WASHINGTON .- It was one of those strange, foggy nights that sometimes descend over the eastern part of America-not like a London smoky fog, nor the clean white stuff that rolls in like giant breakers so artistically against Yerba Buena in San Francisco bay, nor yet like the mists on the ricefields, nor the clammy North Atlan-"weather" that drips over tic crow's-nest and quarterdeck, turning ship and sky into cold, wet drizzling steel.

The point is that I was stranded in York, Pa., (mentioned recently in these columns in the lounge. Of course, you are likely to meet Junius Wood anywhere, on an atoll in the Pacific, tapping his pipe into the crater of Mount Vesuvius, fording a fjord in a borrowed car, lost in Grand Central or sipping vodka in the Kremlin. So it wasn't strange to find him in York, Pa.

As I write these lines, I have just left Mr. Wood (at the National Press club this time). He informed me that some of the former "students about whom he writes in the article quoted below testified recently before a congressional committee. Rep. Karl Mundt of South Dakota read Wood's article into the Congressional Record, thus making it a "public document."

(Today a lady who signs herself "Just Mary" writes me saying that I should pretend I'm a "nice ole Beagle hound" and "keep that beezer" of mine "pointed down the middle of the road." She claims I have the "darndest habit of "schroochin' over to the right." I hope the following won't hurt her feelings.)

Here are the quotes from the Wood story, which originally appeared in the April issue of "Nation's Business" under the title of "Trained to Raise Hell in America." Background I know was gathered by Wood while he was reporting from Russia and I was bending over a copy desk in the old Chicago Daily News office whither Junius directed his daily dispatches:

"Attention, ambitious young men and women," says Wood. "A well-established and liberalally endowed university offers you free courses in factory sabotage, bomb making, kidnaping, train wrecking, bank robbery, fomenting armed mutiny-and other techniques of violence and treason. Scholarships cover all expenses, including recreation the annual vacations at summer resorts. This university is the West Point of world revolutionthe International Lenin school in Moscow. This university teaches the youth of other lands to go back home and wreck their countries. Over the years it has trained and returned to the United States an estimated 800 disloyal Americans. They are the leaven of some 50,000 Communists and 100,000 pinkos in our land; they are the high officers of a secret army now being drilled to overthrow our government and social order."

Wood describes the super-secret surroundings of the school, and what happens to Russians who get curious about it (Siberia or the firing squad) and goes on to describe the hushhush atmosphere into which a student is inducted:

for its hospitality to veterans). It "With matriculation, each student was simply hopetakes a revolutionary or party name less to try to inch by which he will be known in Comalong through the munist circles and outside activities. condensed milk Mark Aldanov in 'The Fifth Seal' tells of a party worker who had enveloped us. When the student returns to his own country, says Wood, "he must join trade unions or liberal societies -attend all meetings, pay dues promptly, be eager for work, unite others by party discipline until the organization is blindly following the party line in which he (the student) is so well grounded."

Wood points out that Moscow does not consider revolution imminent in this country.

But he claims they are preparing for the psychological moment . . . "and these peaceful preparations go on for years through capable party members burrowed into trade unions, public offices, the police force, liberal clubs and other sources of information." When the time comes to attack a city, "the needed knowledge of where to attack to paralyze it will be at hand-even such facts as the knowledge that a watchman has a dog will have been recorded."

"According to the time schedule of the Communists," says Wood, "a city like Chicago could be captured in less than 48 hours."

Despite these frightening words, Wood says this in conclusion: "The Soviet schools for foreigners are not too alarming when they are stripped of mystery. It would be well to know their 800-odd American alumni, also their instructors and what secret plotting is behind the formal handshakes over a conference table or the clink of cocktail glasses at a banquet board. NEWS REVIEW Postal Boost Foreseen; Economists Decry Slump

POSTAL RATES: May Go Up

A measure embodying the first general revision of postal rates since 1879 which would add about 110 million dollars a year to post office revenues has been introduced in the house of representatives. The bill provides for a 30 per cent increase in parcel post rates and would revise the air mail rate from five to six cents an ounce. In addition, the new plan would add about 30 per cent a year to present scales for second-class mailing of newspapers and periodicals sent outside the county in which they are published. Another provision would maintain the current three-cent local and nonlocal rate for first class mail beyond the July 1 deadline when those rates were slated to revert to the former two-cent level.

