Win Shut Out Victory From Prescott

Tawas City Plays At Turner This Sunday

The Tawas City Baseball Club kept on their victory march, last Sunday, with a 16-0 shutout victory over Prescott. A combination of 16 hits and seven errors proved too much for the Ogemaw lads.

While Tawas City sent runners around in droves, Prescott was finding it tough sledding against the slants off Mallon, veteran Tawas City right hander. PALESTINE:

Diplomacy

What the Jews of Israel lacked in armed strength to resist Arab attacks against their new state they had made up in shrewd diplomacy.

It was just possible that the decisive blow of the Palestine war was struck when Israel, foreseeing military defeat, agreed to order its army to cease fire on all Palestine fronts if the Arabs would do the

That development, which took place as the battle for Jerusalem entered its sixth day in an unholy atmosphere of rattling guns, bursting shell and violent death, made the most favorable impression possible in the United Nations.

Thus having the onus of prolonging the Palestine fighting shifted suddenly to their shoulders alone, the Arabs were put on the spot in the U. N. and in world public opin-

It was a clever diplomatic maneuver on the part of the Jews but, at least at the outset of this new line of circumstances, the Arabs were having none of it. They reiterated their determination to wrest all Palestine from control of the

Actually, all the Jews had done was to issue a surprise cease fire order in compliance with a U. N. security council request that the fighting be brought to a halt. Neither the security council nor anyone else had expected the request to be observed.

But that put it up to the Arabs who, faced with a deadline set by the U. N., were having trouble deciding whether or not to cease fire.

If they stopped fighting now they would have done so without attaining their prime objective - the revoking of Israel's claim to sovereign statehood. If they continued the war beyond the deadline they would be laying themselves open to possible security council sanctions of the economic variety.

SECURITY: Desperate Plight

President Truman came up with another sound plank to reinforce his campaign platform when he demanded that congress overhaul and broaden the social security pro-

To relieve the "desperate" plight of the aged and needy in this inflationary period he called for a 50 per cent increase in old age insurance benefits and asked that 20 million more persons be protected. He offered a five point program and said he wanted quick action on it. For three years, the President pointed out with some irritation, similar requests on his par have been shunted aside. This time he was asking: 1 A 50 per cent increase "at least" in old age and survivors' insurance benefits; allowing pensioners to earn up to $40 a month instead of $15 without losing benefits; raising of the tax rate from 1 per cent to 11/2 per cent next January 1.

2 Extension of coverage to farm and domestic workers, the self-employed and others not now

3. Broadening of unemployment insurance to cover employees of small firms (having fewer than eight workers), federal employees and others. 4 Disability insurance to protect workers from loss of earnings caused by sickness and injuries.

5 Increased federal benefits to match state aid for dependent children, the needy, aged and blind. Whatever his motives in presenting the problem of inadequate social security benefits again at this time, Mr. Truman did have a good, even a noble, point.

"People whose sole income is from social security payments have just about reached the breaking point. All of them face a desperate struggle in trying to procure bare necessities at present

Both President Truman and the aged and needy were hoping fervently that congress would be able to squeeze social security legislation into the crowded docket it had prepared for the month preceding adjournment.

As for congress itself, it was on the fence again.

ECONOMICS:

Wage-Price

While prices continue to climb steadily, wage increases are beginning to show signs of levelling off. says the latest department of commerce report on inflation.

Possibility of a business recession, and with it the prospect for lower prices, vanished like mist in the sun after the foreign aid and military preparedness programs began to take shape in March, the department survey revealed.

To a Crisis

DAIRYING:

While the U. S. dairy industry was busy promoting its 12th annual June Dairy Month for the purpose of selling more milk, butter, cheese and ice cream it also was taking a long, critical look behind the scenes and not liking what it

Industry analysis had spotted what appeared to be a dangerous trend. In its simplest form the trend could be defined as an inexorable increase in the U.S. popu-

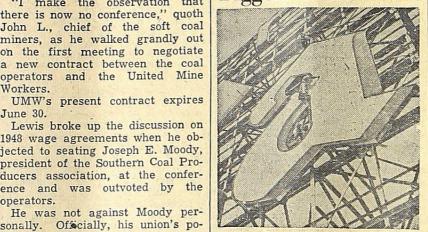

At the root of the problem was a stubbornly entrenched economic condition whose factors were the war, widespread hunger abroad and domestic inflation. Continuing high prices for beef and veal have been instrumental in sending many dairy cows or potential dairy cows to the slaughter house. Too many American dairy farmers have discovered how they could reduce their herds drastically, put more land into moneymaking grain crops, realize a greater profit and still have more leisure time.

Adding those conditions to the fact that during the past few years the nation has experienced about a 45 per cent increase in its birth rate, the dairy industry came up with a grim conclusion: If these circumstances continue at the present rate, and there is every likelihood that they will, by 1952 the U. S. will be approaching the critical point at which it no longer will satisfy its own needs.

