

District Basketball Tournament March 6-8

Tawas Elks Win Fourth Straight Game

Tawas City Teams Play at AuGres Tonight

The Elks won their fourth consecutive game Tuesday night when they walloped the leaders of the Huron Shore league, Harrisville, 51 to 28, while winning from the Oscoda Owls last Friday night 40 to 28. In the last four games the red-hot Elks have really displayed some extra good playing beating three tough teams of the Huron Shore league and Sterling from another conference. Their passwork and teamwork was something to see with their short snappy passes and the ability of the guards to whip the ball in to the forwards or center, to catch their opponents flatfooted. Westcott and Gingerich led the team in scoring with 38 and 34 points respectively. Next in line was Galliker who accounted for 15 points and Jim Lansky who garnered 14. John Gracik, who has been playing a bang-up job at guard, hit the hoop for eight. Gingerich racked up 10 points in the Sterling fracas and 19 in the Harrisville contest. Westcott sunk 16 points in the Oscoda game and 14 points in the East Tawas game.

The Elks are one game out of a tie with Harrisville in the leadership of the Huron Shore League, if Harrisville loses their last game of the year.

Coach Defibaugh can feel proud of the record of his boys in his first year of coaching here. The boys were a little inexperienced at the first of the year but have proved to be a tough outfit to beat. Let's all get out next week and give them your much needed support in the District Tournament which will be held at the local gym.

Oscoda Game
The Elks galloped off to a head start Friday night when they downed the Oscoda Owls 40 to 28. Westcott, rangy guard for the Elks, started things popping in the first quarter when he dropped four successive one handers from behind the red line and added a foul shot, while his teammates garnered five more points to make it 14 to 5. In the second quarter the Elks were out scored by Oscoda, when they collected 13 points with the fancy shooting of Jack Matthews. In the third quarter, the fire works died out with Oscoda making six points and the Elks four to make it 28 to 24. In the last quarter the Elks broke loose again, hitting the hoops for 12 points while their defense stopped the Oscoda five with four points. Westcott was the big gun for Tawas City with 16, while Matthews of Oscoda followed close behind with 13.

Harrisville Game
Tuesday night the Elks gained revenge for one of their league losses when they humbled Harrisville 51 to 25 in a fast and furious game which saw the Elks take a commanding lead in the first quarter with 15 points, under the leadership of Don Gingerich who garnered 14 points in that stanza. In the second quarter the Elks collected ten more points while Harrisville was adding 6. In the third stanza Coach Defibaugh replaced his play-off good ball adding five more points to their score to make it 34 to 20. With the regulars back in the game in the last quarter Tawas City sunk 17 points, only two points short of their first quarter mark.

The Elks reserves took both of their games from the northern, teams, Oscoda and Harrisville, winning Friday night 20 to 15 from Oscoda and 27 to 21 from Harrisville, Tuesday evening. Herb Look led the Tawas City team with 11 points in the Oscoda clash, while Myles garnered nine points in the Harrisville game.

The Girl's squad won from the Oscoda girls Friday night under the sharpshooting of Erickson, who hit the hoops for 13 points. The Tawas City girls jumped off to a quick start in the first quarter when they made seven points. They added eight more in the second stanza. They were stopped short in the third quarter, when they collected only two points but came to life again in the last stanza when they racked up eight more points.

Coupe Hits Sedan; Crashes Into Gauthier Building

Early Monday morning a Chevrolet coupe driven by Harry F. Cook of Grand Blanc collided with a 1947 Chevrolet sedan driven by William McKay and crashed into the window of the Gauthier Building on Lake street and then grazed the front of the Keiser Building.

Both cars were going south. McKay pulled to the curb to make a left hand turn and stopped to allow the Cook car to pass. At the same time Cook, apparently uncertain of what the lead car was going to do, put his foot on the brakes. His car skidded on the ice, hit the front of the McKay car, slipped sideways across the street and crashed into the window of the Gauthier Building. The two cars and the Gauthier building were badly damaged.

ILLUSION DESTROYED

From time to time we can't help wondering what affect television will have on radio performers. We are especially intrigued by the question whenever we hear "My Kisses Are Yours for the Asking" and "Yours Is My Heart Through All Eternity," from one of those songsters who is fat and fiftyish and whose personality is that of a hard-boiled commission merchant.

Elmer Twitchell says that whenever he hears those tobacco auctioneers now, he thinks it is a big league baseball magnate disposing of a famous player who has given his life to the club.

THE WASHINGTON SCENE

Reorganization Puts Emphasis On Congressional Committees

By WALTER A. SHEAD WNU Washington Correspondent.

(Editor's Note: This is the first in a series of articles covering the new congressional committees and their chairmen.)

WASHINGTON.—With the congressional reorganization act now in effect and the Republican party assuming leadership in both branches after 15 years of Democratic ascendancy, special emphasis is placed on committees of the 80th congress.

Increasing importance is given the various committees because of the consolidation provided for in the reorganization act. Under terms of the act, adopted by the 79th congress, the 48 standing committees of the house are merged into 17 and the 33 senate standing committees are slashed to 14, excluding District of Columbia committees in both branches.

This series of articles will trace the new committee setup, delving into functions of the various committees and backgrounds of new Republican committee chairmen.

New senate committees and their chairmen include:

Armed Services

CHAN GURNEY (S. D.) becomes chairman of the senate armed services committee after serving as ranking Republican on the military affairs committee. The new committee combines the old senate committees on military and naval affairs.

Gurney consistently votes with the majority of Republican senators, but he usually has supported the administration in military matters. Last spring, for example, he was floor manager in the senate for the draft extension bill. He also has advocated unification of the army and navy, and sponsored two universal training bills in the 79th congress.

Gurney is 50 years old and lives in Yankton, S. D., where he was born. After leaving the army after World War I, he went into the seed and nursery stock business with his father in Yankton, and was for a time connected with a local radio station. In 1933 he became president of the Chan Gurney Oil Co. of Sioux Falls, S. D.

He made an unsuccessful race for the senate in 1936, but was elected in 1938 and reelected in 1944.

Appropriations

STYLES BRIDGES (N. H.), new chairman of the senate committee on appropriations, is thus also senior member of the joint committee on the budget established by the reorganization act. He says that his efforts will be directed toward keeping the federal budget for the fiscal year 1948 within a 30 or 31 billion dollar limit.

Before becoming chairman of the appropriations committee, Bridges had promised to trim all unnecessary public construction programs, eliminate non-recurring items and reduce the number of federal employees. The reduction in government personnel, Bridges said, would be made on the basis of "scientific studies of needs, instead of sledge hammer tactics."

Bridges, who is 48, is a banker and business man, former secretary of the New Hampshire Farm Bureau and former secretary-treasurer of the Farm Bureau Mutual Automobile Insurance Co., of which he is now a director. He is also vice president of New Hampshire Savings Bank and treasurer of Putnam Agricultural foundation.

Before his election to the senate in 1936, Bridges was governor of New Hampshire for two years.

Rules and Administration

C. WAYLAND BROOKS (Ill.) heads the committee on rules and administration. Under the congressional reorganization act, this committee absorbs functions of the former committees on rules, enrolled bills, library, printing, privileges and elections, and audit and control. Brooks has been a member of the last of these since 1940. He was also a member of the LaFollette-Monroey committee whose report formed the basis of the reorganization act.

Brooks was elected to the senate in 1940 to fill the unexpired term of the late Hamilton Lewis. He was reelected in 1942 for a full term.

Brooks voted with the majority of his party on 98 per cent of the controversial vote in the 79th congress. In party regularity he was surpassed only by Sen. Kenneth Wherry (Neb.), the Republican whip.

Brooks voted for ratification of the United Nations charter and later for implementing the charter, after voting for three amendments which would have restricted powers of the United States representatives and use of troops abroad.

Born in rural Illinois in 1897, Brooks practiced law in Chicago and was a member of the Northwestern university law faculty. He served for seven years as assistant state's attorney. Brooks is a veteran of World War I, in which he served with the marines and won the Distinguished Service cross and the Croix de Guerre.

Before his election to the senate, Brooks had been an unsuccessful candidate for congressman-at-large from Illinois in 1934 and had been the Republican candidate for governor in 1936.

