Plans Modern Food Market

Last Friday's Fire Destroys Ferguson Store

Operating Temporarily In R. W. Tuttle Electric Shop

"We shall immediately rebuild our store into a new complete, modern food market," Douglas Ferguson announced last Friday following the fire earlier that morning which completely destroyed the stock and interior of the Ferguson Market.

The fire in the Ferguson Market last Friday morning was noticed at about 6:30 o'clock. Before it could be extinguished the flames, smoke and water totally damaged the stock and the interior of the building. It is thought that the fire started from defective electric wiring.

Temporary quarters were hastily arranged in the Tuttle Electric Shop Building by Mr. Ferguson and Halim Hamway, store manager, and with the quick arrival of new goods the business was in operation again Saturday morning. The market will remain in the electric shop building until the market building is remodelled.

Mr. Hamway was in Detroit this week studying the latest ideas in food merchandise marketing and purchasing new fixtures and equipment. Mr. Ferguson states that a second floor will be added to the present structure. The salesroom on the first floor will be enlarged and the fixtures will be arranged to give the best in food sales service. The second floor will contain suites of offices and an apartment.

The carpenter work on the project will be by George Neumann and James Boomer has the contract for the masonry work, and the concrete products used will be furnished by the Mueller Concrete Products Company.

Tawas Girl Writes From Georgia

Mrs. Robert Garrett, Jr., the former Martha Klish, of Augusta, Georgia, in a letter to her mother and brother here, writes:

The warm, sunny South—that is a lot of bunk! Your November and fall was as nice as this part had. December wasn't too bad, but it rained every day for over three weeks in January. We had a few nice days the latter part of January, but February has been below freezing almost every day. Water pipes have been freezing, and these old crates that are called houses, have so many cracks, no amount of pushing in the coal, seems to do much good. It is very cold out now and no let-up in sight.

We have robins here now by the hundreds, coming through from farther south on the way north. Bob says they stay here about a month this time of year, gathering in flocks to head your way. Some days the ground is covered with them. I get so mad—the bad boys around here, shoot them and I'm always chasing the boys off. A couple of the robins are so tame, they cock their heads at me when I look through the window just a few feet away and make no move to fly away. Surely will miss them when they go north. Apparently they find it too cold here and go farther south during the winter and only stop by on their way through. We won't see any when it gets warm, as I guess it is much too hot for them in the summer. We burned about four tons of coal already, as well as quite a pile of wood.

A Communication

To the Voters of Iosco County:

When the Board of Supervisors of Iosco County in their January, 1947, session ignored the request of a delegation of tax payers of Iosco County to reverse their previous action whereby the Board decided to appoint members of the county road commission instead of permitting the people to elect such members, their claim that if they appointed the members of the county road commission they would be in closer relationship with that body, is in my opinion, a bluff and a fake. The law which guides the Board of Supervisors is plain and good if carried out the way it is intended to be carried out. If the Board of Supervisors had acted in good faith they would have first obtained the sentiment of the people of the county by having a vote taken upon the proposition of whether or not they should appoint members of the road commission or have them elected by the people.

The report of the committee on county roads gives a complete report to the Board of Supervisors with full information of the condition of roads, drains, culverts and bridges and accompanying recommendations. What more does the Board of Supervisors need to get in closer relationship with the Board of Supervisors who are holding temporary or indefinite appointments should compete if they desire permanent status. Application forms may be obtained from the local secretary of the post office. They must be filled out and filed with the Regional Director, U. S. Civil Service Commission, 433 W. Van Buren st., Chicago 7, Illinois, not later than March 27, 1947.

The National Gypsum Company is an asset to Iosco County and has in my opinion, been treated in an unjust manner for the last fifteen (15) years. It appears that all former boards followed their duty until the trail and forgot their duty until the people became aroused. Now, they want to put up a wall to silence the voice of the people, abolish their franchise and stop them from voting. I say "The will of the people is the law of the land."

It is claimed that over 60 per cent of the members of the Board of Supervisors adopted the rule to appoint road commissioners. Yes, in our neighboring county, Ogemaw, the tax payers are holding the bag at an enormous cost which is not a desirable feat.

Look to all four points of the compass and you will see the people facing bribery, embezzlement, corruption in all branches of legal authority as shown by the headlines of our daily papers.

Shall we remain silent? The people of Iosco County are still alive. When the time comes to nominate candidates for Supervisor, turn out and nominate a man who stands on his own feet and has backbone and courage enough to speak at the right time and at the right place and restore the right of the people to elect members of the county road commission where that right belongs.

You can fool some of the people all of the time and all of the people some of the time, but you cannot fool all of the people all of the time. When law ends, tyranny begins. Henry Anschuetz.

Iosco Fair Annual Meet at Hale, March 13

Plans for 1947 Fair Will be Developed at This Meeting

Ralph Bohl, president of the Iosco County Fair Association, announced this week that the annual meeting of the fair association will be held at the Plainfield township hall, Thursday evening, March 13th at 8:00 o'clock.

It was the hope of president Bohl that the fair should continue as a county wide social function as well as an educational activity.

In order to increase the social aspects of the fair the president stated that interested citizens should bring a small package of sandwiches or doughnuts to the meeting with them next Thursday evening. John O. Johnson, who is known county wide, as the official coffee maker of Hale will have a steaming pot of coffee ready at the close of the meeting. Coffee-maker, John did warn members of the meeting to be sure and bring them a small bit of sugar if they prefer their drink so decorated. The Elks Varhly had their string of four victories in a row broken (which included three Class C teams). They couldn't get rolling and their opponents, AuGres took advantage of this, when they hit the hoop for 53 points to Tawas City's lowly 23. Only in one quarter did the Elks show any life and that was in the final stanza when they broke loose for 15 points. Galliker led his team in scoring with nine points while Manor topped the AuGres five with 22.

Tawas City's reserves lost to AuGres reserves in a 14 to 13 battle, the last basket by AuGres coming in the last few seconds of the game. Myles and Steinhurst led in scoring with four points each.

Two more of Tawas City's young men have entered business here. This week Alvin and Herbert Cholger, sons of Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Cholger, announced that they had taken over the operation of the Cholger Service, located at Lake and Matthews streets.

Herbert has been associated with his father in the business for the past year. Alvin, recently discharged from the armed forces, has been employed by the Ford Motor Company at Detroit for the past six months. The Herald and their many friends wish them success.

