Savings Drives May Be Renewed

There is a lot of loose money floating around the country—so much in fact that presidents of all eleven district federal home loan banks, and other banks, are behind a move to renew savings drives on government bonds to help siphon off the excess income which otherwise might force consumers' prices still higher.

This fact doesn't exactly agree with some reports that thousands of people are dipping into savings in order to make ends meet to pay the grocery, clothing and rent bills. As a matter of fact, the President's economic report said that expenditures had caught up with income and many were using savings or credit to keep the home fires burning.

But the annual report of the home loan bank board just released says savings held in the 6,100 savings and loan associations increased in 1947 by $1,152,000,000, or 13.5 per cent, and brings total savings accounts to $9,700,000,000 as of last December 31.

The report shows savings are dropping, it is true, as compared to peak years of 1944 and 1945. The report indicates that in 1947 the American people saved 9 billion dollars as compared to 22.2 billion in 1944 and 19.7 billion in 1945. There was nothing to spend money for, though, in those years.

Other savings media also showed substantial increases during the past year. On the basis of figures covering life insurance companies, mutual savings banks, commercial banks, postal savings and savings bonds, total savings are estimated at $155,700,000,000.

Germans Hoard Own Food

More than a million Bavarians in Germany went on strike recently, not against the American army but against their own government. They struck to get their own government to do something about German farmers, who wouldn't give up the food they are hoarding. . . . At the same time our President asked American taxpayers for another 15 million dollars "to send more food to the Germans." It costs Americans 24 million dollars to feed them—24 million dollars every month. Let 'em eat arsenic!

Army Supplants Navy in Favor

FOR 13 long years under Franklin Roosevelt the navy had the inner track at the White House. Now, under ex-Capt. Harry Truman, former commander of Battery D, 129th field artillery, the situation is reversed.

Political reports from various parts of the country indicate that Mr. Truman's loyalty to his personal doctor, Brig. Gen. Wallace Graham, will cost him perhaps a million votes.

The public seems to resent the fact that Graham, sitting at the right hand of the President, speculated in the grain market, even more than they resent the speculation of Ed Pauley, who wasn't so close to the President. Nevertheless, Mr. Truman remains loyal to the army doctor.

Meanwhile, almost unnoticed by the public is the fact that Rear Adm. James Foskett has left the White House for "sea duty." Admiral Foskett is the President's former naval aide. Actually the reason for his exit is not necessity for going to sea, but the fact that he had a row with the army—the army in this case represented by Maj. Gen. Harry Vaughan.

General Vaughan, a former manufacturer's representative in St. Louis, who used to train with Mr. Truman in the Missouri national guard, has got the President into all sorts of personal pickles. But despite that fact, he continues to be one of the most influential White House hangers-on.

Skulduggery in the Courts

AFTER Jimmy Petrillo was acquitted in federal court in Chicago, Congressman Fred A. Hartley, co-author of the Taft-Hartley labor emancipation law, said he wasn't any too sure that the department of justice was leveling in this case.

I have been thinking the same thing about other union cases and some other department of justice jobs. They are getting very careless. You know what leveling means, of course. It is a poetic term from the prize fighting racket. To level is to put forth your best efforts, as the prize fight commissioners say.

Lots of times I have thought that the department of justice didn't put forth its best efforts in cases involving union gorillas or moving picture people or ideological refugees. There is a fact about the duty of the federal judges few of us know and most of those few seldom remember. A federal judge is supposed to sniff out skulduggery done in his presence and to denounce any obvious crookedness or negligence on the part of the district attorney whether for benefit of the government or of the defendant.

I dare say there have been cases where federal judges had scolded district attorneys for bearing down unfairly on defendants. But I challenge you to cite any case where a judge got disgusted and bawled out a prosecutor for willful and obvious neglect of the people's interest and failure to do his best. I say it is high time one of them did.

