KEEP 'EM SWIMMING!

By Roy J. McMurray

Someday when you're not so busy, when you find yourself with time on your hands, take a hike out to the old river bend, to the place the kids used to call the "ole swimmin' hole."

You remember the spot that was so sheltered, where all the kids swam, even without suits—sure, you remember, for it's just a generation ago that you helped tie knots in the clothes of the other fellows who were in the water when you arrived.

It was always a good bet that you could catch a bass in that clear deep spot by the springboard on days when the fellows weren't swimming. You never forget a place like that, or the fun you had with Spot, Mickey, Fred, and all the gang.

The river is still there, and if another gang of kids is still swimming in the hole at the bend of the stream, and if the bass still frequent the shelter of overhanging trees, you can congratulate yourself and the people of your community for having kept that spot free from pollution for another generation.

Too many of the "ole swimmin' holes" are filled with waste materials, too many places are forsaken where the kids and the bass used to swim. If they're gone, there's a reason; if the kids and the bass have disappeared from your "ole swimmin' hole" it's time for you and me to do something about it. It's time for us to aid in arousing public concern that will help to restore these joyous retreats to their original beauty.

Someday another generation will frequent and enjoy these havens that nature provided for all; yes, someday kids will swim again at the old river bend. They will enjoy the freedom and fun that you and I knew if we, as citizens, alert ourselves to the need for keeping our streams clean and wholesome. KEEP 'EM SWIMMING!—Michigan Conservation.

The Old Philosopher Says:

By Gavin Maxwell Branding!

In the cattle country each rancher brands his cattle with his own special brand. That was the case in greater degree than now in the days when the great open spaces invited free feeding and cow men took charge of the herd in early spring while other ranch hands did the farming, preparing fodder for the winter.

The branded animal was known far and wide and unless it fell into the hands of a "rustler" it was reasonably a safe bet that it would be returned to the owner, in case of straying, because ranches cooperated with each other and knew each others brands, then to a foreman's job was to know the cattle count at all times and "ride the range" when any were missing.

The human family also brands itself. Communities also brand themselves. In one town we see Civic Pride—the clean water front, painted public buildings, well kept lawns, clean alleys, extended courtesies to strangers, while in others one doesn't need to be told that all the town needs is a funeral to be completely dead.

In the case of individuals, one is branded with a friendly smile, hearty handclasp—virility in ready evidence in everything he does. If such an individual keeps store it is a well organized and operated one—friendly clerks on their toes and the management ever in the background to keep things rolling smoothly.

The well branded man who operates a gas station is a good house-keeper. His attendants offer extra service; the windshields cleaned, water checked, air in tires and after it has been performed a sincere "Thank you" for having had an opportunity to serve.

Each of us wear our own brand. It would be well for us to examine that brand at intervals.

Maybe it is not the brand that makes for success and perchance we should have some surgery done on it to the end that its design be changed and in its changing the individual be given new life, new hope and a new vision of service.

Iosco Sportsmen to Hold Banquet and Meeting Tonight

Annual Event To be Held at Holland Hotel

Club Completes Two Important Projects This Week End

The annual fall banquet of the Iosco Sportsmen's Club will be held tonight (Friday) at the Hotel Holland, East Tawas. The dinner will begin at 8:00 o'clock and either chicken or fish will be served.

A program has been arranged with Roy McMurray acting as toastmaster. Moving pictures of subjects interesting to sportsmen will be shown.

Duck season opened Tuesday with an unusually large number of hunters getting their limit the first afternoon. Bird hunting and deer season is rapidly approaching, which should make the banquet tonight an interesting event for sportsmen.

The sportsmen's club has two projects nearly completed, the dams on Buck creek and a skeet range at the Tawas City Airport. Spokesmen for the club state that both projects will be completed this week-end.

The Buck creek dam will produce a 40 acre pond, and replaces a number of beaver dams which were torn out several years ago. The pond will provide a fine spot for hunting ducks, and excellent trout fishing. The pond will be planted with trout. It is planned. The dam will be completed this week-end under the supervision of the Conservation Department.

The skeet range location was donated to the sportsmen's club by the owners of the Tawas City Airport and provides a convenient place for this popular sport. Bob Roach has promised that the range will be in operation this week-end.

Club memberships will be taken at the meeting tonight. Membership in the Iosco Sportsmen's Club includes an affiliation with the Michigan United Conservation Corps and a subscription to that organization's magazine. The magazine deals with subjects which will appeal to all who are interested in increasing our game resources and improving conditions for wild life.

Million Deer in Michigan Herds

Michigan hunters still have a herd of about a million deer for their sport, in spite of heavy starvation losses in some deeryards last spring.

I. H. Bartlett, conservation department deer specialist, says a 30 percent increase reported by conservation officers in the herd in the upper peninsula more than offsets losses in overpopulated areas lacking winter food below the straits.

All but three upper peninsula counties—Iron, Delta, and Schoolcraft—show an increase in the summer counts of deer seen by conservation officers on routine patrol. In the lower peninsula the pattern of increase and decrease is most irregular, with more deer reported in Emmet, Charlevoix, Leelanau, Presque Isle, Montmorency, Kalkaska, Crawford, Mason, Lake, Muskegon, Clare, Gladwin, Arenac and Iosco counties, with less in other counties open to deer hunting. Officer's observations indicate the lower peninsula as a whole has fewer deer than it had a year ago, but the excellent fawn crop reported in the upper peninsula is sufficient to maintain the statewide estimate of one million animals, according to Bartlett.

General Assembly Gets Under Way

U. N. Delegates Convene At Town Hall of the World

By BAUKHAGE
News Analyst and Commentator.

WASHINGTON.—At the opening of the current session of the United Nations general assembly I made the usual rounds greeting friends from far corners of the earth whom these meetings bring together. Two converged upon me and one of them began to discourse on the fact that we three were becoming conference veterans.

He started to say "... let's see how many is it, there was the first Quebec, then the second Quebec. ..." But the other man interrupted him and remarked gently: "Oh, no, it goes further back than that. This is my forty-fourth. Remember there was a League of Nations, too?"

