Aleman Proves A 'Good Neighbor'

Mexican President's Visit Boosts Friendly Relations

By BAUKHAGE News Analyst and Commentator.

WNU Service, 1616 Eye Street, N. W., Washington, D. C.

WASHINGTON .- Despite the fact that relations between the United States and some of our sister republics to the south have degenerated considerably since the inventor of the "good neighbor" policy died that's not the case with Mexico. You would realize that if you had seen the all-time high in demonstrations that took place when Proc. tions that took place when Pres. Miguel Aleman visited Washington.

The first meeting and greeting on Constitution avenue had the inspiration of local pepcampaign but there was no outside stimulant injected into what was a really rip - roaring response to lanky and smiling Latin when he visited congress on May Day. More than a few of his hearers could follow him in the Spanish-and everybody could match up his liquid phrases with the translation they held in their laps. The speech was short and snappy.

When he was through, senators, representatives and the packed galleries couldn't stop applauding even after el Presidente had disappeared. Applause burst out again and again for almost everybody as they passed up the aisle. Senator Vandenberg, who usually is associated with foreign relations of another sort, got a generous share along with the cabinet members and diplomatic corps.

From the rostrum of the house of representatives, Aleman said that "nearly 300 million people living side by side in this hemisphere are concerned not only with assistance to ward off foreign aggression, but also with the efforts to overcome the dangers of poverty and despair in the difficult years of peace." little bit earlier that day a joint statement had been issued, signed by both President Truman and President Aleman, stating that agreements had been reached for the U.S. to grant credits to Mexico -credits to make the greatest and earliest contribution to the economic development of the land below the Rio Grande. The two chief executives agreed that their respective administrations must exert every effort to raise the standards of living in their countries, increasing productivity and, consequently, purchasing power.

Confusion Prevails At News Conference

We newsmen had our own "hasta la vista" later that afternoon in Blair-Lee house, a part of the twin residences turned over to visiting dignitaries for a press and radio conference which came near being chiefly a photographic contest. It was a struggle, unseemly indeed, in that somewhat precieuse setting of antique furniture, pale green walls, wide mirrors and not very large early American rooms.

Not large enough anyway for the mob which surged about between the little bar, the battery of cameras and the doorway into the garden through which el Presidente was to appear. Dogwood in the garden looked over the brick wall, somewhat startled at the noisy gathering.

At last the tall smiling figure, flanked by secret service men, appeared. He sat at a table. The newsmen crowded around him, completely cutting off the cameras. The newswomen's huge hats completely screened the klieg lights. A controversy of no little heat ensued and no little heat exuded from the high candle-power bulbs and the normal radiation of a hundred or so energetic human beings.

Finally the newsmen were pushed back and the cameras set to work. Some of the reporters were pushed clear out of range and I saw one helpless, hapless gentleman wedged tightly between the bar and the backs of three husky Mexican pressmen. The poor fellow's right hand was pinioned so note-taking was impossible. Only his left arm was free, and that was deep in the middle of a nest of scotch-andsodas. What else could he do about it? (Salud y pesetos!)

The photographing continued. The photographers in front wouldn't

The newsmen cried, "Enough!" One reporter, reversing the ancient proverb sighed, "One word is worth a thousand pictures."

The photographer yielded.

"Do they do this in Mexico?" asked an American reporter, archly. "They do this in Mexico," answered a Mexican reporter, in per-

Little news was brought out beyond what Aleman had said to congress or what was in the joint statement concerning loans for Mexican industrial and agricultural develop-

But there was one, last question: What impressed you most on your visit, Mr. President?"

"Arlington and Mount Vernon," he replied, "The enduring lessons of George Washington, the great father of your country, must be constantly taught and rehearsed in your country."

And so the Truman gesture at Chapultepec was reciprocated.

Mexico Embarking On Six-Year Plan

Mexico still has some credit previously approved by the Export-Import bank which she hasn't used. She has borrowed 68 millions largely used for highway construction, transportation and industry; she has repaid 13 millions; still has 30 millions in the bank.

More will be needed to carry out Aleman's six-year plan, which in-cludes increased irrigation and power facilities-two TVA's will be constructed, Mexican style.

Mexico is an agricultural country without too much arable soil; she needs to raise more to feed herself properly. To do this will require six imes as many irrigated acres as at present.