Plight of the Groceryman

"NO ONE offers the merchant, especially the food merchant, anything but abuse," said the groceryman. "We are condemned for high prices; accused of making exorbitant profits, despite the fact that more than 50 per cent of those who engage in merchandising eventually go broke. The merchant is faced with the payment of government subsidies; government encouragement of higher wages; increased taxes; decreased purchasing value of the dollar; higher transportation costs, and other ever increasing expense items. Yet the retailer is expected to absorb this increased cost and still sell merchandise at depression prices."

Twice-Told White House Tale Retold

John Adams Hung Clothes On Limb, Swam in Potomac

By BAUKHAGE
News Analyst and Commentator.

WASHINGTON.—At a recent press and radio conference, one of the reporters ribbed the President about the balcony he was building on the White House, which the Washington fine arts commission objects to as destroying the architectural beauty of the building.

Someone suggested he might conduct a "back porch" political campaign from it. Mr. Truman came right back with the remark that it was a front porch. That, in a sense, is correct, for the southern facade of the White House originally was intended as the front of the building.

Of late, the President has been given to historical anecdotes—he's was fond of slipping down to its banks for a swim au naturel in the early morning hours.

There was, in those days, said Mr. Truman, a certain female journalist who had been unable to get an interview with the President. So she slipped down to the canal bank at dawn, waited until he was immersed, then sat on his clothes and stayed there until he answered her questions, decently draped in the waters.

I repeated the story on the air as Mr. Truman told it, and in the next day's mail received a letter from Mr. Daniel J. Kelly Jr., of South Bend, Ind., who is a collector of early historical newspapers.

Wrote Mr. Kelly: "I enjoyed your reference in a recent broadcast to the newspaper woman who sat on President Adams' clothes until he agreed to give her an interview.

"The President Adams was John Quincy Adams, and the woman newspaper reporter was Anne Royall. However, the story does not conform to the facts, and you might mention this to President Truman the next time the story is brought up.

"John Quincy Adams was an ardent and accomplished swimmer and he enjoyed a daily plunge into the Potomac even while President. He was also an ardent diarist, and his diary contains many a mention of his dips in the river.

"Anne Royall was Adams' Washington contemporary—a vicarious writer and a malevolent journalist. In 1829 she was convicted of being a 'common scold.' Her first contact with Adams was in 1824 when she called at the White House to demand a pension as a Revolutionary war widow. Adams mentioned her in a very uncomplimentary manner in his diary.

The Tithe That Binds

Coming away from a debate on taxes I couldn't help feeling that the discussion, scholarly as it had appeared at points, and ringing with altruism at others, had offered a political potion, only slightly flavored with any essence of economics. How willing is congress to depart from the past, if such a departure affects political futures?

Pondering this, I came upon a dispatch in the London Daily Herald from Romney Marsh, Kent. It recounted how, in the lamp-lit sitting room of a six-century-old farm, a 72-year-old farmer, Archibald Edwin Waddell, complained to a reporter that he was about to be thrown into bankruptcy because he refused to pay 75 pounds and 3 shillings—some $300—in "tithes."

"I shall probably die muttering," Waddell said, "against this wicked, anti-social custom."

For previous refusals to pay tithes, there had been four seizures from his farm: bullocks, sheep, pigs, farm implements, furniture, his clothing and his cart-horse.

"My father," the old man concluded, "who farmed for 70 years in Kent, paid 1,400 pounds in tithes, and two of my brothers were forced to emigrate. I am fighting against a rope that has tightened around my neck, and around the necks of so many others who love the soil."

Few people realize that tithing, payment of one-tenth of the product of the land, a custom which comes down from feudal days when it was collected by the parish priests, and later the Church of England, is so modern, and that its effects will be felt until the year 1996.

