Strong Airforce, Army and Navy, Vets Urge

Large Representation At V. F. W. Rally Held Here Sunday

"Our Airforce, Navy and Army, to be second to none," was the policy urged in a resolution adopted at the district Veterans of Foreign Wars rally held here last Sunday. Representatives from 42 northern Michigan posts of the organization were at the meeting and more than 250 veterans of World War I and II and their wives were in attendance.

The large attendance taxed the facilities of Iosco Post V. F. W. under whose auspices the meeting held, but Post Commander Harry Morley states that it was a very successful rally—interesting and enjoyable for everyone present.

A feature of the rally was the parade led by the massed colors of the posts and the Tawas City High School band.

The business meeting of the district organization was held at the Tawas City High School Auditorium in the afternoon. The principal speaker was Merle Hopper of Charlevoix, department commander of the Veterans of Foreign Wars. Other department officers here were: Harold Whitcomb, department Q. M.; Charles Tribbey, department inspector; James Tribbey, aide-to-commander; and Jerry Kenney, editor of The Michigan Overseas Veteran.

Arthur Greig, past department commander was a guest.

Ladies Auxiliary officers at the rally were: Viola Silver of Detroit, department president; Marie Proctor of Flint, past department president; Augusta White of Saginaw, service president; and Mrs. Ila Irish of Traverse City, district president.

In addition to passing a resolution urging the Federal government to adopt a policy of a strong army, navy and airforce, the veterans of the district passed a resolution favoring the lowering of the age limit on World War I pensions. The resolution to be presented at the State Pow Wow would make the starting age at 55 years old.

The veterans voted to adopt the Sons and Daughters Drum and Bugle Corps of Cheboygan as the official band of the district organization.

The next district rally will be held at Charlevoix.

Her sister, Patricia, as maid of honor, wore a frock of gold taffeta. A deep yoke of nylon net formed a drop shoulder effect with matching mitts and full bustle skirt. She wore a bonnet of gold net trimmed with gold and green ostrich tips. Her flowers were yellow baby mums centered with a green satin bow.

Sportsmens Club Holds Fine Meeting

Reports Made on Game Improvement and Conservation Projects

"A dandy meeting and everyone received some benefit," was the opinion of the 150 sportsmen who attended the Annual Fall Banquet of the Iosco Sportsmen's Club held Friday evening at the Holland Hotel.

Pheasants are protected in Iosco county this year.

The Old Philosopher Says:

By Gavin Maxwell "Ideals"

Someone has said "Ideals are like stars, we shall not succeed in touching them with our hands but like sea-faring men on the desert sea of waters we take them as our guides and following them, we reach destiny."

There is a tendency at the moment toward cynicism and to make light of old age, old virtues which have been the rock foundation upon which has rested the strength of society.

One is reminded when he observes the ebb and flow of these transient points of view of the Gulf of Mexico in a squall. The waves toss and fro to soundings taken a fraction below surface, reveals a calmness of the waters. The froth is always on the surface. The trouble many folks fail to distinguish between what is foam and real substance.

The thinker who said, "In vain we call old notions fudge, and bend our conscience to our dealing; the ten commandments will not budge, and stealing will continue stealing," was right.

When law givers and pompous stutters like Hitler with his noisy Mussolini with his inflated and over-stuffed softies and others, even some at home who could be named, have had their brief day on the center of the stage, the giant rock, a background on which may clearly be seen the ten commandments for battle against the foes' intolerance, vice, greed, selfishness, in the foreground will be seen. In His hands the shield with the age old inscription, "In this sign Conquer" which was the rallying cry of the ancient Crusaders may even now be faintly be seen.

The time prophesied by Burns, "When man to man the world o'er will brohers be for 'a that," may be still a long way off but as sure as night follows day the ideals of the Great Teacher will prevail and a better day will be dawning—even now it streaks the east.

Sheriff Worrying

Sheriff Moran really has something to worry about. With a new roof, a coat of paint, and some other improvements, the county jail is now a pleasant place in which to live. His problem is—Will the Board of Supervisors allow other members of the county office personnel move their offices over from the courthouse to the jail and make him move out.

Correction

In last week's issue of this paper, it was stated that Wilber Township was contributing $1500 for snow removal. We have been advised this is an error due to a misunderstanding. Wilber Township has not set aside any specific sum for this purpose yet. They do however plan to contribute funds for this work.

Since last week's report, Burleigh township advises that $1500 has been set aside for snow removal in that township.

Joe's Heritage

Michalski-Smith

At a nuptial mass in St. Joseph church at 10:00 A. M., Saturday, October 11, Miss Phyllis Michalski, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Michalski of this city, became the bride of John W. Smith, Jr., son of the late Mr. and Mrs. John Smith of Detroit.

