Annexation Election Next Wednesday

Proposal to Unite Schools by Joining East Tawas District

Tawas City and Fractional School District No. 7 of Tawas Township would become a part of East Tawas School District, No. 1, Fractional if a majority of the voters in the Tawas City district vote "yes" at the special election which will be held next Wednesday afternoon and evening at the city hall.

The proposition is submitted by the Tawas City Board of Education will read on the ballot as follows:

Shall the School District of Tawas City and Fractional No. 7 of Tawas Township be annexed to and become a part of the School District of East Tawas No. 1, fractional, Isoco County, Michigan, for the purpose of making both districts a single school district of the third class?

YES
 NO

This is a far reaching proposal and every eligible voter in the district should take part in this election and vote.

The move to unite the two school districts was the outcome of several joint meetings of the East Tawas and Tawas City Boards of Education held during the winter to discuss school problems during which East Tawas invited the Tawas City district to be annexed to the East Tawas district.

Editor's Note—Whether you vote "yes" or "no," the above is a reminder that the special election is next Wednesday. Below are some of the shortcomings of the proposal and the implications because of the East Tawas preponderance of voters.

Before submitting the proposal to the voters of the Tawas City District there was no agreement between the two boards as to where a new school building should be located. A new school building is one of the principal objects of annexation and its location is important to the people of both cities.

It was agreed that Tawas City should have three men on the seven man board of education this coming year. East Tawas offered to have three members resign from its board to be replaced by three men from the Tawas City Board of Education. These men to be appointed by the East Tawas Board of Education. However, at the end of the first year, all such members appointed would automatically go out of office. Three new members would then be elected by the people of the combined area.

With a preponderance of voters in East Tawas, there is no assurance that Tawas City will be as (Continued No. 3, Back Page)

U of M Inspector Gives View on Move to Unite

Board of Education Presents Opinion of Dr. Edgar Johnston

The Tawas City Board of Education in submitting the proposal of annexing the school district with the East Tawas School District as proposed by the East Tawas Board of Education, offers the following information which has been presented to it concerning the subject.

The Tawas City Schools were last inspected by the University of Michigan during the last school year. One paragraph of the report written by the inspector, Dr. Edgar G. Johnston, reads as follows:

"It is very clear to an outside visitor that the attempt to maintain two competing school systems two miles apart is uneconomic and harmful to pupils, since neither community is able with its resources to maintain a comprehensive school program at the level desired. I was glad to hear of recent activities which have involved East Tawas and Tawas City in common community projects. It is hoped that a pooling of educational resources may be effected in the near future with a consequent advantage to pupils. Under these circumstances the crowding of classrooms can be eliminated, more effective use can be made of present facilities, and the joint districts would have sufficient resources to maintain a school with adequate facilities and playground space. It would seem to me that the attainment of this object should be a major consideration of school officials and responsible citizens of both communities. It would seem wise to advise with the State Department of Public Instruction in regard to possible organization of such a school district."

NEM League Opener Here With Omer

Last Week's Game With Twining Club Rained Out

The old bug-a-boo—rain, dampened opening day last week in the Northeastern Michigan League, with no games played. The Tawas City game with Twining will be played later in the season.

This Sunday, May 16, opening day will be observed in Tawas City, with Omer furnishing the opposition. Mayor J. D. LeClair will be on hand to throw out the first pitch, and opening day ceremonies will be observed. Season tickets are on sale now, and if you haven't yours, buy one now from members of the Tawas City baseball team.

Score cards will be given out at the game, and on the card, besides the actual score card, will be a list of all Tawas City games, player lists of all teams in Northern Division of the NEM League, and advertising by local merchants. Money derived from this advertising was used to furnish insurance for members of the team. It will cover practices, games, and traveling to and from contests.

Let's have a good crowd out Sunday to give your Tawas City team the right send-off in the inaugural.

The FICTION Corner

SUBWAY LOCHINVAR

By PAT HILKER

JEFF had a pocketful of nickels, but he followed her to the change booth. He stood behind her in the line, his eyes noting every detail from her soft, short black curls to her doll-size suede shoes. He even approved of her hat, a warm plum color the exact shade of coat and shoes.

He was so busy with his survey that he failed to notice the nickel she left in the worn wooden cup in the shelf.

"Hey, Lady," the money-changer yelled after her, "You left your change!"

She must not have heard the man, for she was already through the turnstile and was disappearing down the stairs to the platform. Jeff tried to make his voice sound casual as he told the man, "I'll give it to her."

The man grinned. "Sure don't blame you."

Jeff fumbled in his haste to get through the turnstile. He followed her downstairs and spotted her in the middle of the crowd on the platform, watching the F train roll in.

"Your change," he panted, "You left your change at the booth."

She stared up at him, and the impact of the incredibly dark velvety eyes tossed his heart into some rosy world far, far away. Desperately he searched for the smooth, brilliant, exactly right thing he never could think to say until it was too late. But, "You left your change," he repeated in vain, and held out the nickel.

"Why, thank you very much," she said, and her voice was just what it should have been—low and soft and sweet. "How nice of you to chase after me!"

"Oh, that's all right," he said, "I . . . I . . ." and there he stuck.

She smiled rather vaguely at him, waited a minute, and started to turn away when he failed to think of anything else to say.

"Wait, please!" he shouted at her. He didn't need to shout—he was right beside her—so close that the crowd rushing out of the train threw her against him. For a breathless moment, he saw her tiny hand clutch at his coat, smelled the wonderful sweetness of her perfume as she laughed up at him. He supported her elbows and helped her catch her balance.

"This seems to be your day for rescuing me," she said, "Thanks again."

Before he could say another word, she was inside the car and the door was closing. Then he realized he hadn't found out her name or anything about her except that her left hand was innocent of rings—wedding or otherwise.

He darted down the platform and found a last late-closing door. It didn't help much to know that he was on the same train with her—one that he had no business on. It was jammed and he struggled hopelessly to get back to her car. He died a thousand deaths at 34th street, 23rd and 14th, afraid she would get off and he would miss her in the mob.

It happened at West 4th street, but he saw her in time and bounded after her, down the stairs to the Sixth avenue platform, barely keeping her in sight.

He thought she looked right at him, just before she wheeled and ran back up the stairs. "Hope she isn't afraid of me—might peg me for a wolf," he told himself. "No—that's silly! Probably didn't even see me." He chased back up the stairs—to find that she was not on the downtown platform. He looked behind the news stand, at both ends of the long platform—she was not in sight.

It dawned on him to look across the tracks at the uptown platform—where he saw her, just before the train pulled in.

He skidded all the way down the stairs, landing in an ungraceful and thoroughly disgruntled heap at the bottom. By the time he untangled his long arms and legs and got across the mezzanine floor and back up the uptown stairs, the train was pulling out and she was gone.