That, according to some prognosticators, might mean strict rationing in a land which hitherto had literally flowed with milk and

Biggest Switch

Billboard advertising will reach a new spectacular extreme on Chicago's Lake Shore drive this July when the switch is thrown to turn on the lights of the world's largest sign - 114 feet high and 210 feet wide. A mile and a half of neon tubing, illuminating letters 38 to 58 feet high, will flash the name of a spirited product which a certain distillery wants everybody to switch to.

POLITICS:

The Race

In Oregon, where the last presidential primary of this campaign year was held in an atmosphere of political hoopla, Gov. Thomas E. more likely to succeed than Harold

Whether he would or not remained an open question, but it was certain that his political complexion had taken on a more sanguine hue as a result of the Oregon balloting.

Stassen, who had won spectacular primary victories in Wisconsin and Nebraska over Taft and Dewey, his chief rivals for the GOP nomination, and then had received a borderline setback at the hands of Taft forces in Ohio, at last had suffered a clear-cut defeat.

Oregon wasn't going to do Stassen any good. Having had to buck organized Republican opposition all the way along, he apparently had estimated that his best chance of procuring the nomination lay in building up sufficient prestige and momentum during the primary campaigns to stampede the June 21 convention.

However, he still will go to the national convention with at least 200 delegates pledged to support him on the first ballot. So, for that matter, will Dewey. A total of 548 convention votes is required

One bundle of drugs was found in the ship's galley at the bottom of a full barrel of flour. Another batch, encased in a waterproof bag, reposed in a soup tureen full of water. Other packages were discovered inside the lining of the ship's oven shore patrol officers under Durning raided the basement of a dingy water front tenement. They found 36 ounces of narcotics and complete equipment for testing, diluting and preparing drugs for illicit sale to addicts.

they found $18,000 in cash and a pistol. From a man caught fleeing the basement they confiscated four more ounces of drugs. Total value of the catch was placed at $200,000.

ing thousands of miles in the spring trek from the warm South to the awakening North, the Brighton contingent does the whole thing in about 400 short, waddly steps.

The 50-odd feathered thinkers based here took care of the whole matter of migration in about 30 minutes.

When the call of spring stirs the flock into action the Brighton mallards climb the sides of their little mill pond, waddle about 100 feet across Main Street and down the city's main east-west street. On the north the pond freezes in winter. But on the south side, where the water is kept open by a small dam, a small flock of domestic white mallards congregates. The banks of the pond are liberally sprinkled with bread crumbs and other duck deli-

Company Recovers Valuable Diamond Dust From Its Shop

SCHENECTADY, N. Y .- Diamond dust equal in weight to more than two dozen gems the size of the famous Hope diamond was recovered by the General Electric company in 1947.

General Electric said the dust was worth from $3 to $5 a carat. The 441/2-carat Hope diamond is valued at about two million dollars.

A company spokesman said that a simplified process it developed during World War II cut the time of dust recovery from several weeks to a few hours. The process also re-

Diary Doesn't Have to Tell Earth-Shaking Occurrences

By BAUKHAGE News Analyst and Commentator

WASHINGTON .- The nation, and particularly the nation's capital, where we are highly national and international-conscious, is suffering as never before from the result of memories, good and bad. The Roosevelt epoch produced a rash of reminiscences-200books about FDR, 32 of them just since his death.

Currently we have with us the Churchill war memoirs, as they are called, although when I was young and read "The Memoirs of Sherlock Holmes," I thought a memoir was something printed after a man's, death. Of course Sherlock came back, so I suppose that legitimizes the termi-

Winston Churchill was a great diary-keeper, as was his fellowcountryman, Samuel Pepys, whose that the British government still hasn't released all of it. Franklin Roosevelt never kept a diary. His secretary of the treasury made up for this lack. Henry Morgenthau assembled 900 volumes of about 350 pages each, totaling about 80 million words. The task must have kept three stenographers a day working in relays. He had the diaries bound, some said at government expense, although I daresay he paid for it in

His was a lazy method. He didn't have to depend on his memory. He had a dictograph in his office, and every word spoken in the supposed sanctity of his chamber in the treasury, overlooking the wide sweep of lawn and park that flows down to the Potomac, was duly transcribed. When the news of this epic achievement became public a terrible howl resulted and some of the volumes were returned to the government archives. What

I wonder if diary-keepers are normal. I would hate to admit to a psychologist that I have kept a diary for years, even decades. I still keep one. I don't know how long ago I started, but I still have one slim, green volume, dated 1904, in my possession. The year 1904that was just 15 years after another entry, not in my diary, but in my father's (diary-keeping is congenital) which stated "fine boy arrived 5 p. m." I may say the "fine" is the natural exaggeration of a proud parent who didn't know what he

At any rate, if diary-keeping is used against me, I have two outs -hardly anything, even of mild interest, is or will be recorded on the faded pages of my journals, and secondly, because I write such a ed to conceal one's true character. vile hand that I can decipher only a few lines here and there myself.

