Elks Take Tourney Honors in Fast Game With AuGres Team

Play Tonight At Alma in State Regionals

To Play Winner of Thursday Night Game Between Merrill-Fowler

Saturday night Coach Mark Defiabaugh's Tawas City Elks knocked off the maroon and gold of AuGres to the tune of 61 to 49 in the deciding game for Class D honors in the District tournament held at the local auditorium.

With Tawas City's big three, Westcott, Gingerich and Steinhurst, hotter than firecrackers on their shots and with guards, Bruce Myles, Herb Look and Doug MacDonald, who was sent in to relieve Look, playing fine defensive ball, set this game up as their best of the season.

The two teams played a nip and tuck battle for the first two stanzas with the first quart escoring reading, Elks 18, AuGres 11.

At halftime, AuGres narrowed down the lead of the Tawas lads with the score board reading 30 to 26.

In the third quarter Coach "Duffy's" charges put on an array of one handers from all corners of the hardwood, racking up 15 points while sidetracking the AuGres quintet with six markers.

In the last quarter AuGres put on their last do or die drive dunking 17 points, but they fell short as the Elks were still dropping in their one handers.

Westcott, top scorer of the team dunked in 22 points, Steinhurst tacked up 16 points, Gingerich added 13 points, Myles made eight and Look added a field goal to complete the scoring.

This is the first Class D toga that Tawas City has won since 1944 and 1945. In the 1946 and 1947 tournaments the Elks lost out the last evening of play.

Tawas City should be justly proud of its championship team, winning Huron Shore League honors two weeks ago when they won from East Tawas in a playoff at Oscoda, and now District honors and a chance to represent Tawas City in the Regionals at Alma tonight, when they play the winner of the Merrill-Fowler contested, slated for Thursday.

Many of the team's loyal fans will drive down today for the game tonight, and the school bus will leave after school for Alma with a bus load of High School students.

In the first game of the tourney, AuGres defeated Whittemore by the top sided score of 73 to 15. The Whittemore team suffered its third loss of the season to the AuGres aggregation, but proved they were game and didn't loose the old fighting spirit through out the contest. Dewald sunk 27 points, while his teammate, Manor collected 21. Revord led the Whittemore squad with nine points.

Friday night the Tawas City Elks won from Hale by the score of 48 to 28. The Tawas lads stated off in high in the first stanza when they dropped in 14 points, while the Blue and White from Hale were held to four. In the second quarter the Elks led the Hale quintet in scoring with nine points, while holding their opponents to four points. In the third quarter Hale came to life and hooped 10 points, but the Elks came back with 15 points. In the third stanza, Hale outscored the Tawas City team 11 points to 10, but the Elks big lead stopped them cold. Johnson of the Hale team was top scorer of the game with 15. Gingerich and Westcott sunk 12 points apiece for Tawas City, followed by Steinhurst with 10.

Would Give Intangible Tax Information

Robert Curtis, representing the Michigan Department of Revenue, is located at Whittemore. He will assist taxpayers in the preparation of their intangibles tax returns due not later than March 31. His phone is 157 Whittemore.

Intangible personal property subject to the tax included all mortgages, land contracts, bank accounts, cash, postal savings account, accounts and notes receivable, corporate stocks, corporate bonds and other similar types of property. However, all United States bonds, including War Bonds, are exempt from the tax, and the tax on deposits in Michigan banks and building and loan associations, as well as stocks in Michigan banks, will be paid to the Department of Revenue directly by the banks or building and loan associations.

Under the present law as amended by the Legislature in 1945, all Corporate Stocks are 100% taxable including Michigan Corporations.

The Department has issued a warning to all owners of property, such as is outlined above, to file the necessary return forms prior to March 31. The Revenue Department is constantly engaged in checking stockholder's lists, mortgage records, income tax returns and other data for the purpose of discovering evasions of the Intangibles Tax Act. Failure to file a return when a tax is due subjects the taxpayer to severe penalties.

Following MacArthur's Trail

IT IS considered more than significant that a crack reporter for the Cincinnati Times-Star, owned by the Taft family, has left for Australia to cover the route which General MacArthur took on his northward advance from Australia to the Philippines.

The reporter is Douglass M. Allen Jr., who left for Australia early in January and is scheduled to hit Korea and Japan around April 15, working his way north through the Philippines and the battle-scarred Pacific islands.

Inside word is that Allen will do a little quiet probing of certain incidents surrounding MacArthur's campaign, which, during the war, were shrouded by censorship. One of these is the famous mansion which MacArthur had the Seabees build for him on a hill overlooking Hollandia, New Guinea.

MacArthur aroused navy resentment—at times, even bitterness—during his northward advance to the Philippines. And if he decides to become a presidential candidate, obviously it would not hurt his rival candidates, including Senator Taft, to have certain hitherto censored information told to the American public during the crucial days just before the Republican convention in Philadelphia.

