Bond Sales Still Lack $30,000.00

Iosco County Has Always Gone Over Top

The last bond drive, the Victory Loan Campaign, lacks about $30,000 worth of bond sales to go over the top, according to H. E. Friedman, chairman of the Iosco County War Finance committee. Approximately $61,000.00 in "E" Bonds have been purchased by Iosco county people so far in the campaign, and this is a good showing, Mr. Friedman states. As Iosco county has never failed in filling its quota during the past-this most important drive of them all—the Victory Loan campaign, will be no exception and go over the top.

The people of Iosco county during this war have invested a total of about $1,707,000.00 of their savings in Government "E" Bonds.

Here They Are!

TIRE RATIONING

If you are an automobile owner in search of tires, here is one thing to keep your eye on. The tire industry is pulling all sorts of wires backstage to lift export restrictions.

At present they are permitted to export 400,000 truck tires and 100,000 passenger tires during the last quarter of this year. They would like to export a lot more. In the first place, they don't have to worry about OPA ceiling prices when selling abroad. Secondly, they can build up their postwar markets by getting in on the ground floor. So they would rather sell more tires abroad. But if they do, they sell less tires at home. And today a tire certificate issued to a person desiring to buy a tire is nothing more than a hunting license. He can go out and hunt for a tire. If he's lucky enough to find one, his certificate entitles him to buy it.

DEPARTMENT OF PEACE

When the house foreign affairs committee heard testimony on the Randolph bill to create a department of peace, the star witness was a 64year-old former mule-driver from Morgantown, W. Va.

Chairman Sol Bloom and members of his committee listened with rapt attention as Raymond M. Davis read a 16-page statement on why the United States should take the lead in establishing a new cabinet post to spread the gospel of peace throughout the world.

After he finished, white-thatched GOP Rep. Charles Eaton of New Jersey declared:

"Mr. Davis, you may be unschooled, as you tell the committee, but you certainly are not uneducated. That is one of the finest documents I have ever

World Peace is not just a hobby with the West Virginia coal man, though he describes it as such. It is a burning ideal. A self-made business man who now operates two coal mines employing more than 500 workers, Davis had made many speeches at his own expense throughout the country urging a government department of peace. He also has written a proposed constitution for the United Nations that has attracted wide attention.

The state department thought well enough of his ideas to invite him to the San Francisco conference as an

BOWLES HOLDS

INFLATION FLOOD OPAdministrator Chester Bowles is one of the most abused men in Washington. Everyone is badgering him. Congressmen demand that their constituents increase the price of this or that. Farm groups want to raise the price of milk or cattle. Business groups want to abolish all ceiling prices.

Probably the common man doesn't appreciate it, but here are some things which will happen if Chester Bowles loses his battle to stop the inflation flood:

1. Every person putting his money in life insurance does so with the idea of getting his money back-100 cents on the dollar. But if there is inflation, the insurance dollar will be worth 75 cents, 50 cents, or even 30

2. Every person on a retired pension, whether a railroad employee, a college, a school or a big corporation employee, will see his income shrink if there is inflation.

3. Every widow living on money left by her husband will see that income shrivel.

4. Every school teacher will have great difficulty having her salary move up when the value of the dollar moves down.

5. Every civil servant, whether working for city, state or federal government, will be in the same boat as the teachers.

6. Every college endowment, every charity or other enterprise with fixed invested capital stands ready to have its investment evaporate with inflation.

4-H Boys Study Forestry and Learn How to Make the Farm Woodlot Pay Proper Management Of Timber Crop.

Learning forestry from the ground up, from boyhood up, is the feature of a new venture in the forest areas of Georgia. Teen-age boys learn the fundamentals of forest management right out in the woods, away from the classroom and away from books. The move was inaugurated with a special forestry camp, attended last summer by 60 boys of varying ages, at the Laura S. Walker State park near Waycross, Ga. It how to measure the board feet in is planned to give the same course every summer hereafter.

These 60 boys, members of 4-H clubs who have performed outstanding work in club forestry projects during the past year, combined study and play in a comprehensive week's program. They went home benefited by a vacation in the woods, but also stuffed with knowledge about trees and tree growth.

