Sweating It Out

NEWS By PAUL MALLON

Released by Western Newspaper Union ATOMIC BOMB CREATES SUPER-SPY SYSTEM NEED

WASHINGTON-Major General Wild Bill Donovan bowed out of the first real American intelligence service (OSS) with a somewhat cool-sounding response from President Truman to his idea of developing his line of effort further for peace. Mr. Truman cut up OSS, sending part to the War Department, but most to State. The Donovan notion of hiring someone like Sumner Welles, the ex-diplomat, to keep intimate and independent watch on the inner international world, was left hanging in air-somewhat foggy air.

General Donovan has never been a glamour boy. He is a rather crusty soldier-lawyer. Those who know what he did in the confidential special agent part of the war say his work in the Balkans particularly was excellent and could have been done by no one else as well. Into his organization, however, crept a number of persons who did not fit the best nature of the endeavor and gave it distaste with Congress. I think this fairly sums up OSS. It did great work, but was not popular. (I can never learn what accomplishes popularity in this era when a bank robber can possibly attain it by merely being for the 30-hour week or some such social innova-

In the wake of this peculiar condition, congressmen are arising to shout "There will be no American Gestapo," and I assume also they mean no OGPU or NKDV. Indeed there will not. But there is a grave danger that the first vital necessity for a secure postwar world will be ignored and shunted aside by muddleheaded political thinking about it.

If you thought Pearl Harbor a surprise and blitz warfare sudden as lightning, you are already oldfashioned and obsolete in your thinking. The next war will start like a flash—the brilliant blinding flash of the atomic bomb. If our defenses were archaic last time, they will be pitiful next time unless our officials know everything going on in this world. Advance knowledge is more essential to defense in a future world than a superior air force, an army or

Not the Fascists or the Com-munist nations, but the British, a democratic nation, have the best world intelligence. It was built up through generations. Their survival depended upon it, because their little islands had absolutely nothing to justify their superior position in the world, except an awareness of the facts of national existences and a superior shrewdness in using them. That is what we need-only a better one.

It cannot be an army enterprise because the army covers only one phase of world facts influencing peace and security. It cannot be navy, marine corps, or merely all three together, because diplomacy must be founded upon such information. (The British even move commercially from such realistic ground news.) It cannot be split, or you will have each department performing again the coordination they showed about Pearl Harbor-

INDEPENDENT BUREAU

Consequently it must be an independent bureau covering at least these government elements and probably more (Justice Department and FBI.) Furthermore, the head must be a man whose character and personality guarantee full pursuit of the business to be done, and a complete disavowal of any political implica-tions in the work. He must not be a leftist or right or even a professional Democrat or Republican. That service must lean over backwards to keep itself politically inviolable, and beyond even the faintest suspicion of political use. (The British know how to-do it.)

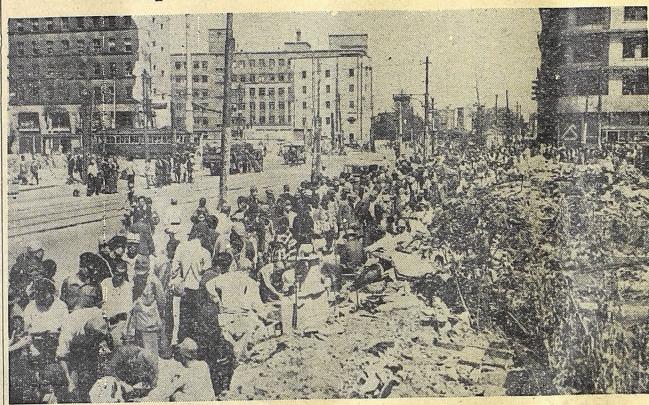

The only limit on its appropriations should be our need of information. If we need the information-get it. If the spenders want to let Treasury money loose, here is one place where they could get something out of it. Some interested parties wish to limit the scope of activity to foreign information. It should be limited only by need. If it is found counterespionage in this country it requires action, no political softpeddaling considerations should be allowed to stand in the way of getting it.

The House on the Hudson

SEVERAL years ago Chief Flynn, of the United States Secret service, discovered that counterfeit $2 bills were being circulated in large quantities in the eastern part of the country.

His search first led him to Philadelphia, but the trail was imperfect and he returned to New York, where he finally located some of the men who were passing the bad money.

A general raid in various sections led to the arrest of twenty men, most of them Italians.

This was very well, as far as it went, but it did not go far enough for the detective.

His desire was to find the men who were manufacturing the money, and eventually he got a clue which made him believe that the plant of the conspirators was located in a town on the Hudson river in New York state.

He went there and discovered what was called, in the language of the department, a deserted house.

It was not actually deserted, because an aged Italian and his wife were living there, and when they learned the mission of Mr. Flynn they vigorously protested their innocence of any wrongdoing.

But paper and ink had been shipped to this town of Highland, and when he made a search of the premises he discovered dies and other tools used in the making of counterfeit money.

He decided not to arrest the oldcouple, feeling that premature action might enable the real culprits to es-

He returned to New York again and in the course of a few weeks managed to get on the trail of two men who were known to be in the business of making bogus money.

Salvatore Cueno and Vincent Gagho were the suspected ones, and it did not take long to satisfy the secret service man that they were connected with the deserted house on the Hudson and knew something about the $2 bills which were being circulated in the Eastern cities.

They were shadowed day and night. The chief spent his days in his office laying his plans and his evenings in gathering evidence.

One morning one of his men called at the office and told him that the suspects knew they were being shadowed, and had been heard making threats against him. He shut his lips grimly and decided upon his plan of action.

The threat which had come to him was regarded as a challenge. Flynn accepted it.

That night he started out as usual, but instead of pursuing his usual round of investigation he made straight for the saloon where he was likely to find the two men he was interested in.

It was the sort of thing that required nerve, but anyone who is acquainted with this great detective knows that he is not deficient in courknocked on the panels and demanded admittance. The door was opened on a crack. Flynn pushed his way in, and found that the saloon was crowded with a motley assemblage of men and boys, most of whom were easily recognizable as inhabitants of the underworld. His dramatic entrance filled them with awe. For some moments they stood there looking at him without saying a word. Before they had time to recover from their surprise he pulled a revolver and shouted:

"Hands up, everybody!" He had planned all of this before he entered the place. He knew the psychology of crowds.

