Silver Valley Winter Carnival Opens Today

Interesting Sports Events Program

Prospects of Ideal Weather for Events at Silver Valley

Winter Sports enthusiasts will have ideal conditions at Silver Valley during the Coronation Week-End if present weather conditions prevail, according to W. D. Nunn, chairman of the Silver Valley Sports Committee. Plenty of snow and cold weather are perfect for the winter sports area, and last Sunday skiing conditions were the finest of the year.

Thousands of winter sports enthusiasts are expected here this week end for the annual winter sports carnival Friday, Saturday and Sunday.

The winter sports committee, representing the Chambers of Commerce of East Tawas and Tawas City, announced a program which starts Friday evening and continues through Sunday. Included will be exhibitions of skating, skiing, and snow shoeing, staged by local experts.

The entertainment of visitors will start Friday night when the New York Comedy Kings, an outstanding colored basketball team, will play an exhibition game in Tawas City gym with the Tawas Indies.

The outdoor exhibitions are to begin Saturday afternoon and two radio broadcasts are planned to carry the colorful spectacle throughout the Mid-west. At noon Tony Weitzel, Detroit News columnist and radio commentator, will give his "Round-Table" broadcast from the community building over WWJ. At 2:45 p. m. George Hunter, WWJ announcer will broadcast interviews with prominent carnival guests.

A banquet honoring queen Patricia Bolen will be held at the Holland Hotel at 6:30 p. m. Saturday, and at 9:00 p. m. the Coronation ball will be held in the community building at East Tawas.

Guests wishing to view the winter sports area from the air will have the opportunity through two airplanes equipped with skis which will take off from Tawas Bay.

Skating, skiing, tobogganing, and snowshoeing facilities will be available throughout the week-end.

Conservation Officer Says Deer Winter Feeding Problem Critical

Our Michigan deer herd is being very closely observed this year by many of the Michigan Department of Conservation personnel. The focal point of the State's deer problem is in this district, and the center of this district is Mio. The problem is lack of winter food for the deer, the result is starvation.

Your question probably is: What is the Michigan Department of Conservation doing about it?

The Game Division just recently hired six deeryard men to assist the district game manager, and their special job is deer yards, to promote tree cuttings wherever possible to immediately relieve the situation in critical areas. Ivan Thomson is the Biologist for this district. He is stationed at the Ogemaw Refuge.

The Mio District consists of Alpena, Escobedo, Ogemaw, Oscoda, Roscommon and Crawford counties. For the past several years this district has had a higher population of White-tailed Deer than any other section of Michigan and probably any place in the world.

There have been more deer hunters in this district and more deer taken out than any other place in Michigan for the past fifteen or twenty years, and despite all the heavy hunting during this period the number of deer has been increasing continually. In certain areas, during hard winters, starved deer have been found in great numbers. The deer killed during hunting season has not equalled the annual increase, therefore many of our deer yards are browsed out and nature is taking its toll.

During the past three winters it was not necessary for the deer to go to their yards and stay there for any length of time; in fact, during most of the winter days they were roaming their summer range and getting enough to eat from acorns, jack pines, and other trees and shrubs that are commonly found on the high land. As a result, the deer herd has been built up above the winter carrying capacity of the deer yards.

The deer, at the present time, in many places, are in poor shape, and some have been found dead in the McCollum Lake and Reed Ranch areas.

The Forestry Division is cooperating with the Game Division in recommending cuttings in deer yards wherever possible to relieve the critical situation immediately, but the problem there is that there isn't enough merchantable timber under State ownership to make much of a showing; most of the trees are either pole size or smaller. Then too, if timber is cut to bring browse down within reach of the deer, there are so many of them that seedlings and young trees won't have a chance to survive, because they still will be eaten as fast as they get above the snow line. As a result, our future browse producing trees just won't be there, and if we continue to cut timber the other cover will be gone also. Therefore, the only sensible thing to do is to shoot more deer by hunting just as soon as we possibly can, otherwise the deer will eat themselves out of house and home.

St. Bernard Tramples Over Tawas Teams

Elks Play Whittemore Team Next Tuesday Night

Both of Tawas City's basketball teams were trampled over by the invading St. Bernard team from Alpena, last Friday night. The Elks suffered a 50 to 30 headache from the Alpena cagers, who were in top form, with the Tawas City team desperately flinging the agate hoop to no avail. This was the second time during the year that St. Bernard's defeated the maroon and white. Don Gingerich led the Elks with 11 points on five buckets and a free throw. Westcott and Gracik were next with seven points apiece. Fitzpatrick led St. Bernard's team with 13 points.

Reserves Break Winning Streak

The Reserve team broke their winning streak last Friday against St. Bernard's reserves 27 to 22. The reserves were bidding for their seventh straight victory but fell short by five points to tie them. At only one time during the game did the reserves hold a slight edge over the Alpena cagers and that was in the third stanza, when they registered a one point, 17 to 16 lead over them. Steinhurst led the team with twelve points.

Last Tuesday's game with Whittemore was canceled because of the bad driving conditions, but it will be played here next Tuesday. Next Friday night (February 14) the Elks will play host to the invading East Tawas Indians. Tawas City won two games from East Tawas in their first contest, so this should be three evenly matched games. Tonight's game with Harrisville was postponed for the exhibition game with the Tawas Indies pitted against the New York Comedy Kings. The postponed Harrisville game will be played at a later date.

THE GEORGIA MESS

WASHINGTON.—It was carefully hushed up at the time, but the political mess in Georgia might have been avoided if the justice department had gone ahead with a secret probe it conducted of the Talmadge election.

Last fall, the justice department had FBI men making a thorough check of Talmadge intimidation and racial discrimination at the polls. This, under recent supreme court rulings, now is the direct concern of the federal government and can be prosecuted as a criminal offense.

The FBI investigation showed that Talmadge had sent instructions to the Georgia primary polls aimed at preventing Negroes from voting. Although the evidence was conclusive, the justice department finally got cold feet. The case was dropped.