The Cholger Service has been in operation since 1921, and was established by Mr. Cholger a few months after his return from Detroit where he has spent a number of years on production in the automobile business. ## Independents Win Two Games Out of Four

Play in West Branch Tournament Next Thursday Night

In four Independent basketball games over the weekend, the Tawas Indies won two out of four games, losing 29 to 26 to the Osceda Independents, and then losing 51 to 25 in a second tilt, when the Osceda American Legion team's opponent failed to appear. On Sunday the Tawas Indies took two games at the local gym, defeating Alabaster 32 to 30 and Standish 37 to 36.

In the first game Saturday night at Osceda, the Tawas Indies and the Osceda Independents put on a good show for the fans, with never more than two points separating the two teams throughout the entire game. The final game was to have been between the Osceda American Legion and an Alpena team, but when the Alpena team failed to put in an appearance, Tawas agreed to play the other game. In this game they were badly beaten, though in the first half, Musolf's accurate shooting kept Tawas within sight of Osceda. In the first two minutes of the second half, Musolf went out on fouls and from thereon, the Osceda team pulled away from Tawas.

Musolf was high scorer for Tawas City for the evening, with 17 points, eight in the first game and nine in the second. Herriman followed Musolf for Tawas, with 12 points, six in each game. C. Kennedy paced Osceda with nine points in the first game and K. Kennedy scored 17 points for the American Legion in the second.

In the first game Sunday, with Alabaster, Tawas scored two points in the final quarter, to nose out Alabaster 32 to 30 in an exciting game that saw the lead change several times. Musolf scored 10 points to lead the Tawas team and Rescoe and Erickson each scored 10 points for Alabaster.

In the final game the Tawas Indies first took a 17 to 4 lead at the quarter and at the half the score stood 29 to 11 against Standish. In the third quarter Standish turned on the heat, scoring 16 points against Tawas's 7, making the score at the end of the quarter 36 to 27. And in the final quarter Standish scored nine more points, with Tawas scoring one foul shot, with Tawas winning 37 to 36.

W. Musolf was again high scorer, leading the local team with 16 markers while Shannon, for Standish, rang up 12 points.

March 13, 14 and 15, the Tawas Indies are entered in the Northeastern Michigan Invitational tournament at West Branch. Last year Tawas won the tournament by defeating Roscommon, West Branch and Sterling in the three nights competition. Come over Thursday night and give the boys your support.

With Davis burning the twine for 25 markers, the West Branch Independent basketball team copped a 48 to 32 decision over the Tawas Indies at West Branch, Wednesday, evening. Saudacher led the losers with 10 points.

Scores by Quarters Saturday, March 1 (Osceda gym)...

THE WASHINGTON SCENE

Two Regions Wield Power In New Senate Committees

By WALTER A. SHEAD
WNU Washington Correspondent.

(Editor's Note: This is the second in a series of articles dealing with new congressional committees and their chairmen.

WASHINGTON. — North Central and New England regions wield the balance of political power in the senate as a result of the new committee setup in the 80th congress under terms of the congressional reorganization act.

Of the 14 new senate committee chairmen, eight come from the North Central region, including the states of Ohio, Illinois, Michigan, Wisconsin, North Dakota, South Dakota, Nebraska and Kansas. The New England region is represented by two chairmen from New Hampshire, one from Maine and one from Vermont. West Virginia and Colorado are the only other states represented by committee chairmen. The Middle Atlantic, South Central and Pacific regions are entirely unrepresented.

The list of senate committees and chairmen continues:

Banking and Currency

CHARLES W. TOBEY (N. H.), new chairman of the banking and currency committee, is an independent Republican who votes against his party as often as with it.

Tobey broke with the majority of the Republican senators to support reciprocal trade agreements in 1945 and to oppose restrictive OPA amendments that year. (He changed his mind about OPA by July, 1946, however.) He also voted for the loan to Britain, and, like most Republicans, opposed the nomination of George E. Allen to Reconstruction Finance corporation.

A business man turned politician, Tobey was at one time president of the F. M. Hoyt Shoe Co. and also has had experience in agriculture, banking and insurance. He is a former president of Manchester chamber of commerce. He served three non-consecutive terms as a member of the New Hampshire house of representatives, including one as speaker, and one term in the state senate. He was governor of New Hampshire in 1929-30 and was elected to congress in 1932. After three terms in the house, he was elected to the senate in 1938.

Tobey was a delegate to the United Nations monetary conference, which drew up plans for the World Bank and the International Monetary Fund, at Bretton Woods, N. H., in July, 1944.

GEORGE D. AIKEN (Vt.) is new chairman of the committee on expenditures in the executive departments, which is assigned the function of keeping tab on executive agencies. The committee is likely to be primarily an investigative body and may be used as the vehicle for the Republican majority in the senate to investigate the Democratic executive branch of the government. It also will have jurisdiction over governmental reorganization. Under Democratic control, the committee has been inactive in the past.

A Vermont farmer, Aiken is 54 years old and has been in the senate since 1940. Before that he had been active in politics as a member of the state legislature, lieutenant governor and governor. He is the author of "Speaking from Vermont," a discussion of current problems, published in 1938.

During the 79th congress, Aiken cast more votes against the majority of his party than any other Republican. The records show that he voted with the majority of Republicans only 20 per cent of the time on issues where there was a Republican-Democratic split.

Finance

EUGENE D. MILLIKIN (Colo.), new chairman of the finance committee, which handles tax bills, is by no means enthusiastic over plans of house Republican leaders to cut individual income taxes 20 per cent straight across the board.

Writing a tax bill, Millikin says, "is not an exercise in logic; it's an exercise in necessity." Before undertaking tax revision he wants to see the budget balanced and a long-term debt reduction plan adopted. Then, if possible, he wants to make a thorough study of the tax structure before committing himself promised instead to send a tutor to her trailer home.

"It'll be lonely staying home alone," Patsy said, biting her quivering lip. "But I can't give up Lucky ever. She's the only eyes I've got."

Her main concern now is to rush through her last three semesters of high school so she can enter junior college, where, she adds, "they let you take dogs to classes."

Blind Girl Quits School To Keep Dog

LOS ANGELES.—Forced to give up her high school classes or part with her seeing-eye guide dog, Patsy Ruth Fergus, 16-year-old blind girl, decided she couldn't part with her dog even if it meant giving up the social life she craved at school.

Despite pleas of Patsy, her parents and classmates, the city board of education decreed she couldn't take Lucky, a pure white German shepherd, to school any more. It to any specific tax-cutting proposal.

