Hospital Project Makes Great Stride in 3½ Months

More Than $40,000.00 in Building Fund

A $1000 Gift; a $500 Gift and Smaller Gifts As Holidays End

A one thousand dollar gift, a five hundred gift and a number of lesser gifts during the past week were announced yesterday by Dr. John D. LeClair, president of the Tawas Hospital Association. These gifts raise the hospital fund well above the $40,000.00 mark in the association campaign for the $75,000.00 building fund.

Hunting season and the holidays tended to slow down activities in the hospital fund campaign, but with the advent of the new year the officers, directors and members of the association and citizens of the Iosco area have resumed their work on the fund with a renewed enthusiasm.

"It has been about three and one-half months since the Tawas Hospital Association was first organized," stated President LeClair. "In that short time our architect has completed plans and is compiling a list of the necessary building materials. Our collectors have received gifts and pledges in excess of $40,000.00 for the hospital building fund. The fine response to need of this worthwhile project makes it possible for us to break ground for the building as soon as spring weather permits.

"Because of the short time our hospital organization has been in existence, our building fund solicitors have been unable to contact everyone as yet. With the year ending you will want to make a contribution at this time as this donation can be deducted from your income tax."

Those wishing to make contributions now may mail checks to Tawas Hospital Association, Tawas City.

New Fishing Licenses

New Year's day means new fishing licenses for both sport and commercial fishermen, and the conservation department still is issuing them at the same old price.

For the ordinary resident angler, the $1 fee covers the fishing in winter, trout fishing in the spring, lake fishing or perch, pike bass and blue-gills in the summer, rainbow trout fishing in the fall and ice fishing again next December. And his wife can go along free.

For the non resident fisherman, a $2 fee covers all kinds of fishing the year around. If the non-resident fisherman's visit is brief, he can fish for 10 days for a $1 fee.

These bargain prices, now out of line with other advancing costs, are the subject of conservation commission recommendations for revisions, for consideration of the 1947 Legislature. But the fisherman buying his license now will find the fees—and the fishing regulations—unchanged.

Commercial fishing license fees are graduated according to the type and size of the fishing craft. Until this year the license renewal time for Michigan's 1,800 odd commercial fishermen came July 1, during a busy season, but half-year licenses issued for the latter part of 1946 brought their license period to a calendar year basis also.

ASSOCIATE yourself with men of good quality if you esteem your own reputation; for 'tis better to be alone than in bad company. — George Washington. Almanacs Long-Lived in U. S.; One in 250th Year

Among the oldest publications in the United States are the local almanacs the contents of which appeal chiefly to farmers, says Collier's. For example, Gruber's Hagerstown Almanac is now in its 149th year, the Old Farmer's Almanac in its 154th, Daboll's New England Almanac in its 174th and Foulsham's Almanack in its 250th year.

Sublime to Ridiculous

A slightly tipsy gentleman walked into the telegraph office, took a pencil, spent three or four minutes in deep thought, and wrote this message to a friend in St. Louis: "Tra la, tra la, tra la, tra la." He signed it and presented it to the lady behind the counter. After checking it, she said: "That will be 64 cents." The gentleman paid her and she said: "You used only eight words." "What would you suggest adding?" he finally asked. "Well, how about just adding 'tra la,'" she said. "No," he said firmly, "that would just make it sound silly."

STALIN'S HEALTH
 WASHINGTON.—Diplomatic dispatches from Moscow indicate definitively that Marshal Stalin's health has had another setback. He suffered a heart attack some time in November and now is resting in the Crimea.

This fact has been made the subject of an official report to the state department.

This last heart attack is the second suffered by the man who has ruled Russia so long. Last winter he also had to go to the Crimea to recuperate from an illness. Stalin is now 67 years old, but has crammed more diversified life and hardship into those years than any other world leader.

Stalin was imprisoned and exiled to Siberia eight times, and the years have taken their toll. He was not play-acting when he held up Churchill and Truman by staying in bed one day at Potsdam.

It is generally expected that Foreign Minister Molotov will succeed Stalin.

THE REAL-ESTATE LOBBY
 Next major lobbying drive in Washington will be against rent controls, only control measure which survived President Truman's sweeping OPA decontrol order.

The President has decided to eliminate OPA completely, and has on his desk an executive order transferring rent control to the department of commerce.

The real-estate lobbyists know they can't get even a Republican congress to repeal rent control. So they've decided on a new tactic. The lobby is drawing up a bill which would transfer rent control from the federal government to the states.

This will be advanced as a "states' rights" and "economy" measure. The result, however, will be the same.

Twelve states now have no rent control, and in other states most control laws are elastic.

LAME DUCKS PLAY INDIANS
 Twice in recent weeks, President Truman has been visited by congressmen who asked him to appoint friends on the new Indian claims commission. Sen. Joe O'Mahoney of Wyoming urged the appointment of Louis O'Marr, attorney general of Wyoming, while Representative Bill Stigler of Oklahoma brought along his candidate—Justice Earl Welch of the Oklahoma Supreme court, who is part Chickasaw himself.

The President made no commitment beyond saying he intends to announce the make-up of the new commission soon.

He did apologize to Stigler, however, for the delay in making the appointments.

What Truman did not explain was that he also had been urged to wait to see whether any worthy Democrats, defeated in the election, might want the job. The names of lame-duck congressman Will Robinson of Utah, an excellent man, and Jed Johnson of Oklahoma, who lost out on a chance to be a custom court judge, now have been suggested.

The commission is one which will require a topflight staff, since it will have to pass judgment on all Indian claims which have not gone into the courts. There is absolutely no statutory limit on the age of the claims—which means that if an Indian tribe wants to claim that it has legal right to the entire territory of the State of Utah, the commission may have to hear the argument.

NEXT GOP CONVENTION

Although the Republican national convention is two years off, several cities already are pressing GOP moguls for the privilege of helping nominate the man they figure will be the next president of the U. S.

Rep. George Bender, Ohio congressman-at-large and head of the Cleveland Republican committee, appeared before the national committee to propose Cleveland as the convention site.