The joint statement also indicated that the two presidents were working out an arrangement to stabilize exchange which would permit Mexico to buy American dollars when she needs them to buy American goods, and sell them back when she can spare them. In wartime, when she was selling us more than she was buying, she built up a supply of dollars. But now she's buying more from us than she's selling to us. By allowing her to buy dollars at the rate of five pesos to the dollar, Mexico's money will be kept stable -otherwise individuals might start bidding up the dollar, which would decrease the value of the peso.

What did it add up to? Good sense between good neighbors who want to continue to be good customers. Mexico is farther to the left politically than we are, but it is by no means one hundred per cent socialist.

As for Aleman's political philosophy, it was plain what he thought about the one-party totalitarian states when he said before con-

"Civilization wanes when the state curtails individual freedom. . . to impose its will or that of a political party on its citizens."

It appears that Aleman's brand of democracy is near enough to ours to make him the good neighbor we Washingtonians who met him think he is.

Oklahoma Senator Shot; Telephone Strike Settled

PHONE STRIKE ENDS: Workers Accept $4.40

Long distance telephone operators agreed to accept a compromise pay increase of $4.40 a week, thereby ending the month-old strike that has been tying up the nation's communications. Quick settlements of 28 other disputes followed the acquiescence of the long lines workers to the new terms. The increase means about 11 cents per hour pay boost, vacation benefits and certain other concessions, such as seniority rights. About 22,000 workers in 42 states are affected.

The agreement was announced by Asst. Secy. of Labor John Gibson and Conciliation Director Edgar Warren, after a 7½ hour night session with representatives of the unions and the American Telegraph and Telephone company. Strikes against local companies of the Bell system were settled on substantially the same terms.

Besides the wage hikes and other benefits the contract with the long distance workers was practically a renewal of old terms, which were extended for one year. A clause permits either the union or the company to begin negotiations, after September 1, for reclassification of towns to readjust wage schedules.

Officials of the long lines workers' union indicated the members would not cross picket lines of striking local telephone workers.

A hometown feud exploded into gunplay on the floor of the Oklahoma senate house in Oklahoma City. When the smoke cleared, elderly Sen. Thomas Anglin was lying wounded, shot through the hip. His assailant, Rep. James Scott, a marine veteran, was arrested a few minutes later in a washroom.

floor. Scott apparently fired twice, with one shot going wild. Some senators were under the impression that Anglin returned the fire, but this has been denied. Police said that Anglin's curious nine-shot, 25-caliber automatic had not been in action.

Both legislators come from Holdensville, Okla. Anglin is 64, the oldest senator in the chamber in point of service. Representative Scott, 34, is heir to an oil fortune. Only motive that has been discovered for his action is that Anglin's law firm represented Scott's former wife in her divorce suit and property settle-

U. S. to End Army Rule

Control of the U.S. zone of Germany soon will be transferred from the American military government to civil authority. Secretary of State Marshall is preparing to take this long-delayed step as soon as possible. The move will reverse the state department's 158-year-old tradition. Heretofore the department has vigorously resisted taking on any functions except formulation of policy.

Former Secretary Byrnes wanted administration of Germany left with the war department, but Marshall, himself a veteran of the war department, is willing to change that. He has not revealed any details of the civil government setup that he has in mind. Obviously a considerable military force will be needed in Germany for some time, in case of outbreaks.

Marshall denied that American and British officials had run into difficulties over basic policy in plans for merging the American and Britabout half the senators were on the ish zones, as reported from Berlin.

more in the drive. Clifford Oslow cut across the Drake's lawn and headed for the back steps. But not soon enough. The door of a big red cabriolet opened and a woman came rushing after him. She was a little person, smaller even than Clifford himself. But she was fast. She reached him just as he made the gap in the hedge.

"You're Mr. Oslow, aren't you?" she panted. She didn't wait for a confession. She pulled out a little book and a pencil and held them under his nose. "I've been trying to get her autograph all week," she explained. "I want you to get it for me. Just drop the book in a mailbox. It's stamped and the address

And then she was gone and Clifford was standing there holding the book and pencil in his hand. "Never mind," she shouted from the car, "mailing the pencil!" He stuffed the autograph book in his pocket and hurried up the steps. There was a lot of noise coming from the parlor. Several male voices all going it at once. A strange woman's voice insinuating itself every now and then. And Julia's voice, rising above the babble, clear and kindly and very sure.