The committee on rules and administration is occupied chiefly with housekeeping functions for the senate itself, the Library of Congress and Smithsonian institution. However, the committee now also has jurisdiction over contested elections to the senate, qualifications of members and charges of corrupt practices. Bills dealing with presidential succession and federal elections (such as the anti-poll-tax bills) will be referred to this committee.

Langer is 60 years old and has spent more than half his life in North Dakota politics, where he has been prominently identified with the Non-Partisan league. In the '20s, he supported both Robert M. LaFollette Sr. and Hiram Johnson for president. Elected governor of North Dakota in 1932, he was removed by order of the State Supreme court in 1934 in connection with charges that he forced government employees to contribute to his political newspaper. He again was elected governor in 1936.

Langer voted for the government pay raise bill in 1945, opposing attempts to limit it to 11 per cent. But in other respects, he has been unpredictable.

The records show that he voted with a majority of other senate Republicans only 59 per cent of the time on controversial roll calls. His defections from his party have come on a wide range of issues. One of the two senators who voted against ratification of the United Nations charter, Langer also bitterly opposed the British loan and introduced a series of measures authorizing expenditure of 3.75 billion dollars, the amount involved in the loan, for such unrelated purposes as a nation-wide roadbuilding program and free physical examinations for the whole population.

When he was elected to the senate in 1940, his right to a seat was challenged on grounds of "moral turpitude." Although the privileges and election committee recommended that he be unseated, the recommendation was reversed by the senate, 52 to 30.

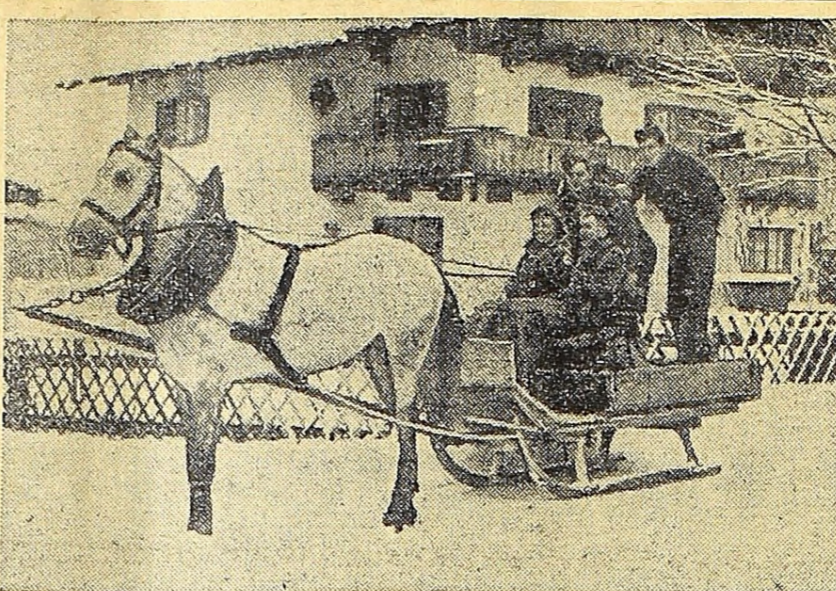

Rules and Administration

C. WAYLAND BROOKS (Ill.) heads the committee on rules and administration. Under the congressional reorganization act, this committee absorbs functions of the former committees on rules, enrolled bills, library, printing, privileges and elections, and audit and control. Brooks has been a member of the last of these since 1940. He was also a member of the LaFollette-Monroey committee whose report formed the basis of the reorganization act.

ANNUAL APPEAL

Red Cross Campaign Seeks Funds To Continue Wide Scope of Work

WNU Features.

With activities keyed to the times, the American Red Cross March 1 will begin a month's appeal for funds with which to operate in 1947-48. A fund goal of 60 million dollars has been set after careful calculations of Red Cross needs. By proclamation of President Truman, March will be observed as Red Cross month.

The 3,000 men and women still serving overseas with the Red Cross are helping with morale and welfare problems of members of the American armed forces in occupation zones. Four thousand more are serving the army and navy in this country, providing recreation, counsel and assistance in service hospitals and other installations.

In addition, thousands of men and women are giving Red Cross service as chapter executives, home service directors and Red Cross staff workers in veterans' hospitals and regional offices. Another million and a half American women give volunteer services as canteen workers, motor corps drivers, nurse's aides, hospital and recreation workers, staff assistants, home service workers and production workers.

Assist Veterans. All of the March goal and more will be used in the coming year for maintenance of present Red Cross services to the army and navy veterans, and the community. Basil O'Connor, national chairman, says.

Through the war, through the emergency period and now in the first full peacetime year, the Red Cross has served the American people on an expanded scale, he continues.

Now, although activities are being realigned according to needs of the armed forces and of veterans' and civilian services, the Red Cross is maintaining a full-scale program for 1947-48.

Home service, the program of family service through which the Red Cross carries out in local communities a fivefold charter commission, will be needed on a greater scale than ever before, trends indicate. After World War I, this work continued to increase for almost three years. Then 4,749,000 were served. World War II armed forces totaled some 13 million men and women, and demands on Red Cross chapters are expected to be correspondingly higher.

Services in army and navy hospitals, where the Red Cross lends a hand to troubled patients, will be continued, O'Connor says, as will services to veterans' hospitals through field directors, volunteer special services and community service to camps and hospitals.

Aid Disaster Victims. During 1946, the Red Cross assisted in 205 disasters in the United States and insular possessions, and is prepared to do an equal or larger job in 1947, O'Connor says.

Red Cross activities in the health and education fields also will be heavily emphasized during the year, the chairman adds. Home nursing, nutrition, first aid, water safety and accident prevention classes conducted by Red Cross chapters throughout the nation will take their place in the return of each community to progressive peacetime living.

Through the Junior Red Cross, America's elementary and high school boys and girls will give service to the community.

"During the war and through the emergency period, the American people expressed and re-expressed their faith in the Red Cross through volunteer assistance and generous annual contributions," says Chairman O'Connor. "I am confident that Americans everywhere again will show their confidence in the Red Cross during the March campaign."

EXCHANGE CERTIFICATES. All pilot certificates issued prior to July 1, 1945, will expire on July 1, T. P. Wright, administrator of civil aeronautics, announces. The certificates may be exchanged for new type certificates at any time prior to their expiration date. No red tape or written application is involved in the exchange. The pilot merely presents his old type certificate to a CAA inspector, who issues a new type certificate. The exchange can be made at a CAA office or during a CAA inspection trip.

Burke stopped his bus and waved on the bewildered pedestrian, caught in traffic when the light changed. The man took the license number of the bus, then sent the money to the driver.

Powerful Tube Jams Foe Radar

Details of 'Electron Gun' Now Revealed; Aids in Air Raids.

BERKELEY, CALIF. — A powerful ultra-short wave generator which was used to jam German radar systems during Allied air raids was shown publicly here for the first time recently. This new type of radio transmitter is called the resonatron. It may increase the efficiency of television and other forms of radio, including instruments used to guide pilotless planes and rockets.

This high frequency tube, which sprayed explosive bursts of electrons and blanketed radar apparatus for 300 miles, was credited with much of the success of mass daylight air raids. Possibly it helped save the lives of hundreds of Allied airmen.

University of California disclosed the details of the resonatron, which was developed from an outmoded atom-smasher by two young electrical engineers, Dr. D. H. Sloan and Dr. L. C. Marshall.

Start Tests in 1938. Sloan and Marshall started experiments on the resonatron in 1938. By the spring of 1945, they had evolved a "gun" with which the Allies were hurling more raw radio power into the air than any other amplifier ever constructed.

The resonatron was capable of smothering all radio and radar frequencies between 350 and 600 megacycles in a cone 30,000 feet high, 300 miles long and 15 miles wide.

With it the Allies kept the enemy from learning in advance the location and direction of the big air fleets that devastated Germany in the closing months of the war.

This initial advantage over the Nazi defenses multiplied the enemy's troubles and contributed indirectly to speeding the end of the war.

The resonatron fires a concentrated burst of electrons, within a tall vacuum tube, which explode with tremendous power. The power is broadcast to disrupt radio waves of any desired frequency.

Source of Power. Sloan and Marshall said the versatile tube is the most powerful and efficient source of stable power amplification known. It is the only power amplifier which has achieved the same efficiency as a high-frequency radio broadcasting station, about 80 per cent.

