Controls Necessary in Food Crisis

Export-Import Regulations Vital for Curing World Ills

By BAUKHAGE

Washington, D. C.

WASHINGTON.-The sudden descent upon Columbia's shoulders of the mantle of world leadership has forced the President to add all sorts of odd jobs to his other extra-constitutional functions. Traveling salesman is one of them. Almost before he learned his way around the White House, he had the Unit-Nations assignment at San Francisco. Hard-was he back from the Golden Gate when he was ordered to Potsdam. He already has become our 'flyingest' chief executive. The Mexican trip was scarcely over when he was called to the wearying vigil at his mother's bedside.

Meanwhile he has conducted White House business without encountering too much criticism for being absent without leave. In fact, his popularity with the public has before the public. What was considered a crisis in world affairs was met successfully by overwhelming congressional support for the post-UNRRA relief and Greek-Turkish aid bills. Although at times it has balanced upon a rather thin edge, the solidarity of bi-partisan foreign policy has been maintained. But there is another matter which those most concerned declare has not been brought home to the public - the world food situation.

There are two important facts:

1. Two years have passed since the end of the war and the world food situation is no

2. Although congress (the people) has been willing to vote huge funds for relief, it appears unwilling to continue certain controls on business, without which the machinery for helping the stricken countries to their feet will break down.

The first job is to bring home the seriousness of point one. The second job (which has been dumped into the President's lap) is to convince congress of the importance of point

Briefly, if export controls go off gets the most wheat, regarless of have to pay a fancy price for the means extra American dollars American products, which would encourage production, will be sucked out of foreign pockets and world trade will be stultified by just

'selfish-interest" reasons for controlling some exports. It's this way: The man who extracts oil from soy beans, although he is quite willing to have his oil exported, probably can sell it here anyway. But he doesn't want beans from which he gets the oil sent out of the country. The man who refines the oil doesn't mind having his refined product exported but he doesn't want the unrefined oil (his raw material), which he has to buy, exported; the man who uses that refined oil to make margarine doesn't want to compete with foreigners for it, although he's quite willing to have foreigners buy his margarine. These mixed motives don't add up to a very good argument for congress, because the only controls desired are for the other fellow. It doesn't generate too much pressure because there are enough "agins"

But when it comes to imports, it's straining to increase production, now are using twice as much ferbuyers would get more. The presing importation of fertilizer.

Two reports in the news recently | caused some interesting comments in Washington on the international

Charles Reese, extension apiarist of University of Ohio, recently reported that because of the late season and resultant scarcity of pollen on which bees feed, many of the drones (who do not work and are preserved for social purposes only) have been pushed out of the hives by the workers. Picket lines have been formed and the drones are not allowed to re-enter. They die in the damp and cold.

"Theirs (the bees') is not a very pleasant society," says apiarist Reese. "Hive activity is communistic and utterly ruthless."

A statement by Andre Visson, French writer who syndicates a column in American newspapers, was the second inspiration for unofficial comment. Visson said:

"The world has indeed entered into a contest between Americanism and Communism."

This pearl of wisdom laid beside the dispatch from Columbus moved a certain engineer-economist-philosopher to the observations which

For the first time, this pundit pointed out, the human race is really at the crossroads. Life has followed two paths, one taken by the animals, another by those who have in them something that distinguishes them from the beast. One path has been clearly visible to materialistic philosophers, Nietzsche, Hegel, Marx and the monster who was created out of their theories, Hitler. The other is the one illumined by the thought and action of those who from cot or castle, from work-bench or cloistered hall, lived in the belief that the activities of the state, or the individual, should be measured against something other than material forces.

As to point two, that becomes a

Unfounded Hope

Popular belief that any substantial reductions in the cost of new housing will occur in the near future is not founded on realities.

That assertion was made by James C. Downs Jr., president of the Real Estate Research corporation, who explained that besides being geared to a high national debt, housing costs, like prices of other hard goods, are directly af-fected by the large demand for American capital and production by

"The housing shortage today is worse than a year ago," he said, 'and it will continue to grow progressively worse for some time."

He pointed out that increased earning power has put a greater number in the market for new homes, but at the same time builders are afraid to start new construction because of high costs. The theory that prices would drop kept many persons from buying or building homes last year, Downs said.

Farm Budget Cuts Hit; Train Fares Increased

FARM FUROR:

Stormy Weather

Possibly the most violent storm of the year, according to the economic and political barometer, is the one which was raised when the house appropriations committee recommended a 32 per cent cut in department of agriculture funds for the coming year.