My mother should have most of the blame for my bad handwriting, just as she is to blame for the fact that I can write at all. She was herself a writer and, unique as it was in those good old days, she possessed a typewriter, a stubby little affair, affectionately known as "the Blick."

Of course it was quite improper to expose a child of pre-school age to a typewriter. It was not my mother's fault. Back in the '90s, some of us weren't vaccinated for anything but smallpox. I was too young to understand that at the time, and since typewriters were as rare as porcelain bathtubs in a city of 20,000, who could guess their evil influence? I suppose I oughtn't to accuse my parents because I became thoroughly inured to the use of the typewriter long before I could balance a pencil, and this fact did my handwriting no good.

At that time what was called 'Spencerian' still was taught in the schools of New York state, but very few mastered it even without the curlicues and shading of earlier days. And just as I was getting so I could make the wobbly "M's" and the terrible "q's", along came a new Pharoah to my scholastic Egypt and introduced the "vertical system." That was probably where my uneducation really began. I unlearned the Spencerian all right, but I was never able to go at least my diary-keeping. The illegibility of the entries in my diaries isn't really as important as the unimportance of their contents. Let me illustrate from one with a worn leather cover which I have at hand. It is dated 1914, a good year for a diary, but a bad diary for the world. The record of war days should have been chronicled dramatically as the beginning of the end of an epoch, an epoch which breathed its last in the midst of another war. But did my record do that? Let's look at June 29, 1914.

Do we find the entry: "YESTER-DAY ARCHDUKE FERDINAND WAS ASSASSINATED AT SARAJE-VO?" We do not. We find this:

Juin 29. Lundi S. Pierre, S. Paul Bought Berlitz

Rustem Bey (The book was purchased in Paris, where the year's record began. The entry was made in Washington.)

While the ancient throne of Hapsburg was receiving the blood bath that was to sweep a half dozen rulers into oblivion I was buying a Berlitz textbook for the purpose of studying some foreign language -I have no idea which one except that it was one I never learned. Rustem Bey, I remember was the Turkish ambassador whom I had to

In all justice, it may not be entirely the fault of my diary-making that I didn't record the assassination of the archduke. Nobody in America took the tragedy very seriously. At that time few Americans expected much else from Europe's royal families but assassinations or less respectable peccadillos.

I ought to have known better than that since I had been helping cover the French foreign office for the two years preceding. But I had been drenched with war talk over there and had shaken it off when I returned. Europe almost immediately shrank into a dreamy domain of picture-book memory with no connection whatever with my work-a-day world.

Later on, to be sure, there is evidence that I, on second thought, felt I hadn't done my diary justice insofar as Ferdinand was concerned. But I always was feeling that way about my diary and never doing anything about it.

This, as I said, keeps my diaries' from having the slighest value other than to exude a somewhat conscious-stricken odor and remind me that the good young days were no better than those bad old ones insofar as my habits and conduct were concerned, for an honest diary certainly has to be well edit-

You note in its pages some high resolve or noble undertaking which was more important to you moment of recording than the opening of the Panama canal or the result of a presidential election. In a short year you read it over and are utterly unable to recall the slightest thing about the events chronicled.

Sometimes my old diaries, even though they record no event of great historical significance, sound quite timely. For example on October 3, 1914:

"Not much doing. I don't seem to be able to save my money." . . . October 8: "The Belgian secretary appears, we consume quantities of beer and tells me his life story-a bore, but business." (just the weary routine of the hard-working reporter)

Fortunately my space is running out. Nothing is more interesting to write or read about than oneself. Nothing is less interesting to anyone else. But I wish to prove my point, namely, that no matter how important diary-keeping may have been for the Churchills, the Marco Polos or the Plutarchs, and perhaps therefore as harmful as important, mine was neither.

And I marvel that any newsman, press or radio, who lives in the midst of alarms, who "was there" when most things happened and told all in breathless detail via the copy-desk or microphone to millions of wide-eyed readers or listeners would ever think of writing it down after-

Note for instance a recent diary entry for June 5, 1947, which a brittle clipping of even date declares not only vibrantly but with perfect inexactitude "may go down in history as the day of the beginning of the real peace after World War II." (Lest you have forgotten, that was the day Secretary of State George C. Marshall proposed at Harvard university a new approach to European rehabilitation which later became the Marshall plan, then E.R.P. and finally the economic cooperation administration.)

Note my diary for that date: "A meeting of the Association of Radio News Analysts. Kaltenborn to dinner."

Special Delivery Letter: Dear Eric Johnston:

You could have knocked me over with a gangster scenario when I read in the paper that you were not only chairman of the National Conference on Family Life in America but that at its Washington meeting you made an impassioned speech calling on everybody to rally and fight for the protection of American family life and to keep the young on the right paths. This was because I was under the impression you were also the top man in the movie industry, the one fellow in the country in a swell position to protect the home and to keep the kids from getting too many films blueprinting murder and crime techniques. But this must be some other Johnston and I am glad I realized the mistake. I hate to go off half-cocked.

