Bublitz Tells About New Hudson

The new Hudson has been enthusiastically received by the Hudson dealers who have previewed it, reports Karl Bublitz, Hudson dealer for Tawas and vicinity, who returned Friday from Detroit where he attended a closed showing for Hudson dealers.

The public showing and announcement of this entirely new automobile will take place here as soon as all of Hudson's 3,000 distributors and dealers have received their display cars. At that time the full story of the new Hudson will be told.

Mr. Bublitz said that because the new Hudson is so different from any car ever mass-produced, changeover problems were greatly multiplied, but despite this fact only a few weeks elapsed between the time the last 1947 model was built until the first new Hudson rolled off the final assembly line. Because of the unusual and advanced design and construction of the new Hudson an entirely new manufacturing approach was developed. This required the scrapping of many assembly line techniques which have been known in the automobile industry.

Armistice Day

The Old Philosopher Says:

By Gavin Maxwell
"Humor"

The other night a County Bar Association held a meeting. The president of the County Bar introduced several dignitaries from among the group, coming at last to the honored guest—one of their members, who is serving as a member of the State Supreme Court of Michigan.

"Our brother," said the Bar president, "left us sixteen years ago to serve as a member of the Supreme Court of our state. He remains the same congenial gentleman he was, when he was one of us here at home struggling for business. His hat is the same size as when he left us." Before the Supreme Court Justice could acknowledge the introduction, another lawyer was on his feet with this remark, "It is not only the same size hat but it's the same hat."

So long as men in learned groups, and in groups of any character can give and take a joke—laugh at and with another, Democracy is safe.

The complete text of the ordinance will be published in a future issue of the Tawas Herald.

VanEttan Lake Dam Hearing Held Monday

Protests Filed; Supervisors Adjourn Until Today

A number of Van Ettan Lake residents appeared at the hearing held before the Board of Supervisors Monday to file their protests against the Van Ettan Lake Dam special assessment roll.

While the dam was asked for through a petition signed by a large number of the Van Ettan taxpayers and after a number of delegates of interested taxpayers had appeared before the board urging completion of the dam, many of the protesting parties seemed to feel Monday that the burden of its construction should have been spread over the entire township of Oscoda. The dam raises the water in Van Ettan Lake to what was maintained by the petitioners for the dam, a normal and desirable water level.

A number of protests were filed in the afternoon relative to the specific descriptions and assessments and the board adjourned until Friday (today) so that the committee could make equitable adjustments.

Van Ettan Lake dam cost $54,000.00 and this cost was levied against the land which was benefited by raising the waterlevel of the lake. Originally estimated at less than $25,000, increased prices of material and labor boosted the cost to the present figure. Difficulties in purchasing land for the site of the dam, court proceedings for determination of the necessity of the dam, and other matters delayed its construction for a long time, and until construction costs had spiraled upwards. The board reluctantly ordered it built last summer, contending that such construction should not be done at that time, but VanEttan Lake landowners urged its immediate construction.

Political 'Pros' Will Oppose Stassen

Former Minnesota Governor Is Playing Lone Wolf Role

By BAUKHAGE
News Analyst and Commentator.

(This is the third of a series on the men most talked about as candidates for the Republican presidential nomination.)

WASHINGTON.—When the bakers were down in Washington sweating out a grain conservation program for their industry, my friend from Minnesota, Harry W. Zinsmaster, who is what the personal column calls a "frequent visitor" in the capital, gave a little luncheon for his colleagues and some press and radio men.

We had finished eating and were gathered around to listen to the bakers' troubles when suddenly the door opened and 220 pounds of blond, smiling, political potentiality burst upon us.

Our host shouted a happy "Hello, Harold!" then turned and announced: "Gentlemen, the next President of the United States."

I daresay most Minnesota Republicans will say "aye" to that. What the rest of the country says is awaited with interest by the candidate.

I suppose I have had 50 people ask me about Harold Stassen. "Why hasn't Stassen a chance?" they query.

Most observers seem to agree that if he has a chance, it's a pretty slim one to date. The reason is always the same: The professional politicians don't want him.

Not because he's a political "unknown." He could hardly be called that. Sure he took the job of county chairman at the age of 21. He was elected governor of Minnesota three times, could have been senator from that state, had he wanted the job.

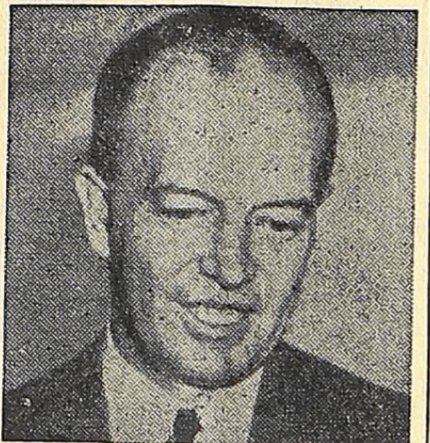

In his case, it's not so much that he's a newcomer as it is the way he came up. That way is characteristic of his whole campaign, and two words describe it: "Lone wolf."

The situation favored Stassen when he forced his way into the gubernatorial race in 1938. Minnesota was in a bad way. There was vandalism and corruption, and the Farmer-Labor party, which had held a stiff grip on the state, was disintegrating through its own weakness and graft. Stassen entered the race against the wishes of the Republican Old Guard, but he eventually forced them to help him to some degree. It was largely his own efforts, however, that elected him.