One obstacle the justice department ran up against was the fact that Eugene Talmadge was sick and they couldn't get to him for interrogation. Also, when Herman Talmadge outbluffed the justice boys and refused to answer questions unless a stenographer was present.

Final factor, however, was the fear that federal government intervention in Georgia would boomerang, hurting the very same liberal forces the justice department wanted to help.

MARSHALL'S WAR LEAK

One of the most significant things to watch regarding the state department under General Marshall will be whether he continues Jimmie Byrnes' policy of open diplomacy.

No secretary of state since Charles Evans Hughes has been as frank with the press as Byrnes. Hughes handled all press conferences himself, was a master at giving important background information, was generally frank and forthright. Byrnes, while not handling many conferences himself, went further than Hughes in making sure that a competent state department official gave newsmen a general picture of what was happening inside diplomatic negotiations.

Byrnes also didn't object to most news leaks; felt the American people had the right to know about foreign policy.

However, some of those allegedly close to General Marshall say he may tighten up on the Byrnes policy and crack down on news leaks. This, of course, may be unfair to the new secretary of state; for, based on his own past record, Marshall has been quite a "leaker" himself. In fact, one cable seized from the files of the German foreign office now reveals that General Marshall was woefully indiscreet in the early stages of the European war and inadvertently let out important secrets to the enemy.

AIDS TAX EVADERS

Some of the nation's biggest black-marketeers and on-the-make war contractors are getting away with income tax evasion, thanks to a snarled-up situation inside the justice department.

Around 300 criminal income tax cases are awaiting prosecution, with little chance of rapid action. Behind them is another 1,200 income tax fraud cases in the treasury, soon ready for transmittal to the bottlenecked justice department. Meanwhile, the black-marketeers and certain war contractors have been getting away with murder.

CHURCH AND LABOR

It hasn't been announced officially, but prominent church leaders are beginning an important behind-the-scenes study in connection with the government's efforts to maintain industrial peace. There have been several private meetings recently at which both Protestant and Catholic clergymen sat down and traded ideas with industrial and labor spokesmen on the question of labor relations.

While the churchmen deny that they are endeavoring to make religion a "bargaining factor" in the settlement of labor disputes, they feel that the church should play a definite part in improving work and pay standards. They also believe it is the duty of the church to inject a "greater sense of moral responsibility and understanding" in bargaining between employers and employees.

CAPITAL CHAFF

Washington's poorest guesser is the Pentagon official who transferred General Marshall from a plush suite of offices at the Pentagon to a small, two-desk room just four days before the general was named secretary of state. Henry Wallace has jacked the New Republic's circulation up from 40,000 to 100,000 weekly in one month. Harold Smith, former director of the budget, may replace Jack Hutson as assistant secretary general of the United Nations.

COLOR AND GAIETY MARK FIESTA... Representing the Anglo-Saxon influence in the annual mid-winter Charro Days Fiesta at Brownsville, Texas, are these two "Americanos" dancing the "jarabe tapatio," a typical Mexican hat dance, under a banana tree.

IN THESE UNITED STATES

Gala Texas Fete Revives Colorful Days on Frontier

BROWNSVILLE, TEX.—Fired by the passion of hot Spanish blood and tempered by subdued Anglo-Saxon influence, the Charro Days Fiesta, Carnival of Nations, major winter celebration of Texas, crowds three centuries of life along America's first and last frontier into four days and nights of frolicsome gaiety.

Along the border of the United States and Mexico, where the blood of Americans and Latins once clashed but now blends, 300,000 persons from both sides of the Rio Grande will cavort on February 13, 14, 15 and 16, in an hilarious pageant of pre-Lenten fantasy unparalleled in America.

Charro Days harkens back to the colorful days when titled Spanish landowners and virile soldiers brought the sword and the cross of Old World civilization to a wild American frontier.

To make the celebration as authentic as possible, residents of the semi-tropical Rio Grande valley of Texas and their neighbors from northern Mexico dress in typical costumes of the early day Spanish colonial and his lady.

The men become charros, symbolic of that Spanish cavalier, horseman and gentleman for whom the fiesta is named. A charro was a young man of vitality, usually of noble descent, who rode the plains of Mexico in quest of adventure and love.

Colorful Attire. He was dressed in tight-fitting trousers, embroidered with bright braid, a jacket of dark hue with silver buttons, a gay sombrero and silver spurs. His beard was trimmed neatly, pointedly.

His feminine counterpart was the lovely lady he addressed as "China," a name derived from the holiday costume she wore—the china poblana. It consisted of a full length, light spreading skirt spangled with uncounted bright sequins and a blouse of rainbow hues. She wore white gardenia or scarlet hibiscus blossoms in her hair in anticipation of the love tryst with the charro, who rode up on his black stallion to serenade her at the Spanish hacienda.

Aura of Gentility. Even today, at each Charro Days Fiesta, descendants of the original Spanish conquistadores mingle in the massed carnival throngs with impromptu charros from Illinois, Indiana or Iowa—a far cry from other days when men fought with swords and blunderbusses for desert lands that today yield millions of dollars annually in citrus and vegetable harvests.

Daughters of prominent Spanish families who first settled in Brownsville and built it into a thriving frontier city take part in the celebration each year. Such is the romantic atmosphere that pervades the four days and nights of the Charro Days Fiesta in Brownsville.

At night there is dancing under the royal palms, lovers speak soft words in the shadows of citrus groves along ancient trails, while nationally famous Latin orchestras beat out tropical rhythms. Strolling bands of troubadours wander through the century-old streets, singing love songs for a smile or a pretty nod.

'CHIAPANECA' COSTUME... Shadows of the past cling to Miss Juanita Fernandez of Brownsville, Texas, descendant of early Spanish conquistadores. She wears a typical Charro Days costume, the "chiapaneca," the state costume of Chiapa, Mexico.