He knew, especially, the kind of men he would have to deal with. The result was exactly what he had anticipated. Every man in the saloon raised his hands, and the next moment a corps of assistants rushed into the place and placed the men under arrest. Among them were the two men he was after. They were taken before a United States commissioner and held for trial.

When the trial took place some time later the evidence was so complete and conclusive that they were promptly convicted and sentenced to long terms in the penitentiary.

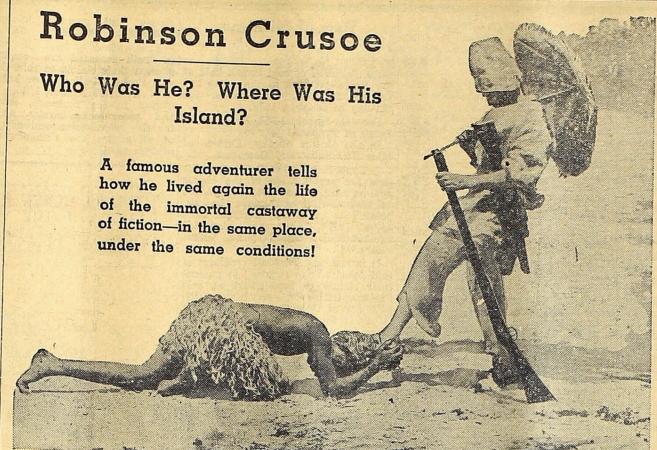

Most of the other persons caught in the raid were released, but it is a significant fact that the manufacturing and circulation of the counterfeit bills ceased from that time.

It was a clever piece of detective work, involving keen headwork and personal courage.

A fireplace, built of large water-worn stones was unearthed at a depth of six feet. It was partially surrounded by a wall of similar stones. Among the worked bones were piercers and needles, including a very fine polished needle about two inches long, with a perfectly formed eye.

By RICHARD HALLIBURTON Author of "The Royal Road to Romance," etc.

R ECENTLY I gave a talk about my favorite character in literature-Robinson Crusoe. I stated that I had lived a month on Crusoe's island, in the same manner (as far as possible) he had lived. The island chosen was Tobago, near Trinidad, in the Caribbean sea.

Outraged members of my audience protested that my ignorance was appalling, and that the misinformation I gave downright criminal, since everybody knew that Crusoe's island was Juan Fernandez, off Chile, in the Pacific.

Alexander Selkirk, a Scotch mariner, was marooned alone from 1704 to 1709 on Juan Fernandez. Robinson Crusoe, an entirely fictitious character whose adventures were patterned, faintly, on those of Selkirk, lived a fictitious 29 years on an island which author Daniel Defoe clearly identifies as Tobago.

To satisfy my curiosity about each of these characters I lived a mouth on each of their islands. It was fun, but lonesome.

Chooses to Be Castaway.

Juan Fernandez is 400 miles out in the Pacific, straight west of Valparaiso. It is 12 miles long and 3 wide, and covered with grim volcanic crags that rise 3,000 feet above the sea. A navigator has difficulty landing, for the shore line is buttressed with an all but continuous wall of cliffs 1,000 feet high against which the Pacific hurls itself with interminable rage. Only one small bay and stretch of sand is to be found, and there the Spanish discoverer, Juan Fernandez, landed in 1540; and here Alexander Selkirk went ashore in 1704.

This going ashore was Selkirk's own idea. He had quarreled violently with the captain of his sailing ship, and exclaimed, as they lay anchored in the bay, that he would rather land and remain behind, alone-forbidding and uninhabited as the island looked-than stay another minute on such a mismanaged ship.

The captain was more than willing to oblige him. He was left alone on the beach. The ship sailed off. and was never seen again, for shortly after, it struck a rock on the South American coast, and its entire crew perished.

Selkirk, twenty-eight years old, and left to his own devices, looked about. He found his private kingdom well supplied with food. Goats put ashore by buccaneers to multiply, and supply food for them, had multiplied prodigiously, and ran wild over the crags. A pair of cats, escaped from some ship, were now a family of 500. Seals crawled over the rocky promontories in thousands, and lobsters at certain seasons carpeted the beach.

The climate, in contrast to Crusoe's paradise, was in no sense tropical-no palms, no parrots, no flowers, and certainly no Carib Indians to provide a Friday. Juan Fernandez is a stern, cold, rather barren island.

Rescued From Solitude.

In 1709 a British privateer, the Duke, approached the bay—the first sail Selkirk had seen in 1,580 days. How overjoyed he must have been!

On shore a light appeared. Fearing a Spanish ambush, the captain sent ashore a lifeboat with ten wellarmed sailors to investigate. They brought back one wild-man dressed all in goatskins, and looking wilder than the original owner of the apparel. The entire crew stared at him and listened with amazement to

Despite his savage and disheveled appearance he seemed to have fared rather well. In daily pursuit of the goats up hill and around the crags, killing them barehanded, or bringing them back alive to his cave to be tamed, he had become as agile as the animals.

At first the swarms of rats almost drove him to despair. They nearby offered me just the shelter I gnawed his clothes and stole his food. So he made overtures to the innumerable cats by feeding them milk and meat. A dozen of them became domesticated, and defended him thenceforth from the rat

Couldn't Cut Beard.

To relieve his loneliness he sang and danced with his cats and kids, and shouted English at them, lest in his solitary exile he forget how to speak his own language.

He had no form of cutting instrument. Consequently for four years and four months he was able neither to clip his beard nor cut his hair. No wonder his appearance was so astonishing.

On the same beach where Selkirk went ashore I landed from my Valparaiso fishing boat. The island today shelters a few poor Chilean fishing families who have little or no idea why their island is famous. They don't understand it at all.

I found Selkirk's cave easily-just a shallow grotto worn in the rocks by the waves. But mussels clung in millions to these rocks, and at low tide crabs and lobsters peep at you from every little pool.

