents will be high and there will be no 'sudden drop in real estate values. First, because of rebuilding costs due to higher wage levels, and second, the very sizable backlog of demand that will require several years to satisfy. Start planning your new home now. It will likely take you a whole year to get through all the steps carefully. Selection of your new lot, title insurance, getting your ideas into blueprints, working drawings and specifications; getting bids, negotiating the financing-all this takes time.

Being very specific, others will ask: "All I can afford to spend is $6,000. I need three bedrooms. What can I expect?" Our frank advice is this: Not too much, if your total includes the cost of a lot. You had better choose a compact story-anda-half design, and then plan to finish the two upper-story bedrooms and bath at a later date.

Preventing Covered Smut Loss

The cost of treating the seed amounts to about three or four cents an acre, a small price, compared with the loss of several bushels of grain per acre.

Larger Tillage On Less Farms

Census Bureau Reports Rise In Midwest Planting as Homesteads Drop.

WASHINGTON. - Farmers in the region of the United States, are cultivating 10,000,000 more acres than five years ago, but the actual number of farms is decreasing, the 1945 agricultural census taken by the bureau of census, department of commerce, showed recently. The farm acreage in the 12 great livestock and grain-producing North Central states has grown to 263,256,-379 acres since 1940 in the 684 counties so far reported out of 1,056, a gain of 4 per cent, the bureau

However, there are 49,096 fewer farms in the region including Illinois, Indiana, Michigan, Ohio, Wisconsin, Iowa, Kansas, Minnesota, Missouri, Nebraska and North and South Dakota. This is a decrease of 3.8 per cent from the 1,283,357 farms reported five years ago.

Thus the average size of farms increased 8.1 per cent from 195.7 to 211.6 acres. Larger Farms.

The increased size of farms is attributed by census officials partly to the absorption of smaller farms, largely because the North Central states have extensive farm lands planted in crops favorable to mechanized farming, and somewhat because of the shortage of farm man-

The greatest decrease in the number of farms was in Michigan. A loss of 3,152 farms, or a decline of 7.1 per cent from 1940, was reported in 41 counties of the 83.

South Dakota counties showed the greatest increase in farm acreage, an addition of more than 3,300,000 acres, or a gain of 10 per cent.

Percentages of decrease in the number of farms and increase in farm acreage, respectively, for the other states, follow

Acreage Increased.

Nationally, in the 2,000 counties now reported out of 3,097, the number of farms declined by 41,702 or 1.1 per cent from, 3,759,199 in 1940. Farm acreage increased 7.5 per cent, from 642,574,412 acres five years ago to the present 690,611,506 acres. Increase in size of farms was 8.7 per cent, from 170.9 acres to 185

Farm acres in use in the state of New York has increased by 822,-389 since 1940 while farms have also increased by 1,143, according to a report from 26 of the 62 counties.

New York and Maine were the only states in the Northeast showing a tendency toward larger farms, the survey showed.

Both Massachusetts and Rhode Island topped New York in percentage of farm increases, each showing a 28 per cent gain as compared with New York's 1.9, but the Emwas peak for the nine states covered in the survey. The state's 6,-548,665 acres of farmland also was

Fattening Lambs

One help in putting weight on lambs is to keep sheep and lambs free from parasites, especially nodular worms and stomach worms. Infestation with parasites holds back growth and increases feed costs. Serious losses from parasites can be prevented by providing clean pasture, by the use of phenothiazine, and by taking other precautions.

Bike Passenger snug at the neck, ankles and wrists, and have usable pockets.

You invite disaster when you carry another person on your bike.

Egg Eating
Egg eating by chickens is a habit usually developed by young pullets. This costly habit can be prevented by providing plenty of nests-one nest for each six birds-so eggs will not be broken by nest crowding at laying time. All nest bottoms can be kept well padded with litter such as hay, straw, cottonseed, shavings, so eggs will not be broken as they are laid. If the egg-eating habit has gone so far that some of the birds break the eggs themselves, it may be necessary to remove those birds from the flock for a few days or dispose of them entirely.