Well, your fine speech certainly roused me and when you told the delegates from all over the country in a straight from the shoulder talk that the protection of the American home was a paramount issue of the day I felt like cheer-

You appealed to the National Conference on American Family Life to find ways to help the family strengthen itself and you stirred fathers and mothers everywhere by your deep interest.

There is no greater threat to the American home and to the future of this nation than the present alarming crime trend among children. In one day the papers carried the story of three 12-year-olds who waylaid and shot a citizen in the back; of a half dozen school children who riddled a teacher's home with bullets from Winchesters, and of an 11-year-old child "shot by six boys who mistook him for a member of a rival gang."

Where do the kids get such ideas? The idea of getting armed to the teeth and doing some bumping off is not natural to any child and it is not taught in any home, Mr. Johnston. Everybody is with you in your realization of the despair and sorrow felt around American firesides as such things go on and we are so glad you see the situation so clearly.

Will you forward a copy of your speech to the Eric Johnston who has that big job in Hollywood and who could do so much so easily to protect the firesides and keep the kids from learning criminal ways?

Yours truly P.S.-Where do you speak next and could you arrange to get the other Eric on the same platform?

Real Estate Opportunities

ARE YOU A VET?-Did you fight for your country? Come to Larceny Heights and fight for an unwarped door. These homes offered at $10,-000 are worth every other dollar of it. All ready to step into if you have a fast eye for weak floors and open trapdoors. Bring your own plumbing and have fun.

SACRIFICE - Country home; I paid $13,000 for this and will sell for $36,000 to a fast buyer and a slow thinker. Not much to look at but it was built at a time when nails were used.

COME TO HORNSWOGGLE ACRES! The Gyppem Holding corporation; we sell it and you hold it. These are the novelty homes of the year; no stairways; it's all done by ladders. The cement we are pouring on these jobs will guarantee you an exciting outdoor life for years, $25,000, with only two walls missing.

VISIT IT TODAY! These $22,000 Cape Cod homes will not last long. Built by Garrison Pluett, famous designer of baby chick brooders and mice traps. Live in one of these little places and you will know what Valley Forge was like. We have skimped on nothing in order to give you half what you need at twice what it is worth.

FOR SALE-A two-car garage with a house attached; garage has everything required for modern living; house has everything required by the easily satisfied. Hardware, bolts and fixtures by Great Eastern Trinket corporation. A few left unfortunately at $17,500.

CO-OPERATIVE - Put $25,000 into one of our co-operative apartments and share the headaches with the other owners all under one roof. Pay no rent; just assessments, legal fees, repair bills, et cetera. A hectic life or your money refunded. What are we saying?

TO RENT-De luxe Quonset, but perfect for any young couple accustomed to privations. Will put in a modern crate as a spare bedroom for $500 extra.

Previous flight range records paled into insignificance when an air force B-36 superbomber flew an unprecedented 8,000 miles nonstop with a dummy bomb load of about five tons. It was aloft for a day and a half.

The B-36 returned to the ground with about 1,200 gallons of gasoline remaining in its tanks, enough to keep it aloft another two or three hours if necessary.

WHAT, JESSE NOT LAID IN HIS GRAVE?... Claiming he is the original Jesse James, the slightly tarnished Missouri Robin Hood of the 1870s, Frank Dalton of Centerville, Tex., came out of his hide-out cabin on advice of his lawyer, who told him the 'heat' ought to be off by now. Now living in Lawton, Tex., Dalton is shown blowing out the candle on Jesse's 100th birthday cake.

CONGRESSIONAL PRESSURE... Every year Republican and Democratic congressmen play what is laughingly known as a ball game for the benefit of charity. Rep. Tom G. Abernethy (Dem., Miss.) will remember this year s melee for a long time. He is the one being sat on at first base by the obviously weighty Rep. James P. Laying aside such stale and unprofitable jokes as 'This horse certainly was foaled when she had twin colts instead of the usual one,' the fact remains that she did have twins - an unusual event among equines. She is 'Arkansas Lady,' a Tennessee walking horse, and is owned by R.J. Cunningham of the Hereford Manor stock farms near Zelienople, Pa. The twins will be exhibited at the Allegheny county fair

PARKING PROBLEM SOLVED ... 'This is one of them mirages,' said the cop on the beat as he rounded the corner of East 33rd street from Third avenue in New York. And he walked slowly and majestically toward it. But it didn't fade. It stayed there-a bantam-sized car parked cozily on the sidewalk, snuggled up next to a building. The cop closed his eyes, counted to 10, and when the car was still there he parked a ticket on it.

MECOVERY ... United Auto Workers President Walter Reuther, shown here with his daughter Linda, has been released from a Detroit hospital after recovering from a shotgun blast that almost cost him his life. Mystery still shrouds the attempt on his life, and the assailant, who shot Reuther in his home, never has been caught.