Originally the tithe was paid in produce, but in 1836 it became a fixed rent still paid to the church. In 1925, the law was changed to make the tithe payable into what was called "Queen Anne's Bounty," a fund used for general church pur-

"According to Adams' diary . . . 'She continues to make herself noxious to many persons; tolerated by some and feared by others, by her deportment and her books; treating all with a familiarity which often passes for impudence, insulting those who treat her with incivility, and then lampooning them in her books. Stripped of all her sex's delicacy, but unable to forfeit its privilege of gentle treatment to others, she goes about like a viragoerant in enchanted armour, and redeems herself from the cravings of indulgence by the notoriety of her eccentricities and the forced currency they give her publications . . ."

"Although Adams chronicled all unusual incidents while swimming, and had referred to Mrs. Royall in his diary, he makes no mention of the supposed meeting of this woman while swimming.

"While Adams lived in the White House, Mrs. Royall was a resident of Washington, but travelled about most of the time. She was known as an author at that time, but not as a newspaper woman. Her journalistic career began two years after Adams retired as President. In 1831 she established a newspaper aptly named 'Paul Pry,' and later she founded another small newspaper, the 'Huntsress.' It does not seem possible that Anne Royall could have interviewed President Adams, at least in her capacity as a journalist.

"Adams was mentioned in 'Paul Pry' just once, on July 28, 1832. There are references to him in the August 1, 1840; August 20, 1842; December 14, 1844; February 6, 1847, and the March 4, 1848, issues of the 'Huntsress.' Mrs. Royall also mentioned Adams in her 'Sketches,' p. 166, and in her 'Black Book,' p. 126. But nowhere did the woman who was supposed to have been involved in the Potomac shore incident ever refer to any interview with John Quincy Adams.

"The supposed incident still makes a good story, and especially, I suppose, when newspaper men are interviewing the President, and when news is somewhat dull. However, I cannot believe that any of the known facts can justify the truth of this old story."

But, I insist, it's a good story and I, for one, will not disillusion any President as to its authenticity.

"The supposed incident still makes a good story, and especially, I suppose, when newspaper men are interviewing the President, and when news is somewhat dull. However, I cannot believe that any of the known facts can justify the truth of this old story."

JOURNEY TO THE MOON

Science has advanced to the point where, when you talk about taking a trip to the moon, people no longer look sorrowfully upon you as one who has been affected by the fabled light from that lunar orb.

An actual journey to the moon may become a reality sooner than one would have expected five years ago. Right now, in several parts of the world, there are small groups of earnest experts who are quite serious about the prospects of travel between the planets.

One of those organizations is the British Interplanetary society, a group of about 450 members nearly one-third of whom are rocket and supersonic research scientists. Another third is made up of mechanical and electrical engineers, radio and radar technicians.

Many researchers working on military rocket-powered weapons believe that their work on rockets can be just as important for a peaceful future as it might be for war. From the aspect of motive power they know that by the time they can send a rocket halfway around the world they are likely to be within easy reach of the next phase—interplanetary travel.

That time may not be very far distant. Present velocity of a V-2 type rocket is about two miles a second. The velocity required to send one to the most distant spot on this globe is about five miles a second; and the estimated velocity needed to get a rocket out of the earth's gravitational pull is seven miles a second.

Get Your Rockets Tuned Up

But actual travel in space is still a secondary consideration. After man has succeeded in shaking off earth's gravity pull with his rockets, the first thing he will do is to shoot a load of scientific instruments into space.

The visionary scientist sees himself sending instruments to the moon or to Mars. Or arranging it so that part of his rocket would become a satellite to one of the planets. Thus, through a development of television, he might see such things as the secrets of the dark side of the moon.

A wealth of research—literally out of this world—would be opened up long before an attempt could be made to begin human interplanetary travel.

NEWS REVIEW

South Threatens Split; Self Rationing Proposed

President Truman, who seems to run to 10-point programs, tossed another one to congress—concerning the preservation and protection of civil rights—and then stood aside to await the explosion.

It came quickly. Southern Democrats, hopping mad over at least four of the 10 controversial points, began to talk seriously of calling a Dixie convention to split away from Mr. Truman on the civil rights issue.

