CORRECTION

In last weeks issue of The Tawas Herald, the last paragraph of an article on County Road Commission affairs contained a printer's error that we wish to correct. The paragraph in question is correctly printed below.

The reason for this curtailment is that the last session of the legislature took away $36,000 (thirty-six thousand) of the Road Commission funds. Last winter snow removal increased above normal about $35,000 (thirty-five thousand) and in addition the cost of labor and material has gone up tremendously during the last few years.

The Old Philosopher Says:

By Gavin Maxwell "CUSTOM"

We read in sacred writ of the Great Teacher, and as was His custom He went into the synagogue on the Sabbath day.

The greatest citizen of all time attended services of the tabernacle with regularity.

We propose to be a Christian Nation following in His steps and yet a very large percentage of our people seldom darken the door of the Church in which they profess belief.

Giving to the Church is also a penurious affair. Some day take a look at the collection plate as it passes you. Evidence will reach your eye to prove that the estimate of the worth of the service, if gifts for its support are accepted as evidence runs a very poor second to the cheapest kind of show.

Those who would help their fellowmen such as Priests, Ministers, editors, teachers or ordinary laymen in widely separated fields of effort, are most effective in their mission if their criticisms are constructive or even better still, if they criticize not at all, but when we see the rising tide of juvenile delinquency brought about by adult delinquency we become genuinely concerned and we raise the question and leave the answer to the reader, "Is it not about time that like the Master Teacher, we make it our Custom to be in our places of worship on the Sabbath Day?"

Thornton, two runs in the third on two hits, both doubles, by Libka and W. Mallon, and four runs in the fourth on two hits, a single by Landon, walks by Groff and a home run by Gackstetter. They scored their ninth run in the sixth on Gackstetter's second home run. B. Ostrander started on the hill for Twining, but was lifted in the fourth for B. Bessinger, who finished the game.

Bob Rollin held down the pitching duties for Tawas City for the first four innings, allowing two hits, one in the second by Bessinger and one in the third by D. Monroe. He didn't allow a run and struck out two. N. Thornton took over the Tawas City mound duties in the fifth, and five runs were scored off him in the fifth on five hits, an error and one walk. In the sixth, Bill Mallon came to the "rescue" after the first two batters had singled. Bill allowed two hits over the remaining two innings, with three runs crossing the plate, one charged to Mallon and two to Thornton.

Alabaster Defeats West Branch Team

First Game in Final Series for N. E. M. Championship

Before the largest crowd of the season, Alabaster took the first game in a two out of three series for the final championship of the N. E. M. League by defeating West Branch 8 to 2. The heavy hitting of Alabaster was the margin of difference in the two teams—everyone connected for a hit, and Johnny Erickson picked up two for a total of 10 hits, against four for West Branch. That same Johnny Erickson played the best game at shortstop that's been seen around here in years, making several spectacular stops, and collecting two hits, one of which brought in two runs. A strong cross wind from the southwest handicapped both teams, especially the pitchers, and caused some of the errors.

Getting off to a slow start, Alabaster spotted West Branch one run in the first innings on errors. In the second, West Branch caught Alabaster in a double steal play to end a little scoring threat, but in the third, Alabaster collected four hits; a single by Erickson and three doubles, by Peterson, DeLoach and Martin, topick up three runs. In the fifth, Alabaster again stretched two hits into two more runs, and West Branch pulled pitcher "Buzz" Doyle, substituting Walters. In their half of the seventh, West Branch, loaded the bases on a hit, and error, and a walk and with one out, it looked as if they were in a fine position to do a little scoring themselves. Then a hard grounder was picked up by Erickson, who threw to home, forcing an out there. But the next man walked pushing in a run, and the bases were still loaded. Then Johnny Martin plucked off a hard hit ball and threw to third, catching the man off base for the third and last out, and ending West Branch's only real scoring threat.

Sunday, September 21st, Alabaster journeys to West Branch for the second game of this series. Some excellent baseball is in prospect and a large crowd of followers is expected to make the trip with the team. The game is scheduled for 2:00 p. m. and everyone who can is urged to come along and lend their support to a great team, striving for an undefeated season.

Tawas City High Loses Opener

The Tawas City High School baseball team lost their fall opener to East Tawas Tuesday afternoon at the athletic field 3 to 1. Under the two hit pitching of Tate, East Tawas pushed across the platter three runs, two coming in the sixth when Mandock singled with two team mates aboard. A couple of costly errors and a scratch single accounted for the other run. Tawas City's bats were muffed by the East Tawas pitcher, with only Youngs and Steinburner connecting for singles. Herb Look, speedy right-hander who helped pitch the Tawas Junior American Legion team to the championship, allowed only three hits, while striking out eight members of the neighboring team.

This Friday afternoon the team will play at Oscoda.

Old Age Need Hold No Terrors

Finding Useful Work Is Formula for Happiness

By BAUKHAGE
News Analyst and Commentator.

WASHINGTON.—Latest figures from the census bureau have revealed that the postwar period has produced a record baby crop—3,260,000 estimated for 1946, almost a million more than were born in 1940.

But it will take more than this belated burst of rejuvenation to keep the United States from becoming an "old" nation. Old in the sense that the average age will be high, with a heavy proportion of oldsters. There are two reasons for this: Nowadays people live much longer, thanks to medical science. And the size of the American family has shrunk.

In 1860 when the population was about 31.5 millions, 860,000 persons were over 65. In 1945 when the population approached 140 millions, 9,920,000 persons were over 65.