Rise Above Sweltering Heat By Keeping Crisp and Cool

By Ertta Haley

HAVE you been in such a dither lately over the new clothes that you've forgotten just how important a good tubbing and scrubbing

Or have you been unable to put yourself into new clothes and decided that since you can't have new things it's just foolish to worry about personal care?

If you belong in either class, give this matter a bit of thought because it's more important than new clothes or old. Good grooming or what it really amounts to-personal what it really amounts to—personal care—is the outer covering which we show people. Real cleanliness, that fresh scrubbed look, will make people ignore clothes that are not the latest in fashion; or, if you have new clothes and are careless about true good grooming people. about true good grooming, new clothing does not have its full desired effect.

Grooming Is Key To the Real Person

You may not judge a book by the covers, but lots of people do. Now-adays we meet so many people that unless their first impression really attracts or impresses us favorably we simply don't bother with them.

So much for how people are impressed with good grooming. But how does it make you feel? Basically it builds self confidence. It also gives a real sense of well being. Think how wonderful you feel, freshly tubbed, hair brushed, shining and trim, seams of your hose straight, white shoes spotless and neat, clothes pressed and well fitted. The joy other people sense in you looking like that will make you feel better too.

Warm weather is a real challenge Water After Bath to keeping yourself neat, but it can be done if you give yourself regular care. Outline a program, then stick to it. Once you've established the routine, most items will take little time, and you won't feel right about skipping even the smallest of them.

Fourteen Points Given For Daily Care

1. Give yourself a daily bath or shower with a thick lather to remove all traces of dead skin.

2. Use a deodorant regularly, after the bath, as well as in the morning and evening before going

3. Brush your teeth and massage the gums at least twice a day. This is in the best interest of health as well as attractiveness.

4. Use a depilatory or other means, as necessary.

5. Use makeup carefully, but use it only on a clean skin which is readily acquired through plain soap and water.

6. Fresh hose daily or twice a day if you are going out in the evening are essential.

7. Change underwear daily. It's easily tubbed and, when knitted, needs no pressing.

8. Brush hair daily; shampoo every 10 days to two weeks. Brush shoulders after each combing. 9. Keep nails trim, polished or not. Use a brush for cleaning thoroughly. 10. Brush clothes before each wearing. Everything must be free from wrinkles when put on. 11. Air dresses overnight before hanging in the closet. 12. Wash dresses often or have them cleaned frequently. 13. Don't let yourself slip on accessories. Collars, gloves and handkerchiefs should be crisply clean. Buttons, snaps and seams should be in perfect order. 14. Shoes must be cleaned, brushed or polished daily. Check heels frequently.

Picture Hat

For sheer femininity, Etta Leen designs a summer picture hat of filmy white horsehair and fine white straw. It has a simple, head-fitting crown and is trimmed with soft loops of moss green taffeta ribbon with ends extended across the top of the wide brim.

Freshness, Daintiness Are Summer Requisites

The tubbed and scrubbed impression is being emphasized these days because everyone knows it adds so much to the personality. If you step out clean and scrubbed into clean, fresh-air smelling clothing, you'll be able to keep above the warm temperatures that come your way, as they most certainly will.

If you can have clothing that can be tubbed, get it by all means as soap-and-water freshness will keep you impeccably groomed all during warm weather.

If you do all your own work, choose things that are less frilly so you can cut down on corners. Simple dresses are easier to do than beruffled ones. A slick and smooth hairdress, with hair worn short is easier to brush-shape than a complicated hairdress piled on top of the head and pinned to within an inch of your skin.

Rinse With Warm

There's lots of value in the cold rinse during cool weather after a bath, but the warm rinse will leave you more refreshed after a bath during summer.

The bath itself, or shower or sponge bath, should be thoroughly relaxing. Take your time and make certain you remove dirt as well as skin oil (excess) and dead

Hair Care Easy If You Know How

Brushing hair will give it shine and brilliance, and every head of hair can use that. If you have a lot of new hairs coming in all the time, get a stiff-bristled brush to train the new short hairs into the rest of the hair.

If you don't fix your hair every night, wear a casual style that is easily manageable. Combs are excellent for keeping the hair in place where pins fail, but they should match the hair as well as possible.

Quick Tips for Good Grooming

Hang stockings to dry by the toe, never folding them over a hanger. Shape gloves after rinsing so they'll be ready to wear.

Keep dress and suit pockets from collecting too many things.

Be Smart!

Headed for fashion success is this happy combination of the flattering and ever so pretty bib idea with that Victorian touch in the off-the-shoulder line and suggestion of a bertha in the bias fold that borders the yoke. The design has ample double duty possibilities, a dress-up touch for a suit, and it still is interesting enough to wear alone. It's presented in tissue faille crepe, another refreshingly new touch.

Strong Enough to Stand On!

FIRST AID to the AILING HOUSE by Roger C. Whitman

QUESTION: There is a little crack directly over my sink where it forms a joint with the plaster wall. The white plaster used for filling the crack always comes out. What can be done?

