Alabaster to Play Rhodes in Play-offs

Next Sunday, August 31st, Alabaster, the Northern Division champions pay a visit to Rhodes, the Southern Division champs, to begin the play-offs to decide the best team of the Northeastern Michigan League. This is the first of a 2 out of 3 game series, the winner of which will then meet the as yet undecided champs of the Central Division. Rhodes is located about 15 miles west and south of Standish and the best way for you interested fans to get there is to take State Highway 61 to Bentley, then southwest another three miles to Rhodes. A large crowd of Alabaster rooters is expected to make the trip.

In an exhibition game last Sunday at Standish, the Alabaster boys held a 2-0 lead when a heavy downpour interrupted the proceedings. This game will be played over at Standish on Labor Day, so the holiday week-end promises at least two good baseball shows for the ever growing club of Alabaster rooters.

John Coyle spent Sunday and Monday at Houghton Lake with his daughter and family. Louis Harmening returned home after a weeks visit with his grandparents.

PROGRESS!

"We have learned to fly through the air like birds, and in submarines to swim under the sea like fish. All that remains is for us to walk the earth like men." —Halford Lucock.

How are we going to learn to walk as men should? (1) See to it that in our homes we do everything possible to breathe a spirit of brotherhood, exemplify thrift, industry, neighborliness, tolerance, worship. (2) Support our church and all for which it stands. (3) Provide our children with as much education as our ability allows and their capacity permits.

Parents are faced anew this fall with the problem—shall we send John or Mary to High School or encourage Jim or Susi to go on to College? Our answer is that the best investment ever made is the investment made in Education.

Education pays in dollars and cents and in the far bigger and more important field of human happiness and service.

Iosco county has good schools, manned by sincere school administrators and teachers who are anxious to take the material you send them in the form of human personalities and help mold it into useful citizenry to the end that indeed "They walk the earth like men."

Charles Hamilton Hurt At Huron Rustic Plant

Nearly three weeks ago Charles Hamilton, founder of Huron Shores Rustic Furniture Company suffered a fall from a lumber pile as he was engaged in serving a customer.

First aid was administered and an X-ray taken which showed no broken bones. Mr. Hamilton went to his home in Bay City, and not reacting satisfactorily, sought further medical aid. It was discovered that he suffered injury to the diaphragm and was advised to desist from all physical effort for at least six months.

Returning to Tawas, Hamilton propositioned Harry Westrich, his original partner and Roual LaBerge and Frank Wilkusi, who bought into the company a year ago to take over on a rental basis his share of the plant. The other men accepted the proposition offered them and this week a complete inventory is being taken and September 1st the remaining partners will begin operating under the new arrangement.

Only last month Hamilton agreed to add his assistance in raising the hospital budget and his loss to the community in that particular project will be felt. He was President of the Tawas Chamber of Commerce a couple of years back and left that organization in a thriving condition financially.

The editor joins with other friends in wishing Mr. Hamilton a complete recovery and in wishing the three gentlemen who take over the business continued success.

Donald Loeffler of Elkhart, Indiana, is spending the weekend at the Hugo Marwinski home.

Whittemore Pulls First Triple Play of NEM 1947 Season

Tawas City added two more wins to their NEM League schedule before a crowd of par-boiled Independent fans.

They spanked a Whittemore team in both ends of a double header, 10 to 2, behind Clare Herriman, and 2 to 1, with Dale Landon doing the hurling for Tawas City. Barr, Whittemore fireballer started on the mound, and pitched four innings, being relieved by Jordan in the fifth. He came back to pitch the entire, seven inning, second game. Herriman turned in a six hit stint in the first frames while his team-mates pounded Barr and Jordan for 12 hits, including two hits each by Bublitz and Herriman. Landon in the night-cap, set Whittemore down with three hits, while Barr allowed Tawas City team seven hits, with Neil Libka, Tawas third sacker, poling out three hits, a double and two singles. Manager Gacketter contributed two of the other four Tawas City's seven hit attack, both singles.

Though Whittemore lost both ends of the doubleheader, several would be Tawas City runs were cut down by Whittemore, with a double play in the first game, two double plays and a triple play in the second game. The triple play came in the third inning of the second game when with the bases loaded, H. Bublitz grounded to the pitcher, who forced Libka at home, and Kohen, the catcher, doubled Bublitz at first, and Landon was nipped in a run-down between third base and home, after a (Continued No. 3, Back Page)

Schools Open

The Country Doctor

Columbia University,
Dear Columbia:

Congratulations on cooperating with a Cooperstown hospital in a project to teach medical students some of the qualifications and talents of the country doctor. As I get it the proposition is to try to inject into the doctor of today, something of the mood and humility of the old fashioned rural "sawbones," and I am all for it. What this country needs is some more old fashioned doctors who don't want to make money too fast and will get up in the middle of the night.

I grant you that the modern doctor makes fewer mistakes and is away out in front in techniques but the country doctor, even when not too sure whether it was measles or nettle-rash, had a way of making the patient feel better anyhow. And whatever your ailment was you could get out of it without a couple of bank loans.

It was his manner, his gentleness, his warm personal concern that helped as much as some of his pills. You didn't link him up with a major financial exploit every time you called him in.

I hope that Columbia and this Cooperstown hospital will try to resurrect something of the spirit of this old boy. If you could couple his humanity with the modern doctor's skill you would have a medical wonder.

The old fashioned country doctor would go anywhere, anytime, for anybody. He knew your first name, your wife's first name and your youngsters' first names. He even knew the dog and cat. Anything any college can do to bring back his fine human qualities will be so much velvet.

Sincerely,
Elmer.

Automobile prices are being added again and we seem in for a revival of the old days when people driving by in a motor car were obviously of the moneyed class.