By 1970 there will be 16 million over that age, out of an estimated population of more than 151 millions!

This situation poses a number of problems for the nation, and also emphasizes the personal problem: The problem of growing old.

Like many of our troubles, real or imagined, the best cure is to bring this one out into the light, give it a good shaking. The result in many cases will be that it disappears or that it shrinks to unimportance (if that weren't so, psychiatry wouldn't be such a highly rewarded profession).

Wise men have known this for a long time and lived to a happy old age. Others (who didn't know it) have worried their friends and themselves to early deaths, by sitting down and weeping over their lost youth instead of getting up, learning to take old age in their stride and liking it.

Baukhage

Recently I read a very up-to-date little pamphlet called "When You Grow Older," written in straightforward English, based on modern, scientific ideas. The pamphlet outlines methods which make that famous poem by Browning, so often regarded as wishful thinking by the skeptical, ring true. "Grow old along with me," said Browning's Rabbi Ben Ezra, "The best is yet to be."

When I grasped the theme of this pamphlet, it stirred classic

Avocations Help To Retain Youth

Anybody can develop an avocation of some kind. In many cases these avocations have turned into paying vocations after retirement. In any case they are literally life-savers when it comes to making life livable.

Various skills permit varying periods of activity.

Many farmers are self-supporting at 70 or 75. Perhaps this is partly because of their environment—mental and physical. Cicero says farmers "are not hindered to any extent by old age, and seem to me to approach the ideal wise man's life."

Most jobs are of such a character that ability to perform them declines with the years. "When You Grow Older" cites as an example "speed work"—like the assembly line. Youth excels in this type of work. But age does almost as well as youth in the type classified as "power" work, the kind of job where skill is important.

There is not space here to develop the theme of "When You Grow Older" as its authors do so compactly in their 30 pages. They discuss the questions, personal and political, of old age security. They offer a host of other specific examples to illustrate the statements, some of which I have quoted here. I have attempted to review rather than a summary, moved to comment partly because of the valuable suggestions offered, and also, partly because

NEWS REVIEW

Farmers' Income Zooms; New Crisis Hits Europe

FARM INCOME: Great Gain

Latest round in a heavy barrage of statistics apparently destined to make the American farmer feel that he is an unbelievably fortunate man was an agriculture department report that the nation's farm owners are taking in more money than ever before.

It was estimated that total farm cash receipts during the first eight months of 1947 were 17.4 billion dollars, a 21 per cent gain over the same period of 1946, itself a record year.

The report said that the average farm operator realized a net income of $2,541 from agriculture and government payments in 1946, and this year farm income skyrocketed still higher as a result of continuing unprecedented demands for produce.

"An increase of 24 per cent in prices," was singled out by the report as the chief reason for the booming income.

But the picture has another side—that of farm expenses. Operating costs continue to increase and, although no estimate was made for 1947, the farmer's expenses went up 9 per cent in 1946. Nevertheless, if the agriculture department's estimates are accurate, the increase in farm income greatly outweighs the simultaneous rise in expenses.

CRISIS AGAIN: Transfusion?

Life these days, Secretary of State George Marshall has discovered, is bounded on all sides by one crisis after another.

No sooner had he returned to the U. S. from Brazil with the mutual American defense treaty tucked safely under his belt than he was beset with calls for succor from debilitated Europe, which, apparently, was sliding swiftly down the ways toward utter ruin.

Insiders said the European situation really was desperate. Undersecretary of State Robert Lovett had sounded the first alarm shortly before Marshall's return when he said that Europe's economic structure was cracking up faster than anyone had expected.

The fear blowing in on the winds from Europe intensified. Precariously balanced Britain remained at the heart of the trouble, but more grief was added by the news that bad weather had struck hard at crops in many European countries this year. Most nations had been forced to use their meager produce for domestic consumption rather than for export. There was no profit in that, they said.

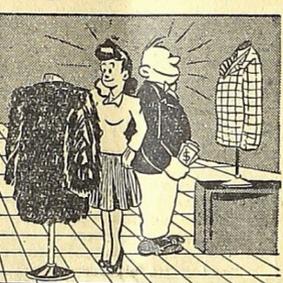

In the U. S., it began to appear more likely that a special session of congress would be called this fall to study the situation and perhaps set up the apparatus for another economic transfusion to give strength to the weakening old world.

BONDED

Vets Cash In

Draft time had rolled around again for millions of ex-G.I.s, but this time it was more in the nature of a bank draft as veterans all over the nation fell happily into line to cash their terminal leave pay bonds.

Virtually every city reported that hordes of veterans had descended on banks in an unprecedented rush to convert their hard-won bonds into coin of the realm. Millions of former Joes stuffed millions of dollars into their pockets.

What would they do with the newly acquired money? A few put it back into savings accounts; others bought clothes, furniture and similar necessities; much of it was squandered immediately. But one surprising fact developed: A great many ex-G.I.s—family men now—were using the store of cash to get out from under worrisome debts. For them it was a case of "dire need."

ISOTOPES: U. S. Offer

Radioactive isotopes—products of American atomic research—have been offered in limited amounts to all foreign nations for use in mankind's world-wide and unending fight against disease.

The gesture, marking the first sharing of the fruits of U. S. atomic ovens, loomed more significantly on the uncertain frontier of global peace than any loan or economic aid so far conceived.

Described as the most important medical research tool since the microscope, the isotopes—radioactive forms of basic elements—are utilized in the same manner as machine gun tracer bullets. Introduced into the body or blood stream, they can be used to trace life processes and plot the course of various diseases.