ANSWER: Before the war it was possible to get a neat, flexible metal moulding that was made for a crack such as yours, or to cover the crack at the top of a bathtub. If you cannot find any of this, fill the crack with a light-colored caulking compound. This resembles putty, but never becomes hard or brittle. After forcing it into the crack, run your finger along the surface to smooth it, and after a few days, touch it up with enamel to match the wall.

QUESTION: Is the periodic use of yeast helpful or detrimental to a septic tank? What effect will the use of drain cleaners have on a septic tank? Is there any specially designed product on the market to keep septic tanks in better working order?

ANSWER: Small quantities of a drain cleaner can be safely used, but large quantities will stop bacterial action. In such cases, a large volumn of water should be run into the tank to carry off the chemicals. Bacterial action can then be restarted by dissolving six cakes of yeast in lukewarm water in a washbasin and flushing it into the tank.

the mother argued. The kid looked at her in disgust. "Aha," he said. "Race prejudice, come at 11 for his things. By 10:30 Anne had packed all of his personal belongings into the three pigskin bags and the wardrobe trunk, which she dragged empty into the foyer of the apartment and filled there. Tom was never punctual. He might come half an hour early or half an hour late, and she wanted to have everything ready in time so that she could be out when he came.

She did not linger over the packing or allow herself to feel anything, even when she put the set of cuff links and studs which had been her wedding gift to him and the silvermounted military brushes she had given him on their first - and only -anniversary into the last bag.

I wonder if anyone else in New York uses military brushes, she caught herself thinking. I never knew any other man who did. A brief mental picture came to her of Tom before the mirror, making a determined effort with the brushes to force his sandy hair to stay in place. Then as quickly as it had come she banished it.

Surgical operations should be neat and clean. Even if it was something you were cutting out of your heart you musn't linger over

Only when the three bags were standing beside the trunk, in their scuffed sturdiness, strangely reminding her of Tom, did she have time to feel the emptiness within her. As if, in emptying the closet and bureau of his things, she had taken something from inside herself and packed it too.

To escape the curious numbness which gripped her, she turned swiftly and went for her hat and coat. In getting them from the closet beside the front door she saw the large pad which hung there where Thelma, the maid, could not help seeing it both on arriving and leaving. Thelma was a good worker, but forgetful. "Thelma—Please de-frost refrigerator," said last Thursday's note, reminding her that this was Saturday and Thelma would do no marketing for the weekend unless told. But Thelma might be gone before Anne returned, and -

Anne hesitated. Then, do everything just as always, she told herself. If you let go now, it'll just hurt worse and longer.

She slipped into her coat, forced herself to put on her hat with care. Then she took up the pencil that was tied to the pad by a red string and tried to think what she would need. Tomatoes, lettuce, oranges, bread, milk, coffee, she thought. Soup maybe. I don't know. I don't care what I eat.

Her fingers were curiously stiff as she wrote carefully, in neat capi- much. And she'd kept her job, tals: NEEDED. She underscored writing store copy, not because she the word, drew a line after it, then liked or needed it but because it had just begun to write down the helped fill the days of waiting when items she wanted Thelma to buy he was away. when she heard the elevator begin its humming rise.

Swift panic assailed her. It was mustn't find her here. To see him again, not knowing even now what it was that had gone wrong, would be more than she could face. Her carefully maintained self-possession probably would go in a flood of tears and with it the last remnant of her pride, all that she had left. would be stripped from her. She dropped the pencil, leaving the note

TOM's note said that he would before the elevator could reach her floor.

It didn't stop, after all. But the fear of being caught there by Tom's arrival stayed with her until she was outside and hurrying across to Washington Square. Only when she reached the small park did she slow her pace.

She found a bench in the cool sunshine and sat down. Then, watching the placid pigeons, the screeching children on skates, the mothers pushing carriages and the old men playing checkers, she tried to keep her thoughts turned from what was happening. But it wasn't possible.

Why? The question persisted in asking itself. What went wrong? Why didn't it work out?

She'd known it wouldn't be easy.

things . . . Anne looked at her wrist watch. In the turmoil of her thoughts, more than an hour had passed. She rose and thankfully started back toward the apartment. Tom certainly would have come and gone by now. Anyway it was over. She could start rebuilding her life somehow. At least, she was thinking as she put her key into the door, she had kept her emotions in control.

Then she opened the door. And all thought fled. He had not left. His trunk and bags were still there, and he was standing beside them. "Anne," Tom said, as woodenly she closed the door behind her,

But she'd known how it would be, and knowing, had accepted the job of making their marriage work. She had never fretted or wept when Tom had to be away. She'd kissed him goodby lightly and welcomed him back in the same spirit. She hadn't clung to him when he left or fussed over him when he returned. Men hated that.