Heating Safety One of the most notable innovations in safe heating is the wet base boiler in which water circulates under the ash pit. The fact that the boiler can be placed on a combustible floor is of interest in connection with the trend toward the basementless house. In such houses it is often desirable to install the boiler on a wooden floor in a utility room or kitchen. Other safety features of modern boilers are foot-treadle door openers, ball-shaped, air-cooled handles and side shakers, making it easier to open and close door's.

FOR your tractor . . . for your truck . . . for your car, and for every other farm use, there is a Firestone tire engineered and built to do the job and to do it better than any other tire made.

There are certain definite reasons why Firestone tires perform better and last longer. One is Firestone's understanding of farm tire requirements based on years of experience in the farm tire field. Another is the never-ending Firestone research and development program to build the best today and make it still better tomorrow. And still another vitally important reason for the superiority of Firestone tires is the fact that they are built by the finest craftsmen using the finest materials that science and machines can produce.

You can save time, money and do a better job of farming if you specify "Firestone" every time you buy a tire for your farm. From now on make it a Firestone.

phone instruments, the job of providing service for the 125,000 families now waiting would be much easier and faster. However, nearly two-wirds of those waiting are in areas where present central office equipment cannot handle any more telephones, or where all outside wire and cable are in use.

Large-scale manufacture of civilian telephone equipment is under way, and no effort is being spared to hasten production. But leave the factory. A World Department Of Agriculture

VERY farmer and rancher, every person connected with the food and agricultural industry in these United States from producer to processor, and citizens generally, should watch with deep interest the meeting of the food and agriculture organization of the United Nations in Quebec, starting October 16.

This is the first of the permanent new United Nations agencies to be launched after the end of hostilities, which marks the importance attached to its deliberations by our government and the governments of all the 44 United Nations. As this is written, the list of American delegates to the conference has not been announced. It is likely, however, that the delegates from the United States will be headed by Howard Talley of the department of agriculture, who has acted as the United States representative on the Interim commission of the organization.

The food and agricultural organization ratified by the 44 nations at San Francisco is part and parcel, and a most important function of the United Nations organization. It is not a relief agency. Its aim is to improve world agriculture and to increase food production; to provide a higher standard of diet and raise the levels of nutrition and the standards of living throughout the world , . . all of which is intended to contribute to an expanding world economy.

The organization will likely set up machinery which will function for world agriculture and production much like our own department of agriculture functions in the United States . . . in an advisory capacity, passing along scientific development the dissemination of agricultural knowledge . . . technical information and the results of scientific agricultural research . . . to aid in setting up agencies in all the 44 countries for combating soil erosion, to improve soil and crops, to develop better livestock . . . to take into consideration reforestation . . . rural electrification . . . farm to market roads . . . exploration of new sources of food . . . to provide better tools for primitive farmers to increase production . . . attention to surplus crops and a better distribution of these crops and many other subjects necessarily attendant to the huge and complicated task of providing more and better food for a world and its population ravished

by years of total war. Not Enough Land

There are now about 2,200,000,000 human beings populating this old world on which we live, and the exrts predict that at present rate of increase there will be a billion more by the end of the century. These experts further point out that there are at present only about 4 .-000,000,000 acres of arable land in use, which is less than 21/2 acres per capita. Even in our own country there is only a fraction more than seven acres per capita in farm lands, including woodlands and pasture lands. If we would take into account only the crop lands harvested, approximately 321,250,000 acres, our per capita acreage would just about equal the world average. So without an expanding acreage of arable lands, without basic resources in India, in China, in Russia and many other countries, such as we have in this country, the experts say that the world will continue to produce insufficient food to feed its billions of humans.

What the representatives of these 44 nations . . . what our own delegation does at Quebec to commit this country to a program of world agricultural rehabilitation will determine in large measure whether we as a people were honest when we subscribed to the Atlantic charter and the charter of the United Nations at San Francisco.