As soon as Bender proposed Cleveland for the convention site, Committee member Werner Schroeder of Illinois asked, "Isn't it true that Ohio has a couple of candidates for the nomination? Don't you think it might be better to meet on neutral territory?"

"Is there a state that doesn't have a candidate?" asked Bender. "If you're going to rule out states with candidates, about the only place we could hold the 1948 GOP convention is Miami."

POSTMASTER JIM MEAD?

The White House is afraid that if Bob Hannegan resigns both as postmaster general and Democratic national chairman the Republican senate may refuse to confirm anyone who is to serve in both jobs. One man the senate would confirm, however, is Sen. Jim Mead of New York, who lost out in his bid for governor of New York. The senate rarely questions the appointment of any senator or former senator to an official post. Moreover, Mead is considered a postal authority.

Woman's World

Refresh Wardrobe by Restyling Garments No Longer in Fashion

By Ertta Haley

I THINK we can divide women into two groups when they look into their old clothes closets. There's the first group who make a wry face and who try to get rid of these garments as quickly as possible. Then there's the second group. These women thoughtfully pick up each garment, consult their fashion notes and convert the dresses into something that could have come from a smart department store.

To the smart woman, there's not a dress no matter how old, that cannot prove useful if she is clever with the needle. Some garments naturally will require a good deal of restyling or even complete alteration. Others will need just a slight change in neckline or skirt to make them completely new and refreshed.

Dresses frequently discarded are old formal dresses which look so woe-begone when they come out of closets. Yet look at the beautiful materials in them, and think for a moment how nicely they could be made into perfectly beautiful housecoats, new formal or fresh-looking suits.

If the neckline on an old formal is hopeless, it's an easy matter to alter this. Perhaps you will buy a bit of net and work this into a new type of yoke and sleeves. Sequined straps may be taken apart and used at the wrists as seen in so many of the gowns showing Grecian influence. Or, take the sequins apart and use them as a decoration around the neckline, or clustered together in a design or flower.

Make a Velvet Housecoat Out of an Old Formal

If you have an old velvet formal or dinner dress of prewar vintage, you may be delighted to discover that the velvet is of an exquisite quality. Restore it to life by steaming, or have it cleaned professionally.

If you have an old formal . . .

Your daughter may be looking for one of the new bare shoulder formal to wear at her high school dance, and this might be just the material for her. There will probably be enough for just such a dress. If not, select a small quantity of wide grosgrain in matching color and use it at the skirt or around the bodice for trimming.

Another good idea for the velvet garment is a housecoat. If there is not quite enough material to make a comfortable coat of this type, plan to use coral and lime draping at the front, as this is a very effective combination with black velvet.

Among the innumerable uses for this velvet, you might discover that the dress could be remodeled into a Victorian or Renaissance style formal for current wear. Recut the neckline, making it a square or sweetheart type, and add a bit of lace ruffling to give charm. This lace might also be used as an insert in the skirt or as a decoration around the wrists.

Consider the Material When Doing Restyling

Just as you select a new dress for its appropriate material, you must consider material when remodeling. I think you will find that old taffeta and satin formal can be made into bright, perky suits either for yourself or a teen-age daughter.

Make a perky suit from it.

These materials are luxurious

Shirt-Cuff Style

and require rather high style to set them off properly. For the present season you might like to make them into a lovely suit perhaps with a modified bustle.

First select a good pattern and then prepare the material for your project. This will probably require ripping the whole garment apart as the remodeling will be a complete change from the former garment.

Pay particular attention to such detail as the sleeves and the bustle and follow the pattern carefully. If there is not quite enough material, use contrasting ribbon, or modify the style just a little to suit the individual wearer.

Bustles are attractive only if they are styled correctly. A dress form is handy to have for moulding the lines carefully, as they may require slight adaptation from the original style. Pin and baste carefully and then try the effect on the actual person and make any other necessary adjustments before putting in the final stitches.

You will have to sew both of these fabrics carefully to make them look their best. Allow plenty of room, as they do not give when worn.

When sewing sheer material, set the machine stitches carefully, and test on a strip of fabric before you do any actual sewing on the accessory you are making. You may also use tissue paper underneath the material when sewing, as this gives the material more body while you stitch. This is easily ripped off when you finish the sewing.

Planning Wardrobes

There are many interesting ways of choosing clothing for yourself. One of the best ways of appearing your most attractive is always to choose colors that blend well or contrast with your own personal type of beauty.

If you have a lovely home, look to the colors you use in your rooms and "borrow" them for your wardrobe. Or, if you have a lovely picture print in color, test the colors against your own complexion and see if they can't furnish inspiration for your clothing.

Check all colors you would use on yourself from all angles. See what they do for you under different lighting, and when you are certain they flatter you always, use them as a basis for your wardrobe.

It's always a good idea to have one or two good basic dresses in the wardrobe, and several sets of accessories to go with them.

If you have a suit, make sure it fits perfectly, and then build a wardrobe around it with different blouses and dummies, hats, shoes and other accessories.

Fashion Flashes

Hats remain more flirtatious than ever for the new year. You'll be seeing bright plumes, tufted satins and plenty of posies in the new headgear.

Other hats seem to be a-glitter with sequins and more sequins, and there's no limit on colors in this department. You'll find plenty of silver and gold sequins along with multi-colored ones.

Hats in the shops look like very pretty boxes of bonbons. They come in the prettiest of pastel shades, champagne, beige, winter white, pink, ice blue, aqua and mocha. Any woman is certain to find her dream hat among these.

Look also for swirling ostrich feathers, but don't wear them unless you're strictly the type, or can find one turned to fit your face.

STRIKES OF 1894 AROUSED DEMAND FOR LABOR LAWS

Agitation for labor-management legislation began with the railway union strike, called by Eugene Debs in 1894. Workers in the Pullman plants in Chicago were a part of the Debs organization. The strike started at Pullman, then spread to the railroads.