Because of this, the scientists said, it has peacetime possibilities in broadcasting television and F.M. radio, for long-range communications and transmission of high-frequency power — or its original purpose of an atom smasher.

Sloan, who designed the world's first million-volt X-ray tube in 1933, also worked on the army's guided-missiles program at Johns Hopkins university during the war.

Marshall served as the first director of the British branch of the radiation laboratory and later was chief of the operational research section in the Pacific ocean area.

New Hormone Gives Relief

In Stomach Ulcer Cases

CHICAGO. — Development of a new hormone which scientists hope will heal stomach ulcers and also prevent their recurrence has been announced by Dr. Andrew C. Ivy, Chicago physiologist.

The hormone, known as enterogastron, is derived from the intestinal tracts of hogs and was developed at Northwestern university, where Dr. Ivy formerly headed the department of physiology.

Dr. Ivy said that the hormone has been used in the treatment of peptic ulcers "in scores of cases and the results are sufficiently encouraging to show this method of attack is worthy of further study."

Dr. Ivy, who now is executive vice president of the professional schools of the University of Illinois in Chicago, has spent several years studying the ulcer problem.

"Approximately 1,500,000 persons in the United States develop peptic ulcers during any 10-year period," he writes in the current issue of the Journal of the American Medical association.

"The problem of the peptic ulcer challenge medical science today because among the chronic diseases it ranks 10th as a cause of death and 12th as a cause of days lost from work."

"The death rate per 100,000 (persons, presumably) in the United States from peptic ulcer has increased from 2.7 in 1900 to 6.8 in 1943.

"The most discouraging characteristic of peptic ulcer is its likelihood to recur."

Mexico Strikes Out 50 Labor

Leaders in Big Oil Monopoly

MEXICO CITY. — Pemex, the government oil monopoly, struck from the payroll about 50 labor leaders held responsible for a one day work stoppage organized after labor delegates walked out of long pending wage negotiations. This was done by Pres. Miguel Aleman's order, as was the use of troops, which operated refineries, delivered oil and continued to guard all installations.

Gems of Thought

NO ONE is born to greatness. We grow to that stature. A big man is a little man who has made use of his opportunities.

The strength of our free enterprise system lies in the productive efficiency of American industry, plus the benefits it offers workers.

But now my task is smoothly done, I can fly, or I can run—Milton.

Wise is the man who values his own time too highly to waste the time of others.

Useless Committees Formed To Provide Chairmanships

SOME weeks ago your Home Town Reporter wrote that this new congress already had been dubbed the "get ready" congress from the fact that its operations were conducted with an eye to the 1948 presidential election campaign, already under way.

If any proof were needed for this statement, the senate of the 80th congress furnished it in generous proportion. By high pressure tactics, in violation of the spirit of the congressional reorganization act and of the procedural rules of the senate itself, it pushed through resolutions calling for creation of new special senate committees on war investigation and small business. Whether these committees are needed or essential to the public welfare is beside the point, and whether or not the regular standing committee of the senate could handle the subject matter to be investigated also is beside the point.

The violations were so flagrant, the connivance so obvious, that stalwart Charles William Tobey of New Hampshire, former governor, congressman, farmer, banker and manufacturer, who is not afraid to say clearly what he sees and thinks, said:

"The country has just witnessed an example of the difference between votes in the interests of clean government and votes to carry out the program of a special group."

'More Lollipops Later'

Then the gentleman from the Granite state proceeded to flay his colleagues for "inefficiency," for "incompetency," for "slap-dash work," for "breaking down the efficiency statute," for "running the train off the rails," for "deliberate by-passing of standing committees," for "creation of chairmanships for the faithful and the indication to those who are not first in line that there may be more lollipops for others later."

"I am a Republican," thundered the New Hampshire solon, "and I desire that my party shall be the majority voice in guiding the ship of state, but I do not wish its guidance to be in disregard of our form of government and of the principles vital to the preservation of our form of government. What of party regularity? What benefit accrues to my party now in control of the senate from the creation of these special committees? The party will control all investigations whether they are assigned to special committees or conducted by standing committees . . . so the party gains nothing from the creation of continuance of special committees. The only gain which accrues to anyone is to some individual who acquires a chairmanship or to some other individual who gets a place on a special committee, conflicting thereby with some other senator of his own party who has a place on a standing committee empowered by statute to investigate the selfsame subject."

As a matter of fact, both resolutions were rushed to the floor of the senate without assignment to appropriate committees, without hearings, without consideration of the full committee, without a vote of the committee or the filing of a report to the senate, after bargaining with other committees concerning jurisdiction and after refusing an opponent the usual courtesy of a "pair" vote. The GOP steering committee wanted the two special committees, (1) to provide chairmanships for Senators Brewster of Maine and Wherry of Nebraska and (2) as springboards to provide potential issues for the 1948 presidential campaign.

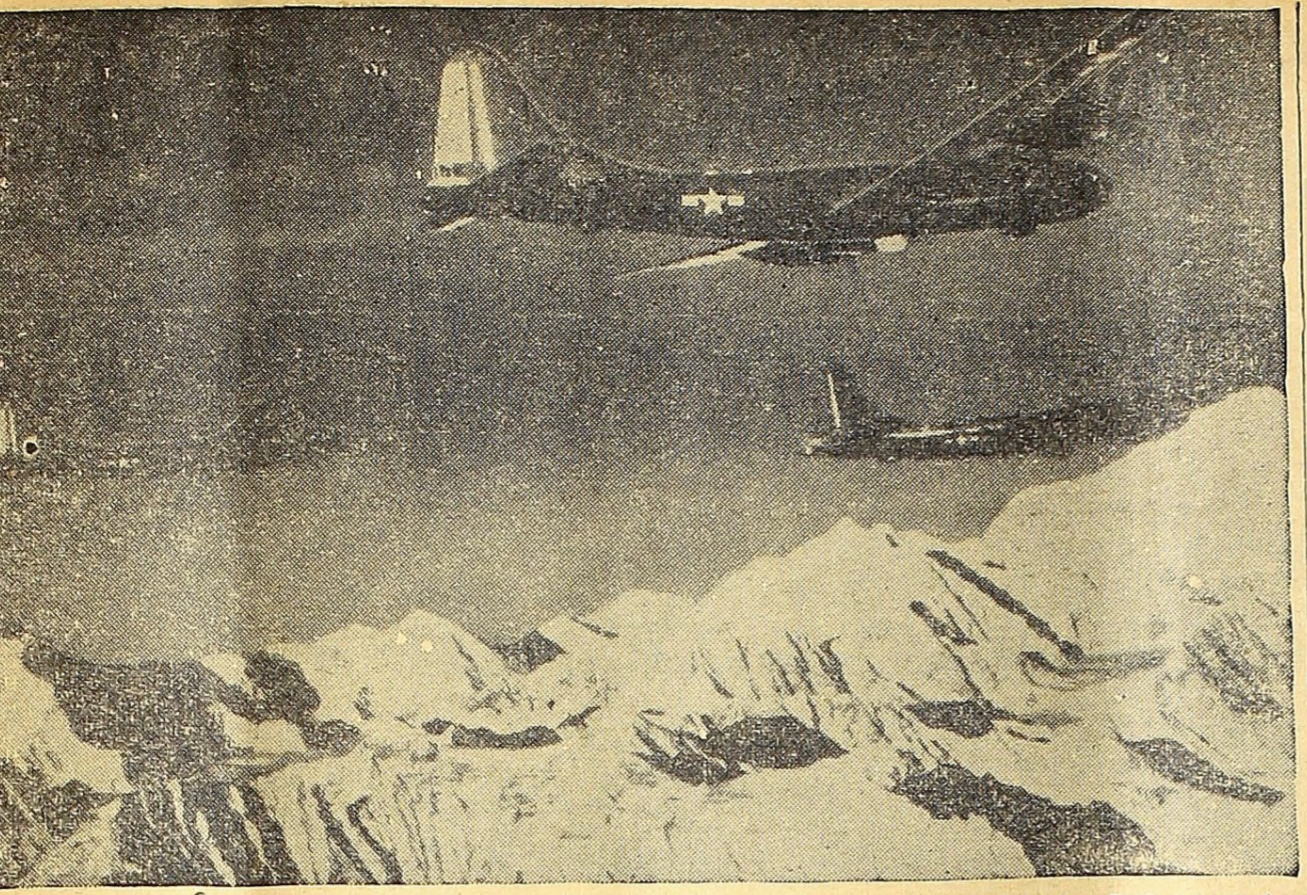

Reports Neglected

There is no question but that small business needs protection, but a senate and house committee on small business has been active approximately five years and their reports are available, but no legislation has been placed before either house or senate as a result of their investigations.