In other words, "he butted into the governorship," according to old guard critics. Others say he did it merely as a step to the presidency, and that it was part of his overweening ambition—the same thing they say about Governor Dewey of New York. But the old guard fears Stassen's type of ambition more than Dewey's. They fear it because they feel that should Stassen become president, he might build up a strong personal following and thus get a stranglehold on the Republican party.

Conventional candidates don't commit themselves too heavily. His supporters claim that Stassen is a middle-of-the-roader, a little to the left. But it is not too much his liberality to which the politicians object. I doubt if any practical politician expects us to turn back the clock. But in his highly unorthodox campaigning, Stassen has violated two rules.

Does he have a chance?

One, by announcing himself early in the present campaign. Today he is the only official candidate for the presidential nomination.

Two, he has made and he repeats sharp criticism of the Republican program. As Roscoe Drummond of the Christian Science Monitor puts it, "If they pick him to ride the elephant, they'll have to get a new elephant." Certainly, Stassen has hinted this was necessary when he said the Republican program must be more constructive, more dynamic. He doesn't consult with anybody else when he announces how to make it so. That's part of the lone-wolf complex.

He comes up from the soil with a dirt-farmer father. He worked his way through college. He has a good military record as deputy chief of staff to Admiral Halsey. He is younger than Dewey (Stassen is 39), and taller than Taft—a sandy-haired, slow-spoken and deliberate six-footer.

Vandenberg Won't Fight

Early this year, according to credible authority, a secret poll was taken by Republican senators as to their informal, off-the-record preference for a presidential candidate. Sen. Arthur Hendrick Vandenberg of Michigan won it.

In the same month, the senator made a statement in a national magazine in which he said he thought it was easier to run for president than not to run. He explained how difficult it was to deny that one is a candidate, once the story got started. He mentioned the question of the "draft" and expressed an opinion similar to that of Roy Roberts of the Kansas City Star in connection with Gen. Dwight Eisenhower—namely, that there had never been a real "draft" in his day. Vandenberg said that, of course, no man would refuse the nomination if it were handed to him as an accomplished fact.

He concluded his remarks with this statement: "I am not a candidate. I do not expect or wish to be a candidate. I shall seek no convention delegates or approve of others in this behalf. I think my place of service is filling out my tenure in the senate."

Few men's stature has increased as Vandenberg's has as a result of his participation in international affairs. I think it is fair to say that Vandenberg not only made non-partisan foreign policy possible, but that his efforts in carrying out the non-partisan principle made a unified foreign policy itself possible.

A part of Vandenberg's influence in the field of foreign affairs is due to the fact that he has the enthusiasm of a con-

Congress Will Convene; No Russia: Chile, Brazil

TRUMAN CALLS

Congress to Meet

Congress, summoned by President Truman, will convene in special session at noon, November 17, to deal with:

- 1. "The alarming and continuing" high prices at home and, 2. The pressing need for rapid-fire emergency need abroad.

President Truman's summoning of congress a month and a half before it normally would have convened marked a definite climax in U. S. domestic events for 1947. Although doubt existed for a long time as to whether a special session would be called to meet the two problems which have been screaming with urgency all year, it was the only really logical step to take.

Mr. Truman took it decisively. He conferred with his cabinet, and he conferred with key congressional leaders of both parties. He did not ask their advice on a special session; he informed them simply that he was calling one.

"It is urgently necessary," he said, "for the congress to take legislative action designed to put an end to the continued rise in prices . . . and to meet the crisis in Western Europe!"

Concerning prices, the President would not ask for consumer controls, but for authority for allocation of certain materials. European relief, scheduled to be given priority over the price muddle in congressional action, was highlighted by the growing desperation in France and Italy.

THE BREAKS

Chile, Brazil Kiss Russia Good-By

Acting almost simultaneously, two South American nations—Brazil and Chile—curtly announced severance of diplomatic relations with Russia because, as they both implied, they couldn't stand it any longer.

Brazil, which beat Chile to the gun by a few hours in breaking relations, had the less valid reason for its action, on the surface, at least. Stated reason for the move was given as the "extremely outrageous and even calumnious" articles in the Russian press attacking Pres. Enrico Gaspar Dutra and the Brazilian army.

Russia's Literary Gazette had called Dutra an incompetent soldier and a Fascist. It was the same magazine that had compared President Truman with Hitler, to which the U. S. strongly objected but took no further action.

Chile, however, had a more deep-seated grievance. Communist infiltration in the nation's southern coal zone, leading to recent labor difficulties there, undoubtedly spurred the decision to sever relations.

Chilean Pres. Gabriel Gonzalez Videla previously had accused the Communists of planning to cripple Chile's production of copper, ni-

DENIAL:

No Force

James F. Byrnes, said James F. Byrnes somewhat angrily, was and is a patient man. Moreover, he did not advocate in his recently published memoirs, "Frankly Speaking," that force should be used, if necessary, to drive the Russians out of Germany.

The former U. S. secretary of state made that rebuttal after widely printed reviews of his book had stated that he was urging the building of more and bigger atomic bombs and the use of force against the recalcitrant Red army.

He reiterated his belief that the U. S., Great Britain and France should proceed with a general German peace conference, regardless of the Soviet Union's attitude. If the Russians refused to sign the treaty, then the other nations should appeal to the security council of the U. N. to order the Russians out because, Byrnes said, "we will then be facing a situation likely to endanger the peace."