The double ring ceremony was performed by Rev. Fr. Neumann before a pretty altar decorated with white and yellow mums.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a ivory satin gown well exemplified the present day revival of victorian fashion with leg-"O-Mutton sleeves and a soft tunic effect flowing into a long graceful train. The bouffant skirt was touched off by a simple silk illusion veil falling beyond the train which was caught up with a double row of lace about the face, and along either side. She carried a crescent bouquet of white roses and white mums. With her gown the bride wore a necklace of three strands of pearls, a gift of the bridegroom.

Miss Mary Boyle, cousin of the bridegroom, was maid of honor. Her gown was light blue brocaded satin, tightly fitted about the bodice with a full gathered skirt and puffed sleeves. With her high round neckline she wore a string of pearls, a gift of the bride. Her headpiece was a cluster of leaves made of satin with a finger tip veil. She carried a Colonial bouquet of pink roses and white mums.

The bridegroom's brother, William was best man. The ushers were Clarence Michalski, brother of the bride and Steven Blust of Owosso, cousin of the bride.

The bride's mother wore a black silk dress with black accessories, and the bridegroom's aunt, Grace Michand, also wore black. Both wore corsages of pink carnations.

Following the ceremony, a breakfast was held at the Barnes Hotel to the immediate family. A three tiered wedding cake, topped by a miniature bride and groom, centered the lace covered table. In the evening a reception was held at 7:30 at the American Legion Hall where a buffet lunch was served to many friends and relatives.

The young couple left later for a trip through Canada and to Niagara Falls. For traveling the bride wore a wool grey suit with black accessories and a corsage of white roses from her wedding bouquet. On their return, they will make their home in Jackson.

Out of town guest were present from Jackson, Detroit, Owosso, Bay City and Durand.

Appropriate $5,300.00 to County Library

Iosco Supervisors Meeting to Continue Into Next Week

(Among the special appropriations being made by the Board of Supervisors, now in session, is $5,300.00 for the County Library fund.)

The board approved the proposition to extend the boundaries of Tawas City to include certain parcels of land in Tawas township which extend to Tawas Bay within Tawas City. The area is within Halletown and the property is serviced by Tawas City water and street facilities.

Fred Brabant and G. A. Prescott III, were named delegates to the State Association of Supervisors convention which will be held in January.

The board appropriated $150.00 for bee inspection in the county.

National Forest Reserve money amounting to $3,719.21 was allocated to the several townships and school districts in which the forest area is located.

One of the problems of the board at this session is the financing of the Van Etan Lake dam. The project, now completed, cost $55,000.00. The work of setting up an assessment district of the interested property holders and arranging to finance the contract until the tax money is received is now occupying the time of the supervisors. It is expected that the assessment district report will go the Finance and Apportionment Committee during the early part of next week.

World Council Will Stand Or Fall on Public Opinion

By BAUKHAGE
News Analyst and Commentator.

WASHINGTON.—Here are some more notes from a reporter's notebook (of course, reporters don't really carry notebooks—they write on whatever is handy—this is a menu) at the United Nations.

Some of the people who are reading this column attended sessions of the United Nations. I think I recognized some of you. It was hard to get in because so many nations felt this session was so important that they brought much larger staffs than ever before. These "extra" workers couldn't sit in the seats reserved for delegates, nor the news people's, so they were given seats ordinarily handed out to the public.

For those of you who stayed home and listened to the radio or read the reports in the paper—well, what impression did you get?

Your impression is highly important, as I'll try to point out later.

There was, and is this, danger, which Trygve Lie, secretary general of the United Nations, pointed out in a speech which stirred all the delegates who heard it (and you, too, I imagine, if you were listening) when he summarized it afterward on the ABC network.

Lie said: . . . "the peoples of the world, and many governments as well, are shocked, frightened and discouraged to find that those same nations which created the United Nations so openly disagree." He called for a rebirth of the "San Francisco spirit," the spirit which we all felt in those hopeful days when the United Nations was born.

A colleague of mine, a most restrained and thoughtful commentator (Pauline Frederick, with considerable experience here and abroad) told me something which is worth repeating. She was interviewing Eleanor Roosevelt at a luncheon at Hyde Park. Whatever you may think of Mrs. Roosevelt's domestic politics you know in what high regard she is held as a member of the American delegation to the United Nations.

My colleague asked her if her heart weren't heavy over the world situation today. I haven't her exact words here, but Mrs. Roosevelt replied in the negative. She said we had expected too much too soon from the United Nations. And then she went on to point out what so many of the delegates have said, namely, that faulty and ineffective as the United Nations may be, it is far better than nothing. How many times have I heard that from even the most cynical of the reporters and observers here!