During the daylight hours, there are colorful, romantic parades, extending for more than miles along humanity-massed streets. One of the most impressive spectacles is the annual children's parade, in which upwards of 10,000 school children, aged 4 to 12, from both the United States and Mexico march to the rhythm of mariachi bands, singing the folk songs of Old Mexico. Climax of the entire fiesta, though, is the annual grand parade of Charro Days. This year the grand parade will, more than ever before, cement the warm bonds of friendship between the peoples of Latin America and the United States.

Galaxy of Events. After the parades there are rodeos, horse races, street dances and pageants in a riot of color. On the final day of the Charro Days Fiesta, celebrants move across the river to Brownsville's neighboring city of Matamoros, Mexico.

Here, in a plaza where the Empress Carlota once trod and whose paving stones are worn by the feet of many nationalities, is staged a Noche Mexicana (Night in Mexico) in a setting typical of the days when the Emperor Maximilian and his French armies ruled Mexico 80 years ago.

So widely known has Charro Days become that representatives from most Central and South American nations are present annually.

"Turistas" from all parts of the U. S. also come to Brownsville for the fiesta and join in the festive fun. For Charro Days is "everybody's celebration." It has no rules nor regulations. Every man becomes a charro, every woman is a china poblana.

TOO MUCH, TOO WELL

It Shouldn't Happen to Expert— But Reports Indicate It Does

It pays to be an expert—sometimes, that is. For instance, out in San Luis Obispo, Calif., Prof. James Merson was demonstrating to his California State Polytechnic institute class how to crank a tractor without breaking an arm—and broke his arm.

Then there are experts on safety like Mrs. James C. Carmack of Providence, R. I. She went to make a speech on the subject; hobbled into the auditorium on crutches—had a little accident en route.

Still on the subject of speeches, there's the San Francisco authority on happy home life. He asked a court to postpone his wife's divorce case so he could keep a date to lecture. His subject: "How To Be Happy Though Married."

An expert on wills was the late Charles Tressler Lark, Hackensack, N. J., lawyer. As a result of his wide legal practice, he acquired a national reputation on the subject. Recently his own will came up in court and was barred—it hadn't been witnessed.

When Francis Curry had to leave his New York liquor store for a few minutes recently, he entrusted the establishment to the safe care of a friend, Frank Heines, a detective. When Curry returned, the

FEEDING THE FIVE THOUSAND

LESSON TEXT—John 6:25-35, 56-58. MEMORY SELECTION—I am that bread of life.—John 6:48.

Bread! The cry of the hungry peoples of the world for bread has reminded us anew that it is the simple and elemental things of life which are of most importance. Bread, water, light—such things man cannot do without. How significant then that our Lord declared himself to be the bread of life (John 6:35), the satisfying water (John 4:14), and the light of the world (John 8:12).

Our lesson does not deal with the feeding of the five thousand, but the story of that miracle of our Lord is the background for the discourse on the bread of life which is assigned for our study. It is one of the most delightfully simple, yet unfathomably profound, portions of Scripture.

The story of how our Lord multiplied the loaves and fishes of a small boy's lunch and fed the multitude presents him as the Creator and Sustainer of all things. The people having been fed, wanted to take Jesus and make him their King (John 6:15), so he went over the Sea of Galilee to Capernaum. But he could not get away from them, for they followed him thither. Meeting them he gave them the instruction they so much needed as he effectively contrasted the temporal and earthly with the eternal and heavenly.

I. The Bread of Earth and the Bread of Heaven (vv. 25-27).

They sought Jesus not that they might receive spiritual blessings, but that their stomachs might be filled (v. 26). It was not a high motive, but an understandable one. Hunger, or the fear of hunger, threatens so many of the people of this earth that one does not find it in his heart to condemn them too severely.

Yet it was a low motive and one which caused them to entirely miss the greatest and most blessed provision of God for their every need. The bread of this earth, bearing the imprint of a human maker, would soon leave them hungry again, and eventually they would die. The bread of heaven, bearing the seal of the Father (v. 27), would soon satisfy them for all eternity.

II. The Work of Men and the Work of God (vv. 28-33).

Entangled as they were in earthly things and desires, they seemed for a moment to reach out toward the things of God. Jesus had been talking about everlasting life and the bread from heaven; they wanted to know what they could do to merit and receive it.

It is quite typical of man even to this day that he thinks there must be some way that he can come through to eternal blessedness by way of his own works. We shall see how effectively Jesus dealt with that folly!

The only work that man can do to meet God's first demands and inherit eternal life is to believe in Christ (v. 29). Men want to add up works of penance, works of charity, deeds of righteousness, character development, the observance of religious traditions and ceremonies, the offering of prayers, and so on without end. Jesus sweeps aside all this with one brief word, saying in effect, "It is not a question of do; it is a matter of believe."

Works is not the answer to any spiritual need, but faith in Christ. We must trust God and believe in the One whom he has sent; then we are ready to go out and do his will!

III. The Way of Death and the Way of Life (vv. 34, 35, 56-58).

One could wish that the request made in verse 34 could be taken at face value, but the fact that they later turned away and left the Lord indicates that this was again a desire for physical bread. There was probably a vague desire for eternal life, too, but not enough to make them follow through with appropriate action. How much they were like folk today who want the benefits of Christianity, but who will not take up the cross.

There is here a bold contrast between the things of this earth, which, as we use them, perish (and, alas, we perish with them), and the things of God which are of eternal value and power.

Which shall it be, reader, for you? Are you willing to go on day after day on the way of death, or will you today take Christ, who is the way of life?

STUDENTS AT NEW COLLEGE WILL READ '100 BEST BOOKS'

PITTSFIELD, MASS.—Continuing the daring educational innovation based on "the 100 best books of ancient and modern thought," a new non-denominational college for 300 students will be opened here next September by Liberal Arts, Inc.

Dr. Stringfellow Barr, who largely is credited with this new approach to liberal education, will head the new institution, which will be established on a 700-acre estate fronting for nearly a mile on Stockbridge lake.