Focus of the current disunity was a bill, up for approval by the senate labor committee, to create a national commission against job discrimination on grounds of race, creed or color.

Sen. Allen J. Ellender (Dem., La.) predicted that if the bill were approved in its present form the party would erupt into open warfare. Both foes and backers of the measure agreed that it would be a close thing.

The four proposals that most inflamed the southerners were the ones calling for (1) a federal anti-lynching law, (2) a permanent fair employment practice commission, (3) an end to Jim Crow rules in transportation and (4) outlawing of state poll taxes.

Remainder of the points advocated by the President were: A permanent commission on civil rights, a joint congressional committee on the justice department; tightening of civil rights statutes; home rule for the District of Columbia; statehood for Alaska and Hawaii; equalization of naturalization opportunities, and settlement of evacuation claims of Japanese-Americans.

Because 1948 is an election year, and a presidential election year at that, the program, which otherwise might be ignored, was certain to get hot partisan debate.

In answer to Mr. Truman's firm statement that "something must be done" about the civil rights issue, southern Democrats replied that they were thinking of calling an all-southern convention to pick its own presidential candidate.

Some thought that too drastic a step, but at Jackson, Miss., Walter Sillers, speaker of the Mississippi house of representatives, said he flatly favored such a course in order to withhold at least part of the South's electoral votes from Mr. Truman.

SELF RATIONING: Second Best

Manifestly stymied in its efforts to get congress to pass rationing and price control legislation, the administration tried a new approach in the form of an appeal for nationwide self-rationing.

Greater public support of an intensified drive for voluntary food conservation would have to be developed if living costs are to be curbed, the administration decided.

As an initial step representatives of 18 consumer, producer and distributor groups met with Clinton Anderson, secretary of agriculture, to map details of the nationwide program.

Charles F. Brannan, assistant secretary of agriculture, heads the new food saving setup. Originally started by the citizens' food committee last fall, it has been carried on until now under the direct leadership of the cabinet food committee.

Major emphasis, it was understood, would be placed on meat as the pivotal item in the cost of living merry-go-round; however, other foods also would be covered in the voluntary program. Based on specific recommendations of the food industry and public representatives, it is theoretically designed to meet the twin problem of scarce food supplies and high prices.

Biggest talking point the administration had in its attempts to solicit public support was the department of agriculture's somber prediction that the nation is heading for a serious meat shortage in the spring. And by way of emphasis Brannan added that meat rationing "by price" already is in effect because many people cannot afford to buy.

FOR SALE: Some Eggs

U. S. government has hung out a "for sale" sign on 46.8 million dozen eggs that it bought last spring to support domestic prices.

There is one stipulation, however. Only foreign users will be allowed to buy them.

For the comfort of U. S. housewives the agriculture department was swift to point out that these eggs are not the kind that can be used readily for home consumption. They were shelled, dumped into huge containers and frozen before the government bought them in the first place.

Agriculture department decided to sell the eggs to foreign buyers when it was unable to sell them to bakers and confectioners in this country because egg production has been going up and egg prices down.

THE GENERAL BOWS OUT

Gen. Ike Eisenhower is out of the presidential sweepstakes. This disposes of any possibility that the contest will be in technicolor. When Ike took his chapeau out of the ring he withdrew the only bit of gay headgear.

Like a military man in the White House or not, you had to admit that the Kansas Warrior had a monopoly on color. The race now becomes a study in tepid grays.

It is probably just as well for the country that we do not elect our rulers via the personal glamour test, but nevertheless it seemed nice having a man in there who had superdooper personality and who could warm you up without the use of hot-water bottles and electric blankets.

The Abilene Bearcat has everything that wins the cheers, the hand-clapping and the hat-tossing. He is one of the few public men today who has a personality on the platform or on the air that doesn't seem pre-fabricated.