Knowledge for Future. Teaching boys the principles of forestry made good sense to the sponsors of the experiment, which included the Georgia agricultural extension service, the Union Bag and Paper corporation, and the Brunswick Pulp and Paper company with the Georgia department of forestry co-operating. These forestry-minded supporters reasoned that not only could the boys turn such knowledge into their own profit in later years, busy farm-fathers, the message of duction.

The boys covered the forest ground thoroughly in their week's sojourn, which was sandwiched here and there with a game of horseshoes, swimming or hiking. But it was no course in nature; it was silviculture in its best, if short, form.

Income From Wood.

They learned how to control forest fires. They collected pine cones, extracted their seed and set out the seeds to grow the seedlings that will be transplanted on idle and wornout farm land. They learned how to estimate the value of a timber crop; a tree, and then cut it down to see if they had measured right. By actual training, they learned how to select and judge trees which should be cut for pulpwood, sawlogs, fuelwood, ties, vencer blocks, poles and piling, all of which types might be found in a given stand of timber. But more importantly, they learned how to manage a timber crop on a farm to the best advantage for a continuous

The teaching staff, provided by the extension service, also held brief blackboard sessions, at which the boys were taught the importance of wood to southern agriculture. They learned, as well, that only with scientific management of her forests was the South able to continue to produce one-half of the total timber removed each year in the United States, and that pulpwood was the backbone of one of the South's mabut likewise can carry home, to their | jor industries, pulp and paper pro-

Research in German laboratories, and the use of that knowledge in making armaments, were coming ahead so fast at the end of the war that the Allies' margin of superiority was rapidly decreasing.

Extensive research was being conducted by German scientists on infra-red detection. It was used to great effect, in tank warfare at night, when opposing tank units had difficulty spotting one another and closing in for the kill. The Germans developed infra-red filters for their searchlights and shot them toward areas where they believed Allied tanks were lurking. Since infra-red rays are invisible, the Allied tankmen did not know they were being illuminated.

The infra-red rays from the filtered searcleight beams hit the Allied tanks, bounced back to devices known as "bildwandlers," or "image changers," mounted on German tank guns. The bildwandlers transformed the infra-red rays into an image of the opposing tank, and the gunners opened fire.

German aircraft designs were coming ahead at a fast pace. An error of major proportions was made, however, in emphasizing the Messerschmitt 163, equipped with rocket engines, instead of the Messerschmitt 262, a jet-propelled fight-knows where to hunt for a stolen volume. Some of these precious items are sold by thieves directly to collectors, of course, but generally they pass through the hands of a 'fence' or crooked dealer.

When seeking to determine the authenticity of an old document, Bergquist depends upon several clues. One is the watermark in the paper. Sometimes, however, this test fails, as in the famous case of the Lincoln legal papers. The true ones were written on foolscap known as "Monier's 1351." A clever forger obtained a considerable supply of this paper in an antique shop near Peoria, Ill.

Forged first editions are another of the problems that keep Bergquist busy. He has to know a lot about materials-paper, leather, ink, glue -about the processes of printing and binding, type faces, gilding and the like-to be able to tell the true from Scientific equipment helps Bergquist often. For instance, with an ultra-violet lamp he can see a library stamp, even though it has been entirely erased. The invisible ray brings out the aniline dye used for stamping. Microscopes aid him sometimes. So does finger-printing equipment, photography and chemistry. He is not, however, a career book sleuth. Although he spent his boyhood in an atmosphere of books at the exclusive Groton preparatory school where his father was superintendent, he is by no means a bookworm. As a young man he was a cattle breeder, and later a salesman for a wholesale grocery.

A serious disease of cattle and sheep, anaplasmosis, commonly observed in the South, has seldom been encountered in northern states. It is spread by biting or blood-sucking insects. Prominent symptoms include loss of appetite, weakness, rapid pulse and breathing and pale or yellowish skin and mucous membranes. Laboratory tests should be taken when the presence of anaplas-

Butter Color Defects

Mottles result from uneven distribution of the salt and from insufficient working of farm butter. It is the most common color defect. This defect may be overcome by more complete working of the butter, by moistening the salt before adding it to the butter and then working the butter well, or by working the butter partially, allowing it to stand a few hours, and then completing the working process. A greasy condition will result from underworking.