The new rates would go into effect 60 days after the bill is passed and signed by the President. READJUSTMENT:

No Depression

Not a depression but a price "readjustment" is in store for the United States, the federal reserve board has predicted.

Reserve board economists explained that heartening news by pointing out that a downtrend in prices is "necessary, healthy and inevitable." The inconsistencies in the national economy, which have arisen out of the fact that our economy is part rigged and part free, will have to be eliminated.

For instance: About 14 million organized workers have derived benefits through forcing higher wage levels. Twice that many unorganized workers have not shared to an equal extent in the wage increases. A number of industries, able to control prices, have driven them upward. Others, at the same time, have been held down by government controls.

The main reason that farm and food product prices soared after the war was that there was little else the consumer could purchase. Now, with production making a comeback, the previously scarce radios, refrigerators, automobiles and so on are competing for the consumer's money.

Federal reserve board economists say that farm prices are expected to stabilize about 25 per cent under the 1946 peaks. They also express confidence that they can put the brakes on any further inflation if congress provides the necessary assistance.

GIANT'S DEATH:

End of an Era? The battleship Oklahoma, first of the so-called "super-dreadnaughts," might well be recorded in history as an accurate symbol of the era during which it ploughed the seas for the U.S. navy-heroic but futile.

In her 31 years of steel-clad existence she never fired a shot at an enemy.

Based at Berehaven, Ireland, during World War I, she saw no action; and on December 7, 1941, five Japanese torpedoes sent the sturdy old ship lunging to the bottom of Pearl Harbor before her crew could man ne guns. Raised to the surface and then abandoned as not worth salvaging, the Oklahoma was consigned to the scrap heap and taken in tow for the last long voyage across the Pacific. Suddenly, 540 miles northeast of Pearl Harbor, the tragic battleship listed heavily, as if tired of war and its aftermath, and slipped into the sea, three miles deep at that point, for her final escape from the era of violence that had been her lifespan.

CE HAWKINS and Sam Mc- $\Lambda$  Quade were discussing Grace Leland. Ace and Sam were the two roving philosophers of Mildale. The beautiful Autumn sunsets and the changing colors of the poplars en-tirely escaped their unimaginative attention. They asked nothing more of life than the privilege of peering health there is descent windows lazily through doors and windows and making casual deductions about what was going on inside. That's how they happened to see Grace Leland.

"Gosh, that's Grace, all right! She looks faded," observed Ace.

"What's she doin' back here, anyway?" asked Sam. "That's what I'd like to know. She don't see nobody but the butcher boy and Chic Myers, the postman."

"The way she used to traipse around I thought she'd grab herself a millionaire or something'."

"I calc'late she wasn't the sort to settle down. Fact is, I heard somewhere she's been leadin' a pretty fast life these last fifteen This or twenty years. Been associatin' Week's with stage people Best and such." "Then what's she Fiction doin' back here?" "That's what I'd like to know."

Ace spat on the sidewalk and screwed up his face in a knowing grimace. "Maybe she's waitin' for one of them rich fellers. Keeps lookin' out the window all the time."

"Let's mosey over to Chet's and get a cup of hot soup. Get's kinda cold waitin' around for somethin' to happen.

Grace had come back to Milldale after an absence of eighteen years and had rented a room in a small white house next to the drug store. Her friend, Thomas Slater, would soon return from Europe and then she would not have to hide any more. Meanwhile, it was very quiet in Milldale.

As she sat at the window she thought of her son's brown wavy hair, the slight tilt of his nose and his six feet of muscle and sinew. She was desperately anxious to make up for the fact that a headline - making divorce case had smashed the Leland home and left sensitive young David deeply hurt and fatherless. Her love for him was not a sufficient answer to the questions of his classmates who wanted to know about the big, black headlines and his folks. She must give him all the wordly things the other boys had-and more, too. Sweaters, pictures for his room, an electric phonograph and tails. She sent him an overstuffed chair. And cakes and a set of evening studs. It was all simple and exciting until David said he wanted a car.