Debs was a Socialist, and his organization was definitely socialist. John Altgeld, then governor of Illinois, although elected on a Democratic ticket, was sympathetic to the socialist cause. Until forced by the action of President Grover Cleveland, he declined to take any action for the protection of property. After Cleveland sent regular army troops into the city to operate mail trains, Altgeld called out the state's national guard. The order came too late for the militia to do a thorough job.

At that time I was a member of, and had a minor command in the first regiment of the state's guard. That regiment was assigned to the southeastern section of the city, in which were located the Pullman shops, the Illinois Central shops and the five-mile-long yards of roads coming into the city from south and east.

It was late afternoon when the mobilization order was issued and after dark when the regiment reached its designated position. That darkness was illuminated by the light of the burning freight and passenger cars, thousands of them, in that long five miles of railroad yards. As I watched that terrific fire, started by frenzied men, it seemed that I was seeing the end of government and the beginning of anarchy.

LASTED A MONTH

At the end of some 30 days it was over. The strikers had lost, and had gone back to such jobs as were left. Property destruction had reduced the number. Some months later workers at the Pullman plants were given a portion of the raise they had asked, but it was months or years before that increase made up for their loss in strike-time wages. The property loss of the railroads amounted to hundreds of millions of dollars. The court had enjoined Debs, and his violation of that injunction brought for him a prison term in a federal penitentiary.

That strike opened the long era of labor-management legislation, including establishment of a labor department, with cabinet rank. With labor, presumably, representing more votes than does management, that legislation has largely favored the demands of labor.

Because of such actions as the threatened railroad strike of a year ago, the three months tie-up of the automobile industry, those that have affected the distribution of food, the coal strike of last spring and again this winter, the public has protested, and now the pendulum will swing backward and away from labor. Leaders of labor pressed the advantages they were enjoying beyond the limit. Generally the people were sympathetic to labor's wishes until those wishes and demands, and the methods used in enforcing them, directly affected the consumer. The coal strike brought directly home to the people as individuals the full meaning of a labor dictatorship. It is such labor disturbances, those that directly affect the individual, that have swung public opinion against labor leaders who cause the conditions. It is a public opinion to which the congressional ear will listen.

PRIVATE TAX ON COAL

THE PEOPLE are expecting, as one of the early acts of the new congress, legislation that will definitely, permanently and effectively outlaw any and all attempts to foist upon the American consumer any tax, direct or indirect, not imposed by recognized government authority.

The five cents a ton paid into the miner's union treasury by the operators for every ton of coal mined was, and is, such a tax on the consumer. That contract, made by Interior Secretary Krug, established a precedent that can be just as reasonably applied to every line of production. It is a tax that is passed along to the consumer. It is, in no sense, a part of the mine worker's wages. The workers do not see it. Officials of the union collect it, and they alone determine its disposition. It is distinctly un-American, unjust and unjustifiable. It definitely must be outlawed by congress.

JUST WHO is the boss in these United States? A news story printed at the time of the east coast longshoremen's strike said: "The government won permission from the strikers to unload some food ships." Evidently it is the labor leaders who are now telling us, the people, who thought we were kings, where we get off.

Less work for more pay is not a policy that will put the nation back on its peacetime feet, and provide the prosperity for which we are hoping.

THE WORD MADE FLESH

LESSON TEXT—John 1:1-18.
MEMORY SELECTION—No man hath seen God at any time; the only begotten Son, which is in the bosom of the Father, he hath declared him.—John 1:18.

A new year always carries with it a deep sense of responsibility and at the same time a thrill of expectancy.

That is why we need to begin this new year—and continue it—in the study of God's Word, so that we may know his will. You will find it to be a joy and blessing to you, not only as you study it by yourself, but also in the fellowship of those in the Sunday school and church.

Our lessons for the next three months are of unusual interest, for they take up the Gospel of John which was "written, that ye might believe that Jesus is the Christ, the Son of God; and that believing ye might have life through his name" (John 20:31).

Jesus Christ is here presented as the Word (Logos), and he is indeed the living Word come to reveal God to us.

I. The Living Word Is the Light of Men (vv. 1-5)

Men ask questions about Christ. They want to know whether he is to be regarded as a good man and a great leader, or must we recognize him as being God?

The answer is here. He "was" in the beginning (Gen. 1:1), which means that he pre-existed from all eternity, and he "was God" even as he was "with God." This eternal, living, divine Word was the "express image" of God (Heb. 1:3), and so perfectly revealed the Father (v. 18).

He is the Creator (v. 3) and giver of life both natural and spiritual.

This eternal Word became (as he was) the light of men. He came to shine into the darkness of a sinful world with the only light of redemption. We say again, "This is the Lord!"

II. The Living Word Is a Divider of Men (vv. 6-13)

The darkness of sin was so deep, and still is so deep that the glorious light of God is not received with gladness, nor accepted at all. We see that in the close of verse 5.

Now the question comes, Does it make any difference how a man regards Jesus Christ?

The answer is clear. You must decide what you will do with him. You cannot avoid that decision or evade that light which shines. You must either accept or reject, and a failure to accept is a rejection.

God has witnesses to the Light. John was such a witness and he, like all true witnesses for Christ, directed attention to him. John's great testimony was just a lesser light to point men to the true Light. That true Light is shed abroad for all men (v. 9).

As they face Christ, men divide into two groups. His own people, and his own creation rejected him when he came (v. 11). How utterly tragic! And yet the same thing goes on today. Men hear the gospel, are made acquainted with Christ and his claims, yet fail to accept his proffered salvation, and are eternally lost (John 3:19; Eph. 2:1).

But, thank God, there are those who receive him (v. 12), and to them he gives the power, the right or authority, to be the sons of God.

This change is expressly declared to be (1) not by reason of family or heredity—"not of blood"; (2) not by natural instinct or development—"not of the will of the flesh"; and (3) not by human volition or by man's will power—"not of the will of man."

III. The Living Word Is a Revealer of God (vv. 14-18)

The eternal Word, the Lord Jesus Christ, laid aside his place of honor in heaven, came to earth and took upon himself our flesh that he might redeem us from sin. What infinite condescension, what unfathomable love!