THOUGHTS ON MONEY

Money has few friends these days. The sticking kind, the sort of people who want to cling to it tenderly. Coin has become almost a synonym for confetti.

Americans are behaving as if they thought it a reflection on their chartration set support acter not to be spendthrifts. The old

Frugality has become a word out of an old dictionary. The man who used to wince at the idea of paying over 75 cents for an ordinary lunch now pays $2.50 and brings his own butter and sugar. Give a waiter only 10 per cent today and you automatically become Scrooge II.

Pull that old one about saving something for a rainy day today and you get a snappy, "Phooey! If it rains I can get an umbrella from the government."

Thousands of people seem to believe that money not only grows on trees, but that the trees can be counted on to make deliveries.

The questions of the hour are: Is cash a good thing to have around the house? Should a five-dollar bill be regarded as something for the long pull or a quick turnover? Can a man be thrifty and maintain the respect of the community?

Good News for Light Sleepers

We don't know what we would have done if we hadn't had a chat today with Albert H. Chandler. We hadn't been getting much sleep and it worried us. Counting sheep hadn't been of the least help. There had been times when we had been on an eight-hour sheep-counting night. A fellow couldn't go on like that.

Then it happened. We heard a commotion in the corridors and found office associates congratulating Chandler on his 91st birthday. Ninety-one and on the job every day as office receptionist! Sixty-seven years on the paper!

"Ah!" we thought, "Chandler must sleep well. In him there is the secret of repose after hitting the haypile. He can help

"Sleep!" exclaimed the hardy vet-

We assume the celebration had upset him somewhat.

"Forget that sheep stuff," he continued. "That's bad. I used to count 'em. Probably counted more sheep in my time than any living American. I even numbered 'em front and rear. Put plates on 'em. Things came to a head back in the '70s, in 1878. I think that was one of the biggest sheep years I ever had. There were so many to be counted that I never slept a wink. So I quit. Haven't tabulated a sheep since."

"But what do you do about 'em?"
"Ignore 'em. All except one. That sheep's been with me over half a century. I call it Old Two Million Eight Thousand and Ninety-four. I had counted that high when I met it. This sheep and I get about the same amount of sleep. Why? Because we forgot the whole business years ago, and know there's nothing to it. All the other sheep keep on hopping back and forth all night waiting for me to start counting and they've gone nuts. They don't get any sleep against the former record of two in a row.

They have also won the big futurity seven times in a row and they will be just as hard to beat in the coming tests on ahead.
"My best dog," Mr. Sage said, "is Ariel, winner of six championships.

Ariel is now seven years old but can still range with the best. There are three fundamental qualities that make a great bird dog-scent, speed and stamina. In field trial tests there is also the matter of ranging class or form to be considered. In my opinion it is harder to breed and develop a champion dog than it is a champion horse. There are many good bird dogs, of course, but few great ones that can win championships against the best. Ariel is my pick but Luminary isn't far behind."

Field Trial Thrills

Clyde Morton trains the Sage entries in a secluded hamlet known as Alberta, Ala., which isn't far away from Selma. These championship field trials range all the way from Saskatchewan and Duluth to East Tennessee and while there are no mutuel windows, no football or baseball cheering, they have just as great a thrill for those who love the hunting dog and who travel far distances to see the best at work. The judges in these championship tests give their time, attention and devotion to their work without any pay and they contribute a big part to any field trial's success.

The thousands of ex-servicemen and millions of others now in the woods and fields enjoy a double thrill. The first is the work of the dogs, without any question the most eager form of life in pursuit of the quarry. The next thrill comes at the covey's rise when the tense silence is suddenly broken by the whirr of many wings—an easy looking target but an elusive one except for the experts. The first average tendency is to shoot too quickly and also to blaze ing a single or double target.