As the New York Times remarked in a recent editorial, "it cannot be stressed too often that the struggle brought to a head in this session of the general assembly is not against the Soviet Union but FOR the United Nations." The most striking thing, the editorial added, is "the determination of the United Nations (that means the member nations) to survive."

One strange phenomenon which appears to persons not too well acquainted with the ways of such gatherings is the friendly and entirely normal manner in which the delegates to the United Nations who attack each other on the rostrum, consort in the corridors and lounges provided in the two buildings which now temporarily house the executive council and the general assembly, respectively. That's nothing new to people who have covered congress.

Dispensing of News Is Vital to U. N.

The longer I serve, covering these meetings, the more I realize that the most important of all the groups, not excluding the delegates themselves, are those which serve to dispense the news and information concerning the United Nations.

It would be impossible, of course, for enough people to visit the sessions to affect public opinion greatly. But many of the people who do come go back with a message which stirs great interest in the organization in their communities. Proof of this interest was contained in the report of the secretary general, Lie, when he said that information had been sent out and other steps taken in cooperation with a thousand meetings in the past year.

But more important than anything else are the actual reports of press and radio direct from one or the other of the two headquarters, or as a result of the many interviews with members of the permanent secretariat.

Here is what they've done with radio alone:

During the general assembly, the radio division of the department of public information will broadcast for 12 hours a day, while visiting radio commentators, using facilities leased by the United Nations, will cover the debates for listeners in 16 countries.

The French, Spanish, Chinese and Russian sections of the radio division also are preparing to broadcast adaptations of one of the U. N. programs which will be offered in transcription to stations unable to relay the original broadcast.

The two services most widely relayed, because of the high quality of reception, are those in Spanish (to Latin America) and in Chinese. The programs all carry the latest news on work of the assembly and other United Nations bodies, interviews with delegates, background talks, recorded excerpts from speeches in debate and short features.

As the bickering and obstructionism increased at the current session and it became clear that confidence in the United Nations was being undermined, the importance of the work of the agencies distributing information concerning the topics discussed by the general assembly, became more and more evident. The reason was this: It became clear that under the present structure of the United Nations, where a unanimous agreement on the part of the major powers before major steps could be taken, is required, the only force behind the whole idea is the force of public opinion.

As this is being written, the question of the report of a committee on tele-communications is being discussed. The plans envisioned by the men on the United Nations who realize the importance of strengthening the opinion-forming force of the organization, are not too grandiose to be practical but they do involve expenses which make their completion uncertain. Nations of the world are all feeling the pinch of poverty and there is a strong move to cut expenses.

A part of the tele-communications plan was a radio network which would dispense objective world news for all the world. To show you how well the meagre efforts along those lines already have succeeded, I was told by the radio liaison division that even the Russian reporters who, as you know, work for newspapers which are under a strict censorship, which permit no news which doesn't suit their needs, have begun to ask for items issued by the United Nations because they are so fair, so objective that no one could accuse them of containing propaganda for any one nation.

The men on the staff of the United Nations are not all perfect. There are a number of weak sisters. But on the whole, it is surprising to see how the majority of them has been able to develop a world-wide viewpoint, an attitude whose whole policy is based on world understanding and the perpetuation of peace.

Pacific Journey Made on Raft

Dr. Thor Heyerdahl, 32-year-old Norwegian ethnologist and zoologist, had a theory that the first Polynesians were blue-eyed blondes who floated over to their Pacific islands from South America on rafts in about the year 500 A. D.

What he did about proving that theory now is history. He and a party of six men built themselves a primitive raft of bamboo and balsa wood, climbed aboard and set themselves adrift at Callao, Peru.

Exactly 101 days later the scientific group drifted ashore on their raft, the Kon-Tiki, at Raroia reef in the Tuamotu archipelago, center of their target. They had used no

PAST AND PRESENT PRESIDENTS . . . Unusual indeed is a picture of the President of the United States chatting with a predecessor in his office. The occasion here was the naming by President Truman of former President Hoover to the chairmanship of a 12-man commission to study plans for reorganizing the federal government.

NEWS REVIEW

Urge Food Conservation; New Battle Shakes U.N.

DIATETICS:

Waste Less

Lips that sincerely frame the words "food conservation" will not touch such sturdy edibles as meat, poultry and eggs quite so often hereafter.

Charles Luckman, head of President Truman's citizens food committee, opened the widely heralded "waste less" campaign by calling on the American people to cut their consumption of those three items, thereby effecting a conservation of grain for Europe.