"Yes," she was saying. And, "I'm very glad." And, "People have been tremendously generous to me."

She sounded tired, though. Clifford leaned against the ironingboard while he finished the sandwich and the coke. He left the empty bottle on the table, snapped off the kitchen light and pushed easily on the hall door. The hall light was on and someone Clifford didn't know was pacing the carpet across from the parlor. But it was only three short steps to the rear stairs. He didn't make it.

Someone who babbled incomprehensively at him grabbed him by the arm and bounced him along the hall and into the parlor. "Here he s," somebody shouted. "Here's Mr. Oslow!"

There were half-a-dozen people there, all with note books and busy pens. Julia was in the big chair by the fireplace, looking plumper than usual in her new green dress.

She smiled at him affectionately but, it seemed to him, a little distantly. He'd noticed that breach in ner glance many times lately. He hoped that it wasn't superiority, but he was desperately afraid that it was. She looked, he saw, as tired as she had sounded.

"Hello, Clifford," she said.
"Hello, Julia," he answered.

BEFORE he reached the second flight, though, he could hear the woman's voice on the hall phone. "At last," she was saying, "diligent digging has unearthed an adult and kiss her. A reporter had him right against the wall. How did it come Tomorrow.' He is, of all peo-

On the bottom was his earliest one.

The one he wrote when Julia and he were first married. The one whose people both of them lived with in the two years during which he labored over it. "How's Vincent coming along?" Julia would say. "He's got the house built," Clifford would tell her, "but I can't think of a valid way for him to get the Gleason acre he needs for pasturage."

Yes, Clifford was a writer then. Large W. And he kept on thinking of himself as one for many years after, despite the concerted indifference of the publishers. Finally, of course, his writing had become merely a gesture. A stubborn unwillingness to admit defeat. Now, to be sure, the defeat was unquestioned. Now that Julia, who before a year ago hadn't put pen to paper, had written a book, had it accepted and now was looking at advertisements that said, "over four hundred thousand copies."

Julia, Clifford sighed. Well, the utter miserableness of his failure wouldn't be permitted to steal one ounce from her merited pleasure in her own accomplishment!

He picked up "Welcome Tomorrow" and opened it, as he opened every book, in the middle. He read a paragraph. And then another. He had just started a third when suddenly he stopped. He put down Julia's book, reached over to the shelf and tugged out the dusty manuscript of his own first effort. Rapidly he flipped over the crisp pages. Then he began to read aloud.

FROM his own manuscript he read: "The water was high above the fence-top. Beyond on the hill the cattle cowered. Vincent stood, silent and stricken, beside the ruin of his farm."

Clifford put the manuscript on the table on top of the book. For a time he sat quietly inspecting the crease of his trousers. Then he put the book in his lap and left the manuscript on the table and began to read them, page against page. He had his answer in ten minutes. And then he went back downstairs.

A couple of reporters were still in the parlor. "But, Mrs. Oslow, naturally our readers are interested," one was insisting. "When," he demanded, "will you finish your next book?

"I don't know," she answered uneasily.

Clifford came across the room to her, smiling. He put his arm around her and pressed her shoulder firmly but gently. "Now, now, Julia," he protested. "Let's not quibble with the young man." The reporter looked up.

"Mrs. Oslow's new novel," Clifford announced proudly, "will be ready in another month.

Julia turned around and stared at him, quite terrified.

But Clifford kept on smiling. Then he reached into his pocket and brought out the autograph book and pencil that had been forced on him on his way home. "Sign here," he instructed.

Although generally favorable weather and longer hours in the fields aided in the production record, the article contends that more important factors were greatly increased mechanization of farming methods, wider use of improved crop varieties of the hybrid type, shifts to crops and livestock requirfect English, white teeth gleaming. ITTLE did Richard Basehart suspect, when he left Zanesville, Ohio, that some day the whole town would rise up and honor him. Son of the editor of the Times-Signal, nephew of a mayor, he left town when he was 20, headed for a theatrical career. Got it, too; his seventh play on Broadway was "The Hasty Heart," he got the Critics Award, Hollywood grabbed him. "The Second Mrs. Burton" has come up with something new it daytime serials; each Wednesday afternoon some well-known womar who is an authority in her field speaks on her subject. Experts or child care, marital relations, budgets, all the problems that beset women today are presented, as a public service feature. On May 28 Elsie Stapleton, who has worked out budgets for 30,000 individuals and companies, will talk. As "The Sec. ond Mrs. Burton" is a story of marriage and divorce, the feature is highly appropriate.