Washington Is Talking About . . .

Harry Bridges, who is said to be reading some sensational statement about the "new line" of the extreme left on unionism. Many are convinced that it will develop in the direction of the dual trade unionism, preparing for a divorce from the CIO. Don't be too surprised, they add, if Bridges functions from Mexico or South America as actual head of a new left-wing drive in both continents.

Why the President's administration is breaking up beneath his feet: It's the third-rate treatment of first-rate men by the first-class second-raters in the White House.

Babe Ruth, Leading Man

I DESIRE to supplement an important historical document, the life story of Babe Ruth, a great American, which has been written for printing and moving pictures by Bob Considine.

I had the honor of attending Ruth in his debut as a moving picture actor in 1920 in a drama called "Headin' Home." The girl was a nice, buxom blonde whose name unfortunately I do not recall. The villain, who was the pitcher for the opposition, was a skinny little Broadway fellow named Scher who had done odds and ends as an actor. Ruth had bought some suits from a tailor named Scher and Scher said he would call it square if they would use his brother in the show.

Scher, the actor, threw like an actor. Yet Ruth had to break his back striking out several times to make him look good and in the end he never got a chance to prove he could hit Scher because, for the great climax, they dubbed in one of his old home runs photographed during the season as thousands cheered.

There were no sound tracks and the actors, for something to say as they moved their lips, would mutter over and over "business, business, business" or "so-and-so-and-so-and-so." This blonde lady had trouble not laughing at Ruth as he would grab her in a stiff-arm, self-conscious clinch and say, "Oh, Miss Business, Business, Business, I think you are so-and-so-and-so."

Cinderella and Winthrop

The recent Rockefeller marriage put the Bionia issue, the Marshall plan, money devaluation, inflation and ideological wars on the second-string eleven. When Winthrop Rockefeller, one of the richest men on earth, after courtings on the top floor of a Third Avenue walk-up, was won by the lovely daughter of a mining town immigrant, things seemed to get back into focus, lifting up the heart of the world and making everybody feel a lot better about the state of the globe.

doesn't seem so gloomy and full of hopelessness.

The two greatest things that happened to the world in the last year were a couple of weddings: Those of Philip and Elizabeth and Winthrop and Eva. A world fed up with hate, envy, recrimination and mutual denunciations went to them like a duck to water. It got a lift. And boy, did it need one!

Moscow has cracked down on its greatest composers, rebuking them for not producing more ideological works. They are disciplined for yielding to the modern trend of music in the western states where "there is a passion for muddled neuropathic combinations which transform music into a chaotic heap of sounds." The Kremlin is alarmed. If it is not careful Russia will be getting disc jockeys.

When a charming young woman, born in a dingy Pennsylvania coal town, becomes the partner of a Rockefeller, true democracy goes up 50 points overnight and the market for class feeling busts wide open. The American Way seems pretty swell once more. The world

Seaway Affects Industries

THERE is far more than just the construction of dams, canals and locks in consideration of the St. Lawrence seaway.

Whichever way the senate votes on the seaway and the estimated expenditure with Canada of some 720 million dollars, by far the most vital single consideration is what will happen to two of the nation's largest industries, namely railroads and steel. The coal industry also will be affected.

Engineers and geologists declare that within any time from 5 to 30 years the great steel industry situated in the Middle West from Pittsburgh to Gary, Ind., will use up its iron ore sources in northern Minnesota, Michigan and Wisconsin.

Unless some means can be found for processing a great supply of low-grade taconite ore, now a complicated, expensive process, two alternatives face the steel industry: (1) To ship iron ore in from Labrador and South America and haul it by rail from the coast to the Midwest plants, or (2) move the plants to the eastern, southern or western seaboard.

Then there is a by-product of some 2,200,000 horsepower of cheap electricity which would be generated if the seaway is constructed. So consideration steps on many toes.

U. S. Inspires Inflation

IT'S not labor with its continued, increased, wage demands; industry seeking exorbitant profits; transportation, in its efforts to meet increasing costs; the wholesale or retail distributing agencies adding to their "mark-ups" on merchandise, or the farmers demanding increased prices for food products that are fundamentally responsible for the inflation for which we are paying. The actual culprit, at whose door we can lay the blame for it all, is the legislative and administrative branches of the federal government. Today we are paying not only for the war expense but also for the boondoggling costs of the depression years.

They knew, as my friend indicated, it was stupidity rather than lack of virtue which was my chief sin.

"Party Split" More Fun than a Fire

Schism of Dixie Democrats Could Wreck Party Hopes

By BAUKHAGE
News Analyst and Commentator.

A political year may be pretty hard on business, international affairs and persons who expect congress or the President to take some highly important but controversial action which might scare away votes—but, if you can stand on the sidelines dodging the brickbats which each side hurls at the other, a political year is lots of fun.