From this cave Selkirk wore a path up the mountainside to a notch the top-his lookout-from near which he could command the sea in every direction.

Finds Magnificent View.

climbed the precipitous trail (kept clean by modern woodgatherers) and reached the lookout.

I've never seen a more spectacular picture than the view there, with this wild, black-visaged island pitching and tumbling down below, and the unbroken blue stretching for a hundred miles on every side. It was savage country.

In 1711 Selkirk got back to England. There he became a minor celebrity in the coffee houses-such as Daniel Defoe undoubtedly frequented. In fact Selkirk put his notes in Defoe's hands to arrange for publication. "But that ingenious literary pirate," wrote a sharp critic of the great author a century later, "converted the original manuscript, by the aid of luxurious fancy, into the well-known romance of Robinson Crusoe, and defrauded Selkirk of the profits which it was reasonable to suppose he would have reaped."

We know Defoe meant his hero's island to be Tobago, for the author drives him and his ship before the storm "to the coast of Guiana, on the north part of Brazil, beyond the Amazones, across the mouth of the Orinoco river. Friday, a Carib (bean) Indian, came from what is now the coast of Venezuela. From a hilltop Crusoe also could see the three peaks on the "great island of Trinidad."

Tobago is near the mouth of the Orinoco, and only 20 miles from Trinidad.

I approached Tobago in a manner dramatically similar to Crusoe's— in a storm. My sailboat, like Crusoe's was driven past the mouth of the Orinoco-coming home from now when the distractions of mod-Devil's island in French Guiana; and though I intended to land on Tobago I did not intend to be pitched on the beach there with Susie and Adam and Kitty and Lissuch terrible violence. It was a lonely but indescribably beautiful beach, palm-shaded. A chalk cave needed to relive, as I intended to attempt, the life of Crusoe. Re-creating Crusoe.

From my six-ton sailboat I pur chased all the provisions and gearsails, rope, tools, barrels, iron stove, hammock, cooking pots, fishing tackle, two guns and ammunitionand Adam the boat's dog. Then my craft sailed off to Trinidad, and left me in solitary exile.

Straightway I made my cave as homelike as possible, hung my hammock, fashioned a crude table and chair from bamboo, and arranged the tools and gear. Likewise I made a calendar with notches in a stick, but also had a printed calendar to check it with

I soon found that the other side of the island was thinly inhabited with negroes, living mostly in the town of Scarborough, some ten miles away. To this town I went looking for a cat and a parrot. I had to do everything right.

Cats were plentiful. I was showered with cats by the natives, but kept my supply down to a single gray kitten. As for parrots there was only one available on the island, owned by an old negro woman as a pet. This I bought for a dollar. The bird's name was Susie, and this name it shrieked at everybody. I labored many hours in the effort to teach the parrot to call me Poor Richard Crusoe and not Susie, and at length succeeded.

I remembered that Crusoe had a flock of goats which provided him with meat and milk. Consequently bought a female with two kids from a young negro goatherd I had met with, and annexed them to my household.

My Man Toosday.

I had a time with my goatskin clothes. Being nothing of a tailor the coat and hat I made were extremely crude, and the breeches I gave up in despair. But my goatskin umbrella was a masterpiece. True it wouldn't fold up, but it did shed the rains.

My chief pride and joy was my beard, for I suffered it to grow long in order to have it look like Crusoe's beard.

Like Crusoe I kept a careful diary. Also like Crusoe I decided to become a Christian and read my Bible every day.

The Friday problem had to be solved. My impersonation of Crusoe was entirely incomplete without. I found a negro boy, about twenty, swimming (in his long cotton underwear) on the beach near my cave. Here was just the man. As he stared at my extraordinary get-up I told him that if he'd take off the wet underwear and put on a grass skirt, and fall prone before me, and lift my foot onto his head-and cook!-I'd engage him as my Friday. Only it wasn't Friday. "What day is this?" I asked him. "Ain't it Toosday?" he replied. So I called him Toosday thenceforth. He didn't seem to mind.

It was soon evident that Toosday was going to be a most serviceable companion. He could cook quite well, and seemed to enjoy it, and as I did not, I let him prepare every meal.

Among the island's simple-minded black population my own figure had caused enough commotion from the start, but now that I was seen accompanied by one of their own tribe naked except for a short grass skirt, such riots were precipitated that the native constable had perplexities as to what should be done with us. On the night of the weekly movie, Toosday and I in all our glory would walk into town and front-row seats-I with my take wild ox-blood beard, clumsy goatskin umbrella, skin hat and (very smelly) coat, ragged breeches, parrot and dog-and Toosday with nothing on but a grass skirt, and being hooted at by all his girl friends. He always looked terribly embar-

I was infinitely sad to leave Tobago and its solitude. And even ern life begin to get the best of me, I have a yearning to live again like Crusoe, and return again to terine and Toosday, and be at peace again on their beautiful tropical island in the Caribbean sea.

Dust One

By ANEL C. JOHNS McClure Newspaper Syndicate. WNU Features.

HE strawberries were shipped in early. They were flat, heartshaped. Pinkish red. The centers came out with the stem if Pattie wasn't careful.

Pattie shouldn't have bought them. But she couldn't resist. She had always brought home the first on the market since that time just after her marriage when Philip came home, smelling of gasoline. There was always hard grease on his hands and sometimes on his pugnosed face. He stopped at the table, as always, for a preview of what was cooking and said, "Shortcake! Spring must be here. Spring, when a young man's fancy seriously turns to thoughts of love if he's married to a gorgeous dame like one Patricia

But that had been four years ago. And strawberries always reminded her of the days Philip went away in the mornings and came back to her in the evenings. Never too tired to dance.

Pattie loved the way they moved in unison. Philip holding her a little tight, saying, "You're like the music, Baby. You make me know that, if I never have anything more, I've got everything right now. For you I clean carburetors, patch flats. Pump gas. Pour oil. There's a ritzy dame comes into the station about twice a week. She's a looker! But, Baby, you outlook her even in curlers and cold cream."