Elisha Cook Jr., of RKO's "Bort to Kill," has a fine system. He makes four pictures a year, spend the rest of his time hunting and fishing in the High Sierras, where he has a small farm. While at worl he stays with friends in Hollywood and his wife runs the farm. They're living as they like to live right now instead of waiting till they're old and gray to do it.

 Changing his community to a program of balanced farming earned for M. P. Moore, Senatobia, Mississippi, election to the Champion Farmers of America in 1944. On his 15,000 acres he pioneered soil conservation methods, proved that feed crops can be grown, and showed that properly managed rundown land will profitably support livestock. On fewer acres he grows as much cotton as under the one-crop system, and on the acres removed from cotton, raises feed for hundreds of cattle. The purebred Polled Herefords on his Circle "M" Ranch are among the best. For four consecutive years his auction prices have set new world records. His many tractors are equipped with Firestone Ground Grip tires, and he says that the new Firestone Champion Ground Grip is the best tire he has ever

NOTE: Write to The Firestone Tire & Rubber Company, Akron, Ohio, for booklet

THERE are four sound reasons why men like Champion Farmer Moore are putting their tractors on Firestone Champion Ground Grips: (1) they clean up to 100% more effectively; (2) they pull up to 62% more; (3) they last up to 91% longer; and (4) they roll more smoothly on the highways.

The extra high, curved, connected traction bars make this superiority possible. Shaped like a pyramid, they cut into the soil with a sharp, cleaving action. Mud falls from them freely because the space between the bars is wider at the shoulders than near the center of the tread. The bar connections brace and strengthen the tread and give the tires a powerful "center bite" in the very heart of the traction zone. The tires roll smoothly because the curved, connected bars are in continuous contact with the highway.

It will pay you to insist upon Firestone Champion Ground Grips for your tractor. They cost no more than ordinary tires.

It's electric-the most dependable time an 8-yearold can live by. Or anybody else. Radio stations, railroads, airlines, millions of homes and businesses are run on electric time.

You've learned to take electric time for grantedlike electric light-or air or water. That's one more proof of the dependability of electric service . . . service so reliable that you confidently trust it for countless jobs around your home, farm, store or factory.

America enjoys the most and the best electric service in the world. Partly because people like you have taken advantage of so many electrical opportunities. Partly because the business-managed electric companies have worked constantly to keep the quality of service up so everybody can enjoy it—and to keep the price down so everybody can afford it.

LIST LIVES

Richard McFarlane, who disappeared during the first World War, leaving his wife, Julia, and two children, suddenly returns 25 years later and identifies him-self as Captain Mackey, stationed at the same camp as his son, Ric, serving in World War II. Ric has become in-wolved with Sandra Calvert, a divorce Who Captain Mackey knew at one time. He threatens her, but she marries Ric anyway, arriving at Julia's farm to live with her. She startles Julia by recognizing a picture of Richard as that of Captain Mackey. When Julia goes to a theater with Dave Patterson, a family friend, Sandra and Jill, Julia's daughter, become engaged in a vehement argument.

CHAPTER XVIII

"You couldn't understand Ricky, though. He's so sensitive. And you aren't a complex person at all, you know, Jill. You're primitive ple could be so entirely different as you and Ricky."

"I'm such a primitive that I learned to tell the truth very early, and Ric never bothered. He went in for the more esthetic angles; he thought living excitingly was more important than keeping his word or choosing high-minded people for friends, or anything like that."

"I suppose that's intended for a dig," Sandra said, "but it's quite all right. It doesn't worry me at all. Ricky told me that you would probably hate me."

"How stupid of him—to think that I'd bother!" Jill drawled. "Why would anything you do matter to me, Sandra? Or anything that I do concern you? We're separate people. We can live our lives without getting emotional, one way or another. Only don't put on an act with me, Sandra. It's no good. And leave my mother alone. Dooley's not like me. She doesn't know how to take care of herself."