One thing that is as interesting to the casual observer as workmen excavating a cellar, a sandlot baseball game, a fire or a dog-fight, are the quadrennial "party splits" which threaten (several months before the conventions) to rend the big parties in twain. They usually end the same way—both splinters singing Sweet Adeline, and cursing the other party in perfect harmony.

On the surface the recent row between the southern Democrats and the White House looks like one of those affairs. There is no doubt that the southerners are good and mad. And by all their standards they have every right to be. So there is no telling what might happen! But the fact remains that the Negro voters in the north can vote either Republican or Democratic, just as they please. In fact, the colored population really has more freedom than the rest of the electorate because it has no tradition of following a strict pattern.

A Democrat, however, is he lives in the South and if he is to remain a Democrat, has to vote with the Democratic party, even if he does it with anger in his heart and tears in his eyes. Since the administration banks on this, we see even a president from the southern state of Missouri, defying the wishes of his friends below the Mason-Dixon.

I am not questioning any of the supporters of civil rights and the Constitution from the President down, but there does remain the fact of the Negro vote, and there remains likewise many a warm personal and political friendship which has to be subjected to a painful ordeal. The "split" is exciting to watch whether with Sweet Adeline or not.

And if you look across the aisle, you'll see some more splinters. Listen to this: . . . If Republican leaders in congress want to win the political confidence of both Republican and independent voters, they must stop trying to sell the program of the National Association of Manufacturers as good Republican doctrine . . .

That wasn't Henry Wallace speaking. Nor Democratic national headquarters.

That was Republican Sen. Wayne Morse of Oregon. Morse assails "the conservative leadership" of his own party as vigorously as he scores reaction in the Democratic party.

I already have discussed Wallace and his third party "split." There are those who think it of so little importance that it can be ignored. Some now are predicting that before the election, Wallace will be granted some concession, some advantage, and will come out for Truman for president. I wouldn't go that far, but I have heard the prediction in more than one quarter.

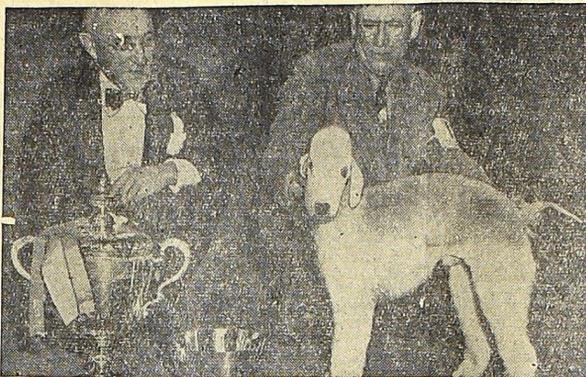

Republicans are supposed to welcome Wallace to the race, and to count on him to cut down the Democratic vote to something almost insignificant.

Let me quote Senator Morse on that subject, as his words appeared in an article in the February issue of the Progressive magazine. Morse says that Wallace mustn't be taken too seriously, but that he mustn't be ignored either. He adds:

"Let my Republican party never forget that there are not enough Republicans to elect a Republican president, nor enough Democrats to elect a Democrat as president. Fortunately there are not enough fellow-travellers to elect Wallace." "Splits" can't be ignored, it is true. They are important because there is always the possibility that the splitters might find another Teddy Roosevelt to lead them. That can't happen often, though, and meanwhile splits are fun to watch.

NEWS REVIEW

Reds Assume Control Of Czech Government

There were six days of crisis in Czechoslovakia and then it was all over—the Communists were in complete control of that nation of 13 million population.

The iron curtain came down with a muffled clang as President Eduard Benes accepted the resignation of 14 of his cabinet ministers after he had refused for a week to do so.

Into power strode Communist Premier Klement Gottwald who had led his party upward from a minority status in Czechoslovakia until now its members dominated every phase of the nation's life and were prepared to swing it directly into the orbit of other Soviet satellites.

Wielding the club to keep the Czechs in line was Gottwald's good right hand, Vaclav Nosek, minister of the interior, who controls all Czechoslovakian police forces. In wondered whether Austria, France and Italy might not be clamped soon in the Communist vise.

There was general agreement on one fact, at least: That the Communist coup in Czechoslovakia had forged perhaps the most vital link in the Russian chain intended to shackle the Marshall plan.

In Finland and Italy, as in Czechoslovakia, elections were coming up soon and the Communists were out for victory. Finland, like Czechoslovakia, is ruled by a coalition government which has acknowledged that the country must remain friendly with Russia.

COLD CHICKEN: No Fuel Oil

Campaigning politicians this year may have to eliminate "a chicken in every pot" from their lists of promises because there might not be enough chickens to go around.