Did Philip still feel like that? That she outlooked the lookers who danced with him at the USO clubs on his week-end leaves? The lookers who worked in canteens, doing their bit for the boys? The lookers who flirted?

He was sent with his crew to England and no doubt met new people with strange ways.

Pattie was glad she had been a camp wife. That she had followed her Philip around, put up in a jail for two weeks in Georgia because there were no rooms available. Even slept in the back seat of the car at a filling station when she arrived in a town too late to find quar-

She was glad that she had been with him the night he was shipped. The sergeant had let her stay. and four other wives who had little to say that they couldn't tell with the pressure of their cold fingers.

Philip had looked into her face, upturned in the moonlight, until the tears stood at her lashes and her throat hurt.

"You're beautiful, Baby. Even now. I hate going before he gets here but I can't be the chooser in this game. Be sure to send me a cable. It'll be tough over there, waiting. I know it'll be tougher here."

It was horrible back in their house alone. She tried having the wife of one of Philip's pals live with her. But the girl was morbid. She doted on horrors, especially those of the

Philip had said, "Don't sit around fretting about me. Worry is bad. I'll take care of myself. If I see a blockbuster coming at me I'll run like the deuce. I want to come home and find you just the same."

Well, she wasn't the same. She'd been in the maternity ward without him to stand by. She'd come through the measles and a hand that little Philip burned when he pulled the percolator off the stove. The neighbors helped her when she had a bad arpendix that the doctor finally removed.

Philip said, "Don't ever forget me, Baby. I won't forget you. The going will never be so rough that that can happen. I'll think of you every day. All day. And dream of you at night. Everything I do will be for you and the little one."

But all of that had been so long ago. She couldn't bring Philip back as she used to. At first she could make him sit in his favorite chair. Could hear his voice above the radio talking without words. Just the rumble of his deep voice. But she couldn't hear his voice any more. She had forgotten how he locked sitting behind the evening paper.

Suddenly her hands trembled. She crushed a luscious berry between her fingers. She was frightened. If she couldn't recall here, where Philip had been, how could he remember her, where she had never been?

How could he keep in mind their simple pleasures when everyone worked to entertain him and thousands like him? Time blots out everything.

She had tried to keep her hold on Philip. She had sent him pictures of the baby every month. Anniversary pictures, she called them. And snapshots of herself too. Being careful to look her best; careful to smile with the wrinkles in her nose about which Philip had teased her.

Little Philip came in from outdoors. His pug nose was red with the cold of early spring. His hands were smeared with a red sucker and there was a ring around his rosy mouth where he had licked the stickiness. His cap was gone and his reddish hair was every which

Tarragon Vinegar

Tarragon vinegar is a favorite in dressing summer salads. The dark green leaves of tarragon are used for seasoning the vinegar. They are used both fresh and dried. This herb needs a little covering of litter and leaves for winter protection.

Cage Crickets

In the Orient the chirping noise of the house cricket is highly appreciated and many households keep them in cages, the cages often elaborately wrought and decorated.

Two-Headed Stream

The Rhine river rises as a twoheaded stream in southern Switzerland, enters the Boden See (Lake Constance), and emerges to continue its winding 850-mile course to its multi-mouthed outlet in the North sea. In its oceanward journey it picks up several important tributaries, such as the Lahn, the Neckar, the Main, and the Ruhr from the east, and the Mosel from the west. In some stretches the river is an international boundary. It is a frontier between Switzerland and tiny Liechtenstein, between Switzerland and the old Austria, between Switzerland and Germany, and between France and Germany. Through Germany the river flows in a general northwesterly direction, turning sharply west at the Netherlands line to enter the North

Freshen Grass With

Fertilizer in Fall

Late August or September is the best season to give lawn grass a "lift." After the hard summer season, some refreshments in the way of fertilizer, and possibly lime, is called for. Thin stands of grass are particularly in need of help. If your lawn has not been limed in the last few years, it is suggested that you apply 50 to 75 pounds of ground limestone per 1,000 square feet. This will sweeten the soil and make It possible for the grasses to respond better to fertilizer treatment.

The addition of 10 to 20 pounds of fertilizer per 1,000 square feet of lawn will do wonders. Fertilizers such as 5-10-5, 4-12-8 or those of similar ratios are well adapted for thickening lawn grasses. Uniform distribution can be obtained by spreading the material in two directions. Measure out half of the fertilizer needed for the lawn and spread it in a north-south direction. Then spread the other half in an east-west direction, and there should be little difficulty in getting even coverage.

Lawns given a tonic in the manner described soon will assume a good healthy color and develop a dense stand of grass. Lawns composed of dense turf will resist invasion by undesirable weeds such as crabgrass, buckhorn and dandelion.

Combustionible Hay

Experienced farmers know that hay, if incompletely cured at time of storage-meaning that it has a moisture content of 25 to 30 per cent - is subject to spontaneous combustion.

Perk Up Potato Salad Potato salad will taste better if placed in the refrigerator to chill

This gives the onions and seasonings a chance to permeate the salad, making it uniformly delicious.

Some Like Them Bold

By ARTHUR M. YORK McClure Newspaper Syndicate. WNU Features.

W ALTER GATES sat straight as a rod, although it was nearly four hours since he had started waiting to see the managing editor. He was poised hopefully on the edge of the chair, as if he expected each minute might bring back the copy boy with the news that Mr. Pool was ready to see him about the reporting job. But, instead, the photographer came around the corner for the fourth time from the direction of the clacking city room. Walt stopped him. "You'll never get to see the old man sitting here, Matey," the photographer informed him. "He hates appointments. Funny that way."

"Then how does anyone ever see him?" Walt inquired. His forehead was furrowed deeply, up to the line of his thick blond hair. He explained he had had a little reporting experience before Army service. Now that he was discharged, he wanted to get back into newspaper work. He shifted his weight from one foot to the other, proving to himself again that the artificial legs they pass out these days are no handicap.

