Alabaster Wins N. E. M. League Championship

Undefeated Through 1947 League Season

Defeats West Branch 2 to 0 in Final Game Last Sunday

Manager Harold Rollin's Alabaster team topped off an undefeated baseball season by winning the Northeastern Michigan League Championship with a 2 to 0 decision over West Branch Sunday. Sparked off by the two-hit pitching of Johnny Martin, Alabaster collected four hits off West Branch's Buzz Doyle to pick up two runs, and with them a perfect season's record.

The game, played at West Branch was billed as a pitcher's duel between Martin of Alabaster and Doyle of West Branch, and with a total of only six hits allowed, it proved to be just that. In the fourth inning Peterson of Alabaster connected for a double, and then scored down the first base line, which also went for two bags. Again in the sixth frame, Johnny Erickson tapped Doyle for another double to score Joe Martin, who got on an error, to give Alabaster a two run lead.

In the seventh inning Sutton of West Branch spoiled Martin's chances for a no-hitter with a fluke hit down the third base line which rolled foul and then fair just inside the bag. West Branch's only other hit came in the eighth inning when Oliver connected for a clean single, in neither case, were they able to score.

Pitching for Alabaster, Martin allowed two hits, struck out 12, walked three, and four took first base, hit by a pitched ball. Doyle of West Branch gave up four hits, struck out eight, walked four, and one man was hit by a pitched ball.

The game completes Alabaster's season with a record of 14 league games and one exhibition, all undefeated. One more exhibition game at Standish was rained out in two attempts to play it off. Pitcher Johnny Martin takes credit for all the games except one, which belonged to Peterson.

Colorful Character

Color Tour Arranged by Tawas C. of C.

Forests Expected to Be in Most Beautiful Dress Next Week

Many people from the cities visit this area during this time of year to enjoy the autumn coloring of our forests. Indications are that our trees will be at their most glorious color during the next week and week end.

This year the Tawas Chamber of Commerce has prepared a "color tour" which includes some of our best points of scenic interest as well as autumn color. Wednesday afternoon a committee from the Chamber of Commerce marked the high-ways included in the tour with directing arrows. Maps of the tour with descriptions of the various points of interest are being prepared. When available, these may be secured at the Tawas Chamber of Commerce headquarters.

The "color tour" starts on M-55 at Tawas City and goes out on the Wilber road to the Thompson Trail. Following the Thompson trail it visits Silver Valley and then to the Lumberman's Monument and the beautiful AuSable river area. Following the river road into Oscoda it returns to the Tawas by way of the Huron Shore Road. The AuSable river valley is especially beautiful during these autumn days.

Interesting points of interest on the tour are Silver Valley, Isoco county's winter play ground, the trout rearing ponds on Silver Creek, the hydro-electric power dams, the historic AuSable river, and the Lumberman's Monument, commemorating the by-gone day when pine was king in northern Michigan.

The Old Philosopher Says:

By Gavin Maxwell

Who is King?

When I was a boy in school the favorite book was "Aesop's Fables." We used to ask the teacher to read aloud to us from the fable book and sometimes we were allowed to discuss the "moral" involved in the story.

One story from Aesop that I remember, involved a trip taken by a young man from his country home to a far off city where it was rumored a king was to be crowned.

The youngman, Carl by name, started off with a horse, fleet of hoof, a trunk filled with clothes for the crowning event and a purse, well filled.

As he met first one and then another on his journey, he gave away his horse, each garment from his wardrobe, the money from his purse and at last even his shoes.

When the city was reached Carl joined many other citizens in the City square. An old man was addressing the group on the qualities a King should possess and ended his speech by saying, "Are there any among you who can qualify?"

Immediately the man to whom Carl had loaned his horse came forward saying, "I was so distressed at the possibility of not reaching this meeting and I met a young man, Carl by name, and he loaned me his mount and he came forward on foot." This man was followed by a dozen others whom Carl had met on the way and befriended. When they ended the elder who had made the first interrogation queried, "Who do you want for King?" "Carl," thundered the multitude—and according to Aesop, Carl was crowned King.

King's are somewhat in disfavor now, but the moral is still good, "He who moves as a king among men is the kindly, unselfish, benevolent person who thinks first of others and if there is any time left of his own interests."

See how the mass of humanity worries itself into nameless graves while here and there a great unselfish soul forgets itself into immortality.

Not how much I get but how much I give, measures the size of lives we live.

Tawas City High Wins from Oscoda

Geringich also smashed out a double, and Bruce Myles and Doug McDonald, each collected a single.

Tawas City scored their first run in the second inning when Youngs flied out, Brown walked and advanced to second on Westcott's bouncer to the pitcher, Steinhurst doubled sending Brown in.

Two more runs scored in the third when McDonald opened with a single, Myles singled, Look was safe on the shortstop's error with McDonald scoring. Look was then picked off first, Geringich was out on a "4 to 3" play with Myles scoring and Graick struck out to end the inning.

Last Friday the team won from East Tawas 5 to 4. Look again struck out fourteen batters while Tate threw three strikes by ten Tawas City batters. 750 Herefords to Pass Through Auction Ring

Annual NEM Sale To be Held at West Branch Oct. 16

Over 750 high quality Hereford calves and 200 yearling steers and heifers will travel through the auction ring during the third annual sale of the Northeastern Michigan Hereford Calf Association to be held in West Branch Thursday afternoon, October 16 at their yards located one mile north of the State Police post.

These feeder cattle are out of high quality Hereford cows sired by purebred Hereford bulls that have been purchased from the herds of America's leading breeders during the past several years.

Composed of about 150 commercial breeders of Alcona, Arenac, Ogemaw, Oscoda and Isoco counties, the Northeastern Michigan Hereford Breeders Association was organized eight years ago with the intention of raising feeder cattle in the good grasslands of northeastern Michigan and sold to the finishers in other parts of the state through an annual auction sale at their yards in West Branch.

A large majority of the calves sold through this annual sale are of sufficient quality to be used for foundations for commercial herds by farmers of other parts of the state.