With him in the race we would have had a candidate who carried no portable smile and displayed no personality shipped in sections and assembled by blueprint when needed.

The word "Genuine" is stamped all over Ike and we think that if he had ever won the nomination on either major ticket we would have seen one of those old-fashioned torch-light, brass band, whoop-de-doodle campaigns that would have stirred the mind, warmed the heart, blocked the streets and torn down the saloon doors.

Maybe that would have made us all too hysterical at a time when we are screwy enough. Anyhow from here in it will be strictly a double feature in the second-run neighborhood theater routine. If you want to get hot you will have to carry your own heat.

We remember fewer times when there were so many candidates for the White House who looked like Nanook of the North, with certain characteristics of Dracula.

Not that these candidates aren't top Americans of great intelligence and many fine qualities of leadership in the pinches. All we are saying is that they would never win a Mister America contest, even with the rules fixed.

Ike, we wish you had delayed the announcement until spring. The winter has been cold enough.

Thunderbolt Lefthand (we knew his brother Lightning Right) a Crow Indian, presented President Truman with a good omen necklace the other day. Harry accepted it in the spirit of a man who now is willing to try anything.

GENEVA, N. Y. — Scientists are conducting experiments at the state experimental station here to produce a catsup that pours and spreads more easily.—News item.

Good! The catsup situation has been troubling us for years. We hadn't thought the chief trouble was the spread; it seemed to us to be the reluctance of catsup to leave the bottle. We are sick of slapping the bottom of catsup bottles, or whacking them against the table to start things moving. Dr. Z. Cheever Bunk, our special scientist in charge of catsup, suggests after years of experiments, that the solution is to put catsup up in large-necked bottles, the same as mustard.

President Truman received more than 1,000 gifts from citizens last year. Most of them were books. Things like, "The Drums of the Fore and Aft," "The Ike and I," "Forever Pauley," "Inside Harold Stassen" and "Henry the Great."

Her telephone brought speedy word of the new grandson . . .

because telephone service is shared

RIGHT now thousands of folks have telephones in their homes, instead of being on the waiting list, because the party-line way shares telephone service.

It's the neighborly way to do things where telephone facilities are limited . . . extending the use of a line by connecting more than one telephone to it.

But thousands still are waiting for a telephone. So, in most communities, only party-line service is being installed in homes. That's also the reason many party-line subscribers can't be changed over to individual lines just yet.

Telephone factories are producing more cable and switching equipment as swiftly as possible. And we're installing it as fast as it comes in. As soon as all the additional equipment we need is available, of course, everyone will be able to have the kind of service he wants.

A GOOD PARTY-LINE NEIGHBOR keeps his calls reasonably short . . . spaces them out . . . stays off the line when others are using it . . . and hangs up the receiver carefully after each call.

CLARENCE PROVOAST BARN DESTROYED BY FIRE

Fire destroyed the barn of Clarence Provoast, and most of its contents, last Saturday about noon in Burleigh. The barn was one of the largest in the township. Besides the six head of cattle and several pigs, one tractor and most of his farm machinery were destroyed. Mr. Provoast was at Whittemore at the time of the fire. The fire was discovered by Ed. Gerard, who was driving by, and through his efforts 16 head of cattle were saved. Origin of the fire is unknown. The building and contents carried some insurance.

A number from here attended the show at East Tawas Sunday evening. Mr. and Mrs. Roy Bowlsby visited at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Victor St. James Monday.

A number of friends were called to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Art Alarich Saturday evening to help celebrate Art's father's birthday. Refreshments were served and leaving for home at a late hour, all wishing Mr. Aldrich many more happy birthdays.

Fred Haselhuhn and Victor St. James were at Detroit on business the first part of the week.

Mr. and Mrs. Merlin McLean were at Tawas City on business Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Bill Bamburger of Sherman visited at the home of her parents, Sunday evening.

Dr. Lehman of Au Gres was called here one day last week by the illness of Mrs. Theodore St. James.