The younger man stopped. Of course, his gray haired colleague was right. "And you still believe," the younger man asked earnestly, "that some day they'll work?"

"Certainly," was the reply. And it was made with such simple sincerity that we "youngsters" felt a little reproved.

The next day I walked to a railway station across the beautiful Flushing Meadows in the twilight, the scent of new-mown grass all about us, with one of those prodigies, an "instant translator." She was one of the female of the species who are quite as efficient as the males. But it was not her feminine charm which attracted me, if such were to be discovered.

Baukhage

I tried to ask her a little about her work, my first question being: "Isn't it interesting?"

"Interesting? Oh, for a while," she answered, "but one would like to get around a little more. I have been here since spring. I'd like to get back to the Orient and—other places."

I mentioned that we had had simultaneous translation at Nuernberg. "Oh, I was there," she said, "and always cold. One could never get warm, anywhere." I agreed. "And," she added, "I went there direct from India."

I tried to get some observation from her on the idea behind these conferences and their effort to bring about world understanding and world peace. "Do you think that they are worthwhile?" I asked. (We're always asking that, hopefully if a little wistfully.)

"Oh, yes," she replied quickly, "they are much better than none at all, much. But I feel that the men here do not really wish to make sacrifices to have peace. The men in their own governments do not wish them to make enough concessions to rob the officials in the different governments of their own power. And so the beautiful words they use are idealistic thoughts, but when it comes to acting to implement them, they do not wish to go that far. They already have satisfied that feeling they know they should have, to do the right thing. Then they do not have to do it. Just as all of us rationalize our own misconduct."

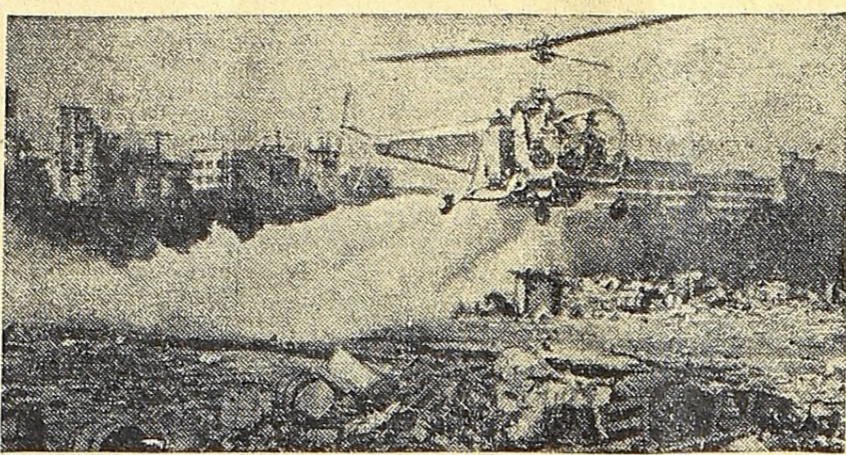

That gave me a pause. It also gave me some hope for this session for I believe that the powers of the assembly will be strengthened so that they can enforce what the people want. The fine words and idealistic plans will have more force if the permanent committee of the assembly on peace and security, which Secretary of State Marshall proposed, is created. It will be in session all the time. Its voice, unimpeded by the over-use of the stultifying veto, will be heard continuously; not merely when the assembly itself is in session.

Words Contain Great Significance

Words still are making trouble, as they always have. It isn't what we say so much as what people think we mean. For instance, there was a long discussion of the word "impinge," on the second day of the assembly meeting. This was just the English meaning, discussed among English-speaking reporters. Secretary Marshall had said this new permanent committee of the assembly would not "impinge" on the security council. The great argument about the committee has been that it was intended to by-pass the security council itself, and thus duck the veto.

If the English-speaking reporters weren't quite sure how far you go, or don't go, when you "impinge," it's no wonder there was confusion when it was translated into half a dozen other languages.

It was the translation of one word which nearly caused a revolution in Korea and made the work of the American commission there infinitely more difficult. It also has affected the whole course of action by the assembly on Korea. It was the word "trusteeship."

Conserve Food: Truman; U.N. Adopts Agenda

FOOD PLANS: Conservation

It wasn't hard for President Truman to figure out: Europe is in desperate need of food from the U. S., but the U. S. will leave itself wide open for even greater price spiraling if it boosts its exports much higher.

The answer, he told a special press conference, is food conservation by all Americans. It is not a matter of eating any less, he said, but of wasting less.

In line with that, he announced the setting up of a citizens food committee to develop a food conservation program in the nation. Charles Luckman of Cambridge, Mass., president of Lever Brothers, was named president.

Regarding Europe, Mr. Truman said the food and fuel situation there is too critical to allow time for detailed study. Thus, apparently in an emergency frame of mind, the President called together congressional leaders to discuss possible steps that could be taken immediately to aid the starving continent.

If possible, he said, he would not call a special session of congress if stop-gap aid for Europe could be pushed through without resorting to that step.

Americans could start preparing for a heavy barrage of food conservation propaganda.

TOUGH AGENDA: No Dodging

United Nations general assembly proved at least one thing in the first week of its current session—it isn't going to dodge any issues.

After riotous preliminary sessions in which they heard the U. S. and Russia flay each other verbally and U. N. Secretary General Trygve Lie call for an end to feuding, the delegates voted doggedly to take on the entire list of tough, almost insoluble problems standing as a barrier to world accord.

Among the items admitted to the agenda were the partition of Palestine, peace in the Balkans, independence of Korea and Marshall's proposal to reorganize U. N. machinery to hold a tighter rein on the turbulent peace.

Soviet delegate Andrei Vishinsky's resolution calling on member nations to take criminal action against warmongering propagandists was wholeheartedly admitted to debate, probably because it will provide a chance to mull over the concept of freedom of the press.

ABSOLVED: Hirohito

Even while five high-ranking Japanese army and navy officers were being hanged by the neck in payment for their crimes of cannibalism, torture and murder of U. S. prisoners, Emperor Hirohito was being publicly absolved of any responsibility for the Pacific war by the chief U. S. war crimes prosecutor. Joseph B. Keenan told the international war crimes tribunal that "The prosecution believes the people in the dock are really responsible for this war. If there had been anyone else, they would be in the dock too."