All female cattle over 12 months of age offered at the sale will have been banded tested and all calves and feeders will be sorted into uniform lots of approximately ten head, according to sex, weight, market grade and quality. Grading will be under the direction of members of the Ex-

U. S. Farmer Will Beat Communism

American Food Can Halt Chaos Threatening Europe

By BAUKHAGE
News Analyst and Commentator.

WASHINGTON. — The American farmer is going to lick communism!

That's what your worried capital is saying today. American representatives abroad and at home are submitting one report after another which register gains in the Soviet battle to build a Communist world out of chaos.

The reports come in from Prague, from Belgrade, from Sofia, from Budapest, showing how each day the iron grip of the Russian-dominated secret police is gradually choking off democracy in the little countries. Reports from Rome tell us of a planned coup of the Moscow-directed Communist party in Italy to overthrow the government there. The open record of the meetings of the United Nations reveals the consistent attempt of the Russian delegation to block the efforts of the struggling, still-free governments in Greece and France.

Some American political leaders still look askance at the huge program of aid to western Europe envisioned in the Marshall plan. Part of the country seems unsympathetic, or at least indifferent, toward the effort to win the "cold war" against Russia with purely economic weapons, because it means sacrifices on the part of the American citizen. Some officials in the administration, supporters of the Marshall plan in congress, and a few diplomats at home and abroad, are frightened by this attitude.

Baukhage

Until recently this correspondent has been pretty much distressed, too. But I feel better after talking with certain officials whose names seldom appear in the news. These men are not cabinet officers, they are not diplomats, they are not the leaders in congress whose faces appear in the news pictures and whose adumbrations are quoted in the daily dispatches. They are just the men who do the work for which Uncle Sam "pays the wage."

They are paid for knowing about American farms and American farmers. Their consensus is embodied in the first line of this dispatch: The American farmer is going to lick communism. I believe the farmer will do it, not because he knows it will pay him in dollars now, but because he is going to be convinced before very long that it will pay America. The American farmer will do it by providing the food necessary to halt chaos in Europe just as he proved the verity of the slogan: "Food will win the war."

The history of Europe since the war is that every government falls when the bread ration is reduced. The men who know tell me that whatever the total amount in goods or dollars demanded by the Marshall plan, it is safe to say that two-thirds of it will be for food—either the food commodities themselves or the dollars with which to buy them.

American dollars are growing very scarce in Europe but there are three things which the European purchaser hesitates to quit buying—grain, coal and fats. You will notice that France, when it reduced its imports (as all European countries are doing as their dollars decline) tried to hold on to her grain, coal and edible fats as long as possible.

Even if the Marshall plan were not put into effect in time to provide extra dollars, for their grain-purchases, there will be a lag of some months before the farmer is touched in his pocketbook. By that time, if nothing is done, the European countries starve.

Free World Is at Stake

Exports to Europe already have been cut down. That will affect first employment of people in this country in such export industries as radio, electrical appliances and like gadgets which can be spared. It is quite possible that there may be a sufficient increase meanwhile in employment in construction or other domestic industries which will absorb this unemployment and keep up the purchasing power of the consumer sufficiently to maintain present farm prices. In any case, there probably will be a six months lag before prices are greatly affected. Eventually, the marginal surplus would be touched (if Europe is not stimulated) as it was in 1920. Then, you recall, grain prices dropped, although exports were still heavy. However, the demand at that time was not great enough to absorb the entire American output. It is this "marginal surplus" which decides the prices at home. When the demand for the first bushel over and above the domestic surplus ends, it affects the whole price structure.

Before such a situation arises, it is firmly believed that the "realistic" side of the picture will be brought home forcibly to America. The average citizen, as well as the farmer and the exporter and others directly dependent on international trade as a whole, will realize that what is at stake is something far greater than the dollar—America's stake in the preservation of a free world—a world which will perish if Europe is underfed.

Russia has only about one-sixth of the amount of wheat which the United States is able to spare, according to current estimates. The United Nations food and agriculture organization estimated it as 70 million bushels against our 400 million bushels, as stated above.

Our own situation, we admit, is not too good. Nevertheless, we are in a much better position on a competitive basis, than Russia. There appears little doubt in the minds of the men most familiar with the facts that when the full force of this situation and what it means is realized in this country, Europe can be saved for democracy—and the American farmer will have at least two-thirds of the credit due him.

"Please, kid, don't EVER go collective on me."

What do the Russians think of "collective farming," communized agriculture under the Soviets? Well, I asked a friend of mine, Paul Ward of the Baltimore Sun, who got this story from a Russian, a good Communist, whom he met in Moscow. After a few vodkas the Ruskys used to tell stories. This was one: Stalin and Roosevelt were driving through the countryside. A cow got into the road in front of them and wouldn't move. The driver tried to shoot it away, but it wouldn't budge. Finally, Stalin got out, went up to the cow and whispered into its ear. The cow gave one frightened look, jumped over the fence and disappeared in the distance.

"What did you say to the cow to make it do that?" Roosevelt asked.

Stalin smiled. "Don't tell anybody, but I said to her: 'If you don't get out of here, but quick, I'll put you on a collective farm!'"

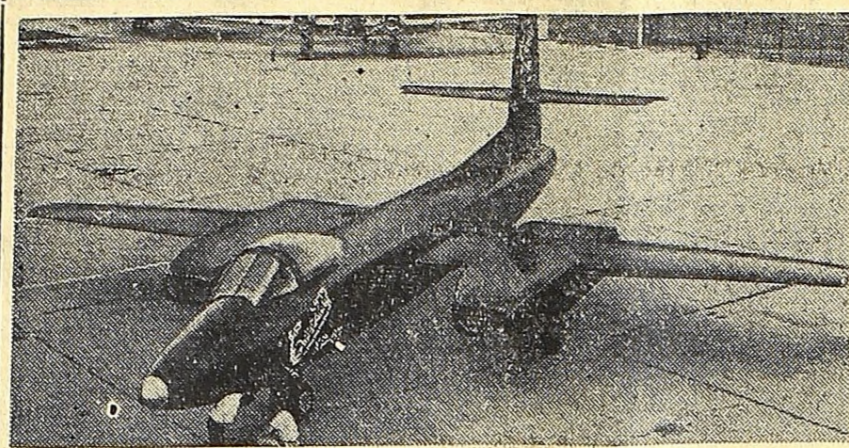

NO EXPLOSION POSSIBLE

Science Now 'Spalliates' Atoms

Scientists now can split the atoms of five more metals—lead, bismuth, thallium, platinum and tantalum—achievements destined to open new roads toward man's ultimate mastery of the atom.

