losco County "E" Bond Quota $97;000

H. E. Friedman, chairman of the losco County War Finance Commit-tee, announced today that the Vic-tory Bond Campaign was now un-derway. Iosco county's quota of "E" Bonds in this drive is $97,000.00. Iosco has more than 1,000 men and women in the service, and the money raised by this campaign will be used in returning them to their homes.

Mr. Friedman pointed out that it costs about $150.00 to return each the man from overseas duty plus $300.00 mustering out pay. Secreary of ITreasury Fred M. Vinson, in announcing the Victory Loan, pointed out that great sums of money are needed for the care of wounded veterans of World War II and for their rehabilitation in the retary also stressed that the greatest inflation had come after the last war ended. "Inflationary forces must be countered with savings until consumer goods are more plentiful,' he said.

Bonds offered for sale in the com-ing drive are of the same type and in the same denominations as those in previous War Loan campaigns. The War Bonds bought before Victory furnished United States fighting men with implements of war. Now, in the last great Victory Loan drive, you are asked to invest more in bonds to help finance the treatment, hospitalization, the ex-pert and healing medical care that these same fighting men require.

PRESIDENT IN MISSOURI

WASHINGTON. - The next two months of President Truman's life are filled with junkets similar to that which he has just taken through the heart of the Mark Twain country. At first, newsmen covering the White House figured that he took these trips for political reasons, but they have now changed their minds. The President takes these junkets because he loves them. Never since that fateful April day when he took the oath of office has he had more fun than at Caruthersville, Mo., where he swapped yarns with the local postmaster, got up at 6:15 to "spit" in the Mississippi river, and ran out in the street to ring the bell of a small-scale locomotive.

The locomotive was being conduct-ed through the streets of Caruthers-ville by the "Forty and Eight" club of the American Legion (commemorating the "40 men-8 horses" capacity of French freight cars in the last war). Suddenly the President of the United States spied it. Perhaps it reminded him of 1918 when he unloaded artillery horses from those same French freight cars in the Meuse sector.

Anyway, with a shout to War Mobilizer John Snyder, who once worked behind the cashier's cage of small-town Missouri-Arkansas banks, Harry went over to the locomotive. Right then and there the war mobilizer and the President of the United States had the time of their lives staging a locomotive bell-pulling contest.

SECRET SERVICE FROWNS

Another incident the secret service men didn't like was when the President arose shortly after 6 a. m., left the austere frame 42-room Majestic hotel which had been cleared of guests in his honor, and walked down to the Mississippi river. It seems that there is an old custom in those parts which makes it incumbent upon a visitor to spit in the Father of Waters.

The secret service men, not being in the know regarding this spitting custom, were taken by surprise. One of them, however, spotted the truant President of the United States ambling off in the direction of the river, sounded the alarm, and a few minutes later, four bodyguards were trailing him.

After Harry got through spitting, he skimmed a few stones out over the river, found that his technique as a stone-skimmer hadn't changed since boyhood days, and was then content to go back to town.

On the way, he met two old Caruthersville cronies, Nearl Helm, county wholesale liquor dealer, and James Reeves, former commander of the American Legion. They swapped stories as they walked down to the post office, where they dropped in to see Postmaster Bailey S. Brooks. There they swapped some more.

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS Congress Fashions 5½ Billion Dollar Tax Reduction for 1946; Ponder Postwar Army Training

With freedom of speech assured under Allied orders, former Japanese political prisoner addresses gathering in Tokyo. Under proposed liberalized constitution, all Nipponese elements would be afforded opportunity for recognition in nation's governmental councils.

TAXES: Good News

Though the senate and house had yet to compromise their differences, John Q. Public could look forward to substantial reductions in income taxes in 1946, and American business was assured generous relief for the immediate postwar period.

No less than 2½ billion dollars was expected to be lopped off of individual income taxes as a result of provisions for permitting $500 exemptions for dependents before payment of the normal 3 per cent levy and the scaling down of surtax rates.

Close to another 8 billion dollars was scheduled to be pared from corporation income taxes through substantial reduction or total elimination of the excess profits assessment; repeal of the declared value excess profits and capital stock levies, and graduated decrease in surtax rates on companies with less than $60,000 net return.