He dwelt among men and showed forth the grace and truth of God, for he was full of these heavenly attributes. But it was in his giving of himself as Redeemer and Saviour of mankind that he fully revealed God in all his gracious love for us.

Notice the antithesis here. "Law" is set over against "grace"; "given" stands in contrast with "came," and "Moses" with "Jesus Christ."

The law was a schoolmaster to bring us to Christ (Gal. 3:24), but it could not save anyone; but grace—oh, it is by grace that we are saved (Eph. 2:8).

Moses was God's honored servant, but Jesus was the Son in the household (Heb. 3:5, 6). It was this Son of God who came to reveal the Father and to declare his grace in salvation.

The law was sent through a messenger, but no messenger, no matter how great or worthy, would do to bring the gospel of the grace of God. That message of "grace and truth" came by Jesus Christ" (v. 17).

May Warn of Disordered Kidney Action

Modern life with its hurry and worry, irregular habits, improper eating and drinking—its risk of exposure and infection—throws heavy strain on the work of the kidneys. They are apt to become over-taxed and fail to filter excess acid and other impurities from the life-giving blood.

You may suffer nagging backache, headache, dizziness, getting up nights, leg pains, swelling—feel constantly tired, nervous, all worn out. Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder are sometimes burning, scanty or too frequent urination.

Try Doan's Pills. Doan's help the kidneys to pass off harmful excess body waste. They have had more than half a century of public approval. A recommendation by grateful users everywhere. Ask your neighbor!

Extension Service Shows In Iosco March 28

Two Michigan State college extension expositions aimed to help rural people with their farm and home planning, start their showings this week-end.

In the lower peninsula, the Michigan State College Rural Progress Caravan opens its three-month tour on Friday, January 3, in an Ingham county premier at Mason.

In the upper peninsula, the Farm and Home show, designed to be of special interest to farmers in the northern Michigan area, will have its first showing in Delta County on Saturday, January 4. It is under the supervision of J. G. Wells, Jr., assistant county agent leader in charge of the upper peninsula, and a committee of county agricultural agents and extension specialists.

The 1947 Rural Progress Caravan will exhibit 58 times in different counties of the lower peninsula. It features "The Farm and Home" and gives modern ideas on home planning, remodeling and building, in addition to modern farming practices.

The 1947 caravan is made up of panel displays of the exposition type. Many extension specialists will accompany the show from town to town and confer with visitors during the showing.

Nearly 400 feet of panel displays and a number of working models are included in the caravan property which will be moved about by truck.

The extension service 1947 Caravan will show at the Iosco County Garage on March 28.

Nitrogen Fertilizers
Four materials now make up 90 per cent of the present big stream of nitrogen flowing to farms—ammonium sulfate, 28 per cent; sodium nitrate, 26; ammoniating solutions, 18; and different forms of ammonium nitrate, 18. Use of the ammoniating solutions and ammonium nitrate has been on the increase in recent years, partly as a result of new techniques in preparing the latter so it will not cake in storage and will flow well from the distributors.

The 1945 baby chick output of 1,597,421,000 was only 1 per cent below the 1943 record, but 24 per cent above 1944.

Record Number of Deer and Bear Killed
Besides bringing home a record harvest of deer, Michigan's 1946 big game hunters also bagged a record number of bears, if game-kill card returns show hunter's luck below the Straits was as good as that in the upper peninsula.
Last year, when the conservation department's game division estimated the kill at just over 1,000 bears (546 of them in the upper peninsula) the number brought across the Straits was 177. This season the Straits count was the highest of record—314 bears. Previous high count at the Straits was in 1940, when 243 were brought over.
The number of bears deer hunters have taken across on the Straits ferries fluctuates widely.

TREASURE OF THE SEA

BY George E. Walsh W.N.U. Release

THE STORY THUS FAR:
The crew of a small sailing vessel in the Caribbean pick up Dick Jordan, adrift on a raft. He realizes that he is among men little better than pirates. They come upon a drifting schooner with only two people aboard, the demented captain and his daughter, Rose. Tucu and his pirates capture the ship and tie up Rose and Dick. After a fruitless search for the "treasure" supposed to be on the schooner, Tucu goes away, taking Dick with him. Dick escapes and returns to the schooner just in time to rescue Rose from two of the pirates. Rose tells Dick the treasure really exists. Next day they plan how to sail the schooner to land.

couple of hours we'll reach it. Any danger of being wrecked on those rocks?"

"If we could work around to the other side of the island," muttered the skipper, "we'd be safer."

After much awkward and difficult maneuvering, they brought the ship to safety in a sheltered cove.

Captain Bedford was anxious to begin making repairs so the Betty could sail out of her prison at the earliest possible time. "We can't reckon on more'n a week of fine weather," he said. "An' we got about all we can do to get off afore that."

Dick's curiosity to land on the island and survey the scene from the top of the cliffs was greater than any fear of future disaster. "I'm going ashore," he announced.

"What for?" growled the skipper. "Ye won't see anythin' but water an' an island, an' ye can see them here."

"The island may be inhabited on the other side," Captain Bedford snorted. "Ye expect to find a hotel an' a ship waitin' to take ye home?"

Dick shook his head and laughed. "No, but I'm curious to climb up there and get a look. I won't be gone long."

When he was near the summit, he increased his pace, eager to get a glimpse over the top.

She stopped, trembling all over, her hands clasped in the attitude of prayer. He was by her side instantly, more startled by her happiness than by any fear that he had seen written there before.

"What is it, Rose?" he asked anxiously, catching one of her fluttering hands in both of his.

"It's Father," she breathed softly. "Is he—dead?"

The question came out before he had time to think—abruptly, and without premeditation.

"Dead!" she repeated, and then laughed softly. "Dead! No! He's just come to life. He's sane again, Dick. He knows me—remembers everything! He's—he's—"

The tears bubbled from her eyes and rolled down her cheeks; but they were the tears of joy and relief and not of fear or desperation. Dick held one hand and supported her trembling form with an arm.

"I'm silly!" she laughed hysterically, smiling through the tears. "But I can't help it! And I don't care! I can cry for happiness, can't I?"