They are of paramount importance in current cancer research and one day may provide the clue leading to control and cure of that disease.

Just Hanging Around

memories. I remembered that a gentleman who considerably predated Browning had said the same thing in his essay "On Old Age," written in the year 44 B. C. I refer to Marcus Tullius Cicero. He said (among other pertinent things) "qui autem omnia a se ipsi petunt, eis nihil potest videri, quod naturae necessitas adferat." Which, if you'll pardon my freedom with the text, means that those who seek their happiness from within can never regard nature's inevitabilities as bad.

Cicero wrote that essay when he was 63 years old and I have no doubt he would have lived what he preached for another decade or two if his vigorous old age had not produced the resounding "Phillipics" against Anthony which resulted in his being "purged" (Roman style) while still hale and hearty at 64.

Like Cicero, Messrs. George Lawton and Maxwell Stewart, authors of the pamphlet I mentioned, stress the psychological problems of old age. (The pamphlet is issued by the Public Affairs Committee, Inc., a non-profit, educational organization, 22 East 38th St., New York City—20 cents.)

Old age comes with a shock because we haven't prepared for it. Maybe we are ready for the "last day at the office" or at the work bench or when we sell the farm and move to the village or city, or in other ways break a lifetime's routine. But we may have failed to recognize "the need to feel important," a need which we must satisfy one way or another. Not "important" in the sense that we have somebody kow-tow to us, but necessary to somebody or some thing, some business, some undertaking, maybe not a big cog, but something that helps the wheels of life go round.

these pertinent paragraphs of "When You Grow Older" offer a perfect example of how modern science and experience confirm the verities expressed by poets and philosophers of the past.

It is still the habit of many critics to praise the style of Cicero's "De Senectute" but to toss its message aside as wishful thinking. Even Montaigne, who said frankly that reading the essay "made one long to grow old," pessimistically limited what he considered a useful lifespan to a mere 50 years and thought it wrong to contemplate further existence.

Cicero's physical world was bounded by the frontiers conquered by Rome's plodding legions but his view was long in time. Today the men of our scientific age echo the request in the last paragraph of the great statesman's immortal essay when he prayed: ". . . that you put my words to practical test."

$3,000 FOR TRACTORS

Farmers Caught by Black Mart

Gradually deteriorating prewar machines and implements, plus a shortage of rural labor, are the two principal factors responsible for development of a flourishing black market in farm equipment, according to manufacturers and dealers groups who have pronounced the situation fairly widespread.

Secondary circumstances which support the existence of this particular black market are the unparalleled height of farm income and the apparent determination of the nation's farm population to advance to new levels of mechanization.

Thus, the demand for farm equipment continues to be almost insatiable. Even the heavy, uninterrupted output of the entire farm equipment industry has failed to still the clamor of the hungry market.

It has been common practice this summer for farmers to pay huge premiums on such pieces of equipment as tractors, hay balers and corn pickers, all of which have customers on dealers' waiting lists.

Tractors priced at $1,000 have sold for as high as $3,000 or $3,500. Hay balers, which are used on hay three times a season and have other farm uses, have been finding buyers at double or triple the list price.

Pointing out these malpractices on the part of individuals, one manufacturer referred to the particularly bad black market in combines.

"When one wheat farmer, for example, has his crop harvested, someone will drive up and ask him how much he paid for his combine. The farmer might say $2,000. When the stranger asks how much he would sell it for, the farmer, picking a number out of the hat, might say $3,000. Then, to the farmer's surprise, the stranger peels off 30 $100 bills and takes the combine off his hands.

"The farmer would have got $3,500 if he had asked it, because the stranger took the combine north and sold it for $4,000."

British Blame U. S. for Plight

THE latest good reporter to survey the British plight is Eugene Meyer, publisher of the Washington Post. Meyer reported to his paper recently the British public has not been told "the facts of life" regarding their plight, and also that socialism simply has failed to bring the needed production through which Britain could recover. Everyone knows this outside Britain.

It has been evident almost officially since a British embassy official here conceded last February Britain had coal in the ground of workable thickness for a production at economic prices of 250 million tons a year for 200 years at least, but was not able last winter to mine enough of it to keep herself warm. (He blamed shortage of miners, of course, not socialism.)

The truth behind all this is, Britain's political crisis is worse than her economic crisis. Her socialist politicians are trying to save their own skins with the British people by blaming us, rather than themselves, for her condition.

With an unbelievable propaganda campaign, they even succeeded in saving themselves from blame for their food shortage by convincing the British we were not giving them enough food. They did not let the public know their own socialist experiments with land seizures had threatened private farmers and discouraged production. Now they are compromising slightly on their socialist planning (delaying further steps for a while, they say) and are trying to dig themselves out by focusing accusations against their leading and only benefactor, the United States.

The Play's the Thing

Dear Ed—Well, I am in the show business. A feller dropped in on the farm a few weeks ago and asked if I was using my barn. I thought he was just a city man who had sublet his apartment and couldn't get it back. I told him I had some livestock in it, some old buggies, quite a little hay, et cetera. He explained he wanted the barn for the drama.

I got them to sign a contract agreeing to return the barn in good condition, not to worry the cows and never to look for an egg until the hens got off the nests. Then they brought in as crazy a lot of folks as I ever seen and things began to hum.

Well, I haven't had any peace since. Both cows are sick, the horse ran away and every hen has stopped laying except a couple that are nesting in the woods.