DAVID must have a good car in which his friends could ride and sing and forget to ask questions. Once David had made the request she knew it must be granted. She many letters Thomas Slater had

It wasn't forgery because she felt she could explain everything to Slater when he returned from Europe. There couldn't be anything wrong about what she was doing.

When she received David's letter telling her she was the grandest mother in the world for buying him the most beautiful car in the world she choked up with emotion. She decided to go quietly to Milldale to await the return of Thomas Slater. He would understand.

Grace Leland was looking out of the window, absently musing over the boy and the car. Ace Hawkins and Sam McQuade stood on the sidewalk. A man walked up the There was only one person to whom Grace Leland could go for three thousand dollars. Thomas front stoop of the little white house and tried the door. It was open and he walked in.

GRACE opened the inner door and saw the man in the hall. She thought it strange he did not re-move his hat. "Are you Grace Leland?" he asked abruptly.

"Why, yes," she answered not quite prepared for the interrogation.

"Well, here's my badge," he said, pulling aside his outer coat. "I'm from headquarters. You forged the name of Thomas Slater to a check for three thousand dollars and cashed it at the Textile Bank and Trust Company. I'm afraid you'll have to come along with me."

Grace's face went white. It could not possibly be as serious as all that. The man just didn't know what he was talking about. "This is a terrible mistake," she almost screamed. "I had to sign Mister Slater's name to the check. There was nothing else to do. He will straighten it all out when he returns from Europe. He has often loaned me money. He's a fine, sweet gentleman. A few weeks ago a physician said that the British people were starving to death on their present rations. We know what has been happening these past weeks in Germany. Other European countries are in no better position, some worse.

I have seen what being too hungry does. I have seen it in the United States army, on shipboard and among foreign peoples. It does something to your brain that just can't be explained in terms of everyday, easy American language.

The American people will do their part, collectively, to help the rest of the world over this ugly gulch, partly because we are decent people, partly because we don't want that "something strange" to happen to their brains which will make them the prey of any evil political influence which exists.

The American people, individually, can help in another way. They can send some food to the people whose addresses they know and they can do it efficiently, cheaply, quickly, through an institution called CARE. C-A-R-E stands for Cooperative for American Remittances to Europe. It is a non-partisan, non-profit institution which has the blessing of the United States government. Through CARE you can send packages, well packed, containing carefully chosen food of the kind most needed and other materials of which there is a tragic lack.

A $10 food package delivers 40,963 calories. (The minimum ration in Germany is 1,500 calories a day. They aren't getting that.)

A blanket package at the same price provides two all-wool army blankets, scissors, needles, thread and two sets of heels and soles for shoes.

A new package, same price, delivered, contains 17 yards of cotton goods, needles, thread, thimble, scissors and thread. And how they want cotton goods! Clothes are still not available.

Here are the countries to which you can send the cotton package: Austria, Belgium, Czechoslovakia, Fin-land, France, Greece, Italy, Hungary, Netherlands, Norway, Poland, Romania and Germany (all zones except Russian).

The food packages can be sent to all the above, plus England, Wales, Scotland and northern Ireland.

You'll help Uncle Sam's food problem, too, if you send a package to someone whose address you know in these countries-if you CARE.

'JOE COLLEGE' . . . This is the Japanese version of "Joe College." In the Nippon capital, the smart college lads like to look like something out of the poorhouse. This student wears a tattered suit and sloppy cap and lets his hair grow long.

END THE WAR:

Students Riot

Demonstrating violently in open defiance of Chiang Kai-shek's order to quiet down, thousands of university students in several Chinese cities fortified their demand that the civil war be ended immediately by calling for a general strike.

Declaring sternly that the student riots were instigated by Communists, Chiang said they would be quelled forcibly if necessary. The students reacted with further parade and violence in Shanghai, Nanking and Peiping. About 25,000 students were on strike from 16 universities, with their demands including everything from a better system of grading papers to higher government living allowances and an end to the war.