Reports from the poultry belt in the Midwest say that the severity of the fuel oil shortage is cutting into the 1948 baby chick hatch to threaten poultry and egg production this year.

Thousands of farmers canceled chick orders for early March delivery because they couldn't get oil for their brooder stoves. Iowa and the Northwest were suffering most from the situation, but it also was bad in Illinois and Indiana. The kerosene shortage has been severe enough to cause hardship in most of the poultry producing area.

Some poultrymen were deferring chick deliveries until later dates, hoping that warmer weather would ease the tight oil supply.

Officials of one large hybrid chick hatchery in Iowa claimed they needed six tank cars of fuel oil to get their 1948 production under way.

One of the most vociferous complaints generally being made among farmers was that city consumers were using up all the fuel oil.

FEARFUL: Hoof and Mouth

Cattle, hog and sheep growers of the U. S. continue to live in the shadow of a fear that the hoof and mouth disease which has been decimating livestock in Mexico for many months will spread across the border and affect U. S. herds.

At a recent session in Chicago a joint committee of the cattle, hog and sheep raisers forwarded a plea to Secretary of Agriculture Clinton Anderson to renew efforts to eradicate the disease.

Among other things, the stockmen requested that these actions be taken:

- 1. Renegotiate with high Mexican officials on plans for resuming the interrupted slaughter and burial program.
- 2. Immediate construction of a fence along the present quarantine line about 250 miles south of the U. S. border.
- 3. Build new beef canning plants in the "clean" states of northern Mexico and continue to run those now operating.

Gottwald . . . Nosek.

that powerful position in a Communist-dominated state Nosek was analogous to the mailed glove on the dictator's fist.

For what it was worth—and that was very little—aging President Benes had managed to keep at least a superficial appearance of representative government by insisting that the government be composed of members of other parties of the national front which reinstated the Czechoslovak republic in 1945 when the Germans were being driven out. But it was a hollow, tasteless victory—meaningless in any practical application.

The new government consists of 12 Communists (there were seven before), four Social Democrats, two Czech National Socialists, two Catholic Peoples party members, one Slovak Democrat and two non-party men, Jan Masaryk as foreign minister and Gen. Ludwig Svoboda as minister of defense.

Bewildered Czechs finally knew their cherished republic had come to a grim end when loud speakers in Prague blared this announcement into the night:

"Reaction has been beaten. Go back to work and let us complete our tasks on the two year plan."

In Czechoslovakia's ironic chronology the surging wall of the Red tide engulfed their country just 10 years after the western Allies had sold the nation to Hitler at Munich in a tragically selfish and futile effort to avoid war and save their own skins at the price of just one small Central European state.

Reaction

With the Balkans all tied up with a red ribbon the world began to wonder which small nation the Communist tide would engulf next.

Some thought Finland might be the top name on the list, others

'Inside Info' Exaggerated

There has been remarkable interest recently in charges that Washington officials used "inside information" obtained because of their connection with the government to play the markets. The other day one highly-placed gentleman came to me in quite a stew.

"Have you heard the rumor that I was being charged with playing the market on information I got from the White House?" he asked.

"No," I replied. "Who is doing the charging?"

"That's what I want to find out," he spluttered.

"Well," I answered, surprised at his wrath, "you certainly don't feel insulted by it, do you? Anybody can be charged with anything in an election year."

"I certainly am insulted," he came back, "not because my honor is being impugned, but it is an insult to my intelligence to imply that anyone who has been around Washington as long as I have would be such an ass!"

When I first came to Washington as a reporter, I remember there was a minor scandal on "leaks" that had been used for profit. The chief offender, however, was a publicity man, not an official, and from the standpoint of business it proved a fine thing for him. As soon as the charges that he had obtained confidential information and had passed it on to his client were made public he had a dozen offers from other big firms to get on their payrolls. He did, but it wasn't long before he left Washington. He didn't get any more confidences.

A lesser factor in the affair was a newspaper reporter. It was discovered that he was on the payroll of a brokerage firm to whom he phoned anything he thought might be of interest after he had written his story for his paper whose last edition had an early afternoon deadline. It was shown that the brokers paid him all of $25 a month. In the investigation it also was shown that while he knew what was news for a newspaper, the reporter had only the foggiest idea of what would interest a broker as he probably never owned a share of stock in his life. He was duly fired from the paper, and suspended from the Press club, but nobody was too sore.

They knew, as my friend indicated, it was stupidity rather than lack of virtue which was my chief sin.

My own first lesson on the subject of Washington journalistic ethics

HOW PRICES DEFLATE

Consumer Resistance Does It

Those same forces which recently knocked down prices of food and other commodities in a spectacular outburst have been quietly at work all during the past year.

Rising supply in a number of lines of goods has caught up with demand, and in some cases it has bumped into demand and money supplies on their way down, according to an analysis by the family economics bureau of Northwestern National Life Insurance company.