Millikin's past record on taxation and financial matters shows that he voted to prohibit the $25,000 salary limitation in 1943, against extension of the reciprocal trade act in 1945, and to override the tax bill veto in 1944. (The vetoed tax bill was criticized by President Roosevelt for failing to provide enough revenue and for granting unwarranted tax relief, "not for the needy but for the greedy.") On controversial matters Millikin voted with the majority of his party 84 per cent of the time in the 79th congress. He has the best attendance record in the senate.

Millikin, who is 56 years old, has been in the senate since 1941. In addition to taxes, the finance committee has jurisdiction over tariffs, social security and veterans' affairs.

ARTHUR H. VANDENBERG (Mich.) second ranking Republican in the senate and one of the prime makers of American foreign policy, has two top jobs in the 80th congress — president pro tempore of the senate and chairman of the foreign relations committee.

On no other committee will policy be less affected by Republican majorities than on foreign relations, where Sen. Tom Connally (D., Mich.) is the outgoing chairman, and Vandenberg, as the leading Republican, have collaborated closely ever since the San Francisco conference of the United Nations in 1945. Besides going to San Francisco together, Connally and Vandenberg have been co-delegates to the first general assembly of the United Nations in London, the council of foreign ministers in Paris and the second general assembly in New York. They frequently have taken occasion to emphasize their complete agreement on foreign policy and their support of former Secretary of State James F. Byrnes.

Vandenberg is 63 years old and before entering the senate was editor and publisher of the Grand Rapids Herald. He long has been active in local and state Republican politics and is an authority on Alexander Hamilton, a subject on which he has written several books. He won the 1946 Collier award for distinguished congressional service.

Public Lands

HUGH BUTLER (Neb.), is new chairman of the public lands committee, which combines the functions of the five old committees on public lands and surveys, Indian affairs, irrigation and reclamation, mines and mining, and territories and insular affairs.

A regular, party-line Republican now beginning his second term, Butler easily won re-election last fall after a victorious primary fight in which he was opposed by Gov. Dwight Griswold, who had the support of Harold E. Stassen.

Butler is 69 years old and operated a flour milling and grain business before going to the senate. In his youth he worked as a construction engineer for Chicago, Burlington and Quincy railroad. He is an ex-president of Omaha Grain exchange and National Grain Dealers association and has been active in Nebraska civic, educational and religious organizations.

Butler was in line for the more important finance committee chairmanship, but passed it up to take public lands.

Waffle Iron Proves Dangerous Weapon

SHOSHONE, IDA.—A waffle iron is a potentially lethal weapon, insists Mrs. Dwight Nicholson. She should know—she was shot by one. A small caliber cartridge accidentally was dropped into the waffle iron, and the top lowered. When the iron was heated, the bullet exploded just as Mrs. Nicholson lifted the lid. The bullet fired from the waffle iron struck her on a finger.

SEAL SALE AIDS CRIPPLES . . . Funds derived from the annual Easter seal sale will aid crippled children throughout the nation. Children afflicted with cerebral palsy are shown here learning by supervised play in the curative workshop of the Minneapolis community health service.

HOPE FOR HANDICAPPED

Easter Seal Sale Will Aid Nation's Crippled Children

WNU Features.

"Help Crippled Children" is the message of the 1947 Easter seal, soon to be distributed throughout the nation by National Society for Crippled Children and Adults through its 44 state and 2,000 odd local member societies for the crippled. The drive opens March 6 and will continue until Easter Sunday, April 6.

For 26 years the national society has served the handicapped, seeking to fulfill the unmet needs of the hundreds of thousands of persons who are affected by more than 250 kinds of crippling diseases and conditions. State and local units provide direct services, determined by specific needs in each community. The wide range of services includes camping, nursery centers, home-bound employment, placement, equipment, training, clinics, hospitalization, convalescent care, transportation, curative and sheltered workshops and special education. Services are designed to supplement, not to duplicate, the work of other agencies for the handicapped.

Since 1934 the society has sought public support for the work through the annual distribution of Easter seals. Copies of the first seal, designed by J. H. Donahy, Cleveland cartoonist, now are rated as collector's items.

Eight states participated in the first Easter seal sale, which marked the beginning of unprecedented expansion on the part not only of the national society but also of the entire movement in behalf of crippled children. In 1930 there were 10,000 hospital beds available for crippled children. In 1940 the number had increased to 15,000. Hospital admissions almost doubled, as did the number of teachers in special schools and classes.

Sales of Easter seals have zoomed from 22 million in 1934 to more than a billion. Seal sales now net more than three million dollars annually for aid of the handicapped.

More than 90 per cent of the funds remains in the states where contributions are made, less than 10 per cent being allocated to national headquarters in Chicago for its services to member societies and projects of a national scope. The national staff directs cerebral palsy, professional field, informational, administrative, extension and Easter seal services.

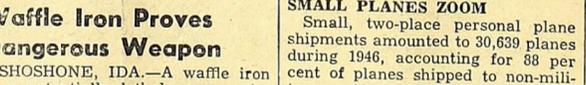

A contest for the best Easter seal design has been conducted annually since 1943 among high school students throughout the nation. The winner receives the Michael Dowling memorial award of $500.

The 1947 seal, which pictures a tiny boy with his crutch under his arm walking up a ray of light to a distant star, symbolic of hope for all crippled children, was designed by Frank Gross, a Janesville, Wis., high school student.

School children throughout the nation will assist in conducting the month-long seal campaign.

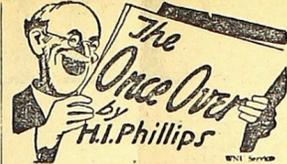

SMALL PLANES ZOOM

Small, two-place personal plane shipments amounted to 30,639 planes during 1946, accounting for 88 per cent of planes shipped to non-military customers, it is revealed in the annual report of airplane shipments compiled by the bureau of the census. The report showed that manufacturer's shipments of civil aircraft and principal military type aircraft, valued together at 363 million dollars, totaled 36,204 airplanes during the year. Military customers received 1,330 planes.

Arabia Comes to the Point

Amir Saud, crown prince of Saudi Arabia, presented Harry Truman with a bejeweled sword and dagger as gifts from his father the other day. This puzzles us. We had heard rumors about the quality of those 30-pound turkeys which the White House has received, but we never knew anybody suspected they were that tough.

The President gets a lot of curious presents, but this sword and dagger one gives us pause. If we were a Republican congressman we would feel uneasy. If we were Mrs. Truman we would feel fidgety, too. (In fact even if we were Harry we wouldn't like it.)