It was Dr. Barr who introduced the organized reading of 100 volumes of the best from Homer to the present day at St. John's college in Annapolis, Md., in 1937. He has resigned as president of that institution to found the offshoot here.

Endowed with $4,500,000 by Paul W. Mellon, son of the late Secretary of the Treasury Andrew W. Mellon, the new liberal arts college will be situated on the old Dan R. Hanna estate, about a mile and a half from Tanglewood, the home of Serge Koussevitzky's Berkshire festival.

The property already includes about 30 buildings, including an inn and dormitories, where the late John E. Parsons, a New York lawyer, maintained a home for fresh air children.

A college for men, the new school will have a maximum enrollment of 300, with a faculty of about 30. The entire college course will be devoted to the study of prescribed books, with no conventional college departments.

Helpful Thieves Dig Auto Out of Snow, Return After Use

BAYFIELD, WIS.—Thieves proved helpful to Douglas Knight when his car became stalled, but Knight also proved helpful to the thieves by unwittingly lending his car for their deprecations.

Missing a turn on the way home one night recently, Knight dropped the front wheels of his sedan into a snow-filled ditch. He continued on foot, intending to get towed out the next morning.

The energetic thieves, however, came along later, found the key still in the car, and dug, shoveled and pushed until they got it out.

The next morning Knight found everything intact except that his unknown helpers had used up all the gasoline in the tank and, apparently driving at high speed, had boiled out all the anti-freeze. They had returned the car to the same place in the same ditch.

Sews for Victory

LARAMIE, WYO.—They wanted to pin a medal on Mrs. Winifred Coulter, 81-year-old dressmaker, for war service performed for Albany county Red Cross chapter. Mrs. Coulter has a record of 4,027 hours of sewing work, completing 2,998 garments since Pearl Harbor.

First Chinchillas in Georgia Are Thriving

STILSON, GA.—Chinchillas, whose pelts some day may go into the making of a $35,000 coat, are making themselves right at home in the deep South. H. G. Lewis, owner of the first chinchilla farm ever established in the state, recently received 17 of the little animals from California. Not a single snuffle has developed among the animals, Lewis reports.

"Off We Go" AVIATION NOTES

DOCTOR'S PRESCRIPTION

"There's nothing like altitude to get away from cares and tired nerves." That's the prescription of Dr. B. I. Pippin, flying doctor of Richland Center, Wis.

"Besides," he adds, "it's dangerous to drive a car."

Dr. Pippin estimates that traveling by air has saved him almost six months' time in the last 24 years. The surgeon, who has been flying since 1922 and making professional air trips since 1926, regularly flies from Richland Center to Reedsburg Municipal hospital. He also uses his plane for short routine hops and has flown to almost every major city to attend medical conventions.

In Marengo, Iowa, high school youngsters get off to a flying start. In fact, three of them already are licensed to fly planes. Youngest of the trio is Peggy Olson, 16, who earned money for her flying lessons by working in a drugstore and by detasseling corn. Their instructor is Dale Griffith, veteran of the Pacific war.

STILL IN DEMAND

Despite the large quantities of surplus craft available and adequate production of new models, a sizable number of prewar type used airplanes still are in demand, it is revealed in price ratings released in the spring 1947 edition of Air Market Values.

Bringing the highest comparative prices are five-place Beech, Howard, Spartan, Stinson and Wacos, which have no 1946 counterparts. Also high in current market favor are executive corporation transports, such as Lockheed 10s and 12s, Beech 18s and Grumman amphibians. Hardest hit in the current market are small two-place light planes.

HORSES HOP ATLANTIC... "Peaclaw," one of six race horses flown from London aboard a Sky-master to race in California, is led from the plane by a trainer.

PEAK FREIGHT YEAR

Member lines of Independent Airfreight Association, Inc., will carry 220 million ton miles of freight in 1947, more than 12 times the amount transported in 1946, the first year of operation, company officials predict. The five IAA lines include the Flying Tiger line, which has an army transport command contract calling for two flights daily to both Tokyo and Hickam field, Hawaii; Slick Airways, Inc., U. S. Airlines, Inc., Willis Air Service, Inc., and Flamingo Air Service, Inc.

Watch Your Kidneys!

Help Them Cleanse the Blood of Harmful Body Waste
Your kidneys are constantly filtering waste matter from the blood stream. But kidneys sometimes lag in their work—and do not act as Nature intended—all to remove impurities that, if retained, may poison the system and upset the whole body machinery.
Symptoms may be aching backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—a feeling of nervous anxiety and loss of pep and strength. Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder are sometimes burning, scanty or too frequent urination.
There should be no doubt that prompts you to use this medicine. Dr. Doan's Pills. Doan's have been winning awards for more than forty years. They have a nation-wide reputation. Are recommended by grateful people the country over. Ask your neighbor!

Valentine's Day

If you get into a party mood around this time of year, one of the most festive occasions for a get-together can be on Valentine's Day. There are so many clever things you can do with food and decorations that it's just grand fun.

The occasion can be getting together with friends whom you like and hardly ever get a chance to have over. Or, if you want to honor an engaged or newly married couple the occasion is perfect. Be as frilly as you like for this is a romantic day. Pink and white are your colors, and hearts your motif. Arrange furniture in pairs as much as possible to carry out the theme of the occasion, and for refreshments, select your sweetest dishes.