"I rather like your mother," Sandra said, languidly. "I'd never want to do anything to hurt her, if I could help it."

'What do you mean, if you can help it?" demanded Jill, hotly. "You'd better make an effort to help it, Mrs. Richard McFarlane."

Sandra got up and strolled over to the dressing table, picked up the framed photograph that stood there. The picture of a blue-eyed officer in an old-fashioned, widebrimmed campaign hat.

"Is this a relative?" she asked, with studied casualness.

"My father." Jill did not look at her. "Ric's father, too. He died in France in the last war."

"Oh, ves. Ricky told me. He looks so much like an old friend of my first husband's that the resem-blance is really startling." She studied the picture, and her lips curved greedily. She licked them slyly like a cat, and her eyelids narrowed, a speculative look growing behind them. She put the frame down, shrugged a little. "Your fa-I detest that I won't look at him any more. Odd that two people or not, just as you please." should be so alike, isn't it?"

"Not terribly odd. We only have a few features. They couldn't help together.'

"By the way, Jill?" Sandra paused in the door. "I haven't discussed the future with your mother. I really dread having to do it. But I do have to know what's ahead of us, don't I?"

Jill stood up, stiffening. "What has my mother to do with what's head of you?" she asked.

"But naturally—she has every-thing to do with it! Don't you think it would be better if you talked to her about it, Jill?"

"Talked to her about what? What future do you mean? You knew that Ric would be gone, perhaps for years. You knew that, when you married him. "But that's just it. I did marry him. I am Ricky's wife. And because I'm his wife I do have to be concerned about our future. Ricky has rights that have to be con-

"Rights?" Jill repeated curtly. "Of course he has rights. The right to get the best out of life that he can when the war is over. But my mother has nothing to do with that. That's Ric's problem."

A Request for Ric's Rights

"You'd like to see him pushed out, wouldn't you? You'd like to keep everything for yourself. You've been digging yourself in, haven't you-building yourself up as such a dutiful daughter, playing Ric down with those sly, sidelong digs!
Awfully clever! But—I think I know something that you don't know, Miss Jill McFarlane! It's merely a hunch I have, but my hunches have a way of coming through. And my advice to you is to change your antics, and quick!" Jill looked at her, her eyes like ice.

"You'd better part it in words of one syllable, Sandra," she said, coldly. "Being a primitive I'm no good at puzzles. I think you know how to speak plainly, if you want to do it. I think you know a lot of very plain words, indeed." Sandra threw back her head do know the plain words! Only plain wear overalls and eat cabbage and grits like white trash, and put your cars up, but none of that fooled me for a minute. Ricky has a right to and you work in corn-fields and "I was for a minute. Ricky has a right to his share, and I'm going to have it."

Jill's eyes were amber flames. "So blackmail is one of your special arts, too, is it? I thought as much," she said, slowly. "I suppose poor Ric has done something foolish—the poor deluded sap! And now you've got hold of it and want to hold it over my mother's head, because you've seen how she adores really. You are in your element here on a farm. Odd that two peo- It simply won't work. pecting anything from Ric, except disappointment."

Sandra pressed herself against the door, her mouth twisted to one side, her eyes guarded.

"I don't like scenes," she said, "I hope it won't be loftily. necessary for me to say or do anything unpleasant. I don't want to hurt your mother. I merely want ther was very handsome, Jill, but mean to have them. Anything you say is entirely unimportant. You

"I shall certainly not speak to her about it!" Jill snapped. "And "Oh, yes," if you plan any chiseling I shall do an old friend of my mother's, putting a few similar combinations all I can to defeat you. You've been weren't you? You told me, and I'd made welcome here, you're Ric's forgotten." She dropped on a stool wife, and on his account I'll treat and coaxed her thin garments to you as Ric's wife should be treated. | cover her brown legs and eased But I'll appreciate it, right now, if you'll get out of my sight. I still like to believe that I'm a lady, but ther," she went on. "He was an when you're around, Sandra, I have difficulty remembering it."

Mackey and Jill Meet Again

"I'm going. With pleasure!" Sandra bit the words off like lengths of red-hot wire. "But I'm going to have ten thousand dollars! I'm going to have it right away! Do you think I was fool enough to marry into this family without knowing what Ricky's prospects were? I'm no child! I've taken care of myself for a long time. I know how to go on doing it."