A Vegetarian President

Dr. John Maxwell, 81, of Chicago, will run for the presidency of the United States, according to the newspapers, on a vegetarian ticket. It seems a pretty good idea. We have always had meat-eating presidents . . . and look where we are!

It could be that what this country needs is a man in the White House who does it all through a vegetable plate.

- "Shave—15 cents."
 - "Do I get a month's concession on the rent?"
 - "Let's go home; the party's getting rough."
 - "We can't afford it now."
 - "Try our steak sandwich—45 cents."
 - "Shore Dinners—$1 to $1.75."
 - "How much are you going to be able to save this week?"
 - "Taxes are paid out of the sweat of every man's brow."

Everybody seems to be jacking up the prices with a Simon Legree attitude toward the consumer, and nowhere is it more pathetic than at the amusement parks this summer. Believe it or not, the kids are charged 10 cents to throw three baseballs, the rifle ranges sock 'em six shots for a quarter, the roller coaster in some parks sets 'em back 20 cents and the nickel merry-go-round ride is pretty much a thing of the past.

As we get it, Russia wants it clear that she will never fraternize with an ally and friend.

The Atlantic Fishermen's union around Boston, Gloucester and New Bedford has been found a monopoly by a high court. It is called guilty of limiting catches and fixing prices and ordered to desist. Morgan Horse "American as America"

Government Runs Unique Breeding Farm in Vermont

By BAUKHAGE
News Analyst and Commentator.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Some time ago the world was startled to learn from Pravda, the official communist party newspaper in Moscow, that it was a Russian who discovered "wireless" (as radio was called in its youth), and as if that weren't enough, it was announced later by the same authority that the electric light, which poor Thomas Edison certainly thought he had something to do with, was likewise a Russian invention.

If I ever read, as some day I fear I shall, that ice-cream sodas and hot-dogs were first discovered on a pleasant afternoon by some mysterious Muscovite as he sat dreaming on his back steppes, I shall announce that borsch and vodka are American products and that the Volga boatmen were simply a prodigal local of the CIO maritime union.

Meanwhile, however, I am reminded by the department of agriculture that one thing which is as American as America and which no foreigner had better try to appropriate as a home-grown product, is the Morgan horse.

Justin Morgan is immortalized in bronze and you can see him today standing on his pedestal before the main stable of the United States Morgan horse farm which covers about 1,000 acres of rolling, wooded country two miles north of Middlebury, Vt.

The original farm of 400 acres was presented to the United States department of agriculture by Joseph Battell. Colonel Battell had long been an admirer and breeder of Morgan horses, and had founded the American Morgan register. The farm was established in 1907. The area was increased by an additional gift of about 35 acres by Colonel Battell in 1908, and by purchase of about 550 acres from Middlebury College in 1917. The land, underlain with limestone, is well adapted to the production of horses.

In the selection of foundation breeding stock, and in planning subsequent matings, emphasis was placed upon size and quality, and ability to perform the three gaits, walk, trot and canter. These points continue to be emphasized. Also, every effort has been made to preserve adequate muscling and depth of body and to preserve and enhance desirable temperament.

The stocky stallion, original of the post-mortem effigy was named for its owner, a singing schoolmaster, was foaled in 1793 and died in 1821. He (I mean the stallion not the schoolmaster) had a romantic career and he is the progenitor of the breed, which as the department of agriculture says, is one of the few breeds of horses developed in the United States. Justin was a "small, active animal of great power and endurance, with the reputation of being able to outwalk, outrun, and outpull any other horse in Vermont and the neighboring states."

He had the power to transmit these qualities, says the department, to his three known sons and the United States government is doing its share to perpetuate the characteristics for which his ilk is known: "beauty, easy keeping, soundness, endurance, and spirit coupled with gentleness."

The first time I ever went to Vermont I was attracted to these plucky little horses. Later I learned more about the Morgan horse. He weighs less than 1,000 pounds, he is not over 14 hands high, round-barrelled, with powerful chest and leg muscles, a proud head and a stout heart. He has done a lot to develop the state of Vermont and his adventures have carried him far afield. In a fictionalized but remarkably accurate story of "Justin I," Marguerite Henry tells how the boy Joel, who "gentled" Justin as a colt, later lost track of him and finally found him again and how Joel, in his cavalry uniform with a sprig of evergreen in his helmet, sat proudly on his diminutive mount when President Monroe reviewed the Green Mountain boys when they came back from the War of 1812.

The author has Joel say about Justin afterward: "He was just a little work horse that cleared the fields and helped Vermont grow up. Come to think of it, he's like us. He's American . . . that's what he is, American."

The Morgan horse helped other states and territories grow up, too, for their equine brotherhood went West with the emigrating farmers, and more than one American soldier was proudly mounted on a Morgan as he went into battle. General Custer rode off on a Morgan horse when he went out to fight the Indians, a whole regiment of cavalry had Morgan mounts in the Civil War.

Breeding Program Is Under Way

Now, "The Morgan horse breeders" Dr. McFee of the animal husbandry division of the department of agriculture told me, "have given more attention to the traits desirable in a riding horse." (Forty descendants of Justin became famous as trotters. Some of you remember such names as Ethan Allen, Black Hawk and Dan Patch.)

At the Morgan farm today usually about forty-five horses are under test.

According to the official description, the breeding program there calls for "the measurement of each youngster at one year of age, at two years, and at three years. All are trained under saddle and in harness and are put through controlled performance and endurance trials when about three years old. The data thus obtained form the permanent records of the individuals. They are used also in studies of sire and dam inheritance and as criteria for formulation of the station's breeding program. For the tests of three-year olds the department's horse specialists have devised specific trials to measure the walking and trotting gaits and the horses' endurance in harness and under the saddle."