Shakespeare said the play's the thing but he wasn't counting on fresh milk and eggs when he said it.

If I ever get my farm back the drama can stay in the city for the rest of my life. Next week they're putting on "Two Orphans" and the wife and I are in shape to play both parts.

Your loving uncle,
Chet Hostetters.

Lobbyists Lead Cooperative Fight

IF THE number of lobbyists involved is any criterion, a bitter fight is in the offing in connection with the effort to remove tax exemption of farm cooperatives.

The National Tax Equality association, which is spearheading the drive, has three registered lobbyists on the job. They are Paul L. Courtney, annual salary $10,000; Joseph F. Leopold, annual salary $8,500, and Clare A. Johnson, salary not specified.

In addition, there are registered lobbyists from tax equality committees of New York, Indiana, Kentucky, Colorado, Oklahoma, Nebraska, Michigan, Missouri, Louisiana, Pennsylvania, Wisconsin and Texas, with recorded expenditures ranging from $500 to $3,700 for the first six months of 1947.

Leading the fight on behalf of the cooperatives are six registered lobbyists, including John H. Davis, salary $11,000, William Heckendorn, salary $7,500, and John J. Riggle, salary $7,500, representing the National Council of Farm Cooperatives; Jerry Voorhis, salary $7,500, representing the Cooperative League of the United States; R. Wayne Newton, salary $10,000, representing the National Association of Cooperatives, and Russell Smith, salary $8,400, representing the National Farmers Union.

Notes of a Newspaper Man

President Truman, in an interview, stated the problems of his office have not in the least affected his health. The Truman constitution wouldn't be quite so strong if he worried a little more about the seditionists undermining the American constitution. . . . The Republicans still are trying to find out who's responsible for the war. What Americans would like to know is who's responsible for this peace.

Quotation Marksmanship: George Santayana: There is no cure for birth and death save to enjoy the interval. . . . D. C. Peattie: Noon, the hour when bushes tuck shade beneath them like skirts.

Our Oh, Lord! Dept.: It happened at the 25th anniversary dinner of the New York Newspaper Women's club. Mrs. F. D. Roosevelt was being introduced by one of the town's food editors, Edith Barber. Edith intoned: "And now, one of our members you all know—Mrs. THEODORE Roosevelt!"

The Merry-Go-Round

THE supposedly economical senate spent $68,000 for telegrams in one month alone. The telegraph bill included thousands of words wired to local newspapers from the Congressional Record. . . . Four New Englanders, Speaker Joe Martin of the house, Sens. Henry Cabot Lodge and Leverett Saltonstall of Massachusetts and Ray Baldwin of Connecticut, are not adverse to vice presidential promotion. . . . Looks as if the Puerto Rican government is playing politics with its taxes. After the P. R. government decided to go into the hotel business, it suddenly slapped a hitherto unheard of tax assessment on the Condado Beach hotel—its future chief competitor.

Despite the fact that the long arm of the law is panting hotter down the back of organized labor, AFL's Bill Green and CIO's Phil Murray still can't get together on labor unity.

Alf Landon, ex-governor of Kansas, came a cropper in trying to get a radio station at Inglewood, Colo., largely because of Federal Communications commission rules that radio stations must be locally owned. After he applied for a license, more than 100 affidavits poured into FCC saying Landon's station was unneeded in Inglewood. Landon withdrew, later got a station in Leavenworth, Kas., on his own stamping ground.

History Will Judge Debacle

ADMIRAL HALSEY, in his memoirs published in Colliers, calls a spade a spade in denouncing the sacrificing of Admiral Kimmel and General Short as the goats for the Pearl Harbor disaster. For Pearl Harbor, Admiral Halsey vaguely blames the American people. But it was not the American people or congress who employed an alien German to erect greatly needed radar equipment, and then countenanced needless delay in its erection; it was not the American people or congress who failed to give the commanders vital information. The American people or congress were not responsible for Pearl Harbor,

The Barn Theater

Dear Ed—Well I am in the show business. A feller dropped in on the farm a few weeks ago and asked if I was using my barn. I thought he was just a city man who had sublet his apartment and couldn't get it back. I told him I had some livestock in it, some old buggies, quite a little hay, &c. He explained he wanted the barn for the drama. I wasn't sure what he was driving at but he spelled it out and explained he meant play acting.

I told him I doubted he could make a go of it with my barn as I had no scenery, but he laughed and said he could take care of that end. Well, I have two cows, a horse, about a hundred hens, a few ducks and a pig or two in the barn or under it, and I said while I didn't want to be unfair to the livestock I wanted to give Shakespeare and Shaw and all them fellers a break.

He went into a huddle with some other Broadway boys and said they thought I could box off enough of the barn to keep the stock and in fact they might be able to use the horse and the old surrey as they were doing a play like Oklahoma. That reminded me that my boy Dudie had some rabbits and that maybe they could put on Harvey.

I asked about the company and specified that they couldn't bring in Orson Welles or Olsen and Johnson as I wanted things quiet, as the hens were all laying fairly well. The actors they had in mind seemed all right to me even if I never heard of them and I figured they would be better than famous ones, as Seth Weemans leased his barn for a summer theater two seasons ago and the company included two famous stars who lorded it all over Seth and his family, finally taking over the old manse for week-end parties and forcing Seth into the silo.

I got them to sign a contract agreeing to return the barn in good condition, not to worry the cows and never to look for an egg until the hens got off the nests. Then they brought in carpenters and artists and as crazy a lot of folks as I ever seen and things began to hum.