Slashing more than 383 million dollars from the amount asked by the committee opened the floodgates for a deluge protests from Clinton Anderson, secretary of agriculture, and Democratic congressmen, who claimed they would fight the action right up to next year's elections, if necessary.

Declaring that the reduction "directs a sharp cut at the interests of the American farm family and the general wel-Anderson said that the 'greatest harm' would be to the soil conservation program, the farm price support program and programs designed to help veterans and low income families become better established.

The 32 per cent cut would eliminate the Agriculture Adjustment administration by July 1, 1948. Currently, the AAA is carrying on its basic program of promoting soil conservation on 3,500,000 cooperating farms by paying farmers for following practices intended to increase soil fertility and, hence, to fund slash would mean that farmers this year would be paid about 50 per cent of what they previously had been promised.

In answering the criticism, the house appropriations committee said that its recommended cuts are "selective" and reasonable—based on actual farm needs.

TRAVEL PAY: Train Fares Up

To offset increased operating costs, Interstate Commerce commission authorized an approximate 10 per cent increase in basic passenger fares for 60 railroads operating east of the Mississippi and north of the Ohio and Potomac rivers.

The change will boost one-way passenger rates from 2.2 to 2.5 cents a mile in coaches and from 3.3 to 3.5 cents a miles in sleeping and parlor cars. There will be an increase of about 15 per cent in coach round-trip rates and about four per cent in Pullman round-trip

In granting the increase, ICC noted that those railroads which requested the new rates incurred a deficit of 54 million dollars from passenger train operations last

IT'S WONDERFUL:

Long Time Peace

Announcing the immediate abolition of capital punishment in Russia, Soviet authorities explained the move on the grounds that it was made possible by Russia's growing strength, the people's patriotism and the certainty of peace "for a long time."

Said the Moscow radio: "The international situation during the time after Germany's capitulation and Japan's capitulation shows that the cause of peace can be considered secure for a long time in spite of attempts by aggressive elements to provoke war.

Meanwhile, Herbert Hoover looked on the other side of the mask to charge Russia with attempting to bleed the United States through relief channels and blaming her for the economic paralysis of Japan and Germany.

He declared that futher relief will remain necessary as long as the Soviets continue their obstructionist tactics and demands for reparations, thus blocking peace treaties with the two countries and keeping their economies paralyzed.

His hair was the color of bleached silver; the backs of his hands were mottled and the veins stood out, starkly blue. But his face had the somber dignity that the sea stamps upon those who follow her. You couldn't discount this man because he was old. He had presence.

Hurlow and I were on our way to Narsett Banks for some fishing and the old inn had appealed to me.

We had a creditable dinner, cooked and served by a Portuguese woman.

"She's a white Portygee," Mr. Hendrickson, the landlord, explained. "Couldn't get along without her. She comes early and goes

We were the only guests. Indeed, I gathered that people staying the night there were few and far between. After dinner we sat in a low, beamed-ceilinged room that overlooked the sea. Far below we could hear the Atlantic snarling and raving at the foot of the bluff.

Presently the old man got up and went out. He returned shortly carrying a lighted candle. I'd never seen an arrangement just like it before. The candle was set in a candlestick, but the flame itself was protected by a high chimney blown in the shape of a gigantic drinking glass. The purpose of this was obvious. The large chimney would protect the flame against being snuffed out by wind.

HURLOW was interested. "What's that?" he asked. You had to raise your voice when you spoke to Mr. Hendrickson.

The old man set the candle in the window. It cast a dull, livid light. "That's a hurricane candle," he explained. "They use 'em in the tropics. My grandfather brought this one from the West Indies. That was a long time ago now.' "But why put it in the window?"

Hurlow pursued. For a moment the old man looked at him blankly.

"Why?" he said at last. "Um. I don't know as I rightly know why. Because it always has stood in that window at night, I expect. For four generations. As long as we've owned this inn. As long as there's been Hendricksons at sea."

"And are there Hendricksons at sea now?" I ventured. The old man's eyes lighted. There's one. My son, Tom. Been on boats since he was eighteen. Same as me. Same as my father and grandfather before me. I didn't like to pry into his business. But I was curious about this queer custom of burning the candle. "How old would your son be now, Mr. Hendrickson?" I asked.