However, there's no need to worry about the possibility that a "cheap" atomic bomb could be made by splitting the atoms of such a common metal as lead, according to Prof. Glenn T. Seaborg, University of California physicist, who played a dominant role in development of the first atom bomb.

The day has not yet come when atomic bombs could be made with common elements such as lead and bismuth, Dr. Seaborg said, empha-

NEWS REVIEW

Showdown Near in U.N.; Grain Exports Reduced

SHOWDOWN:

Russia's Choice

Secretary of State George Marshall sounded like a man who was getting a lot of things off his chest. What he said in an address before the U. N. general assembly of 55 nations amounted to a call for a showdown with Russia.

The Soviets, he intimated, have held to their stubborn, veto-bound course in the United Nations long enough.

To make the delinquents come to time, Marshall proposed a four point plan of action to the general assembly:

1. He suggested creation of a new assembly committee of 55 countries which would operate without veto and would remain constantly in session to consider world security questions and function as a board of appeals. Potentially, the committee would be a rival to the security council.
2. He announced that the U. S. was ready to relinquish, in all but the gravest cases, its veto privilege and implicitly challenged Russia to do likewise.
3. He blamed Russia for the U. S.-Soviet deadlock in Korea and said that America would submit the case to the general assembly for action.
4. He blamed Russia for using vetoes to protect Yugoslavia, Albania and Bulgaria from being pronounced guilty of meddling in Greece. He said the U. S. would ask the assembly to vote guilt for the three satellites and to demand that they refrain from interfering in Greece.

PRICE BATTLE:

Exports Cut

Secretary of Agriculture Clinton P. Anderson had a "Horatio at the bridge" air about him as he announced that the government had made a drastic cut-back of grain and flour allocations for export in November.

The move generally was accounted as another noble stand against the forces which are causing domestic food prices to spiral dizzyly. This one, however, had the blessings of the grain trade as "a step in the right direction."

Reducing the export allocations for November was in line with the government's surprise revision of the nation's 1947 export goal from some 450 million bushels of grain down to 350 million.

(In a significant sidelight, Anderson scoffed at the prospect of returning to rationing by pointing out that such a program could not be put into effect before the need for it would be over.)

Next move, it was hinted, would be an attempt by Secretary Anderson to put through a sharp reduction of total food exports—not just grain—as the only practical way of pulling down prices.

The U. S. state department, however, committed to its "save Europe" program, no doubt would object vehemently to any such action.

Atom After-Effects

Although the atom bomb explosions in Japan have caused some sterility among the people, they have not affected the soil adversely and may even have brought about an improvement in the rice crop.

Dr. Shields Warren, Harvard professor, recently returned from Japan where he studied after-effects of the bomb, said that its effects on human beings may carry into the third generation, producing freaks.

WHOSE FAULT?

Taft Talks

Sen. Robert Taft (Rep., Ohio), who had to crash a sign-toting picket line to get to his audience, told a Republican rally in Los Angeles that if President Truman had not jumped the gun in scrapping price controls the current inflation spiral might have been delayed a while longer.

Exactly how Taft arrived at that rather hazy conclusion was not immediately clear. The senator himself last year was denounced by Mr. Truman for his part in writing a price control extension bill which the President branded as being worse than no controls. Mr. Truman's subsequent veto of the bill allowed price controls to expire automatically.

Nailing down the first plank in what apparently is designed to be his campaign platform for the 1948 presidential nomination, Taft assailed the administration's record on taxes and spending. "The country must elect a Republican president next year if it is genuinely interested in reducing taxes and spending," Taft observed.

The movie camera was developed on the east coast and the first flickers were shown in New York. Some of the top movie moguls got their start there. But New York couldn't hold the industry. It lacked the necessary insanity.

However, this has changed. New York has become sufficiently wacky for anything—even film making.

Forrestal In James V. Forrestal wasn't due to be sworn in as U. S. secretary of defense for another week, but President Truman manifestly alarmed over the trend of world events, ordered the former secretary of the navy to jump the gun in taking over his new job.

Mr. Truman observed that in view of conditions abroad, the nation should have its secretary of defense in office and functioning. The conditions, which he did not specify, probably were the current unrest in Trieste and the U. S.-Russian stalemate in the United Nations, topped off by Secretary of State Marshall's challenging speech before the general assembly.

Now presiding over the unified army, navy and air forces, Forrestal is the armed forces' only representative on the President's cabinet.

They will greatly enrich the field of scientific and medical research by adding at least 100 new radioactive isotopes to the more than 500 already produced.

It is the beginning of a new phase of nuclear development, he said. Next step is to create machines that develop such high energies that man will be able to create matter out of energy, thus reversing the process of the atom bomb which turns matter into energy.

"Apparently the prospects for entering this next energy region are good. Thus we may look forward to even more amazing developments in the fields of nuclear science," Dr. Seaborg predicted.

Economic Experts Are Alarmed

MORE alarmed than ever over high prices and the inflation spiral, the President's council of economic advisers dumped a none-too-happy economic report in Mr. Truman's lap when he returned from his trip to Brazil.

Members of the council, set up by congress to take the nation's business pulse and report on how to head off depression, are so worried, in fact, that they have been considering the drastic step of recommending reinstatement of price controls.

This step also has been considered by members of the Truman cabinet, and they are not at all happy about it. They feel that new price controls never would get by congress, would result only in more black-marketeering—unless accompanied by rationing. And nobody wants to have rationing come back.

However, the council of economic advisers, a group of experts picked from neither political party, is concerned not with what congress may or may not think, but solely with heading off depression. And they informed the President:

1. That the present runaway prices coupled with inflation will continue for some time.
2. That continuation will lead to a real depression, rather than a recession.