For with this charter in existence and binding upon us . . . with our nation emerging from the war as the most fortunate, the most powerful . . . with a new conception and in a new position as the leader of the world . . . the time has passed when we can watch the people of India, China or any other nation starving, and salve our conscience with a check to some relief society.

Two-thirds of the people of the world are farmers. These hundreds of millions are striving to raise food on worn out land.

And from the selfish few comes the comment: "Why should we help the rest of the world raise food when there continues to be surplus in our own crops?" And the answer, of course, is that with proper distribution; that with the rest of the world eating and living on a par with our own diet; there would be no surplus, with a continuing expanding world economy calling always for increasing production.

THE STORY THUS FAR: The Ameriean troops arrived in Adano, with Major Joppolo, the Amgot officer in charge. Sergeant Borth was in charge of security. The Major was determined to hold the confidence of the people and to re-place their bell stolen by the Nazis. Desplte orders issued by General Marvin, Joppolo permitted the carts to enter the town with water and food. The bell arrived and while the Major was busy seeing that it was taken care of, the courier arrived with dismissal orders for Major Joppolo from General Marvin. Borth put the orders in his pocket, to keep until after the party to be given the Major that night. He knew the effect it would have on everyone.

CHAPTER XXIII

It was really good. When the Mafor saw it, he stood up in delight. He sald: "So that is why you wanted my picture taken!" Gargano posed as if with one hand on a camera and the other squeezing a shutter bulb and tried to imitate the cracked voice of old Spataforo: "Young man, you are vain. All you want is to look at your face.'

This time when all laughed, the Major laughed with them. "Thank you," Major Joppolo said. That was all he had time to say, for the officials of Adano left the room quickly. In any case, it was all the Major was able to say.

The committee of hosts stood waiting in the entrance hall of Quattrocchi's house. Old Bellanca was there. ex officio, and Cacopardo, the only resident of Adano who owned a swallow-tail coat and the only one who would wear one if he had it, and the fat Craxi, who appeared to have exceeded his limit of three bottles of wine for dinner, and Signora Carmelina Spinnato, representing as well as she could the fair sex, and the white-haired Lojacono, who was included because he had done such a good picture. The ones of the committee who were absent were Tomasino, out of respect for the dead fishermen, and Gargano, who was otherwise engaged.

It was ten minutes after starting time, and the guest of honor had not arrived. Giuseppe, who had arranged the whole thing, hovered in the background, saying over and over: "The Mister Major will be here any minute now."

The Mister Major was at that minute calling for Tina, and Tina, in the way of all women, either was not ready or was not willing to admit that she was ready.

Finally, at a quarter to eight, Tina came out of her room. She was dressed in a flimsy white blouse and a huge red taffeta skirt.

Major Joppolo's slight annoyance at being kept waiting dissolved at once. "This was worth waiting all night for," he said. Tina curtsied gravely. She gathered some of her skirt on her left arm and reached with her right hand for Major Joppolo's arm. He offered it to her and the couple left, shouting good-byes to Tomasino and Rosa, who was beady with perspiration from helping her daughters get ready. On their way down the Via Umberto the First the couple heard two small children crying. In the darkening evening they could just make out two little figures huddled on the curb on the other side of the street. They crossed.

They found the ragged little son of Erba and the well-dressed grandson of Cacopardo sitting with their arms around each other crying hard.

Major Joppolo crouched down and patted the boys' backs and asked what the matter was.

Between sobs little Erba man-ged to Eay: "We were too late-for the feast-of the caramels." Little Cacopardo said: "Too late."

"For the what?" Little Erba said: "For the picnic of caramels. We-we-are the only ones-who were left behind." Little Cacopardo said: "All the other children.'