Always versatile, the Morgan was a chopper when he went to the meeting house on Sunday pulling the surrey with the fringe on the top as it was weekdays when it could drag a log to the sawmill which often took a team of its big brothers to budge. And where buggies are still used, you'll often find a Morgan between the shafts. He is used on the trail, too, for his forte these days seems to be under the saddle.

The Morgan horses have found homes far from the shadow of their native Green Mountains and today the stock probably is increasing more rapidly in California than anywhere in the East. I regret to say that on my last trip to Vermont, this summer, though mighty Mount Mansfield looked up at the heavens with the same stern profile that it did when I first panted pack-laden to its top, the maple-sugar tasted as good (though it cost too much), the mist still held the peak of Killington as gently as ever in its graceful fingers. But I missed the quick tattoo of those small strong hooves on the hard highways, and the silhouette of an arched neck against the sky above a mountain pasture.

I'm glad that Uncle Sam is doing his part, in the shadow of Justin's statue, to perpetuate the breed that is "just like us," as Joel said:—American.

NO THUMB ON SCALES

Extend Prepackaging to Meat

That old caricature of the butcher resting his thumb on the scales as he weighs out the meat soon will vanish completely from the American scene if the trend toward prepackaging of fresh cut meats continues at its present pace.

Approximately 100 stores across the nation currently are operating their meat departments on that basis, and their cash registers are recording ample proof that attractively cut meat wrapped in cellophane and placed in display cases sells itself as efficiently as a butcher's sales talk could.

With the popular cuts of meat in weights most in demand placed in open-top refrigerated cases, the housewife can shop at her leisure

Rioting Flares in India; British Get Stern Rule

INDEPENDENCE:

India Riots

During the two days before fateful India became a land of free men, more than 200 died in a bloody orgy of violence and rioting in the huge northern province of Punjab.

Lahore, the capital, was the center of the disturbance, but fierce fighting also took place throughout the west and east Punjab countryside. Wide sections of Lahore were aflame.

This took place on the eve of India's independence day, just before the Indian constituent assembly sat down to function as a free governing body.

Cause of the rioting, incited, as always, by terrorists, was the bitter disagreement arising out of the partitioning of India into two separate zones—one for Hindus, the other for Moslems.

In New Delhi, the independence day ceremonial program began with two minutes of silence for those who died in the fight for freedom which was finally achieved through amicable negotiations with the British.

IRON HAND:

Britannia Ruled

It will may be true that "Britons never, never, never shall be slaves," as the anthem has it, but in view of Prime Minister Clement Attlee's new emergency action giving the government stern powers over British industry and labor, many in the islands are now harboring serious doubts about that.

The emergency bill, which Winston Churchill charged invoked such restraints as the government has never before imposed except in time of war, has been passed by both houses of parliament and now—for better or worse—is law of the land.

Designed to bring Britain out of her deadly economic slump, the bill empowers the government to command labor and industry to do practically anything and everything, if it is in the national interest.

Rallying cry of the British conservatives, led by Churchill, is "dictatorship."

Anthony Eden, former foreign secretary, got into the fight by asking that parliament cut short a planned vacation so the members can be on hand to examine the measures which the government will order.

"The house cannot be an absent spectator while the government does a split over the ever-widening abyss," said Eden, also a member of the Conservative party.

CO-OP INQUIRY:

Two Questions

Although the public is not too well informed about it, one of the most important and fiercely waged domestic post war battles is that being fought between private business and cooperative enterprises.

Crux of the feud is the fact that cooperatives are tax-exempt, while private business is not. From this evolve two basic questions:

1. What effect does tax-exemption have upon growth of the cooperatives?
2. Is tax-exemption a factor of discrimination against private business?

A house small business subcommittee has begun an attempt to find the answers with an investigation of the cooperative community enterprise at Greenbelt, Md. In the Greenbelt case, business groups have charged that the government has aided the cooperative in keeping private business out of the development area.

This hearing, as well as others on the west coast, is being conducted by Rep. B. Walter Riehlman (Rep., N. Y.) as acting chairman of the subcommittee.

In view of the theory that taxes will remain high, compared with the past, for at least 50 years, according to economists, the tax-exemption feature of co-ops' existence will grow increasingly important.

RED SAUCERS:

Soviets Curious

Those flying disks were fun while they lasted, but by this time everybody has practically forgotten them.

Well, almost everybody. Latest report having to do with the aerial chinaware is that Soviet agents in the United States have been ordered to solve the mystery of the disks. Presupposing the report to be true, it means, at least, that the saucers were not of Russian origin.

Soviet espionage agents here are said to have been advised that the Kremlin believes the flying saucers might have some connection with army experiments on methods of knocking out enemy radar.

Tourist Trade

Operating on the highly plausible theory that left-over land mines are not only unhealthy for wandering tourists but are also bad for business, the French ministry of reconstruction is working hard to clear all possible danger spots in former fighting areas around France. While the French admit that erstwhile battle zones might attract heavy tourist trade, they are not taking any chances.

Republican Strategy Pays Dividends

THE Republicans brought themselves out of their first new leadership session of congress in greater unity than any political party has achieved since long before the New Deal. Defections generally drew only three of their senators.

This was accomplished by a peculiar inner system of organization. Normally steering committees are bossed by one or two men, but the Republicans made theirs truly representative of the party. For instance, in the house Speaker Martin was boss, but he worked closely with Floor Leader Halleck (which is not unusual). They both cooperated genuinely with a steering committee, which made many decisions to which both Martin and Halleck were opposed.

Out of this system of operating from the grass roots up, instead of from a top leadership down (as Mr. Roosevelt did), came the dominant party characteristic of their first session.