He reckoned on his fingers. "Let's see! I was forty-eight when Tom was born. That would make him-

"Custom?" said the old man. "Yes, that's what it is. A custom. Always done it. And I expect we'll go on doing it. Until we don't own this old inn any more or, maybe, until all the Hendricksons are gone. I don't know." His voice trailed. "I

I looked at the old man. He had fallen asleep in his chair.
"He's pretty ancient," I said. Hurlow was walking around.

KEEP A GOAL IN SIGHT

In one of the largest cities in the United States there is a doctor who has had considerable success in putting distrait and unhappy people back on the right track to happiness and success. His method is beautifully simple.

Whenever a person, feeling he needs a doctor's advice, comes to this doctor, the doctor puts pieces of plain white paper and a sharpened pencil in front of the patient. "Before we start with your case," he suggests, "I want you to write down on that paper your goal in life. When we get it down in black and white I believe we can really go somewhere." Nine persons out of ten cannot define their goal at all, much less write it. In other words, nine out of ten men and women lead purpose-less, goalless lives. The doctor believes they can't find happiness until their goal is clear and in full view. "If your goal in life is clear, you will adjust yourself to the goal, but if your goal isn't clear or if it's an unworthy goal, how can you expect to be very effective or attractive to others?" he asks.

I realize that what I have said here might sound a little bit theoretical and academic to you. I assure you, however, that it is neither. Setting the goal and keeping it in sight is one of the big secrets of attaining the kind of personality and winning the kind of success and happiness that you most want.

Suppose your goal is the general goal of a business and social success. That's a very common goal. All right. It's worthy. Write down exactly what you want to get out of life-write down your goal boldly.

To attain that goal you've just written down, you know that you have to make yourself acceptable to certain persons-perhaps to customers in your business or to the kind of men and women you want to associate with in society. To be acceptable to them your personality must be the kind which they will approve. It must include certain traits-generosity, charm, graciousness, magnetism, other positive qualities. The next thing you have to do is spend an honest half hour in selfinventory, trying to decide what, in the final analysis, you have to do to attain the goal which you set for yourself.

Added Life Decade Seen in Vitamin

Extra Years Can Be 'Inserted' at Prime by Diet.

NEW YORK. - Experiments on white rats which eat the same foods as humans have shown that a normal diet plus extra vitamin A lengthens the life span and extends the "prime of life," Dr. Henry Clapp Sherman, Mitchell professor emeritus of chemistry at Columbia university, announced.

Dr. Sherman, regarded as one of the highest authorities on the chemistry of food, took as the normal diet for his experiments the vitamin A and caloric relationship of the recommended allowances of National Research council, as announced at the national nutrition conference called by President Roosevelt in 1941. According to Dr. Sherman, the experiments showed that quadrupled allowances of vitamin A in human nutrition are desirable.

"This appears the more probable," Dr. Sherman said, "in view of the fact that most people probably live less protected lives than those of experimental animals. A certain food mixture called 'Diet A' was found adequate to the support of normal nutrition generation after generation for the white rats; yet 'Diet B,' differing only in its proportion of protective food, has been found to result in better life histories.

"Growth and development are beneficially expedited, vitality is higher and death rates lower at all ages; full adult capacity or 'prime of life' is attained earlier and retained longer and the life expectation is increased not only for the young but also for the adults. The previous general progress of public health has increased the life expectation of the infant but not of the grown person. Now, the nutritional improvement of the norm raises the life expectation of the adult as well.

"The extra years thus offered are age. Rather it appears that something like an extra decade can be inserted at the prime or apex of the life lived in accordance with today's newer knowledge of nutrition. Life becomes longer because it is lived on a higher health level throughout. The apex of attainment is higher, the period of the prime is longer and, in human terms, there is a smaller percentage of years of de-pendence."

Dr. Sherman conducted his experiments on a grant of $8,000 from the nutrition foundation.

Your kidneys are constantly filtering waste matter from the blood stream. But kidneys sometimes lag in their work—do not act as Nature intended—fail to remove impurities that, if retained, may

Symptoms may be nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—a feeling of nervous anxiety and loss of pep and strength.

Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder are sometimes burning, scanty os too frequent urination.

Julia McFarlane, whose husband, Richard, disappeared in World War I, leaving her with two children, Ric and Jill, is startled when 25 years later, during the second war, he returns and tells her he is using the name of Captain Mackey. Ric marries Sandra Calvert, a divorcee whom Richard knew to be of bad reputation. Sandra tells Jill she wants $10,000. Captain Mackey arrives, telling Jill, who does not know who he is, that he is taking Sandra to Ric. Sandra suspects who he is but is afraid of him. Richard tells Jill to tell her mother her "last lover" came to call. Spang Gordon, whom Jill loves, is grounded near the farm and the couple is reunited.