He Ate Nails—and Stuff

When surgeons operated on James S. Payne, inmate of Kansas state prison, to remove a nail from his throat, they discovered that the man was virtually a perambulating junk shop.

Three and a half pounds of metal, including two complete safety razors without blades, was the loot the doctors recovered from Payne's case-hardened stomach. The convict, serving an arson term, gave no reason for his metallic diet.

Square Deal Proves Evasive

BACK in the period of 1909 to 1914 when wheat was 88 cents a bushel and hogs were $7.25 a hundred pounds, farmers thought they were getting a square deal. Today they are getting $2.10 for wheat and $24 for hogs and they're not sure whether they're getting a square deal or not.

The difference is that when wheat was 88 cents a bushel, the things the farmers bought cost far less and this period was fixed as a base for the parity formula, which is the ratio of prices received by the farmers to prices paid by the farmers.

The farm bureau likes this parity formula so well today that it is against changing it much until after the Steagall law expires in 1948. The joint agricultural committee of house and senate has been holding hearings to determine this parity formula and other long range farm programs.

And He Still Can Grin

What Washington needs is a director of photographs. That group photo of the President and his aides grinning from ear to ear as they launched the great drive to aid starving peoples still is puzzling the public.

The White House luncheon menu for eggless and chickenless Thursday is announced as:

Corn soup. Peppers stuffed with rice and mushrooms. Lima beans. Glazed Carrots. Baked apple.

Well, this will cost Harry Truman the anti-stuffed pepper vote, and it is a tremendous one. The number of voters who hate stuffed peppers is terrific. And the anti-glazed carrot element is not to be sneezed at.

England is talking of a minister of sports in the cabinet. We would hate to be an athlete in midair in the pole vault at a time when the government was changing its policy frequently.

WESTBROOK PEGLER

Underworld Extends Its Sway

JOHN EDGAR HOOVER, director of the FBI, joined Governor Warren and Senator Downey of California in their discovery of a new underworld in the amusement industry.

On this special phase of the new problem of criminality in the entertainment trades, Hoover delivered some remarks to a class of 500 of his G-men at the department of justice in Washington.

"Glaring headlines announced the assassination of Bugsy Siegel, but circumstances surrounding his career in crime tell the story better than words," said he. "Here was an individual whose life was a constant challenge to common decency. Yet he and his criminal scum were lionized and their favors sought after in so-called respectable circles."

Now let us consider a little night-side paper published in Hollywood called "Hollywood Nite Life. Movies. Radio. Nite clubs. Sports. Music." The masthead names Jimmy Tarantino as the "editor and publisher." Tarantino is a swipe and hustler who used to hang around Jacobs' Beach, a stretch near Madison Square Garden in New York City where the fighters, managers and racketeers gather. He has a cheap police record in Newark, N. J. One appropriate selection from Tarantino's essays is entitled "A Week-end at the Flamingo."

This is ecstatic publicity about Bugsy's booby trap at Las Vegas, Nev., and personal admiration of "Mr. Benjamin Siegel, a handsomely groomed, tall, handsome, tanned and smiling gent," the man whom Hoover called "a challenge to human decency."

Silhouettes of New York

The new long dress fad forces women who have furs to have them lengthened. Furriers are charging $100 per inch! . . . There are more psychiatrists per capita in Beverly Hills and H'wood than anywhere else in the land.

Don't quote us, but the kids in "Oklahoma" are electing deputies to ask the Theater guild for more money. Their pay is low, living fees are high and that hit never has had a losing week. . . . The Barbison model agency tops the list of cover girls so far this year—78 national mag covers.

The Merry-Go-Round

INDIAN ambassador Asaf Ali had a secret talk with President Truman asking aid to India. The Hindu ambassador pointed out that India has five billion dollars frozen in London which the British won't let them cash. . . . Sir Stafford Cripps, Britain's new economic czar, says England will need more help under the Marshall plan soon. However, treasury department figures show England's gold reserves now are close to two billion dollars, more than twice what they were before the war in 1939.