In addition to income tax reductions, the use tax on automobile and boats was expected to be dropped. Solons were divided on the question of wartime luxury levies, however, with the house for cutting present rates to prewar levels July 1 and the senate against the action.

With reserves well over 6 billion dollars, both houses were unanimous in freezing present social se-curity payroll taxes at 1 per cent on employee and employer alike and forestalling an automatic increase to 2½ per cent apiece January 1. Under the tax relief bill drawn up by the senate, G.I.s would not be required to pay taxes on service compensation during the war years, and officers would be permitted to spread tax liabilities over a three year period interest free.

WHEN THE DOCTOR COMES MARCHING HOME

It will be nice to phone a doctor's office again and find he is not in Europe, Asia or Africa.

So many physicians were taken into the war that the chances have been at least four to one that when you went to one's office you would see a sign "Out to Global War, Return Ultimately" on the door.

The few doctors left at home were harder to see than a world series. _--

The lines were almost as long, and some patients arrived the night before and sat on soap boxes all night in order to get in first in the morning.

Patients had to wait so long for their turn, even when they got inside the house, that they often outgrew the original ailment and developed new symptoms during the wait.

If a patient didn't have high blood pressure when he entered a doctor's office he had it by the time he left.

These were tough years for hypochondriacs. When they imagined they were sick they also had to imagine they could get a physician.

It was tough on the doctors too. They were as overworked as subway guards in a rush hour. Their one regret was that they were unable to feel four pulses at a time.

Many a medico was in worse shape than the patients. One of the laughs of wartime was a doctor telling a patient "You're working too hard. You've got to take it easy."

When you finally got out of the waiting room and into a doctor's office you were brushed off faster than a man on a revolving floor. You left too dizzy to remember what he said. He was too dizzy to remember what was wrong with you.

It was nothing unusual to have a doctor greet you with "What is your ailment? I'll give you ten seconds."

Six members of a congressional committee sailing to Europe last August were nearly scared out of LABOR: their wits while on the Queen Mary. Headed by Rep. Louis Rabaut of Michigan, a subcommittee of the house appropriations committee had debated whether to fly or to go by boat. Finally they decided to sailbut they wished they hadn't.

The group which decided to enjoy some relaxation on steamer chairs included Dean Gillespie of Colorado, Robert Jones of Ohio, Butler Hare of South Carolina, Thomas O'Brien of Illinois and Judge John Kerr of North Carolina. Kerr had argued for the boat trip and finally convinced his colleagues.

The congressmen were just beginning to relax on their first night out from New York when an army officer came to Chairman Rabaut with a disturbing message.

"The skipper thought you gentlemen ought to know," he said, "that we have just received a code message from the FBI. They report into alleged huge wartime profits to they have discovered there are a number of incendiary bombs on the boat scheduled to go off at midnight.

"There are several companies of Japanese - American troops on board," the officer told Rabaut, "and Japan is still at war with the United States."

Rabaut called his colleagues together and told them the news. Judge Kerr's first comment was: "I wonder if the skipper has ordered airplanes to hover around the ship."

All were alerted the entire night while the ship's crew searched unsuccessfully for the bombs. No trace of them was ever found, but the restful relaxation the congressmen had hoped for was not achieved until they set foot on solid ground once again.

CAPITAL CHAFF

Congratulations to Gen. Arthur Esterbrook of Santa Ana, Calif., for permitting his enlisted men to give him their gripes face to face and for speeding up discharges. If there were more generals like Esterbrook, there would be more men wanting to

Setting Pattern

With both Henry Ford II and United Automobile Workers' leaders expressing confidence in settlement of a wage adjustment at the company, government officials held high hopes that an agreement might result in the establishment of a postwar pay pattern and clear the way for speedy reconversion.

Government optimism was a welcome note in the dreary labor picture, pointed up by the deadlock in negotiations between the UAW and General Motors over the CIO union's demands for a 30 per cent wage increase to maintain wartime "take-home" pay and the corporation's resistance to the demands because of possible effects on prices. Setting the pattern for other CIO unions, the UAW declared that General Motors was well able to dip carry over any losses accruing from higher wages until future production reached big volume levels. Reflecting industrial sentiment for its own part, General Motors denied exorbitant wartime earnings and declared any withdrawal from reserves would crimp expansion plans. As the companies and unions clashed, the administration worked on a reconversion wage policy designed to guide negotiations through the troublesome days ahead. Strongly influenced by labor, the government reportedly favored substantial wage boosts to maintain wartime "take-home" pay while freezing prices at prewar levels, except in hardship cases.