Here's a good menu for a simple supper party:

- Ham a la King in Noodle Nest
  - Tomato Aspic
  - Heart Shaped Sandwiches
  - Devil's Food Cake Beverage
- You'll want to be certain to use pimiento to carry out the color scheme for this occasion, so make a memo to yourself to get a jar to use with this lovely-to-look-at main dish:

- Noodle Nest.
(Serves 8)
- 1 pound noodles
  - 3 eggs
  - 1 cup milk
  - 1/2 tablespoon Worcestershire sauce
  - 2 tablespoons catsup
  - 1 cup grated cheese

Cook noodles in boiling salted water until tender; drain. Beat eggs until light and combine with noodles and other ingredients. Pour into a well buttered or oiled ring mold and set in a pan of hot water. Bake in a moderate (350-degree) oven for 45 to 60 minutes until firm. Unmold and fill center with ham a la king:

- Ham a la King.
(Serves 8)
- 3 1/2 to 4 cups diced, cooked ham
  - 3 cups rich milk
  - 3 tablespoons finely chopped pepper
  - 3 tablespoons finely cut celery
  - 1 tablespoon finely cut parsley
  - Salt to taste
  - 1/2 cup butter or substitute
  - 1/4 cup flour
  - 1 1/2 cups mushrooms, fresh or canned
  - 1/2 cup pimiento, cut in strips
  - 2 egg yolks
  - Paprika

Fry celery and green pepper slightly with a little butter. Melt remaining butter, add flour and stir until well blended. Add milk and cook until thickened, stirring constantly. Add ham, celery, green pepper, mushrooms, pimiento and parsley. Just before serving add the

Solve Household Tasks With Simple Remedies

A paste of borax and lemon juice will remove stains from white marble table and bureau tops. Rinse the paste off thoroughly after you have applied it.

Dark green leafy vegetables such as kale, beet greens, turnip greens, chard, spinach and wild greens are rich sources of iron and vitamin A and should be included often in the diet.

LYNN CHAMBERS' MENU

- Creamed Oysters in Toasted Bread Cups
- Buttered Broccoli Baked Potato
- Combination Salad Bread Sticks
- Orange Fluff Beverage

Yolks of eggs blended with the mixture. Pour into center of noodle ring and sprinkle with tiny bits of pimiento and a generous dash of paprika.

- Tomato Aspic Salad.
(Serves 6 to 8)
- 1 1/2 tablespoons plain gelatin
  - 1/4 cup water
  - 2 cups tomato juice
  - 1 medium sized onion
  - 1 stalk celery
  - 3 sprigs parsley
  - 2 tablespoons vinegar
  - 4 whole cloves
  - 2 teaspoons sugar
  - 1/2 teaspoon salt
  - 2 cups mixed, chopped vegetables, fresh

Combine gelatin and water; let stand 5 minutes. Combine remaining ingredients except vegetables and simmer covered, for 15 minutes. Strain and pour over gelatin. Let chill and when partially congealed, add chopped, fresh vegetables. Chill until firm and serve on lettuce with mayonnaise. Heart-shaped molds may be used.

Make a pretty devil's food cake for dessert, and frost with fluffy frosting. Use tiny red hearts for the design.

- Devil's Food Cake.
- 2 cups sifted cake flour
  - 1 teaspoon soda
  - 3/4 teaspoon salt
  - 1 1/4 cups granulated or brown sugar
  - 1/2 cup shortening
  - Milk
  - 2 eggs, unbeaten
  - 3 squares chocolate, melted
  - 1 teaspoon vanilla

With butter, substitute or lard, use 3/4 cup milk. With vegetable or other shortening, use 1 cup milk. Sift flour once; measure into sifter with soda, salt and sugar. Have shortening at room temperature; mix or stir just to soften. Sift in dry ingredients and add 3/4 cup milk and mix until all flour is dampened. Then beat 2 minutes, add eggs, melted chocolate, remaining milk and vanilla and beat 1 minute longer. Turn into two 9-inch layer pans which have bottoms lined with paper and greased. Bake in a moderate (350-degree) oven for 30 minutes.

This cake may be mixed by hand at low speed on an electric mixer. Count only actual beating time. Or, count beating strokes. Allow about 150 full strokes per minute. Scrape bowl and beater or spoon often while mixing.

Another type of party for this day may be made even easier. Use the tomato aspic with chicken or crabmeat salad, assorted sandwiches, and a heart shaped mold of ice cream served with little cakes carried out in the heart motif.

Dry colored garments inside out, and hang them in the shade to prevent them from fading.

When storing linens, use a chest for them, and keep them away from radiators and pipes, or from dampness and heat.

Linens should not be starched before they are put away for storage. To prevent them from turning yellow, wrap in blue paper.

Save time washing dishes, if you are a right-handed person, by having the dishes go from right to left, say the household experts.

WHY LIVESTOCK NEED MINERALS

Minerals are essential; they build bone, teeth, and are necessary to keep the blood and other tissues in condition to function properly. For instance, a cow will rob her bones of minerals in order to make more milk and supply the bones of the calf with Phosphorus and Lime.

By Helen Topping Miller

Julia McFarlane's husband, Richard, disappeared in World War I, leaving her with two children. She and her father-in-law, John L. McFarlane, have tried in vain to find some trace of Richard. Twenty-five years later, Ric is 27 and serving in the army of World War II, while Jill, 26, professes an interest in Spang Gordon, a young lieutenant. Julia is worried about Ric, who has "washed out" in the air corps, and about Jill, who she is afraid might become an army wife, subject to the same grief she has endured. She confides these worries to Dave Patterson, a family friend who loves Julia but has never told her due to her loyalty to Richard. Spang and Jill go to a dance.

CHAPTER III

Julia's lips quivered; the color came into her face and then receded, leaving it aged a little and filled with patience.

"He was the children's father, Dave. Jill's father. He's more hers than ever now that it's war again. She wears his memory like a decoration. I can't destroy him for Jill. She admires me now. I want her to keep on admiring me. That's selfish, I suppose. But for people with forthright minds like Jill's, the world is pretty well filled with people who have to be despised. And of course there's Ric. He worries me. John I. says I've spoiled him, but right now I'm afraid to take anything away from Ric, anything that strengthens him, even a little."

"But they know that their father is dead. That's why he's heroic to them, because he's a splendid idea that never had any substance. If he had come back—well, I won't talk about that, Dooley. But you know that we all grew up together—I know the kind of life you had with Richard—"

"Yes, I know. There are things I can't forget, too, Dave. Unpleasant things. John I. has been at me for years to have Richard declared legally dead. But somehow the idea is horrible to me, like opening a grave."