The Elusive Turkey

You can hear the clamor of the 10 million fishermen, moving from trout to bass to salmon to tarpon. But the nearest thrill to the dogs working and the covey rise is to see a wild turkey light in a tall pine close to your hide-out—and then try to spot him later only 20 yards away, as all 20 pounds of him suddenly vanish and not tree lines there. vanish and yet you know he is there. THE STORY THUS FAR: Adam Bruce, FBI operator, and Inspector and Mrs. Tope met while on vacation in the Northeastern wilds. Tope discovered the body of a murdered man at the auto camp of Bee Dewain, a friend of Bruce's. Bruce, State Trooper Quill, Nat Cumber-land, D. A., and Dr. Medford were called. They decided to keep the murder secret during investigation. Mrs. Tope told her husband that she recognized the body as that of Mr. Ledforge, head of New England utilities. However, New York reported that Ledforge was at his office. Doctor reports showed that man died of ruptured appendix, while tied up. A car believed used by murderer was found.

CHAPTER VI

He looked at Joe Dane in mild triumph. "So that was pretty good for a stab in the dark, Mr. Dane!" "What's that about heel-plates?"

young Dane demanded. "Well," said Tope, "somebody with heel-plates has walked through the woods near Faraway; and a man with heel-plates left some tracks up at the quarry; and Kell, Holdom's chauffeur, had a pair of shoes with heel-plates on them. They're in his closet down at Holdom's right now." "Then we want Kell!" Dane exclaimed. "And—Mrs. Kell? Was she running around with Ledforge? We've got to find her too!"

Tope nodded. "It would help a lot," he assented, "if we could talk to her." He took Mrs. Tope's arm. 'Let me know when you're ready to salvage the car, Mat. I want to be there. I'll be at the Mill if New York calls."

And despite Dane's efforts to detain them, he and Mrs. Tope went down the stairs, and got into the little roadster at the curb. When they were under way, she said thoughtfully:

"I don't like that young man, but he's right about one thing: You've got to find Mrs. Kell, make her tell you-"

"I guess we'll find her," he replied grimly. "But I don't expect her to tell us anything!" She looked at him. "You know where she is?"

"Well," he confessed, "there were two or three little things I didn't tell them! That gray suit in Kell's closet, I looked at the name on the tailor's label. The name was Ledforge.'

She uttered a low ejaculation. 'But Mr. Ledforge might have given it to Kell-when Kell worked for him.'

"It wouldn't fit Kell," Tope told her. "Kell's a big man. His uniforms were big. This suit was small.

She frowned in bewilderment. "But even so," she insisted, "what has that to do with Mrs. Kell? Where do you think she is?"

He said heavily: "I think she's in the coupe in the quarry." "Why?" she whispered, in a still terror. "Why?"

"Adam and Bee found a man's tracks leaving there," said Tope. "Shoes with heel-plates. But there were no woman's tracks! And that gray suit in Kell's closet, there was blood on the sleeve of it, and the dead man hadn't any cut or wound that would have bled at all!"

When Mrs. Tope and the Inspector reached Dewain's Mill, Tope himself went indoors, but she stayed outside. The camp seemed deserted, till Adam Bruce and Bee Dewain, hearing the car arrive, came together from the direction of Far-

"Well, you located the car. That's Adam said: "Yes. And I don't know when I've ever had to do anything that scared me more than diving down into that gray water; but I felt the axle, and a wheel." added: "And while I was doing that, Bee found the man's tracks. What do they mean?"

"You're as bad as Joe Dane, always asking questions. Son," he countered, "how long are you going to hold out on me?"

Adam protested: "Hold out?" But his face was red.

"Why, yes-just that. Why, for instance, does Balser Vade dislike you?'t

"He's fust a harmless crank," Adam insisted. The Inspector relaxed in his chair. "All right, son," he said. "You do as you like about telling me." Adam hesitated in some distress. "Any idea yet who the dead man may be?" he asked at last.

Tope answered mildly: "Yes, in a way. Mrs. Tope thinks he's Ledforge, the Utilities-Why, what's the matter, Adam?"