Poultry, eggs, potatoes, oranges, canned fruit juices, certain canned fruits and vegetables, preserves and jellies all have had little private recessions of their own during the past year. By the end of 1947 the prices of most of these items either had leveled off or were actually below the levels of a year previous, the study says.

In manufactured goods, the supply of small radios recently has overflowed the level of demand, with prices skidding in many cities. Large radios are very close to current demand, as are washing machines, stoves and deep-freeze units.

As long as consumers demand goods despite rising prices, the study pointed out, the manufacturer will pay higher and still higher costs for materials and labor, rather than have his production shut down and his flow of goods to the consumer cut off. Retail stores buy his finished products despite higher manufacturing costs because they know their customers want the goods.

But when enough consumers indicate they will not pay increased prices, then manufacturers and stores stiffen their own resistance to higher prices of materials, wage boosts and the resulting price mark-ups for the finished goods because it is evident that such further increases will prevent the products from being sold.

When demand falls off and meets rising supply, the result is a halt in the price rise and often a sharp downturn. Sometimes consumers, merchants and manufacturers all decide that prices are going to keep on declining and therefore cut their buying still more all along the line.

Downward price spirals usually start in that way, the study observed.

STALIN GOES MUSICAL

What Stalin wants is music which has something of the rhythm of Gromyko and the lyrical beauty of a Vishinsky speech. He has listened to the music on the Voice of America broadcasts and is determined that the Russians shall never be captured by a couple of crooners from Pinsk or Minsk.

We can imagine a scene at the Kremlin should any Russian come up with "Too Fat Polka."

SONG COMPOSER:
"Here's a silly ditty,
You can sing it right away,
Now here is what you say;
Say it while you may."

STALIN: "Stop! The opening line is too bourgeois. You start off with the premise that the song is silly. In Russian music nothing can be silly. And that line 'you can sing it right away' is a waste of words. Only a stupid Britisher or American has to be told he can sing a song right away."

COMPOSER (resuming):
"Here's a silly jingle,
You can sing it night and noon,
Here's the words, that's all you need,
'Cause I just sang the tune."

STALIN: "How decadent! Jingles! Bah! This song is an attempt to introduce commercials to the Soviet Republic. It is a capitalistic plot."

COMPOSER:
"Oh, I don't want her,
You can have her,
She's too fat for me,
She's too fat for me,
She's too fat for me."

STALIN: "What nonsense! The Soviet mind rebels against any such philosophy. The question of weight never stops a Russian. Only a weakling nation declines a dance with a woman over a point of poundage. Unless you wish to find yourself in Siberia, you will change it to something like this:

I don't want him,
You can have him,
He's a Marshall planner;
He's too dumb, he's too corrupt,
He's too much of a warmonger for me."

COMPOSER: "If you'll bear me through, it goes on like this, sir: 'I get dizzy, I get numbe
When I'm dancing with my jumbo.'"

STALIN: "Did Marx get dizzy dancing? Do you find anything in Lenin's works about getting numbe, however great the task? A Russian is strong and resolute. If he dances with a jumbo he does it like a man. Change it to something like this:
'I get mystic, I get stic
With a girl that's capitalistic.'"

COMPOSER: "Please hear the chorus:

Can she prance up a hill?
No! No! No! No!
Can she dance a quadrille?
No! No! No! No!"

STALIN (suddenly enraptured):
"Wait! You've got something there in the true Russian spirit of the times. Cut out every line in the song except the ones with the 'No! No! No! No!' in it."

COMPOSER: "Very good sir."
STALIN: "And listen. . . Put in more 'Noes!'"

The burglar alarm system on a bank stuck up the other day had been out of order six months. That's carrying threat too far, say we. "There has been no racket in the disability retirement system. All cases have been carefully screened and nobody able to work has got through." — Brig. Gen. Anderson. Easter Seals gave Jimmy a brace for his paralyzed left leg and soon will provide him with an artificial limb to replace the right leg he lost in an automobile accident.

DISPLACED PERSONS PROBLEM . . . More and more Americans are becoming increasingly aware of the moral responsibility that is theirs—and all humanity's—in finding homes for the displaced persons of Europe. Congressional legislation to permit DPs to enter the U. S. is one possible step toward a partial solution. Here, Sen. Homer Ferguson (Rep., Mich.) discusses such pending legislation with eight DPs.