Now this guiding committee-leadership had an operating system which was kept completely under cover. They had a two-pronged base policy from the start. They strove (A) to keep down the amount of legislation, selecting only the bare essentials for beginning a new policy era for the country, and (B) to get away from emergency and "must" legislation. Their delay on the union reform bill was deliberate. Nothing was said about this yardstick. They kept the Democrats from knowing their formula. But they feel rather good now about the way it worked out.

Letter for Special Delivery

"Mr. Averell Harriman, Secretary of Commerce, Washington, D. C.

"My Dear Mr. Harriman—The papers say that the Committee of Nineteen which is to look into this country's capacity to do all our foreign lending and underwriting has started on the job in a big way and that it will 'make a study unmatched in history.' Fine and dandy! Some such study to find out where the bottom of the barrel is, what's between it and the top, how big the bung-hole should be and whether multiple spigots are advisable is certainly overdue, bub. And it will comfort most Americans to feel for the first time in many years that 'Stop, look and listen' is replacing the slogan 'Shoot the works, let the poorhouse come when it may.'"

Bill Powell is reported the Hollywood choice to play Elwood Dowd in the movie of "Harvey."

We can't imagine him as even close to the type, and the actor we think would be a scream in it would be Barry Fitzgerald. He is the only performer on stage or screen who could touch Frank Fay. Why not, by the way, Fay for the picture version. Too much as the author intended, eh?

It is our guess that Hollywood will put the rabbit into the play, visually. And that, were John Bunny alive, he would get the part.

"So far as this airplane business is concerned I have been in it 13 years and lost $14,000,000."—Howard Hughes.

"Is that good?"

It seems to us, reading about those gay parties as an amusing interlude in the war contracts routine, that there should have been a "Miss $200 of 1944."

Congressional Junket for Peace

SEN. GLEN TAYLOR of Idaho, a former cowboy vaudeville crooner who has come to win the respect of his senatorial colleagues, will take an unusual trip this summer.

While some senators will be junketing to Alaska or touring Europe, Taylor will ride horseback from the Pacific to the Atlantic coast.

The senator from Idaho candidly admits that it is a publicity stunt, but not for Taylor, for peace. Along the way, Taylor plans to speak for the United Nations and world cooperation.

At the last session of congress, he helped introduce a bill to strengthen the United Nations and help eliminate the veto power by which one nation can hold up the peace efforts of the rest of the world. Taylor feels that the Middle West is becoming isolationist, is worried over the threat of war and wants to dramatize the problem of peace.

The Idaho senator planned to buy two horses in California and begin his trek from the Golden Gate bridge, San Francisco. One horse will follow behind on a trailer, while he rides the other, alternating each day. Taylor says he plans to ride horseback every inch of the way, even including western deserts and the Rocky mountains. He figures the trip will take him three months.

Land of the Melting Pot

This underlines America's reputation as a melting pot: We have 256 different religious denominations.

. . . A democratic form of government in America had its origin in Virginia under Governor Yeardley—two years before the Pilgrims landed at Plymouth. . . . Polish, German and Irish workers began to battle their oppressors in Virginia long before the Revolutionary war exploded. . . . During nine of the last ten years America's annual immigration quota was not filled.

Those who say the Indians are a vanishing race are spreading a myth. Their population has doubled during the past decade. . . . Many American Indian reservations have modern homes. They look like any other small town.

Historians have said that the American Revolution was the achievement of an "aggressive minority." The colonies consisted of men and women who came from Ireland, England, Scotland, France, Germany, Holland, Switzerland, Sweden, Poland and Italy. And every religion also was represented among the soldiers who formed Washington's army.

AMERICA IS A NATION composed of minorities. And when compared with the rest of the world's population—Americans as a whole also are a minority. . . . Bigots who blame all our troubles on foreigners should be reminded that only 10 per cent of America's population is foreign-born. . . . And we must not forget America's most beloved immigrant—the Statue of Liberty.

WALTER SHEAD

Cost of Living Spirals

IN PRESIDENT TRUMAN'S state of the union message to congress last January he warned of the spiral of inflated prices. In the succeeding seven months the President filed with congress two economic reports on conditions in the country, and in both of these he urged congress to do something about the high cost of living. In addition, more than a month before adjournment of congress he sent a special message urging positive action against the continued spiral of living costs. He also made a plea to private industry to reduce costs voluntarily.

All through the long months until congress adjourned, no action was taken. In the meantime, living costs reached their peak immediately before adjournment. As prices soared, profits soared and 1947 earnings will be approximately 50 per cent above last year's record of $12,539,000,000.

On the last day of the session the senate named a joint committee and appropriated $100,000 for it to hold hearings to probe the question of whether or not there is a high cost of living problem. That is all congress did. These hearings probably will get under way in mid-September.

Useless 'Jobs' Will Remain

POLITICS being politics, regardless of which party is in power, it probably was too much to expect any considerable reduction in the many agencies, bureaus and administrations of the federal government. Useless as many of them may be to John Q. Public, they do provide jobs, and jobs represent patronage. Those bureaus were created by a Democratic administration, regard the jobs they represent can be filled by a Republican administration if and when there comes such a change. As long as the jobs are filled by Democrats the present administration wants them continued. Anticipating a possible change, the Republicans wish to retain these jobs.

DOG JUMPS STAND ROCK . . . In the early 1880s, Henry H. Bennett, pioneer photographer, made first action shot of his son leaping across the gap between mainland cliff and towering Stand Rock landmark at Wisconsin Dells, Wis. An accident to a guide in the 90s caused the owners of the scenic property to prohibit further jumping. Recently, however, Bennett's grandchildren trained a large dog to make the leap (see inset) for benefit of amateur photographers.

CLAUDIA MORGAN has given more than one taxi driver the surprise of his life. The star of "The Right to Happiness" frequently finds her time so crowded, between broadcasts and stage appearances, that she has to use a taxi for a dressing room. rally, but has won professional laurels by her own efforts. And between broadcasting on all the major networks and making stage appearances she raises pigs and chickens on her New Jersey farm.