ELEANOR: An Old Note

"Dear Sumner — This Eisler case seems a hard nut to crack. What do you suggest? Sincerely, E. R."

That, Sumner Welles, former undersecretary of state, told the house committee on un-American activities, was a note he received from Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt in 1939 when the then first lady was interested in obtaining an open hearing on the passport application of one Hanns Eisler, Austrian refugee from Hitler.

The note, an almost forgotten memento of the prewar era, was hailed resoundingly in newspapers across the land because Hanns Eisler was accused of being a Communist. He is the brother of Gerhart Eisler, No. 1 agent of the Kremlin in the U. S. Eisler and his wife finally were issued visas in Mexico City to cover their entrance into this country. He has taken out naturalization papers and is a song writer in Hollywood.

In 1926, Eisler told the committee, he had applied for membership in the German Communist party, but had dropped out. A department of labor report made in 1938 said of him: "The evidence establishes preponderantly that Hanns Eisler is a Communist."

Mrs. Roosevelt's attitude toward the affair was lackadaisical. The note to Welles on behalf of Eisler was strictly routine, she said, adding that she neither knew Eisler nor remembered the note.

There Is No Disappointment Like Home

Veterans' administration, flooded with complaints from G.I.s, has come out with a blast at the high percentage of defective, inferior, shoddily built homes sold to them and which already have begun to unravel and come apart at the seams. "Already," says the administration, "as a result of failure to follow blue prints and specifications and the use of shoddy material and poor workmanship many have shown structural weakness impossible to be cured."

This discovery that plenty of these G.I. houses were built for glider service in the first stiff wind comes a little late. People who watched them go up knew the truth long ago. To them it often looked as if the workers were uncertain whether they were building a home, a box-kite or a turkey run.

In too many cases the timbers would have been inadequate for rabbit coops and some of the roofers seemed to feel they were either repairing a net or demonstrating a new type of cross ventilation at chimney levels.

Yes, we know it was not easy to get good lumber and that there were other shortages, but the big shortage was too often in those old-fashioned virtues: Pride of workmanship and a determination to do any job right.

The war heroes are not the only victims. Plenty of others who have tried to build a house in the last few years can testify to the "anything-goes" technique, the "never use two nails when one will hold the board in place six months" mood and the great increase in the ranks of home builders who cut corners, confuse blueprints with strip cartoons and think anything is a door that has a knob on it.

"There is no place like home" is still being sung, but the implications are different and a note of gratitude creeps into it.

CAN YOU REMEMBER—
Away back when all men were a little reluctant to strike?

America's Real Rubies

John Gunther, justly blitzy James W. Gerard's statement that Morgan partners run the U. S., lists 64 men who do and he puts the President of the country on top and includes Senator Vandenberg, John L. Lewis, Bill Green, Philip Murray, the Rockefeller's, etc. It is a convincing list of men whose influence over our lives is terrific. But Gunther overlooks others who also have a powerful influence. We would add:

- 1—Fibber McGee and Mollie
- 2—Burns and Allen
- 3—Break the Bank
- 4—Flicka
- 5—Lassie

Howard Hughes has produced "The Outlaw" but can't get it off the ground. The critics seem to hold that if it had been shown two months ago Brewster would have won.

On one of those radio prize programs the other day a woman, asked what she would like more than anything in the world if she won, replied, "To swim out beyond the breakers." "Why?" asked the master of ceremonies. "Every time my husband takes me to the beach he goes out beyond the breakers and keeps yelling for me to try it. It's been going on for 25 years!" she replied, wowing the audience.

Margaret Truman has been given a union card as a singer. She now has a paid up voice in good standing. There is not, in fact, an open-shop note in her system.

Gov. Tom Dewey says his corn crop has been a terrible failure. Things will be better when all the campaign speeches get into swing. Was the corn deaf to his plea of "Lend me your ears?"

Tom says he has been forced to sell off more cows than usual. Oh, well, in days like these "no moos is good moos."

Shares in a dog track have been put on the New York stock exchange. A fellow tried to get us to go after some by using an electric rabbit.

Our chief delegate at the U. N. meetings seems inadequate when it comes to scaring Russia. How about firing him and sending in Boris Karloff?

Believe it or not, 24 years ago Branch Rickey, Eddie Dyer and Bert Shotton were in a crucial series in St. Louis against Brooklyn. Know how? Rickey was part owner of the St. Louis club, Shotton was his assistant manager and Eddie Dyer, fresh from Rice institute, was being used as their rookie pitcher.

Three Items Consume Budget

WHENEVER the cost of food, rent and clothing consumes all the income of the masses of the people, nothing can prevent a depression. That's solid logic because the people have nothing left to spend for anything else. The bureau of labor statistics says that at the present time these three items, food, clothing and rent, are taking more than two-thirds of the average family's income.

It makes no difference what the amount of the income is, whether it's $20 or $100 a week, the fact remains that the consumer's dollar is worth only 51 cents in a grocery and 55 cents in a clothing store and his total dollar for everything else is worth only 64 cents.

Those who attempt to blame high prices on exports in our efforts to aid starving Europe are barking up the wrong tree. For instance, from May, 1946, to May, 1947, our exports of meat were only 2.2 per cent of total production yet wholesale meat prices increased 83 per cent. The organizations which a year ago were heatedly berating OPA are now in noisy argument over who is to blame for what has happened since.

Uncle Sam, reacting to that proposal to redistribute the Fort Knox gold, might quote from Hamlet: "Oh, my offense is rank, it smells to Bevin."

GOP Presidential Possibilities

MUCH may happen before the Republican presidential convention, but as it looks now, Taft is out in front as most likely candidate, with Dewey a doubtful second. Half a dozen are bunched for third place.

The somewhat guarded endorsement of Governor Dewey for the youth draft military training at the Legion convention brought him forward on a national subject in response to the grumbling heard in Republican ranks that he had not taken forthright stands on big issues of the day. His Washington friends say he will speak out more nationally and internationally, from now on. There is no question of the unanimous support he will get from New York.