"I can't talk to you about it, of course, Dooley. Not that—or anything else that's in my mind—so long as you are Richard McFarlane's wife," Dave said quietly, leaning forward, his long slender hands dangling between his knees. "But I can't agree with you. Your attitude doesn't make sense."

"I know. But most of the really important things in life don't make sense."

Dave walked the length of the room, his hands thrust into his pockets. "The dead are dead, Dooley. The decent thing is to bury them and keep your memories. Tell me one thing. Is there any love left in your heart for Richard McFarlane?"

She put her hands to her throat with a young, wistful gesture. "That's unfair of you, Dave. That's a question I haven't dared to ask myself, all these years. I did love him terribly once, and then, after time went on, when there was no word, no record, nothing at all, something bitter that I've fought, with all my soul and all my strength, began to grow in me. I battle it at night, and it's like fighting a shadow, but a shadow with a steady, strangling grip, something you can't touch or see or feel, but can't defeat."

"Dooley, you were a child and you fell in love with a boy. All this morbid stuff—a psychiatrist could explain it; I can't. If you were to meet Richard now, suddenly—impossible, of course, just a figure of speech—but if he were to come back into your life you might be sick with disillusion. You'd discover that you had grown, you'd know that young love of yours was merely one of those wild and pretty fires that flame up before the age of reason and then die."

The Girls They Leave Behind

"To ashes? That's what you were going to say, isn't it? And sometimes the ashes are very dark and very bitter. Actually, I'm not cherishing ashes though, Dave. I don't know just what it is I'm keeping, exactly—an ember, maybe, that refuses to burn out. Of course, if Richard were to come back now I'd probably realize that I've been harboring something unworthy. It would change everything. Don't despise me for being a fool, please. And don't desert me."

He put his hand on her head and roughed her hair gently. "I won't desert you, Dooley. But it doesn't make me happy, seeing you beat your head against a stone wall forever. I'd better go now. I rode over, and it's five miles back."

She said, "Good-by, Dave. John I. will be sorry to have missed you. He likes you a lot." And she pressed his hand.

Dave went out, his head thrust forward a little, as men walk who love the land best though they may not serve it. He closed the screen door without a sound. The horse nickered softly as Dave opened the gate, closed it behind him, and slid into the saddle.

He trotted slowly up the lane, rousing all the little pigs again, and the horse snorted at their scurrying escape. But Dave leaned forward in the saddle and his heart felt heavy and dark and sour in his breast.

There was so much that he remembered. Julia McFarlane, a dancing, copper-headed scrap of fire—Julia, seventeen years old and as full of laughter as the little streams that tumbled down the hills recklessly into the river. He had been in love with her then. But Richard McFarlane had had a red-wheeled buggy, and the glamour of sophistication had invested him. He had had some kind of unimportant job in Washington then, but Dave had known that he was a swash-buckler and a gambler and a liar, even then.

Dave Patterson tensed his hands on the reins, so that his horse raised his head and snorted.

Jill McFarlane, christened Julia, was dizzily, ecstatically happy. The station-wagon was full of rattles and lumbered along at a discreet thirty miles an hour. Jill nursed a brief hope that her dress wouldn't be ruined by grease or something before she had a chance to dance in it; but this small shadow upon the beauty of the night she put out of her mind, because she was with Spang, and his eyes approved her, and life was just now very wonderful.

She had seen him only twice.

She had seen him only twice.

She had met the reality of war with a sinking sense of panic. All the girls of her own age that she knew had been caught up in a sort of whirlwind of despair.

"We haven't a prayer!" they mourned. "They'll all go off to fight, and then when they come back we'll be old maids, and they'll marry girls years younger, kids that are in high school now. It was that way in the last war; my mother said so."

Some of them had already pulled out of the dreary eddy and gone off on mad tangents, marrying men overnight, marrying men they knew little about, men who were changed by the glamour of uniforms, anything to be saved from being sucked down into the dismal doom of spinsterhood. But something fastidious, something that held aloof, in Jill had made her scornful of these fevered and uncertain escapes.

She told herself that she was a mature woman. She was not a silly young thing to be swept away on a tide of adolescent emotion. Her mother had not been eighteen years old. An infant, practically! She thought of the eighteen-year-old girls that she knew and how frightfully young and naive they were, and was swiftly sorry for them and for that young and deluded creature who had been her mother.

Jill Talks About Herself

"I liked your mother," Spang said abruptly, as though he had caught the trend of her thoughts. "She's a grand person. And she looks young enough to be your sister."

"Dooley's forty-four," Jill was not quite sure that she enjoyed the idea of being Dooley's sister. "She and my father were married when they were children practically, just before the last war. Then he went to France before I was born. . . . She stopped abruptly, knowing that sooner or later Spang might be going overseas, too. She could not say, "He never came back." Not with Spang so near, not with the lovely present lying about them like an aura of moonlight.

"So you were born to the military tradition? The first time I saw you I thought you looked like a daughter of the regiment. Something about you—the way you stood so straight with your eyes shining when the colors went by, the way you stood on tiptoe when the band played, I knew that you belonged to the army."

Jill's heart scudded. It couldn't be—she had seen him only twice. It couldn't be, but oh, how wonderful if it were true that Spang liked her, too! Dooley had tried to put caution into her head.

"There's a lot of emotion seething in the air in wartime, Jill. Some of it is wonderful and fine, and some of it is a passing fever, a sort of recklessness that leads men to say things they don't really mean and women to believe them. So keep your head, no matter how your heart goes."

"I was raised in the military tradition," she told Spang. "My brother and I were utterly different, but even in those stogy years when everybody was pacifist and soldiers were tramps in khaki who weren't admitted to theaters or good hotels, Ric and I always marched to military music. It was because our father was a kind of special glory that detracted from his splendor. It's a wonderful thing for a child to have something like that to live up to."

"Was he decorated or something?" Spang asked, steering the slow vehicle around a halted bus. The bus was full of soldiers hanging heads and shoulders out of the windows, and some of them grinned and some of them saluted, laughingly, and Spang snapped a salute in return. "Some of our boys," he told Jill. "On their way. Destination unknown."