CHAPTER XXI

"Dooley gets a daughter-in-law with no warning at all, and then loses her just as abruptly. We old people can't adjust ourselves to changes in a minute, Jill," Dave said.

"Could you stand the idea of getting a son-in-law in an awful hurry, Mrs. McFarlane?" Spang inquired, wistfully. "I've only got about fifteen hours-maybe not that long."

Jill caught her breath with a jerk and threw back her head.

"She can't get a son-in-law unless I get a husband," she said, coolly, "and certainly no one has ever mentioned marrying me!"

"Could we be permitted to retire to some private spot while I convince this woman that I love her, Mrs.McFarlane?"

Tears brimmed in Jill's eyes. 'Oh, Spang-you mean-you do? You mean you do want me? You to get married-now-to want me?'

Spang took her elbow. "Come along in here, stupid woman, and I'll put it all into words of one syl-

"But how could I know if nobody tells me?" Jill demanded, furious-ly, as he steered her out. "I thought you never would—I practically hated you—Oh, Spang. . . ."

Dave got up and shut the door, then came back and filled his pipe again.

"A young man has asked you for your daughter's hand in marriage, Dooley," Dave said presently, "or did you hear him?"

She turned then, and he saw the taut grayness begin to go out of her face, color was coming back into her lips, her eyes were not enormous and anguished any more.

"He tried to save Ric, Dave," she said, "and he didn't tell Jill who he was. And Sandra knew."

"Jill said that she made vague threats."

"This isn't the end, Dave. Sometimes I think there never will be an end. There can't be, while Richard is alive. But he did try to save his son. And he didn't hurt Jill."

"If Jill marries this young chap, defending Richard, though she her defending Richard, though she wearing now." Gordon, she'll have other things to casual stranger."

"Yes," said Julia, hoarsely, "but if the revelation does come will she defend me? Or will she be outraged because I've deceived her? And surely, Dave, they can't be thinking of being married—now? She knows this lieutenant so casually-she has seen him only three times.'

"Now is all the time they have, Dooley, remember?"

She drew a long breath, and Dave saw the rigid lines in her face soften. She hung up the dish towel and dried her fingers.

Wedding Plans For Jill

"Call them, Dave," she said. "If we're having a wedding at Buz-zard's Hill we have to make plans."

"I'll have to be married in these greasy old pants," Spang Gordon sighed when they were in a huddle around the kitchen table again. "I didn't bring any clothes because we expected to be back at base this morning. And I can't appear out of uniform, even at my own wedding."

"I'll wear some overalls, Spang," Jill volunteered, blithely. She was sparkling all over now, her hair was as alive as something quickened by a galvanizing current, her eyes danced, even the gilt freckles on her nose twinkled. "And a bandana around my head, and the bride will carry a bouquet of pig's knuckles tied with spinach."

"You'll do nothing of the sort," declared Julia. "You'll have a bouquet, and Dave will ransack the army store in the morning to find some things for Spang to wear, and we'll even have a wedding-cake. "There won't be any arch of swords," Spang reminded Jill.
"You won't even have a wedding march. But you'll have me." "Briefly." Jill's mouth quivered for an instant, then tightened again to the smile she had been keeping fast. She said, "I'll wear my faille and my little turban, and Grandfather will give me away, and Dooley will weep, knowing all the time that she'll get me back again in a couple of hours and have me on her hands for the duration. You'd better get a little sleep, Spang. I'd hate to have my bridegroom pass out on me between 'Dearly beloved' and 'I do.' " self. You want to be on the alert, you know, when I bestow all my worldly goods upon you. You want to be sure you aren't getting gypped.

Julia heard it all with a little inward pang. Richard should be here to give his daughter away! Richard had seen her now, he knew what he had thrown aside, what he had lost. Whatever he had done, however he had just fied himself, Richard was having his reckoning now. Jill did not see the paper next

There was too much excitement.

Dave got on the telephone and wangled a forty-hour leave for Lieutenant Gordon from his commanding officer, and Julia came down from the attic, her arms full of tissue paper and wisps of stuff.