They also cautioned that the low-income public—which makes up the vast majority of the nation's consumers—has been using up its savings, because prices are so high that they can't pay their bills out of present income.

New Yorkers Are Talking About . . .

The British boats which are under wartime protection in the harbor. They fear time bombs. . . . Irving Berlin's "take" from the "Easter Parade" film. It'll be at least $600,000. . . . New Deal Agencies Pay Off

EVERY now and then there is a news item, more or less unnoticed, which goes to refute the all-inclusive charges heard nowadays that everything done by the New Deal was bad. A majority of farmers today will tell you the triple A saved farming as an industry; Home Owners Loan corporation saved millions of homes and is paying out without loss; Federal Housing administration as a lending agency for private home construction is paying its way; the conservation service is credited with keeping American farms at top production during the war; no one in the Tennessee valley has an ill word to say against TVA.

And now the Federal Deposit Insurance corporation, which insures bank deposits, has paid into the treasury $146,600,000, more than half the money provided to start the program. It pays in full the more than $139,000,000 in FDIC capital subscribed by the 12 federal reserve banks and about $7,500,000 of the $150,000,000 originally subscribed by the treasury.

To be perfectly fair the FDIC act was introduced in 1934 by Sen. Arthur Vandenberg (R., Mich.). But it is considered New Deal legislation and no one has lost a dime on bank deposits since its passage.

New York Bids for Hollywood

New York has gone all out to bring the movie industry to Gotham, where it was born. It has secured a pledge of five years without strikes in the picture trades. All it needs now are palm trees, looser morals and a working agreement with Old Man Gulf Stream.

Air Age Speeds Diplomacy

THE flying diplomacy of State Secretary Marshall is bringing an untrumpeted sort of one-world statesmanship to foreign affairs. A military mind generally believes a straight line is the shortest distance between two points, whereas a diplomat customarily starts off on a tack to the left or right and indeed may back up to fill. Marshall thus is revising the old Byrnes-Roosevelt formulas, not so much in policy, but completely in tactics.

His primary technique is to count less on the trans-oceanic telephone, radio and cable to our ambassadors. In important cases, he dispatches a personal emissary by air to Greece, Paris, Rome or China to meet the diplomatic demands of an atomo-Russo era.

It is all being done rather quietly. For instance, when the Paris conference of needy nations started planning to demand 29 billion dollars from the U. S. in four years, the state department did not issue statements, make speeches or get the ambassador on the phone. The Marshall policy worker, George Kennan, was sent over quietly by air, and he got American officials into a conference and worked the publicity on our viewpoint from there, letting the Europeans know first-hand the problem of the administration to wring money and concessions from the Republican congress and the primary necessity of self-help by Europe.

Save While We Have It

AMERICA'S annual per capita income has hit an all-time high. Twelve hundred dollars each year for each one of us, men, women and babies. Such an income is fine while it lasts, but what of tomorrow? It was not many years ago when wheat was selling at 50 cents a bushel; cotton at five cents a pound; hogs from $3 to $4 a hundred; when corn went begging at 30 to 40 cents a bushel. Yes, prosperity is fine, but let us remember some of the yesterdays and prepare for the possible tomorrows. If we will but stick away a portion of our income we will have something to tide us over the rough spots.

Money in Gayer Colors

Every few days somebody else comes out in favor of the proposal for vari-colored paper money. Norman Rockwell, the artist, has just endorsed the idea. It seems to be the feeling that money goes through our hands so fast today it can't be identified under the old plain hues.

In fact, we can't hang onto it long enough to depend on anything but the sense of touch.

"I'm for rainbow dough," said Elmer Twitshell today as another ten spot went through his hands at high speed and after one bounce. "We've got to do something to currency so it will hit the eye and leave a distinct impression on how much it was and in what direction it went."

"We Americans have a right to know whether it is money, lettuce, beet greens or box tops we are handling so briefly," he continued. "There was a time when the passage of a five dollar bill through the human hand was not quicker than the eye."

"I have never found fault with the color of money before. The sample standard shades were okay. But now the public needs cheering up with regard to money—and new, bright colors might turn the trick. 'What colors would you like to see our dough in?' we asked. 'Anything gay and festive,'" Elmer replied. "I think anything under a ten dollar bill should be in bright polka dots so we could identify it in flight."

It was notable on the list of big income men (not that they had much left) that the top boys were in the movie, liquor or racetrack business. We were just about to lecture junior on the importance of hard work, high morals, a good education and the nose to the grindstone when this switched us to a stern, "Oh, the heck with it!"

Synthetic Mutton Chops
Prepare for the production-line steak. Science, says Dr. Gerald N. Wendt, editor of Science Illustrated, one day will manufacture meat, dispensing with livestock entirely. It will discover how to duplicate all the elements in meat and reproduce the taste and nourishment.

We were afraid of this. That somebody would come up with the family hamburger, the F.O.B. order of ham and eggs and the Detroit pork chop has been our recurrent nightmare. We had a dream the other night that we got a sirloin from the National Association of Manufacturers and an offer of a pot roast from the Chamber of Commerce.

LIFE

VANISHING AMERICANISMS

"That salesman was here again urging us to buy a new car."

"What do you care how your hair looks? You're a man."

The ICC has given permission to the Pullman company to jack up sleeping car rates as high as 49 per cent. That's fair enough. Where else can a man stay awake all night any cheaper?

One striking thing about the national situation today is that it is becoming harder and harder to take to drink. The high cost of liquor is discouraging the rumpots everywhere. Carry Nation, were she around today, could throw away her ax. All she would need to flourish would be a price list.

Will Bust Follow War Boom?

REMEMBER the prosperity we enjoyed immediately following World War I? Everybody who wanted to work had a job. Wages were high. The farmers had $2 a bushel wheat, with all other farm product prices in proportion. So long as those prices prevailed, continued payment of interest on farm mortgages was possible.

For some two and a half years we sailed a tranquil sea, with a fair and steady wind. Then the squall struck. It was not a hurricane, and did not last long.