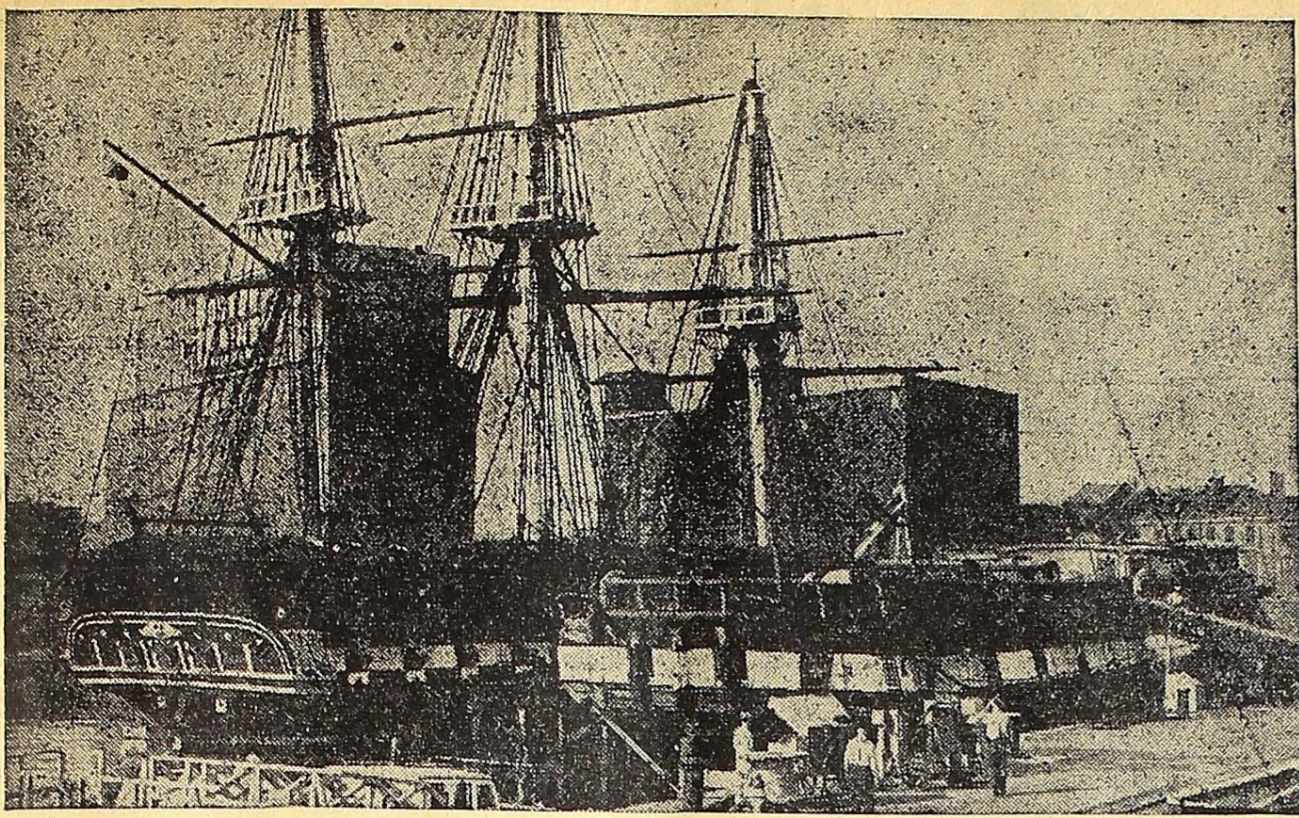

Washington newsmen covering the state department are told almost daily that a special session of congress is absolutely necessary because of the world crisis. But when they go a few blocks away to the White House, newsmen are told just as regularly that there is no need for a special session.

The army would be happier if some brass hats kept their mouths shut. Maj. Gen. Lunsford E. Oliver, in charge of a U. S. mission to Turkey, recently made this absurd statement before a Chicago audience: "The massacre of the Armenians after World War I really was started by his command. . . . The atomic energy commission soon will issue strict blanket regulations to prevent export of machinery which could be used in producing atom bombs."