JAPAN: Reform Imminent

Her military machine smashed.

Japan's highly developed economic monopolies, designed for foreign as well as domestic exploitation, also faced imminent dissolution as part of the Allied program to strip Nippon of her war-making potential and democratize the country. The losers figured to be the five great financial-industrial families of Japan, which, as the dominant civilian powers, had exercised strong pressure on the nation's foreign policies. Backed both politically and financially by the government, the big five, known as the "zaibatsu," were heavy investors in overseas development. By smashing the "zaibatsu," the Allies planned to loosen their grip over Japanese politics and permit more liberal and democratic elements to exert influence over government direction. At the same time, destruction of the great combines promised freer opportunity for economic development in the country As steps were taken for the dissolution of the "zaibatsu," the political transformation of Japan slowly gained ground with new parties in the development stage and more liberal political institutions impending

Huge Postwar Market for Autos Looms

Potential demand for automobiles by domestic consumers next year should amount to 9,843,000 cars, after allowing for 331,000 cars to meet the increase in population, says the Alexander Hamilton institute.

At the beginning of 1942, the number of passenger automobiles in operation in the United States was at a record peak of 27,364,000, results of an extensive survey showed. As the result of the stoppage of production during the war, the prospect is that there will be only 21,921,000 cars in operation at the beginning of 1946. Taking into account the increase in population since 1942, the number of passenger automobiles in operation at the beginning of 1946 will thus be 6,768,000 cars below the normal level and in addition 2,744,000 cars may be scrapped in 1946.

Time is not to be wasted, or casually used. It is to be redeemed -every moment to count for God. The walk of the believer is to be circumspect, that is, with "painstaking attention to details, under a sense of their importance," not a foolish walk, but a wise one. IV. Receiving God's Spirit (5:18-21)

God wishes to fill His children with the Holy Spirit in such mighty overwhelming power that they are entirely under His control. Such Spirit-filled believers find their joy It means an investment in some and satisfaction in the fellowship of those who sing the praises of God from the heart.

Being a Christian is not a depressing, sorrowful business. It makes you glad. It is God's people who sing and make melody. Some of us who have failed to appreciate this truth should begin now to "get hap-

Money is going to be just as imeign ports, hordes of hungry, frightportant to you in 1950 as it is today, and worth twice as much.

> Invest in Government Bonds. My answer to this problem is to invest in the last government bonds; the bonds that mean victory, rehabilitation, the beginning of a new world. This is not government propaganda; I have not been asked to do it. I am saying it because I consider it an extraordinary opportunity. If in the dark war years there was ever a question as to But then? Then comes the time when everyone will want a little money. Ten thousand, 12 thousand, cally on top. We who bought bonds when German buzz bombs were besieging London, when Japanese suicide planes were sinking our ships, may have shown some little faith and patriotism in the act.

But not now. Now there is no doubt that an investment in America, as she makes her last great effort to clean up the remains of the war ruins everywhere, and get her own wheels started again, is the safest investment in the world. When I say "save, and scrimp if you must, and cut down, and sacrifice - but lay away victory bonds, and bonds, and bonds," I am talking not for America, not even for the soldiers and sailors and airmen for whose benefit this great drive is opened, but for you-yourselfand those you love, and your brighter tomorrow.

TASTIER SCHOOL LUNCHES

School days mean lunch-box days. Here are some suggestions to make lunches "go over in a big way." Use enough waxed paper to cover sandwiches, fruit and cake completely so that the food does not dry out. And use paper cups with lids to keep raw vegetables crisp. To keep lettuce from wilting long before lunchtime, wash the leaves, dry them well, and wrap them separately in waxed paper. Then the leaves can be added to the sandwich just before eating.