Results of Taft's speaking tour will largely tell the tale for the Ohioan, although his candidacy has received stronger private growth within the party than has been advertised. Last spring the swing was to Dewey because of Taft's connection with union reform; now a reaction has set in attributable to the growth of feeling that the bill may not be unpopular.

Both General Eisenhower and Governor Warren are credited with being sincere in their recent renunciations of incipient campaigns. Before their public disavowal, they let friends circulate the word of their lack of interest, and then made it public. Eisenhower does not think he will be an important figure, despite the Kansas City campaign for him, but the presidency of Columbia university is a good place from which to view efforts in his behalf academically. The California delegation discounts current reports of a coalition between Dewey and Warren.

WALTER WINCHELL

Notes of a Bystander

The candidate profiting most from all the Eisenhower talk is Stassen. The more talk for Eisenhower, the harder it becomes for Dewey and Taft to crash through. After Stassen's Washington press conference (in which he suavely posed'd the Taft-Hartley bill and said that further aid to Britain should be stopped if the English socialize the steel industry), one gal reporter wistfully said: "And he used to be such a nice liberal, too." All that Stassen is trying to do is show the GOP biggies that he really belongs to the club and wouldn't be such a bad guy to nominate.

Remember when Bilbo cried poverty and was allowed to stay on the senate payroll at $50,000 per annum (including staffers' expenses) to pay for his operations? Now he bequeaths $100,000. Of your money!

DREW PEARSON

Our No. 1 Enemy—Rats

IT MAY sound hard to believe, but the huge shortage of this year's corn crop could be largely offset if the American people were able to eliminate one factor in their economy—rats.

Most people don't realize it, but one healthy rat eats or spoils around 100 pounds of grain per year. While it's impossible to count the rat population, interior department experts estimate that rats are almost double the human population—probably totaling 250 million in the U. S.

Entirely aside from the disease which rats spread from privy to pantry and the havoc they wreak upon the waterfronts of American seaports, their effect upon the food supply of the United States is almost beyond realization. Between the time a farmer stores his corn in the fall and cleans out his corncrib in the summer, rats may have eaten the difference between profit and loss for the year. In addition, they spoil as much corn as they eat.

If the food destroyed by rats could be shipped overseas, this alone would about save Europe from its current danger of starvation.

At present one government agency, the fish and wildlife service of the interior department, is working on rat eradication. Handicapped by lack of funds, government rat eradicators are able to do little beyond circulating anti-rat propaganda.

Inflation Helps Debtors

THOSE who are in debt are the only ones who can profit from inflation, from cheap money. The United States government, as the greatest debtor in the nation, stands a profit most from the inflation we so greatly fear. The government has promised to pay some 260 billion dollars to those who hold its bonds.

In that promise there is no specification as to the value of the dollars the creditor is to receive. Runaway inflation could make our dollars practically valueless, but they still would be dollars. The best gamble would be to hold on, if the government does not call the bonds, until the value of the dollar comes back.

SIX BILLION A YEAR

Farm Co-ops Do Huge Trade

If volume of trade is any indication, America's farm cooperatives are establishing themselves ever more firmly as a significant force in the realm of agriculture. In the 1945-46 marketing year, farm cooperatives, with more than five million individual farmers participating, did a record six billion dollar business, according to an estimate by the farm credit administration of the department of agriculture.