Major Joppolo remembered what he had told Gargano to do, and he said: "Well, never mind, we'll take you instead to a grownup party. Come with us." So the Major and Tina walked on toward Quattrocchi's house, each holding a little child by the hand. When they entered the house, the fat Craxi, who had a little too much wine in his belly, rushed forward in amazement. "Son of Mary!" he exclaimed. "He has a family! Two fine little boys" - he patted the youngsters on the head-"and a beautiful-" He gulped when he saw that the 'wife" was Tina. "Mister Major," he said, "why did you not tell us?" But by this time the rest of the committee had come forward, and the confusion of their greetings overwhelmed Craxi's confusion. Old Cacopardo took both his well-dressed little grandson and the ragged little Erba by their hands, and kept them with him all evening.

Giuseppe met the Major, wringing his hands and making desperate faces. "Mister Major, where have you been? I have been looking for you on all the balconies and in all the bedrooms.' "That was hardly necessary, Giuseppe," the Major said. "What did you want?" "Fat Craxi and your Sergeant, they are misbehaving. I can't do enything with them."

The Major said to Tina: "Wait arms around her and said misera-here," and he went off with Giu-seppe to find Craxi and Borth. "I'm so unhappy."

Tina pushed back and looked at Major Joppolo said sharply:

"Borth, behave yourself." When the Major spoke so angrily, fat Craxi tiptoed out of the room, and Giuseppe followed him to keep an eve on him.

The Major and Borth were alone. The Major spoke again: "Behave yourself or go home."

Borth was drunk because of the Major. He had never been drunk in uniform before. But when the Major spoke so angrily, that streak of contrariness in Borth which made him tease people so much, which made him always laugh at serious people and deflate pompous ones,

"Thank you," Major Joppolo said.

came out in him. He said thickly: 'You can't boss me around." "Sergeant Borth," the Major said, with obvious emphasis on the word Sergeant. "Don't Sergeant me," Borth said: 'you have no 'thority to boss me.' "I have just as much authority as I ever had, and if you don't behave-" "Oh no you haven't," Borth said. 'You can't boss anybody, not in Adano." "Borth, you're drunk. Now behave."

"Joppolo, you're fired. You been You're nobody round relieved. here." And Borth began to cry

"Borth, I don't know what you're talking about, but I-"

The Major broke off and went over to Borth and took him by the arm, to try to lead him out.

"Take your hands off me," Borth said. He reached in his pocket and said: "Here, read that."

Major Joppolo read the order recalling him from Adano. "Where did you get this?" he asked. Borth was crying again. "Your desk. I wanted to keep you from seeing it until after the party." Victor Joppolo put up a beautiful front for the rest of the evening, until the very moment when he was saying good night to Tina just inside her front door. Then he put his his face. She put her hands on his shoulders and said: "But I thought you were so happy?"

The Major was in control of himself again. "I am," he said, "I'm

"Is it because of your wife?" Tina asked. "No, Tina, it's nothing." Then, in the shadow of the stairway of her said: "Till I see you again." She was frightened and she said: 'What is the matter? Why did you say good-bye instead of good night? What is the matter?'

house, he kissed her tenderly and

"Nothing, Tina. Good night, Tina." It was the middle of the morning before Major Joppolo could get his papers straightened up and his lastminute directions given.

The Major called the motor pool and asked for a jeep to take him to Vicinamare. Then he told Borth: "I don't want to say good-bye to anyone, Borth. I don't know whether I could." Borth did not mock this morning. He said: "I am sorry about last night, Major. My intentions were good. I wanted you to have a good time at the party."

"I know."

The Major thought a minute and then said: "Borth, try to help whoever takes my place to try to do a good job in Adano."

Borth said: "I'm afraid it will be that awful dope from Pontebasso.' The Major said: "I hope not. Adano needs an understanding man.'

Borth said: "Adano needs you, Major. The Major said: "Too late to talk about that. I wonder how Marvin ever found out about the carts." Borth suspected Captain Purvis, but he said: "One of his staff must have driven through or something."

The Major said: "Yes, I guess

The jeep came. So as not to arouse suspicion, Borth went with the driver to the Major's house and got his baggage. His entire possessions consisted of a bedroll, with his clothes rolled into it.

When the jeep got back to the Palazzo, Major Joppolo took his portrait under his arm and went downstairs and got in.