From 1924 to 1929, five years, we went up, and up, and up. Never had we known such prosperity (?) as of those five years. The stock market boomed. Millions were getting rich (?) on paper by buying stocks on margins. Any stock, even those fallacious Insull issues, were clamored for, and were always on a bull market.

We were assured by both business and political leaders that our prosperity (?) was to be permanent; that America never again would know the need of pinching pennies; that the conditions we then were enjoying would continue.

That was a city condition in which the man on the farm was not a participant. As early as 1925 Europe had passed the buying stage, and the United States had ceased to buy for European consumption as it had during and for a time after the war. Wheat had dropped to $1 or less a bushel, and $1 wheat would not pay interest on that farm mortgage.

As late as January, 1929, a few weeks before he left the White House, President Coolidge assured us America never again would sink into the morass of depression; that our continued prosperity (?) was assured for all time. There was no cloud in the sky.

IT CAN HAPPEN AGAIN
Then in October of 1929 the hurricane struck. It was not another short-lived squall, but a real twister. Overnight it swept away that paper wealth (?) so many had considered inexhaustible riches. Industrial production largely stopped. Jobs were gone. Prices of farm products dropped even lower. Banks failed by the thousands. Tens of thousands of farm mortgages were foreclosed.

That hurricane was the aftermath of World War I. It had taken more than 10 years to strike America. Before that it had created havoc in Europe, and had we watched the international barometer we might have expected it to strike here, but we were living in a fool's paradise and did not prepare.

Will history repeat? Will the aftermath of World War II be a hurricane for America? Should the rest of the world go down, we will go the same way. We could drown in our efforts to save the rest of the world.

There is one thing we, as individuals, can do to help keep us out of the breadlines should catastrophe strike. We can save something for those possibly black days, out of the abundance we have today. The growing savings bank balances is evidence that we are saving, while the ever-growing personal loans to finance installment purchases is evidence that many may be headed toward personal disaster.

Save While We Have It

America's annual per capita income has hit an all-time high. Twelve hundred dollars each year for each one of us, men, women and babies. No people in the world, including ourselves, ever before have enjoyed (?) such an income. It is fine while it lasts, but what of tomorrow? It was not many years ago when wheat was selling at 50 cents a bushel; cotton at five cents a pound; hogs from $3 to $4 a hundred; when corn went begging at 30 to 40 cents a bushel. Yes, prosperity is fine, but let us remember some of the yesterdays and prepare for the possible tomorrows. If we will but stick away a fair portion of our $1,200 per capita income rather than spending it all for fur coats, diamond rings, high-powered automobiles and other non-essentials we did without when wheat was selling at 50 cents a bushel, we will have something to tide us over the rough spots should we again strike them. The time to practice thrift is when we have something that can be saved. We do not have to go on a spend-it-all binge just because we are prosperous.

Because of money advanced on government guaranteed loans to buy houses the government within the next five years will have many thousands of homes on its hands. Then there should be home bargains available.

With the highest wage scales we ever have known; with more people working than ever before in our history, even in wartime, why do our relief costs continue to go upward instead of downward?

The Fair is over and it seemed to be quite a success. The weather wasn't very co-operative as it was a little on the cold side. The midway provided lots of entertainment for the youngsters (oldsters too) and many a mother has a new 'cut glass' dish that was won as a prize. Quite a number of former Hale residents were glimpsed at the fair. Among those seen were: Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Sauve, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Syze, Mr. and Mrs. John LeClair, Sr., Mrs. Lydia Brown, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Hill, and the former Mildred Hill. Dr. Beck Speaks at Assembly Entertains High School Students

The students of both junior and senior high school assembled last Thursday afternoon to listen to Dr. Beck of Central State Teacher's College give an interesting program on cowboy songs and stories.

Dr. Beck who has traveled extensively through the west told many of his personal experiences, showed branding irons he collected and sang a number of cowboy songs.

He recounted tales of "Pecos Bill" who corresponds in cowboy lore to Paul Bunyon of lumberjack fame and ended his talk with the story of how Pecos Bill discovered he was not a coyote.

Dr. Beck spoke to a most interested and appreciative audience who hope he may come again soon.

The eighth graders of Whittemore enjoyed a hayride last Thursday night when the class took advantage of the coming holiday, Friday and had their party on a school night.

The sponsor, Howard Cole, Mrs. Hope Haight and Miss Betty Warren chaperoned the party.

A fine evening, pleasant company, good refreshments and lots of noise and plenty of songs made the first social event of the year a memorable one for all who attended.

Seniors Increase Fund
The Whittemore Seniors found a sweet way to increase the funds in their class treasury when they decided to sell home made candy at the Hale Fair. Much was made in the Home Economics room and some by the girls at home. The boys of the class gave assistance by cracking nuts and beating fudge. A nice profit was made.

Decorated Bridal Bed

The ancient custom of decorating the bridal bed with rosemary still persists in a few remote areas of Europe although it is not generally practiced. Among the warlike tribes of Northern India, a strange custom once prevailed. The prince or rajah, who had a daughter of marriageable age, entertained the princely suitors at a lavish banquet. The princess was allowed to enter, look the young men over, and throw a flower garland of marriage around the neck of the man of her choice.

Shoestring Tips
Here is a tip on shoestring tips—they ravel and make lacing difficult, dip them in clear nail polish.

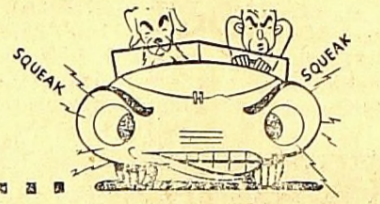

Cleaning Pan
If food should burn in a pan, don't scrape it off with a metal instrument but, instead, fill the pan with water to which a little vinegar has been added, and boil for a few minutes. It will then clean easily in warm sudsy water. If pots and pans are thoroughly cleaned with hot soapy water after each use, they will seldom need hard scrubbing.