Well, I haven't had any peace since. Both cows are sick, the horse ran away last Tuesday and every hen has stopped laying except a couple that are nesting in the woods where they can't hear the performers talk about themselves.

My house has been pretty well taken over by the drama world. A press agent talked me out of the parlor, a couple of authors have the room the wife and I always liked and a director who has a Russian accent is running the kitchen and always cooking up something he calls bortsch. I'm afraid my hogs will get hold of some.

The farm is overrun with city folks every night. There's no business like show business. Shakespeare said the play's the thing but he wasn't counting on fresh milk and eggs when he said it.

If I ever get my farm back the drama can stay in the city for the rest of my life. Next week they're putting on "Two Orphans" and the wife and I are in shape to play both parts.

A Sporting Philosophy

Whether you die—
Or whether you live—
As the wheel of fate is spun;
If you give the game all you have to give
Why bother about who won?

If you have the head
And you have the heart
Who cares for the rest of it?

SEPTEMBER

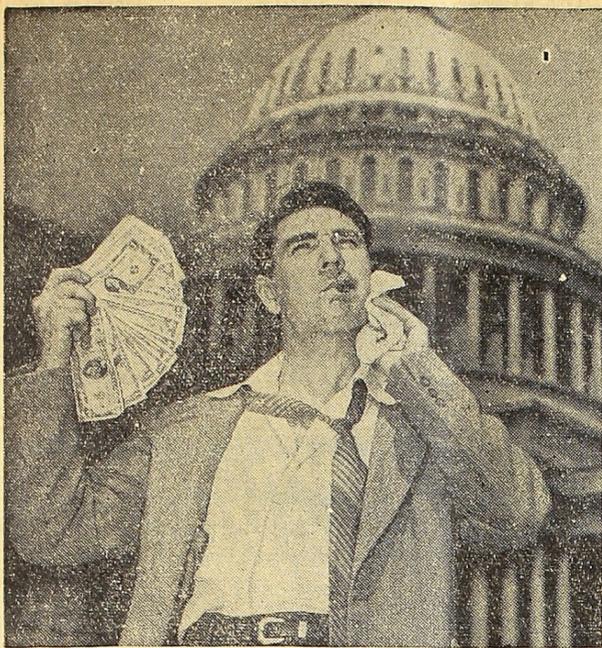

A haze on the far horizon—
The infinite, tender sky;
The ripe, rich tint of the cornfields
And the wild geese sailing high;
And all over upland and lowland
A summer that is no sham—
A season that longs to linger
As custom just bellows "SCRAM!"

By INEZ GERHARD
HERE is a story that is exclusive—at the moment. Bing Crosby has already cut the records for his first three radio shows this fall, and will start the new season with Gary Cooper as his guest star. Cooper, who doesn't make many appearances on the air, will cut loose and sing, with Bing. That will be the October 1 broadcast. Al Jolson will be on the second or third program, which puts to rest the rumor that he'd never work with Crosby again because Bing was annoyed by the gossip that he'd never had a Hooper rating till Jolson did that first guest spot on his program.

Ann Shepherd, star of "Big Sister," is a girl who made good in radio despite the fact that she couldn't pass a New York network audition. It took an Arch Oboler script to prove to the radio big shots that she was a fine actress.

Farley Granger is in pictures because he answered a want ad. Samuel Goldwyn, looking for a romantic juvenile to play opposite Anne Baxter in "North Star," ran the ad; the young actor saw it, got the role and a seven-year contract. Then he was in "Purple Heart"; next, he joined the navy. His first film since his discharge is RKO's "Your Red Wagon."

Maybe the decision won't stick, but Eddie Cantor insists that "If You Knew Susie" is not only his best picture, but his last. From now on he will make himself available to any cause where he is needed; his record in philanthropic work is already an impressive one. His radio show returns September 25, with the entire cast working without scripts.

Parks Johnson had quite a day—caught a three-pound bass and signed up with a new sponsor for his Vox Pop show during just a few hours. He was fishing, with no luck, on his Texas ranch, when his partner, Warren Hull, called him from New York. A messenger summoned Johnson to the phone, five miles away; he gave his consent to the deal, went back and caught the bass.

"Silence—on the Air" it says on the doors behind which a radio program is being broadcast. The new March of Time takes you behind those doors, in "Is Everybody Listening"; shows you the stars at work, lets you see broadcasts that never have studio audiences, gives you a comprehensive view of what goes on behind what you hear on the air.

Robert Mitchum has a fan club made up of girls who have never seen him in person or on the screen; the president of the New York club sent his photo to a cousin in Czechoslovakia, who founded the club.

Ann Miller will start her new MGM contract with a role that many a girl will envy her. It is the lead in "Words and Music," based on the lives and music of Richard Rodgers and Lorenz Hart. She'll sing the songs, dance to the music.

If you like old songs you certainly must see "I Walk Alone," headlining Elizabeth Scott, Burt Lancaster and Kirk Douglas; it includes eight 1930 tunes.

"Dear Ruth" has set quite a record. Paramount's top holdover picture of the year; every one of its first-run engagements has resulted in its being held over all across the country. William Holden and Joan Caulfield co-star.

When Shirley Lauck married and moved to Pennsylvania recently, her father, "Lum," of "Lum and Abner," lost a very efficient office assistant.