For at that name, young Adam Bruce had come to his feet in quick astonishment, stood now leaning over Tope, and cried out:

"Ledforge?" "Mrs. Tope says so," the old man insisted. "She saw Ledforge once at a stockholders' meeting.' Adam relaxed; he chuckled. "You startled me for a minute," he confessed.

"Yes, I noticed that!" said Tope dryly. "Matter of fact, I meant to!" "But Mrs. Tope is wrong, Inspector," Adam declared. He hesitated. "I telephoned our people in New York this morning, from Ridgcomb, to ask about Ledforge. He's in New York! I checked on that!" "Yes, so did we," Tope assented. "Ledforge is in New York, all right.

looked at the young man shrewdly. "I'm wondering," he said, "if Balser Vade-you said he was a letterwriting kind of a man-ever wrote a letter to Ledforge."

harmless, Tope. Only, Ledforge ruined him, ten years ago, in a water-power project. Since then Vade has been a little cracked on the subject of brooks and streams. I told you about that. He blames Ledforge for spoiling the rivers. Ledforge's office sent over to our peo-ple half a dozen letters, pretty wild and extravagant, from this society for the protection of rivers, signed by Vade as secretary, and threat-ening Ledforge with—fire and brim-stone! One of them said something about snatching him up in a flery chariot, like Elijah or whoever it was; and that suggested kidnaping, so I came up here to see Vade."

He added: "Vade admitted writing the letters, and he dared me to

"No, the dead man isn't Mr. Led-arrest him. He seemed to want to be persecuted, seemed to want publicity, and a chance to tell the world what sort of man Ledforge is. I think he'd like to play the martyr, but Ledforge didn't want to prosecute." He added: "I suppose Ledforge was as anxious to avoid publicity as Vade was to get it."

Tope nodded understandingly. "But after that, naturally you thought of Ledforge-"

I checked up," Adam "And "And Ledforge is in New agreed. York."

Tope beamed. "So this can't be he assented. "And Mrs. Tope's mistaken." And he went on to recite to Adam the discoveries of the day. He told the tale of the stolen car, and of Whitlock's inquiries, and of the visit to the Holdom place, and of Miss Nettie Pineyard.

"And Mrs. Kell and Kell have disappeared," he explained. "Holdom was expected home Friday, but he didn't come. Kell came, in the limousine, and drove away in it afterward; and Mrs. Kell drove the coupe away.

Adam ran to quick conjecture. 'And Kell joined her later, came with her here? Then they dumped the coupe in the quarry and headed for Canada?"

"Well, maybe," Tope admitted.
"What was it? Jealousy? Is Mrs. Kell-the flighty kind?"

The Inspector said reluctantly: "Well, it looks as if she spent last week-end-ten days ago-with Ledforge somewhere. And if she'd go away with him, maybe she'd go with others. Maybe this dead man-long as he's not Ledforge-was one of them." He slapped his knee in sudden recollection. "We ought to have sent a tracer out after the limousine that Kell drove away in. Adam, do that, will you?"

Adam nodded. "Yes. What else?" "Why, it just might be that Ledforge is really missing, and they're covering it up in New York."
"I'll find out," Adam promised.

"And one other thing, Adam: May not have any connection, but I'd like to know. Holdom had a plane-pilot named Bob Flint-and it crashed in Long Island Sound on Saturday morning. Flint, he was killed. I'd like to know what made that plane crash. Maybe you can find out through the Department of Commerce.'

Adam said: "Sure."

Then they heard voices outside: and Mrs. Tope and Bee Dewain appeared in the open doorway. Bee had sandwiches wrapped in a napkin, and a glass of milk.

Tope chuckled, and looked at Mrs. Tope. "I declare," he exclaimed, "I forgot all about food!" He took the sandwiches and began to eat them comfortably.