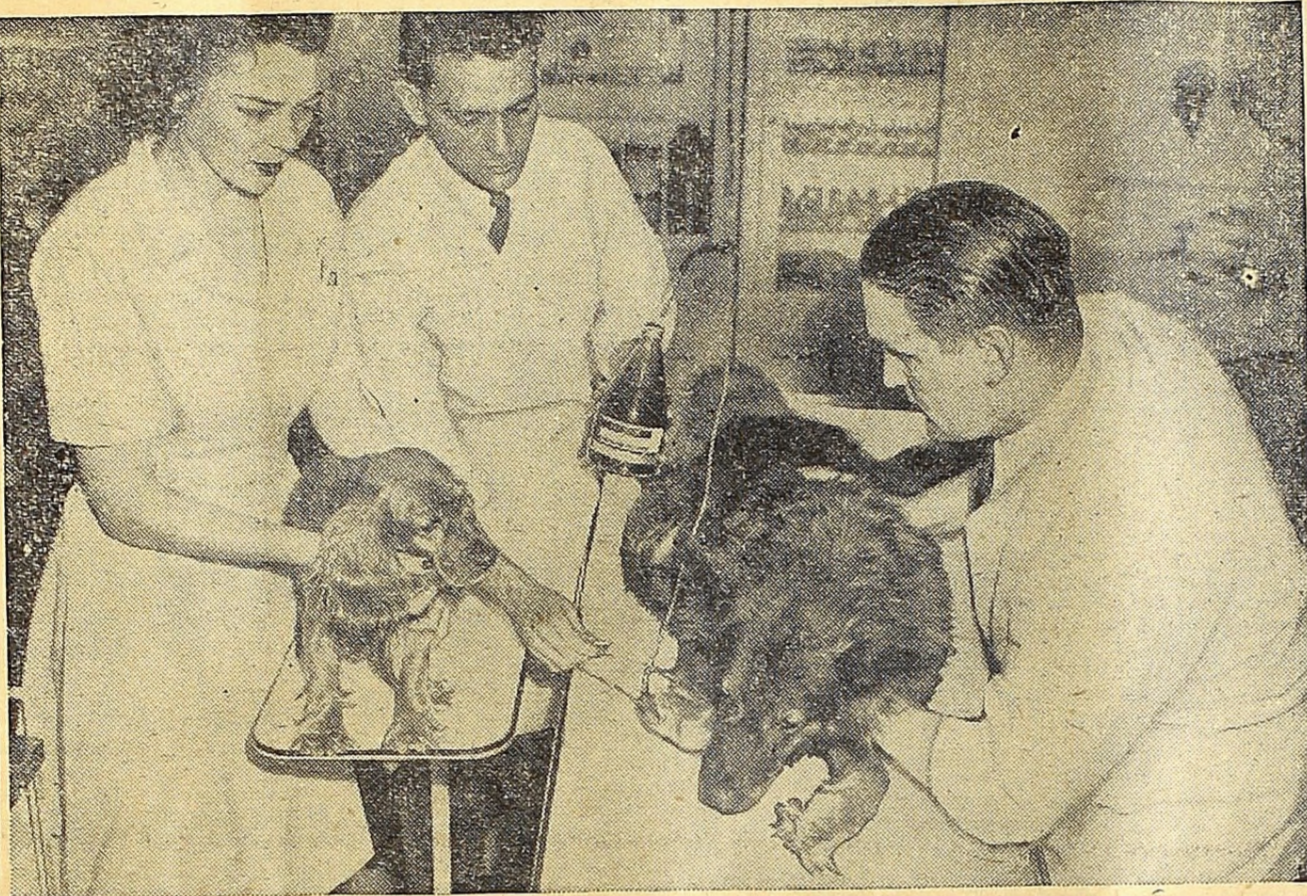

The house and senate have precedent and material for aiding small business without any future investigation if they would but enact suggested legislation to carry out the report and recommendations of the Committee for Economic Development, which is itself composed of small businessmen.

Senator Tobey, who is chairman of the senate banking and currency committee, already has named a sub-committee of his standing committee to investigate small business problems, three of whom are already members of the senate special small business committee. So there will be duplication of effort and jurisdiction and "by that action we make a mockery of the reorganization act," Senator Tobey said.

There may be a rash of special committees despite the pious promises to stand by the congressional reorganization law.

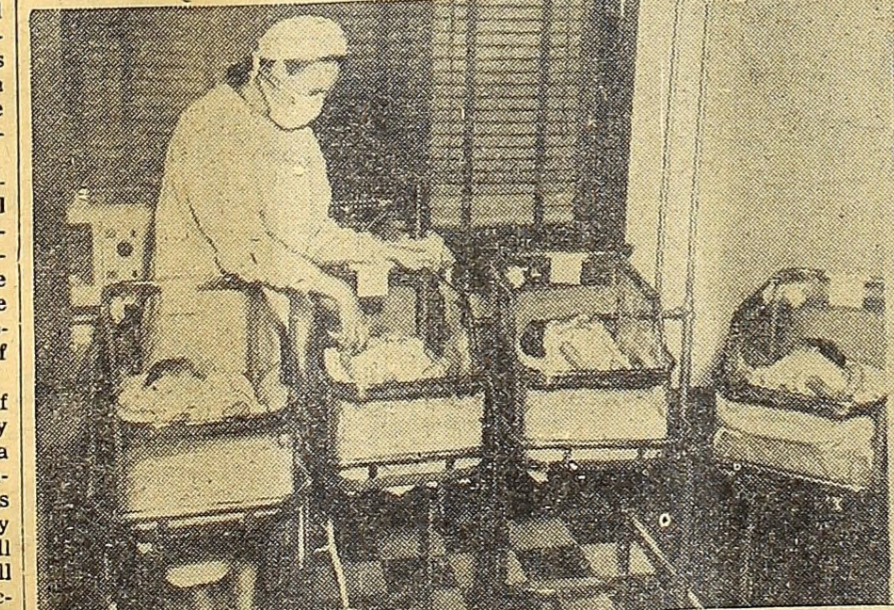

FRIGID TRAINING FLIGHT . . . As part of the army air forces training program, Boeing B-29 Superfortresses of the 23th bombardment group are pictured in a practice formation flight over the rugged Alaskan terrain background. Training flights have taken off with the mercury from 25 to 50 below zero as men and machines are put to the toughest tests ever encountered.

DOG RECEIVES TRANSFUSION . . . Chicago's dog blood bank chalked up another donor when Tess, a large dog with plenty of life-giving fluid to spare, willingly gave up a quart of blood to save the life of a small unnamed cocker spaniel. Canine blood is not typed, enabling any dog to donate blood to another.

SHE KNOWS HER POTATOES . . . Miss Yvette Cagne, 18, Van Buren, Me., has challenged Idaho and other potato producing states to exhibit better Irish spuds than she is shown with at Pittsburgh. Perched atop a pile of potatoes at the Pittsburgh auction, Maine's potato blossom queen acted as auctioneer. Proceeds were given to the Red Cross. Maine potato producers claim that they not only have the nation's best potatoes but the prettiest potato queen.

HOW TO FEED FOUR AT A TIME . . . Mrs. Charles Henn, mother of Baltimore's lustrous young quadruplets, shown above taking her first lesson at the hospital nursery. Mrs. Henn said "it's fun," but she found she needed help to keep all four going successfully without any wailing. The babies are growing splendidly, hospital officials said, and are just about ready to go home.

SALLY COMES HOME . . . Although Sally, 3-year-old doe, was given her freedom by Mrs. William H. Russell when she was two months old, the grateful deer returns regularly and makes herself at home. Sally was found on the army's reservation at Pica-tinny arsenal, Lake Denmark, N. J., when she was two days old. Mrs. Russell, former instructor for the seeing eye and director of the arsenal's K-9 patrol, raised the deer. Since then Sally has mothered two fawns and expects another. She never brings her fawns into the house, leaving them in the yard.