He was sunk, stymied, and he didn't have the remotest chance of catching her—of finding out what any half-wit should have asked her before he returned the precious nickel. Who was she? Where did she live? Did she travel the same route every day? Did she work—did she—he didn't have the slightest clue as to how to find her again—ever.

Cursing himself for a blithering idiot, he stepped on the next train that came along. Might as well go back to 42nd street and ride his usual train back to his lonely room and his lonelier thoughts.

Of course he decided to be at that change booth every day for the rest of his life, if necessary, until he found her again. He pondered an ad to run in the Times: "Will the beautiful lady with the dark eyes who forgot a nickel at the change booth at 42nd street on the night of . . ."

Back at 42nd street, he stood gloomily staring at her for several minutes before he realized it. She was standing on the downtown platform again, right where he had first muffed his chances with this girl he had dreamed all of his life of some day meeting. She was talking to a man, so absorbed that she didn't even glance in his direction.

Once more Jeff dashed upstairs, downstairs and along the platform until at last he could reach out and grasp her arm.

She looked up then, surprise widening her dark eyes, and let out a blood-curdling scream. "Help! Police—Help!" She backed away from him, still screaming and started toward a blue-uniformed subway guard.

Jeff spotted her in the middle of the crowd on the platform, watching the F train roll in. "Your change," he panted, "you left your change at the booth."

him! What was so frightening about him? He puzzled and groused over that problem while he drank two cups of coffee in a little place across the street. He didn't get the answer until he reached into his pocket for his wallet to pay his check. The wallet was gone.

Jeff remembered the appealing way her dark eyes had held his when she was thrown on his chest on the platform—remembered those pretty little white hands as they clung to his lapel—tugging at his heart strings—and his wallet.

There is nothing much in-between. Shoulder interest in the blouses is modified, they're somehow softer and more extended to give a flattering silhouette.

Stripes and plaids are very good for blouses, and the skirts boast of checks, solids and plaids.

You can't go wrong if you select white because that is one of the big things this season, but white is very effectively combined with black as well as very bright and rich monotonous like royal, kelly and red.

In stripes and plaids the favorite color combinations are salmon and turquoise, lime and lilac as well as gold and gray.

When you look at the picture in playsuits, there are not only very delectable solids that go well with these patterns, but also prints such as you've never seen.

If you're the tailored type, stay with the solids in rayon or linen, for they're sleek and cool and always make you look beautiful. If you're more casual, try an all print or a print and solid combination.

Styles in Play Clothes Considered Interesting

Whatever your feelings about the new look, you're certain to like what they're showing in the casual department. You'll find many backless dresses that come with boleros that will make them just right for street wear. Shorts come with halters, and in many cases the skirts that cover them are voluminous. You'll bask in their luxury.

Naturally, if you golf, you'll want a smaller type of skirt, such as a four gored type topped by a halter, or something even more classic. You'll find the boleros very practical and this means that with so many parts to a dress you can mix prints and monotone colors.

Choose that style that will suit your activities, and then play the material with the same thing in mind. If you make the four-piece dress I've mentioned, you'll find it very practical for many needs such as golf, shopping, tennis or the beach.

Perk up the outfit with white pique piping to make the clothes trim and neat. The boleros are enhanced with large collars as well as the new three quarter length sleeves.

Washability is one of the requisites to look for in playsuit material. If, to that, you can add an easy ironing feature, so much the better for keeping spic and span.

Judge Your Workmanship By Professional Standards

The dress, bolero or top should fit at the shoulders without any pulling or straining. The shoulder seam should lie about ¼ inch back of the center of the shoulder and be absolutely straight from neckline to sleeve seam.

If you are square shouldered you don't need much padding. If the shoulders are round and sloping you'll need just enough padding to make the dress look proper.

If your dress or blouse has a collar, the latter should lie flat without wrinkling. Wrinkles from neckline to shoulder are certainly an indication of tightness somewhere around the neckline, shoulder of sleeve seam.

In a season where brief jackets are following much the same silhouette, it's the detailing that will add fashion and distinction. There are cleverly cut pockets to add hip interest to a close fitting shortie, flaring cuffs of many cuts and collars that are a foil to bright chiffon scarfs worn knotted about the throat.

FINISHING TOUCHES

Be Smart!

How will you have your footwear when summer comes—colored or white? One happy solution is many colors with a touch of white, gay as a Mardi Gras harlequin! Another is pure white linen which you wear white or have dyed to match your favorite suit or dress. Very important, too, are the off whites, such as sand or natural, often in combination with russet leather.

Style Notes for Skirts and Blouses

Skirts are very full this season, even, or especially, if they are the casual cottons. They swirl with action and have tiny waistlines.

Blouses, too, are of great interest, and they boast of the gay nineties look. Collars are very tiny or large.

LET'S TALK ABOUT You

BY CHARLES B. ROTH

Tact—A Daily Need

One of the chief qualities of those whom you like and admire is a quality known as tact.

Chances are that in your lifetime you've known very few men and women who were completely tactful. But haven't you known scores and scores who were not?

You know the kind I mean—men and women who always are saying untactful things that make you unhappy, that fill you with doubts about yourself, that give you moments when you wonder whether there is such a thing as a kindly person in the world.

Tact is without doubt the essence of charm, graciousness and of gentleness. But do you know what it is?

It's merely the perception of what to do or say under delicate or difficult circumstances. That's a definition of tact. But tact is much more than a definition really.

Tact is really a way of life. You can't be tactful unless you are thinking about other people, about what they like, about their rights and feelings more than you think about your own.

The real value of tact in your life is that it relieves tension and glosses over situations that might endanger friendships or cause you to lose self-respect in the eyes of other persons. If you have tact, you balance both sides and never willfully offend another person.

At the risk of appearing untactful, let me tell you that no one ever is born with tact, but everyone who ever had it acquired it. And you can acquire it just as easily and just as surely as anyone else can. Do you want to know how?

I've already hinted at that earlier yourself. And that's the advice I am going to give you now.

Think of that other person, try to see his viewpoint, try to see what his likes and dislikes are. Ask yourself what you would do if your respective roles were reversed. And then when you express yourself either by word or action, express yourself in unselfishness in the way you think he would like you to.

Woman's World

Select Washable, Wearable Clothes for Informal Wear

By Ertta Haley

THERE are many of us who don't consider ourselves dressmakers of any skill, but I've yet to see the woman who doesn't like to make something for herself, even if it's only a simple picnic blouse and skirt.

The materials which have reached the market recently are intriguing enough to bring everyone to their beck and call. You'll see the most delightful cottons, exquisite rayons and nice sleek, cool linens. The colors are everything and more you've desired, so why not just go on a little, if not a big spree, and see the pleasure of sewing something for yourself.