He bared her the temptation to sweep her into his arms and kiss the pouting lips.

"Come," she added a moment later, clutching his arms. "Come and see the miracle."

In the cabin Dick found a much changed man lying on the bed where he had helped put him the night before. The feverish red had died out of the face, and the eyes, inspecting him critically, were as sane as any man's. The blow of the Carib's bludgeon had restored to Captain Bedford his reason. Rose had partly prepared him for meeting Dick by explaining briefly the series of events that had taken place while his mind was under a cloud. He extended a hand suddenly, and said:

"Ye've saved my little girl's life, I understand. Then—then ye can count on me as an everlastin' friend."

"I don't know what Rose's been telling you, Captain, but I'll bet she never told you how she saved my life. Let me tell you."

The girl placed a hand before his lips, but he removed it, and went into details of their adventures that she had either omitted or slurred over. At the end, Captain Bedford sat up.

"I reckon now," he said, "I'm all cured. That little girl o' mine's just like—just like her mother."

"Then her mother must have been a wonder," smiled Dick.

"She was!" was the solemn report.

Captain Bedford Takes Command

The captain struggled to his feet despite Rose's protestations. "No, I ain't goin' to lie here any more," he added. "I got to get on deck. Ye've had enough on yer hands, daughter. Now it's my turn. Reckon I'm well enough to take a watch." He clutched at the rail and stared across the sea.

"Where's that lugger?" he demanded truculently.

"Over there," replied Rose, pointing.

Until then none of them had glanced in the direction of the puzzling object that had caused them so much debate, but when their eyes focused on it now they gave a little start. Captain Bedford grunted and recovered his voice first.

"Ye call that a ship!" he snorted. "Great Jehosaphat, ain't ye got eyes! That's land! An island!"

It was an island rising abruptly from the sea—not one of your coral-girted, palm-fringed islands of the tropics, but of rock-battered headland that caught the breaking surf and hurled it back shattered into foam. Perhaps a mile or two in width, and fifty feet high, it offered a safe asylum for shipwrecked sailors in the stormiest weather, could a safe landing be effected.

"We're drifting straight toward the island," Dick remarked. "In a

The explanation of the group of white men on the beach was all comprehensible. One of the boats of the City of Bahia had landed on the island or been wrecked there.

The discovery was not pleasant to Dick. His recognition of the man who had pursued him half around a continent, shadowing him as persistently as a bulldog, and finally capturing him in a small, out of the way corner of the earth, gave him a distinct shock. With a quiver, he recalled Hen's parting words:

"If we meet again—on shore—I'll pinch you. It's my duty."

He glanced back of him. The schooner was resting quietly in its protecting prison, rising and falling lazily. On the deck Captain Bedford was busy making repairs to the sails and rigging, preparing for escape before another storm came. Rose stood alone at the bow, and as Dick looked she waved to him.

He groaned and waved back to her. Then violent words sprang to his lips. "Damn Hen! He shan't take me! I'll kill him first! It isn't fair! I've paid—paid enough for another's crime! I'll die fighting for freedom! Damn it, I'll jump into the sea first!"

Rose was still waving to him, cupping her hands occasionally as if shouting words of encouragement. He listened, but the distance was too far to catch her voice.

Suddenly the fit of angry passion deserted him, leaving him limp and weak. He groaned aloud: "She will know! Hen will tell her! I can't escape it!"

Her name sprang to his lips, and with a cry of anguish he dropped his head on the hard rocks. The inevitable fate that had pursued him was closing about him, and he was glad now that he hadn't spoken to her. He shivered at the thought. At least he had saved her that humiliation.

When he glanced up again his mind was calmer and his white face, drawn and strained, had less of the rebellious lines in it. The men on the beach were still parleying. Dick wondered what sort of bargain they could make with Tucu. The old pirate would demand all he could get and take it. Tucu was like Hen—inexorable and greedy.

While he looked the parley suddenly terminated, and Captain Tucu, who had been conversing with Hen, turned on his heels to walk back to his waiting Caribs; but half way there he wheeled so swiftly that Hen was taken off his guard. There was a puff of smoke, and a sharp report. Hen Pettigrew staggered back and nearly fell, reeling as if suddenly bereft of all powers of locomotion.

At the same instant a group of Caribs, led by Black Burley, started forward on the run, firing as they came. Dick saw Pettigrew reel again, and this time pitch head first into the sand. The Caribs rushed past him, filling the air with their shots.

Dick waited to hear the returning volley from the white seamen, as the Caribs advanced, dodging from side to side, but no response came from them. Tucu had armed every one of his crew but they were poor shots.

Stones Poor Weapons Against Guns

"They're waiting until the Caribs are nearer," Dick mused joyfully. "I wish—a little regretfully—"Hen was there. Hen's a dead shot."

Nearer and nearer came the Caribs to the entrenched fortress of the seamen. Dick noticed for the first time they were protected by a rampart of rocks they had gathered for a breastwork.

"Hen's work," he chuckled. "Hen's shrewd in a fight. Didn't trust old Tucu."

The attacking party was within a stone's throw of the breastwork, and still the white men held their fire. Ten feet nearer, and the sailors rose as one man. Dick held his breath, expecting a withering volley from them; but instead a shower of rocks and stones filled the air.

Two of the Caribs went down, and a third stumbled and halted. The others dropped to the beach to escape the flying missiles, and the attack was temporarily checked.

"Why don't they shoot now?" growled Dick. "They could get them if—"

He stopped and drew a deep breath as the unpleasant explanation forced itself sharply upon his mind. The seamen from the wrecked steamer carried no firearms, or if they had taken them away with them, as Hen must have taken his, the salt water had rendered them useless. They were unarmed, except for the stones, while the Caribs were plentifully supplied with guns.

Dick's hand reached for his own pistol, and then dropped limply to his side. Captain Tucu had disarmed him when he was made a prisoner, and Dick hadn't found any substitute weapons. Were there more firearms aboard the Betty? Probably not; Captain Tucu had robbed the schooner of every weapon he could lay his hands on.

With a groan at his impotence, he turned back to the beach. The Caribs were attacking again.