"Look," said Ace Hawkins. "Here they come out together."

"And holdin' hands, too," chuckled Sam McQuade. "Same old Grace."

Why Not Have More Things Three persons called on me last week, all with the same problem. Two were women, the third a man. What all wanted to know is how they could get more out of life. Neither of the women could play or sing. Neither could swim. The older woman couldn't dance. The man confessed he was a human 'dud''-as he put it.

To each I told the same storythe story of Alexander Graham Bell, the man who developed the telephone. Mr. Bell called one day on his friend Joseph Henry, secretary of the Smithsonian Institution in Washington. His purpose was to lament the fact that he was being held back in his work by a lack of knowledge of electricity.

With two words Mr. Henry disposed of that lament and put Alexander Graham Bell on the road to his great renown and riches, for he said, "Get it."

There's no such thing as an ideal personality or a successful person unless that personality or person is accomplished.

If you want to improve yourself you have to become more accomplished. Learn how to do everything; dance, swim, fish, ride, row, talk about stamps and flowers and books and music and art. Let no subject be entirely foreign to your life and knowledge.

You don't have to be a champion or an expert at any one thing. You don't want to be a champion. It's far better to be a third-rater in half a dozen fields than an expert in only

EXPORTS MUST CONTINUE World Food Outlook Is Critical

WASHINGTON .- Because of for- | eign agricultural relations said. eign crop losses, the world food situation will remain critical for the 1947-48 crop year, according to a warning issued by the department of agriculture. Although an increased output among the principal producing nations is foreseen, this gain will be offset by declines in grain production in nations which normally import part of their food requirements. This shift in the supply picture will mean a "somewhat greater movement of grains in international trade during the coming year if supplies in importing countries are levels of 1946-47," the office of for- modities will continue below pre- serves, and out of loans.

The gloomy picture was presented as the administration was in additional supplies to both Germany in full production. and France to avoid a crisis that could force reduced rations throughout most of northern Europe. Officials abroad railed at failure of the German government to push properly internal food collection, and charged German producers with hoarding their output.

The department sounded one cheerful note in predicting some increase in sugar, potato, and fats

The same situation was reported for rice, with the surplus producing the midst of an all-out effort to send areas of southeastern Asia still not

Finance will be a major problem in agricultural trade in 1947-48, the department said. Iowa Centenarian Sounds Challenge As Garden Champ OELWEIN, IOWA. - Belving his 106 years, Peter Duffy once again has issued his perennial challenge that he can pull weeds faster and out-hoe any gardener in Oelwein. Despite his age, Duffy has the vigor of a man in his twenties and doesn't even need glasses to read the evening paper. His only physical handicap is deafness.

Of his original family of nine children, seven still are living and from here on out the Duffy progeny are numerous.

"I sure started something," commented Duffy, as he counted his 24 grandchildren and 25 great-grandchildren.

Duffy came to Iowa with one of his 12 brothers and his three sisters to work on the farm of relatives. But his wanderlust wasn't satisfied. It took a trek to the West and a little silver mining to get traveling out of Duffy's system before he came back to the Tall Corn state to make his permanent home.

Duffy also is a booster of air travel. One of his granddaughters took him for a plane ride eight years ago and he never forgot the event.

career woman

Meet the greatest career woman of all! She doesn't manage a business, write novels, or sing over the radio. But her job's big and it's important - she runs a home!

What a job that is! In a year she washes more than 6 tons of dishes, cooks more than 1000 meals, wades through mountains of laundry.

The more Mom depends on electric service, the less work is in her housework. And how little electricity costs! A penny's worth a day will rescue Mom from the drudgery of dishwashing. A few more pennies daily will cook her meals. Electricity does her laundry for less weekly than the cost of a bar of soap.

And when Mom balances her budget, she's bound to note that electricity is one of its smallest items. Actually, the average family now gets twice as much electricity for its money as it did about 20 years ago. This bargain comes to Mom-and to you, too-through the practical experience of your friends and neighbors in this company, under sound business management.