This country has had Presidents with whose personalities a sword and dagger might not clash. But Harry is not the type. Even a cloak, sheet or turban wouldn't help matters.

It would be a step from all that to an Arabian horse. After that a President does not belong to the American people. He belongs to the films.

He even lays himself open to becoming a double feature.

Prince Saud in presenting the gifts also handed Harry a letter from his old man, the Imperial Poobah of Saudi Arabia, where the oil comes from. What did the letter say? That's important. Did it contain a set of directions for sword and dagger usage?

Did it open up "Dear Harry: The next paragraph will show you how to attach these implements to Senator Taft's chair"? Was there a postscript "Also mighty handy for use if you travel at all by motor bus or subway"?

Anywhere in the letter were there the words, "Look sharp, act sharp, be sharp!"?

In return Prince Saud got an autographed photo of Mr. Truman. It does not seem to us that an autographed photo of the President is quite in the mood in such an exchange. If we were the President's secretary we would throw in a lariat and a branding iron, or something.

On the level, Harry, whatcher gonna do with the sword and dagger anyhow?

You can't slash a man's tax with either. Joe Martin is wearing a suit of armor these days.

And before you can get into Hen Wallace's office in the New Republic today they search you.

Back Home Stuff

Tom Edison's anniversary stirred up a boyhood memory of the kerosene lamp. Our boyhood home had gas (the quarter meter), but Grandmother Johnson's house at 84 Sylvan avenue back home had no such luxury. She used kerosene lamps and they were things of delicate beauty. We can see her now, trimming the wicks, shining the chimneys and cleaning up the china shades which seemed to us to be pretty wonderful. Once in a while she would send us to Lutz's grocery for a can of kerosene. We remember that Lutz would always slam a potato over the spout as a sort of cork. At our house when the quarter meter came in, dad had a tendency to expect too much of two-bits and every once in a while at dinner the light would begin to fade, bringing cries of "Quick! Who's got a quarter in change?"

The kick after touchdown is not going to be the same play in football under the new rules. If blocked, the ball is to become dead. Thus one of the most stirring moments in football is to be blitized. The blocked kick, the scramble for the ball, the breathless uncertainty for a few seconds and then, perhaps, a kid breaking from the pack to score a long run . . . oh, man! The game is being steadily modified to a point where it is more fun watching the cheer leaders.

CAN YOU REMEMBER—

Away back when the only thing that annoyed you on the radio was the static?

Artur Rodzinski, former conductor of the New York Philharmonic, has gone to the Chicago Symphony. Rodzinski asked for and was given his outright release by the New York club, but we think if it had been smart it could have had a large cash sum, six outfield violinists and a couple of southpaw oboe players for him.

"MASSES" DO NOT REALIZE BENEFITS OF FREE ECONOMY IN A REPUBLIC, such as our forefathers established for us, democratic government is controlled by the masses, not by either the mobs or the business executives. The masses include those who plow and sow and reap that all may eat; those who gather our raw materials from the mine, the soil and the forest; those who tend the machines in our factories; those who man our system of transportation; those who build our homes and roads. These, all consumers of our products, constitute the masses as distinguished from the business executives. The masses outnumber the executives by fully a thousand to one, and each has an equal voice as to what our government shall be.

The executive class does not control or direct America, much as it may believe it does, or should. Each executive has only the same percentage of say-so as has each worker in field, factory, store or transportation. That system of government, that way of life, favored by the masses, will be dominant in America.

The executive class, those who direct our industry, transportation and large scale merchandising, can see the direct result of the working of the American economic system to the industrial and financial problems as directed by them. Such results appeal to their ego in many cases. They look upon their achievements as great things accomplished for the nation, and they wish to see those accomplishments fully recognized. Many of them spend money rather lavishly to pay for that recognition. It tickles their vanity, although it accomplishes nothing in the matter of preserving the economic system that makes such accomplishments possible.

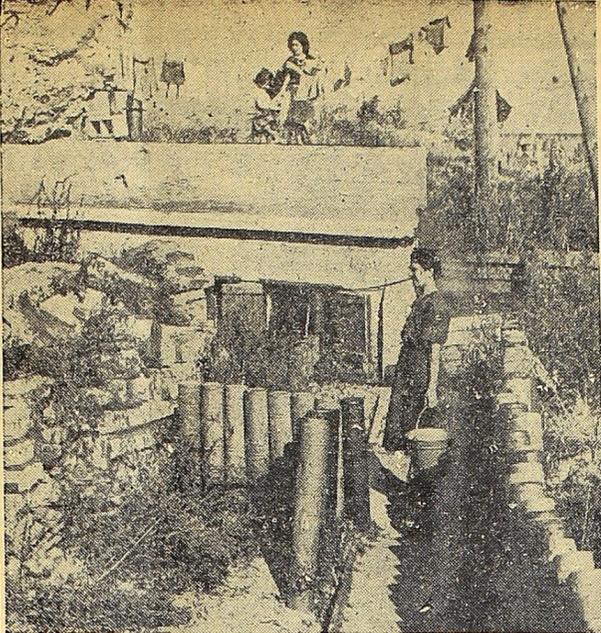

To us, the masses—the workers and consumers—the results for us as achieved by our economic system are more indirect than direct. While we may not see the black figures on the balance sheet of industry, transportation and large scale merchandising, we do profit indirectly by a higher standard of living than that enjoyed by any other people in the world.

What we call Communism, which is nothing more than state capitalism, the nationalization of business, is contending for world mastery. Communism is fighting the profit system, with this country the main battleground. The forces of communism are waging a propaganda warfare among the workers and consumers of America. Because our benefits from our free enterprise system are sufficiently indirect that we do not fully realize its application to our individual problems, we are more susceptible to that communistic propaganda than are those whose benefits are direct. If we are to be proof against that kind of warfare we should be provided with the armor of factual information. As individuals we are, as are those of the executive class, seeking that which we believe is best for ourselves as individuals.

While vast sums are being expended to attack our economic system; to show us, the workers and consumers, the so-called advantages of Communism as they apply to us as individuals, little or nothing is being done to provide us with the weapons or armor of defense. Many of the executive class are spending large sums for the purpose of portraying themselves, to themselves, as exemplary citizens and business successes. They are but fiddling for their own edification while the primary foundation underlying our American greatness, our system of free enterprise, is burning. We, the workers and consumers, need to be told the values of that system to us as individuals. Without such telling we may lose that heritage, and when we do those who profit directly will pay heavily for their negligence.