"I've planned since you were five months old to have you come down these stairs to be married, Jill," she said. "I've seen you, in my

If this dress isn't 'too yellow and brittleif you can squeeze into it-we can press it carefully, and it isn't too Victorian, not so terribly different from some of the Godeyish things

John I. Catches

"Satin," breathed Jill, fingering the heavy folds of the sweeping train. "I never dreamed you'd let me wear this, Dooley. And real lace on the veil! Let me try it on! Oh, I'm so glad we don't have to rush things so Spang can get away. I'll be really married! Look at all the million little hooks! They certainly had patience in those days! Doo-ley, with the sash let out a little, it "Good-by, Ri will meet here at the belt!

A Bouquet

So Jill came down the McFarlane

"You could use a few winks your- | stairs in her grandmother's wedding gown, and Lieutenant Spencer Gordon, Army Air Corps, stood at the foot of the stairs waiting for his bride in a new pair of khaki trousers a trifle too long and a khaki skirt with sleeves a little too short, but there was worship in his face, and at the bottom Jill smiled at him

There were the few hastily as-sembled guests and the old, old tune played by some volunteer on the piano. They ate ice-cream and Mamie's hastily baked wedding cake, the icing still slightly drippy, they drank toasts in John I.'s champagne, and then it was over and Jill was flying down the stairs again in her faille suit, her hat in her hand, and stopping to toss her bouquet over the rail.

John I. caught it and looked a little bewildered and embarrassed as Jill went into hysterics of laughter at him, so he poked it abruptly at the nearest woman and fled. Then Jill and Spang were rattling away in the old station-wagon, bound for the mountain inn only a few miles away where they would spend their brief and precious time together.

The last guest departed, Dave began putting chairs in their places and blowing out candles, John I. pulled off his necktie and hunted for his old pipe, and Julia went out on the porch and dropped into a chair, sighing with weariness and sliding her feet out of the tight, high pumps she had worn.

Richard Pays an Overdue Debt

John I. came out, dragged a match down the bricks of the wall, giving her a sidelong, guilty look when the match left a brown mark.

"Forgot the paper," he muttered when he had the pipe going. "Dang war might be over, and we wouldn't know it.'

He trudged down the driveway, picked up the paper where the boy had thrown it, unrolled it, and walked back across the lawn, stumbling a little, reading the headlines.
Julia saw him stop and study the paper for a minute or two and then come plunging on, walking headlong into a spirea bush, and she told herself that poor old John I. was breaking fast, that all the excitement of this past week had been too much for him.

She was lost in reverie when John I. struggled up to the porch, panting, and laid the paper in her lap. "There!" he gasped, pointing. 'Look there!"

It was not a big headline. But it leaped from the paper and smote Julia McFarlane's consciousness like a blow.

ARMY OFFICER AND WOMAN LOSE LIVES WHEN CAR CRASHES INTO TENNESSEE

Old John I. dropped into a chair and was twisting his trembling hands together.

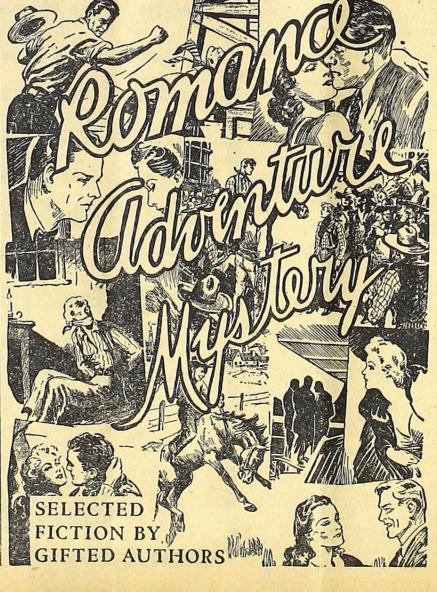

"Dooley, when he came here last night I shook his hand. I'm so glad now that I shook his hand!'

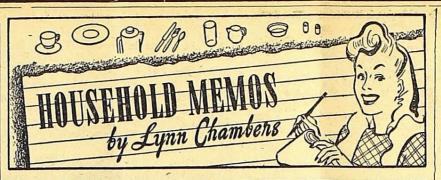

"I'm glad, too, John I.," Julia said, in a toneless voice.