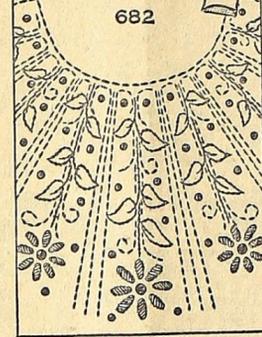

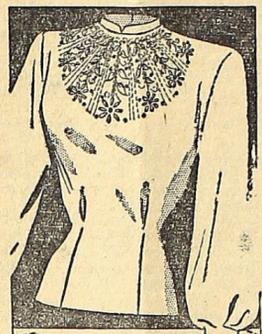

COMPASSION . . . It happened in Montrose, Calif. There was the usual tumult and omnipresent curious throng that accompany every automobile accident. King's Touch to Cure

Certain forms of tuberculosis once were called the "king's evil," because it was believed that the king's touch could effect a cure.

Just a Gob's Mess

The word mess comes from the Latin "missum," meaning sent or placed in position. Thus, the word came to mean a dish sent to the table, and eventually to describe the dining parties into which a ship's company or a regiment is divided.

RAS'BRIES
By SETH BABITS

AMONG the million-odd things Spence wanted to do was visit Topley's. He'd had a yen for Topley's back there on the desert wastes. He craved it as a cat would catnip or a homesick Eskimo, an iceberg.

And now, as he hurried his chunky form up the narrow street, the blue neon above Topley's window blazed welcome in letters two feet high.

Spence slid into a seat. He breathed, "Razberry soda, please, Topley special."

He closed his eyes and envisioned a monument of pink and white.

A girl's voice, clear and soft, reached him.

"Ras-bry soda," she informed.

"Without ras-bries."

He raised his head. Her eyes were warm and gray. An amused smile bowed her lips.

"Without—" he faltered.

Her manner humored his confusion. But Spence didn't see that. It struck him she was part of the soda. That the dream also took her in.

He watched her scoop out a gob of ice-cream, drop it into a tall glass, squirt in a crimson syrup and heard the harsh gurgle of carbonated water. The glass was placed before him.

He placed his lips to the straw and pulled. Coldness luxuriously flowed over his tongue, daubed his palate, trickled down his throat and touched off revelations of deliciousness he'd almost forgotten. It evoked imagery. Lying face upward in a shallow mountain lake . . . elastic stars shimmering on waters above . . . night winds whispering of giant pines . . . drifting . . . drifting in a rowboat . . . and a girl beside him . . . gray-eyed and pretty . . . a girl like . . . and he looked up. He felt the impact of her presence.

She said, "You enjoyed that?"

Enjoyed! He'd known the priceless-ness of a cold glass of water. He grinned.

"Hit the spot like a letter from home."

Spence expected a smile, but she merely picked up his empty glass and erased the moist ring beneath with an efficient stroke of a damp cloth. He felt he'd missed the target, but wide. He rose awkwardly and plunged a hand into his pocket. His coin vibrated on the counter. A frustrated ring.

The cash register crr-unged dismissal. Spence half-wheeled to go. In turning, his eye caught the tab, NO SALE! The girl's hand swept to her blouse pocket. The clink of metal told him his coin had joined others.

It was none of his concern, yet the act had been so brazen. He heard himself saying, "Don't they treat you right, here?"

Spence couldn't make out her expression. "They do," she answered succinctly.

"I saw you pocket that money."

"So what?" her coolness irritated him.

"If the owner caught you—"

"There's nothing he could do about it," she began to straighten a row of glasses before her. The gesture tokened disinterest in his opinions. More, it infuriated him.

"I wouldn't have believed it," he managed.

Instantly he was sorry for her. He noticed that dark lashes rested on her cheeks. He realized also his heart was thumping and there was a quaver in his voice that he couldn't control.

"Why don't you ask for a raise?"

"I can't—"

"Then quit. Get another job."

A tall man loomed in the doorway. He was thick shouldered, and muscles like Idaho potatoes bulged his arms, laden at the moment with two big paper bags.

Spence glanced at the girl. Beneath her coolness, he thought he detected an undercurrent of excitement.

She said courteously, "Did you get everything?"

The man shrugged his shoulders and laid the bags on the counter. "Yeah," he grunted. "Exceptin' powdered sugar." His tone was gruff. He tore the bag down the center.

Spence stared. There, tucked in between two packages lay a jar of raspberries. Atop the pile glistened another of cherries, bright, red, full, exciting and prophetic of delight.

Vaguely, he could hear the man counting. Meaningless numbers. He'd have to have a Topley special first, then take care of the girl. Spence regarded her expression. Injury dominated her fair face and a pensive smile hovered about her lips. It rebuked him.

With sinking heart and forward thrust of lean jaw, Spence gulped and announced:

"Sir, I want to talk to you."

"What's botherin' you, son?"

Spence cleared his throat. "You look like a regular guy," he began.

"Now, supposin' you had a conscientious employe. You'd want to keep her, huh?"

"You said it," the man nodded vigorously.

"Now if you had a person like that and you felt she was competent to take care of the store," Spence took a deep breath and plunged, "would you give her a raise if she was to ask you. Would you?"