FRANCE'S YOUNGEST HERO . . . Classmates gather around Jean Thomas, 16, France's youngest underground resistance worker, after he had been awarded the War Cross. In 1943, Jean, only 13, escaped from the Germans after being tortured.

WHEN George Burns and Gracie Allen shared a nine-week bill at New York's Palace theater with Eddie Cantor and George Jessel they had reached the very top in vaudeville; doing a couple of guest shots on Cantor's radio program was a mere sideline. But two months later a new career got under way; they were starred with Guy Lombardo on an air show—just fifteen years ago come February 22. That same year they began their movie career in

Gracie and George

"The Big Broadcast of 1932." Surveying 15 years of success, they don't hesitate in picking out the highlights of their lives, the August day in 1934 when they adopted a baby girl, and the day a year later when they adopted a boy.

Kenny Baker will realize a life-long ambition very soon. The star of "The Kenny Baker Show" (American Broadcasting Co., Mondays through Fridays) will record an eight-side album of religious songs, which will include his favorite, "The Lord's Prayer."

Remember those six Goldwyn Girls who've been traveling hither and yon, wearing beautiful clothes and looking lovely? They're making a two-month tour of 38 Latin American cities at present; began by dining with Cary Grant and Howard Hughes in Mexico City, watching a bull-fight, and being officially greeted by Mayor Casas Aleman.

Ever since "The Spoilers" was made some 16 years ago, the fight between William Farnum and Tom Santschi has been considered as the greatest two-man battle of all time, when veteran movie critics get together. But at RKO they claim that the scrap between Lawrence Tierney and Barton MacLane in "San Quentin" tops it. It was rehearsed for five days, runs for a reel and a half as the picture's climax.

Paramount's new release, "Suddenly It's Spring," features two "Great Gildersleeve" air actresses in support of Paulette Goddard and Fred MacMurray. They're Frances (Eva Goodwin) Robinson and Georgia Backus, who plays a maid or the air show.

Radio comedy shows usually grow from either situations or gags. But not the highly successful "Fibber McGee and Molly"; Don Quinn, the writer, gets humor out of homely, run of the mill situations in a way that no one else can master, apparently. After more than a decade of being funny once a week, he continues to produce the highest quality scripts—topping the Hoover polls!

When Director Vincent Sherman told Kent Smith how to hoodwink his inquisitive wife regarding "the other woman" in a scene for "Nora Prentiss," Smith said "I know what you mean. When I was in the army I played in a picture called 'Resisting Enemy Interrogation.'"

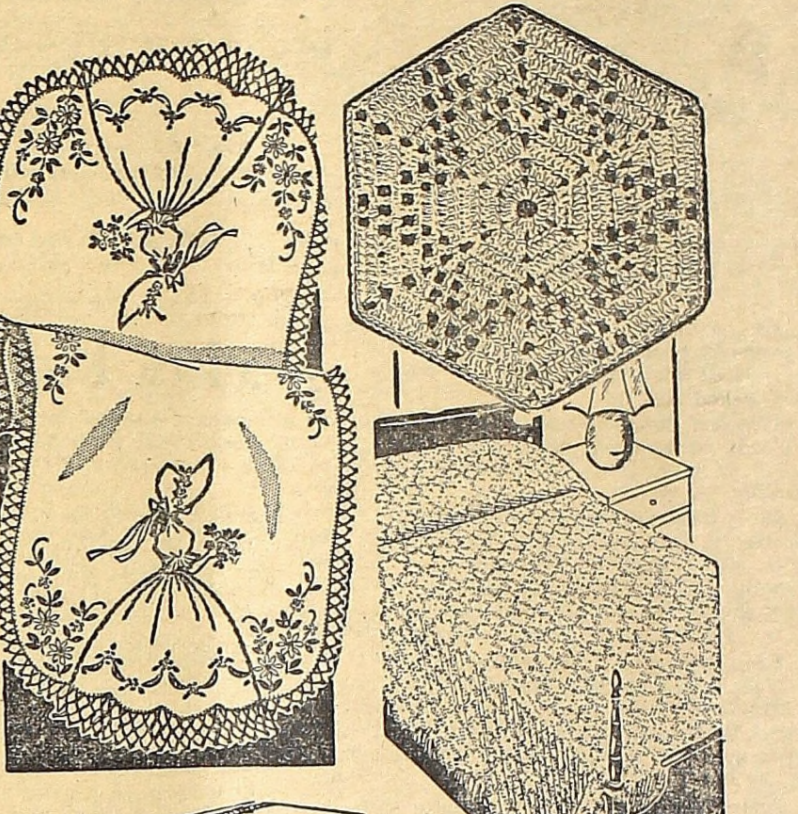

To reproduce the popular dances of 1880 Paris for "The Private Affairs of Bel Ami" Director Albert Lewin studied old books and old paintings—and finally said he might as well just have consulted a jitterbug expert, because that's what the dances looked like when filmed.

The pretty skating instructor who taught Alan Young to ice-skate for "Margie" visited the comic's air show the other night. A couple of other chaps in the cast tried to move right in—but it was Alan who took her out for a soda when the show was over.

ODDS AND ENDS—That recent "disappearance" of Virginia Mayo's could have been tamer—she just registered with her mother at a Palm Springs hotel, under her own name, Virginia Jones, only she forgot to notify the studio. . . . If southerners see a nice-looking couple touring their towns in a 1938 coupe, it may be Mr. and Mrs. Robert Mitchum, vacationing from Hollywood. . . . Maybe Diana Lynn has started a fad; she's wearing six rings on her engagement finger. . . . Malibu Beach is the setting for many of the most dramatic scenes in "Humoresque." . . . Grace Matthews succeeds Mercedes McCambridge as "Big Sister."

Small "Cream Fat" Globules In HOMOGENIZED MILK

Increase the Taste Surfaces
The scientific process of Homogenizing breaks up the big cream fat globules, just like grain is ground into flour. This permits many, many times as much taste surface to touch those sensitive little taste buds or "feelers" of the tongue. That is why Homogenized Milk with Vitiman D tastes so rich, so creamy, so much better! Vitiman D increases the availability of calcium which aids in building strong bones and sound teeth.

Big "Cream Fat" Globules REGULAR MILK

Waste Lots of Taste
The "Cream Fat" (or taste) particles in regular milk are relatively large and only a small portion of their globular shape can touch the tiny "taste buds" of the tongue. For this reason a lot of "cream taste" is actually wasted.

Homogenized Milk

Not Only Tastes Better

★ IT DIGESTS MORE QUICKLY

The smaller sized cream fat globules in Homogenized Milk form smaller, softer curds in the human stomach. They are therefore more quickly digested, especially by infants, children, invalids.

★ IT COOKS BETTER

Smoother, creamy-tasting Homogenized Milk is easier to mix with other cooking ingredients, blends better with other flavors, and does not form a surface "skin" when heated.

★ CREAM CANNOT RISE

The broken up cream particles in Homogenized Milk are so small they cannot rise; therefore Homogenized Milk shows no cream line. Every drop from bottom to top retains its creamy consistency and taste.

100th Anniversary of the Birth of Alexander Graham Bell

MARCH 3, 1847

The telephone was born and raised in a laboratory

Alexander Graham Bell's invention of the telephone was the achievement of a trained scientific mind.

Continuous scientific progress to improve telephone communication began with him and has continued ever since. It is carried on today by the six thousand men and women of the Bell Telephone Laboratories.