Take It Quick, Mary, It's a GOOD CHEAP Purchase

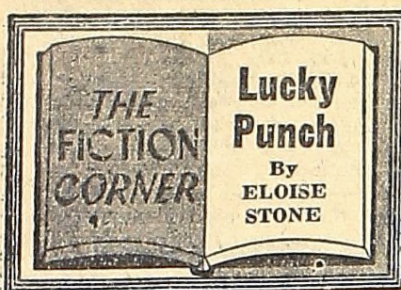

IN YEARS PAST the expression "GOOD CHEAP" was used to describe an unusual purchase or bargain. The dictionary defines "cheap" as being "a small cost or price as compared with the usual price or real value." This is why we have chosen to describe electric service as good cheap service.

REDDY KILOWATT, your dependable, efficient, electric servant, is proud that you can refer to him as "cheap." Proud that he gives you value far in excess of the cost of his service to you. Consider for a minute the many tiring tasks he performs around the home—lighting, cooking, refrigeration, water heating, washing clothes, cleaning, radio reception and many others—ALL for only a few cents a day.

YES, REDDY KILOWATT SERVICE IS Good Cheap SERVICE

reminded Gil of a similar band which assembled each evening to watch the train go through the Ohio village where he had spent his youth.

A nearby cafe beckoned and Gil went in to have a cup of coffee before going to a hotel. The waiter had barely slid his brimming cup down the counter, when one of the onlookers from the stage depot took the next stool. He, too, ordered coffee and took a deep drink before turning to Gil.

"Haven't I seen you some place before?" he asked. "You look real familiar to me."

"I don't recall meeting you," answered Gil. "I'm new to this section of the country."

"It's a good country, but I can't say too much for this town."

"Don't discourage me like that, when I've only been in town ten minutes," smiled Gil. "What's wrong with the town?"

The other grunted. "You've met

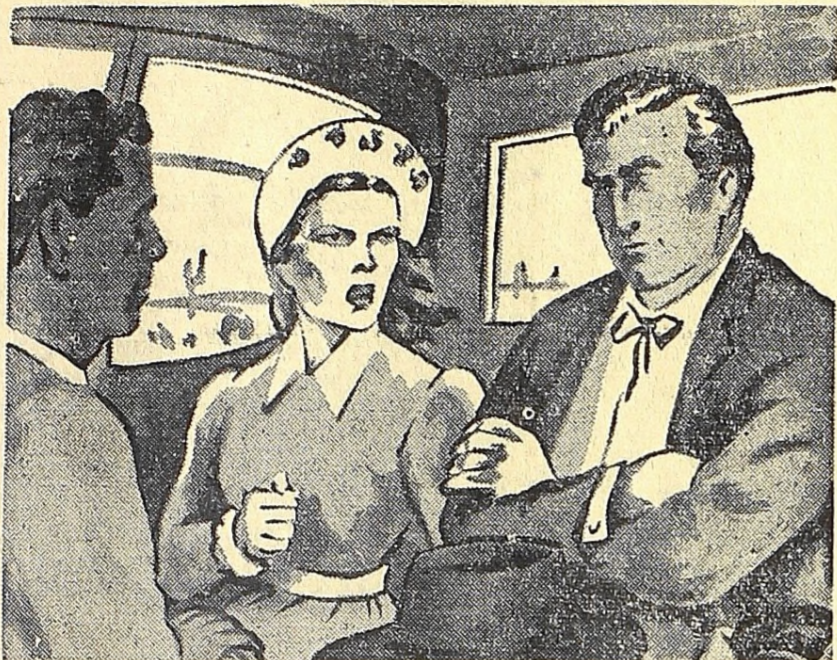

Cass was proud of his record as a gunman and a fighter. He often boasted that whoever could lick him, either on the draw or with fists, could be the next mayor. Mort Cass wouldn't stay in a town where he had been whipped.

Two men he had bested at gun-play were asleep on Boot Hill, at the edge of town. The only man who had ever fought him barehanded might as well have joined them. His broken bones had not mended properly after the beating he had received and his six-foot body was shrunken and misshapen.

Virginia and Gil were making their way across the street one day to dine at the Western hotel. Cass swaggered out and moved toward them.

"Well, if it ain't the pretty school-marm turned editor and her pasty faced Don John."

Anger seethed through Gil, but he couldn't quite help being amused at the flagrant mispronunciation. He

"Sorry," the girl flashed. "William was fighting you and your corrupt friends with his newspaper."

our mayor. If you don't already know, you'll soon find out."

By the time Gil had been in town two weeks he had made friends with Virginia Holmes and incurred the enmity of Mort Cass for that reason. Cass had learned that Gil was in Arizona because of his health and he never failed to make a remark about "lungers" when he was certain to be overheard by the smaller man. Gil found that not many of the townspeople liked Cass; but, one and all, they feared and obeyed him.

It was common gossip in Benson's Gulch that Cass had either fired the shot that killed William Holmes, or ordered it fired. The body of the young editor had been found in his shop one morning. A group of wild cowboys from a Cass-controlled ranch had been drinking the night before and done a lot of wild shooting in the town's main street. One of the bullets had broken the glass window of the newspaper office and lodged in the owner. The coroner had given a verdict of accidental death. As Cass was all-powerful in Benson's Gulch, no one openly questioned the verdict.

Gil tapped him on the right shoulder. As Cass turned, Gil drove a hard left into his face. The crowd, which was beginning to gather, gave a startled gasp. Cass charged at Gil and for a moment it looked as if he would pummel him into the ground. Gil's rapid foot work saved him. His weaving body made a poor target for the larger man's bear-like blows.

Cass soon realized that this fight was not going to result in the easy victory he had expected. He stepped back and warily eyed his adversary. Then again he charged at Gil, who eluded him.

Wild cheers rang from the crowd later, when Gil stood with wide-spread legs over the sprawled figure of Mort Cass.

"Oh, what a lucky punch," someone roared, as bystanders rushed to congratulate Gil.

"Lucky punch, nothing," cried a deep voice.

Gil turned to face the man who had drunk coffee with him soon after his arrival in Benson's Gulch.