Julia McFarlane, whose husband, Rich-ard, disappeared in World War I, leaving her to raise two children, Ric and Jill, is startled when 25 years later, during the second war, he returns and tells her he is using 'he name of Captain Mackey. Ric marries Sandra Calvert, a divorcee whom Richard knew to be of bad reputation. She arrives at the farm to live and recognizes a picture of Richard as that of Mackey. She and Jill quarrel and she demands $10,000. That night Captain Mackey arrives, telling Jill, who does not know who he it, that he is taking Sandra to Ric. Hy tells Jill about the daughter he lost and she tells him about her father. Sandra refuses to leave with him.

CHAPTER XX

"All right," she snapped, harshly, "what's the payoff? There is one, I suppose? You didn't come here out of the goodness of your heart, Rod Mackey!"

He looked at Jill and smiled onesidedly.

drawled. "She thinks there's a catch in it." "She doesn't trust me!" he

"Maybe she has had some disil-lusioning experiences," Jill said. "It could be that she hasn't always known the right sort of people."

"Never mind the kind of people "ve known!" Sandra cried, hoarsely. "At least no tricky heel has ever fooled me yet. Just tell me the gag, that's all. I hate blundering into things. I suppose the Gestapo has been abroad, and right now is the dramatic moment to produce the fatal papers? If you'd only given me one more day, Rod Mackey! One more day, and a very elaborate military reputation might have gone crashing down in some very dirty ruins! But you knew I wouldn't have had time to prove anything, didn't you? You worked fast!'

"What on earth is she talking about?" Jill demanded of the captain, her eyes bewildered.

"She's displeased with me, Jill," he said, blandly. "I happen to know a few facts about a divorce our Sandra once got in a little smelly town called Piedras Negras, in Mexico. Back in 1927, I think, wasn't it, Sandra? Or was it '29? She bought the divorce cheap, the way you buy things in Mexico, cheap stuff you wouldn't look at in this country, and she didn't look too carefully at the divorce. And of course after she married Lieutenant Colonel Calvert, and then collected considerable alimony from him, and now that she's married into the Mc-Farlane family, she'd like to forget the divorce and never hear anything about it again." 'You mean-the divorce wasn't any good?" Jill asked. "But if it wasn't-" "He doesn't know a thing about it!" snapped Sandra. "He's bluffing. Trying to force me to do what he wants me to do." "Unfortunately for you, my dear girl, I'm not bluffing. I have, to quote you, the fatal papers. Now, if You tell her that one of her last lovers camein fact I believe I was the last." "Before my father, of course. I'll tell her, Captain Mackey. I'll tell her that her last lover came to call. And I do thank you for concerning yourself with our family problems. I know that my mother would like to thank you, too.'

"Just give me a kind thought now and then, will you, Jill? I'll need it, where I'm going." He heard Sandra's feet on the stairs and bent down quickly and kissed Jill on the cheek. "That's for my own daughter," he said, huskily. Jill stretched herself quickly on tiptoe and drew his head down and kissed him on the mouth.

"And that," she whispered, "is for my father! Good-by, Captain Mackey."

Sandra came, dragging her bag down, looking small and somehow frightened. She said, "Well, goodby, Jill. I suppose this makes you very happy indeed."

"No." Jill shook her head. "No It doesn't. It makes me a little sick, Sandra, if you want the truth. I don't like you very much, but I hate having it end this way. Good luck, anyway. And good-by again, Captain Mackey."

stuff to us. So I divided the gang up as watches for the plane, and the rest of us struck out for town, and just as I was asking that sleepy cop down there on the main corner where a place called Buzzard's Hill was, there were your mother and Mr. Patterson pulling out of a parking spot, and the cop took me over to the car. Talk about my lucky star! Here I am!" "And we have twelve hours, anyway," Jill said happily. "Come down when you're ready, Spang. Mother's getting something for you to eat."