"No," Jill took up the conversation again, wishing they hadn't glimpsed those traveling troops, wishing Spang would not look back at them. "No, I don't know that he was decorated. My grandfather investigated when the war was over, when we didn't hear anything from my father—but he couldn't find anything at all. But they were all our heroes, weren't they?"

"Yes, they were all heroes." A dead soldier was always a hero, he was thinking to himself, a trifle bitterly.

"And so are you—and all those boys back there! War is a hero's business."

"War's a job to do," Spang demurred, "a dirty job that takes men to do it. So we go and do it. We don't like it and we growl and gripe, and the enlisted men cuss the officers and the officers cuss the politicians, but we wouldn't miss it, not any of us. But we'll be glad when it's ended and we can go home."

"Let's not talk about the war. Though—" Jill shivered a little, "there doesn't seem to be very much else to talk about."

"Let's talk about you," Spang suggested. "I know you're Ric McFarlane's sister, but that's all I do know about you, except that you're red-headed and like military bands and dancing."

"That's all there is, really. I went off to school, and I wasn't terribly bright, though I finally did grab an A.B. And then I came home crazy to drive an ambulance or join the WAC or something, anything with brass buttons attached. But my grandfather sat on that idea. You met him—old John I. He's a unique character. He adores my mother, though he and my father didn't appreciate each other exactly. I understand, one of those family things. He lectured me like a top sergeant and said that Mother had had a tough life, and now she needed me around to keep things merry and bright because, of course, Ric would go into the service, so there I am—just a home girl. If they keep on taking our men off the place I'll end up hoeing corn and feeding pigs and things."

Love Catches Up With Jill

"Well, the army eats a lot of bacon. And the navy—all those tramps get too fat to waddle off their ships."

"You turn here," Jill said, "and that building on the hill with all the lights is the club. Don't laugh at it; it's a funny little place but the people are grand, and we have fun in it. I'll bet I'm the only female dragging an officer. I'll bet I have to fight off mobs to get even one dance."

"Don't try to tell me a lieutenant rates that high! Think this bus will make the hill?"

"It always has. But the big car has practically no rubber, and I put mine up because I felt it was the patriotic thing to do, though Grandfather says the deterioration goes right on."

"Plenty of cars around here." "People walk for weeks to save enough gas for a party. That's a keen band, but probably half-way through the dance the leader will dash off and enlist in the coast guard."

They parked at the end of a line and walked across the mown grass, and Jill held up her frock and hoped the dew wouldn't ruin her slippers. Probably the dress was sagging again, but that wasn't important now. It seemed a little odd that it had ever been important. The important thing now was this brief, shining hour she held in her hands. Over its glittering rim into the future where ashes of empty days might lie, she would not look. She was going to be happy! She was in love, and no doubt it showed on her, though she tried to keep her gay, nonchalant.

Woman's World

Add Gay, Fresh Dashes of Color By Fashioning Own Lampshades

By Ertta Haley

If you've had your heat on just long enough to notice the permanent film of soot that has gathered over many of your furnishings, then it's time to freshen up the house. Some special offenders frequently are the lampshades.

No homemaker, whether she is fastidious or just plain neat, ever will permit a soiled lampshade in her home. Naturally there are some which simply will not respond to cleaning after a certain stage has been reached, or they have become so faded and weary that nothing short of drastic means will solve the problem.

Making lampshades at home is really a simple problem. You have the frame, and the rest is just a matter of choosing the right fabric for your room, and fitting it. Now, don't let this last be your stumbling block, because it's really easier than fitting a dress. You can pick up the lampshade and just go at it easily, using your pins generously to tack the new lampshade on, and then stitching it on.

And, of course, you always can use paper or fabric and paste this on over the lampshade you now have or on the frame, and it's as easy as doing up paper dolls. The main requisite is keeping the work mathematically precise in measurements, and then using your neatest technique in pasting or sewing after fitting.

Wrapping or Wallpaper May Be Used for Covering

We have all at one time or another run into wrapping papers or wallpapers which we thought would be the perfect choice for a lampshade, but somehow we never were quite able to figure out how to put them to use. Here's a foolproof plan for making these shades fit.

To make a pattern for the shade, lay some large pieces of brown wrapping paper or newspaper on the floor. Paint the edges of the lamp frame white, and while the paint is still wet, roll the frame across the newspaper.

Make certain that you turn the shade evenly, particularly if the shade is not round. The wet paint leaves a mark on the paper that can be used as a guide for cutting either paper or material lampshade.

Cut the pattern as soon as the paint dries, leaving enough at the edge so that the shade cover can be joined properly. The paper shade then may be attached to the frame and held with paper clips while you stitch the top and the bottom by overcasting or by sewing on a braiding.

Never throw away the top or bottom rings from old shades as these can be used to make fabric shades.

If you want to make a pleated paper shade, this will have to be cut in a circular shape before pleating. Fitting properly in this case is of the utmost importance. Here again, use the pattern trick described above and make sure the pattern fits before you actually cut the shade itself.

Fabric-Lined Shades Require Different Technique

Fabric shades should be stretched tight on the frame you use for them, but before you actually place the fabric on the frame, you must wind seam binding or a bias of the same fabric as the shade around the wires of the frame.

Another decision you must make before actually covering with fabric and cutting the shade is whether or not you want the edges finished with a double fold, decorative ribbon, fringe or braid. This will make a difference in the size of the shade itself, and you may not have fabric to waste in trimming off later.

Always assemble everything before you start to work, as the job requires concentration, and you cannot stop and look for something when you are trying to do a good job of fitting.

Fabric shades may be lined or unlined depending upon the kind of material used. If you stretch the fabric to the shade, it must always be lined. Select the lining fabric carefully as this is right next to the light, which will give any fabric a rosy glow.