IF WE CAN believe the crude, amateurish, fantastic oil paintings the state department is sending to foreign governments as examples of American culture, are really representative, it probably would be better to substitute Russian Communism for our vaunted superiority. It could not be worse than the paintings that are presented as the best of American art.

"MISERY IN LOS ANGELES" A DIRE "disaster" happened to some people in the Los Angeles railroad station. All connecting trains for the night had departed when that train from the East arrived. Passengers did not have hotel reservations, and rooms were unobtainable. There was nothing for the unfortunates to do but spend the night on station benches, and the benches are hard. Many of those "disaster victims" wished they had remained at home. California did not look sunny to them.

Now that John Garfield is no longer with Warner Bros., he's free to satisfy an ambition he's had for a long time—he wants to star in a British picture. Lilli Palmer, now working with him in "Body and Soul," has the same desire, and they're making arrangements to get their wish this summer. He'll be touring Europe with his family, and Miss Palmer and her husband, Rex Harrison, will be paying their annual six-months visit to Harrison's family in England.

Rough spots in new pictures; in "Golden Earrings" Marlene Dietrich takes a hand—and foot—in the battle between Ray Milland and Mervyn Vye, kicking, biting, scratching and hair-pulling. Veronica Lake doesn't go quite so far in "Saigon"; just bites Alan Ladd's wrist and slaps his face. But he gets a chance to retaliate—kicks a chair out from under the lady.

Burt Lancaster's pretty blonde wife, Norma Anderson, has been busy turning down screen tests; her pictures appeared in the papers when she and the new, towse-haired star were married, and two major producers got busy at once. Burt, who's busy with "I Walk Alone," at Paramount, approves her decision to keep house and raise a family. They met in Italy—he was in the army, she with the USO.

"I think you've got a fine voice, and if you get to New York and I can help you, look me up." That's what Ben Grauer, NBC's ace announcer, said to a vocalist with Ted Weems' orchestra a few years ago in a midwestern hotel. Recently Grauer took over as emcee on the "Supper Club," starring that vocalist, Perry Como.

When Bob Hope takes that so-called vacation in Europe this summer he'll go into Germany to do a few shows for the Occupation forces stationed there. Bing Crosby will be on the Continent at the same time, and may join him in entertaining the G.I.s.

Shades of Old Eli! The girl who's picked as Queen of the Yale Prom will be screen-tested, the test flown to Hollywood, and if Jesse Lasky approves, she'll be offered the role of the heroine in his forthcoming "Miracle of the Bells."

Baritone Robert Merrill has signed to appear in eight legitimate plays in a stock company this summer. The Sunday afternoon RCA Victor star will screen test for a role in a Warner Bros. picture this fall, and wants to acquire some experience.

Lawrence Tierney got into movies the easy way—sitting in the reception room of RKO's talent department in New York, while a friend was interviewed for a job. He didn't get it, but Tierney was called in—and went west to play Dillinger.

Larry Simms, 12-year-old "Alexander Bumstead" on the CBS "Blondie" show, is doubling at the Metro lot; he's cast as a dazzling, uniformed young prince in the new Katharine Hepburn picture, "Love Story." He was in their "The Last Gangster" two years ago.

ODDS AND ENDS—Kirk Douglas and his wife have named the new baby Joel Andrew. . . . Robert Mitchum can do a better job of palm reading than the average gypsy. . . . PRICE SUPPORT PLAN for dairy products will be out in a few weeks. Government experts are waiting to judge market so that price floor will meet with approval. Plan will firm up dairy prices through spring.

AN ENGLISH FARMER is in for four months and faces a $6,000 fine. He planted six acres more than his allotment.

WHY PRICES ARE UP
Many things have contributed to this week's advance in prices. The factors most responsible are:
Heavy Export buying
Increased feed demand.
Buying of grains and feeds for short accounts.
Soaring hog prices.
Shortage of box cars.
Our prices do not reflect the full advance in raw material prices. Unless markets react, further price advances of Kasco Feeds will have to be made.

BUILDING MATERIAL
Prices have been going down as supply and demand factors come into operation once more. Last week, the asking price on west coast lumber dropped $10 per thousand board feet.

LAST LOVER

BY Helen Topping Miller

When Richard McFarlane disappeared during World War I, he left his wife, Julia, to raise their two children with the aid of her father-in-law, John I. McFarlane. After a lapse of 25 years, with no word as to whether Richard is dead or alive, Julia is beset with new worries when Ric, now 27, and serving in World War II, shows obvious signs of inheriting his father's recklessness, and Jill, 26, falls in love with Lieut. Spang Gordon. Jill learns from Spang that Ric is paying attention to a di- vorce of questionable character and goes to camp to investigate. Ric tells her he is on duty and unable to see her. However, she meets Spang again at the Officers' club.

CHAPTER VII

"On Saturday night you can see every officer in this place, except the poor guys who get stuck with duty. Every single one, anyway," Lieutenant Stark said, "and about half the married men."

"Even Old Cyanide," Lieutenant Crawford put in. "He's over there by the window, polluting the atmosphere."

Jill followed the movement of Spang's eyes and saw a tall captain sitting alone. He had reddish hair, turning gray, a leathery skin, cold blue eyes and a grim mouth under a stiff, clipped mustache.

"Go easy, Joe, the enemy is listening," Stark warned.

"You mean that captain? Who is he?" Jill asked.

"His name is Mackey," Stark said in a low voice.

"The boys call him Old Cyanide," Spang explained, "because he has a corrosive tongue and you need a gas-mask when he turns loose a barrage of language on you."

"Old army man," supplied Crawford. "Efficient as hell and just as popular. He was a major before Pearl Harbor, over in the Islands, and they busted him after December seventh. Naturally he's sore, and he takes it out on anybody who gets within ten feet of him."

"He looks lonely," Jill said. "He seems to have collected a few decorations."

"Battle stuff," Spang said. "Last war."

"He'd be handsome if he didn't have such a bitter face," Jill mused. "He does have a very smart military air."

The three young men simultaneously snapped their shoulders back and straightened their ties, then laughed together.

"Get hold of yourself, Joe, she wasn't even looking at you."

"Suppose I have to break my neck now to get to be a captain."

They were nice lads, with their sunburned good-natured faces and the stark, white breadth of forehead that marked the line of their garrison caps. Jill laughed with them, waited while they wrangled amiably over the check.

Spang said, "Take off, you fellows. I've got a date with Jill. You really didn't want to catch that bus, did you, Jill?"

"It isn't terribly important," she admitted, smiling at him. "You love me, Spang—you know you love me. It shows in your eyes. It's in your voice."