At the same time, it was disclosed that stop-gap aid for Europe this winter may run as much as 800 million dollars—220 million more than Mr. Truman had estimated earlier.

The appeal for Americans to cut down on the amount of foods requiring grain feeding was couched in a five-point program which, if followed, will eliminate the traditional race for the last chop on the platter—it won't be there.

- These five diatetic commandments were: 1) Buy cheaper meat cuts; 2) Don't serve too much; 3) Don't overcook meat; 4) Use leftovers; 5) Save wheat in all other possible ways.

In the future was the possibility that a voluntary program of meatless days and a reduction in the size of bread loaves would be put into effect.

NEW FIGHT:

Recalls Yalta

In the U. N. another scarehead of possible failure and collapse of that organization arose as the U. S. and Russia plunged into a new skirmish.

The issue: Which nation shall succeed pro-Russian Poland on the security council. Poland has represented eastern Europe and the Slav bloc for two years. Russia wants the Ukraine, which, although an integral part of the Soviet Union, have a separate U. N. delegation. U. S. contention is that the Ukraine is not a sovereign nation, therefore does not rate a separate status.

In the background of the affair was the Stalin-Roosevelt Yalta agreement which gave the Soviet Union three votes in the United Nations. Russia proper, the Ukraine and White Russia each has one.

How the U.S.S.R. came to get three votes probably happened something like this: Both the Ukraine and White Russia, intensely nationalistic, did not like to lose their identities by being merged with greater Russia. The Communist politburo, therefore, as a sop to their nationalism, granted the two territories a sort of nominal independence.

At Yalta, then, Stalin told Roosevelt that he wanted the Ukraine and White Russia to be represented in the U. N. for "internal reasons." F.D.R., being an old politician and sympathetic with "internal" difficulties, agreed.

Thus, the stage was set for one of the most serious battles yet to develop within the United Nations.

Income Disparities

"Real income" of wage and salary earners continues to drop, while farmers' income still is rising, it has been revealed by a monthly Investors Syndicate survey of purchasing power. "Real income" is the relationship of revenue to living costs.

Wage and salary earners now have only about 96 cents of buying power for each dollar a year ago, while farmers have about $1.09.

At the same time, the biggest cause of the wage earners' problem is the sharp rise in the price of food. The average family now pays more than $1.31 for the same amount of food that a dollar bought a year ago. It also pays $1.06 for each dollar on rent, $1.18 to the 1946 dollar for clothing and $1.23 for miscellaneous expenses.

"This continued divergence between farm and city buying power," the survey pointed out, "indicates that a serious unbalance may threaten the stability of our economy. A close balance is essential."

RECOGNITION:

Playing Safe

Not as a gesture of approval, but rather as a means of keeping informed of internal developments did the United States grant full diplomatic recognition to the Communist-dominated government of Bulgaria.

Robert A. Lovett, U. S. acting secretary of state, said that the action meant neither that this country approved nor condoned "certain recent actions of the Bulgarian government."

Although he did not say so, Lovett obviously referred to Bulgaria's execution of Nikola Petkov, leader of the opposition to the Communists.

Previously, recognition of the Bulgarian government was withheld on the grounds that the pro-Soviet regime had been elected unfairly, but now the U. S. felt that it was more important to have an embassy in the country to protect American interests there.

LITTLE HOPE:

Less Coal

There is little or no hope springing in the collective breast of official Washington that the coal shortage this winter can be averted.

Current estimates place coal production as running several million tons a month behind exports and domestic consumption, principally because of the coal car shortage. This has resulted in winter stockpiles depreciating instead of growing, as they normally would.

It was hoped at first that some relief would come when winter weather stops or curtails road-building and construction, thus permitting diversion of sand and gravel cars to the coal fields. However, a railroad spokesman said the diversion of such cars would do nothing but offset a normal 10 per cent drop in railroad efficiency in winter.

Future Giants of Army

THE flight of a pilotless army plane across the Atlantic gave the first real hint that the air corps is quietly building a nucleus for the use of robot planes in every type of warfare. Officially this nucleus is known as the experimental guided missile group, a specialized unit whose activities are clouded in secrecy. But in time of war, the tiny guided missile group may spring into the young giant of the army.

Located at Eglin Field, Fla., this unit has not only V-2 rockets, but also pilotless planes, under its scope. Its pilots and technicians can sit at the controls of a mother plane and guide a squadron of bombers over a target several miles away. What is more, they actually can see the target—by television.

Chief problem now stumping the guided missile group is how to operate without a mother plane, or without radio navigation beacons in the country to which the plane is flying. The pilotless bomber that flew the Atlantic to England could not have landed in enemy territory. Radio guides in England helped it land. Another difficulty is the electronic brain which now pilots the ships. It is too cumbersome.