"I remember you now," he said, taking Gil's hand in a firm grasp. "I saw you fight once in Chicago. Recall the night you knocked out Motzi in the third round. You're Brady, once holder of the world's lightweight boxing crown."

could smell liquor on Cass' breath. The man had been drinking heavily, but was far from drunk. He pushed between Gil and Virginia.

"Run along, tenderfoot," he said. "I'll take Virginia to dinner and see if I can't change her opinion of me a bit."

He started to take the girl's arm. She drew back and slapped him full across the face. He started menacingly toward her.

"I'll learn you to slap Mort Cass," he said.

Cass charged at Gil and for a moment it looked as if he would pummel him into the ground. Gil's rapid foot work saved him. His weaving body made a poor target for the larger man's bear-like blows.

Quick Breads Take Little Mixing Time. (See recipes below.)

Tempting Breads

There is no aroma more appetizing than that tantalizing one which comes from the oven in which bread is baking. And what is more of a treat than eating the bread itself?

Piping hot muffins add interest to the simplest supper; hot coffee cake is a delight to both early and late risers, while thick and thin slices alike—as long as they are of homemade bread—make superb sandwiches for school lunches or late snacks.

Many homemakers don't bother to make homemade bread because they think it is a time-consuming procedure. Actually, it's far simpler than mixing a cake or even cooking a vegetable, and the pleasure of it is so great, it's more than worth the little effort.

Orange Oatmeal bread is good when sliced thin for sandwiches. Moist and tender, it keeps its flavor easily and slices readily. The flavor actually improves when the bread is kept for a day before being cut.

Pecan Wheat Muffins. (Makes 12 to 16 muffins) 1 cup sifted whole wheat flour 1/2 cup sifted white flour 4 teaspoons baking powder 3/4 teaspoon salt 1 egg 1/2 cup brown sugar 1/2 cup evaporated milk 3/4 cup water 1/2 cup water 3 tablespoons melted shortening 1/2 cup chopped pecans

Sift first four ingredients twice, returning bran in sifter to sifted mixture. Beat egg, add brown sugar, milk and water. Stir until mixture is dissolved, then add shortening. Stir liquid quickly into dry ingredients. With the last few stirs, add chopped nuts. Pour batter immediately into greased muffin tins. Bake in a hot (400-degree) oven about 20 minutes.

Orange Oatmeal Loaf. (Makes 4-by-7-inch loaf) 3/4 cup evaporated milk 1/2 cup orange juice 1 teaspoon grated orange peel 1 cup quick-cooking oats 1 cup sifted flour 1/2 teaspoon salt 1 teaspoon baking powder 1 teaspoon soda 1/2 cup sugar 1/2 cup chopped nuts 1 egg 1/2 cup molasses 2 tablespoons shortening, melted

Mix milk, orange juice and grated peel and add to oats. Let this mixture stand for an hour. Sift flour, salt, baking powder, soda and sugar. Add chopped nuts. Beat egg into oatmeal mixture. Add molasses and beat thoroughly. Stir in melted shortening. Add flour mixture and stir just to blend. Pour into a greased loaf pan and bake in a moderate (350-degree) oven for about 50 minutes, or until done.

Pecan Wheat Muffins. (Makes 12 to 16 muffins) 1 cup sifted whole wheat flour 1/2 cup sifted white flour 4 teaspoons baking powder 3/4 teaspoon salt 1 egg 1/2 cup brown sugar 1/2 cup evaporated milk 3/4 cup water 1/2 cup water 3 tablespoons melted shortening 1/2 cup chopped pecans

Sift first four ingredients twice, returning bran in sifter to sifted mixture. Beat egg, add brown sugar, milk and water. Stir until mixture is dissolved, then add shortening. Stir liquid quickly into dry ingredients. With the last few stirs, add chopped nuts. Pour batter immediately into greased muffin tins. Bake in a hot (400-degree) oven about 20 minutes.

By INEZ GERHARD

LOUIS CALHERN, back in New York after spending the summer in Hollywood working in "The Red Pony," was so enthusiastic about "The Arch of Triumph" that he could hardly talk about anything else. He worked in that one summer before last; has the role of Morosov, the Russian doorman—his whiskers had to be applied fresh every morning. But his boundless enthusiasm was for the work of Ingrid Bergman and Charles Boyer, which he says is superb. Calhern is one of the few who have been allowed to see the picture, so he ought to know. And his long and highly successful stage career qualifies him as an expert on really good acting.

Rise Stevens, back on "The Family Hour," really likes California as a place to live, whether she's working in a picture or not. Her charming house is just large enough for herself, her husband and her three-year-old son, Nicky, and she shuns the gaudier social life in favor of small parties for close friends. What with her radio work and heavy schedule of Metropolitan Opera performances she is one of our busiest young singers—with a new picture already slated for next summer.

Stewart Granger, the English actor, ("Antony and Cleopatra," "The Man in Gray"), replaced James Mason in the hearts of many English fans when Mason came to this country. Now Granger is booked to come here next spring, for Universal-International. Meanwhile, Eagle-Lion Studios plan to jump the gun by releasing "Caravan," Granger's newest starring picture.

At Columbia they are still laughing about what happened to Larry Parks. He let his hair grow so long for his role as a Scottish Highlander in "The Swordsman" that a makeup man innocently tried to remove his "wig" and almost scalped him.

They say no one has really achieved fame until glorified in the comic strips; if that is true, Kate Smith can be sure of her laurels. She has been portrayed in "Li'l Abner," "Winnie Winkle" and "Flower Potts."

Every radio master of ceremonies seems to have his own method for picking contestants. Johnny Olsen, of ABC's "Ladies Be Seated," picks his participants just by walking through the audience.

A big cross-country tour for "Breakfast in Hollywood" gets under way October 10. Host Tom Breneman, his hats, orchids, wishing rings, etc., will visit eight cities; profits from seat sales will be given to the local Community Chests.

Mary Wickes, the comedienne, brought from Broadway to Hollywood in 1941 for "The Man Who Came to Dinner," has her second movie role in four years in Warner Bros' "Christopher Blake." And she's a fine actress!