If you like picnics and gardening, you'll be fascinated with the full skirts with their swish of ruffle. If you like sports, you'll certainly want to make a pair of shorts and skirts as well as blouse for your activities. At least you certainly will if you see some of the nice prints available.

Choose your pattern first to fit you and the activity; then choose the fabric to fit the pattern as well as the activity. Let these all combine to make a more attractive you.

Don't feel that you have to finish the garment at one sitting. Cut at one, baste at another and then sew it altogether, leaving the fine finishing touches for another sitting. In this way you won't hurry the work and become careless.

I Think That God is Proud

Grace Noll Crowell

I THINK that God is proud of those who bear
A sorrow bravely—proud indeed of them
Who walk straight through the dark to find Him there
And kneel in faith to touch His garment's hem.
Oh, proud of them who lift their heads to shake
Away the tears from eyes that have grown dim,
Who tighten quivering lips and turn to take
The only road they know that leads to Him.
How proud He must be of them—He who knows
All sorrow, and how hard grief is to bear!
I think He sees them coming, and He goes
With outstretched arms and hands to meet them there,
And with a look, a touch on hand or head,
Each finds his hurt heart strangely comforted.

GRANTLAND RICE

There seems to be a general opinion that the opening of a big-league season is an interesting item to only 10 cities in which the 16 clubs are parked. Nothing could be farther off the track of truth.

The 16 big-league teams are largely made up of ballplayers from the hamlets and the villages of the country who take a deep pride in the exploits of a native son. The big-league cities are only the spectators. They rarely contribute any of the talent needed to carry on the show. Here are a few examples: Ewell Blackwell from San Dimas, Calif.; Phil Cavaretta, Wilmette, Ill.; Bill Nicholson, Chesterton, Md.; Larry Jansen, Forest Grove, Ore.; Harry Walker, Leeds, Ala.; Bob Feller, Van Meter, Iowa; George Kell, Swifton, Ark.; Phil Marchedon, Penetang, Ont.; Bill Johnson, Montclair, N. J.; Joe DiMaggio, Dom DiMaggio, Martinez, Calif., and Bobby Doerr from Illane, Ore.

After all, Ty Cobb came from Royston, Ga.; Mathewson from Factoryville, Pa.; Lajoie from Woonsocket, Cy Young and Alexander from outposts in Ohio and Nebraska. Baseball is a small-town game—a village enterprise. There is little room for sandlots in the big cities. The cities only supply the spectators. They haven't time to bother about the kids who, in the main, can live or die unless they happen to be lucky enough to live under the rule of Commissioner Wallander of New York, who is vitally interested in their careers. There are other Commissioner Wallanders now—but not enough of them.

In the last few years, baseball has taken on a tremendous lift. It broke all attendance records in 1946. It broke these records again in 1947. It is my belief the old game will set a new cluster of marks in 1948.

This season, if one can judge from the spring hullabaloo should be baseball's all-time record year as far as attendance goes. The two leagues should pass the 20 million mark with something to spare. Which finds us hailing the Charley Ebbets of 30 years ago as he remarked: "Baseball is in its infancy."

Pennant Predictions

- AMERICAN LEAGUE
No. 1: New York Yankees.
No. 2: Boston Red Sox.
No. 3: Detroit Tigers.
No. 4: Cleveland Indians.
No. 5: Philadelphia Athletics.
No. 6: Browns, White Sox and Senators, neck and neck, for last place.

Under the sound leadership of Bucky Harris, the Yankees are picked to repeat for one solid reason—they look to be the most solid all-around team in the race. Early buds and blossoms are a far cry from the yellow and crimson leaves of late September, so in making a selection one must gamble with fate and the fortunes of war, the breaks of the game, through the five and a half months beyond.

The Red Sox are as good as the Yankees, perhaps a shade better, up to the important matter of pitching and strong reserves.

With their excellent pitching, the Tigers might win through the right and left arms Steve O'Neil can throw against the enemy. But the Tigers have neither an infield nor an outfield to match either the Yankees or the Red Sox.

Cleveland's improved Indians still belong in fourth place as Connie Mack's Athletics have a death grip on the top of the second division.

The White Sox, Senators and Browns are strictly minor league clubs who have no place in a big league.

They are out to live or make money on the four strong clubs where, on their own, they couldn't draw 300 thousand people. They are the league's chiselers. They should offer a spectacular battle for last place in the dizzy dip to the subway title. So we can forget about them as busy broom-men sweep away the debris.

- NATIONAL LEAGUE
No. 1: St. Louis Cardinals.
No. 2: Brooklyn Dodgers.
No. 3: Boston Braves.
No. 4: New York Giants.
No. 5: Cincinnati Reds.
No. 6: Pittsburgh Pirates.
No. 7: Chicago Cubs.
No. 8: Philadelphia Phillies.

This is a very different picture from the American league layout. It will be a much better and much tighter race from top to bottom. There certainly should be a much closer scramble among the Cardinals, Dodgers and Braves than the younger league can give you.

In picking the Cardinals over the Dodgers and Braves, one has to gamble with fate—a kind of fate that will leave most of Eddie Dyer's veteran athletes intact.

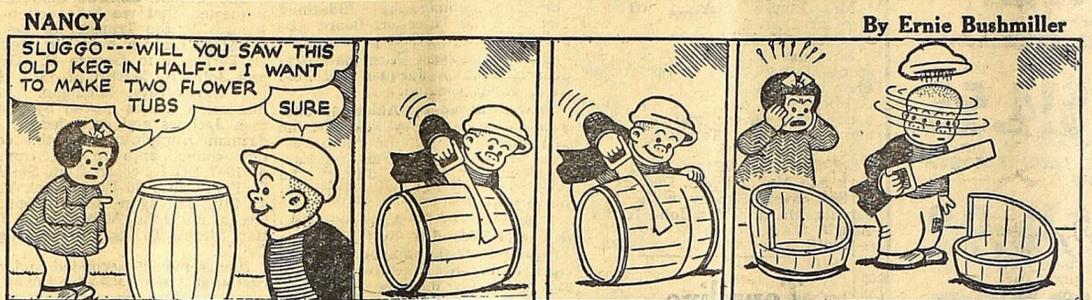

The Cardinals, in their first-line strength, have the best team in their league, but their reserves are weak and thin. They can afford few reverses. Their catching is none too hot. But they have a pitching staff that should be well ahead of all others—Dickson, Munger, Brecheen, Pollet, Hearn, Brazle and at least two others who can win a lot of games.

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS

Palestine Trouble Heads for Climax As Arab Nations Prepare to Attack; Vandenberg Gives Warning to Russ

By Bill Schoentgen, WNU Staff Writer

(EDITOR'S NOTE: When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of Western Newspaper Union's news analysts and not necessarily of this newspaper.)