Stark and Crawford said, "Good night, Miss McFarlane," as they all went out into the warm, star-spangled night.

Jill Meets Mrs. Calvert

"That captain reminds me of some one," she said to Spang, "but I can't seem to remember who it is."

"Heydrich or Himmler, maybe." "Oh, no, no one like that. He hasn't a vicious face. He looked a bit—pathetic, to me."

"You're a soft-hearted girl. Old Cyanide's as tough as they make 'em, and the army makes 'em plenty tough. He thinks all the young officers are upstarts and ninety-day wonders, and he resented being sent here, I've been told."

"I still think there are chinks in his steel armor. Didn't you have another engagement, Spang? Don't let me upset your plans."

"I hadn't any plans, except to kill another Saturday night. And even if I had had, they'd be unimportant now that you're here."

So she glowed again, and the world was a lovely place, even with the sudden cloud of war hanging over it and dimming all the future. She would not let it dim the present.

She said, "Shall we just walk around and talk, or would you like to do something else?"

"There's the officer's club. But it's mostly a big poker game on Saturday nights. I know a little spot out this way where the floor is pretty good. Like dancing?"

"Oh, I'd love dancing." The place, neon-lighted, hid its daytime dinginess under a glitter of gaiety.

"Let's try the corners," Spang said, slipping his arm around her. "More breathing space there."

The dancing did not matter. Nothing mattered except that Spang's arm was around her, the silver wings on his breast close to her cheek, her hand curled in his big palm. She could hear her own heart beating, lilted happily, because she was so terribly in love.

Spang pushed her big hat back. "Can't see your eyes."

His own were deep and warm and smiling at her. His head bent close. Was he keeping his feelings sternly controlled because, as Julia had said, he had nothing to offer a woman but uncertainty or dread or grief? Couldn't he see that nothing mattered, not the future, for what was a future if you had a lovely present to remember when it came?

Now she had to keep her eyes cool because Spang was looking into them, but what if all the aching hunger in her heart welled up into them, naive and naked and defenseless, for him to see? So she said, quickly, "It's so warm in here I'm practically swooning. Let's get something cool to drink, shall we?"

"I doubt if we can find a table. But we can try." Spang led her back into the dim room where heads leaned close in every space.

"There was a girl with hair like yours, and her name was Julia, too," he said.

She clutched his arm suddenly. There, in a booth, his dark handsome head leaned close to a curled and silvered blonde, was Ric!

Spang had seen him, too. His face darkened, and he took her arm to lead her past, but Jill tingled and stiffened with sudden anger. She marched directly up to the startled pair, and instantly Ric leaped up and stood stiffly, until Spang made a little gesture and muttered something.

The blonde woman—she wasn't a girl, Jill saw—lifted carefully arched eyebrows.

"How do you do, Lieutenant?" she said, smoothly.

Ric made the introductions awkwardly. "My sister, Julia McFarlane, Mrs. Calvert. And may I present Lieutenant Gordon?"

Jill nodded briefly, her throat tight and aching, as she fought back the young rage with which she had blasted her brother so many times.

"Nice you could get a pass, Ric," she said coldly, "even if you didn't take the trouble to let me know."

"You were out," Ric fumbled, "I thought perhaps you'd gone home."

"I haven't gone home. I'll be here in the morning, and I'll expect to see you then."

"I don't know about tomorrow. I might be on duty." Ric was angry now, too.

"At least you'll telephone me," Jill said severely. "Nice to have seen you, Mrs. Calvert."

A Fulfillment Of a Dream

Spang made a curt little bow, and they walked away. Jill was trembling a little, troubled by this silly fury that had shaken her.

"He lied to me," she said, when they were out in the night again.

"But why do I care? Why should it matter to me if he preferred being with that woman instead of me? I suppose it's because I hate seeing some one who belongs to me doing a cheap, dishonest trick. Spang, you didn't tell me she was pretty. It's the same one, isn't it—the woman you told me about?"

"Yes, that's the one. And I don't think she's pretty."

Jill warned a bit at that, and her tautness lessened. They were walking aimlessly now, the blare and glitter of the dance spot behind them.

"She isn't young, though," she said spitefully.

"She's been around," Spang said. "She knows what the score is."

"But what on earth does she want with Ric? I didn't tell Mother, Spang. I'd hoped it might be just a piece of foolishness that would pass. I hoped maybe Ric would be shipped out, and it would all end, and Mother needn't know. She dotes on Ric so, and I couldn't bear to hurt and worry her, when perhaps it was just a temporary folly."

"Ric won't be shipped out for a month, at least. No more quotas coming up. But when he gets into officer's training, he won't have any time for foolishness."

"Let's walk all the way, shall we? Or are you awfully tired?"

"No, I like walking. I'm glad you came down, Jill." Spang gathered her arm closer. "Because I may be leaving soon. I've asked for my transfer to active duty. I don't like this desk stuff."

"Soon?" Jill repeated in a small, thin voice. "How soon?"

"We never know in this army. But an older man can do what I'm doing here, and things are shaping up fast. I want to be in on them."

"You mean you want to fly?"

"I'm a flier, Jill. And our air force is getting to be a magnificent thing, and I want to be a part of it. I'll have to get back into training—I want to learn to handle heavy stuff."

"I suppose it has to be that way. I'll miss you, Spang. I hope you'll miss me a little."

Spang cleared his throat. "I'll miss you like the devil. But this mess will be over sometime, a year or two, I hope. Jill—wait a minute. . . ." They were on a dimly lighted street, a shabby street, where a tall billboard made a dark rectangle of shadow. Spang drew her back further into the shadow, bent her head back, and kissed her swiftly on the lips. "Keep that for me till I come back," he said huskily.

"I will!" Jill whispered, quivering with breathless happiness from head to foot. "Oh, Spang, I will!"

They were silent all the way back to the hotel, but Jill's blood was a tumult, a singing. This was it! This was real. He did care. It was in the pressure of his fingers on her arm, in his eyes as they came into the lighted lobby, in his uncertain smile as he prodded the elevator button.

"You'll call me tomorrow morning? I'll see you again?"

Not too eagerly! Slow, Jill McFarlane!

"Do my best," he said, and flicked a little salute at her as the elevator door opened and he turned away.

Jill groped into the elevator. Through the rose-colored fog that enveloped her she was aware of some one else standing there. That cold-eyed captain Spang had called "Old Cyanide." He was looking at her keenly, and when she stopped at her floor he got out, too, and as she turned to go down the corridor he said, "Miss McFarlane?"