As all productions from Hollywood must no longer be considered colossal but "atomic," the strikers at the motion picture plants have led the way in proving to the world that they can put on an "atomic" strike. Deputy sheriffs who did not approve of the blockade are shown removing some of the strikers from the entrance.

War Advertising

American business contributed $302,248,775 worth of its own advertising during the last year in support of government home front information campaigns. Emphasizing the scope of the public service program launched immediately after Pearl Harbor, business participated in 62 different information campaigns last year, in cooperation with the Office of War Information and 27 different government departments. This compares with 34 campaigns and 17 government agencies served during the second year of the war, and 14 campaigns and 9 government departments during the first war year. The $302,248,775 war-theme volume recorded last year represented an increase of 6 per cent over the $284,-888,411 estimated for the previous year, and marked a new wartime high for business support of home-from campaigns.

Goat Breeding

Productiveness of milk-goat herds can be increased in much the same manner as that of dairy cows, the USDA has found. In each the principal reliance is on records of production together with breeding from the animals best by test. The merits of bucks to be selected as herd sires are judged partly from pedigrees and outward appearance, and partly from production records of closely related female stock. Herd records at the Beltsville, Md., research center show that in a single lactation period a good doe can produce milk weighing ten times her own average weight, and that does produce the most milk when four to six years old. Experience in the bureau's herd has shown that more sires are influential in raising milk yield than in increasing the length of the lactation period. Other desir-

The Probate Court for the county of Iosco.

At a session of said Court, held at the Probate Office in the City of Tawas City in said County, on the 1st day of October, 1945. Present: Hon. H. Read Smith, Judge of Probate.

In the Matter of the Estate of Edla Hendrickson, Deceased. It appearing to the Court that-the time for presentation of the claims against said estate should be limited and that a time and place be appointed to receive, examine and adjust all claims and demands claims and demands against said deceased by and before said court.

It is ordered, That all creditors of said deceased are required to present their claims to said Court at said Probate Office on or before the 10th day of December, 1945, at 10:00 'clock in the forenoon, said time and place being hereby appointed for the examination and adjustment of all claims and demands against said deceased.

It is Further Ordered, That public notice thereof be given by publica-tion of a copy of this order, once in each week for three weeks consecutively, previous to said day of hear-ing, in The Tawas Herald, a newspaper printed and circulated in said county.

But the feeding is important. If he gets too little, day after day, he grows weak. So when you buy a mule, you're more interested in how much he can pull than in how little you can feed him.

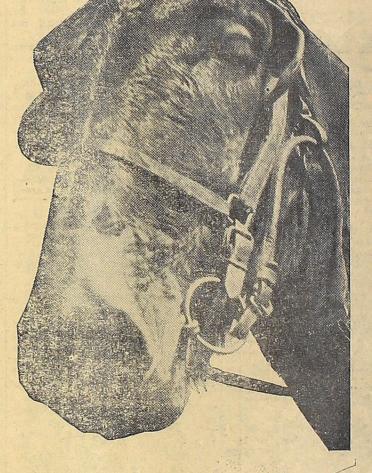

Your Telephone Company pulls a heavy load, too, and for the past three war years the going has been tough. Handling more business than ever before, Michigan Bell has had its largest gross income. But wages, taxes, and other costs have gone up even faster, so net earnings are far below the pre-war rate far below the earnings of other industries.

It's like underfeeding the mule. If earnings are not sufficient, the Company's ability to pull the load becomes weakened.

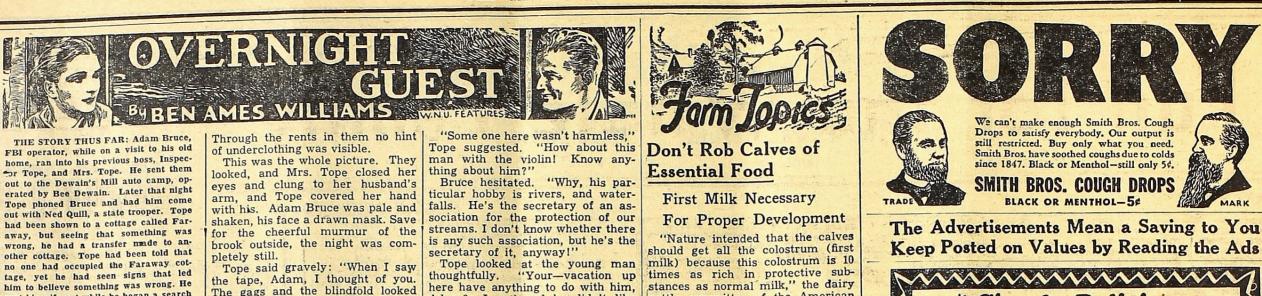

Michigan Bell customers want good service. The telephone bill is so small an item in their regular expenditures that customers want really good service even though it might cost a trifle more than they would need to pay for inferior service.