They sat around the kitchen table while Spang devoured scrambled eggs and warmed-over biscuit. "If the C.O. could see me now," he said, "he'd swear I smashed that oil line on purpose! He'd give me a long lecture and remind me of those fellows on the other side who bring the big babies in on two engines and one of those on fire, and all that stuff."

"You didn't have the English Channel under you," Dave said.

"Oh, I'd put up the routine argument. I was trying to save an expensive plane and an expensively trained crew for the air corps. They concede that you're right, usually, but they have to get you on the defensive first, just to see if you've got the spirit to defend your decisions, probably. Is there one more drop of coffee in that pot, Mrs. Mc-Farlane?" "I'll squeeze the handle hard," Julia smiled at him. Then she looked unhappily at Jill. "We're frightfully rude," she said. "Jill, we should have asked Sandra to come down."

"Sandra?" Spang repeated sharp-"Sandra Calvert? She's here?" ly. "She was married to Richard,"

Julia said. "She came today, or I guess it's yesterday now. Ric was shipped off somewhere and he sent her home to us."

Spang was looking at Jill with a troubled face, but Jill had jumped up and stood frozen with consterna-

"Dooley!" she cried. "I was so excited over seeing Spang that I forgot to tell you! Sandra's gone!"

"Gone?" Julia repeated incredu-"Jill, you weren't-you lously. didn't—"

"I didn't do anything," Jill insisted. "She got rather nasty after you left, and we exchanged a few acid remarks, but nothing was serious. Then suddenly this officer came for her. He is a captain at Ridley Field, Dooley, and it seems he knew Sandra in Hawaii and other places. I met him when I went down there. He said he used to know you, Dooley. His name was Captain Roger Mackey."

Julia gripped the edge of the table. She would not let her legs crumple under her, she would not let herself cry out. Spang said, "Old Cyanide! So he came here, did he?" 'You know him, do you?" Dave

For a simple bridal shower refreshment, a punch bowl with floating orange slices and slivered strawberries makes a pretty picture. Serve this with cake or cookies.

Bridal days are once more with us, and there's hardly any circle of friends where at least one wedding does not take place. A good friend of the bride usually gives the honored girl a shower, and it is with such pleasant doings that we are concerned.

Whether it's a lingerie, kitchen or personal shower, the theme of the party refreshments should be daintiness. If you can carry out the theme with a centerpiece of bride and bridegroom, well and good, but it isn't neces-daintiest linen and fresh, fragile flowers, and your table is bound to be pretty. Pastel color combinations in table settings and refreshments are highly favored as they carry out the theme of the occasion. Food, however, need not be elaborate, because the girls probably will be too excited to eat much. Do, however, make everything delectable, and you will be well rewarded for your efforts.

A SIMPLE afternoon or evening party might consist of a light delectable cake and punch as follows:

"All right, I'll go," she said, "but not with you. You can take me as far as a bus station. Well, you can relax now, Jill. I'm taking my obnoxious person out of your house. You won't be degraded any more. You-you poor, blind little fool!"

She whirled away and went pounding up the stairs. Jill sat down abruptly. She was feeling weak and queer as though she had just watched something die.

"I-wish you'd stay until Mother gets here," she said, faintly. "She'll be disappointed at not seeing you. And-is it true about Sandra's divorce? That it wasn't legal or something?"

"Her name happens not to be Sandra," the Captain said. "Her name was Hattie Schoeffle when she was married to a boy named Bordine, in Kearney, Nebraska. Then she tired of him and got into burlesque, and after that into vaudeville, and a few years ago she showed up in San Antonio and attracted a young Major Calvert, who wanted to marry her. So she got this quick divorce in Mexico and didn't bother to discover that the official who signed it hadn't taken his oath of office yet, or remember that she'd been married as Hattie Schoeffle, and divorced as Sandra Laverne-mere legal details but quite important."

"I'm glad," Jill said. "It's a nasty thing to say, but I'm glad."

"Will you give your mother a message from me, Jill?" "Of course. But they should be here any minute."

"A soldier's time is not his own, you know. But you can tell your mother not to worry about Richard. I think he'll come through this business all right. I think he has good stuff in him, in fact I'm sure of it. He's his mother's son."