Adam said: "Bee, I've ot to do But Adam, how did you happen to some telephoning; don't ant the he yielded; and he grinned. "I give in. Here it is. But I think Vade's harmless. Tane Colomb Vade's So Adam drove away alone; and Tope told Bee what there was to tell. The girl listened silently till he finished. Then she said:

"No, the dead man isn't Mr. Ledforge. I had a letter from him this morning. Or rather Mr. Eberly did!" And she explained: "You see, Mr. Eberly and Mr. Ledforge are old friends. The bank had some Utilities bonds, and that was one reason it had to close; but Mr. Eberly never blamed Mr. Ledforge. Mr. Eberly left Saturday morning to go fishing in New Brunswick, and—I used to be his secretary—he arranged to have his mail delivered to me so I could take care of it. He's not married, so he often does that when he goes away."

Tope listened without questions, and she went on:

"This letter came this morning from Mr. Ledforge. He wants Mr. Eberly to come over and fish with him in the trout-pond above his summer place, tomorrow afternoon. Mr. Ledforge wrote the letter himself.'
"You sure?"

"Yes, of course. I've never seen him, but I know his handwriting.

I'll show you the letter."

Tope said mildly: "Why, I'd like to see it." And he asked: "Any way you can get in touch with Mr. Eberly, Miss Dewain?"

"Telephone," she said. "Or telegraph." "I wish you'd call him up, tell him about this invitation." And he added disarmingly: "If he doesn't want to come back to fish with Mr. Ledforge, ask him to fix it so I can go in his place. I like to fish." "All right," she assented, amused; and Tope asked: "Mr. Eberly seen Ledforge lately, has he?"

She shook her head. "No. Mr. Ledforge called him up about ten days ago—Saturday, I think it was. Wanted to see him; but Mr. Eberly was in Boston over that week-end. The operator knows I handle some things for Mr. Eberly 20 the shifted the call to me." "Where did Ledforge call from?"

Tope wondered.
"Up here, I think," Bee replied. "He said something about 'dropping in.' Something casual. Not as if he were in New York." Tope nodded, and then they heard a car turn in and stop by the Mill, and Bee looked out and said: "It's

Mr. Cumberland, and Joe Dane." "Call them up here," Tope directed sharply. "Before the whole world knows they're here!"

He came to the door as Bee made haste down the drive; but the was too late to avert the danger Tope foresaw. Joe Dane was inflated by the prospect of handling what promised to become a celebrated case. So en they turned in off the road and stopped beside the Mill, where Earl Priddy was working, Joe called in important tones:

"Hi, Earl! Where's Inspector Tope?"

Priddy straightened up and scratched his head and stared. "Inspector?" he echoed, his eyes wi'le. "Inspector of what? What's he Inspector of, Joe?"

Bee, arriving just then on the spot, hushed him sharply. "Never mind, Earl! !It's none of your business. Go on with your work." She summoned Joe away; the car moved on to Cascade, where Tope waited, and the two men alighted there.

Tope looked at Dane in mild disapproval. "Young man," he said, 'you advertise too much!"

"It's all right," Bee said reassuringly. "I told Earl it was none of his business!"

Tope chuckled. "Why, that's fine, miss," he assented. "After that, Earl Priddy won't give it another thought, I know! You certainly fixed that." And he added gently: "You go along now and telephone Mr. Eberly. And let me see that letter.' And as the girl turned away, he said: "Come in, Mat. Come in, Dane. I guess Earl doesn't matter. We couldn't keep this thing dark much longer.'

And he added slowly: "They've located Holdom. He's in a private hospital down near Hartford with a broken head, a concussion, maybe a fractured skull.'

Cumberland nodded, and he explained:

"New York says Ledforge and Holdom started up here last Friday, in Holdom's limousine, with Ked driving. They left New York early about nine o'clock. Holdom wen around to pick Ledforge up at his apartment; and the officer on the beat saw Ledforge come out and get in. "They don't know when Ledforge came back, but he was in his office Monday morning, and he was at the bank and in his office this morn-

THE CHRISTIAN AND HIS ECONOMIC RELATIONS

LESSON TEXT: Deut. 8:17, 18; Luke GOLDEN TEXT: A man's life consisteth not in the abundance of the things which he possesseth.-Luke 12:15.