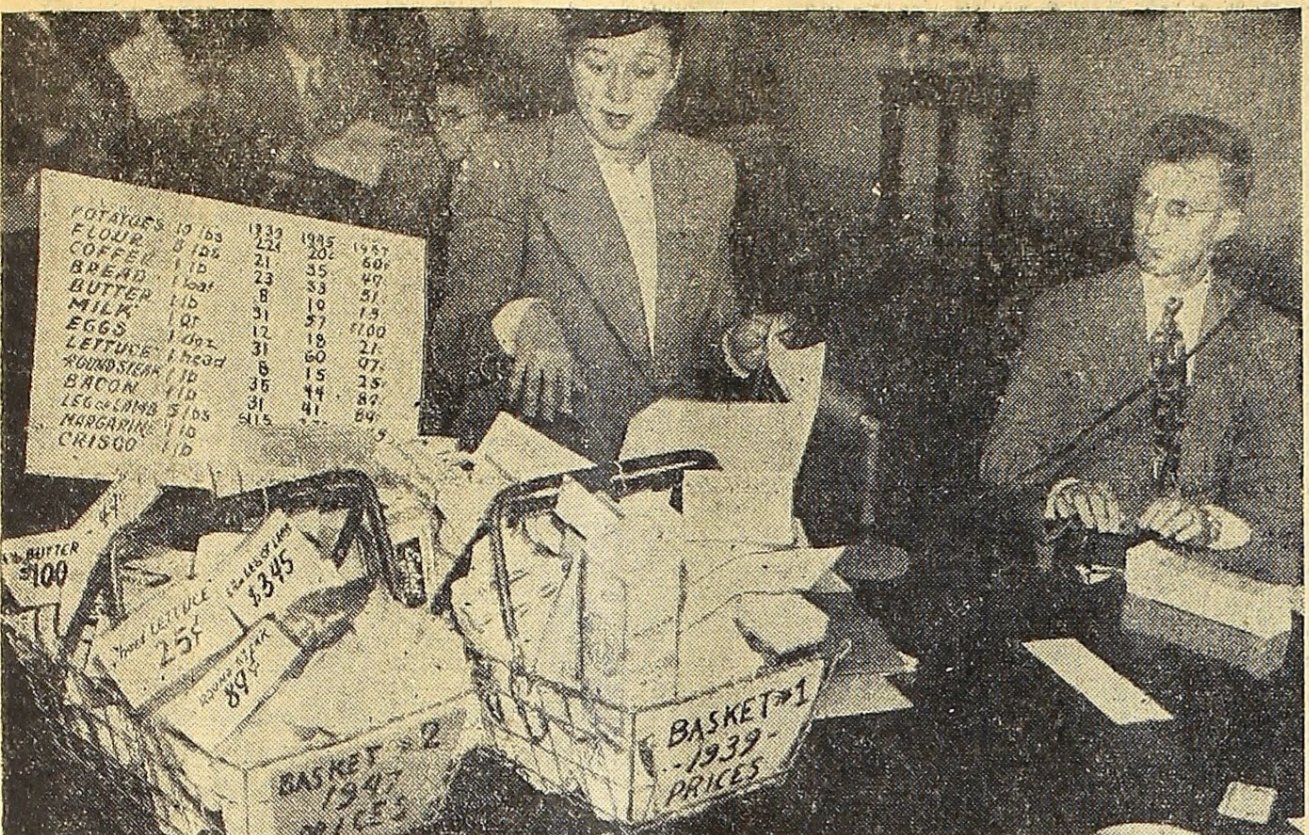

(The FCA report came at a time when a house small business subcommittee was investigating any possible advantages the co-ops might have over other business because of the fact that they are tax-exempt and private enterprises are not.) Leading in dollar volume of trade were some 2,256 grain cooperatives which handled 1.45 billion dollars worth of business during the year covered by the report. Dairy marketing associations previously were the leading organizations in the co-op field.

The record business of all types represents a 400-million-dollar increase above the cooperative volume in the 1944-45 marketing year, FCA reported. It was emphasized, however, that "part of this increase is undoubtedly due to the rise in prices of products farmers sell and of supplies that farmers buy."

In dollar volume, the huge California cooperatives led the field with 652 million dollars, while Minnesota was second with 477 million dollars.

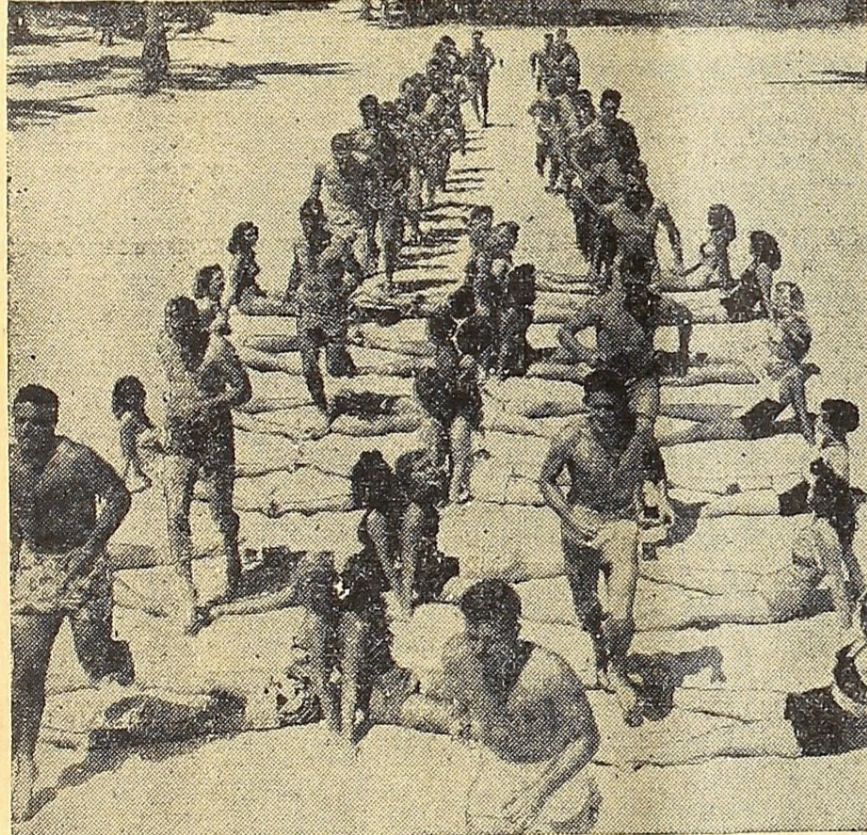

Grains, dry beans and rice marketing cooperatives accounted for 2,256 associations, 636,000 members and 1.49 billion in dollar volume to take first place for the year among commodity groupings.

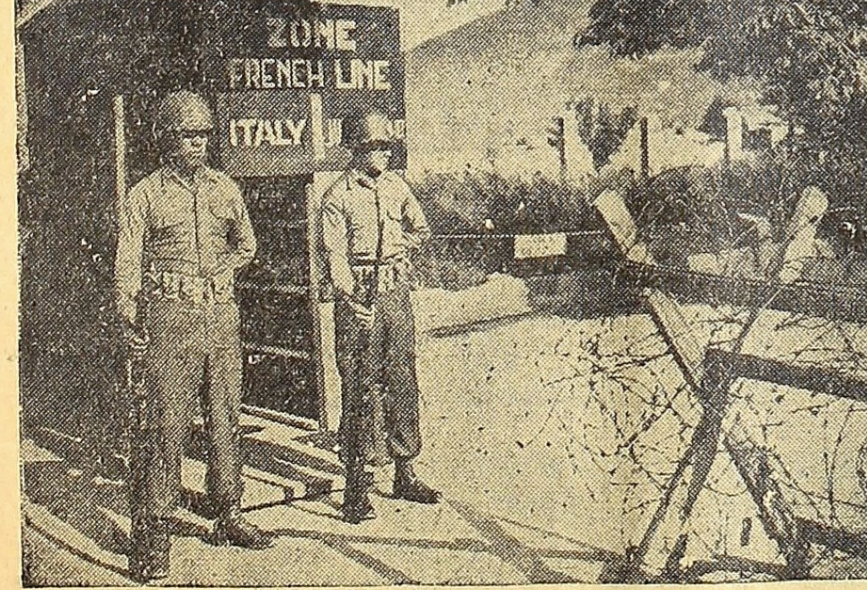

HIGH COST OF LIVING PROBE . . . Mrs. Nessa Feldman of the League of Women Shoppers presented her case against soaring food prices in graphic fashion when she appeared before a joint congressional sub-committee which was holding hearings on the abnormally high cost of living. She demonstrated the difference between prices of the same foods in 1939 and 1947. Numerous other groups also appeared before the committee, headed by Sen. Ralph E. Flanders (Rep., Vt.) to protest against prices.