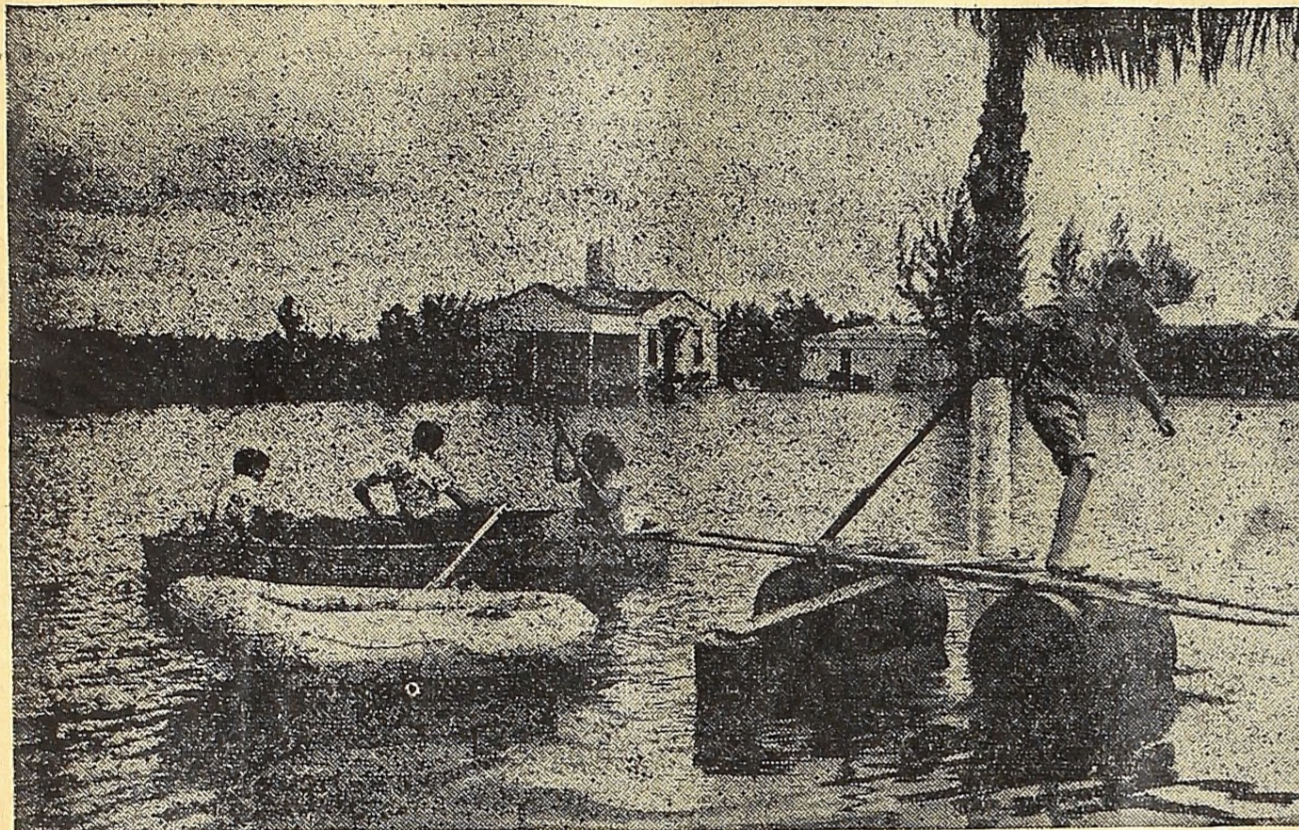

WRIGHT PATTERSON

Safeguard Our War Plants

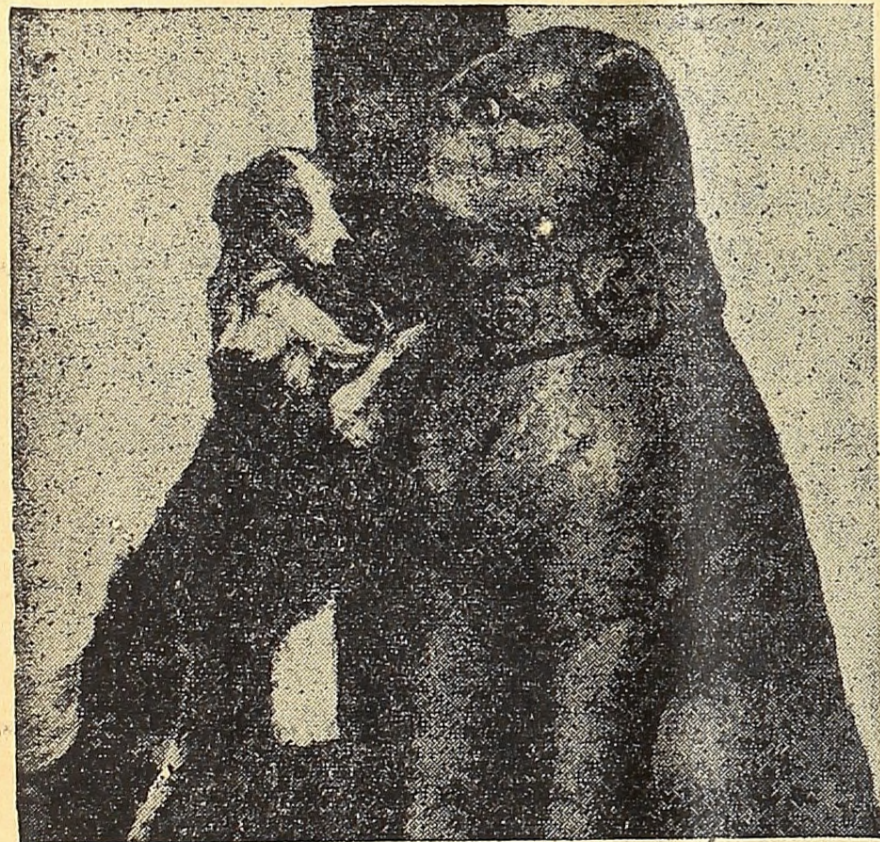

WHEN we entered the war in December of 1941 it was not only trained manpower that we needed badly. We also needed the equipment with which an army and navy could fight. In addition to commandeering every industrial plant that could produce war equipment, the government spent many billions in the erection and tooling of new plants. Many of those plants are being sold at the price of junk or less. Others are being allowed to rot and rust away. If there again comes a time when we need soldiers and sailors, as we may, we will need equipment for them before the armed forces can be of value.

