Tawas City Continues in Win Column

Play League Leading West Branch Sunday At Athletic Field

Tawas City kept up their winning ways last Sunday, by defeating Turner 14 to 1, in another big run game. Turner used three pitchers, but couldn't find one to stop the Tawas big guns. The Tawas bined with 18 hits and committed nine Turner errors, while Tawas City was piling up the lead, Bill Mallon, Tawas pitcher, was cutting the Turner batters down in order. He had a no-hit, no run victory until the seventh, when two Tawas City errors and a single gave Turner their only run. The locals were rather loose in their fielding, making five errors, then turning around with some fine fielding plays in both the infield and outfield.

Look, rookie fireballer, relieved Mallon in the seventh, striking out four and not allowing a hit in the two innings pitched.

W. Mallon, found the Turner pitcher to his liking, blasting out four hits in five times at bat. Libka and M. Mallon each collected three hits. Extra base knocks were by Peterson with a triple and W. Mallon and Thornton, with doubles.

This Sunday, June 20, the league leading West Branch team will play the locals at the Tawas City Athletic Field. West Branch hasn't lost a game this year while Tawas City has lost one. The locals will be out Sunday to wrest the lead.

J. D. Marcus Talks on C. of C. Problems

Dinner and Meeting Held Wednesday Night At Barnes Hotel

Retail merchandising and chamber of commerce promotion were subjects discussed at a Tawas Chamber of Commerce dinner held Wednesday evening at the Barnes Hotel. J. D. Marcus of Central Michigan College and Ward Shaw of the Cadillac Chamber of Commerce were the speakers of the evening.

The meeting Wednesday evening was one of a series of chamber of commerce promotional meetings held under the sponsorship of Central Michigan College. W. A. DeGraw, president of the Tawas Chamber of Commerce, introduced Marcus who then took charge of the meeting.

Ways of promoting chamber of commerce membership and financing its work was pointed out by Marcus. He stressed the benefits of membership in such an organization, especially to the retail merchant. He urged all members to take an active part in the work and give their moral support to the chamber of commerce as well as paying membership dues.

Suggestions were given on promoting "main street" and Ward Shaw of the Cadillac Chamber of Commerce told about some of the ideas used in that city and their experiences there in chamber of commerce work. It was emphasized in the meeting that a chamber of commerce membership fee was not a donation but a good investment for every person in the community.

Ways of interesting members in taking an active participation in chamber of commerce work were discussed. One of the ways pointed out was that of sending questionnaires to members asking them to indicate on what committees they would be interested in serving. Shaw said that such a plan had been successful at Cadillac.

Meadow Flying Service Opens New Season

Wilbur "Bill" Roach, flight instructor at the Meadow Flying Service, has resumed full flying activities at the field this week, at the Tawas City Airport.

GI contracts have been signed by five new students for this year, and the number should be doubled before long, Roach said.

Last year, which proved to be quite successful, eighteen students soloed under his instructions, of which eight obtained their Private Pilots License, later in the year.

The Aerona Chief and Taylorcraft airplanes used in the service have been fully overhauled and inspected at Alpena and are now ready for the business of flight work and solo flying.

The Dawn Patrol of Flushing and Lapeer, Michigan, have indicated in a letter to Roach, that they will use the field plenty in the near future, as their members like this part of the country and find the field always in good shape.

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS

Farm Groups OK Brannan Choice; Truce Request Fails in Palestine; GM Wage Pact Could Set Pattern

By Bill Schoentgen, WNU Staff Writer

(EDITOR'S NOTE: When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of Western Newspaper Union's news analysts and not necessarily of this newspaper.)

APPROVED: Brannan

President Truman's choice of Charles F. Brannan to succeed Clinton Anderson as secretary of agriculture has received the wholehearted approval of the national farm organizations.

They consider the 44-year-old former assistant secretary of agriculture "a friend of the farmer."

One of the bases for this feeling of harmony is the fact that Brannan and the farm organizations concur in thinking that the prewar parity law is badly outdated.

Such crops as soybeans, for instance, have attained a much greater importance since the law was passed but still have no satisfactory price fixing basis. Other farmers, including cattle and dairy producers, claim their parity scales are out of line in this postwar period.

Ideas developed by Brannan to help remedy this situation have been largely adopted by the leading farm groups and are incorporated in bills now pending before congress. Unless congress acts by the end of this year the law guaranteeing farm prices at 90 per cent of the fixed parity rate will expire.