"Guess so," the man acknowledged.

"How much?"

"Well," the man's thick shoulders heaved. "Maybe ten," he said at last.

"You heard him," Spence turned triumphantly toward the girl, "I'm a witness."

She nodded. Her eyes were glowing.

"If you'll excuse me, son," the man was saying, "I'm kind of busy. I got a lot of deliveries to make."

He handed a paper to the girl. "Here's the bill," he remarked.

"Thanks. I'll file it. Oh, yes," Spence saw her reach into her blouse pocket. "I've got two new quarters," she offered.

"Swell," he glowed with delight. He placed a fifty cent piece on the counter. "I just need about six more," he said as she rang up the money, "and I'll have enough for the kid's birthday. Thanks a lot, Miss Topley."

Spence was up. He was past the threshold and into the street. A detaining hand touched his shoulder. He brushed it off.

"Pu-leez," and a slim figure twisted around and blocked his passage.

"What's the big idea," he demanded.

"I couldn't help it. Once you got started—I couldn't stop you. How about having a super special—with me?"

Spence visioned maraschino cherries floating on a rose pond above submerged raspberries. He also discovered lights in her eyes, flashes of radiant promise. He placed her arm in his. The action seemed most natural. "I'm glad you've reformed," he grinned. They went back into the store.

So You Think You Have Moods

A young navy lieutenant, not too long out of the service, told me over the luncheon table the other day that he became very much discouraged over himself. I pointed out he hadn't any reason to be. He has a good job. He's doing it well.

"That's just the trouble," he said. "I'm not doing it well. I know I'm not. One day I feel sure that I have everything a man needs to be successful and happy. Then the next day I'm clear down in the dumps. It's my moods. Isn't there anything a person can do about moods?"

I told him, as I am presently going to tell you, that of course there is something anyone can do about his moods. I told him furthermore something he never heard of before, that having moods is perfectly normal, perfectly natural, and a good rather than a bad thing.

We know a good deal more about moods now than we did a few years ago, for now we know that at certain times we are going to be, happy, regardless of how things break for us, while at others we are going to feel depressed, also regardless of how things break.

Largely responsible for this information is Dr. Rexford Hershey of the University of Pennsylvania, one of the first scientists to study our emotional curves.

By his researches Dr. Hershey proved that we all have our ups and downs and these occur with regularity. We are elated, cheerful, pleasant, unpleasant, peevish, grouchy. That is one cycle. Then we become elated, cheerful, pleasant, and so forth, again. Our lives are a series of cycles—emotional cycles.

These cycles, moreover, appear with almost exact regularity. With some persons they appear every month; with others every two or three months. Highly emotional people go through their emotional cycles often in less than two-weeks' time, then start all over again; they are always in a dither. But long or short, each of us has his emotional curve.

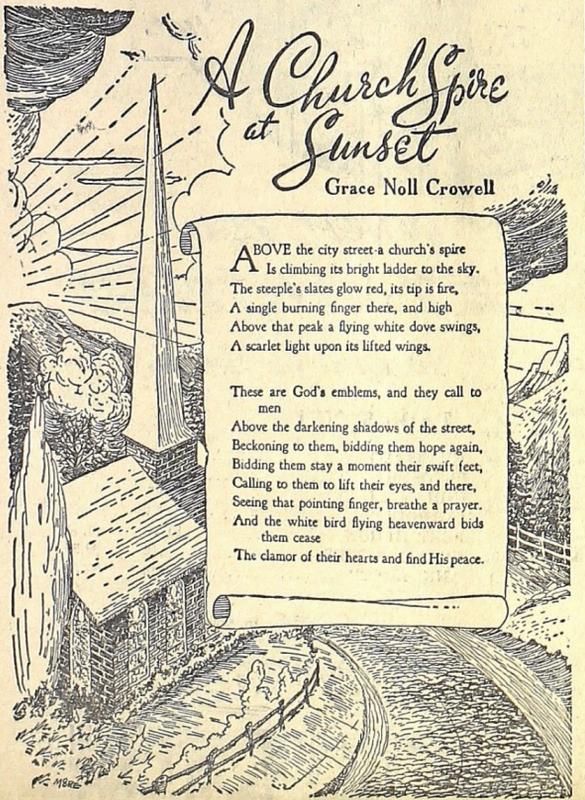

Maybe you are wondering what you can do to control this curve. You can't control it, but you can disguise it, so that regardless of how you really feel, you put your best foot forward where the rest of the world is concerned.

And how do you do that? It's simple. Just remember that we take our emotions from our actions, not our actions from our emotions. In other words, to feel cheerful, just act cheerful. The next time you reach the low point of your emotional curve, try that. Act cheerful, talk cheerful, and you will be cheerful.