Peace and the postwar period find America, and in fact the entire world, plunged into tremendous economic problems far too deep for any man or group of men to solve. We honor those who are laboring day and night to meet the threat of unemployment, the question of reconversion and readjustment to civilian production, of feeding a hungry world, etc. But we say again, they cannot find the answers in the wisdom of men; they must have the wisdom of God. We need to turn anew to the economic principles taught in God's Word. If men will only recognize them, and deal with their fellowmen in the light of their teaching, the many knotty problems will surely find solution. There is need, first of all, of a fundamental philosophy concerning called? possessions which will make man deal properly with them. The first section of our lesson says to us:

(Deut. 8:17, 18). How trenchant and altogether fitting are the words of Scripture! Nothing could describe our times more succinctly and accurately than verse 17. Men are glorying in their ability to do things. Man has even gone so far as to develop a weapon of warfare, the atomic bomb, so powerful that he flight. fears it might be used to wipe out all civilization. Even secular leaders are now saying that we must have a spiritual rebirth if we are to use such things for good and not for evil. Man needs God now more than

We honor those who by skillful hand and brilliant brain produce excellent and thrilling results. But our question is, How many are there who say, God has done this thing; He gave the strength and the skill; His is the honor? Some there are who thus recognize Him, but they are few indeed. Their name is legion who say in their heart, "My power and the might of mine hand hath gotten me this wealth" (v. 17). Joseph Parker points out that a deep conviction of the fact stated in verse 18 "would turn human history into a sacrament." He says, "What a blow this text strikes at one of the most popular and mischievous fallacies in common life; namely, that man is the maker of his own money!"

II. Act Right About Wealth (Luke

Most of us think of money something we want to get hold of and use for ourselves, but if it belongs to God, and we are only his stewards, we must put away that impulse. "Take heed," said Jesus, 'and beware of covetousness" (v. 15). It is a deadly and deadening sin, all too common even among Christian people.

The teaching of this whole passage of Scripture is so directly opposite to all ideas regarding such matters accepted by the world at large, that it may be a total surprise to some readers and attendants at Bible school.

The yardstick of success in the world for an individual, an organization, or a nation, yes, even for many a church, is the possession of wealth, or property, or other "things." Write it in large letters on the hearts and minds of our boys and girls, "A man's life consisteth not in the abundance of the things which he possesseth" (v. 15).

The one who was known to his friends (and to himself) as "a rich man" (v. 16), but whom God knew as a "fool" (v. 20), had more than he could use for himself. He had to build new and bigger barns, and could not see the "barns" that were already prepared, for, as Ambrose says, "Thou hast barns - the bosoms of the needy, the houses of widows, the mouths of orphans and infants."

He was a fool who loved money for itself and for himself. One wonders what he had to say for himself when that very night he was called into the presence of God to give an account of his stewardship (v. 20). If you are similarly situated and have the same attitude, what will you say in that day?

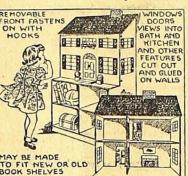

There is an important point which we must note. Jesus expressly repudiated the connecting of His name with the so-called "social gospel" in His reply (v. 14) to the question of the covetous fellow who regarded his inheritance as of more importance than brotherly love.

Those who are ignoring the gospel of redemption and claiming Jesus as a social reformer, or the "judge and divider" of some new economic solution for the world's ills, need to read and ponder this verse. Every Christian is interested deeply in social problems, but knows that the first concern of Christ and His followers is the souls of men.

Town Hall, December 5. In each community, farmers will elect three regular committeemen and two alternates. Elected at the same time will be delegated to a county convention, to be held December 7, where a county committee will be elected for the coming year.

Farmers who are cooperating in the 1945 agricultural conservation, sugar, or crop insurance program are eligible to cast ballots in the community elections.

The solution of the post war prob-lems ahead of us is the vital concern of every farmer. Consequently, it is to his own best interest to vote in the coming election—to make sure that the men administering AAA programs in the county are the ones he wants to represent him. Soil conservation will continue to loom large among AA program objectives. Under the next year's program, Iosco County has been allocated $22,499 for soil conserving practices, and the committeemen will have more responsibility in working with their neighbors to round out soil-building plans for each in-dividual farm. This is only one of the programs for which committeemen have a great responsibility.