When Peggy Webber worked with Peter Lorre on his NBC "Mystery in the Air" everyone exclaimed over how slim she'd grown. "It's because of work, not lack of food," she explained. "The schedule I had to keep with Orson Welles for filming his 'Macbeth' is the best reducer I know of."

"The Whistler's" wife says it is fun being married to an actor who must remain anonymous—at parties he can't talk about his work. If he does, and people learn who he is, his job is over. But when he couldn't stand it any longer he wrote a drama for the series; now he can at least say "I wrote for 'The Whistler'" when people ask what he does.

ODDS AND ENDS—Cary Grant, back from England, will return in January, according to present plans, to make "The Devil's Delight" for Alexander Korda. . . . Jack Hope, who writes the lyrics for brother Bob's tributes on the air, is cashing in on his tune, "Shut My Mouth With Kisses." . . . Meanwhile Paramount announces that Bob's next picture will be "Sorrowful Jones," in which he will go in more for straight drama and less for all-out comedy. . . . Henry Fonda begins his 20th year as an actor with "The Long Night," if he could have landed a job he would have been a reporter instead.

Eyeglasses in Ruins of Nineveh; Origin Unknown

It is not known who invented eyeglasses. Eyeglasses have probably been invented—and then the art lost—a number of times. Roger Bacon suggested them in the 13th century, Salvino D'Arma-te of Italy devised a pair of spectacles in 1285, and Chinese manuscripts dated 1260 mention eyeglasses. But a lens was found in the ruins of Nineveh, and Nero watched Christians being thrown to the lions in the Coliseum through an emerald monocle, although he was probably using the emerald as a sun glass.

That Nagging Backache

May Warn of Disordered Kidney Action
Modern life with its hurry and worry, irregular habits, improper eating and drinking—its risk of exposure and infection—throws heavy strain on the work of the kidneys. They are apt to become over-taxed and fail to filter excess acid and other impurities from the life-giving blood.
You may suffer nagging backache, headache, dizziness, getting up at night, leg pains, swelling—feet constantly tired, nervous, all worn out. Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder are sometimes burning, scanty or too frequent urination.
Try Doan's Pills. Doan's help the kidneys to pass off harmful excess body waste. They have had more than half a century of public approval. Are recommended by grateful users everywhere. Ask your neighbor!

More Acres Opened To Alaska Settlers

Large Section of the Matanuska Valley Good for Farming.

WASHINGTON.—Secretary of Interior Julius P. Krug has announced that 45,000 acres in Alaska's Matanuska valley—near the ghost town of Knik—would be opened to homesteading next spring.
The district land office at Anchorage will start accepting applications from war veterans October 17. The general public can apply after next January 15. Actual settlement will be permitted six months after applications are approved.
Krug said most of the land is unimproved but suitable for farming. This is in contrast with 2,750,000 acres of public land along the Alaska highway, upon which settlement may begin October 2. The newly opened highway lands are non-agricultural.

The new Matanuska homesteads may not exceed 160 acres. The land is free. There is a filing fee of $5 for tracts not larger than 80 acres and $10 for tracts of 81 acres or more, plus a commission of $1.50 for each 40 acres.
The proposed homesteads are in the Wasilla-Goose Bay region, in the northeastern end of Knik Arm, 48 miles from Palmer, headquarters of the Alaska Rural Rehabilitation corporation farm cooperative project, or 15 minutes by plane from Anchorage. The Alaska railroad crosses the northern end of the area.

Krug said the decision to open the area to settlement was based on land classification reports showing that the area is suitable for farming and is needed for further development of the valley.
The bureau of land management said the area is sparsely settled, partially because the original Matanuska development in 1935 drew settlers away from the Wasilla-Goose Bay region.

Experiment with Undersea Television Is Successful

WASHINGTON.—Armchair scrutiny of sunken Spanish galleons and other long-hidden mysteries of the ocean depths became a possibility as the navy announced that underwater television experiments have been carried out successfully.
The navy said scientists at Bikini, scene of last year's atom bomb tests, watched fish swimming around the deck of a submarine 160 feet below the surface by means of remote-controlled television camera.
Natural light filtering through the clear water provided sufficient illumination for the experiment, but when necessary regulation diving lights can be used, the navy said.

Polio Vaccine Is Tested On Rats; Success Is Told

WASHINGTON.—Development of an infantile paralysis vaccine said to be capable of producing "a high degree of immunity" in a certain type of rats was described in the technical journal Science.
The report, describing the work of four Stanford university researchers, contained no statement as to any significance of the studies with relation to the disease in humans.
The vaccine was prepared with a strain of infantile paralysis virus experimentally developed in the cotton rat. After vaccination, 24 rats were exposed to doses of active virus. Only one of the 24 vaccinated rats developed polio—and it recovered. In contrast, among a similar number of unvaccinated rats used as "controls," 83 per cent developed the disease. Three weeks later, the original 24 vaccinated rats were given another dose of active virus 10 times stronger than the original one. Only 33 per cent showed signs of polio. On the other hand, 92 per cent of a group of "control" rats developed the disease. Hubert S. Lorin, C. E. Schwerdt, Nancy Lawrence and Jane Collier Anderson conducted the research.

100 Pirates Killed Off Chinese Coast by Navy

CANTON, CHINA.—A Chinese naval amphibious force killed about 100 pirates in a clash off the Kwantung coast July 23, the newly-established navy signal station here reported.
A message to the signal station said the pirates lost their chief of staff and a unit commander.
The Kueling islands, pirate stronghold about 85 miles northeast of Hong Kong, now is occupied by Chinese troops, but for years was the base for organized sea rovers who exacted tolls from passing junks and often raided coastal villages.

Russians Possess Guided Rocket, U. S. Army Reveals

WASHINGTON.—The army disclosed that Russia possesses a guided missile with twice the range of the V-2's being tested here.
The missile was developed by the Germans, who also produced the V-2 rocket captured by the Americans and now undergoing tests at White Sands, N. M.

Handicapped Vocation Week

October 5th to 11th has been designated as National Employ the Handicapped week for 1947.

The purpose for designating a week each year as National Employ the Handicapped week is to call the attention of employers to the advantages of employing persons who may have limitations in some fields, but not in others.