ODDS AND ENDS—Despite the British tax situation, Warner Bros. is beginning the heaviest fall schedule in the history of the Burbank studio. . . . Berry Kroeger of "Big Sister" has been told he resembles Orson Welles, Charlie Langston, Harvey Stephens and Howard Osmer; doesn't know whom to believe. . . . A recent "Welcome Travelers" contestant reached Los Angeles in time to participate in Tom Brenneman's "Breakfast in Hollywood" the same week. . . . Undiscouraged by his failure to land the MC berth on "Take It or Leave It," Groucho Marx is reported planning a radio show of his own.

OUT OF THE EMBERS

By NORMAN STANLEY BORTNER

"LET'S talk this thing out," Janice had said. "For good and all." And he had agreed. Not enthusiastically. He thought he knew what it would be like. She was going to be very calm, very noble, very much the long-suffering, patient wife who will go no farther. All right, my dear. If you want one more talk, I'm game. Just so it doesn't end in another row.

He became slightly noble himself. Now that it was all over with them he was suddenly courteous. He spoke to her in a tone he might have used toward any good-looking woman not his wife: "Where would you like to sit while you pronounce sentence?"

She knew at once. She must have been thinking about that. "Not here," she said. "Would you mind if we went down to the cabin?"

The cabin. How long had it been since he had seen the inside of that two-roomed affair beside the river? And what could have made her want to go there, of all places? "Not in the least," he said. "We'll need wraps."

They dressed for the raw December day and went out the west door. Crossing the lawn she took his arm. That was unexpected. And also a little uncalled for, he thought, under the circumstances. Why should she make a game out of splitting up? Thinking that, he stiffened and she felt it. But she did not release his arm. "Remember the first time we came down here together?" she asked.

"Can't say I do."
 "You mean you don't want to. It was after our honeymoon. And you held MY arm." Her voice was low and uneven and somehow queer.
 "Oh," he said. "What's the matter? Getting a cold?"

"No. Not used to fresh air, I suppose. It'll be all right soon."
 "In the Nevada climate, you mean?" She did not answer. Maybe she hadn't meant that. To speak of the advantages of Reno while he remained East would not fit her present mood. There had been times—plenty of them—when the important small niceties of conversation between them had been forgotten, giving way to bitterness and recrimination. But he admitted she had never been crude. To cover his own remark he said: "Has the cabin been kept clean?"

"Quite. It's always in good order. No telling when someone might want to use it. There's some wood there, I'm sure. And you remember how that fireplace heats, Will?"
 "That's right. I do remember." The worst of it was that he remembered too well, all at once. They had lived there—he and Jan— for a while after their honeymoon. The big house was too big. Too many people around. Too many distractions from each other. So they had moved to the cabin. . . . They had changed a great deal since then. Not in looks. Ten years wasn't very long. In themselves, somehow.

But the cabin had not changed. It was precisely as it had been then. Seemed a bit smaller, but then time always does that to distances and dimensions. He busied himself with the kindling. There was only one big chunk of wood. Enough for a little while. The fire caught nicely.

Jan held her hands to the growing flames. "Feels good," she said. And carried me through the doorway, Will. I remember thinking, while you held me in your arms, that no girl could have been happier than I was at that moment. No two people could have been more in love. We were—don't laugh, please—we were like that fire is now. Just one consuming blaze of love for each other."

He couldn't help smiling at that. Jan really was in a state, to talk like that. But it disappeared when he turned toward her. She was so close to tears.

"And now, Will, look at us. We've made a wretched mess of things, haven't we?"
 "Damned if we haven't." He was nearly noble enough to admit, furthermore, that it had been almost entirely his own fault, but he didn't. She might have agreed with him, and then the row would start. He was quiet for a long while, and then he said: "But fires do go out eventually, and I guess ours has."

"Yes. And what's the use of blowing on cold ashes? . . . But that's why I brought you here to the cabin, Will. I had the wild idea that somehow we could patch it up. Try again. But we've done that too often, haven't we?"

 "Too often, Jan."

The room was hushed, after that, for many minutes. Hushed, except for the crackling of the one big chunk and the rush of air through the chimney. And even that slowly decreased. The fire he had built and not replenished was burning out. Just like the fire Jan had spoken of. Burning out. It was a simple thing to throw more wood on a fire. But was it so simple to rekindle their own flame? He decided he was getting morbid.

There were only deep red embers between the andirons when she rose. "I told you last night that nothing would keep me from Reno," she said. "I meant, it, then, but—Will, I'll stay if you want me. I'll do my best to make you happy. We were once. Maybe, in some way, we could be again." She waited. He did not move; did not raise his eyes. The embers glowed.

"Will, I said I'd stay if you want me to."
 "Must I get down on my knees to you? Is that what you want?"
 "Glowed dully."
 "Too late, then. . . . All right, dear, I'll be packed and on my way in an hour. Would you—do you mind if I kiss you goodbye? Just for old times sake. I—won't bother you anymore."

He permitted it quite nobly, and when she had leaned and kissed him full on the lips he turned away from her and toward the fire once more. The door closed behind her.

AN HOUR, she had said. Well, he would wait that long before going back to the house. No use having more farewells.
 He did not stir for a long while, frowning at the fireplace. The one big chunk had only a tiny bit of redness along one edge. The rest was cold gray ash, smoking fitfully and not pretty to look at. She had been right. They had been exactly like the fire, blazing up for a time and then cooling to drabness.