HOUSEHOLD MEMOS by Lynn Chambers

Fruit Puddings Are Mouth-Watering! (See recipe below.)

Fruit Puddings

Dessert lovers everywhere enjoy deep-dish, fruit puddings with their crisp crusts, their mouth-watering fragrance.

First of all, there are canned cherries, plump, red and juicy. But don't stop there, for you may like to use apples or figs, pears and apricots, and even some of the citrus fruits.

Another thing you'll like about these desserts is that they are simplicity itself to prepare. Use them often for economy's sake on days when you use the oven for the rest of the meal.

Drain the cherries and heat the juice to boiling. Blend sugar and cornstarch in enough water to make a thin paste. Gradually add this to the hot cherry juice and cook until thick and clear.

Combine honey, cinnamon and butter. Add peaches. Place in individual custard cups. Use the following as a crust:

- 1 cup sifted flour
1 1/2 teaspoon baking powder
1/4 teaspoon salt
2 teaspoons sugar
2 tablespoons shortening
3/4 cup milk

Sift dry ingredients together; cut in shortening until it resembles coarse meal. Add milk, stirring until mixture is damp.

Drop dough onto prepared fruit; spread evenly to the edge. Bake in a hot oven until crust is nicely browned.

Apple Pudding (Serves 6) 2 cups flour 3 teaspoons baking powder 1/4 teaspoon salt 1/4 cup shortening

2/3 cup milk
2 tablespoons butter, softened
1/2 cup firmly packed brown sugar
1 teaspoon cinnamon
1 quart sliced apples
1/2 cup strained butter

Sift flour once, measure; add baking powder and salt, then sift together.

Apple Flake Crunch. (Serves 4 to 6) 6 cups pared, cored and sliced apples 2 tablespoons brown sugar 1/2 cup orange juice 3/4 cup brown sugar 3/4 cup flour 1/2 cup nutmeg 1/2 cup flour 1 teaspoon grated orange rind

Arrange the apples in a greased baking dish. Sprinkle the two tablespoons of sugar on top; then pour half of the orange juice over top.

Steamed Cranberry Pudding. (Serves 6 to 8) 1 cup raw cranberries, halved 1 cup finely diced pineapple 1/2 cup mixed citron 1/2 cup light molasses 3/4 teaspoon cinnamon 1/4 teaspoon powdered cloves 1/4 teaspoon nutmeg 1 1/2 cups flour 1/2 teaspoon salt 1 teaspoon baking soda 2 tablespoons cold water

Combine fruit, molasses and spices. Add sifted flour and salt. Dissolve soda in cold water, add and blend thoroughly.

Leftover dried cake? Make an ice-box pudding, baked pudding or toast and serve with jelly or custard sauce.

Presidential Stumping

THE reported urging of President Truman, on the part of some of his political associates, to take the stump during the period between his nomination and the November election and to travel back and forth across the country, making impromptu speeches in towns and villages, serves to recall an incident of the 1932 campaign.

Orators of the Republican speakers' bureau were confining their speeches to replies to statements made by Candidate Roosevelt. They definitely had accepted the defensive, and were saying but little about accomplishments of the Hoover administration.

That situation continued until well along in September, when a Hoover admirer visited Washington and saw the President on a Sunday night. The visitor told Mr. Hoover that he would be beaten in November; that it was then too late to change the final result, but that the total of the Roosevelt vote could be reduced by a change in the speaking program.

THE PRESIDENT REBELS.
 The visitor insisted that to make such a change, to shift from the defensive to the offensive, called for Mr. Hoover to make the speeches, that he would have to tell the American people what his administration had accomplished, and the history of Mr. Roosevelt's administration as governor of New York. Mr. Hoover was horrified.

"I am a candidate for election to the Presidency of the United States, but I also am the President of the United States. As President I cannot degrade the dignity of that office by making political stump speeches on behalf of my candidacy," he said.