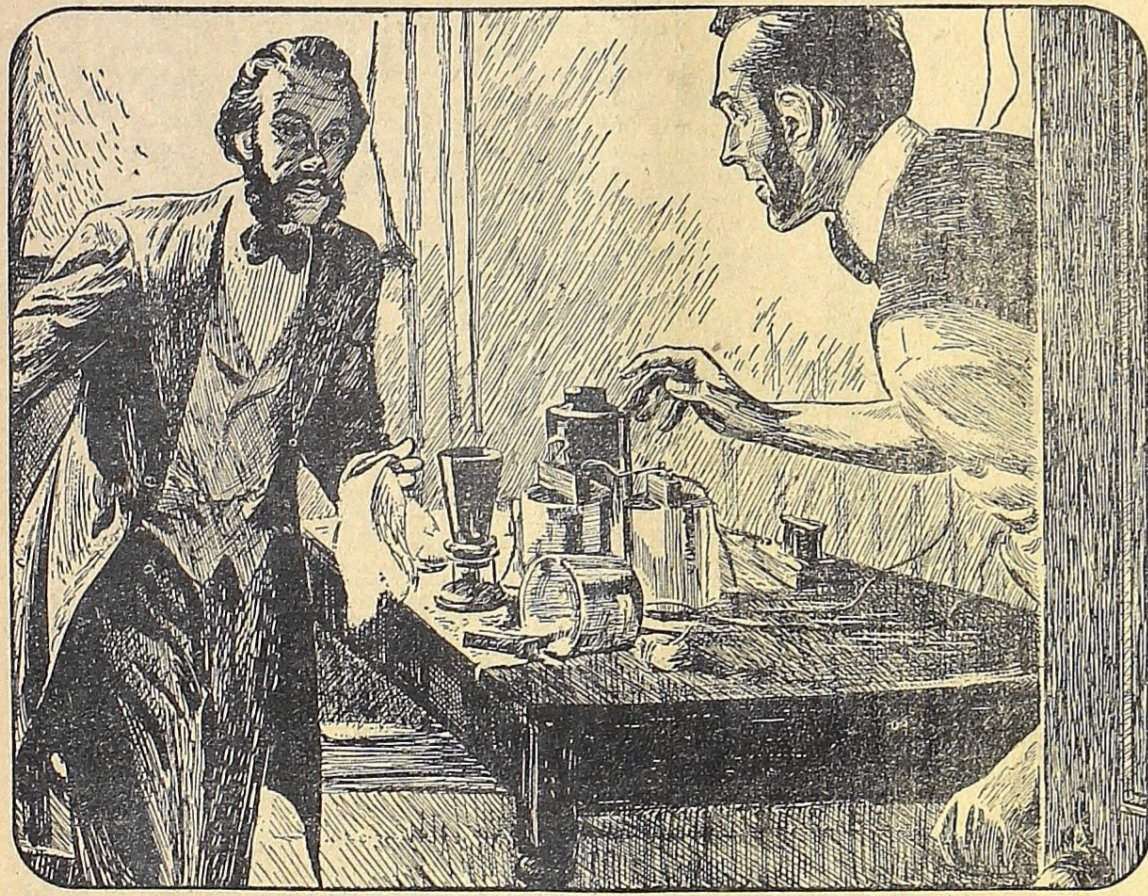

Dr. Bell's thoughts on work and research were given to a number of young people in a graduation address.

"Don't keep going only where others have gone. Leave the beaten track occasionally and dive into the woods. You will be certain to find something that you have never seen before.

"Follow it up, explore all around it; one discovery will lead to another and before you know it you will have something worth thinking about."

That has been the policy of the telephone business from the beginning. It underlies the progress that has been made and the progress that is to come.

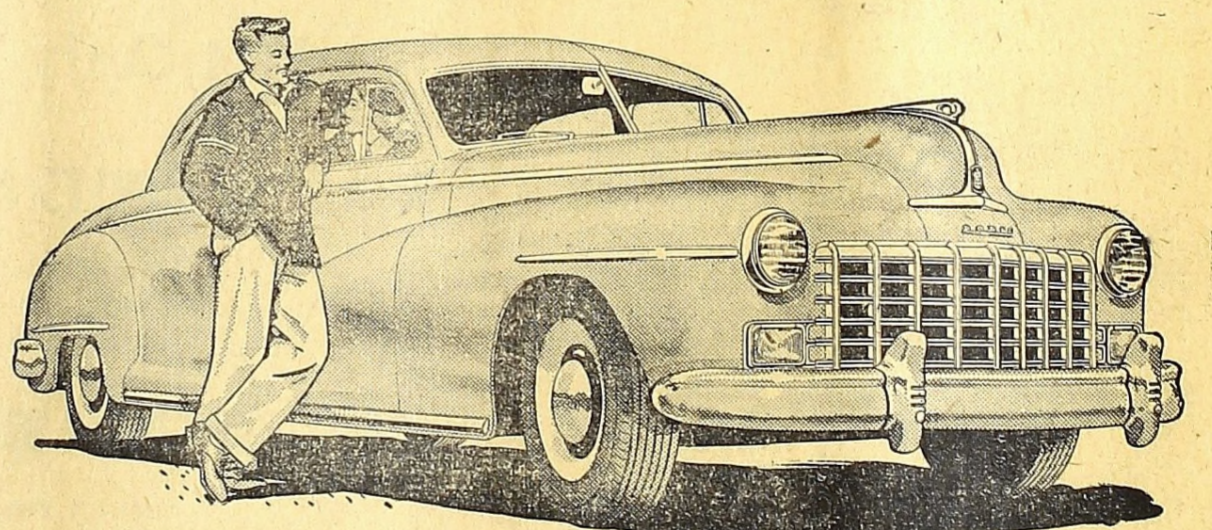

FIRST SENTENCE EVER SPOKEN OVER THE TELEPHONE (on March 10, 1876) was, "Mr. Watson, come here. I want you." It happened when Alexander Graham Bell spilled some battery solution on his clothes and called out for assistance. Thomas A. Watson, his assistant, came rushing in from another room and exclaimed—"Mr. Bell, I heard every word you said—distinctly."

LAST LOVER

BY Helen Topping Miller

Twenty-five years have elapsed since the disappearance of Richard McFarlane in World War I and his wife, Julia, is beset with fresh worries as the children she has raised with the aid of her father-in-law, John I. McFarlane, become involved in World War II. Ric has come involved in the air corps while "washed out" of the air corps while Jill falls hopelessly in love with Lieut. Spang Gordon. Jill and Spang go to a dance and when Spang doesn't profess his love for her, Jill is hurt. He does tell her, however, that Ric is paying attention to a divorcee of questionable character. Jill determines to go to camp to see her brother and also to talk to Spang again. She tells Julia her plans.

CHAPTER VI

"I think it's a beautiful idea. Dave was in love with you when you were seventeen, he told me so. Grandfather's old, and I'm not going to be around forever—I hope. Though you may have me on your hands. Maybe I'll be one of those bright spinsters who fade reluctantly and get horsey, with tanned-leather hides and lean hands that grab for highball glasses. Or I might turn coy and wear pastel-colored clothes too young for me, and make up tales about my lover who died in the great war. Could be."

"Don't be disgusting, Jill!" Julia spoke crisply, as she went out.

Julia went to her room and closed the door. Though the working outfit she wore was soiled and dusty, she sat down on the edge of her prim white bed. Jill's abrupt remark, flung in her face as ruthlessly as a dash of cold water, had set stirring within her that current of rebellion that she had fought so long and conquered up to now.

Why couldn't she grow old? Old and cold and patient, with no damped fire flaring to trouble her at unexpected moments, no dreams to drift like sun-kissed clouds across her dull horizon? What a relief to be old, so that she would never again have to know this aching lack, this hunger within herself for a little understanding, a little tenderness!

Richard was dead, and yet he would not die. Something of him stayed alive, to tease and haunt her, as he had tortured her when her love for him had made her abject and naive and too pitifully vulnerable.

For years John I. had been nagging at her to have Richard declared legally dead. So many things were involved, he argued. The title to the property, her children's inheritance, everything she had worked so long and so hard to attain.

What money John I. had, Julia knew, was willed to Jill. He had always been a little impatient with Ric, dubious about him. Money ruined the McFarlane men, he declared, softened and spoiled them. Only work could save them. Because she knew how John I. felt, Julia had been a bit more generous with her son, foolishly generous, no doubt, but her lenience had eased some grimness in her, the unforgiving thing she had not been able to conquer.

The war, the air corps, had been right for Ric, she was certain. The farm had always irked him, but his recklessness would be appeased by combat. She had put her maternal apprehensions down and forced herself not to worry. Ric had to do this thing, it meant salvation for him. And then for some reason unexplained—because a desperately efficient army machine never bothers with explanations—Ric had failed his examinations for the cadet corps.

"The punk!" Jill had been scornful. "He slid through college on his ear, and he expected to get by a military board the same way. He'll be a Joe gunner or a grease monkey now."

Haunting Memories of Richard

But Ric's luck had held, the same luck that had been with him when he talked himself out of jams at school, when he slid free of speeding charges, when he wangled extra money from his fuming grandfather. He had got an assignment to officer's school.

"He'll funk it, you'll see," Jill said.