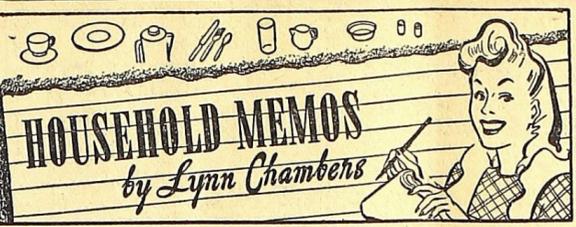

"I won't bother you any more." What had she meant by that? Never see him again? He realized suddenly that he WANTED to see her again. It wouldn't be right not to. You can't live with a person ten years and simply forget it, like that. Maybe they could even be good friends, after the divorce, and have some of the fun they missed before. Without the ties of marriage, or the restraints—

He knew he was being very foolish, thinking things like that. It was all over, and she would be strange and distant whenever—IF ever—they met. Friends? Hardly. Jan was out of his life for good—that was settled.

The cabin was getting cold. He had no idea how long he had been sitting alone. Was the hour up? He rose to stir his aching legs and considered hunting more wood for the fire. With the tongs he probed at the ash by chunk and at his touch the wood which had seemed so cold—so lifeless—jumped into flames, warm, surprising, beautiful.

A single touch had done that. HIS touch.
 He gazed open-eyed. And then in quick, bounding leaps he ran up the hill and into the house. Up the stairs. Through a door he had not opened for so very long. The hour was not yet gone.

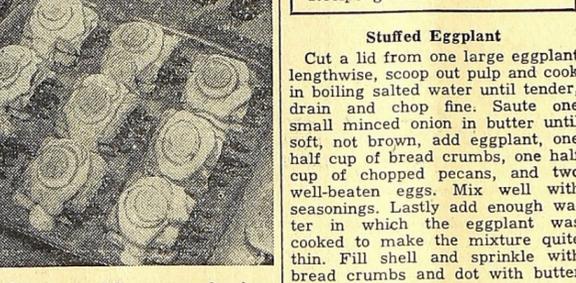

"Jan," he said. "Jan. You're as slim as you ever were. I'll carry you over, again."

Transform Vegetables Into Savory Dishes For Lunch or Supper

Asparagus takes on a pleasing look as well as extra flavor when green tips are tucked in between layers of cheese biscuit, topped with sauce and garnished with slices of hard-cooked eggs.

Remember when we just cooked vegetables in boiling, salted water and put them on the table without any thought as to subtle seasoning or attractive serving? Think modern cookery experts for realizing the infinite possibilities of vegetables and for transforming vegetables into one of the glamor groups of cookery.

First of all, there are innumerable sauces you can use with "perfection cooked" vegetables to bring out all their hidden flavors. Then, if you want to forego the sauce, you can combine vegetables with other foods to make them palate-pleasing and tempting.

Whichever way you prefer to serve your vegetables, always remember that the overcooked vegetable can never be guaranteed to make friends or influence eaters to come back for seconds, as they should. Cook vegetables so there is still a bit of their garden crispness left. If cooked to this point and served immediately, you will also lose less of their lovely colors.

Spice, Seasoning Lend New Tang to Foods
 If you want a really delicious sauce for your fish, melt butter, add flour, and in place of milk, blend in sour cream. Add to this a bit of salt and pepper and chopped chives.

A blade of mace and a few cloves heated with the liquid when making orange or lemon jelly will give it added spice. Strain the liquid to remove spices.

Stuffed Eggplant

Cut a lid from one large eggplant lengthwise, scoop out pulp and cook in boiling salted water until tender, drain and chop fine. Sauté one small minced onion in butter until soft, not brown, add eggplant, one half cup of bread crumbs, one half cup of chopped pecans, and two well-beaten eggs. Mix well with seasonings. Lastly add enough water in which the eggplant was cooked to make the mixture quite thin. Fill shell and sprinkle with bread crumbs and dot with butter and bake about twenty minutes.

Spinach Balls

Wash one peck of spinach in several waters, then cover tightly and steam with just the drippings from the washing for about fifteen minutes. Squeeze as dry as possible. Chop and press through a coarse sieve. Into this puree mix two slightly beaten egg yolks, one tablespoon of grated onion, one tablespoon of olive oil, and salt and pepper to taste. Mix well and form into balls, dip in beaten egg, then in fine bread crumbs, and fry in hot fat to a golden brown.

Asparagus-Cheese Shortcake (Serves 6 to 8)

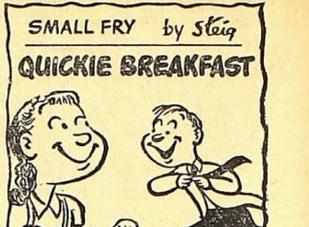

- 1 No. 2 can asparagus tips
- 3 tablespoons butter
- 1 tablespoon minced onion
- 4 tablespoons flour
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1/2 teaspoon pepper
- 2 cups milk
- 2 hard-cooked eggs, sliced for garnish

Melt butter in saucepan; add minced onion and cook slowly for 3 minutes or until tender. Add flour and seasonings and blend. Gradually add milk, while stirring; cook over low heat until smooth and thickened, stirring constantly.

Cheese Biscuits

- 2 cups biscuit mix
- 1/2 cup grated cheese
- 1 cup milk

Add grated cheese to biscuit mix and blend. Add milk, mix with fork. Roll out on 1/4 inch thickness on floured board and cut into squares or circles. Bake on a greased pan in a hot oven (450 degrees) 12 minutes. Split and place hot asparagus tips between biscuits. Pour hot cream sauce over the top and garnish with hard-cooked egg slices.