"I haven't got ten thousand dollars and my mother hasn't got itand she's not going to sacrifice anything to get it-not for you, Sandra McFarlane!"

"Very well," said Sandra, evenly. "I see I shall have to speak to her about it myself."

"You dare to do it! You dare to make my mother unhappy—you dare! I'll throw you out of the house myself. Get out of my room —get out—get out!"

The door clapped angrily as Sandra slammed it. Her hands trembling, her body like ice but her face and eyes blazing, Jill stood still for a minute glaring, shuddering all over with the fierce anger that shook her.

She was still trembling all over when the door opened a cautious crack and old John I. thrust his head in, his thin hair disordered, his mustache quivering like an inquisitive antenna.

"What's broke?" he whispered. Jill got herself in hand with a little difficulty.

"I got mad, John I.," she said, hoarsely. "I yelled like a-like

"Like a McFarlane," supplied her trandfather, helpfully. "I heard grandfather, helpfully. you. What were you yelling about?"

"Sandra made me mad. words would do for you, you smug, self-satisfied little snob! I want ten Ric's share. How could Ric have thousand dollars. Is that plain a share now-while Mother is alive? enough? And I mean to have it. I got furious. I wish I hadn't, I Oh, I know this smart show you've feel unsure of myself now-but I all been putting on, I saw through did. I'm sorry if I waked you up,

She said she knew something that I didn't know, something that would make Mother unhappy. That's when I flew at her."

Jill saw her grandfather's eyes move past her uneasily for a moment, focus on the picture on her dresser; then his mouth drew straight and his eyes narrowed a little. Without a word, he walked out of the room. Then she heard a car door slam down below, and she snatched up her robe and wriggled into it and flew down the stairs. Dooley had come, and Dooley must not know. She had to get to Dooley before Sandra did.

She flung open the screen door and stood framed in the light, all wrinkled green silk and flaming hair and eyes like black flames in a face as white as chalk.

And so it was that Richard Mc-Farlane, standing there under the light, saw his daughter.

Jill drew back, startled, and said, 'Oh!" and pulled her flying drapery around her. Then she got her breath a little and said, "Oh, I'm sorry! You startled me. I was expecting my mother. You're Captain Mackey, aren't you? I remember. I saw you at Ridley."

He came into the room, blinking at the light. He looked a little odd, Jill thought; there was that same bewildered look in his eyes, that same curious nostalgia, as though he were thinking back hard, trying to remember something that hurt. He held out his hand.

"I remember," he said. "You are Julia, aren't you? You were with young Gordon, down at Ridley."

"I'm Jill. Nobody ever has called me Julia. Won't you sit down, Captain Mackey? You came to see Mother, did you? I'm sorry. She's out just now, but she should be back soon. Will you wait?"

He stood turning his cap around in his hands.

"I came," he said, "to see your brother's wife. The young Mrs. Mc-Farlane. She's here, isn't she?" "Yes, she's here. Shall I call her? She went to bed, I think. It isn'tthere isn't anything wrong, is there,

Captain? With Ric, I mean?" "No, there's nothing wrong. Not with your brother, at least. But I have a message for your sister-inlaw. But there's no special hurry

"Will you sit down then? I'm sorry you find me in such dis array, my rights-Ricky's rights. And I but I was tired, and I didn't feel like dressing again after my bath."

He took the chair she indicated. He said, "You're very like your mother. She had hair like that, "Oh, yes," Jill said, "you were officer, too. I was always sorry that I wasn't born a boy so that I could be a soldier like my father. I have a brother in the air corps -but you know that, of course. You've seen him, down at Ridley, I suppose?"

"I may have seen him," he evaded. "You've been hurt, haven't you? What happened? Car get away from you?" "No-it was a horse. I went over her head. "Can't I get you something to drink, Captain?'

"I could use a drink." He smiled at her. "Could I come with you and fix it myself?"

"Of course, if you like. Men al. ways like to get into kitchens, don't they?" Jill led him through the hall and the dining-room, flipping switches as she went, noting that he seemed to be studying the rooms as they passed through them. "This house is very old," she talked on, pushing the swing door back and waiting for him to precede her into the warmth and peach-pickle fragrance of Mamie's kitchen. "My mother's grandfather built it before the Civil War, and the bricks were burned here on the place."