Fifty boys from the orphanage next door were allowed to enter the grounds of the old Banning estate in Wilmington, Calif., each day while fifty Screen Actors Guild actors, aged five to eight, worked with Evelyn Keyes and Glenn Ford in Columbia's "The Mating of Millie." They were pretty critical—the young actors were playing orphans.

An original rhapsody by Oscar Levant has been included in the score of Warner Bros. "Romance in High C." Levant, who has a featured comedy role in the Technicolor musical, will play it in a night club sequence.

Fitting out Broderick Crawford for a policeman's uniform for "The Time of Your Life" was quite an affair. Going into the role in the William Cagney production on short notice, he borrowed Nat Pendleton's coat, Dick Foran's trousers and Ward Bond's shoes. Broderick says Pendleton is holding out for screen credit on the coat!

Many years ago one Sumner Getchell had a principal role in which Clark Gable, Charles Farrell, Janet Gaynor, Gilbert Roland and George Lewis were bit and extra players. When the picture was done he quit; said there was no future in that business. Recently he returned, for a character part in "Ever the Beginning." "I think maybe I was mistaken," said he.

Tony Martin's really going to work this fall. He'll continue his CBS Sunday night show, and star in "Casbah," a musical version of "Pepe Le Moko" at Universal-International. He'll also do a night club stint.

It's radio news that NBC has let down the bar on transcriptions. All these years Ralph Edwards has been putting on two complete "Truth or Consequences" shows each week, one for the east coast, a second one later for the west. The first four programs of the fall season will follow that procedure, but beginning October 4 the first show will be transcribed and broadcast later for the west coast.

Though he's one of Hollywood's best dancers, Rory Calhoun had to take lessons in teen-age terosichore for his role in "Mary Hagen." Seems he's fine at the tango, the rhumba, etc., but had to learn to bounce.

Bob (Believe It or Not) Ripley gave the most original of recent press parties; took about 30 newspaper and magazine writers for a sail on New York's North River in his Chinese junk, the Mon Lei.

Perry Como has signed a non-cancellable, 24-month contract with the sponsor of his NBC "Supper Club" program, which returns to the air September 8. And will Hollywood producers please note that when Como made a personal appearance at the RKO Boston theater, members of his fan clubs paraded with signs saying "We Want More Como Films."

ODDS AND ENDS—There's a good deal of risk in writing to Louise Barclay of "The Right to Happiness"—she does handwriting character analysis. . . . Meredith Willson's tour with his CBS radio show has been indefinitely postponed. . . . Stella Adler's "baby," about whom she talked and talked on sets of "Ever the Beginning," turned out to be an 18-year-old daughter who'd just finished her first year of college. . . . Lucille Ball and Francho Tonn will make a series of personal appearances across the country, beginning in October, in connection with pictures released this fall.

Intelligence in U. S. Declining

Birth Pattern Is Blamed by Expert for Condition, Quotes Commission.

WASHINGTON.—Possibility that the intelligence of the American people is declining has been discovered by population experts. That this may be true is agreed to by some top educational leaders.

They expect the president's commission on higher education to recommend broadening of the whole American education system to increase the quality and quantity of national leadership.

But Guy Irving Burch of the Population Reference Bureau, a private research organization, says the most alarming threat to intelligence is the pattern of human reproduction.

He quotes bureau of census figures to show that parents with the least mental and financial ability to raise children produce twice as many children as parents of highest intelligence and income.

Studies in England for the royal commission on population, he says, suggest the number of feeble-minded in England may double within 50 years and that there will be only half as many "students of scholarship ability."

Fewer Good Students.
Dr. Francis Brown, staff associate of the American Council on Education and executive secretary of the president's commission, says he agrees with the population bureau that under present conditions average American intelligence seems to be declining.

But he says "this population-intelligence report does not give enough importance to the possibility of improving intelligence by education."

"It emphasizes the part heredity plays in human intelligence. It implies that, because of the law of heredity, in the majority of cases a child will have about the same level of intelligence as his parents. And it also implies that because children are more numerous in the poorer families the average of intelligence is dropping to the danger point.

"What it overlooks is this: Human intelligence never has been developed to its fullest among the great masses of people. No way has been found accurately to measure the ultimate capabilities of the human mind.

Seek More Schools.
"There are certain physical, emotional and intellectual capacities that are limited by native intelligence, which is the capacity of the mind to learn and create. These capacities may be limited by heredity.

"But what happens in developing these inborn abilities determines the level of intelligence a person will reach.

"All indications are that there is a tremendous reserve of human intelligence that never has been developed."

As for the educational situation, President Truman suggested his commission study ways and means of expanding opportunities "for all able young people."

Some studies indicate this would mean increasing educational facilities, including schools, by one-third "all along the line from primary grades through college."

Several groups have recommended that the federal government pay for the college training of "the best high school scholars."

But opponents say this would create an educational "elite" and wouldn't substantially increase the nation's reserve of top-level intelligence.

Super Speedway Envisioned For Jet-Propelled Racers

DETROIT.—Plans for a super speedway to accommodate 300-mile an hour jet-propelled racers of the future were revealed here by automotive designers who, in adapting guided missile techniques for ground transportation, foresee the day when the reciprocating engine will be as obsolete as the horse and buggy.

Details of the five million dollar speedway, for which a site already has been selected, were revealed in Science and Mechanics magazine, which reported that a Detroit corporation already has drawn plans for an eight square mile track on which each jet racer would hurtle at airplane speed on his own ramp.

Designers of the jetway foresee its use as a valuable testing ground for military transportation experiments, and say it will provide the incentive the United States has long needed "to take the lead in promoting new and better automotive designs."