The photographer stepped closer to Walt and spoke softly from the corner of his mouth. He suggested Walt break in on the chief. "But don't let on you know who he is," the photographer schemed. "I know a guy who got a job that way, only he didn't know he was talking to Pool, see?

"But I couldn't do that," Walt proested.

'What's to stop you? Pool's a juiet guy, but he likes 'em bold.'

". . . But I think the paper is too

As Walter descended to the pressroom where the chief was, the acrid odor of the etching acid reached him. He had always thought it displeasing. But now he recognized it as part of the nostalgia every enthusiastic reporter has for a newspaper office. It was akin to the unkempt appearance of city rooms and the crippled typewriters about which the reporters always complain.

Walt casually observed the blur of newsprint threading through the presses and, pretending he belonged there, from the corner of his eye he hunted for Mr. Pool. All the men wore the handmade boxlike caps which most pressmen fashion for themselves from a piece of newsprint paper-all except one.

Walt looked at him more closely. He stood with his hands behind his back, doing nothing but observe moaning machines. He fitted exactly the photographer's description of Mr. Pool. He were large blackrimmed glasses and his graying hair was parted far to one side. Walt strolled casually up to him and they watched the presses together. After waiting for Mr. Pool to speak first, Walt ventured: "There's no end to the excitement of seeing the paper go to press, is there?" He had to shout to be heard. The man merely glanced at Walt coclly over the dark rims of his glasses. "I like the Post," Walt resumed. "It's a good solid paper. Lot of tradition behind it. But . . ." here's where he took the photographer's cue. He searched self-consciously for ideas that were not his own. " But I think the paper is too neutral. It never gets excited about any-thing. Know what I mean?"

There was still no remark from

"It ought to have definite policies.

Ought to guide the thinking of its readers on important topics."

"Yeah?" The man looked Walt sternly up and down.

"I think the Post needs new blood," Walt went on. "Young blood." He considered giving himself as an example, but decided against being too obvious. course it's the men at the top who count where policies are concerned. Perhaps the Post needs a new managing editor." He was sorry as soon as the bold words had passed his lips. ut his comments had brought the man's head around with a jerk.

But now, with Mr. Pool glaring at him in apparent anger, Walt could only add weakly, "What do you think?" "I think you're batty as a loon." Walt felt his cheeks burn. He sought some way to escape as gracefully as possible. "But I wouldn't know, the man added. He brought his hands from behind his back and placed a boxlike paper cap on his "I'm only a pressman my-department of justice operator vacationing in the Northeastern hills, where he had formerly lived, ran into his previous boss, Inspector Tope, and Mrs. Tope. He recommended that the Topes spend the night at Dewain's Mill, operated by Bee Dewain, whom Bruce regarded very highly. Later that night Tope phoned Bruce to come out to the auto camp and have Ned Quill, a state trooper, join them. Despite the fact Bruce was to leave the next morning, he went out to meet Tope, knowing that something serious had happened. He was assured that Bee was not in trouble. He was to meet them at the Faraway cottage.

CHAPTER II

While Tope began to get out the bags, Bee and Mrs. Tope approached the cabin and the girl produced a key. Then, as she tried the knob, she said, in a surprised tone, half to herself: "Why, that's funny! It's unlocked!"

She entered and began to raise shades and let in a flood of light, and when Tope followed, with a bag in each hand, she was explaining to Mrs. Tope:

"You see, I had all the furniture built in. It's cheaper than buying." Tope set down the bags; and he saw beds end to end along one wall, and a chest of drawers beyond. The beds appeared to promise comfort. The carpenter had built frames to support the springs and sheathed these frames down to the floor, so there was no chance for dust and rubbish to accumulate underneath. There were windows in front and rear and toward the brook; and a fireplace at one end, with birch logs ready for the match, and kindling and a crumpled newspaper under them on the clean hearth upon which, clearly, there had never been

Said Bee Dewain: "I'll open the windows. It seems stuffy. Would you like a blaze?" "I think so," Mrs. Tope agreed. "It may turn chilly." Tope crossed to touch a match to the paper under the kindling; but as he stooped down, he noticed something lying on the hearth, and held

It was a thing of no apparent importance. Another man, even though he saw it, would have discovered in this object no implications at all. It was simply a match which had been lighted and allowed to burn down till only half an inch of uncharred wood remained.

Tope's eye was caught by this match almost completely burned, and he saw two or three more, lying here and there. He had an old habit of noticing unimportant things, of suspecting importance in them; so now before he lighted the fire, he searched in the kindling and in the crumpled paper and on the hearth behind and beneath the logs, till he collected eleven matches which had like the first been lighted and burned almost to the ends before they were thrown away.

. . . Bee Dewain was saying: "And will be ready at seven o'clock. Now if there's anything else you want-"

"You say we're the first ones to occupy this camp?" Tope asked

"The very first," Bee assured him.
"I do hope you'll be comfortable."
She turned to the door. "When supper's ready we ring a bell! You'll be sure to hear!"

As the girl's steps passed out of hearing, Mrs. Tope said: "Oh, we forgot to give her the message from Adam Bruce!'

"I was thinking of something else." Tope confessed; and he asked: "Need anything more out of the car?"

"Not for just one night!" "We might stay longer," he suggested, and she smiled.

"Because a brook runs past the door?'

"When I see a place that looks fishy, I always want to try it out." he confessed. Something in his tone made her look at him; but he chuckled disarmingly. She began to unpack the few things they would

"It's nice knowing we're the very first ones in here!" she suggested. He said, half to himself: "I wonder why they didn't turn on the lights." "Why should she? It's still broad daylight!"

"Instead of using matches?" he persisted, in a deep abstraction; and Mrs. Tope looked at him with amusement. "I discover new virtues in you every day," she remarked, "but you've unsuspected vices, too! It's time you quit detecting at your time of life, my dear. What are you wondering about now?" He hesitated, said at last: "Why, the nestated, said at last. Willy, the nestated, said at last. Willy, the mantel; she came to look, and he showed her those eleven burned stubs of matches which he had arranged in order there. "I found them in the fireplace," he said, watching her.