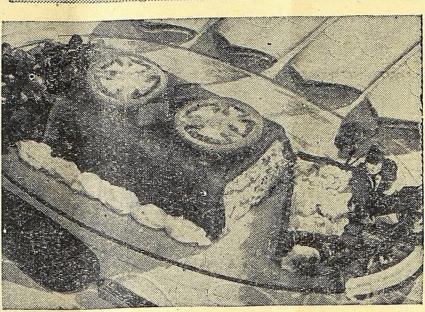

The Kitchen Is the Same

She was sliding the ice cubes ou. of the tray, and she saw him turn and reach for a glass and wondered how he knew where to lookbut of course glasses were kept in the obvious place. If he hadn't found one there he'd have opened another cupboard door.

"Say when," she prompted, as she balanced the bottle over the glass. "Oh, but I should let you pour your own, shouldn't I? I'm awfully inexperienced at this sort of thing. Captain, you spoke about Lieutenant Gordon? You don't happen to know where he is now, de you?"

Spring Luncheons

Now that spring housecleaning is over and we are proud of our shining, spic and span homes, it's time to return obligations for luncheons which have piled up within the last several weeks. There is truly no season during which it's more fun to entertain than these lusciously warm days when garden foods are plenti-

If you want to carry luncheons off successfully, plan light in-season foods. Use sufficient fruits and vegetables to keep the menu seasonal, and let your table decorations carry out the theme.

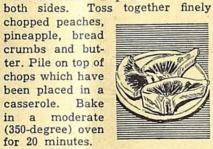

Lamb chops and chicken, asparagus and strawberries, and a few other foods are reigning favorites. Around them you can build a luncheon menu that will be both eyeappealing and and tasty. Plan to do most of the cooking ahead of time so you won't be ruffled by the time the guests begin to come in.

If you want to serve a nice meat dish you might like to start off with a stuffed lamb chop, follow it with a tomato aspic or tossed salad and asparagus, then top off with strawberries and cream.

*Stuffed Lamb Chops. 4 double-thick lamb chops 2 canned peaches 1 cup crushed pineapple 1/2 cup soft bread crumbs

1/4 cup butter or substitute Brown lamb chops in skillet on chopped peaches, pineapple, bread crumbs and butter. Pile on top of chops which have been placed in a casserole. Bake in a moderate (350-degree) oven for 20 minutes.

Asparagus Vinaigrette.

- (Serves 4) 3 tablespoons vinegar
- 1 teaspoon salt
- ½ teaspoon paprika 1/2 cup salad oil
- 1 tablespoon minced parsley 1 tablespoon chopped pickle
- 1 tablespoon minced chives 1 bunch asparagus (1 pound)

Combine seasonings, add vinegar and salad oil. Beat until thick and smooth. Add remaining ingredients and let stand for 1/2 hour. Clean asparagus and cook in boiling salted water until tender. Heat sauce and serve over asparagus.

A luxury luncheon for special guests uses both chicken and ham in the main dish. However, you can keep the rest of the luncheon cost down by serving simply a tossed salad and a rhubarb compote for dessert.

Chicken DeLuxe. (Serves 4)

- 4 thick slices ham 4 breasts of chicken, cooked
- 4 tablespoons melted butter
- 4 tablespoons flour 2 cups rich chicken stock and milk combined
- 1 teaspoon salt 1/8 teaspoon pepper Whole sauted mushrooms

Arrange breast of chicken on top of ham slices. Melt butter, blend in flour and seasonings, then add chick-

Rhubarb Compote. (Serves 4 to 6) 4 cubs cubed rhubarb

1 cup sugar 1/8 teaspoon nutmeg

1/4 teaspoon cinnamon 2 whole cloves

Juice, pulp and grated rind of 1 orange

Combine all ingredients and place in baking dish. Cover and bake in a moderate (350-degree) oven for 40 minutes or until rhubarb is tender. Serve warm or cold with cream and crisp cookies.

A more economical luncheon, but one just as pretty, consists of this salad loaf done with aspic and crabmeat. This is delicious served with hot biscuits and topped off with pineapple sherbet with fresh straw-

Crabmeat Party Salad.