As you stretch the fabric over the shade pin it carefully to both top and bottom. Make certain the fabric really stretches and use a bias cut. Pin and re-pin the shade several times until you are certain that the fabric lays smooth as silk on the frame. Then overcast the fabric to the frame as you would with a paper shade and trim as desired.

For lampshades with petticoat ruffles, use any of the dainty organdies or various printed fabrics. These in many cases may be unlined, but it's a good idea to test the fabric against the light so you will know what to expect when you have the shade made.

The ruffle which you are using must be cut three times as large as the circumference around the shade. Pleat or gather this and join the ends.

Heavier fabrics such as drapery and slipcover material also may be used for lampshades, but these are best made like the paper shades, more tailored and trim. Do not attempt to put ruffles on them.

Trim Your Fabrics

If you're doing some trimming about the household, you'd be surprised how easy it is when you have the know-how. In making pompons for hats or dresses or other purposes, use embroidery twist (thread), novelty knitting thread or yarn. Cut two circles on cardboard with a hole in the center of each. Thread needle and pass around the holes and around cardboard until a thick layer is formed all the way around. The thicker the layer, the fluffier the pompon. Cut the thread between the two cardboards, remove them, holding threads firmly in the center and tie a thread to secure them at that point. Clip edges of thread.

To make fringe, buy it by the yard or ravel threads from the material you are using. Cover the top of the fringe with tiny braiding or overcast it. Then comb to make it straight.

Fashion Flashes

You may have your gloves long or short depending upon your preference. Gauntlets with wide cuffs are especially smart for suits.

Gay little shorties as well as all lengths of the longer gloves are used for formal wear. Some of them may even be the fingerless mitts which haven't been seen since ladies used fans exclusively.

Sandals of transparent plastic look especially lovely with a gracefully draped lame gown.

If you're very feminine, wreath yourself in white silk marquisette with a modified hoopskirt and even a bustle. If you're dramatic and very smart, choose a simpler gown in a stunning color that gives you long, flowing lines.

—And McKesson Makes It

WHEN billions, not mere millions, begin to pour into sport, you have a sure sign that the danger spot is ahead. Record-breaking crowds in college football have been a big factor in college professionalism, which has reached an all-time high. The tidal wave of gold, coming with a record boom also has broken all betting marks in both college and professional sport.

The wonder is that more scandals haven't crashed the headlines. This will happen unless sport in general gets stronger guard-lanship than it has drawn to date—with harsher penalties attached.

Just as pro football was coming to the finish of one of its greatest years, the Giant scandal developed and members of the Cleveland Browns, facing a championship play-off, got involved in a drunken brawl with police. In both New York and Cleveland, police were kept busy with pro football players for various reasons.

Merel Hapes was barred from the Giant-Bear game and Capt. Jim Daniels of the Browns was barred from the Brown-Yankee contest in Cleveland.

Rumors are not always true—but they at least demand closer watching than many of them have drawn. In the reign of Judge Kenesaw Mountain Landis, I happen to know that the old Judge was not only respected but also actually feared by anyone even lightly involved. I don't think anyone in sport today is afraid in any way of anyone directing sport.

Too Much Temptation

The Judge suspended Buck Weaver for life because Weaver, who hadn't taken a dime, had failed to report the conspiracy. I've had more than a few ball players ask me not to print the fact that I met them at some race track. They were afraid the judge might hear about it.

Any ball player caught playing around with a bookmaker or any type of gambler would have been up before the judge for rugged punishment in a rush.

Sport, financially, has gotten too big. Too much money is involved. Discipline has gone haywire. There has been too much temptation for the weak to resist, knowing the golden doubloons that are rolling around.

Too many, high in sport, have been asleep too long. The receipts have been too good. The dream has been too pleasant. They have refused to heed "the rumble of a distant drum."

The great majority of athletes are honest. Yet too many are undisciplined and too many out of condition. We have no sympathy for grown athletes who say they have been tricked or fooled by gamblers.

Any athlete, who after the first suggestion of a crooked proposition doesn't go directly to his coach, has no place in any game. It may come to the point that any athlete under any form of suspicion may have to be watched. Certainly any jockey, football, baseball or basketball player, to mention only a few entries, seen in company with any gambler needs watching.

Only a Few Crooks

As some philosopher once said "Rubes can think up more crooked things than crooks can invent."

In my opinion the great bulk of sport is clean. But among so many involved, there are sure to be a few who are either crooked or weak. And it takes only a few of these to upset the works. This is why the game today, college and pro, needs eternal vigilance and harsher penalties.

The average person you meet will tell you that college football players should be paid, considering the big money college athletic associations take in. This may be O. K. but don't call them amateurs. For they are not. They are only fake professionals.

I recall some years ago running across Dizzy Dean when Ole Diz looked worried.

"I've just been called before Judge Landis," he said.

"I haven't been doin' anything. But I'm still skeered."

That's the type of rulership sport needs today—an iron hand plus every known way of finding out what is going on. To take anything for granted is the surest way of wading into heavy trouble.

The Babe Still Tops

When Babe Ruth entered a New York hospital some time ago, an entire nation was shocked to hear that he was seriously ill. News of his recovery has lifted the pall.

In his day and time, the Babe has signed more autographs than any other member of the human race. No one can say how many thousands of baseballs he has signed. Babe lost count years ago. He was so popular that he finally had to seek some form of self-protection.

The business produced by the Michigan deer runs into several million dollars annually, and it is your business to be interested. If you eliminate the game and fish in most of this district, what have you left? We of the Department of Conservation have been doing and will continue to do the very best we can to manage the game for your best interests and for the interest of the game itself.

Our neighboring states, Wisconsin and Pennsylvania as well, have gone through the same situation that we now face, and they were forced to allow the shooting of more deer (does and fawns) at times, in order to make a healthier deer herd and a healthier home for the deer, as well as for the other species of game that live in the deer dominated range.

If this is not entirely clear to any of the readers of this article and they desire more information on the subject, I will be glad to discuss the situation with them in my office at the Conservation Department's headquarters in Mio.