"Why not?" she protested, amused. "Probably the carpenters or the plumbers or the electricians threw them there, when they were finishing up the cabin." "They wouldn't be working at night," he insisted. "At night? Of course not! But they'd be smoking, lighting pipes and things."

"Whoever lighted these matches used them to see by."

She said briskly: "Nonsense! You've too much imagination! Are you trying to-scare me?"

"No, no!" He stood by the mantel, his back to the fire, looking thoughtfully this way and that as though he sought something. Yet in this small place nothing of any size could be concealed. There was no hiding place-unless perhaps the box-like under-structure of the beds. "What is it you're looking for?" she asked.

"Nothing," he insisted, menda ciously. "Which bed shall I take?"

"The one nearest the fire." He nodded, and went to the foot of the bed, built against the wall 'I never saw anyone yet who tucked in my covers at the foot the way I like them," he remarked.
"I'll do it!"

"Not even you!"

She laughed softly. "All right," she assented. "You're fussy as an old maid! I'll be down by the brook, if you're bound to be so independent. Come out when you're through!" Mrs. Tope left the inspector inside, and walked toward the brook and sat down beside the water,

"Now, if there is anything else you relaxed and at her ease. It may have been ten mintues before she heard his step behind her. "Well, ready for supper?" she

He was a moment in answering. 'Yes, I am." She looked at him intently, and he added: "But you know, I don't like this cabin, I wonder if Miss Dewain would let us change to one of the others, nearer the road?"

"Why? You act as though Faraway were-haunted!" He said in slow apology: "You'll have to get used to my notions. I go a lot by them." "We'll ask her when we go to supper," she promised; and after a moment she said, not looking at him, looking at the dark water: course, I know something is bothering you and I know you'll tell me when you're ready. But-if you're uneasy, suppose we move on, to-

He shook his head. "No, not tonight. Tomorrow, maybe; but not tonight."

Her eyes were grave, but she made no comment; and they came down to the Mill together, came into the bright dining-room. Bee Dewain was here alone, and Mrs. Tope said

"Miss Dewain, may we change our minds about Faraway?" And she explained, smiling apologetically: "Mr. Tope lived in an apartment before we were married; and now he isn't happy unless he can hear traffic going by. He wants to be nearer the road.

"Of course," Bee assented. "I'll have Earl shift your bags while we eat supper.'

Tope asked: "Have you a pay station here?"

The girl said: "Yes indeed!" She showed him the phone in the closet under the stairs. When he emerged, he said at once:

"You know, Miss Dewain, I think we have a mutual friend. Adam Bruce?" The girl cried with quick interest: "Do you know Adam?" "Known him for years," Tope declared. "I've heard him speak of you! In fact, he advised us to stop here. We had lunch with him in Middleford today. He said he'd seen you just yesterday. He sent you take us in!" "Adam's an idiot!" said Bee Dewain, her cheeks hot. While Tope was at the phone, the supper bell had been rung violently by some one at the kitchen door; and as Bee spoke, perhaps summoned by the bell, the gray-haired violinist appeared in time to hear her words. "Adam?" the newcomer echoed. 'Our young friend Bruce?" His tone was sardonic, hostile.

Bee, her eyes dancing, tossed her head; and Tope said watching her:

Bee introduced him; and he bowed, smiling. "Balser Vade, otherwise known as the Lone Wolf," he explained. "I have the dignity of a cabin named after me, as Miss Dewain may have told you." And he asked: "What particular idiocy has our Mr. Bruce committed now?"

No one answered him, but Mrs. Tope saw her husband's glance rest upon the violinist, a lively speculation in the old man's eye. Then others came trooping in. The Murrell twins and their father and mother Mrs. Tope had already seen; but there were others, new arrivals, men. Miss Dewain introduced them. Mr. Whitlock, she said, and Mr.

The supper was a good one and most of them ate in a silence that was to some degree enforced; for Mrs. Murrell, almost from the first, monopolized the conversation. Once Tope interjected a question.

"You say you've been here two weeks, Mrs. Murrell? I thought most people just stayed overnight."
"Most of them do," Mrs. Murrell agreed. "But Mrs. Priddy, the cook here, is my stepsister; and I always did say I'd rather eat her cooking than anybody's. Poor thing, she hates working all day in the kitchen; but she married that good-for-nothing Earl Priddy, and she's had to support him ever since."

Some pot or pan rattled angrily in the kitchen, and Mrs. Tope suspected that Mrs. Priddy had perhaps been meant to overhear. Bee said hurriedly:

"Of course, we have a lot of people here in the course of a weekcoming and going all the time." "I suppose the week-ends are your busy times?" Tope suggested.

"Well, yes," Bee agreed. "There were six cabins full last night, and eight Saturday night."

But Mrs. Murrell, not to be silenced, turned her catechism to Whitlock and Beal; and Mrs. Tope saw that Tope watched Whitlock with an unobtrusive eye. After supper, without apology or excuse, these two men went out of doors; and Tope turned to Mrs. Tope, almost briskly.

"Shall we go to our cabin, my dear?" he asked. "I thought you might read aloud to me a while." Mrs. Tope had never read aloud to him; yet she betrayed no least surprise at this suggestion. "We must finish our book," she agreed, and rose.

Inspector Tope turned with Mrs. Tope toward their new cabin. It was called Cascade. On the stoop, he paused and looked around. Dusk cloaked them from every view. He made sure of this; and he said in a low tone:

"Go inside, my dear. Talk, turn on the lights, draw the blinds. Read aloud. I'll come soon." And without waiting for her assent, he slipped away, his feet silent on the carpet of pine needles.

Mrs. Tope was half impatient with this mystery, and half alarmed. Nevertheless after a moment she obeyed him. She went in, and drew the blinds. Then in sudden hastethe darkness was affrighting-she switched on the lights, and found a magazine in her bag and began obe-diently to read aloud. Alone in the cabin, her voice went monotonously on and on.

But her eyes did not stay fixed on the page. Her nerves were steady enough; yet the steadiest nerves might have been shaken by this necessity of sitting alone, in a small closed cabin with drawn blinds.