But Julia had held to hope because she was Ric's mother. Ric was her deep heart, Ric was the man in her life. But never from her handsome, insolent son had she had consideration or tenderness. To old John I. she was a partner, adequate, standing on her own feet, wise. But to Dave Patterson she was a woman.

Leaning her burning cheeks in firm palms, Julia wondered if she had depended on Dave too much. He had been the one person to whom she owed no responsibility other than the gladly given gift of kindness and comradeship—he had been a rock on which at times her weariness had rested. She had been fooling herself, of course. And now Jill's sharp young ruthlessness had torn all her carefully arranged pretenses to shreds.

She had known for a long time that Dave's feeling for her was more than friendliness. She had pushed the knowledge away, she had refused to acknowledge it, even to herself. She had tried to hold him off, yet keep him, too. She knew now how unfair she had been. Having little to give, she had taken too much, cherishing the small warm feeling of being separate, of being chosen.

Somehow, she had to make it up to Dave. That she could love him in return was something this rigid thing in her heart would not permit her to consider. She had frozen herself into a mold so long ago. She could not alter the form of what she must be to herself, but with that sureness came an overwhelming loneliness. She had dedicated herself to a memory, to a ghost, and it was like being chained to an unanswering tomb. The dreadful part was that there was always that secret feeling of menace about that tomb.

"I'm a fool!" she said aloud, sharply, snatching her hands down and jerking her body erect.

She doused her face with cold water, gave her hair a few disciplining strokes with a brush. She had to take the truck and go out and check the corn yield with John I.

Love—she twisted her mouth as she thought of it! There was no time for love. And no dignity about it for a woman past forty, a woman who had spent herself for love once and got only a promissory note for recompense.

"So nice to see you again, Spang."

That it had been only the fevered passion of a girl, that this other ache in her heart was real and living, she would not admit, even to herself. But Dave must not be hurt. He had loved another woman once, married to her for a brief time, but she knew that that old love was now only something frail and sweet to Dave, a fragrance like that of a pressed flower, a wreath laid on a slender grave. But that grave had closed, while if she, Julia, had a grave to keep it would not green, it would not soften with time, it gave her no peace.

So she went into the dining-room and took a long time ordering her dinner, not looking around, ignoring the groups of jaunty lads in khaki who turned on her bright, direct glances.

Brother and Sister Talk

A sidling thought came into her mind. Perhaps if she was clever about it, she could maneuver Dave into falling into love with Jill. He was too old for her—as old as her father, as a matter of fact—but Dave's heart was youthful while Jill had grown a little too mature, had let her age trouble and tense her.

It would solve two of her problems, it would ease her conscience, she thought. But also it would leave her terribly alone. With no one but John I., who fought off age fiercely but who must succumb inevitably to what he called "that damn almanac."

She would not think about herself, she would not think at all. She would concentrate on meat-curing formulas, she would give up bothering about lip-stick and the right foundation garment. She would grow old, like a country woman, with no graces—utilitarian. She made herself believe this as the little truck rattled up the rocky lane and through the gate into the vast cornfield. She walked between the ripening rows and jerked at thorny vines that snatched at her ankles, she tore away husks and examined the drying ears critically.

Old John I. marched beside her, saying nothing. But she could almost feel his keen eyes burning into her, she knew what he was thinking because he had told her bluntly not so long ago. That she was a sentimental, weak-minded fool!

The hotel near Ridley Field was always excitingly full of officers and other uniformed men, and Jill had a new dress of aquamarine faille that brought out all the fruity tints of her hair, and a saucy little hat that did exactly the right things for her eyes.

She called the field and left a message for Ric as soon as she arrived, and presently he telephoned her, his voice sounding just a trifle impatient.

"Hello, Jill. I wasn't expecting you down. Mother with you?"

"No, Dooley didn't come. How are you? Can you get off to have dinner with me tonight, Ric?"

Ric hesitated for a breath. "Not sure," he said then. "They've been mighty tight with passes lately. I'll see what I can do and call you later."

"I thought you always had a B pass into town."

"They've canceled a lot of passes in our squadron. I might be able to wangle one. Stick around the telephone, and I'll let you know."

"Tell them your only sister came miles to have a look at you. You aren't being shipped out, are you, Ric?"

"No orders yet. Nothing but rumors. Mother all right?"

"Oh, yes, everything is fine. Try to get in, will you? I came a long way to see you."

"I'll do my best, Jill, but this is the army, you know."

Jill hung up with some irritation. Now she must wait till she heard from Ric before she called Spang. She tried to summon a gay assurance as she made herself pretty before the mirror, but her heart was shivering and she decided that if Spang brushed her off casually this time she would go back to the farm and devote herself to pigs forever.

An hour passed before Ric telephoned again.

"Sorry, Jill, no soap. Tough luck for both of us."

"Could you see me at the gate after five, if I came out in a taxi, Ric?"

"Can't even do that. I'm stuck on a detail tonight. Sorry I didn't know you were coming down, or I would have tried to make a swap of some kind. Let me know a week in advance next time, will you? And give Mother my love. I'll try to write next week. Been busy as the devil."

"All right, Ric. Sorry. Good-by." Probably he had had his pass canceled for some reason that he didn't want to tell her. But now Ric was definitely out of it, and she was free to spend the week-end as she pleased. So she put in another call for the field and asked to speak to Lieutenant Spencer Gordon, only to be told that the lieutenant had signed off the post and gone to town.

Well, if he was in town there was a chance that she might meet him, so she touched up her make-up and gave her hat the right tilt and went downstairs. For all her reckless remarks to her mother, she had always despised girls who ran after men and were easy to get and therefore vulnerable, but this was different. She wasn't going to hurl herself at Spang's head. She was going to be lightly indifferent, though heaven knew it wouldn't be easy, keeping a cool head while her heart was burning like a mad bonfire!

Spang was nowhere about when she went down, but she knew that this small and continually crowded hotel was the town rendezvous for all the officers and men at the field.

So she went into the dining-room and took a long time ordering her dinner, not looking around, ignoring the groups of jaunty lads in khaki who turned on her bright, direct glances.

If Spang came into the room she would know it. Something acute within her, tuned to response, would know when he was near. She was so sure of this that she ate very slowly, buying an evening paper from a soiled little boy, studying the pages with exaggerated interest between sips of the slightly warm tomato juice they brought her.

So she was startled an hour later when, the dinner having dragged itself out through three cigarettes, she rose at last to go, and there was Spang sitting near the door with two other officers. They were finishing plates of apple pie.

Second Meeting With Spang

Spang jumped to his feet as she approached, and the other men got up, too.

"Why hello, Jill!" he cried. "I didn't see you in here. May I present Lieutenant Crawford and Lieutenant Stark? Miss McFarlane."

The two young men bowed, and Spang pulled out a chair.

"Sit down and have something more with us, Jill. When did you come down? Mrs. McFarlane with you?"

"No, I came alone." Jill dropped into a chair, leaned her chin on her palms, smiled at the three of them impartially. "I came down to see Ric—my brother," she explained to the two strangers, "but it seems he's forfeited his pass or something, and I was just making up my mind whether the bus or train would be the most hectic way to get home. So nice to see you again, Spang."

"You mean you were going home without even letting me know?" Spang demanded, scowling at her.

"I did telephone." Jill kept her touch light. "But you'd left the post, and it didn't occur to me I'd meet you here."

Choose Nightgowns and Robes With Eye to Harmonious Color

By Ertta Haley

MANY women, no matter how carefully they choose their daytime dresses, choose their own personal lingerie haphazardly. They will have an assortment of gowns or pajamas that look like they came from a table of broken colors and sizes, and their robes or lounging apparel have no color or fabric harmony with the other garments.

Pastidious women, on the other hand, choose their personal lingerie with as much care as they do their dresses. They bear in mind the color of their gowns when they choose robes, and they try to have some color harmony in their choice of lingerie.

The latter program does not cost any more than a haphazard one, but it does give you a chance to feel well dressed, and you can never be accused of looking dowdy around the house.