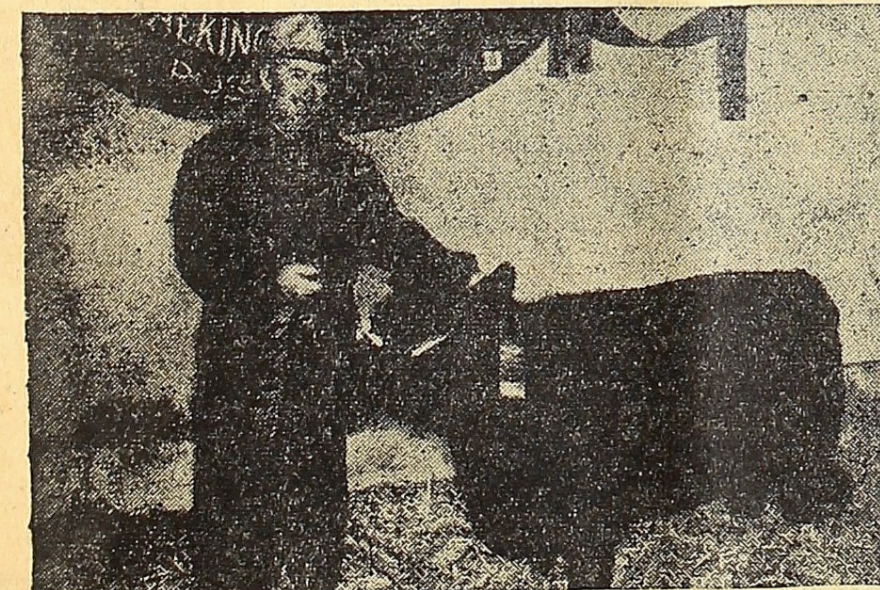

CAMPAGNING FOR RESTORATION . . . The once-proud U. S. S. Constellation (foreground) which rode the high seas in defense of her country now lies a forgotten hulk at Charlestown, Mass. Almost forgotten, that is. A fight to restore the ship to its original condition has been begun by the Navy Club of the U. S. A., Rockford, Ill., the organization which made possible the refitting years ago of the U. S. S. Constitution (rear). The Constellation is the oldest navy ship afloat, and there is a chance now that she once again may raise her masts to the sky as she did long ago.

FLOOD EVACUATION IN MIAMI . . . Floods that came in the wake of the latest hurricane to scourge Florida forced the evacuation of these persons from their homes at Miami. A life raft, rowboat and a makeshift raft were used to get them to higher ground. This was part of the disastrous aftermath of the second vicious hurricane to grind across Florida within a month. Crop damage throughout the state was in the millions of dollars.

MY LOVE HAS A HEART OF STONE . . . Unrequited love shouldn't happen to a dog—but it does. "Bing," for instance, collie owned by Jerry Yorlo of New York, makes daily visits to a three and one-half foot statue of a retriever which was placed at the entrance of a statutory studio in the neighborhood recently. "Bing" apparently carries a flaming torch for his stony light of love, but doesn't even get a tail wag in return.

WHITEMAN AND BLACK BULL . . . The king of jazz, Paul Whiteman, does other things these days besides shaking a stick at his orchestra. As owner of the Walking Horse farm in New Jersey, he is also a breeder of fine cattle. Whiteman is pictured here with his blue ribbon Aberdeen Angus winner, "Erica III of Walking Horse farm," at the recent New Jersey association's Aberdeen Angus show in Trenton where he showed the prize animal.

BOO . . . This is what happens to little girls with pigtails when they read ghost stories which were never meant for their tender years. Well, anyway, it happened to Margaret O'Brien when she became too daring in her choice of reading matter.

BOOM CONTINUES . . . Peggy Frebaut, secretary of the national executive committee of the "Draft Eisenhower for President" league, points to new slogan, "I Like Ike," which will appear on 20,000 lapel buttons across the nation.

Our Home-Town Stores

ALTHOUGH I own no part of any one of them I have, for a number of reasons, a direct, personal and definite interest in the stores of my town. Among those reasons are:

- 1—Convenience. The stores of my town bring to me, for my inspection and selection, the products of the farms and factories of the nation and the world.
- 2—Insurance. Personal acquaintance with the merchants and the competitive rivalry between the numerous stores of my town provide insurance against discourteous treatment and excessive charges for merchandise.
- 3—The Market Place. The stores of my town provide a market place for the people of my community. They are the foundation on which the community is built. Without them the community would not exist.
- 4—Values. The stores of my town give value to my home. It is the market place they provide that establishes land and property values in my town and in the surrounding farm area. It is on the basis of those values that the town and the community function as a governmental, social and cultural unit.
- 5—Culture. It is the values created by the stores of my town in providing a market place that make our schools, our churches, our library and our town government possible.
- 6—Employment. The stores of my town provide employment for quite a number of our home-town people.

These half dozen reasons and many others account for my personal and direct interest in the stores of my town. I cannot imagine anyone who appreciates his home town and all the advantages it offers for pleasant living, disagreeing with any one of these reasons. All must realize the home-town stores provide the market place on which the maintenance of the home-town depends.

The stores of my town provide my most direct connection with American business that now is seriously threatened by an un-American ideology. Because of what these stores mean to my town and community; because of what they give to me, as representatives of business, whatever an individual can do that will assist in preserving our American free, competitive enterprise system, of which the stores of my town are a part.

San Francisco papers used scare headlines to announce introduction of non-breakable glass as a protective screen for patrons at its baseball park. The fans, especially the women, dodge when they see a foul ball headed in their direction, then look foolish when it hits the glass and stops dead. It is the only ball field in the nation so equipped, and San Francisco again is proud of being first.

Scrapping the War Plants

When we entered the war in December of 1941, it was not only trained manpower we needed badly. We also needed the equipment with which an army and navy could fight. In addition to commandeering every industrial plant that could produce war equipment, the government spent many billions in the erection and tooling of new plants. Many of those plants are being sold at the price of junk or less. Others are being allowed to rot and rust away. If there again comes a time when we need soldiers and sailors, as we may, we will need equipment for them before the manpower of the armed forces can be of value. If we must sell the plants, it could be on condition that they be operated on peacetime products, or we could protect them from being destroyed by rot and rust. Congress is considering the adoption of universal military training as a means of providing army and navy personnel, but no consideration is being given to providing the ships, planes, tanks, guns and the thousand and one items of equipment, without which personnel is of no value.

When the Mormons moved into the Great Salt Lake basin, sagebrush was the only crop produced in what is now the state of Utah. Today, 100 years later, what was then but a desert contributes materially to the feeding of a hungry world.

Those opposed to capital punishment probably will approve of the latest move of the Russian dictatorship. They have quit killing political prisoners, and now sentence them to life in a work camp, so they may work for those of whom they do not approve.