By GRANTLAND RICE

TIME, supposed to be endless, also can work in a hurry. It can make or break you in a week or a month. Or even in a day. In the course of a year it can turn everything upside down. Especially in baseball.

This thought happened along as we looked over the records of 1946 and 1947, as the roulette wheel of fate kept spinning.

For one example, a year ago Mickey Vernon of the Senators led both big leagues with a .353 batting average. It was reported that Larry MacPhail had offered $150,000 for Vernon's contract, as at that time the Yankees had no hard-hitting first baseman in sight.

Vernon is now around 40th place among American league hitters, not including over 50 hitters in the N. L., which would leave Mickey in a spot close to the 90th mark. A year ago, there were wordy arguments as to whether Bob Feller of Cleveland or Hal Newhouser of Detroit was the greater pitcher. Bob Feller is now in about 20th place among the winners and Hal Newhouser's ranking is in 42nd.

A year ago, Dave Ferriss was on his way to winning 25 games. At this writing, Dave occupies the 26th spot on the pitching side.

A year ago, Howie Pollet and Murry Dickson were the two Cardinal stars, close to the top. Pollet was a 20-game winner. Currently, Dickson has been in the 45th slot and Pollet down as low as 50th place, among those who throw a baseball for a living.

These are just a few of many examples to show that the Old Doc with the sharp scythe can slip you, when he feels in the mood. He can lift you up—and he can also yank you down at even greater speed. He doesn't seem to care.

They Go Up and Down

Old Doc Time is a temperamental mug. He doesn't bother about names or reputations. He lets nature take its course. I interviewed him once, and this is all he had to say:

"As this old world goes roun' and roun',
Some go up—and some go down."

This can happen in baseball more than any game I know. Up and down—down and up. A year ago Vernon hit above .353 and George McQuinn was around .225. Now with Vernon at .273, McQuinn has been close to .300 most of the year. A combined shift of some 150 points. Even more.

But there are always a few who hang on, looking the Old Doc in the eye.

One of these is Ted Williams of the Red Sox. There seems to be a vague idea around that Ted has taken a dip this season. I'd like to take the same brand of dip.

They have built up a defense against Williams that was supposed to wreck him. He may not be the annihilator of other seasons, but he is still up there challenging for the home-run title in the A. L., the batting leadership and the run-batted-in honors.

I would say that in an off year for so many stars, Ted Williams is doing a great job.

Other Old Timers

So is Joe DiMaggio, in spite of numerous ailments. Joe DiMaggio is still the top artist in baseball.

A few of those who starred last season are still delivering.

One of these is Kiner of the Pirates, who led the National League in the home-run roundup a year ago, and is likely to lead it again. Johnny Mize, always a power hitter, is still shooting his salvos. So is Hank Greenberg.

But so far, 1947 has been featured by stars unknown a year ago. One is Ewell Blackwell of the Reds, with a 20-game season in his pocket. Blackwell has been rated far above Feller and Newhouser with a weaker ball club. The tall and lanky one, the human No. 1 iron, has been the pitcher of the year.

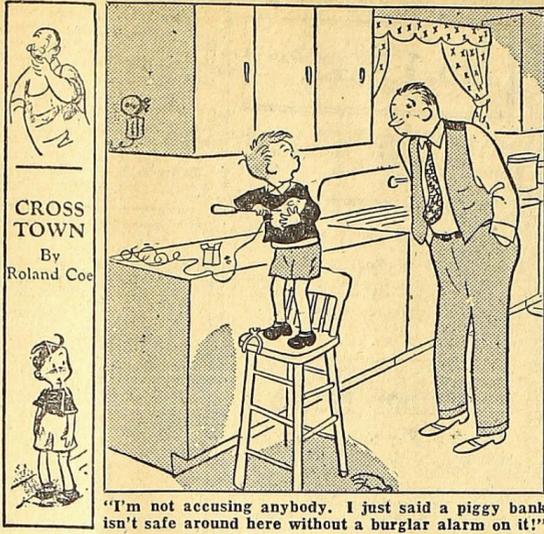

Another leading star is Harry Walker of the Phillies. Eddie Dyer, one of baseball's smartest, traded him to the Phillies in exchange for Ron Northey. At which point Harry Walker, Dixie Walker's brother, promptly took charge of the batting mark in both leagues. Working with a tail-end ball club, Walker has been one of the season's star performers. So has Blackwell.

You heard few rumors about Blackwell and Harry Walker a year ago. But they have driven the stars of 1946 into the gravel ditch.

Young Yankee Stars

The team feature of the year has been the number of winning performers George Weiss of the Yankee farm system has rushed to Yankee help. This list includes Yogi Berra, Frank Shea, Allie Clark, Vic Rashi and a few others who have carried the Yankees along.

With almost no advance build-up, the Yankee farm system has been far better than that of the Dodgers, rated, last spring, as the best.

home. "Success of this 1947 fall festival," stated Bohl, "may well be measured by the number of exhibits and we hope everyone will help." He suggested that exhibitors carefully study the "General Rules" which may be found within the premium book upon pages 9, 10, and 11.

Association Secretary, H. F. Black said, "Be sure to mention rule 8, page 69, about the horse pulling contest." This year, has been opened to any Michigan team which meets the weight qualifications. Other exhibits must come from Iosco county or from the homes of non-resident boys and girls attending school in this county. Premiums offered in both the light and heavy weight pulling contests have been greatly increased this year and should encourage a greater participation than ever before.