Jill stopped, puzzled.

"You are Miss McFarlane, aren't you?"

"Yes, I am Julia McFarlane."

"I am Roger Mackey. Pardon me for speaking to you, but I once had some friends named McFarlane—in Tennessee."

Captain Mackey Asks a Question

"I live in Tennessee." She had been right about him. He did look lonely and bewildered; the hardness, the bitterness the young officers had spoken of softened as he smiled at her.

"There was a girl with hair like yours, and her name was Julia, too," he said.

"My mother, perhaps. She was Julia McFarlane. She married Richard McFarlane, a sort of fourth cousin, I think."

"It was a long time ago," he said, "but you reminded me of that Julia McFarlane I knew, and then I heard your name spoken, so I took the liberty of speaking to you. Your mother is quite well."

"Oh, yes, she's very well. And still very young and lovely looking, we think. I'll be glad to remember you to her, Captain Mackey."

"I doubt if she will remember me. It was all a very long time ago. Before the other war, in fact. But she was one of those women who do not easily forget. Good night, Miss McFarlane."

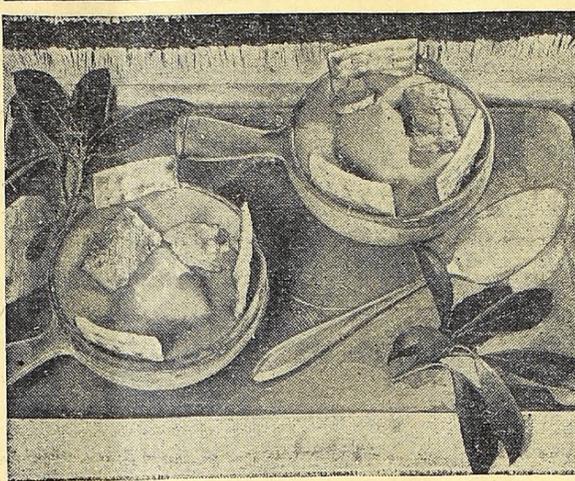

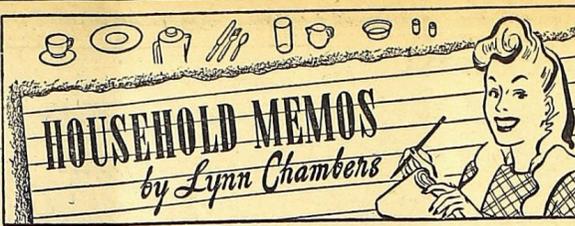

"Good night, Captain Mackey."

He reminded her of some one, why couldn't she think who it was? She liked him. He wasn't grim at all.

But she forgot him quickly, and it was weeks before she thought of him again, because she was in love and Spang had kissed her. Life was wonderful. Thin, lemon-tinted dawn was creeping into the east before she fell asleep.

Jill waited all morning, wandering around the room, frowning at the telephone, but neither Ric nor Spang called. She grew more impatient by the moment, though she knew that military duty for officers or enlisted men gave little thought to personal desires, and little freedom during the day. But this was Sunday. Ric was avoiding her, of course. And now she would have to go home and make up some vague, comforting lies for her mother, and old John I. would look at her with eyes like jet augers and probably corner her somewhere later and ask her what was going wrong with Ric.

Lenten Specials

Many of us never investigate the possibilities of delectable fish dinners until the Lenten season. I can't help thinking this is a pity because fish is a source of such easily digested proteins and is especially rich in vitamins and minerals.

Fish is tender and requires little cooking. It can be prepared easily even by the amateur cook if she just follows some simple directions.

For the more experienced cook, there is a wealth of fish dishes, many of them combining two types of fish for extra deliciousness. She can get an amazing variety into the diet simply by experimenting with the delightful variety in fish cookery.

Baked Red Snapper Marguery. (Serves 8 to 10)

2 pound red snapper
2 pounds boiled shrimp, chopped
½ pound American cheese, grated
1 cup white sauce
3 hard-cooked eggs
½ cup cooked mushrooms
1 tablespoon chopped oysters or truffles

Boil fish until tender and separate from bones into large pieces. Place one half of fish in buttered or oiled casserole, cover with one-half the eggs, cheese, shrimp, mushrooms and oysters. Repeat, then pour white sauce over all. Bake 30 minutes in a moderate (350-degree) oven. Any boiled or leftover fish may be used in place of the red snapper.

Sizzlin' Fish Steaks. (Serves 8 to 10)

4 pounds frozen or fresh halibut, salmon or swordfish
½ cup diced bacon
½ cup rich milk
1 cup bread crumbs
Pepper
¼ teaspoon garlic or onion salt

Allow steaks to thaw, if frozen. Dip in seasoned milk, then in bread crumbs. Place in pan with diced bacon on top of fish. Cook in a very hot (450-degree) oven for 30 minutes, until browned nicely. Transfer to heated metal platter which has been sprinkled with water. Serve immediately while sizzling.

Fish With Mushrooms. (Serves 4)

2 cups cooked fish, flaked
1 cup medium thick white sauce
2 tablespoons butter or bacon fat
½ cup water
1 teaspoon lemon juice
1 pound mushrooms
1 tablespoon minced green pepper
Salt, pepper, paprika

Cut and saute mushrooms in butter or bacon fat. Remove mushrooms when cooked and add water, fish, green pepper, lemon juice and seasonings. Combine mushrooms with white sauce. After fish mixture has simmered 5 minutes, add white sauce and transfer mixture to casserole. Dust top with paprika, and bake in a hot (450-degree) oven for 25 minutes.

Pour lemon juice and melted butter over it before serving.

Nicely Tailored Daytime Frock
Entire Wardrobe for Tiny Tots

1603

Tailored Dress

THE popular diagonal closing gives a smart, fresh look to this simply tailored daytime frock. Repeated on one hip, this line accents the slim, straight skirt. A style you can wear everywhere and feel sure you look your best. Pattern provides short sleeves or three-quarter length.

Pattern No. 1603 comes in sizes 12, 14, 16, 18 and 20. Size 14, short sleeves, 3¼ yards of 35 or 39-inch.

Household Hints

Use a stick and not a brush for stirring paint. Forcing the brush into the corners will damage the bristles.

Select a shelf in the kitchen on which to store waxed paper, napkins, individual cups, string and scissors. When preparing lunches you'll find this a wonderful convenience and time-saver.

Do you lose your patience when you sew with a double thread and the thread tangles? Tie a knot at the end of each thread instead of tying the two threads together.