All these problems are being mullied over behind locked doors at Eglin Field, which may become one of the most important air bases in the world.

In their spare time, the young scientists at Eglin Field have figured on paper that they could shoot a plane to the moon by packing a booster charge which would explode after it reached the ionosphere (100 to 150 miles up). They haven't yet figured how to bring the rocket back, or any practical reason for wasting millions of the taxpayers' dollars on the experiment.

Memos of a Midnighter

Show folks are worried about the coming season. Slowest in years. Many shows ready for production are being retarded for lack of mazzion. . . . Treasury department figures for the first half of '47 reveal a drop of almost 27 per cent in the earnings of performers not in films. (Stage, night club, vaudeville, et cetera).

Philip Monbatten must be marrying Princess Elizabeth for love. The shape England's in—he couldn't be marrying for her money. . . . At the Cub room they were discussing the British situation. "After all," said a sympathizer, "England has gone through eight lean years." "Sure," was Don Pallini's quickie, "leaving on us!"

It's funny to see the manufacturers lowering the skirt lengths for housewives. They've raised everything else for them! . . . The new style summed up: Long skirts for women; long faces for men.

Town's meanest crook: The punk who thieved the counter coin box for war orphans at Hanson's. . . . Isn't that waiter at the Mayflower restaurant FDR's former butler (four years at Albany's statehouse and Hyde Park)?

It's the Cost of High Living

IT MIGHT very well be that what the country is suffering from most right now is the cost of high living instead of the high cost of living. There is no question but that in maintaining our high standard of living the American people are eating more and better than ever before. But the fact remains that we are fast using up our reserve of savings and approximately 25 per cent of the people this year are spending more than their income.

The federal reserve board has just issued figures showing that for the first half of 1947 savings in the nation amounted to only 6.8 per cent of income, or about 11 billion dollars, as compared to 17 per cent of income in 1945 amounting to 29 billion dollars. With the highest national income in history, about 67 per cent of the farmers were able to save some money and 20 per cent put away more than $1,000 in 1946. But they paid off a lot of mortgages and other debts.

Playing the Food Market

"So hectic were the changes in food prices that bidders followed quotations the way bullsh speculators followed stock market prices in 1929."—News item.

"What's American Barnyard Egg?" we asked our broker today. "Well, you know about eggs; they can drop; in fact, they have to. The tendency of an egg is to come down rather than go up."

"Would you say we could put an egg away and forget it?" we asked. "Hardly," our broker admitted, "even with the best refrigeration."

"How's lamb doing in this market? A friend of mine gave me a tip on it." "Lamb is fast movers," was the reply.

"I noticed that last night while trying to go to sleep," we said.

"How is milk acting?" "We're cowish on milk, not bullish," our broker answered.

"What are hogs doing?"

Tax Reduction Is Likely

A DEMOCRATIC senator back from the Rockies says people are not much interested in tax reduction. His vote for the Truman veto was not protested by his constituents. Other Democrats back this view. In fact, they back it so well as to suggest a concerted plan has been made to talk along this line.

A Republican from the western farm belt found exactly the opposite situation, unsurprisingly, in his nearby state. He says people are alive to the needs of venture capital and tax reduction, and are not overconscientious of the high public debt. Personally, I have found few taxpayers who were not interested in tax reduction.

The Republican reports mean a reduction bill, possibly stronger than last year, will be enacted early in the session before the primary elections, as Republican finance authorities in the house now are advertising.

They may revise income base rates almost entirely, may make no difference in capital gains, although excises may be cut in half (from 20 down to roughly 10 per cent). Any bill undoubtedly will be retroactive until next January 1. It will not get to Mr. Truman's desk until February or March, although Republicans are likely to make it the first order of business.

Incentive Pay in Britain

PAYMENT of incentives to British miners as a means of producing more coal was recommended by Lewis H. Brown, chairman of the board of Johns-Manville corporation, after a two-month trip to Europe, made at request of Gen. Lucius D. Clay, commanding American occupation forces in Germany.

In all probability this proposal would work, but can it be expected that a socialistic government will violate the basic and fundamental principle of socialism that provides for an equality of distribution of everything for everybody, regardless of individual effort or ability?

Cleaning Pan

If food should burn in a pan, don't scrape it off with a metal instrument but, instead, fill the pan with water to which a little vinegar has been added, and boil for a few minutes. It will then clean easily in warm sudsy water. If pots and pans are thoroughly cleaned with hot soapy water after each use, they will seldom need hard scrubbing.