The visitor urged the proposal until the small hours of Monday morning. He insisted the American people were entitled to a factual recounting of the accomplishments of the administration under Mr. Hoover's direction, and what had occurred in New York under direction of Governor Roosevelt. The answer, that night, was always the same, an insistent "no."

As the visitor left he asked Ted Joslyn, the President's press secretary, to reserve a few minutes of Mr. Hoover's time for Monday morning.

STRESS AID TO FARMERS.
 At that short session Mr. Hoover said he would not make innumerable impromptu speeches, but would make three or four set speeches, and in those would confine his remarks to factual statements of the operation of government under his administration, especially what the agricultural act, as enacted by congress, had done for the American farmer. He directed that arrangements be made for the delivery of the first of those speeches at Des Moines, Iowa.

That agricultural act had benefited the American farmer to the extent of 10 cents a bushel better price for wheat, of the same grade, and with equal transportation costs to eastern tidewater ports, than was received by Canadian farmers.

Times, men and conditions change. Mr. Truman may, or may not, have the reverence for the dignity of the presidential job as that held in 1932 by Mr. Hoover. He may not consider the making of impromptu speeches from the back platform of a railroad train as sacrificing the dignity of the presidential office. It is his privilege to do as he wishes.

Plight of Groceryman

"No one offers the merchant, especially the food merchant, anything but abuse," said the groceryman. "We are condemned for high prices; accused of making exorbitant profits, despite the fact that more than 50 per cent of those who engage in merchandising eventually go broke. The merchant is faced with the payment of government subsidies; government encouragement of higher wages for the workers he employs, and those employed by processors and wholesalers; increased local, state and federal taxes; decreased purchasing value of the dollar; higher transportation costs, and other ever increasing expense items. Government, and too frequently the public, expect the retailer to absorb all of this increased cost and yet to continue selling his merchandise at depression prices."

There is a valley in California that needs irrigation if the farms are to have dependable productivity. At the first regular session of this congress the appropriation for that purely local project was cut. Then the votes of the valley were counted, and the special session renewed and increased that appropriation. Water for the valley means more wheat. More wheat means lower prices. Farmers of Colorado, Kansas and every other state are paying for that California irrigation through lower prices.

For Quick Cough Relief, Mix This Syrup, at Home

Here's an old home mixture your mother probably used, but, for real results, it is still one of the most effective and dependable for coughs due to colds. Once tried, you'll swear by it. It's no trouble at all. Make a syrup by stirring 2 cups of granulated sugar and one cup of water a few moments until dissolved. No cooking is needed. Or you can use corn syrup or liquid honey, instead of sugar syrup.

Now put 2 1/2 ounces of Pinex into a pint bottle, and fill up with your syrup. This makes a full pint of splendid cough medicine, and gives you about four times as much for your money. It keeps perfectly and tastes fine.

And you'll say it's truly excellent, for quick action. You can feel it take hold swiftly. It loosens the phlegm, soothes the irritated membranes, and helps clear the air passages. Thus it eases breathing, and lets you sleep.

Pinex is a special compound of proven ingredients, in concentrated form, well known for its quick action on throat and bronchial irritations. Money refunded if not pleased in every way.

It may be caused by disorder of kidney function that permits poisonous waste to accumulate. For truly many people feel tired, weak and miserable when the kidneys fail to remove excess acids and other waste matter from the blood.

You may suffer nagging backache, rheumatic pains, headaches, dizziness, getting up nights, leg pains, swelling. Sometimes frequent and uneasy urination with smarting and burning is another sign that something is wrong with the kidneys or bladder.

ferences that came up to divide and weaken the group from time to time. But hard work and faith had their good results.

In 1881 a new bell was hung in the steeple of the church. In 1882 there was the long and bitter struggle between the townsmen over "the liquor traffic" and the Methodists were enjoying the fight.

In 1888 the large lumber mill burned to the ground and with it went some of the strength of the church.