Adam found the door open. He went in, turned on the lights, closed the door. Some embers of a fire still glowed on the hearth, and he added fresh wood, and stood with his back to the fire, intensely alert, listening for any sound outside, wondering where Tope was, and what the old man had to tell, and how soon he would appear. But almost at once he heard soft footsteps on the turf—not on the gravel drive—outside; and then, without knocking, Tope opened the door. He came in, Mrs. Tope behind him.

"Hello, Adam," he said mildly. "I didn't expect to see you again so soon," Adam confessed, gripping the other's hand. "Hello, Mrs. Tope. Inspector, if this is a wild-goose chase, I'll take it out of your hide. I'm supposed to be back on the job at noon tomorrow."

"You'll have a job here," Tope told him. "Let me give it to you in order, Adam," he explained. "So I'll get it straight in my own mind." And as Adam nodded, he went on slowly, as if weighing each phrase.

"When Miss Dewain put us in this cabin, she said it was new this spring; and that no one had ever spent the night in it. She had a key to unlock the door here; but the door was already unlocked."
"Probably whoever cleaned up after the carpenters got through forgot to lock it." "Maybe," Tope assented. "But-"He warned us not to mention his name; said if we did, you wouldn't Here's the next thing. I started to light the fire, and saw a match on the hearth. A burned match. It was burned clear down; but not the way a match is burned when it is used to light a cigarette.

Safety Record

Although railroads are handling a greater amount of high explosives on account of the war than ever before, not a single railroad employee lost his life in 1944 as a result of accidents in connection with the transportation of explosives. Seven accidents due to the transportation of explosives took place in 1944. These resulted in only one person being injured and a total property loss of $75,440. One accident took place in connection with the transportation of fire works, while six accidents resulted from the transportation of military explosives. In the past 11 years, there has been only one fatality resulting from accidents in connection with the transportation of explosives and that one took place in 1939.

Dangerous Cargo

In connection with the transportation of great quantities of dangerous articles, other than explosives, handled by the railroads in 1944, two persons were killed and 40 injured. Those two fatalities resulted from accidents in connection with the handling of gasoline. Accidents in connection with the movement of various dangerous articles other than explosives totaled 990 in 1944. Of this number, gasoline accounted for 178, electrical storage batteries, 170; crude oil, 138; sulphuric acid, 72; nitric acid, 46, and naphtha, 30. Property damage in connection with fires and explosions resulting from such accidents totaled $568,283 compared with $1,128,150 in 1943, when there were 966 accidents and six fatalities.

Extensive studies at leading agricultural colleges and experiment stations in the United States demonstrate without exception that urea, in scientifically safe amounts, is properly assimilated, the committee said. It can efficiently replace a limited portion of the normal protein in the diet of such ruminants as dairy cows, growing heifers, steers and range

Sugar Restrictions Prevent Solution Of Dessert Problems

Mounds of creamy ice cream ride on top of peach halves set on squares of tasty, hot milk sponge cake. A dessert sauce made of the peach juice is a delightful foil for the fruit, ice cream and cake.

Now that food rationing has loosened up in most of the eatable goods, and we are once again able to get back on a prewar standard, cooking problems need not be pressing. However, in spite of this lifting of restrictions, we still have at least one major problem-that of sugar. Little relief is in sight right now, and the situation will probably pre-vail for some months. What shall we do about dessert? Well, first of all there are fruits which can be dished up in any number of perfectly delightful ways. There's whipped cream and ice cream, and, of course, sugar substitutes.

One cup of sugar or less is a good rule to follow if you are using recipes calling for this sweet but scarce commodity. If your cake calls for 11/2 cups of sugar, use 3/4 cup of sugar with 3/4 cup of corn syrup. In this case you must use 2 tablespoons less milk than the recipe calls for and 2 tablespoons of flour, additional.

The fat scarcity also limits us to some extent on the baked goodies we want to make. That's why sponge cake will be popular, as in this following recipe:

Peach Sponge a la Mode. (Serves 8)

Sponge cake 1 No. 21/2 can peach halves 1 quart vanilla ice cream Dessert sauce

The cake used uses 4 eggs and is made with scalded milk to give it a fluffy texture:

Sponge Cake. 2 cups sifted cake flour 1/4 teaspoon salt

2 teaspoons baking powder 4 eggs 1 cup sugar

1 cup milk, scalded 1 teaspoon vanilla 3 tablespoons butter, melted

Sift flour and measure. Sift three times with salt and baking powder. Beat eggs with rotary beater until thick and lemon colored. Add sugar gradually and beat until fluffy. Fold in flour mixture, then milk, flavoring and melted butter. Fold until well blended. Pour into square cake pan lined with waxed paper. Bake in a moderate (350-degree) oven for 30 minutes. Cool in pans.

Dessert Sauce. Liquid from peaches 2 teaspoons granulated sugar Remaining peach halves, chopped 1/4 cup salted almonds, slivered 1 tablespoon brown sugar

Cook the peach liquid down to 3/4 cup. Stir in the granulated sugar

Lynn Says:

Make Meals Good: No family enjoys eating the same, same foods every meal. It's a good idea not to repeat dishes more than once every three or four weeks Even favorite foods get monoto nous when served too regularly

To get contrast in every meal follow the basic seven charts to see that you get in all different types of foods.

In planning a meal, have some things crisp, others soft, and still others hard. For example, meat can be the "soft" food, while broccoli or salad add the crispness, and rolls are the "hard" part.

Try to combine colors, too. Cauliflower, potatoes and creamed chicken may all be good, but they don't stimulate the appetite. However, consider the colorfulness of creamed chicken with french fried potatoes and peas with carrots.

There should also be a combination of hot and cold dishes. Even with a salad luncheon, the hot foods can be soup and coffee. Some cooked, some raw is another good rule. Be sure to have a salad-a big one, too, if you are having roasted meat, cooked vegetables and pie or pudding, which are all cooked.