Chivalry Complex By GARRET SMITH

BY NOON forlorn hoppers in the employment manager's ante-room at Cromby & Co. boiled down to Jimmy Wheeler and the "Plucked Chicken."

As for the Plucked Chicken, Jimmy considered the Old Run-around formula a sure thing. He hadn't given her a second look for fear he'd feel sorry for her.

The assistant manager gave Jimmy a blank to fill and turned to the Plucked Chicken. Elizabeth Bond was her name actually.

"—And let me know if anything turns up," Jimmy finished. He wondered how many such days his hundred-buck reserve would stand, as he followed Miss Bond's wake.

The girl was waiting for the elevator, a fragile arm braced against the wall. The dim light here softened the cheek-bone, hid worry-lines and ash-grey bleakness.

"Pardon me. Aren't you Miss Bond—in Cromby's just now? They said you might do a letter or so for me. I'm James Wheeler. Publicity man. With the Fletcher bureau once. Cromby had another good typist on their list but couldn't reach her. Leaves me in a jam."

"Yes. I'm free this afternoon." "Got a date then," Jimmy improvised. "Have to dictate at lunch. Mind going to Mike's place around the corner?"

"You start her easy, Mr. Wheeler. Leave it to me." Jimmy returned to their table as Mike brought cups of golden bouillon.

"I've a feeling anything here'll be good," she agreed and set down her empty cup. "I'm a pig! Just couldn't help it," she added justifyingly with a blush.

"Thank you. I'm clumsy!" Her face lit and Jimmy looked into deep violet eyes. Then face and eyes went dead again. She'd keel over on the street, he worried.

"I've a feeling anything here'll be good," she agreed and set down her empty cup. "I'm a pig! Just couldn't help it," she added justifyingly with a blush.

"That was while they sipped demitasses." Jimmy's phone was ringing as he stumbled into his apartment. "Mr. Wheeler?" a remote voice said. "This is Mr. A. B. Fletcher's secretary. Could you see Mr. Fletcher here tomorrow morning? He didn't tell me to call you but he spoke about you today. Said he'd hoped you'd be over your grouch and back on your old job before this. I'm just tipping you off."

"Aren't bumps fun to look back on!" she laughed. She could laugh at bumps only one meal and a couple of bucks away! She'd walk out of his life and begin starving again. Jimmy almightily didn't want her to walk out of his life. How could he help it? The query fuddled his bogus letters to theoretical publicity prospects as Betty pot-hooked them like a streak on paper Mike furnished. She had to tinker his sentences.

Serve Fruit Desserts for Meal Contrasts (See recipes below.)

Food studies show that people do not get as many fruits in winter as in summer, and frequently this is thought to be a result of their lack of availability; but a good percentage of fruits available in their fresh form are canned, and thus made available for use.

POETS AND THEIR GARLIC

Homer had a sincere respect for garlic, to which he attributed the estimable property of "dispelling enchantments." With us, the Roman poet and bishop, Sidonius Apollinaris, born at Lyon in 403 and known also as Caius Sullius, held garlic in such contempt that he wrote: "Happy the nose that is never exposed to the poisonous exhalations of this plant."

Star Dust STAGE SCREEN RADIO

By INEZ GERHARD
BEA WAIN and her husband, Andre Baruch, were rehearsing a musical show at CBS, and Bea, feeling jovial, was finding it hard to get the right poignancy into "These Foolish Things." But when the program went on the air she did the song with plenty of proper emotion. As she reached the mike to sing, she spied a photo

BEA WAIN

Andre had clipped to her sheet music on the music stand—a candid camera shot of himself taken before their marriage, in which he was beaming on rival songstress Dinah Shore.

Bob Hope is associated with football as well as baseball; he is sponsor of the "Bob Hope Junior Dons," a team composed of Junior High School boys. It plays in a league of similar teams, sponsored by Jimmie Durante, Mickey Rooney and Frank Sinatra. The league is backed up by the Los Angeles Police Department as a juvenile delinquency curb.

That current best seller, "The Moneyman," will re-unite Ida Lupino and Louis Hayward when it's screened by Eagle Lion, the first time they've worked together since "Ladies in Retirement." Three hundred thousand dollars was the purchase price for this adventure romance laid in the 15th century, at the court of Charles VII of France. Miss Lupino plays Agnes Sorel and Valerie Maret.

A Brooklyn friend took Monty Woolley to a theater whose marquee sign read "Carole Lombard and Monty Woolley in 'Nothing Sacred.'" It was his first film; he played a German doctor who spoke no English, merely walked on stage, bowed and left.

Vaughn Monroe, heard on CBS, wants to keep his four vocalists, the Moon Maids, happy—but unmarried; thinks romance would break up the perfect quartet. But three of them long for marriage and children; the fourth wants a ballet career.