CLIMAX: Palestine

With a clashing of arms and a babble of alarmed voices, events in Palestine appeared to be piling up for another minor but bloody climax in human history.

This particular crisis had its immediate beginning in a savage attack on the Arab city of Jaffa by members of Irgun Zvai Leumi, Jewish underground force. Fact that the Irgunists' foray against Jaffa was made in defiance of orders by Haganah, the regular Jewish militia, carried no weight in the rush of incidents that followed.

From Palestine's coastal plain, site of the neighboring cities of Jaffa (Arab) and Tel Aviv (Jewish), the focal point of the disturbances moved swiftly inland to the holy city of Jerusalem.

Arabs and Jews hastily deployed their on-the-scene forces in preparation for what stacked up to be a major battle for possession of Jerusalem. Facing each other across a scant 200 yards of no-man's land, each side had its eyes fixed on the strategic Alamein camp which the British were evacuating.

But that wasn't all. It soon became apparent that the Arab league nations surrounding Palestine did not intend to stay out of this fight.

Reports were current that six Arab nations had decided to invade the Holy Land with ground, sea and air forces before the British ended their mandate on May 15.

The whole thing was shaping up in the form of a more or less total Arab effort to crush completely the Jewish intention of creating a Zionist state in Palestine.

Worried United Nations delegates, meanwhile, cast about for a means to prevent the inevitable carnage, or at least to preserve the city of Jerusalem.

France pushed its sponsorship of a heavily-armed volunteer U. N. police corps to safeguard Jerusalem. Hint of the make-up of such a force was given in the suggestion that it might include 100 New York police volunteers, but no Russians. This protective army would number from 500 to 800 members.

While the Palestine situation leaped into a frantic state of flux, the United States kept discreetly out of it all in conformation to its recently adopted policy of apparent disinterest to what happens in the Holy Land.

DEFIANCE: Two Issues

In a surprise speech at a dinner given by Michigan chambers of commerce for the state's congressional delegation, Sen. Arthur Vandenberg served notice on Russia that:

1. The United States may join western Europe in a military alliance against Communist aggression, and
2. "We shall not surrender to Communist conspiracies in the United States."

Thus, the chief Republican proponent of bi-partisan foreign policy split the rind on two issues which, like grapefruit, will come more and more to be in the public eye as this year wears on.

Simply stated, those two issues are: Whether the U. S. should line up militarily alongside the recently formed union of western European nations, and whether the Communist party should be outlawed in this country.

They could become decisive issues in the presidential campaign. Indeed, Harold Stassen already has introduced one of them by coming out bluntly in favor of outlawing Communists in the U. S.

Vandenberg said, "We are suicidal fools if we do not root out and destroy any treason at home which may dream of bringing world revolution to the United States."

The Michigan senator only hinted at a U. S. military alliance with western Europe, but his remarks hardly could be misconstrued. What Vandenberg didn't say is that while the U. S. has no formal or official role in the union of western European nations, American aid and support, military-wise, of that union almost inevitably is implied.

Whether or not this nation will grant that assurance will come to be a towering question in the public mind soon.

SKY-HIGH: Bombing

A team of air force and army ordnance men is seeking better methods of hitting pin-point bomb targets from extremely high altitudes, out of reach of most anti-aircraft guns or fighter planes.

This joint organization is conducting most of its secret tests in the California desert at Muroc air base. Its assignment is to carry out research in bombing techniques, particularly at high altitudes.

OUTLOOK

The Dim Peace

Gen. Omar N. Bradley, army chief of staff, was taking a dim view of the possibilities of peace.

In fact, he admitted to the senate armed services committee, the prospect of a war is appreciably greater now than it was three months ago.

Adding forcefully to the pattern of evidence which U. S. armed forces representatives have been constructing to support their requests for a military draft and universal training, Bradley said:

"I think we would be neglecting our duty if we did not try to tell you that we are a little bit more afraid something will happen than we were three months ago when we were talking in terms of reserves."

And he added "we are not so sure" that war might not be looming in the immediate future.

To his testimony Bradley appended this clincher:

"We know that we are all speaking about Russia."

There it was — a responsible appraisal by the chief of staff of where the present talking war between Russia and the U. S. might lead.

What caused General Bradley to think the situation is more critical now than it was three months ago? He didn't say, but there is only one apparent explanation.

The tide of power politics has turned against Russia and is moving in favor of the western democracies. With ERP beginning to channel money and supplies into Europe, the fields most favorable to Communist growth — poverty, hunger and dissatisfaction — are starting to be reclaimed.

As far as getting control of western Europe was concerned, Communists saw their main chance go glimmering when they lost the Italian election. They have, in short, gone beyond the stage where they can carry out territorial acquisitions through political coups.

In order to expand further now, Russia probably would have to apply force, which, in this case, would be the Red army.

And that may be why General Bradley thinks war is more of a likelihood now than it was three months ago.

SMASHER: For Atoms

To expand further the constantly widening fields of atomic research, a gigantic new cyclotron will be built at the University of California at a total cost of nine million dollars.

In announcing the project the atomic energy commission said the new cyclotron—commonly known as an atom-smasher—would be 20 times more powerful than the 4,900-ton machine currently in operation at the Berkeley institution.

David E. Lillenthal, AEC chairman, provided a hint as to the kind of long range planning for peace the commission is visualizing when he said that the new cyclotron "serves notice to the world that it is the intent of the people of the United States to be pre-eminent in the development of fundamental science of all kinds."

Engineering already is under way on the huge atom-splitter, but it will take five years before it is completed. Conceived as 20 times more powerful than the most powerful cyclotron now operating, it will produce atomic bullets ranging in force from six billion to 10 billion volts.

At Large

Secretary of Commerce W. Averell Harriman has been named by President Truman as ambassador-at-large for the European recovery program. Harriman resigned his cabinet post immediately.

Money Talks

Now an inventor has come up with a check that not only will talk but will scream if it has been forged or tampered with.

Burgess Smith, who used to do legal counterfeiting for the U. S. treasury, claims that his check will identify itself verbally when it is passed through a special machine. And if it has been tampered with it will emit a shrill screech, indicating that it is worthless.

Target

Walter P. Reuther, president of the United Auto Workers (CIO), was seriously wounded when he was shot by an unknown assailant who fired a shotgun at him through the window of his Detroit home. Communists were suspected of being behind the attack because of Reuther's strong opposition to them in the union.

MINERS: Temporary

Let not the public be deceived by the spell of quiet that is reigning in the nation's soft coal mines and the temporary evaporation of John L. Lewis from the stage.

As it looks now, this peaceful situation is good only until June 30. Even while the miners continue to chop coal in the pits, they make it clear that they expect to "go back to their fishing on that date."