WIND OF FURY STRIKES SOUTH . . . Rolling in from the Atlantic ocean, the worst hurricane this country had experienced since 1935 slashed destructively across the southern third of Florida, leaving in its wake desolate scenes like this one at West Palm Beach. Veering out across the Gulf of Mexico, the swirling winds then struck savagely at New Orleans and Gulfport and Biloxi, Miss. Thousands in Florida and along the Gulf coast were left homeless. Damages to property and crops soared into millions of dollars.

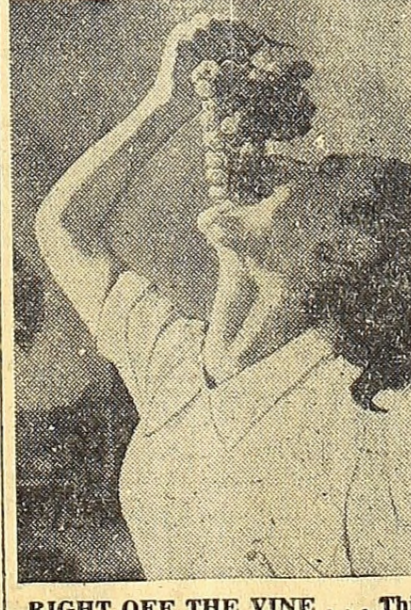

FOOTBALL PRACTICE DE LUXE . . . Tough, cigar-chewing sports writers told Coach Jack Harding that this was a silly way to train the University of Miami football team for such opponents as Texas Christian, South Carolina, Vanderbilt and Alabama. His reply was brutally frank: "This part of training is being conducted especially for newsreel men and news photographers." The hurricane-battered Miami chamber of commerce probably didn't object to a little sunshine and pretty girl publicity either.

G.I.S HOLDING THE BORDER . . . American soldiers of the 88th division are shown on duty at the recently established provisional border between Italy and Yugoslavia pending arrival of Italian and Yugoslav troops. When Marshal Tito's forces did move into position, they forced a number of "incidents" all along the line by attempting to move up into Italian territory.

series over CBS has just got under way. World traveler, author, editor, he has had a distinguished career, made more colorful by the fact that he has also been a gold miner and a cowpuncher.

The smallest role in Warners' "Dark Passage," starring Bogart and Bacall, is played by one of the studio's most popular stars, Dane Clark. He is heard as a voice coming from a radio in Bogart's car. The picture was directed by Delmer Daves, who also directed "Destination Tokyo," which put Clark on the road to stardom; since then, he has appeared in every Daves picture.

Nine-year-old Joan Lazer, "Jessica Roberts" of the CBS "Rosemary," can run through a rehearsal script with no help except on four-syllable words; The Professional school has trained her so well that she is now in 7th grade. Joan entered radio two years ago, was on a children's program regularly.

Another Ginny Simms has made her appearance in radio, but she will not be any competition to the singer. She is Virginia Simms, secretary to Ralph Edwards, formerly secretary to the script-writing Arch Oboler.

"Forever Amber" is slated to make its bow in New York on October 22, nearly three years after publication of the book. After a non-censorable script had finally been written two years of research had to be done. Linda Darnell, Cornel Wilde, Richard Greene and George Sanders head the cast of 100 supporting players, with 4,000 extras completing it.

A veteran conductor of more than 150 Broadway musicals, Al Goodman has now "retired" to radio—the retirement consisting of putting on two big broadcasts every Sunday, the "Family Hour" and the Fred Allen show.

Adele Jergens, who recently has specialized in "other women" parts in Columbia pictures, will have the romantic lead in "The Woman From Tangiers," a mystery melodrama. She's currently seen—as another "other woman," in "Down to Earth," with Rita Hayworth and Larry Parks, and recently completed a similar role in "When a Girl's Beautiful."

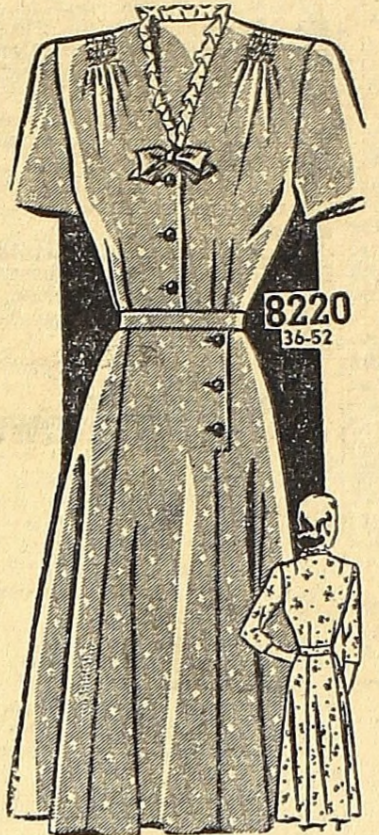

Walter Bunker, producer of "The Baby Snooks Show," was asked to do a Hollywood cut-in for the New York originated "The Second Mrs. Burton." When he arrived at the radio station he found that the guest star who was to be cut in was Congresswoman Helen Gahagan Douglas, who had been the star of a radio show he produced in San Francisco in 1932.

Passers-by felt sorry for the man who sat on the stage door step of a New York CBS playhouse, his head in his hands. But they needn't have; it was Wallace Beery, awaiting his cue for his "We, the People" appearance.

If "Homecoming," Clark Gable's next picture, isn't good, there'll be no excuse. Gladys Cooper plays his mother-in-law, Lana Turner co-stars, John Hodiak and Anne Baxter support them. And Mervyn LeRoy directs.

ODDS AND ENDS—Frank Sinatra is slated to appear at a New York movie house in November, when he finishes in "The Miracle of the Bells"; he'll air "Your Hit Parade" from New York. . . . Travelers from 45 of the 48 states were entertained at a single "Welcome Travelers" show. . . . Olga San Juan has changed the color of her hair three times for her last three pictures, so they're calling her "The Girl With the Convertible Top". . . . "The Pirate" may establish Judy Garland and Gene Kelly as a new acting team; it sets a new high, with songs by Judy and dances by Gene.

Trick Mirrors Produce
Extraordinary Reflections

The magic mirrors, which distort images—making short people tall, thin people fat, etc.—and which are found in amusement parks and penny arcades, are complex optical instruments, says Collier's. By the scientific arrangement of numerous curves on their surfaces, they are made to produce hundreds of odd effects.