"Chust look at dis! It's coal!"

John Peter Salley, one of an exploring party, had picked up what seemed to be another rock, and found it to be bituminous coal. Today West Virginia, with its 585 mines, often is referred to as the "coal bin of America."

When William Tompkins used natural gas as fuel to evaporate water from brine in 1841, he became one of the first men in the United States to use gas for industrial uses. West Virginia's natural gas production in 1944 was 213 billion cubic feet.

In 1797 Elisha Brooks began extracting salt for commercial purposes from a brine spring in Kanawha valley near the present site of Charleston. Other West Virginia salt works have been operating for more than 100 years.

Develop New Industries.

As early as 1790 a furnace was built by Peter Tarr of Kings Creek, near the present site of Weirton, now one of the biggest steel producing cities in America. Cannon balls made here were used by Commodore Perry's fleet in the Battle of Lake Erie in 1813.

Michael J. Owens, son of a coal miner, invented a bottle-making machine in 1903 and started a new epoch in that industry. West Virginia produced, in prewar years, glass, china and pottery valued at 50 million dollars annually.

Mifin Marsh made stogies and sold them to passengers on Ohio river boats in 1840. M. Marsh & Son, Wheeling, is reputed to be the largest stogie manufacturer in the United States.

And back in 1915, when World War I cut off the German supply of playing marbles, Akro Agate was founded at Clarksburg, and today the concern makes over half of the world's glass marbles.

But lest West Virginia's industrial achievements blind us to her other claims to fame and distinction, let us look farther than bituminous coal production, natural gas, petroleum, chemicals, salt, stone, hardwood timber, steel and iron manufacture, textiles, glass, pottery, ceramics and others. There is also the romantic and historic West Virginia. And there is the mountainous and scenic West Virginia which has become one of the nation's greatest recreational areas.

CHIEF EXECUTIVE . . . Clarence Watson Meadows was elected the 22nd governor of West Virginia in 1944. A former lawyer, he had served as state attorney general and judge of the 10th judicial circuit court before his election. He is a native of Beckley, W. Va., where he was born February 11, 1904.

ected, not with the Civil war as a cause, but rather as an opportunity. On December 31, 1862, the congress of the United States gave its consent to admit West Virginia as a state, and the next spring, on April 20, 1863, President Lincoln issued his proclamation. West Virginia became the 35th state of the union two months later.

Many Historic Shrines.

Three states and two rivers meet at historic Harpers Ferry where John Brown's anti-slavery raid was staged. Blackwater falls, Seneca rocks, Pinnacle rock, the burial mounds at Moundsville, the state capitol building, the historic shrines—all are interesting and worthwhile.

From mountain tops to blue grass farms, the agricultural side of West Virginia is a revelation. Anyone must marvel at the agriculture and fruit that are produced in a state that ranks among the first in industry. Prize beef and bituminous coal? Yes, anything is possible in West Virginia.