To give you the kind of service you want in the future, when and where you want it, Michigan Bell is undertaking a 5-year $120,000,000 post-war program of expansion and improvement. Money to finance that program must come from the savings of people who want to make a sound investment. But if prospects for future Telephone Company earnings are unattractive compared with those of other companies, they won't supply the money we will need. They'll place their savings elsewhere.

The future quality of your telephone service depends on telephone rates sufficient to produce earnings attractive to investors. Too long a continuation of inadequate earnings would weaken our ability to meet expected post-war telephone needs.

Tope shook his head. "I don't know. I haven't touched him, ex-cept to make sure he was dead." "But if a man is doing something in the dark by the light of a match, he will hold it till it burns his fingers. "There's been no kidnaping reported," Bruce reflected. Bruce chuckled. "You're cute as a weasel, Tope, for smelling out a trail, but you can cross Vade off." The older man did not press the point. "All right," he said. "We'll cross Vade off. But two men came in tonight after we got here. One of them-called himself Whitlockwas talking to Priddy after supper. I think they're after something; but - they weren't here Saturday night?"

"No," Adam agreed. "Nobody here by those names!"

"How about the Murrells?" Adam chuckled. "Out," he said positively. "And Miss Dewain? She doesn't seem as stubborn and cantankerous as you said she was. What about her?'

I was working in the bank commissioner's office. I came up here to look over the local bank, and she was secretary to the president. A man named Eberly." He spoke rue-fully. "I liked her, and she liked me, but the bank was in bad shape. After I made my report, the commissioner closed it, and she has held it against me ever since. Or at least she pretends to. She was devoted to Mr. Eberly. . . . But Tope, this doesn't get us anywhere. Not on this business. I don't see that we've got any place to start, on

"Well, son, we know some things," Tope reminded him: "We know there were two people in it, because one of them struck matches to make a light, while the other did the job. And by the way the bed was made, I wouldn't be surprised if one of them was a woman. Not many men can make a bed right. Then there's another thing: That's electricians' tape around this man's mouth and eyes; and the wires he's tied up with are old ignition wires off a car; and the clothes on him are greasy. Maybe whoever tied him up was a mechanic, a chauffeur."

"That's just guessing."

said. "You wanted him, and I told him to meet us here." Tope extended his hand. "I've seen enough of Mr. Quill to know he doesn't like violins!" Quill grinned, and took off his cap, and shook hands with Tope and with Mrs. Tope. "That fiddler makes me tired!" he agreed. He stood looking at them, waiting. "Well?" he chal-lenged. "What's the matter? What's all the shooting for?" Tope, after a moment and without a word, turned again toward the bed. They came silently behind him.

"There's a dead man under here," said Tope. He removed the blankets and the sheets, and he took hold of the mattress at one end, looked at Bruce. "You take the other end," he directed.

They lifted the mattress, laid it on the floor. There was left on the bed a spring, made of a square pattern of heavy wire. The electric light, a shaded bulb, hung almost directly overhead; and its rays shone down unhindered, so that the wire squares threw a network of shadow on that which lay in the boxlike space below. This was, as Tope said, the body of a man. He lay a little on one side; yet not as though his body had been arranged in this position, but in a twisted fashion vaguely disturbing, suggestive of some spasmodic effort or movement in the moment of his death. He was an old man, his age manifest in thin gray hair, scantily seen under a ragged cap pulled down to his ears. There was a prickling of gray beard on his chin and the upper part of his cheek. But except for brow and cheek and chin, his countenance was concealed by two strips of black adhesive tape bound tight over his mouth and over his eyes. Each band was carried clear around his head, double and triple for full security. Also, his hands were bound behind him, with lengths of insulated wire twisted around the wrists; and these wires held in place around his hands a thick fold of blanket. His feet in the same way had first been wrapped in a blanket and then

Bee home." Adam urged: "It's not up to us to call Joe, Ned. We'll get Mat. If he wants to turn it over to Joe, that's up to him."