The most incredible of such mirrors is one which, when two people stand before it, reflects the one normally right side up, while the other person appears to be cut off at the waist, the upper part of his body being replaced by a second pair of legs extending upward.

Whittemore School Notes
Annual Initiation Day Observed in Whittemore

Anyone driving through Whittemore last Friday morning must have blinked and rubbed his eyes as he passed the high school and viewed the motley array of characters entering the building. A wider variety of humanity could scarcely be imagined; a dainty bride, resplendent in white satin and veil; Popeye the sailor man with pipe and spinach; Daniel Boone with fur cap and gun; Sudan braves in war paint and feathers; blanketed squaws; Brenda Starr's boy friend, Timber Woods; B. O. Plenty, Football Freddie, a cave man and his mate, Baby Dumping, complete with doll and bottle wee among the number.
The fun and hilarity were climaxed in an assembly program during which each freshman was called upon to do some stunt for the entertainment of the other students who made a most enthusiastic and appreciative audience.
Even the new teachers were called upon and the expert rendition of "Feudin' and A Fightin'" by Mrs. Ada Dorey and Mrs. Howard Cole was an operatic treat. They were accompanied at the piano by Miss Betty Warren.
Within fifteen minutes after close of the program the wiewd visitors had completely disappeared, but their short stay will remain a pleasant memory.
In the afternoon the annual Soph. Frosh football game was held. The teams were captained by Douglas Dodder '50 and Jim Freel '51. Phil Mielock was referee. It was a hard fought game, won by the Sophmores with a 25 to 20 score.
Tim Dillon who was carried off the field with a broken ankle and Elgin Provoass, who lost a tooth, were on the casualty list.
Whittemore Sophmores Hosts at Initiation Banquet
The assembly room of the high school was turned into a banquet hall Friday evening when about 80 people including sophmores, freshmen, faculty, school board members and their wives gathered to enjoy the annual initiation banquet.
The tables were placed in the form of a W and were artistically decorated with arrangements of fall flowers. The motif of the evening was carried out in the place cards representing a resident moon and programs in dark blue and yellow, featuring a large star.
After a very delicious roast chicken dinner, prepared by the soph-more girls, under the direction and supervision of Miss Betty Warren of the home economics department, and Mrs. Ida Dorey, and served by eight juniors. Mrs. Dorey introduced Rose Mary Kelley, who made a most gracious and efficient toast-master.

A very cordial welcome was given to the guests of honor by the sophomore president, Ida Benley, and Tom Bery, freshman president responded for the class of '51, pledging its assistance in upholding the ideals and standards of the school.
Mrs. Florence E. Perry, principal, spoke on school spirit, which she said was composed of honest pride, loyalty, appreciation, faith, effort and cooperation. She pointed out various school achievements resulting from the application of these qualities.
Other speakers included Howard Cole, and Student Council president Elsie Dorey. Feature of the evening was a new school song, written by Mrs. Perry and sung by Jo Ann and Ada, accompanied by Mrs. Charles Bellville. After the program a social hour of dancing was enjoyed.

Cleaning Pan

If food should burn in a pan, don't scrape it off with a metal instrument but, instead, fill the pan with water to which a little vinegar has been added, and boil for a few minutes. It will then clean easily in warm sudsy water. If pots and pans are thoroughly cleaned with hot soapy water after each use, they will seldom need hard scrubbing.

THE FICTION CORNER

HARD GUYS BY MILTON BRACKER

THE dead man's foot protruded from the blanket like a discarded boot. A pan of water rested on the sidewalk; they had tried to do something for him, without being able to.

"Reporters," someone in the crowd decided. The newcomers took in the scene in a matter-of-fact way, then swarmed about the lieutenant and the homicide squad man and plied them with questions.

"S'long, Mac, see y' in church," the man at the wheel yelled to the lieutenant as the machine meshed. "Hard guys," the man in the crowd muttered, as the machine turned the corner.

"You said it," his companion agreed, dryly. An hour later, Joe Melsner of the City News Federation, "Old Man" of the borough's police reporters, left the smoky-walled pressroom on the ground floor of the Supreme Court Building to buy an afternoon paper. Johnny Hennessy, of the Globe, the kid of the shack, sat in a corner figuring out his expense account.

Jim Reide, of the Post-Flash, Nason, of the Mail, Cohen, of the Reflector and Lenox, of the Home Press, with a few of the usual pressroom hangers-on, were at the inevitable rummy game.

Opposite, Delany, of the Star, legs stretched majestically across his desk and feet high in the air, sat back reading a fat book with a scarlet cover and yellow edges.

Levito, who was with an up-county paper, fidgeted in a phone booth, waiting to "clean up" the shooting story.

A voice thundered in the corridor. The others looked up; they always did when Melsner spoke. He was pointing to something huddled at the doorway.

"Now what d'ya call this?" the Old Man grunted, stooping over. He picked up the cringing something and deposited it gingerly on his desk, a massive roll-top affair with "Private: Keep Out!" on it in forbidding letters.

"That's a very tiny dog, a bedraggled puppy that looked as if it hadn't eaten in as long as it hadn't bathed. Its eyes were red-rimmed, as if with weeping. But there was a pink spot on the end of the moist black nose. And the eyes themselves sparkled, giving a pert look to the whole tangle bundle.

Hennessy stopped pondering. Delany tossed his book aside, and both ambled over. Reide turned his head from the card table.

"The mutt probably has fleas," he remarked. "Keep it offa my desk." As if understanding, the puppy turned to its critic appealingly.

Melsner laughed gruffly, ignoring the complaint. "It's a cute-lookin' mutt at that, ain't it, kid?"

The Old Man winked to Hennessy. "Send out and we'll give it a feed." One of the ever-present boot-blacks was dispatched across the street. In a minute or two, the pooch was sipping milk and sniffing chopmeat, oblivious to further criticism, or his audience.

"We'll call him Ginger," Hennessy suggested. "Lookit the fire in his eyes, will you?"