She had never let him guess the horrible loneliness that stayed with her when he was away on an assignment, lest it make him feel guilty for leaving her alone so

But she hadn't let the job come between her and the home she was trying to make for him. With the early, but it might be Tom. He help of Thelma and much forethought, she had kept it running so smoothly the mechanics of housekeeping never had obtruded upon the time they did have together. And yet-

Yet had those years not gone their swift sure way, Had their significance been lost to men, There would be darkness in the land today, No faith would lift, no heart could hope again. Thank God, thank God for those years' precious Thank God for sparing Him to you, to me, "Out of the glory that was theirs before The world was . . . And then, without warning, the tears came. It was the first time she ever had let him see her cry. Men hated weepy women, but when the tears were over, something cold washed away.

She dried her eyes on Tom's handkerchief and held her lips up for his kiss. And she knew then, somehow, what he meant. She had made their marriage a thing light and gay-and it had been too light, too gay. With her casual goodbys and her bright welcomes she had hid her emotions too well. That men hate emotion had been her guiding principle.

But a good marriage has depths. A woman must feel needed; but so must a man, too. In avoiding one extreme she had gone to another.

Tom tried, in awkward sentences, to explain. Tried to tell her about the blonde Marion, whose need for his help and advice had almost made him think that he - But he didn't have to explain. She understood all he said, and more. Only when he finished was she bewil-

"If you hadn't let me know, though," Tom said then, his square, nicely ugly features twisted in a grin that was tight with the knowledge of how close their escape had been, "if you hadn't put it where I couldn't miss it-"

But she was able to still the question on her lips before it was spoken. For she saw the direction of his look, and followed it to see the message for Thelma which she had begun, directing her to buy tomatoes and other items, but had not stayed to finish. And what the abruptly broken-off message said now, instead was: "NEEDED-

By INEZ GERHARD

MACDONALD CAREY made his one Broadway assignment so memorable that people still remember him in the lead opposite Ger-trude Lawrence in "Lady in the Dark." Paramount grabbed him, but not until after he had left to spend three years in the marine corps and returned to make "Suddenly It's Spring" did the studio realize that he is an excellent actor with charm and definite appeal. They starred him with Betty Hutton in "Dream Girl" and with Paulette Goddard in "Hazard." You'll see him also in "Abigail, Dear Heart" and "The Great Gatsby." After his New York vacation he heads for Hollywood and a superwestern, with a chance to play villain, at last.

Betty Hutton is credited with the best job ever done of singing in synchronization with an off-stage voice. Until now, Larry Parks held the record for his work in "The Jolson Story." Nadine Conner sang

BETTY HUTTON

'One Fine Day" for "Madame Butterfly" scenes in "Dream Girl," and Betty did a fine job of pretending to do the singing before the cameras.

We hear that the reason Joan Crawford backed out of doing "Mildred Pierce" on a "Screen Guild Players" broadcast was that she was scared of working before a live audience; had expected to do it in a closed studio.

Apparently other actresses just have no chance to compete with Loretta Young. Once again, for the fourth straight year, she has been acclaimed by the National Institute of Voice Teachers for her speaking voice.

Something new has happened to the Bing Crosby programs. The show now is broadcast directly from the tape on which it is first made, instead of being transferred to large transcription discs. American Broadcasting company says this makes the broadcasts absolutely indistinguishable in quality from 'live' ones which are aired directly from the studio.

Probably the most unusual fan letter of the season is the one Art Linkletter received from aviator Paul Mantz. He wrote that during his last two transcontinental speed record flights he came in on the beam of Link's "House Party."

Following the late, beloved Tom Breneman on "Broadcast in Hollywood" was a tough assignment, but Garry Moore had letters from several thousand fans at the end of his first week, telling him how well he was doing. His success on "Club Matinee," then with Durante and recently as master of ceremonies of "Take It or Leave It" made him a natural for the job.

Robert Ryan moved into his new home after completing a co-star-ring assignment in "Berlin Express," but he and his wife slept on the floor the first two nights. Movers had delivered all the furniture to a house several doors away.

Odds and Ends . . . Elspeth Eric ("Big Sister") is a walking directory of information about the Chicago Cubs. That has been her team since childhood ... Reese Taylor of "Road of Life" has the apartment hunting story of the season -he was offered a lease on an apartment if he would take care of the landlady's cat ... Joanne Trunk, "Miss America" of 1931, is a waitress in a studio commissary ... Lou Kostoff, music director of CBS' "Blondie" isn't doing much talking these days; his jaw was broken in a fracas with an unruly horse, so conversation is limited until the jaw wiring is removed.

Johnny Sands won Shirley Temple from Cary Grant when he played the young basketball hero "The Bachelor and the Bobby Soxer," but he loses her in "Baltimore Escapade." She's won by John Agar, her husband.

Benay Venuta is boosting the American Association for the United Nations. She learned about it a gathering at the home of Myrna Loy and Gene Markey, and now is urging all her friends to join.

Roughly 2.5 million acres of dried beans and peas are grown annually, with a farm value of around 100 million dollars. In the past, prices of these legumes have fluctuated greatly, with some periods of very low returns to producers, largely because there has been little research with a view to manufacturing new palatable and nutritious foods or industrial products from dried beans and peas.