Whittemore School Notes

Professor Rohl Gives Glass Blowing Demonstration at Whittemore.

A large enthusiastic audience watched a most interesting exhibit more High School last Friday night when Professor Erich Rohl of Deion of glass blowing at the Whittemore demonstrated the rapidly disappearing art of glass blowing.

His audience watched with breathless interest the melting and shaping of the glass and viewed with delight the artistic and clever things which he created in front of their eyes.

The evening's entertainment was put on under the auspices of the Freshman class who greatly appreciated Mr. Rohl's kindness in coming. It is an opportunity seldom given to smaller communities and everyone will remember it pleasantly.

A candy sale was held in connection with home made candies furnished by class members. Mrs. Ruth Oates is the class sponsor.

About 40 members of the high school athletic clubs took advantage of the game at Standish to see some of the great names in baseball. They enjoyed the exhibition and came back more enthusiastic Tiger fans than ever.

Clean Milk

Procedures that dairymen should follow for producing clean milk efficiently include wiping the cow's udder with a clean cloth and warm water one minute before the machine is attached; drawing a few streams of milk by hand into a strip cup for inspection of any abnormal condition of the milk; following directions of the manufacturer in attaching and handling the milking machine; removing the teat cups at the end of three to five minutes of milking.

Lark Not a Lark

The meadowlark is not really a lark. It belongs to the species that includes American blackbirds and American orioles.

ADVENTURE LIMITED

By IDA BREED

CAROLYN TAYLOR looked at herself critically in the full length mirror, then gave her reflection a smiling little nod of approval. The smile was justified. Her mirrored image showed a lovely young woman of thirty-two, who looked hardly more than twenty-five—vivid, well dressed, confident. She was more charming, more desirable than the pretty young Carolyn of eleven years before when she finished college.

That was the Carolyn who, all her senior year at college, had to keep reminding herself that this was earth she lived on, and not really heaven, as it seemed, because of Lee. Lee, who was tall and lean, with intent blue eyes, and delightfully unruly hair. Lee, who loved her and treasured the secret of their engagement. Lee, who was so sweet about wanting to present her to the family as a beautiful surprise after Commencement. Not even his adored older brother had been let in on the secret.

Then, with Commencement still three weeks away, it happened. Just after Lee passed the final examinations for his doctor's degree, he was offered an extraordinary chance to do the very research work that he most wanted—a unique chance for "an unmarried man, prepared to devote at least five years to the project."

Carolyn remembered how honorable Lee had been in breaking the news to her. He might have let their engagement continue, he told her; he might have kept on seeing her, deceiving her about their prospects for marriage, putting it off, or promising to marry her at the end of the five years. But he did not consider that the right thing to do. No, it was only the part of a gentleman to tell her that it was best to break off. She was not to feel hurt, there was no other girl, just his career. He put anguish into Carolyn's heart, but managed somehow to impress her with the difficulty of his own part in the scene. Even in the pain and shock of losing him, Carolyn told herself that Lee was the finest person she had ever known.

That belief had never left her. Three years later she married Jefferson Taylor, a big, broad Westerner, done in shades of brown. She sometimes felt a slight disdain for Jeff's substantial size, remembering Lee's aristocratic slenderness, but she repressed the thought. Lots of fun, Jeff was, and with a practical mind for business that made them enough money to enjoy a pleasantly luxurious life. She loved Jeff, of course. But there was a part of herself that she withheld, one section of her heart and mind walled off, that would always belong to Lee.

She never spoke to Jeff of this reservation. Only in secret did Carolyn now and then open the door on that precious might-have-been part of her, and take it out to dream over.

But today, as she looked at her delightful self in the mirror, it was not to dream; it was with a plan for action. She was back in New York after an absence of two years. Nearly every Spring since her marriage, she had made the trip, and had always stopped off for a brief visit in her old college town. This time she was planning to follow the same course, but with what a difference! One of her old school friends had written her last year that Lee Towne had returned to their alma mater to direct the research work there. So Lee was back and Carolyn was going to see him. Accidentally, of course. She had it all planned. There would be a casual drifting about the campus in her flattering new Spring suit, lingering over a table in Crofton House, where everybody dropped in at tea time. Then when Lee appeared—Carolyn had this part rehearsed in her mind—she would give just the right look of pleased surprise, just the right degree of invitation to remember. Lee would see what he had missed all these years. What would happen after they met—that did she want to happen? That Carolyn did not quite know, and she stopped short of trying to decide. This was to be an adventure.

Carolyn had to keep reminding herself that it was earth she lived on, not really heaven.

The adventure proceeded as if acted from a well prepared script. Carolyn chanced into Crofton House at tea time. Two men at a nearby table stared at her with obvious admiration; they were younger faculty members that she did not know.