He shook Borth's hand but he did not say good-bye.

The lazy Fatta, standing on the sidewalk, said by way of making conversation: "Going somewhere?" Major Joppolo tried to sound cheerful as he said: "Not far. How is Carmelina this morning?'

The lazy Fatta said: "She is making a rabbit stew." The driver said: "Where to, Ma-

The Major did not want to say Vicinamare so that Fatta or anyone else could hear it. Perhaps he could not say it. Anyhow, he just said: "This way," and he pointed out the Corso Vittorio Emanuele.

About four miles outside the town the Major said to the driver: "Stop a minute, would you please?

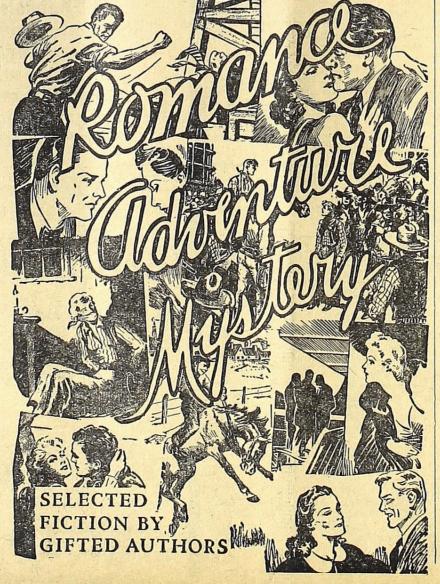

The driver stopped the jeep. "Listen," the Major said. "Do you hear something?"

It was a fine sound on the summer air. The tone was good and it must have been loud to hear it as far as "Just a bell," the driver said. 'Must be eleven o'clock."

"Yes," the Major said. He looked over the hills across the sea, and the day was as clear as the sound of the bell itself, but the Major could not see or think very clearly.
"Yes," he said, "eleven o'clock."

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL CUNDAY JCHOOL Lesson

MAKING THE HOME CHRISTIAN

LESSON TEXT-Luke 10:38-42; I Corinthians 13:4-13.

GOLDEN TEXT—Love suffereth long, and is kind .-- I Corinthians 13:4.

Things do not just happen. It takes praying and planning and real effort to accomplish a worth-while purpose. We are thinking these weeks of the home as a Christian center of influence. We trust that many are asking in their hearts, "What can I do to make my home really Christian?"

The answer is clear. A home will be Christian when those in it are Christian and put their Christianity into daily practice. First, you must be sure of your own salvation and that of the members of your household. Then you can proceed to put the principles of godliness to work. Our lesson presents the believing home as one that is well-balanced.

There is both: I. Work and Worship (Luke 10: 38-42).

No home can be a place of comfort and pleasant fellowship without much work. A disorderly, dirty or run-down house is a disgrace and a discouragement to all that is finest in the relations of those who live in Home need not be a mansion. It does not have to be richly furnished, but it does need to be clean and orderly. Meals must be made. Cleaning must be done. So far Martha was right, but she went too far. She let the labor of the household hinder her from what she so deeply needed - fellowship, not only with her family but with the Lord.

Now, notice that Mary had not shirked her duty to share the work. Observe the word "also" in verse 39. She had worked, but she also sat at Jesus' feet. She knew when it was time to call a halt to labor and make the most of good comradeship. Blessed wisdom! Would that many burdened housewives would learn of Mary!

Jesus made it clear that life in the home is to strike a proper balance between work and worship. If you do not know where to make the division in your home, err on the side of worship. Give that more time than it should have rather than less.

Alas, is it not true that in most homes, even in Christian homes, worship is almost, if not entirely, forgotten! Something should be done about that. Will you do it in your home? II. Love and Longsuffering (I Cor. 13:4-7).

We are apt to think of love as the warm feeling of interest and emotion which suffuses one's nature in moments of special pleasantness or of intimate fellowship. But life is not made up of a succession of pleasant incidents, of sunny afternoons and moonlit evenings.