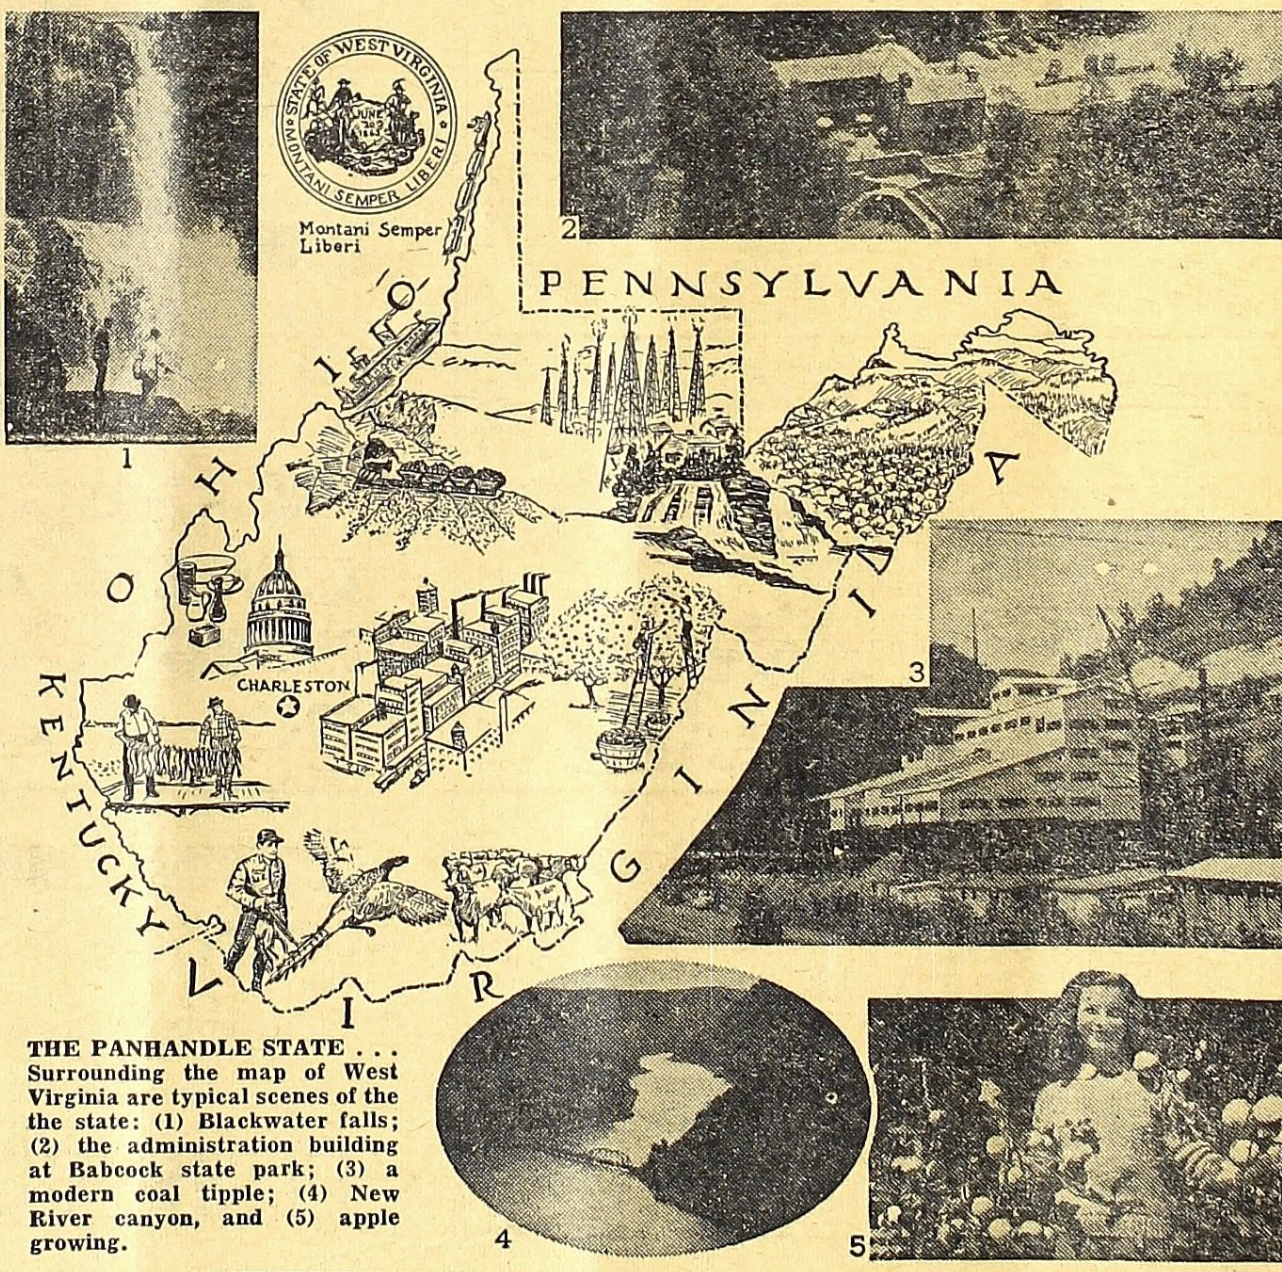

Gen. "Stonewall" Jackson was born at Clarksburg, and West Virginia also gave the nation John W. Davis, Pearl S. Buck and Ann Jarvis. In case you've forgotten, it was Ann Jarvis who in 1907 asked a group of Philadelphia friends to wear white carnations on the first anniversary of her mother's death—and thereby founded Mother's Day.

State of Contrasts.

The state's northwestern border is the Ohio river, the aquatic highway that opened the west. But the Monongahela and the Kanawha rivers are important too. West Virginia's elevations range from 240 to 4,860 feet above sea level, with the highest average elevation of any state east of the Rockies. Yes, it's a mountainous state, but every wooded hill, every shady nook and every sparkling stream belongs to just such a state. About 60 per cent of the state's area is covered by forest, with trees ranging from spruce in the highlands to prickly pear cactus and other semi-desert plants in the lowlands.

Scenery, wildlife and extensive, semi-primitive areas combine to lure vacationists to West Virginia's two vast national forests, the Monongahela and the George Washington. The state also has 15 state parks and seven state forests.

Fishing, hunting, hiking, riding, swimming, golf, tennis, boating—well, what do you want for recreation? And what is your trade, what are your business ambitions, your specifications for success? And what of your "dream" home where nature is loveliest? Perhaps the answer is—in West Virginia!

Eastern Panhandle Is Favorite Spot for Vacationers

Old-timers used to talk about "this neck of the woods," and West Virginia's Eastern Panhandle may have the answer to how the expression started. Back in the wilderness days, the area was called "The Northern Neck of Virginia."

Eastern Panhandle retains a flavor all its own. Gouging into Maryland and Virginia as it does, it partakes of the traditions of both those states and remains somewhat different, if not apart, from the main area of West Virginia.

In 1776, the village of Martinsburg had "30 houses" and the community was building "a courthouse of no inconsiderable size and elegance." Today Martinsburg is the industrial center of the Eastern Panhandle.

Spotlight of GRANTLAND RICE

The college football season is over — on football fields. But it really should be only beginning on the part of those who believe that true college football is a great game and should be saved. We mean saved from too much outright professionalism and a degree of semi-professionalism that is just as bad. It may be that we have harped on this subject too often. But it is still a vital matter to those who love college football as it should be run and played.

There are four leading organizations who should have a hand in this checking up:
1. The college presidents—who are supposed to be the heads of their institutions. These men control student obligations, classroom ability.
2. The graduate managers.
3. The football coaches, who have much at stake and who have taken a big part of the beating.
4. The alumni who are interested in something more than winning teams at any cost. Those could be major factors.

Southern Situation
Here is a letter that might interest you:

"Dear Sir:
I happen to be from the South where I know that the football situation, from a student or an amateur angle, is pretty bad. But it is just about as bad, although better covered up, in many other sections. Down here we pay and take care of a lot of football players who in too many cases are poor students. But I have found the same thing is true pretty well around the map. I don't believe any reformers are going to stop this. I believe it will fall of its own weight from the feeling I have found developing among the students themselves and the alumni. They are getting sick of seeing their colleges represented too often by physical education and other soft-course players who are interested in football only for pay, and a professional job later on.
"Many of these students can just about read and write, and they improve little even in this respect. Don't think the real students don't know this. Most of them know the ones that have been brought in, are being paid and what soft courses they are taking. They know how professional the game has grown in many places. And I've also run across a number of coaches who are getting fed up with their jobs of recruiting or taking care of the paid men brought in."
—Southerner.

We put this problem up to a veteran football coach in the East who knows most of the inside answers.
"I doubt," he told me, "that you can prevent certain forms of payment that can be so easily covered up. There will be no real improvement until entrance tests are made much stiffer, until college classroom requirements are lifted many degrees. I am referring to physical education players, for whom football is a good part of their college work. There are several other soft courses I might mention where big, fast and valuable football players are taken care of. These boys are getting nothing out of college except football. After all, you are supposed to go to college largely for an education. Why not have each college print on its football programs the courses its football players are taking?"