An Old Beau

Came to Call

"I'll tell her. But what shall I tell Mother about you?"

He smiled, slowly, and that same look of far places, of things long remembered, of bewildered loss came again into his eyes. He reached for Jill's hand and held it.

"Just tell her that an old beau and hurried her-out. At the door he turned and looked back at Jill, a long look. Then he flicked a little salute - the same gesture that Spang made-and went out.

Jill sat limp and shaken when the car had roared off down the drive. She wondered what would happen to Sandra now. But women like Sandra always got along. They knew their way about. She stopped bothering about Sandra then, for Dave's car had turned in at the gate, and she heard voices-two men's voices-it couldn't be-She flew to the door and across the porch. They were getting out ly frightened, I could see. She tried of the car, and Dave grinned at her and said, "Here's a dirty looking tramp we found downtown, Jill. He was asking the police how to get out to Buzzard's Hill, so we just brought him along. Ever seen him before?"

Reunion With Spang Gordon

Jill gave a choking little cry and flung herself at the tall figure in the greasy flying jacket. "Spang!'

He caught her and held her tight. He kissed her gravely on the mouth. "Pure dumb luck!" he said. "Just a routine flight-my navigator had to get some more hours in the air, and right over this town the doggone oil line busted! Glad to see me, Jill?" "Oh, Spang!" She shivered hap-pily. "You did come back!"

"How about turning the man loose so he can wash his face?" Dave teased. "You've got grease on your chin and your nose, too, Jill."

"I know Spang must be tired and hungry," Julia said. "I'll see what can be found in the kitchen. Get some clean towels, Jill."

Jill led Spang upstairs to the bathroom.

"Sorry I'm such a mess," he said, pulling off the oil-soaked flight jacket, "but I worked an hour on that line before I gave up and decided we had to wire for some spare parts—lucky they had that little landing field out there, wasn't it?" "Awfully lucky you didn't have some spare parts along, too, wasn't it, Spang? Or you'd have had to fix whatever it was and go on." "Be noon tomorrow or maybe lat-asked, moving around the table to draw the younger eyes away from Julia while she got hold of herself. "Yes, sir, he was a personnel officer at the field. Not very popular with the men, when I was there." "He said at first he was going to ake Sandra to Ric," Jill explained, 'and then when she refused to go, he sprang some Mexican divorce she'd had on her-it seems Ric was her third husband, Dooley-and this Captain Mackey said he was quite sure the Mexican divorce wasn't legal and that she wasn't married to Ric at all. She was pretty badto keep Captain Mackey quiet with some vague threats or other, but he made her go. I'm so sorry you weren't here, Dooley. He said he was an old beau of yours." She said anxiously, "Aren't you pleased, Dooley? I thought you'd be relieved to find she wasn't here any more." "Yes, I'm pleased," she said, faintly, "but I'm sorry Sandra went away when I was not here at least to say good-by."

"Odd that Mackey concerned himself about Ric," Spang said. "May be, of course, that he was somehow involved with the Calvert woman.

A Message "Oh, no!" Jill protested quickly. "He isn't that sort of person, Spang. Not that sort at all. And Sandra hated him. She told me so. She hated him. She told he so, she didn't really want to go with him. I got the feeling that she was some-how scared. I think he knew more about her than he told me. He left a message for you, Dooley. He said to tell you that you weren't to worry about Ric, that Ric was going to be all right. He talked about his daughter that he lost, and I told him about my father, and then he said I was to tell you that your 'last lover' came, Dooley. He said he was quite sure he was the lastbefore my father, of course. Dooley, you look funny. Don't you feel well?"

"Too many things have happened to Dooley all at once," Dave said. patting her shoulder.

The welfare committee of the town decided to form a band, and those wishing to join were in-structed to fill out a form. Among those who did was the blacksmith, and he was now being interviewed.

"I see you would like to join the band, and that you would prefer a cornet,'' said the welfare official. "Have you any qualifications?"

"No," said the blacksmith, "but I'd like to learn.' "The funny thing is," said the official, "that I have forty names here, and you are the only one