Few foods contain such a variety of vital nutrients as peanuts. Use them in cookies, cakes and frostings, also with meat and vegetable dishes.

Four-Piece Outfit
A COMPLETE four-piece outfit for your tiny cherub. It's delightfully easy to make—round yoked princess dress is trimmed with ruffling; slip and panties are edged with dainty lace.

BETTER THAN PILLS FOR CONSTIPATION

Finds Famous Breakfast Cereal Most Helpful of All

Have you given up hope of being "regular" again? Then read this sincere, unsolicited letter:

"I am a registered nurse and I know what a problem constipation is, especially with patients deprived of their usual physical activities. When pills brought temporary relief, eating KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN regularly actually prevented irregularity in more cases than I can mention. Your product is a great boon to our modern age." Miss Katherine E. Walsh, Town Hall, Newington, Conn.

Yes, eating ALL-BRAN regularly often brings lasting relief from constipation due to lack of bulk in the diet. For best results, eat it for breakfast every day—and drink plenty of water. Try KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN for 10 days! If by that time you are not completely satisfied, send the empty carton to the Kellogg Company, Battle Creek, Michigan, and get double your money back!

ALL-BRAN is not a purgative but a wholesome food made from the vital outer layers of whole wheat. Eat daily either as a cereal, or in muffins. Ask your grocer for KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN.

DOAN'S PILLS

WHAT brand or breed of athletes make the most money out of professional sport? How do salaries paid out today compare with those of the past? Those marvelling at the salaries paid to Bob Feller, Charlie Trippi and others fail to recall the total amounts collected by Babe Ruth annually from all of his financial deals. They also overlook the change picked up by Red Grange after he left Illinois to play with the Chicago Bears.

Red Grange

In addition to his contract with the Bears, the Redhead made a motion picture called "Two Minutes to Play." As I recall Grange's conversation at the time, something like two years after he had left Illinois, he was around $250,000 in front, and those were the golden, happy years when they let you keep most of what you made, when there were no 70 and 80 and 90 per cent brackets.

The Galloping Ghost at the end of two years had made and kept more money than any four stars could do today. Unfortunately in other deals with C. C. Pyle, Grange blew a big part of his budding fortune.

Babe Ruth averaged far more than $100,000 a year in his prime. There were years when he passed the $200,000 count, including all the sidelines with which he dallied.

Feller and Trippi have ranged into rich pastures, but they won't be so rich when they have paid taxes on their various checks. Don't forget that when Gene Tunney received a check for more than $900,000 after his second fight with Dempsey, more than 20 years ago, Tunney retained around 90 per cent of his pay. Today the tax department would take 90 per cent and leave Tunney 10 per cent.

In actual cash returns, Feller's $80,000 won't approach Babe Ruth's $80,000, not by $30,000 or more.

Leading Collectors

What are the leading money making sports as far as the individual star is concerned? Byron Nelson passed the $50,000 mark one season in golf prize money and this didn't include his receipts from sidelines. This was worth around $40,000 more. Ben Hogan reached the $44,500 mark in prize money in 1946. Hogan also had other pay checks that golf brought in. My guess would be a total of around $65,000 or $75,000.

So the pro golfer, or at least a few of them, can get along pretty well comparatively. A Nelson or a Hogan will do far better than a Coulter, a Trippi, a Buddy Young or any other pro football player. But the golf drop is rather steep after you take in the few crowd pleasers, the few big money makers.

Top baseball salaries have ranged lately from Hank Greenberg's $55,000 to Bob Feller's estimated $80,000. The difference in actual dollar returns won't be large after they have moved into certain brackets where the golden harvest suddenly reaches an abrupt finish. When you figure in the taxes and the present cost of living, the $10,000 that Hans Wagner and Christy Mathewson once drew are not so far away from the $50,000 and $60,000 boys of today.

As far as pro football goes it is an established economic fact that the two rival leagues can't possibly break even, team for team, with the salaries they are paying today. Baseball has 154 games a year, excluding the 30 or 35 exhibition contests. Against this, pro football can offer only 14 or 16 games a season. As every one knew it would, the new football league took a million dollar beating last fall. Certain National league teams were none too happy. The only happy people were the football players, who frequently were paid double their actual value.

Durocher Tops Managers

Leo Durocher apparently set a new mark for high pay as a manager in 1946. Here guesses have ranged from $60,000 to $70,000. Certainly Leo's unfortunate winter publicity isn't going to help him this spring and summer. He has left himself too wide open for the barb throwers, including rival teams and the umpires. But The Lip is still one of the best managers baseball has known. I've seen him work at close range—and this is no guess. It is also no guess to say that he hasn't made Brother Branch Rickey any too happy this winter.

In the way of pay, such jockeys as Johnny Longden and Eddie Arcaro head the list. Longden's lifetime earnings are rated close to the million dollar mark. Arcaro has known $90,000 and $100,000 years. Longden and Arcaro probably are better fixed financially than other sporting stars.

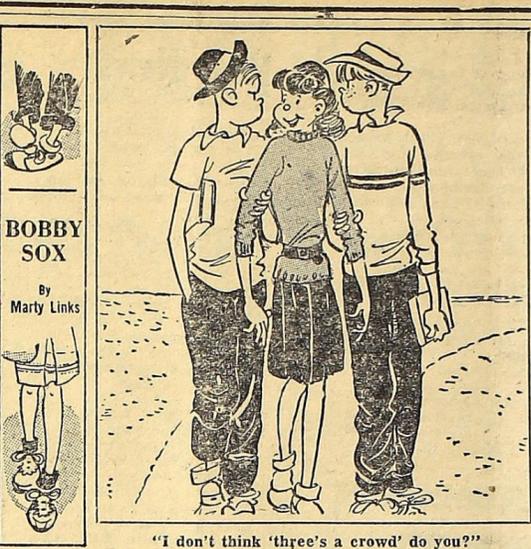

When they finally quit riding, they have a prospect of long and profitable careers as trainers, track executives, or owners.

After all, it is what you finish with, not what you get for a year, that tells the story.

YOUR tongue contributes much to the day's happiness. Speak kind words and you will invariably hear kind echoes. If you cannot do great things, do small things in a great way. Service is a yardstick by which greatness is measured. The morality of an action depends upon the motive from which we act.—Samuel Johnson. Some people pursue happiness. Others create it. The man who makes a mistake and doesn't correct it is making another mistake. Misfortune ever claimed the pity of the brave.—Byron.