Harm to Character
"Of course poor boys deserve their chance for an education. Thousands, possibly hundreds of thousands, who never kicked or threw a football do get that chance. Football is too great a game to be wrecked by the modern desire to win, no matter what the ethics, no matter what the cost. These forget the great harm they also are doing to young players from the side of building character. They know who is cheating."
As a player and a coach and a man of high character this man's name stands high in football.
Oddly enough, Frank Butterworth, one of Yale's most famous stars, and John Kieran, the philosopher and thinking machine, had the same answer—"Abolish all gate receipts, as Army and Notre Dame did for years."
"You can't have amateur sport with big gate receipts," Kieran says.

Illiterate Athletes
I already can hear one indignant war cry. "Our college standards are high. We meet every particular in this respect." Certainly the Big Nine and the Ivy league are among the leaders. But how did one of the college stars from one big conference, who had starred on a team for two years, misspell 41 out of 56 words in a certain brief examination (some of these a 14-year-old high school boy wouldn't have missed) and still be eligible for football?

The Morning After
George, the Negro janitor at the college, listening to the learned discussions of the professors, developed a great liking for big words and, as a prominent member of his local lodge, he began to make use of them in his remarks to his fellow-members.
One morning, after delivering an important address at his lodge, George was discovered by one of the professors diligently searching through one of the college's large unabridged dictionaries.
"Picking up some words for your next speech, George?" the professor laughingly inquired.
"No, sah, no, sah," replied George, "I se jus' translatin' t mahself de speech I done made las' night."

Among the oldest publications in the United States are the local almanacs the contents of which appeal chiefly to farmers, says Collier's.
For example, Gruber's Hagers-town Almanac is now in its 149th year, the Old Farmer's Almanac in its 154th, Daboll's New England Almanac in its 174th and Foulsham's Almanack in its 250th year.

Sublime to Ridiculous
A slightly tipsy gentleman walked into the telegraph office, took a pencil, spent three or four minutes in deep thought, and wrote this message to a friend in St. Louis:
"Tra la, tra la, tra la, tra la."
He signed it and presented it to the lady behind the counter.
After checking it, she said: "That will be 64 cents."
The gentleman paid her and she said: "You used only eight words."
"What would you suggest adding?" he finally asked.
"Well, how about just adding 'tra la,'" she said.
"No," he said firmly, "that would just make it sound silly."

This Home-Mixed Cough Relief Is Truly Surprising
So Easy. No Cooking. Big Saving.
You may not know it, but, in your own kitchen, you can easily prepare a really surprising relief for coughs due to colds. It's old-fashioned--your mother probably used it--but for real results, it's hard to beat.
First, make a syrup by stirring 2 cups granulated sugar and one cup of water a few moments, until dissolved. No cooking needed. It's no liquid honey instead of sugar syrup.
Then get 2½ ounces of Pinex from any drugist. This is a special compound of proven ingredients, in concentrated form, well known for quick action in throat and bronchial irritations.
Put the Pinex into a pint bottle, and fill up with your syrup. Thus you make a full pint of splendid cough syrup, and you get about four times as much for your money. It never spoils. Children love its pleasant taste. And for quick relief, it's a wonder. It loosens the phlegm, soothes the irritated membranes, eases the soreness, makes breathing easy, and lets you get restful sleep. Just try it, and if not pleased, your money will be refunded.

A Long Try
Husband--Well, dear, 50 years have flitted by and I haven't deceived you yet.
Wife--No, John, but goodness knows you've tried hard enough.

Two-Humped Camels
 Bactrian camels, which get their name from Bactria, a province in Afghanistan, are two-humped and reddish-brown or black in color. Found throughout Asia, these camels are able to withstand zero weather in the mountains of Mongolia. They have long, shaggy coats, are shorter and sturdier than Arabian camels, and a difference in foot structure enables them to traverse rocky, uneven terrain. South American llamas, alpacas and vicunas are members of the camel family.

Fish Cornea Flat
 The cornea of a fish's eye is flat, and all the focusing is done by the lens of the eye, says the Better Vision Institute. In the human eye the cornea is rounded, and it performs about two-thirds of the work in bending light rays to a focus on the retina.

Early Books
 According to history, wooden boards were first used as book covers. In book binding of those early days, animal glue, the standard adhesive known to the ancients over 33 centuries ago, was always used for its strength and flexibility. Wooden boards as covers were first abandoned in favor of paper by the craftsmen who bound the books of the famous printer Aldus of Venice in the 16th century. Prior to this time, even small books had wooden covers one-fourth of an inch thick.

Reverse Skirt
 Before discarding a wool skirt that has begun to look worn and shabby, consider the possibility of giving it a new lease on life by turning it inside out. Wool goods and garments still are scarce, so every effort should be made to get full wear from the clothes on hand. Often the faded color, spots and wear that make a skirt look worn are only surface deep. If the underside looks new and if the fabric, when held up to the light, shows no sign of wearing thin, the skirt is probably worth reversing.

Putting the Shot
 The shot put, a standard event in any modern track meet, was first done in ancient Irish games in 632 B. C. In later years, the stones which had previously been used were supplanted by cannon balls, hence the name putting the "shot." In 1860 the 16-pound shot was made standard for track contests, although 14-pound shots were also used for many years.

Sewerage System
 In 1942 about 70.9 million persons, or 87 per cent of the total urban population of the country, were provided with some kind of sewerage and there were 5,600 treatment plants with an estimated connected population of 42 million, or about 60 per cent of the population served by sewer systems.

Meat Rack
 A rack under the meat keeps it from cooking in its own juices and permits heat to circulate around the meat as it cooks.

Singing Bird
 A bird which sings as it flies is the goldfinch.

Egg Whites
 Egg whites whip best when they are room temperature—about 70 degrees. It is wise to remove them from the refrigerator an hour or so before whipping.

Greased Pan
 You'll find a greased pan is better than waxed paper if you're baking quick breads and yeast bread, because the paper burns at the relatively high baking temperatures used for such products.