(Serves 6) Part I: Aspic 2 tablespoons gelatin ½ cup cold water 2½ cups hot consomme 2 tablespoons lemon jaice teaspoon white pepper 1/4 teaspoon celery salt berry sauce.

Soften gelatin in cold water. Add hot consomme, lemon juice, white pepper and celery salt. Stir until dissolved. Pour into an 81/2 by 41/2 by 21/2-inch loaf pan enough of the aspic to make 1/2 inch deep. Chill until firm. Place a smaller loaf pan or container within the 81/2-inch loaf pan; anchor firmly with weights or tie in place. Pour remaining aspic in the space between the two pans. Chill until firm. Remove inner pan by loosening aspic with a small knife. Chill for 10 minutes and fill center with the following:

Part II: Crabmeat Filling

- 1 tablespoon gelatin 2 tablespoon cold water
- 1/4 cup cream or top milk ½ cup real mayonnaise 2 tablespoons lemon juice
- 1/2 teaspoon salt 1 tablespoon onion, minced 11/2 cups crabmeat, flaked 1 cup celery, chopped fine
- 1/4 cup parsley, chopped fine Tomato slices Watercress Soften gelatin in cold water. Add cream and heat over hot water until gelatin is dissolved. Add real mayonnaise, lemon juice, salt and onion. Add crabmeat, celery, parsley and mayonnaise to gelatin. Pour into center of aspic mold and chill until firm. Unmold and garnish with slices of tomato and watercress. Serve with additional mayonnaise.

Variation: Pour aspic into ring mold, and crabmeat mixture into a smaller mold to fit in center of ring mold. Or, use chicken or tuna in place of crabmeat filling. Released by Western Newspaper Union

Green beans cooked until tender may be served with a mustard sauce made by preparing a medium white sauce, adding to it leftover uncooked egg yolks for color and nourishment, and seasoning to taste with mustard.

Green beans take on a southern note if they are served with chili sauce seasoned with salt and a bit of oil to facilitate blending.

Leftover green peas are delicious mixed with bits of crisp crumbled bacon and a bit of heavy cream.

Scap Opera in Politics

Representative Margaret Chase Smith of Maine, in a talk to women Republican leaders, urges that the party appeal to women through the radio by the soap opera format. "Sterile stilted political speeches at night leave them cold," she declares. "They should be appealed to by daytime programs to stimulate desire. We should even paint glamour as coming to a woman through participation in political life."

This is the suggestion of the year. We can hear the radio thriller closing with "And so we leave Mrs. Plunkett trapped between the Democratic redskins and the Republican head-hunters in the jungles of Politicania. Be sure to listen to the next chapter tomorrow night."

Or "Bang! Bang! The voting booth has been dynamited! It's gone up in smoke! And who was in that booth? Little Miss Voter. What has happened to her? Find out at this same time same program tomorrow!"

The Maine representative has something. The gals tune out very fast when those old-fashioned routine political broadcasts come through the mike. But, going about their work around the house, they wallow in the radio serials which specialize in romance, drama, easily won prizes, et cetera. Why not a Queen for a Day program direct from the national committee?

"And now, folks, here we are again with the Party's Queen for a Day hour. This is the program glamorous women everywhere are listening to. You too can become a queen among queens under the auspices of your political city, state and national chairmen.

"Do not go empty handed into political life. Take with you a couple of truckloads of electric iceboxes, washing machines, freezing units, parlor suites and wardrobes! . . . Do you want the feeling that comes with going into a voting machine beautifully gowned and with the right cosmetics? . . .

"Can you show a proper interest in the political life of your community or country if you have to bow and scrape for a little money instead of winning thousands of dollars by merely telling us what letter the Mississippi begins with?

What possibilities! . . .

Two Rough Traps

General Marshall went immediately to Pinehurst after his return to Washington. Pinehurst is famous as a golfing resort. Inasmuch as the general had just spent 44 days in the rough, behind the bunkers and in deep traps of the Kremlin links, this seems to us a curious idea of a respite.

We hear that any number of golfers playing Pinehurst during the general's visit added "Big" to the usual cry of "Fore!"

We bet that General Marshall returned from Russia convinced that the only difference between Russia and China is that it is possible to understand some things in Chinese.