Based on Astrology

Many early almanacs contained predictions based on astrology. These predictions often turned out to be so harmful to the people who read and believed them that publication of the books was stopped by authorities.

Build This Set of Lawn Furniture Yourself.

If in need of lawn furniture, build it yourself and save money. Full Size patterns are available that simplify building the matching chairs and settee illustrated above. A smaller size chair, suitable for children two to eight years of age, can also be constructed from a pattern. Youngsters will be happy to join the family circle if they have a chair they can call their own. Nothing seems to be quite so important to the young ones as having things "just like Dad's".

The Full Size Woodworking Pat-tern provides a complete list of ma-terials needed, step by step directions and full size patterns for cutting each part. It's the dress pattern idea applied to the flat surface of lumber. No special tools or skill are required. All the materials specified by each pattern are stock size and readily available at lumber yards everywhere. So, for fun over a week-end, build one or more of these pieces. Get the youngster to help. Have him sandpaper each piece, let him hold the pieces as you drill holes. Explain why you use glue and screws at every joint to hold parts together and to keep moisture out. If he's lent a hand building this chair you'll find him taking consid-erably better care of it.

Materials for two chairs can be purchased for less than one chair costs ready made. Make adult size chairs from Pattern No. 32 and a matching settee from Pattern No. 39. Child size chair is Pattern No. 132. Send 25c for each pattern No. 32 Pattern No. 132. Send 35c for Pattern No. 39 to Easi-Bild Pattern Company, Department W., Pleasantville, N. Y.

Unity in Religion

FROM the years of the dark ages down through the colonizing and development of this continent, creeds seemed of more importance to religious denominational followers, than the foundation on which the Christian religion was built. The foundation was the same for all denominations. It was the ever-churches were built. Those details were of but little real consequence. As a small boy in the 1870's and 1880's I lived in a Methodist parsonage. Father was a Methodist preacher. In our small village were two churches, Methodist and Pres-

Religiously the members of the two congregations did not mix. The members of each were firmly convinced that those who attended the other church were traveling the highway to perdition. To them creed, an interpretation, was of greater importance than the foundation on which both denominations were built. Religious evolution, not revolution, has changed that con-

Some years ago, I have forgotten how many, I attended, as a newspaper writer, a great religious congress held on the Iron Pier at Atlantic City, N. J. Every state, every denomination, was represented among the more than 3,000 people present. The purpose was to unify by a revolution the efforts of the Christian churches. It was proposed to reduce the number of churches, retaining in each community only what its needs called for, and those retained to be without denominational creeds. Missionary work in pagan lands was to be consolidated. One strong mission was to replace the many weak ones.

I well remember the ardor and enthusiasm with which non-existent and unavailable billions of dollars were appropriated to carry out such a revolutionary program including more than a billion for foreign missions and more than half a billion to propagandize the program in this country. It was a noble conception, but as a revolution it was impractical. It did not get any farther than the voting of those nonexistent dollars.

What revolution did not accomplish evolution is accomplishing. Faith, not creed, is today the dominant factor in the work of the Christian churches. There are now few, if any, religious hatreds; few if any, intolerances. Creeds remain, to be sure, but today they are but secondary to that foundation of religious faith on which the Christian religion is Today the ministers and the members of practically all denominations work together for a common purpose. The details of creed interpretation are largely forgotten. Ministers and laymen now recognize that the foundation, built on the rock of faith, is supporting all the denominational superstructures; that all are traveling the same highway, leading to the same end. The bitterness between denominations, a bitterness caused by the details of interpretation, has largely given way to unified effort and all join together in one spiritual advance. Yes, evolution is accomplishing what revolution, as I saw it planned at Atlantic City, failed to accomplish. Evolution has done that desired job without sowing any seeds of bitterness that revolution undoubtedly would have planted.

Today creed, the superstructure of the Christian faith, means but little. It is the foundation that counts and the foundation is the same for all Christian churches.

It is far more profitable for the builder to sell the $5,000 cost house for $12,000 or better than to rent it on the basis of a $3,000 value. Especially is that true when the banks, backed by a federal government guarantee, will supply the purchase price and the buyer assumes a mortgage, with monthly payments of $70 and up running for a period of 25 or more years. In all probability the house will be gone before the mortgage of Harmful Body Waste

Your kidneys are constantly filtering waste matter from the blood stream. Bus kidneys sometimes lag in their work—do not act as Nature intended—fail to semove impurities that, if retained, may poison the system and upset the whels body machinery.

Symptoms may be nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizzinese, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—a feeling of nervous anxiety and loss of pep and strength. Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder are sometimes burning, scanty estoo frequent urination.

There should be no doubt that prompa treatment is wiser than neglect. Use Doan's Pills. Doan's have been winning new friends for more than forty years. They have a nation-wide reputation. Are recommended by grateful people the country over. Ask your neighbor?