Life is real; it is earnest, and often it is drab and irritating. What about such times? Can love meet them? Yes, for love knows how to be longsuffering.

But someone may ask, Does love really work, or is this just a finesounding but obsolete theory? It works!

Think of the things in life which irritate and depress us. Then put opposite them the qualities of Christian love as given in verses 4 to 7 and you will agree that what this world needs most of all is love.

Remember that talking about love, or reading about it, or studying it in the Sunday school will not make it effective. We must put it into practice. Why not start now? You will be surprised at the results.

III. Promise and Perfection (vv.

Christianity has a hope, and that is not just a vague wishing that something might come to pass; it is a sure hope. In Christ all the rich promise of prophecy, of faith, of hope will come to pass.

The Christian home is the place to teach boys and girls to believe with assurance that He who has begun a good work in us "will perform it until the day of Jesus Christ" (Phil. 1:6).

We who see only dimly shall one day see our Lord face to face, and love shall abide through all eternity. Many gifts are only temporary in their usefulness; in fact, almost everything that man makes or does (apart from his service for God) is transient.

Even as vital a matter as prophecy shall one day find its end in fulfillment. Hope shall eventually find its longing expectation satisfied. Faith will be justified in seeing what it has believed. Childish things will be put away by the fullgrown man; knowledge will increase and darkness disappear. But love - love is eternal. It never fails, and will never fail. God is love, and God is eternal. From all eternity and unto all eternity love continues. Therefore, we agree with Paul who, in the verse preceding this chapter (I Cor. 12.31) says that while you may covet the best girt, here is the more excellent way

Remove Tomato Vine One way to save tomatoes from frost is to pull up the whole vine, with the tomatoes still attached, and hang it in a dry, moderately light place, such as the garage, the department of agriculture suggests. Tomatoes will keep fairly well this way for a few weeks. The mature green fruits will gradually ripen on the vine.

When hand-firing furnaces and boilers, shake grates lightly, use allmetal hoe to move glowing coals to one side, and place fresh coal at other side. If necessary, use paper to start a flame, and leave door slightly open for extra air to maintain flame. Open the overfire (firing door) damper enough to avoid "puffing." Use sized coal, Maintain a thick fuel bed. Do not use ashes to bank fire. Avoid overheating by checking fire before house is thoroughly warm. Tend heating plant regularly. By wetting ashes at night they can be removed dustlessly in morning. Plan house for easy fuel delivery and convenient ash removal.

Tanning Technique Ancient

Tanning of leather and the manufacture of shoes dates from prehistoric times. Part of the story has been gained from crude drawings, unearthed by archeologists, says the National Geographic society. When a cave man cut or bruised his feet, he wrapped them in animal skins, and fur foot coverings gradually became as popular as presentday saddle shoes. Various articles of leather, more than 33 centuries old, have been found in Egyptian tombs. The ancients discovered an early means of refrigeration when they learned that leather "breathes" and water remains cool in a leather bag. The Arabs, artisans in saddlery, probably did the first really satisfactory tanning, using flour and salt to cleanse the skins, then placing them in the sun to dry.

Affects Plant Growth

When plants turn yellow, they have lost their green coloring matter and may die. This condition, called chlorosis, seriously affects the growth of the plant, shrub, or tree. It may be caused by a deficiency of certain elements such as nitrogen, potash, magnesium, zinc, copper or iron, or by an excess of lime. Other causes may be disease, winter injury, or over-watering. Application of a plant food or commercial fertilizer is the first treatment recommended. Adequate drainage and proper cultural methods are essential.

SCOTT'S EMULSION

Post-war automobiles may ride on rubber springs which will eliminate noise and the necessity for lubrication. B. F. Goodrich has supplied over half a million rubber springs for military landing vehicles.

B. F. Goodrich is now making tires of a new kind of synthetic rubber. The new rubber makes tires wear longer.

Since cotton is of almost equal importance with rubber in the manufacture of tires, the rubber industry is one of the biggest customers of the Agricultural South.

Steel and brass are used in the manufacturing of ordinary passenger car tires.