Jet-Propelled Bicycle Travels 25 Miles an Hour

DAYTON.—William Tenney and Charles Marks claim to have designed the first jet-propelled bicycle.

Demonstrating their beltless, chainless, gearless bike powered only by three tiny "dyna-jet" motors developed for miniature aircraft, they have attained speeds of 25 miles an hour and say the contrivance is capable of even faster speeds.

The jet-propulsion features come from a series of tubular jet engines mounted on the rear fender, with an exhaust tank attached beneath.

First New England Pumpkin Pie Wasn't a Pie at All!

When the early New Englanders made the first pumpkin pie, it just wasn't a pie at all. The pumpkin was then baked in hot ashes in a brick oven, and the filling was eaten from the shell.

New Hearing Aid Practically Invisible

To make hearing aids almost invisible, a new device has been developed which makes unnecessary a visible receiver button in the ear, but instead only a small transparent plastic insert which is hardly visible. This arrangement with a small single unit transmitter in which batteries need not be used separately now makes it possible to use a hearing aid quite comfortably and inconspicuously, in most cases.

This instrument is a development of the Sonotone Corp., world's largest organization devoted exclusively to hearing aid research and service. A certified Sonotone consultant makes regular trips through this community, completely equipped to make scientific tests and fittings of this new instrument; also supply batteries for all instruments. A penny post card to Sonotone, 406 Bldg. & Loan Bldg., Saginaw, will bring a personal call on the next trip through this community, or further information by mail if desired. Have your hearing aid fitted where complete facilities for scientific proper fitting and maintenance of permanent and proper service are always available.

Tree Growth
Pines do not grow as fast as Cottonwood or Chinese elm, but if given good care make fairly rapid growth once they are well established. With good care pines will average a foot or more growth in height per year. It is not uncommon for pines to grow to a height of 10 or 12 feet in ten years or to a height of 20 feet or more in 20 years. The pines are hardy and will last a long time.

Change Garden Spot
Many farm gardeners need to change the position of the garden spot. Soil wears out in garden spots just as anywhere else. Trees that were small enough not to have harmed grandmother's garden may have grown so much and their roots spread so far that they are robbing your garden of moisture if you happen to be still using the same land that grandmother did.

Forecast Farm Home Improvements Here
Farm families in Iosco county will spend more than $450,000 for new housing in the next three to five years, according to a forecast released by the Tile Council of America.
"As a result of high income during the last few years, farmers in every part of the nation are prepared to invest record amounts in home construction and in general farm improvements," said F. B. Ortman, chairman of the Council's residential construction committee.
"Pointing out that the comforts and conveniences of urban living are now available to farm families, Ortman said that new rural homes will incorporate such features as central heating, tiled bathrooms and modern facilities.
Rapid electrification of rural areas of Michigan is making possible the incorporation in new homes of many labor-saving and comfort-providing devices undreamed of a generation ago, according to Ortman. Rural Electrification Administration estimates disclose that more than 87 per-cent of all farms in the state now receive central station electric service. Refrigerators, electric washing machines, and deep freezing plants as well as plumbing systems, will go into many new homes as a consequence.

Chicken Liver Omelets
Make chicken liver omelets to vary your menu. Sauté chopped chicken livers in fat or salad oil, season to taste with salt, pepper and Worcestershire sauce, then place over the omelet just before serving.

Salad Dressings
Salad dressing should be added to salads at the last minute before they are served. Most dressings have a tendency to cause fresh fruits and vegetables to lose crispness. It is smart to serve dressing at the table.

THE FICTION CORNER

THE PORK BANDIT

By DEE RANDALL

NOSEY COLLINS, as you know, is the Number One Egoist of the day. Just as Napoleon once laid claim to the title. But that was back in the 17th or 18th century. And nobody bothers much about him any more. Except those who like to dig and delve into dusty old history books.

Napoleon had only an Empire to conquer. Nosey had a newspaper office and an ever-loving Tillie as his territorial grounds.

It's true, it proved rather expensive this ego-building business. But no matter the cost, Nosey is acclaimed as a self-made man. One of the finest men on the staff of the Daily Gazette.

Besides Tillie and the newspaper office, it must be revealed, Nosey has still another love. She now lay cozily in her private retreat... the right hand drawer of Nosey's desk.

There was a quiet purr as Nosey patted the soft, dirty white fur on Dermie's neck.

Dermie was the nickname for Hypodermic. A name fitting to the oversized cat because you really had to stick a needle in her to make her stir.

There was only one other thing that would rouse this reflexing feline. That was the smell of boloney or liver, even from the farthest corner of the ink-smattered city room.

Originally from the restaurant on the corner where she was expected to rid the place of mice and make herself generally useful, she had found refuge in Nosey's comfortable desk drawer. The clatter of dishes and hustle bustle of the crowded restaurant had proved too much for her sensitive nerves.

Nosey stopped his tender patting. This annoyed Dermie no end. Raising her head, which was more energetic than she cared to use, she perked a quizzical eye at him.

"Dermie," Nosey spoke seriously, "If we could get a beat on this Pork Bandit case, we'd sure have something."

Dermie's answer was an assenting hiss.

"Seven butcher shops in seven days," Nosey went on, "that's a record for any criminal. He's plenty nifty, too. Sent them all a notice beforehand. He's got the cops in a quandary. Must be a ghost bandit!" Here he snickered scornfully at the idea of a ghost ransacking a cash register and sticking a butcher knife in a man's back.

"What puzzles me," Nosey went on with his one-sided conversation, "is how he gets in and out with the cash right under their eyes. And why does he always pick on pork stores? The same chain all the time. If we could get to the bottom of that, we'd be getting some place."

Dermie's boredom with this conversation was evident. She settled back on the comfortable pillow installed in the drawer. But not before looking at the empty plate before her. Soon she was snoring peacefully. She knew the plate would be filled later on.