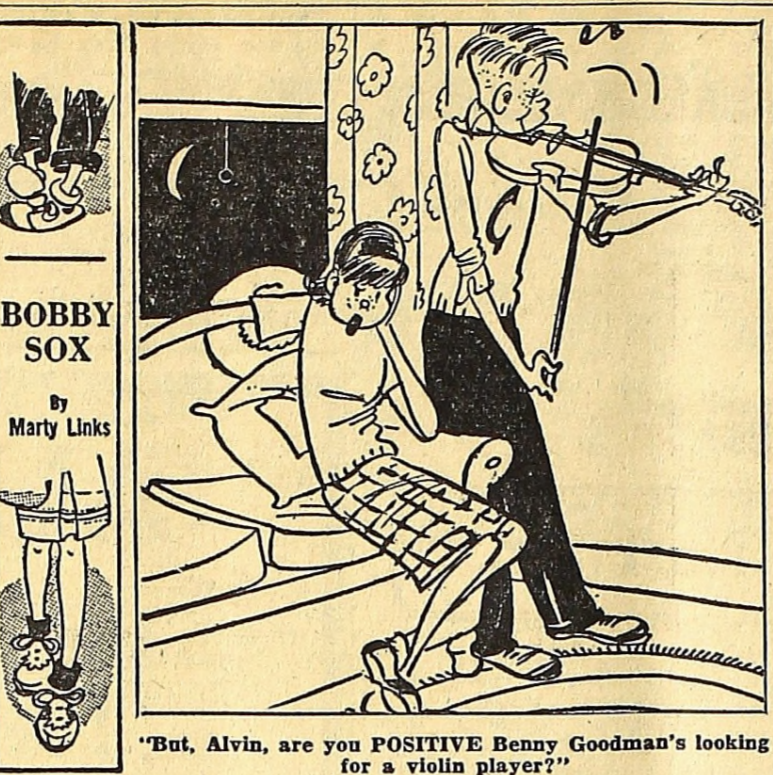

Bing Crosby made his first "behind studio walls" picture 14 years ago. It was "Going Hollywood," with Marion Davies, one of his first films—and who'd have thought, from those early performances, that he'd develop as he has?

You may recognize the small stone bust of a pretty girl that stands on a table in "The Bishop's Wife"; Henry Koster has used it in at least one scene of every picture he's directed. When Peggy Moran married him and gave up her screen career he promised her that she would appear in every picture he directed—and that's how he has kept his promise.

Five of the best known juvenile performers in radio volunteered to provide the background voices of children in the "Screen Guild Players" presentation of "The Bells of St. Mary's," because Director Bill Lawrence gave them their first big radio breaks. Ann Whitfield is on the Phil Harris-Alice Faye show; Dawn Bender is featured on "One Man's Family"; Johnnie McGovern is on the "Red Ryder" series; Henry Blair is "Ricky" on the Ozzie Nelson show, and Jerry Farber is a regular on several programs.

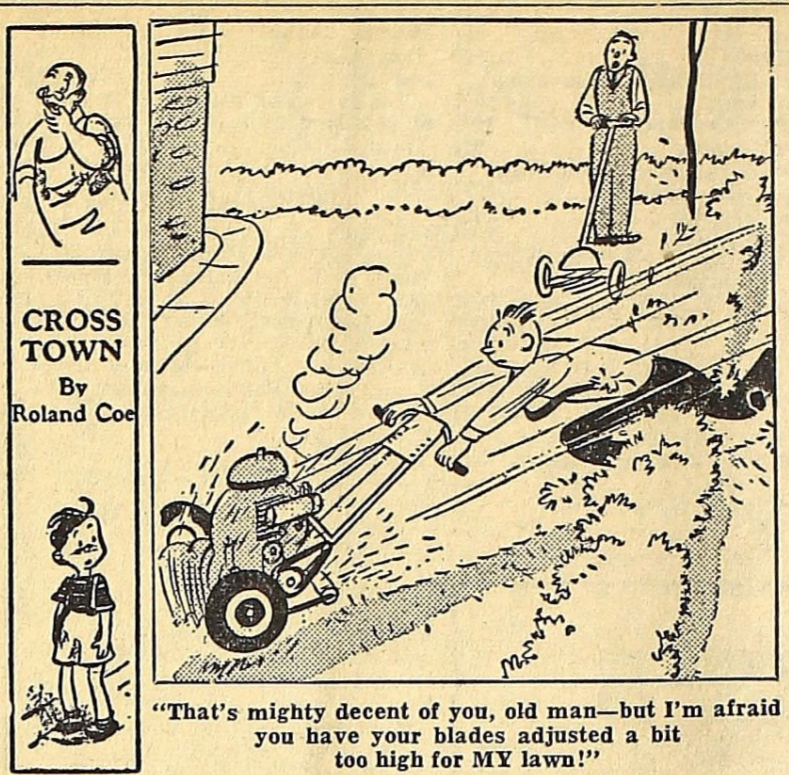

Charles Middleton, who has played Abraham Lincoln five times on the screen, has been engaged to portray him once more for one of the dream sequences in "Christopher Blake." His characterization is famous on both stage and screen.

ODDS AND ENDS—In keeping with the title of their radio show, ten members of the "Big Sister" cast have adopted a little Belgian war orphan, under the auspices of the Foster Parents Plan for War Children, Inc. . . . People who tell Cathy Lewis she ought to be in pictures don't know that she was in more than a dozen films, including five "Dr. Kildare" pictures. . . . The mail hit a new high for Ralph Edwards recently when one week brought 17,000 requests for tickets for "Truth or Consequences." . . . Robert Warwick has an important role in Warner Bros. "The Adventures of Don Juan."

Your kidneys are constantly filtering waste matter from the blood stream. But kidneys sometimes lag in their work—do not act as Nature intended—fail to remove impurities that, if retained, may poison the system and upset the whole body machinery.

Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder are sometimes burning, scanty or too frequent urination.