June 30 is the day the present wage agreement between the United Mine Workers and the coal operators expires. It is possible, of course, that a new agreement may be reached before then, but it is practically impossible to find anyone who thinks so.

After Lewis' tussle with Federal Judge T. Alan Goldsborough in which he and the union were fined a total of $1,420,000, the miners went back to work after hearing John L.'s "wish" that they do so. This, however, is regarded as merely a temporary truce.

One of the reasons advanced for Lewis' cantankerous delay in coming to terms on the pension dispute was that the mine leader was eking out the work stoppage as long as possible in order to deplete the nation's coal reserves and so put himself in a better bargaining position when the contract negotiations came up.

That he accomplished that end there is no gainsaying. Coal stocks went down almost to zero all over the country, resulting in curtailment of steel production, a cut in rail travel and various major and minor industrial shutdowns.

It is a fact, too, that industry will not have recovered its balance sufficiently by June 30 to cope adequately with whatever emergency Lewis might precipitate this time.

FOOD PRICES: Logical

Not that it makes it any easier to pay the grocery bill, but the reasons why food prices are so high are no mystery.

U. S. has been channelling food and resources into foreign countries at a rate and volume never before approached. Also, every American able to digest solid food is eating 17 per cent more than he did before the war.

Finally, until just recently, consumers have been spending their money on food because there was nothing much else available to buy. Those conclusions were reached by University of Wisconsin economists after an investigation into the causes of current high price levels.

Center of the whole spiral are grain prices. Strong exports of corn and wheat caused an upswing in prices on the commodity markets. More expensive grains cause prices of flour, bread, ham, pork loin and rib roasts to go up.

OREGON: Next Up

After whirling breezily through Ohio to the thorough disgruntlement of Sen. Robert Taft, campaigning Harold E. Stassen set his political sights on the May 21 Oregon primary election where he was due to joust with Gov. Thomas E. Dewey for that state's Republican convention delegates.

In a kick-off address in Portland Stassen refurbished his foreign and domestic policies for the edification of Oregon voters who will elect the 12-member GOP delegation.

Stassen was taking his Oregon campaign seriously because a large measure of importance was being attached to the election insofar as it would provide the first test of West coast opinion on Republican presidential contenders.

SHORTAGE: Farm Machinery

Behind the present shortage of farm machinery in the U. S. lies a now all-too-familiar story: More such machinery is being produced than ever before but it isn't enough to meet the demand.

Waiting list for farm machinery is phenomenally long, yet 131 per cent more tractors, cream separators and other pieces of farm equipment were produced in 1947 than were available in 1939.

U.S. Women Give Twin Beds the 'Cold Shoulder'

NEW YORK.—Twin beds are disappearing from the American scene because women dread a cold bed when they retire at night.

Norman S. Dine, who has helped thousands of sheep-counters with the soporific gadgets he sells at the Lewis and Conger Sleep shop, says women always have had the good sense to prefer double beds.

"During my 15 years of selling sleeping accessories and advice," he said, "they confided in me. They said they liked a double bed because sleeping beside a man was reassuring and restful."

Many dreaded a cold bed and others, Dine said, claimed it was their only chance to talk to their husbands.

"Practically all agreed it improved the chance for domestic harmony."

But, Dine said, the males couldn't see it that way. They insisted upon their privacy.

Men Are Individualists

They argued that in a double bed they couldn't retain their individualism. And all of them, according to Dine, wanted to be able to sprawl over the entire bed.

"So even though a sampling survey showed that men could sleep sounder in a double bed," Dine recounted, "we had to resort to subterfuge to lure them into one."

The subterfuge took the form of three devices, all of which will go down in history alongside Dine's 600 other sleepy-time inventions. They were dreamed up to give the woman back her partner while letting the man retain his rights.

The first device, Dine said, is a bundle bed. This has a gadget that can be thrown down the middle of the mattress, fencing off the partners. That, he pointed out, keeps the partners from poaching on each other's territory.

The second gadget is a mattress with a hard set of coils in the center. This is to discourage either partner from rolling into the center of the bed.

The third is an electric blanket with a cold zone in the center to keep either partner from grabbing more than his half.

Gadgets Aid Sleep

Dine's unique sleep shop has some other gadgets to help you snooze. He offers a lullaphone that lulls the wide-awake partner to sleep with its drowsy, steady tone; a head-warmer for bald scalps sensitive to cold and a singing pillow equipped with radio earphones.

Among the patrons of the world's only sleep shop are such notables as Mrs. Franklin Roosevelt, Mrs. Eugene O'Neill, Walter Winchell, Gipsy Rose Lee, Katherine Cornell, J. Edgar Hoover and Moss Hart.

"They are not incurable insomniacs," Dine said. "They've just learned they have to plan for a sleep in advance."

Nationwide Registration Of All Babies is Suggested

WASHINGTON.—A nationwide system of assigning serial numbers to all new-born babies has been proposed with the approval of the United States public health service.

Herbert R. Dunning, administrative officer for the services national office of vital statistics, told of the system.

He said it has been recommended by state and national compilers of vital statistics to achieve uniformity in the numbering of birth certificates.

"No federal agency is committed to the use of the number," Dunning told a reporter, "but it is conceivable that any agency could make use of such a number."

Under the "birth number" a number like this would be placed on the birth record: 125-48-125000.

The "1" would stand for the United States. The other two numbers in that segment "25," would stand for the particular state, each being assigned a two-digit number. The "48" would stand for 1948.

The third segment "125000" would mean that this birth record was the 125,000th filed in the records of that particular state.

Scientists to Probe Lack of Traffic Problems Among Fish

BIMINI, BAHAMAS.—If fish were people, 300 of them could board a subway train in two minutes without bumping, shoving or rubbing elbows. How do they do it?

That is one of the fish mysteries which scientists hope to solve at the Michael-Lerner marine laboratory here which Sir William Murphy, governor of the Bahamas, dedicated.

The $100,000 research center, only 60 miles east of Miami, was founded by the American Museum of Natural History. Lerner, noted game fisherman and trustee of the museum, is its principal backer. Dr. C. M. Breder, Jr., of New York, is scientific director.

Case of the Nazi Reception, Or Misleading Propaganda

By BAUKHAGE

News Analyst and Commentator

WASHINGTON—Last month there was a memorandum on my desk from the department of the army addressed to "all former war correspondents, subject: Army Day, 1948." It suggested that perhaps I had a war story that stood out in my mind that I would like to relate as an Army Day feature. The memorandum didn't state which war was preferred, if any, but I supposed that it didn't matter so long as it wasn't the next one.

I reported the landing on the Normandy beaches, the Battle of the Bulge and many of the other important events of the last war—from a microphone in Washington; my connection with World War I was less vicarious; my experiences during earlier conflicts such as San Juan, Gettysburg, Chapultepec, Yorktown and Hastings are a little hazy.