Ginger yapped appreciatively, provocatively. That finished the card game. Reide, the most die-hard of the players, threw down his gummy cards, and with the others, gathered around Melsner's desk.

Fondly they watched the grimy little mutt push his snout into the worm-like chopmeat.

Two days later, Ginger was part of the life of the shack. A bootblack had been commissioned to give him a bath, to provide a lined box for a bed, to continue general caretaking.

While the men were out on stories—holdups, suicides, fires, whatnot—Ginger tripped around impatiently, until they came back. Then he greeted them joyously, with quick, short barking yelps.

The pressroom was crowded one sultry afternoon, crowded with sweaty men in shirtsleeves. At the card table, next to Reide, was Al Brown, a thick-necked hardware clerk who spent his idle hours with what he called the "newshounds."

Ginger, temporarily deserted, sniffed in and out of the chair legs, feeling for Reide, who always petted him. The dog rubbed against Brown's trousers by mistake.

"Why, the ——" the startled clerk swore. He reached down, picked up the pup clumsily, and tossed him carelessly to the floor about a yard away.

"Wonder you guys wouldn't keep animals outa here," he growled, drawing a card. "You'd think it was a zoo."

Nobody replied. Hennessy looked up queerly from his typewriter. Ginger, not having sensed the rebuff, returned to the table. Again he brushed Brown's trousers.

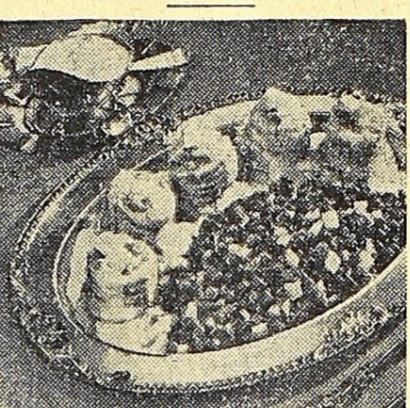

As if anticipating the annoyance, the clerk kicked vigorously. There was a sharp squeal, then Ginger, living up to his name, bit.

Brown roared, grabbed the pooch from his leg, and before anyone could protest, hurled him with crushing force against the wall. There was a crunch, then a whimper.

Every eye in the place turned to the battered little body on the floor. But in a split second, every eye was glued on the centre of the room,

HOUSEHOLD MEMOS... by Lynn Chambers

Economical Cuts Of Meat Are Tasty If Prepared Right

Leftover meats are easily creamed and served in patty shells on a platter generously heaped with vegetables—an economy note for your budget.

Budget-wise homemakers are taking a second look at their budgets this season, and most of them are keeping one eye on their purse strings, while the other eye is glued to prices.

There's hardly such a thing as a budget cut of meat anymore, but naturally there are some that are less expensive than others.

Brown reeled, regained his footing, swung, and missed. Nason and Delany started to intervene, but Melsner, who had taken everything in quietly, stopped them with a move of his hand.

"Let 'em go a while," he said, grimly. The others backed away. Thoroughly aroused, Brown lunged at his lighter rival, who danced aside just fast enough.

As the clerk plowed by, the reporter grabbed him by the scruff of the neck, swung him around, and sent him sprawling away with another punch that cracked against his jaw.

Brown shook his head, spat, then went for Hennessy again. The result was still another crack; he could feel his eye swell as if air had been pumped around it.

Clearly he was no match at boxing for the fire-eyed "newshound" who side-stepped and stung him so deftly. He dropped back, then plunged low like a football player and threw Hennessy to the floor.

Again Nason and Delany leaped forward to interfere, but the Old Man, an intense gleam in his eyes, restrained them.

It looked bad for the reporter. brown pressed his advantage, bore down with his full weight. One of the newspaperman's shoulders was down, the other twisted conspicuously as the panting fellow on top sought to wrench it into the dirt of the floorboards.

Then suddenly one of Hennessy's legs appeared, entwined about the body of his foe, the other leg applied pressure from beneath, and a perfect wrestler's "scissors" hurled the heavier man to the side, almost reversing the positions.

The knotted pair whirled crazily across the floor like a two-headed fiend. They crashed into Melsner's desk, upsetting a bottle of purple ink, which spilled over both of them. Then they tore apart, and each staggered to his feet, a livid mess.

Brown wiped his brow, smearing it grotesquely with sweat, ink, and blood. He lunged again, but for the last time. Hennessy, his whole frame taut for one blow, poised like a matador and as the clerk rushed in, brought his left fist forward and up like a lead mallet.

It caught the hardware clerk on the point of the chin, and he went down for good. From the corner, a faint bark signaled Ginger's approval, and jolted the wide-eyed onlookers to their senses.

Ten minutes later, a few blocks down, Brown was telling his boss how he'd been "mobbed" in a card game brawl with a "half-dozen" reporters.

"I told you to keep away from those fellows," he was told. "They're hard guys."

In the pressroom, Reide held a blue bowl and Delany held Ginger. The others were clustered around, bearing. The puppy's bruised side was bandaged clean around his fat little middle, and tied with a funny bow on top, like a Christmas parcel.

"Will ya look at the runt go for that milk, will ya?" Melsner grinned at Hennessy.

HALLOWEEN DOUGHNUTS

2 teaspoons sugar
1/2 cup warm water
2 packages Red Star Dry Yeast
1 cup milk, scalded
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 cup sugar

4 eggs
1/4 cup sifted flour (approx. 1/2 cup)

3 tablespoons shortening
1/2 cup fat for frying

1. Dissolve 2 teaspoons sugar in warm water. Add 2 packages Red Star Dry Yeast. Let stand 10 minutes. Place scalded milk in a large bowl. Cool to lukewarm. Stir the flour which has been sifted with the salt and fat well. Add eggs and melted and cooled shortening, stirring vigorously. Add remainder of flour stirring well. Knead and place in a greased bowl. Brush top lightly with vegetable oil. Cover and let rise in warm place for 45 minutes. Without punching down turn dough onto lightly floured board and roll in 1/2 inch thickness. Cut dough with 1 inch floured doughnut cutter. Place doughnuts on floured baking sheet. Let rise in deep hot fat (350° F.) on both sides. Drain; cool and roll in sugar. Makes 2 dozen.