"You ought to get the medical examiner too," Tope suggested. "But -I've a notion it might be a good idea to keep this quiet, just at first.

Don't use the telephone. It's a party line." "I left my bike up at Amasa's," Ned Quill explained. "I can ride to town and get Cumberland." Tope, when the trooper had gone, laid a sheet over the naked springs of the bed, and he and Adam and

Mrs. Tope drew near the fire. Adam stood leaning against the mantel; Tope filled his pipe and lighted it; and Adam said: 'Looks like a tough one, Tope." "Well, it may get easier as we go along." He puffed contentedly. "After I found this man, I did a lot of listening. Your friend Miss Dewain, she talks without much prodding; and there's a woman, a Mrs. Murrell, that likes to ask questions.

Maybe you know her?" "Sure," Adam agreed.

"I listened to some of her questions," Tope explained. "And asked some of my own. They tell me eight cottages were full Saturday night. I figure that was the night he was put here." He asked: "Adam, how many people were here last night? What time did you get here? You weren't here Saturday night, were you?"

Bruce shook his head. "I was here Tuesday night," he replied. "Left Wednesday, and then came back Sunday. That's yesterday aft-ernoon. Bee and I went for a walk after supper last night, upon the ledges back of Amasa's barn. There's a mocn, you know. We got back late. But I didn't see anyone, anything."

"Who was here? How many?" Tope insisted.

"Well, Vade and the Murrells," Bruce said. "And a man and his wife-a Maine man, by the way he bound with wires; his swaddled talked. And two Harvard men in an hands were secured to a rope that old flivver, on their way to Chicago circled his body like a belt. As for his garments, he was dressed in a very old sweater, gray, too large for him, stained and soiled; understands him. Harmless, et? Why were his hands tied to his body behind?"

Bruce shook his head. "I don't know!'

Tope said positively: "Why, to keep him from making a noise, by kicking, or butting with his head, or beating with his head. or beating with his hands. A noise that some one might hear.'

Bruce stared at him. "You mean he wasn't dead when they put him here?'

"Well, it's sure he wasn't dead when they tied him up, anyway." Mrs. Tope spoke swiftly. "Inspec-tor!" They looked at her. "Inspector, no one would kidnap a poor man! This man has on old, shabby clothes."

Tope watched her. "Oh, they changed his clothes."

"Why?" she challenged, as though she knew the answer.

"So he couldn't be identified by what he had on."

"You mean they changed his clothes after they killed him?" "Why-yes!"

"But you just said," she argued, "that the reason they tied his hands and feet, and muffled them with blankets, was because he was alive and might make a noise." "Of course."

She cried triumphantly: "But don't you see that won't fit? If he was already tied up, they couldn't change his clothes without untying his hands and feet; and if he were already dead when they changed his clothes, there wouldn't be any point to tying him up again afterward." And she urged: "So he was alive when they changed his clothes; and he was alive when they brought him here, because otherwise there was no point in muffling his hands and feet and head to keep him from making a noise."

They heard the sound of footsteps on the drive-Ned Quill returning, with Mat Cumberland and Doctor Medford. Cumberland was a large man with an almost bovine calm; one of those individuals whom other men trust as they do a stone, or a hill, for their very immobility. Doctor Medford was of a different mold; chunky, some hint of swagger in the set of his shoulders, with a round open countenance. After introductions, the Doctor went to where the dead man lay, and Cumberland asked a question, and Tope told briefly what there was to tell.

success.

The pigpens as well as the pigs themselves get DDT applications to stop the fly nuisance.

The outstanding advantages of DDT would appear to be (1) its convenience of application and (2) its lethal action on bloodsucking species, such as the stablefly and hornfly which will not normally enter a fly trap.

Tests have proven that when sprayed on hogs that raw patches caused by stablefly will disappear within a week and no further injury of this nature was noticed throughout the balance of the season.