Therefore I decided that the department of the army might permit me to relate an adventure which provided a little comedy relief in 1939, in the nervous interlude, known as the "phony war," before the real storm broke. It went something like this:

It happened at Wesermuende, the German air and naval base, shortly after Britain and France had declared war on Germany. America correspondents still had considerable freedom, and I had managed to wrangle permission to interview the first British fliers shot down by the Germans. I did, but that isn't this story.

For all the careful German preparations for war, there was still a certain amount of confusion in the office of propaganda under the highly efficient father of lies, Dr. Goebbels, but I managed to get the use of a German army transport plane to fly me (with a German radio man) from Berlin to Wesermuende.

The war was roaring westward into Poland and the great Tempelhof airfield in Berlin was all but deserted when we arrived before dawn and were escorted with alacrity, and not a little wonderment, to our transport which already was warming up. We had been up all night and my colleague immediately fell asleep on a pile of parachute equipment. As soon as dawn broke, I busied myself watching the anti-aircraft batteries in the fields surrounding Berlin, gun pits in fields surrounded by complacent, cud-chewing cows who were, like the rest of the bemused population, unaware of what the Fuehrer was about to bring down on them.

For some reason we flew low, almost scratching our wings on the church steeples. At last my companion awoke. We were approaching the airfield. It was a lively spot. As we drew nearer, we could see a detachment of marines which came to attention as we approached. A half dozen staff cars were drawn up in a semi-circle, balanced by blue-jackets and ground personnel of the air force.

"We're lucky," my companion remarked, "some big brass must be coming, we'll see a parade." No other plane was visible though, as we circled a couple of times over the docks, thick with ships including the long-lost Europa, back on her dash from Murmansk. Finally we landed a couple of yards from the military formation which by now was drawn up at attention. We were a little embarrassed, for we were in plain sight of the imposing array, and were afraid we might suddenly bump into the visiting dignitary—and we were hatless and unshaven. I let my companion go ahead. There was no place to go, however, but in the direction of the naval detachment and their commanding officer. It later developed he was the commander of the base, a tall, slim, correct naval officer, perhaps a little nervous, though we were too nervous ourselves to realize it at the moment.

We advanced, like pups approaching a porcupine. A command rang out. The troops snapped to present arms, the officer saluted and drew a manuscript from his tunic, something new to me in military procedure—all I could think of was a painting of General Washington reading a message to his troops (and I always had thought that was a flight of the artist's fancy).

The officer began reading—it was a message of welcome all right. Finally, my companion (he was half-English, which may explain his fortitude) interrupted: "There must be some mistake. We are two radio correspondents."

It would be unfair to other excellent books to say that this is the best garden book yet published. In some ways it excels all others, but still there are other volumes which may contain more information on specific subjects.

Save your stubs for the Kremlin. The Journal of Living tells us that pencil and gum chewing is just a way of getting rid of aggressive tendencies.

Wallace says what we need is a good heart-to-heart talk with Stalin. Well, there's nothing to prevent him from going to Moscow to try his luck.

The British have invented a type-writer no higher than a matchbox. Looks as if the world of letters was a small one, too.

We explained briefly, and waited for the skies to fall. They didn't. The officer continued his speech without even dropping his monocle—just to be sure—editing it slightly to make it apply as he went. There was no question that he thought we were going to be, certainly OUGHT to be Goebells.

The formation melted away, the truck which had been requested to transport sound equipment started to load, all but one of the staff cars slunk away. There was only one red face, the airforce commander's, and he felt no embarrassment, but rage. This was a purely military field and I had held up the German war effort for half a morning, thus contributing my bit to Allied victory even before America was in the war.

For the rest, the only significant memory, except for my interview with those British boys, was the questioning by the German officers. Obviously they didn't share the complacent assurances of victory of the Nazi higher-ups—they remembered World War I.

Today the greatest danger to the peace is the possibility that the will, the purpose, the power of the United States will not be understood in time by the Russian command—that they will fail to recognize the risk of self-annihilation if they are taking in their "cold war," as the Kaiser and Hitler failed to realize it.

Roses, But Never A Spray of Yew

There are many good garden books, and I for one had about come to the conclusion that the final word on gardening had been written, when along came the Woman's Home Companion Garden Book (P. F. Collier and Son corporation, publisher, New York City) with many new angles. Edited by John C. Wister, director of the Arthur Hoyt Scott horticultural foundation, Swarthmore college, this book speaks with authority.

"It is correct," it states on page 472, "to speak of narcissus, and also correct to use the English term daffodil for all species and varieties of narcissus. There is confusion about this, a popular impression being that daffodils are the yellow kind, and narcissus the white kinds. There also has been confusion about the name jonquil. All the daffodils of the jonquil group are distinguished by their narrow, garlic-like foliage and by their characteristic bright yellow color, which is the same shade throughout the flower."

All of this interested me mightily as I had just been studying a photograph of a clump of narcissus in a popular magazine's "name this picture" contest. The leaves on the plant shown were broad, though the answer given by the editor was "jonquil." Obviously, even contest editors may err.

The narcissus discussion is a sample of Editor Wister's directness in this new garden book and there is more like it on every page.

Not the least interesting writing in this book is the foreword by the well-loved Liberty Hyde Bailey, dean of all gardeners, whose accomplishments need no eulogy here.

Another intriguing feature is the discussion and diagramming of various geographic areas according to their geological and climatic conditions. Most of us have been frost-bitten too often for comfort by blindly following the usual maps.

Additional data and measuring qualities have been added to long-established material in making a broader and yet more personal presentation of his problems to the gardener in any given section of the United States and Canada. The net result is the clarification of many heretofore-vague statements.

It would be unfair to other excellent books to say that this is the best garden book yet published. In some ways it excels all others, but still there are other volumes which may contain more information on specific subjects.

BARBS . . . by Baukhage

John Lewis tried to scramble our folklore. Like Siegfried, he seems to think he was completely immersed in dragon's blood, while the Taft-Hartley dragon appears to contain an Achilles heel.

TRUMAN AND HIS DOG

Somebody asked President Truman the other day what had become of Feller, the cocker spaniel pup presented to him last winter. "Oh, he's around," answered the President, admitting under pressure that the pooch was still non-resident at the White House and in charge of the presidential physician, Dr. Graham, over at his place. This is bound to cost Harry more votes.

A dog, especially a puppy, is good publicity. Affection for one warms the public heart. It gives the human touch to a man and to a situation. But Harry seems about as close to this pup as he does to Hank Wallace.