These are God's emblems, and they call to men

A Church Spire at Sunset
Grace Noll Crowell

ABOVE the city street a church's spire is climbing its bright ladder to the sky. The steeple's slates glow red, its tip is fire, A single burning finger, there, and high Above that peak a flying white dove swings, A scarlet light upon its lifted wings.

These are God's emblems, and they call to men
Above the darkening shadows of the street,
Beckoning to them, bidding them hope again,
Bidding them stay a moment their swift feet,
Calling to them to lift their eyes, and there,
Seeing that pointing finger, breathe a prayer.
And the white bird flying heavenward bids them cease
The clamor of their hearts and find His peace.

For Joyful Cough Relief, Try This Home Mixture

This splendid recipe is used by millions every year, because it makes such a dependable, effective medicine for coughs due to colds. It is so easy to mix—a child could do it.

From any drugstore, get 2 1/2 ounces of Pinex, a special compound of proven ingredients, in concentrated form, well-known for its soothing effect on throat and bronchial irritations.

Then make a syrup by stirring two cups of granulated sugar and one cup of water a few moments, until dissolved. No cooking needed. Or you can use corn syrup or liquid honey, instead of sugar syrup.

Put the Pinex into a pint bottle and fill up with your syrup. This gives you a full pint of cough medicine, very effective and quick-acting, and you get about four times as much for your money. It never spoils, and is very pleasant—children love it.

You'll be surprised by the way it holds off coughs, giving quick relief. It loosens the phlegm, soothes the irritated membranes, and helps clear the air passages. Money refunded if it doesn't please you in every way.

'Columbus Clocks' Found To Be but Fair Souvenirs

At the Chicago World's fair (Columbian exposition) in 1893, thousands of souvenir clocks were sold bearing a portrait of Columbus and the date 1492, says Collier's. Years later upon the death of the original purchasers, a large number of these souvenirs came into the possession of descendants and others, many of whom, believing they owned "a clock brought over by Columbus," sought an estimate of its value from clock authorities and antique dealers, only to be disillusioned.

Michael Curtiz, who is responsible for more Technicolor films than any other motion picture director, says that the overuse of color on the screen has passed. To prove it, he shot an entire bedroom scene in "Romance on the High Seas" in shades of gray; the only other colors are supplied by the gowns worn by Doris Day and Janis Paige. Let's hope others will follow suit.

Robert Young has been in New York, seeing the shows and doing all he can to promote his new Technicolor Western, "Relentless"; Columbia will release it, but Young co-stars and is co-producer. He bought the rights to the story from Ricardo Cortez, set up Cavalier Productions, with Donald "Red" Barry, the cowboy star, and so has an interest in his first Western's financial end.

Hollywood's television experts predicted recently that video will never go in for telecasting full-length feature movies; they think that, as in radio, condensations of pictures will be used. So far only sports events have seemed really satisfactory in the new medium; the CBS job on the big Westminster dog show was tops. Had Fred Allen's sponsor.

Comedian Alan Young will get top billing when Tony Martin leaves his Wednesday night ABC show, March 21. Evelyn Knight will remain with the show, and Gordon McCrae will move from his Sunday night spot on CBS to replace Martin.

JOHN DEERE DEALER to PLAY HOST TO FARMERS and THEIR FAMILIES

"DOCTOR JIM" starring Stuart Erwin, is Feature Picture in big John Deere Day Program

Fred Holzheuer, local John Deere Dealer is inviting all farmers and their families in this and neighboring communities, to attend his big John Deere Day Program to be held at the Hale Community Building March 18, at 10 o'clock.

According to Mr. Holzheuer, this year's John Deere Day Program will be of special interest to anyone who has anything to do with farming.

The main attraction is a new specially produced Hollywood feature "Doctor Jim," which stars Stuart Erwin, a leading entertainer on the screen for many years. "Doctor Jim" is a friendly, warm-hearted picture that pays a fine tribute to a small community's leading citizen—the country doctor. You'll like Doc and his wife, Sally—they're human folks who'll tug at your hearts and provide plenty of chuckles, too.

In the supporting cast are such other well-known artists as Barbara Wooddell, Hobart Cavanaugh, William Wright and Netta Packer.

In addition to "Doctor Jim," several other new, all-talking pictures will be shown. They include "Keep Your Eye on the Soil"—an educational picture that sounds a warning on one in agriculture can afford to ignore—soil maintenance. "Doubting Thomas"—interesting story that will give you some new slants on new John Deere Models "A" and "B" Tractors. "Short Cuts in Forage Harvest"—which demonstrates the way to shorter, easier, and more profitable harvesting of hay and forage crops "Save More Corn at Lower Cost," and "What's New for '48."

According to Fred Holzheuer admission to the John Deere Day Program is by ticket only. Any farmer who has not received his tickets or needs more can get them free at the Hale Hardware & Implement Co. before the day of the show.