Then, somehow, without the fanfare of trumpets that would have seemed fitting to her, there was Lee in the doorway. Without glancing around, he went to a table straight ahead. He passed so near to Carolyn that she could have stopped him with a word, but she did not speak it. This was the Lee whom she had treasured in her heart for eleven years! Lee, still tall, but with shoulders stooped; still lean, but with a hollow-chested look. Lee, his blue eyes intent now only with a near-sighted, peering expression; his hair no longer unruly, because there was not enough of it to be, just some wisps "borrowed" from one side to cover a pale bald spot. And it was obvious that for all he saw of the life humming around him, he might have had his eye bent to a microscope as he walked.

YOUTH SERVES . . . The spirit of service prevails as Camp Fire Girls throughout the country extend a helping hand to those in need. Typical example is the Camp Fire Girls camp at Dallas, Tex., where polo cases (shown above) are taught how to swim.

FRIENDS IN NEED AND DEED

Helpful Service Is Watchword Of Camp Fire Girls' Program

WNU Features.

"Youth must be served," say the oldsters. "Youth serves," reply the Camp Fire Girls. By spreading a spirit of friendliness, by being more neighborly, Camp Fire Girls across the country are going forward extending the right hand of friendship to those in need.

In Sherman, Tex., an enviable record of service is being made by Camp Fire Girls, who are making four trips a month to the Veterans' hospital in McKinney, Tex. More than 63 girls have wheeled ambulatory cases to water pageants, picnics, baseball games, dances and camp shows. In this way these young people have accumulated more than 947 service hours. Each girl pays her own transportation in an army bus to and from the hospital. The older girls wheel the patients; others provide musical entertainment, set up croquet, archery, dart boards and other sports equipment. Still other groups prepare picnic lunches and roast weiners over an open fire.

Brighten Invalid's Life Another example of friendly service is illustrated in Portland, Ore., where Camp Fire Girls are active in the "Chin-Uppers," an organization composed of people who, by reason of physical disability, are barred from many activities. The Alphasig Horizon club (Camp Fire's senior group) has adopted one "Chin-Upper" as its own special project. Club members pay her regular visits, bringing gifts and flowers, thus helping to make her tedious hours of invalidism brighter.

Young members of the Reading-Berks county council of Camp Fire Girls, participate in a project aimed to bring cheer to patients in a Reading, Pa., hospital. The girls furnish tray favors which gladden mealtimes at the institution.

Aid Polio Drive During this year's financial campaign of the Silver Bow chapter of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis, in Butte, Mont., Camp Fire Girls in that city did their bit to combat polio by addressing March-of-Dimes folders.

When fire completely destroyed the home of a Battle Creek, Mich., veteran and his wife, a few hours after the birth of their child, the Camp Fire Girls made a house-to-house canvass in the community and collected $121.27 for the homeless family.

During the Christmas season Santa received a helping hand from Tulare, Calif., Camp Fire Girls, who made puppets for the Children's hospital in San Francisco. One hundred puppets were made, enough for each patient in the hospital, and each gift was accompanied by a personal greeting card from the young puppet maker.

Entertainment for shut-ins is on the Camp Fire agenda too, as is shown by a project of a Fargo, N. D., group. The girls visited the Jamestown Crippled Children's Home and put on a program of solos, dancing, readings and songs. The group also presented the patients with 63 baskets of candy and a donation of $5 from the group treasury.

These are all real examples of the third part of the Law of the Camp Fire Girls—"Give Service"—and the results of the overall Camp Fire program which promotes cooperation, understanding and acceptance of responsibility among more than 360,000 girls throughout the country.

Camp Fire's Membership March, which opened in September, will continue until November 30, and the organization invites girls of all races and creeds, between the ages of 7 and 18, to "Be Friendly—Make Friends—Join the Camp Fire Girls!"

Baseball Fan Builds Park for Youngsters

OVERLAND PARK, KANS.—Because he "likes to watch the kids play ball," Christian G. Segner, 62, built a ball field complete with lights, a grandstand seating 700 persons, dressing rooms and, as a crowning touch for youth, a soda pop stand.

Segner, who lives a block away from the stadium, purchased seven acres and cleared them off. Total cost of the whole project, he re-

Man Waits 49 Years For First Pay Earned

WINFIELD, KANS.—Nearly half a century late, Ed Brant finally has received the first nickel he ever earned.

Back in September, 1898, Brant, then a pupil at the Akron, Kans., school, was paid a nickel by the teacher for sweeping out the room. In his excitement over receiving his first pay, Brant dropped the coin and it rolled through a crack in the floor. There it remained for nearly 50 years.