After a single day's blast of publicity when the dog arrived at the White House as a gift, Feller fell out of the news. It later developed that, not being housebroken, the pooch had been turned over to Dr. Graham. And now, months later, the animal is still an outsider. Mr. Truman's campaign backers had better look into this.

Any reputation a man may have built up for big-heartedness, authority and an ability to cope with major problems is shattered when the impression spreads that home-breaking a pup is too big for him.

We warn the Democratic national committee that all is lost unless it immediately takes action. The Republicans may circulate a photo of a sad-looking presidential pooch, alone and desolate, under the caption "When a Feller Needs a Friend."

Harry should adopt a more heart-warming dog policy at once. (Has he a pup policy? Is he for tolerance when it comes to housebreaking a hound? What is his doghouse problem, short term and long range? We pause for a reply.)

Better have the doctor bring the pooch back to the White House, Harry. He must be fairly well broken by this time. If not it might be a good idea to keep the dog and fire Dr. Graham.

Removal of a Landmark

To these eyes the destruction of the Charlie Schwab mansion, long a landmark on Riverside drive, New York, and stared at by countless visitors to the big town for more than half a century, is a sad sight. To us the Schwab place was the Riverside drive of yesterday . . . we can remember gazing at it from the top of a bus as a boy . . . and wondering how long it would take us to make Charles Schwab, the steel king, move over and make way for us to eclipse him as a wonderboy.

As it crumbles into dust something of New York goes with it, including the spirit of an era when a man wasn't hated because he had made money, when people smiled at the mansions of the rich and when a well-built house was not a novelty. The more you watch the wreckers struggling to tear down the Schwab place the more you appreciate the fact that the builders of yesterday never did it with a few stray nails.

Vanishing Americanisms

"What makes everything so quiet and peaceful around here?"

"He wouldn't dare do that; it would violate a treaty."

"Let's go out to dinner twice this week."

"Waiter, that was a fine dinner; here's 50 cents for yourself."

"This round is on the house."

"Charley, fill up those platters on the free lunch counter!"

Prospector Who Found Gold Mine Searches For Peace and Quiet

MINNEAPOLIS.—John Laskowsky, 59, a prospector, came here from Arizona to get away from the people who, he said, have driven him mad since he discovered a gold mine that might yield $25,000 per ton of ore.

He flew here with J. J. Bliss, a Minneapolis metal products manufacturer who took pity on Laskowsky after watching a crowd of people hound him about his gold mine.

"The poor guy was swamped by curious people all the time," Bliss said, "so he left the stake guarded by his son and a brother-in-law and came here with me."

Bliss said they were asking geologists from the University of Minnesota and the University of Colorado to go to the mine and examine it.

Laskowsky said he had been panning gold in the Wickenburg, Ariz., area for 15 years before he struck it rich. He had found small deposits often and had supported his family by panning them.

When he finally found the rich lode, Laskowsky said, he packed out $2,500 worth of ore on his back because "if anyone suspected what was going on, I might have got shot."

He showed photostats of the Wickenburg Sun which quoted an ore market owner as saying "Laskowsky's samples are the richest gold ore I've seen in almost a lifetime in the mining industry." He also had documents headed "State of Arizona Department of Resources" and "United States Mint, San Francisco" which reported that a 150 pound sampling of ore yielded $1,051.83 in gold.

"Generally, people figure that ore that pays even $25 a ton is worth mining," he said.

"I'm going back before long, but those people out there have got to let me alone. I just had to get away from them. They wouldn't let me sleep or eat or anything. They made me pan gold while they watched."

Fireman Rush to Extinguish Blaze—In Heating Stove

HARTFORD CITY, IND.—A three-year-old girl here spoiled a hot game of checkers in which Hartford City firemen were participating.

The child tried to call a cleaning company but got the fire station instead. She asked that a driver be sent to her home.

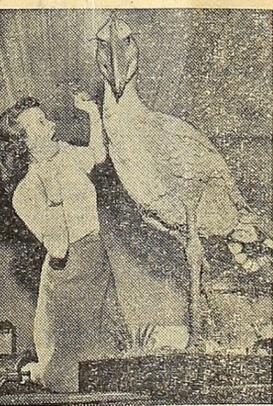

"Do you have a fire?" the fireman asked. "Yes," was the reply.

Engines roared, tires screeched and sirens whined as fire trucks drew up to the house. The little girl then explained of course they had a fire—in the heating stove.

Birth of Quintuplets in U. S. Is Possible Statistics Show

NEW YORK.—Despite the odds, some American mother most any day may have quintuplets who survive and grow.

By amazing coincidence, there have been at least three cases of quintuplets in the United States in the last 12 years. Two occurred only 20 months apart.

In each case, the quints were born prematurely and none lived more than half an hour. The chance that all five will survive is extremely thin.

What makes the births such a remarkable coincidence is that, by the rule that seems to apply to plural births, quintuplets would be expected once in about 50 million births! With the United States' birth rate around three and one-half million annually, quints would be expected, mathematically, only once in 15 years or so.

The three cases of quints so close together, doesn't mean that this rule is wrong, or that it won't happen again soon. American quints could be born tomorrow, or not for 100 years.

For the coincidence that brought so many quints in so short a time does not mean the rules were out of order. They are not expected to be applied to any one given year or even a few years. But taken over decades they are valid. Then the rates do not seem to vary much.

Survey Discloses That Glare Is No. 1 Foe of Auto Drivers

SAN FRANCISCO.—Glare is the No. 1 enemy of millions of motorists who drive at night, according to a nation-wide survey of the American Automobile association.

It characterized the existing situation in regard to automobile headlights as a "serious factor against safety, courtesy and law."

The survey showed that one-third of drivers at night either forget or refuse to dim their headlights for approaching cars.

Other findings revealed that automobile headlighting, long inadequate has not nearly kept pace in safety and efficiency with other automobile improvements. Hazards of night driving have been increased greatly by the large number of cars with lights incorrectly adjusted or focused, or with one or more blacked out.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

A traveling clothes line saves steps and eliminates walking on wet grass, etc. The wire may be threaded through a well pulley attached at the kitchen window and another on the garage, tree, post, or whatever is situated at a convenient distance and line is reeled out or in as clothes are hung or taken off.

Keep glass coffee makers fresh and sweet by frequently rinsing upper and lower bowls in baking soda solution. Rinse filters in solution (one tablespoon of soda to a cup of water), let dry, then rinse before using.

Roast meats will carve more easily if allowed to "set" a few minutes after they are taken from the oven. High ceilings appear lower when painted a dark, rich color—such as red or royal blue.

Open wrapper of wrapped bread carefully on one end. Replace unused slices of bread and roll wrapper down tight; bread will remain fresh until last crust is used.

Save time by placing sliced bacon in skillet without trying to separate slices; slices will separate easily with a fork as they begin to warm.