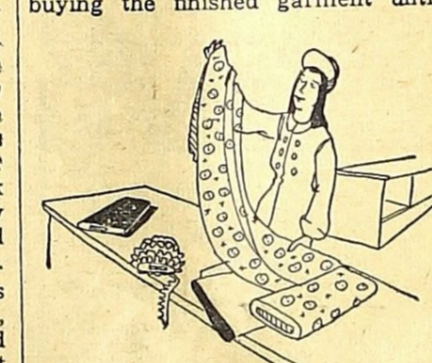

Since slips, gowns and robes are still in the luxury class as far as consumer goods are concerned, and because sizes are still a problem with limited selection, it might be a good idea to make your own. You probably have old forms which would make up into attractive negligees, and it's an easy matter to select a matching or harmonizing fabric to make up into a gown.

Try to make up at least one good looking set—for reasons of your own personal morale—for Sunday mornings or for the morning that you lounge around the house. You and your family will appreciate the change immensely.

Slip Problems Solved

By Home Sewing

You've never thought of making your own slips? Well, neither did a lot of other women until they found themselves overcome with shortsights that simply would not take care of their size and fabric requirements. Now they wouldn't think of buying the finished garment until they can be well fitted and be assured well constructed garments within their budgets.

Good needlework makes luxury underwear even if the pattern used is simple. And need I say that well sewed garments will launder perfectly a countless number of times and still look as though they came out new and unworn?

You may select sheer cotton or some of the lovely rayons for your slips. Select and fit the pattern of the slip as carefully as you would sew a dress. A little attention to this will repay you well in wearability.

There need never be any seam slippage in slips you make at home. Allow sufficient material to make a good seam, buy fabrics that are tested for strength and durability, and cover seams to prevent raveling. Use a flat fell or French seam which allows no loose edges outside the garment, and the seam slippage problem is easily solved. These slips will outwear most others.

Tips on Selecting Gowns For Matching Robes

Let's assume that you have an old formal which you are planning to make into a robe. What should the gown be like to harmonize with the robe? If the robe is of a solid color, the gown to go with this should be in a contrasting but attractive color. If the robe is to be a print, select one of the colors in the print to go with the gown.

To contrast or match each other.

Lacy Sleeves

Fashion showings in New York recently brought out something new in sleeves. This picturesque note for spring has the "Lady Windermere" influence.

If you are making pajamas to contrast with the robe, use the above plan, or if you wish to make the whole set look as though it really belonged together, do this: Choose a good sturdy material for the pajamas in a shade to contrast with the robe, then pipe the sleeves and the opening in the front with some of the same material used in the robe.

Gowns and pajamas are best made in the light or pastel colors, and should be well constructed to permit easy laundability. Remember, too, that these are practical garments above all other considerations, and should be made loose enough to be comfortable for sleeping. Too many fancy gadgets on them prevent comfortable sleeping, and also increase the fussing that must go into their laundering.

If you are making contrasting colored bindings on them you will do well to baste before you actually do the permanent stitching, as there should be no slip-ups which will cause fraying later.

Lace and ruffles are best applied by hand with small, careful stitches. Hide the stitching if you really want the garment professionally turned out.

If you are making a quilted robe, it's possible to buy material already quilted. This is then simply cut out according to a pattern and put together as instructed. The thing to remember here is to have the garment sewed carefully, adjusting the stitching to take care of the heavier material.

You may make your own quilting, if desired, with a special attachment on your machine. Material to put in between the lining and outside covering is now generally available.

Simpler robes for warmer weather may be made of light sheer cottons such as dotted swiss, organdie and lawn. Allow plenty of room for seams, look for permanent-finish materials, and you will have several years of good wear from these clothes.

Choose Your Style

No matter whether you are choosing daytime or evening clothes, hide your weak points by following these clothes tips given by fashion-wise experts:

For narrow or sloping shoulders, select well padded shoulder treatments that give you broadness. The square, padded shoulder line is best.

For broad shoulders, do everything to cut the broad shoulder line and concentrate on raglan or dolman sleeves. Use little padding.

Flat chested figures require soft treatment about the neck and bust. The ruffles and soft lace effects are for these girls, and they can be very charming.

For full busted figures use vertical lines and the "V" neck treatment. Contrasting colors from shoulder to waist are very effective also.

Small waistlines may wear high treatments in dresses. Peplums and broad, bright colored belts also are recommended.

For thin or heavy arms, wear soft treatment sleeves. Avoid particularly the too-tight sleeves.

Fashion Forecast

Gowns show body sculpturing, very definitely, and the bustle treatment is still a favorite.

Lace, cobwebby woolsens and silk tissue are some of the luxury fabrics which are coming into fashion for the spring and summer. They are really exquisite, and the dresses are designed to show off the fabric at its best.

Berthas, scarves and sashes are in the news again as more fabric is available for designers to play with.

The new sleeves you have on your clothes may be of infinite variety. You may push them up or blouse them, or you may make them bark back to history by putting billowy ruffles and lace on them.

DOANS PILLS

Sportlight

NO OTHER winter season, no other Hot Stove League of Sport, has ever known as much discussion nor has seen as many headlines about gambling and bribery as the present winter. Almost every cure in the book has been suggested without covering much ground.

For example George Preston Marshall, owner of the Washington Redskins, suggests that all racing entries, odds and selections should be transferred to the stock market page, away from the sporting page—and that no odds or selections should be carried on football, baseball or basketball games.

"Racing is legalized betting," Marshall says, "but it is a financial proposition entirely, not a sporting proposition. It doesn't belong on a sporting page. In my opinion no one connected with college sport, professional football or baseball, in a guiding capacity, should ever be seen at a race track."

I can't see much cure in this. Racing has had no part in the scandals and bribery talk involving other sports. Cupid Black, former Yale football star, has a much sounder suggestion—

"I can see no harm," Black says, "in betting a hat or a reasonable amount with a friend on a football game. Or a fight. The trouble comes when you start betting with bookmakers, where a long array of even small bets can run into millions of dollars, which in turn can be used in the wrong way. I happen to love college football—every variety of football."

No Bets With Bookmakers
"I'd like to see everyone who loves football, who believes it is a great game refuse to make a bet with any bookmaker or any other professional gambler. No one is going to stop the betting on football or any other game. But we can wreck the gambling professionals if we leave them out. This would eliminate the big sums these bookmakers handle. There is always somebody to bet with, apart from the professional gamblers."

This is a sound suggestion. There will always be the cheaper sort of humanity who will still place their bets with the bookies. But the list can be cut down.

The stumbling block is human nature, the selfishness of what a top philosopher has called "the so-called human race." All through the fading winter, a large part of the headlines on sporting pages have been concerned with stopping the gamblers. If most of those, who feel they have to bet on games will only bet among themselves and leave the gamblers out there would be no problems of bribery or crookedness.

This will be impossible to stop in racing, since racing is legalized gambling or legalized betting in 26 or more states. But football, baseball, boxing and basketball still have their thrills apart from any betting angle. Those who happen to like or love these games can solve the problem quickly along the lines suggested above.

Majority Are Honest
There are more than a few kinks in sport, since it is conducted by human beings. But its general average, in the way of honesty, is still well above politics, labor unions or what is known as big business. I don't believe anyone will try to dispute this statement.

The point is that the public at large demands a far higher honesty average from sport than it demands from politics or business or labor unions. The public expects its sports to be completely clean, not nearly clean. Amateur bettors are not going to try to fix anything. Only a few professional gamblers will. But these few can wreck a sport if not suppressed in one way or another. The suppressing part isn't as simple as it sounds. But at least a heavy curb can be developed. After all the publicity that has covered the sporting pages, any athlete from now on who doesn't report an attempted bribe is either a completely dumb or a completely dishonest person.

The terrific amount of money that has come into sport was sure to set the chiselers and crooks to work. Whatever happens, the directing heads of every sport will have to redouble any past efforts in the way of vigilance and guardianship.

Baseball's Major Shifts

The two major shifts of the year in baseball belong to the game's strongest offensive player and the game's best defensive player. This means Hank Greenberg's shift to the Pirates and Joe Gordon's move from the Yankees to the Cleveland Indians.

Even at the age of 36, many years away in the service, Greenberg was lusty enough at bat to lead Ted Williams in home runs and runs batted in.

Amperсанд From World's First Shorthand System
The oldest symbol representing a word is "&," known as the amperсанд. Originally, it was one of the 5,000 signs in the world's first shorthand system which was invented by Marcus Tiro in Rome in 63 B. C. and used for 1,000 years. Not only is "&" the only one of these signs to have survived, but it is used today as the symbol for the word "and" in several hundred languages.