"Mr. Collins? You received my note?" Nosey noticed the stranger's

The stranger's hand quivered nervously as Nosey motioned him to a chair.

Nosey read and reread the unsigned note on his desk. "Maybe I'll be able to get a lead out of this after all," he reflected. Some butcher has received a note saying his store would be next. He was coming in to speak with the editor. The editor had turned the whole business over to Nosey disgustedly. News seldom walked right into a newspaper office. Leads that came in by mail might better have been called "misleads." Usually some quick seeking publicity.

Grim determination could be seen in the set of Nosey's features. The editor had faith in him. He would have to get to the bottom of this thing. As number one egoist, he felt certain he could.

AN INDIGNANT public was becoming boisterous in their vehement denials of this Pork Bandit who slew and robbed at regular daily intervals. The editor had hinted at a bonus or something equally satisfying financially to the guy who got a lead on this story. It would surely come in handy, Nosey dreamed. Next month he and Tillie were getting married.

A glint of happiness filled his usually placid eyes. Sweet Tillie with her flaxen curls. And how she could cook! Nosey's mouth watered in anticipation of the daily meals, like those he had already sampled at Tillie's little apartment.

Dermie opened drowsy eyes and looked reflectively at the still empty plate. She let out a growling hiss and rousing herself, waddled off indignantly. She wasn't used to such shabby treatment.

Nosey had no time to worry over this breach of friendship in Dermie's indignant stamping off. In fact, she was back in a few moments, rubbing her face against his pants leg as a reminder of her gnawing vitals. She hadn't been fed in two hours.

Nosey paid no attention to her pleading. He was waiting for the stranger who was to visit him. At precisely three o'clock, as the note stated, a tall, shabbily dressed man appeared. His dark hair was sleeked neatly back, but otherwise he was hardly a picture of sartorial elegance.

"Mr. Collins? You received my note?" Nosey noticed the stranger's hand quivered nervously as he beckoned him towards a chair. He took the paper the man handed him.

"I'm manager of the store on East 80th street. Received this note early this morning. I left the place and hurried right down here as soon as I could. Didn't have time to change my clothes," he looked down apologetically.

"Your store will be next. This afternoon," the note read. It was signed: "The Pork Bandit."

Nosey scanned the writing carefully. Nothing there to give much of a clue. "Have you seen the police?"

"No sir, thought I'd speak to you first. They seem to be getting nowhere fast," he laughed ruefully. "There has been a note before each crime, you know," he reminded him. Nosey, absent-mindedly patted Dermie's neck. She stirred, looked languidly at the visitor and dozed off again.

Nosey asked him a lot of questions and the visitor seemed anxious to supply all the details possible. "I'm flattered you have so much confidence in us," Nosey told him. "Will you pardon me a moment while I get my notebook. I want to jot down all the information you can give me."

Now Nosey never bothered with a notebook. Any old piece of copy paper did for the hottest scoop.

Outside the city room, Nosey headed for a telephone booth. He made a call, picked up a notebook from a protesting stenographer and returned to his nervously waiting visitor.

He wrote down sentences scrupulously, making sure to dot every "i" and cross every "t." To anyone looking on, it was evident Nosey was stalling for time.

It was only a matter of a few minutes before the two husky cops arrived. A pair of handcuffs were clinked on the now sputtering visitor who demanded to know the meaning of this.

"Here, boys," Nosey addressed the cops, "is your Pork Bandit." He kind of sneered over the name as only a real egoist could do.

The man suddenly stopped battling. "How did you know?" he asked.

"Well, you see," Nosey drawled, his five feet four swaying magnificently, "you said you just came from your pork store. When Dermie woke up and just went right back to sleep again, I knew that was a lie. If you had really come from there, she would have been over there sniffing your pants and licking your leg, maybe even chewing a piece out of it. It's past her meal time now," he smiled down fondly at Dermie who had stirred at mention of her name, looking expectantly at the empty plate.

He went on: "Then you told me some details that the police have carefully guarded from the public. Nobody but the Pork Bandit himself could have known them."

The man hung his head despairingly. "I used to own half of the chain of stores," he spoke bitterly. "Until my partner swindled me out of my share. It was the only way I knew of to get back what really belonged to me."

For a moment Nosey's gaze was sympathetically bent towards the man's back as they led him away. Then he returned to Dermie.

"Have patience, old girl," he patted her head. When he returned, there was an extra cushion in Dermie's drawer domicile and a brand new plate. It has two brightly mice painted on it. This has caused no end of concern to Dermie, who, minus her once sharp teeth, can't figure out just how to bite into the little rascals. She doesn't have any trouble with the extra helpings of boloney, though.

This Week's Best Fiction

Pickles, Relishes, Jams Satisfy Taste Needs During Meals

Late-in-season grapes are ideal for use as preserves, a jam-like product which gives a true lilt to fall and winter menus. A true conserve contains raisins or nuts, or both, but they may be omitted.

Even though most of us like simple meals, well cooked and attractively served, there's an almost universal hunger for something tart or a bit of a sweet that we look for in addition to the basic foods.

This may take the form of a colorful tomato relish, a crisp green pickle, or a thick sweet jam or conserve. These accompaniments are often the finishing, "polished" touches to a meal that make the difference between a success or a failure in the food line.

Now that sugar is plentiful, we can indulge ourselves a bit in the way of sweet fruit mixtures. Pickles and other relishes don't require much sweetening, and there's enough in the gardens and on the markets to make our shelves both bulge and sparkle with other goodies.

Think of sandwiches and you immediately remember how good pickles are with them. Then, too, you can use them with meats, in dressings and sauces.