SPEEDED-UP COMFORT for so-called KIDNEY SUFFERERS

Backaches, leg pains, broken sleep, painful passages usually go so much quicker if you switch to Foley (the new kidney-bladder) Pills. They stimulate sluggish kidneys; then ALLAY BLADDER IRRITATION. That's the cause of most pains, aches, urges once thought entirely due to kidneys. So for quicker, longer-lasting relief, switch bladder as well as stimulate kidney action. Do this: use Foley (the new kidney-bladder) Pills; they also have direct sedative-like action on bladder. At your druggist. Unless you find them far more satisfactory, DOUBLE YOUR MONEY BACK.

How to help your sick child GET WELL FASTER

... as recommended in the interest of child welfare by ROSE G. ANDERSON, Ph.D. Director of The Psychological Service Center, New York

1. The after-effects of your child's illness are often more important than the illness itself. Pampering, catering to whims, oversolicitude reaches a child to dominate through weakness. Such well-meant kindness may prolong his convalescence.

2. You'll be smart to help him amuse himself. Give him something which doesn't require an adult's constant attention. Give him your "Eveready" flashlight... or get him one of his own. If he tires of flashing the beam, or flicking out imaginary signals, then...

3. Show him how to cut designs or figures from stiff paper and how to throw their shadows on the ceiling or wall. Moving the figures will make them dance. Watch his pride in what he's done. Watch him get well faster because he's happier!

Proof!... in the laboratory... In your own flashlight... "EVEREADY" BATTERIES OUTLAST ALL OTHER BRANDS!

Brighter light, longer life! That's what you want in a flashlight battery—and that's what you get with "Eveready" brand batteries. Laboratory tests prove it. And the best "laboratory" of all—your own flashlight—proves it! That's why "Eveready" batteries outlast all other brands—because they outlast all other brands!

The registered trade-mark "Eveready" distinguishes products of NATIONAL CARBON COMPANY, INC. 30 East 42nd Street, New York 17, N. Y. Unit of Union Carbide and Carbon Corporation

When Time Was Heavy
As early watches were large and too heavy to carry in the pocket, they usually were hung from the girdle. They often were called girdle watches.

The East Tawas P. T. A. will meet next Monday evening. Installation of officers will take place at this meeting, which will close the year's work. The History of the P. T. A. will be displayed. A silver tea will be served at the home of Mrs. C. J. Creaser in the afternoon, from three to five, as a P-TA benefit.

The J-Hop of East Tawas High School has been planned for May 14th.

Mrs. Lewis Bailey and daughters, Beverly and Patty, have been visiting for several days with relatives and friends at Hastings, Jackson and Battle Creek.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Bussineau and son, Marvin and Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Lindstrom of Detroit spent a few days at the Lindstrom home in East Tawas.

Mr. and Mrs. Carl Anderson of Ferndale spent Mother's Day with Mrs. Mary Anderson, in Baldwin, mother of Mrs. Carl Anderson.

Little Kay Smith, daughter of Rev. and Mrs. Wayne Smith celebrated her fifth birthday last Thursday with a birthday party for five of her little friends. The children enjoyed games and the customary birthday cake and ice cream. Kay was the recipient of many nice gifts.

The Fire Department was called out Saturday evening to the home of Mr. and Mrs. James Hamilton, on Smith Street in the third ward. An overheated chimney caused the alarm. There was no damage. The house is a two family apartment. Mr. and Mrs. Jack Parker occupied one apartment.

Mrs. Jed Harrington was hostess to the Past Noble Grands of Irene Rebekah Lodge last Thursday afternoon. After the one o'clock dinner the regular business meeting and social time followed.

Mrs. Carl E. Leitzke entertained Grace Lutheran Ladies Aid on Wednesday afternoon. Assisting hostesses were Mrs. Fred Luedtke and Mrs. Frank Harris.

The children in Mrs. Bigelow's sixth grade, surprised her with a party Wednesday afternoon. They were celebrating her birthday which occurs in the spring. The children had arranged a program.

well represented after the first year in determining school policy and the location of its schools.

Tawas City has been in existence for nearly a hundred years and its future looks good for continuing in existence for many more. It has always had an excellent school system and excellent teachers. Like every school in progressive and growing communities its classrooms are crowded at present and enlarged facilities are needed. Three years ago the people of the district voted an extra tax beyond the 15 mill limitation for a building fund. Very recently a fine gymnasium was constructed. This is a unit in a school plant building program created by the people of this district which when completed will take care of our present and future needs. Its buildings are located here where it is convenient to the school patrons of our district and where its completion will add to the improvement of our city. The school property of the Tawas City district includes a large athletic field, given to the school by the Tawas City Baseball Club.

In the event that the Tawas City Schools are annexed to the East Tawas School District, the whole program of improvement of the schools in our city as set up will be abandoned, its buildings and property, including the gymnasium and athletic field will become property of the East Tawas School District and may be disposed of as some future board of education sees fit.

The proposal submitted by the board, does not create a Consolidated School District. Where two or more school districts wish to consolidate, the voters in all districts involved vote on the proposal. A new district is created, with a new board of education. This type of school district is set up by law with special advantages not enjoyed by school districts of other types. A Consolidated District has been under consideration by the people here for a number of years and if such a district was proposed, would receive the hearty endorsement of many of those who do not favor the present proposal of annexation.

Annexation and Consolidation in reference to school districts is not a play with words of the same meaning. The two words when referring to school districts each have a definite meaning and are not interchangeable.

Watering Houseplants
Don't water houseplants too often the experts say. Never just wet the surface of the soil. Apply enough water so all the soil in the pot is saturated and water drips from the drainage hole in the pot. A plant needs water when tapping on the side of the pot makes a hollow sound.

When Anthrax Arrived
Outbreaks of the disease believed to be anthrax occurred in Pennsylvania as early as 1834, in Louisiana in 1835 and in Mississippi in 1836.

Lawn Specialist on Landscape Tour

James Tyson, Michigan State College Specialist, will participate in the fourth landscape meeting Friday, May 15, 1948. Mr. Tyson is an expert on lawn care and is in constant demand by greens keepers, park managers, airport managers and private home owners who need help in lawn management.

Mr. Tyson will attend a brief tour which will be held in the vicinity of the State Park starting at 3:00 p. m. at the G. T. Sedgeman residence in East Tawas. Lawn problems and care will be discussed.

Those who want advice on establishing thrifty lawns and weed control and lawn care will have their opportunity to obtain expert council here. Everyone is invited to attend a part or all of the tour.

In the evening at 7:30 p. m. Mr. Tyson will speak at the regular landscape meeting which is being conducted by County Agent Harold R. Clark and Clyde E. Soper at the Federal building.

Anyone who wishes help from Mr. Tyson should notify Mr. Clark.