1/4 teaspoon salt 2 tablespoons melted butter Plain pastry for 1 crust (about 1 cup flour)

Line pie pan with pastry, building up the edge. Fill with sliced apples. Add remaining ingredients to beaten egg; beat well. Pour batter over apples. Bake in a hot (425-degree) oven for 25 to 30 minutes. Apples which are best to use in this type of pie are Rome Beauty or MacIntosh. Black walnuts can lend a distinctive flavor to pie when fruit supplies dip to a low during the cooler weather as in this recipe:

If you like stuffed green peppers, try them with a stuffing of corned beef hash mixed with onion. It's mighty good.

Like sweet potato pudding? One way to make it is to mash six cooked sweet potatoes with 6 tablespoons butter, 2 tablespoons grated lemon rind and 1 cup of orange juice. Bake this mixture in a greased casserole in a moderate oven for 15 minutes.

Drainage Practices Increase on Farms

Crop Yields Improved By Control of Moisture

Improved drainage is considered one of the better means of increasing crop yields on flat farmland without furthering the danger of erosion. Good ditches have been found to increase crop returns ma-

Experts point out that the drainage of wet spots in cultivated fields is generally the most profitable type of drainage a farmer can use. Surface drainage is usually accomplished with shallow ditches that quickly remove water from the top of the ground. Tile drains are employed when under drainage is needed to remove excess water from the root zone of the soil.

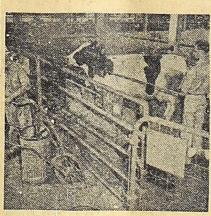

Emphasis in the AAA conservation program is laid on the importance of keeping ditches and drains clean and free from weeds, trash and sediment.

Walls and ceilings covered with DDT spray remain deadly to flies for three months. ### Future of Soybeans

Soybeans have some advantages in the competition for peacetime acreage which will continue to make them a profitable farm crop. Some of the advantages are: more pounds of quality protein and oil produced per acre than by any other crop; value of soybean oil meal as stock feed; rapid strides made in the food and industrial usage of soy beans; present research indicating further industrial uses; and their replacement of unprofitable grains.

Softly Draped Handbags Tuned to Stunning Fall and Winter Costumes

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

DESIGNERS are on the qui vive this season to create handsome handbags that will measure up to the fashion glory and the new elegance of the stunning costumes which go to make up the fall and winter style picture.

In assembling your fall-winter wardrobe, keep in mind that this year your costume will be only as smart as the handbag you carry with it. That's how important handbags really are. You will have no trouble in finding as handsome handbags and as versatile as ever fancy might picture. Be sure to make your selection with meticulous care, for this year's handbags make a decided departure from the stereotyped styles of yore.

The three voguish Jenny handbags shown in the illustration are typical of the new movement toward the feminine look, achieved through soft draping. These bags are styled as American women prefer them, with elegance and stark clean lines, and in fabrics that mean fashion and wearability.

With your perfect dawn-to-dusk trotteur, the bag to the left will be ideal. It is spiced with the new soft look via uniquely quilted and gathered supple goatskin. ing trim is outstanding in the news when it comes to adding the touch that tells to this season's smartest handbags. Sleek, smooth, quality-kind broad-cloth, the fabric that fraternizes with most every costume, makes the good-looking bag to the right. In this instance, the designer takes the ever-popular underarm handle bag and artfully drapes a pleated flange through a graceful span of mock tor-Speaking in general of what's what in new handbag fashions, the most exciting innovation in many a season is the advent of little bulbous pouch bags done in eye-catching silhouettes. These pouch bags certainly have cunning ways and they are staging a display of breath-taking novelty. Made of practical broadcloth, faille and various wearable media, they carry on in a modest way by day. When it comes to the dressy cocktail party and gala after-five occasion, however, the little pouch bag puts on a spectacular display that fairly bubbles over with all the glitter and intriguing fussiness imagination can devise.

The party bags fairly scintillate with the glitter of sequins or tiny steel or jet beads. Most of the box bags have straps to sling over the arm. The newsiest news of all is the little shoulder strap bags that become a decorative part of the frock when dancing.

Furred Cloth Coats Make Fashion News

The short cloth coat with intriguing fur trim is taking over in a tremendous way for fall. The top news is luxurious wool coats with gorgeous borders that either trim the flare hemline or are applied in a tuxedo manner down the front. Important is the style message of fur sleeves in cloth coats, such as the belted wool shorties in neutral shades that are fashioned with waist deep sleeves of black Persian. Interesting also is the cloth coat with a fur yoke. Contrasting the voluptuous fur trims is the use of fur in discreet ways, as for instance, the cloth coat that is bound all around the edges with Persian or beaver or other smooth peltry. There is also indication that one type fur will trim another. Designers are doing wonderful things with fur, not only in trimming but in accessories, and fur hats are being turned out in endless versions.

Color Contrast Extended To New Evening Dresses

The idea of color contrast is associated in our minds for the most part in connection with sports clothes and daytime dresses. It's interesting to note that this color technique is carrying on in the realm of formal evening gowns. In one instance a noted designer introduces a panel that extends from the right shoulder to the floor hemline of the dress. The panel is made up of lime and red, flashed against a black background.

Michigan Tops in Deer Hunting

Michigan is in top place among the states in total of deer killed by hunters in 1944 and is topped only by Pennslyvania in number of deer

Figures for the top five states, ranked according to deer taken are: Hunters Kill ..... 229,472 70,980 only one license.

Conservation department game men point out that bucks, does and fawns can be taken in Minnesota. The magazine reports that deer can be taken legally in 37 states.

A grand total of nearly 692,000 individual hunters is the conservation department's estimate of the size of this year's army of nimrods. The total is calculated on the basis of 1944 license sales which totaled 783,355 in all classifications. The department sold 229,472 deer licenses, believes that not to exceed 25,000 sportsmen hunted deer experience of the state of the s clusively. In other swords, 204,472 deer hunters bought small game li-censes last year. Total of licensed hunters, therefore, was 578,883. The department also estimates that approximately 50,000 farmers hunted on their own lands without grade last Friday. Arthur has been on a trip to Canada with his parents.

Donald Simpson entered the first grade Monday. He came from Trenton, Michigan. We now have 15 first graders.