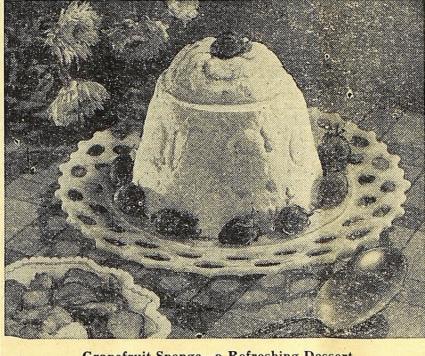

She laid the paper down and walked out across the grass, under the high, ancient trees. She looked at the thin autumn sky and the leaves that were already beginning

"Good-by, Richard," she said softly. "Good-by, my last lover!"

Grapefruit Sponge-a Refreshing Dessert

Fruit Magic

When lazy warm weather comes upon us and foods don't tempt the appetite, Mrs. Homemaker is hard pressed to provide her family with enough nourishing food to sustain them. Families seem to prefer the lightest of food, and it sometimes is hard to build up the calorie count on salads and cold meats.

other means fail. There are so many delectable refrigerator desserts made of fruit and berries and cream that it will take more than a season to try them all. First of all there's the shortcake variety. Bake your biscuits golden brown, split and butter them and then drizzle luscious crushed and sweetened fruit or berries between the biscuits. Drown them in cream, either plain or whipped, and watch them disappear. Then, too, there's an amazing variety of frozen desserts which take their share of fruit and cream. These take but a few minutes to make and keep well for several days in the refrigerator. If you're shy on sugar use preserves or fruit sauces, and you won't have to dip into the sugar bowl at all.

TRY SOME of these recipes and your warm weather problem will be solved:

Apricot Sherbet. (Makes 1 quart) 1 cup evaporated milk

ougmy c 3 tablespoons lemon juice 1 cup apricot preserves

Whip chilled milk very stiff. Beat in lemon juice, then fold in preserves. Pour at once into cold freezing tray and chill for several Variations: Strawberry, cherry or peach preserves or marmalade may be substituted for apricot preserves.

Apple Sherbet. (Makes 1 quart)

1 cup evaporated milk thoroughly chilled 2 tablespoons lemon juice

2 cups sweetened applesauce, chilled

Dash of nutmeg

Whip chilled milk very stiff. Beat in lemon juice. Fold in applesauce and nutmeg. Pour at once into cold freezing tray and chill well. Orange Ice Cream.

20 marshmallows-1 cup orange juice Grated rind of 2 oranges Juice of 1 lemon ½ pint whipping cream

Add 2 tablespoons of water to the marshmallows and place them in the top part of a double boiler. Stir constantly until the mashmallows are half dissolved. Remove from heat and stir until creamy. Cool, add orange juice, rind and lemon juice. Whip cream until thick and add to the mixture. Place in tray and freeze, stirring often, until firm.

Circus tights were invented in 1828 by Nelson Hower, a bareback rider. In those days, circus performers wore costumes consisting of a short jacket, knee breeches and stockings, but Nelson Hower's costume was accidentally mislaid. He realized he had nothing to wear just a few moments before it was time for his act. When his cue came Hower appeared in the arena wearing his long knit underwear—and circus tights were invented.

Mr. Tom Clark, Attorney-General, Washington, D. C.

Dear Sir: The papers tell me of conferences in Washington on "Freedom Train." This is a train to be sent all over the United States to display hundreds of the most important documents in American history, including the Declaration of Independence, the Bill of Rights and Lincoln's Emancipation Proclamation. The purpose, you say, is "to reawaken in the American people the loyalty it is known to have for the American way of life." Your conferences are being held to get ideas on the best way to make this idea "dramatic, intensive and mili-

Well, Mr. Clark, all I hope is that for once in this country we have stumbled on an important crusade which has within itself so much natural appeal that it will not have to be linked up with flap doodle, ballyhoo, baloney and the usual parades of bathing beauties, movie cuties, radio comics, etc. I hope the hallowed documents testifying to the struggles and accomplishments of America will not be ushered into any American community with the customary escort of girl drum majors, amusement world clowns and movie colony wives plus assorted husbands.

THE OLD DAYS

The first permit ever issued for an auto to enter Central Park brought a high price at auction the other day. The permit was issued to Curtis P. Brady in 1899. It specified that "in accepting this, the holder agrees to exercise the greatest care to avoid frightening horses or cause any danger or annoyance to other users of the park."

Who can remember away back when horses snorted, reared and bolted at the sight of an auto? Back to us comes the recollection of a boyhood when we used to start driving Charlie Atwood's big black horse out of Ward street into Davenport avenue and, seeing a Pope-Hartford in the distance, turn around and headed the other way. If the horse had seen it first the horse, wagon and Phillips would have gone in different directions.