When the old school was torn down recently, the tarnished coin was recovered from the debris.

Financially, Brant figures he is the loser, explaining that the coin will not buy more than a fifth of what it would have back in 1898.

Single Inhabitant Now Lives in Once Rip-Roaring Town

HELENA, MONT.—Once a roaring boom town boasting 10,000 population and the center of a gold field dubbed "the richest acre on earth," Diamond City, Mont., would qualify as a ghost town if it weren't for a solitary house and a single individual.

The individual is E. B. Robison, who for nearly 30 years has lived in the former rip-roaring town a few miles southeast of Helena. For most of the time he has been the only inhabitant.

Robison's log house, once a drug store and later a stage coach office, is the only building remaining. Other buildings that once lined Confederate gulch have been moved away or buried. Roof-trees can be found 30 or 40 feet beneath the earth, washed down by hydraulic operations.

Memories still haunt the silent slopes of the gulch, where young trees have started to heal scars gouged by early prospectors. When Robison first went there in 1918 from Idaho, about 15 of the town's original miner-inhabitants still were conducting small-scale operations.

The community started about the time of the Civil war. Four southern soldiers made a strike—hence the name Confederate gulch. The rush that followed brought the city's population to some 10,000. Seven thousand voted in one election. There were 32 saloons.

Early-day miners declared Confederate gulch yielded $180 to the pan. But that record was forgotten when German, or Montana, bar yielded more than $1,000 per pan.

Robison declares $7,000,000 was removed from Montana bar.

ANNVILLE, PA.—A two-headed calf was born to a Holstein cow owned by Harvey Sweigart. The calf's head broadens in front of the ears to form two distinct faces. Although possessing the normal two ears, the animal has four eyes, two noses and two mouths.

Answer to Puzzle Number 34

Series H-47

WHAT AGE IS THE BEST AGE?

Personality knows no age limits, and a developed personality can go on with undimmed lustre as long as life endures. Indeed, the full fruition of a personality seldom comes much before middle-age or older, because it is a long time in building and each successive day adds a bit of charm.

Women famed for their beauty are seldom the very young. Quite often as not they have passed middle-age. Frequently they will be what the world calls old.

Consider Ninon L'Enclos, perhaps the most beautiful and charming woman of history. She was unheard of until she was fifty, yet at eighty she was still sought after by rich and fashionable gentlemen, who could have taken their pick of the court beauties. It wasn't her youth that gave L'Enclos charm. It was her ageless personality.

But perhaps the crowning achievement of personality in a woman is the career of Elizabeth Browning, wife of the English poet.

Elizabeth was an invalid from childhood, bed-ridden, but illness couldn't quench her spirit nor rob her of her beauty, and the long hours she spent in solitude had enabled her to develop something into her personality that made her irresistibly beautiful.

Then came young Robert Browning, six years her junior, to fall madly in love with her, and she with him. She was bed-ridden, mind you, but she arose from her sick bed and they eloped into the night and were married.

For sixteen years they passed a life of unbelievable happiness together. And when she died, at the age of 56, with her head on her husband's arm, he wrote the next day that her face was the face of a young girl.

Step by step through the quiet years personality develops. And it is never too late to start or to create one out of what you have, out of what you are. That is the fascinating thing.

Since major-league baseball was organized in 1876, no more than 15 of the 7,000 players connected with it have been permanently barred for throwing or attempting to throw a game or for concealing knowledge of such a plot. Among them were four members of the Louisville team in 1877, seven members of the Chicago White Sox in 1919 and two members of the New York Giants in 1924.

Roadmen Watch New California Law

In California a joint legislative fact finding committee, after digging deeply into complex road needs, has announced the final passage of the Collier-Burns Act, which increases the gasoline tax from three to six cents. This provides a total estimated revenue of $175,000,000 annually, or an increase of seventy millions annually over the old three cent tax law.

This is of particular interest to Michigan motorists since the same engineer (Jerry Buckley) who conducted the California road needs survey, now heads the Michigan Good Roads study committee now assembling facts on road and street needs for Michigan. This is to be presented to a special session of the Legislature, that Governor Sigler has promised to call next January.

In most Michigan counties (including Iosco) there is no property tax for roads. It has become the established procedure to require the user of the highways to pay through the gas weight taxes.

Where cars and trucks are compelled to travel poor roads the users pay in the form of decreased gas mileage, increased repair and tire bills. Road officials contend that the additional expense put in the form of an extra gas tax would in most instances cost the equipment operators less (in the long run) than they are now paying and provide good roads to drive over. In Michigan an increase in gas tax would result in quite a sum being collected from out of state cars.