Bread and Butter Chips. 3 quarts sliced cucumbers 3 onions, sliced 5 1/2 cups cider vinegar 3 cups brown sugar 1 pod hot red pepper 1 teaspoon cinnamon 1/2 teaspoon ginger 2 tablespoons mustard seed 2 tablespoons turmeric 1/2 tablespoon celery seed 1 piece horseradish

Soak the cucumbers and onions (separately) for 5 to 10 hours in brine, made by dissolving 1/2 cup salt in 1/2 gallon of cool water. Drain well. Add onions, 2 1/2 cups vinegar and 2 1/2 cups of water to the cucumbers. Simmer about 15 minutes. Do not cook until soft. Drain; discard liquid in which scalded. Make syrup by boiling the sugar and spices with 3 cups of vinegar and 1 cup water for 5 minutes. Pack well drained cucumbers and onions in hot jars. Cover with boiling syrup and seal at once.

This next is a variation of chili sauce that has seasonings you'll like. It has the same thickness as chili sauce when you have finished cooking it.

Pear Pickles. 1 gallon pears 6 cups sugar 2 cups water 4 cups vinegar 2 pieces of ginger root 2 sticks of cinnamon 2 tablespoons whole allspice 1 tablespoon cloves

Add pears and let stand overnight. Cook until tender. Pack pears into hot jars. Cook syrup until thick and pour over pears. Process for 5 minutes in a hot water bath.

Make your butter go further by having a luscious spread for the bread or an accompaniment to the meat course with relishes and other goodies made now while produce is still available.

Grape Conserve. 2 quarts stemmed grapes 6 cups sugar 1 cup nut meats 1/4 teaspoon salt

For the Concord type grapes, press to remove pulps from skins. Run skins through the food chopper, then boil for 20 minutes in just enough water to prevent sticking. Pour, boiling hot, into sterile jars and seal at once.

Plum Conserve. 2 quarts seeded plums 1 lemon 1/2 teaspoon salt 1 large stick cinnamon 6 cups sugar 1 cup nut meats 1 cup nut meats

Jackson Caused Treasury Building to Jut Into Street

The Treasury building in Washington, D. C., juts out into the street in the way of everybody because in the 1800s, during a discussion about the new location, President Andrew Jackson strode forth, stuck his cane in the ground and said: "The building shall be here."

And so today the Treasury building stands where it completely shuts off the view of the White House from the Capitol.

Making Homes From Shacks
 IN THE little California city of Orange stood an old barn in which horses and cattle had been housed when the site of the city was but a part of a desert ranch.
 That old barn sat right in the center of the best residential section. It was an eyesore to those having homes near it. The owners of those homes wished many times the two lots, portions of both of which the barn occupied, would be sold, and the disreputable structure torn down.
 But I will go back a few years and get the story in sequence:
 When America entered World War I, W. O. (Bill) Hart was, and had been for some years, editor of the Orange paper. With the nation at war he laid aside the editorial pencil, and captained a machine gun company in the United States army. Elsie, his wife, remained at home to care for their small children, regretting there was not something she could do which she could consider more heroic. When World War II came along, the government told Bill he had passed too many birthdays to be eligible for a place in the armed forces; that he could serve best by supporting the war through the columns of his newspaper, and let his three sons do the fighting for the family. This they did.
 A year and more before Germany quit, Bill Hart died in an airplane crash. The following day his son, Bill Jr., in the air corps of the army, died in another plane crash. Elsie Hart again wished for a practical and essential way to serve.

REMODELLED OLD BARN
 The housing problem in Orange, as in all other places, was acute. Munition plant workers, and officers and men of the army and navy were clamoring for homes in which their families could live. There were no vacancies and no materials with which to build houses. In that condition Mrs. Hart saw a small opportunity. She would turn the family garage into a home. With such materials as several junk yards could yield, she produced a cozy and comfortable four-room home for a family.
 She found a small, untenanted and unlivable shack, with a useless shed behind it. She bought the place and, using the same methods as she had applied to the garage, she produced another attractive small home. She bought another unlivable wreck of a house, and again she tuned it into a home—a real prize for a family and a credit to the city.
 But Elsie Hart's real masterpiece is the home she made from that old barn. She bought it and the two lots. The barn was built of California redwood. It had not rotted, and never will. With gabled windows set into the steep roof, an appropriate front entrance, small paned windows, she gave the house old colonial appearance. With brick fireplaces, three of them, the one in the kitchen fitted with all the appliances of an old colonial kitchen, she carried the same impression to the inside. The old barn has been transformed into one of the most attractive homes in a city of attractive homes.
 An ingenious woman who is talented in home, rather than mere house, has helped her home town solve one of the big problems that has faced, and is still facing, all American communities. Elsie Hart has played her part, as did Bill, and Bill Jr.

Useless 'Jobs' Will Remain
 POLITICS being politics, regardless of which party is in power, it was probably too much to expect any considerable reduction in the many agencies, bureaus and administrations of the federal government. Useless as many of them may be to John Q. Public, they do provide jobs, and jobs represent patronage. Those bureaus were created by a Democratic administration, but the jobs they represent can be filled by a Republican administration if and when there comes such a change. As long as the jobs are filled by Democrats the present administration wants them continued. Anticipating a possible change, the Republicans wish to retain these jobs so they may be awarded to the faithful when a new tenant occupies the White House. So John Q. Public will continue to support a useless bureaucracy. John Q. wants debt reduction and tax reduction, but politics must be served, and bureaucracy marches on.

SEVEN hundred thousand votes cannot elect a President of the United States, but it is a whale of a lot of votes. Russia claims that although the Communist party in this country numbers only 70,000, there are 700,000, including fellow travelers, who can be depended upon to do the bidding of Moscow. It may be true, but I wonder if they were actually counted, or is that but a figure provided by Henry Wallace, the CIO and other interested parties?