Serving quietly as assistant secretary of agriculture for the past four years, Brannan has made himself the backbone of the administration's drive to enact a long-range farm program.

Thus, the farmers think a lot of Brannan because he has demonstrated that he is looking out for their interests in a realistic, level-headed fashion.

President Truman, it appeared had made a good choice in putting Brannan at the head of the department. Almost everybody was satisfied, and that, in an election year, was a most desirable situation for Mr. Truman.

FAILURE: No Peace

It was difficult to say who would suffer more from the Arabs' rejection of U. N. truce plea for Palestine — the Arabs themselves, the Jews or the United Nations.

Probably the Jews came off to better advantage in the world councils of public opinion, inasmuch as through their willingness to accept a truce they now can appear in the role of a nation which has been wronged and is forced to fight a war that has been thrust willy nilly upon it.

The Arabs simply brushed aside the idea of a truce with the contention that they could not halt the shooting war until the state of Israel is abandoned and the Jewish army demobilized. There never was any question in the minds of Arab leaders about the truce. It was literally unacceptable to them. Their position was stated definitively by the Egyptian premier, Mahmoud Fahmy Nokrashy Pasha, who said: "There never will be founded a state called Israel, or any other name, as long as the creation of that state relies upon the theft of Arab land, the extermination of its Arab owners and the sacrifice of moral principles of its Arab neighbors."

Nevertheless, the Arab refusal was a bitter blow to the U. N. security council. It had been organized for the express purpose of resolving just such disputes as this one in Palestine, yet it could do nothing more than make a weak gesture of placation.

There was little doubt that the security council had been rendered toothless and impotent on the Palestine issue by the U. S. attitude, or rather lack of attitude, toward the whole thing.

What position the United States would take as an individual nation with regard to the Palestine war was not clear either.

At a conference with Chaim Weizmann, Israel's president, President Truman promised that the U. S. would provide financial support for Israel in the form of a loan of about 100 million dollars. Further, he hinted at the possibility that unless the Arab states cease fire the U. S. might provide arms for the Jews.

Day after the conference, however, Mr. Truman dismissed Weizmann's plea for a loan as something that could be handled by the export-import bank, and he completely ducked the issue of raising the embargo on arms shipments to the Middle East.

FEWER BENEFITS LOST

People Are Discovering Social Security

Although inadvertent loss of benefits remains a major problem, the number of persons who deprive themselves of old-age and survivors insurance benefits because they delay filing their claims is decreasing steadily.

That report has been made by the Federal Security agency's social security administration. In

No Quarter

Fires of war between Arab and Jew continued to burn in the Holy Land when the Arab states refused to comply with a U. N. request for a truce. Attacking Jewish forces at all points, the Arabs said they would not quit until the Jews renounced their new state of Israel. Meanwhile, as victorious Haganah troops took over Acre (1), Egyptian planes intensified the air attack on Tel Aviv (2) and Arab troops enjoyed their greatest victories in Jerusalem (3).

PAY HIKE: New Formula

When General Motors corporation averted a threatened strike of 225,000 auto production workers by offering an 11-cent raise based on a cost-of-living formula it probably set a precedent which will be followed in settling other industrial labor disputes.

Under the agreement, described as an "entirely new approach to the living cost problem," GM production workers get an 8-cent cost-of-living increase and a 3-cent pay boost based on annual industrial efficiency improvement.

Terms provide that wages be adjusted up or down each three months to conform with fluctuations in the consumer price index of the bureau of labor statistics.

It appeared to be a sound plan and one that might be followed to good advantage by other industries. Biggest flaw in the scheme was the fact that General Motors might have to pass the cost-of-living raise on to the public, which step might have the eventual effect of nullifying the benefits of the raise to the workers.

Significance of this adjustable cost-of-living wage formula can be seen in a review of the rise in prices since 1940. The cost of living today is 69 per cent higher than in 1940. Using 1940 as a base year — which is what GM and the United Auto Workers did in arriving at their agreement — living costs now are at 169 per cent.

Biggest jump in the steadily rising price pattern came after OPA collapsed in the summer of 1946.

VOICE: Belitling

Voice of America broadcasts, which have never received a full measure of congressional approval, sank to an even lower level of disesteem because of a series of ill-starred programs beamed to Latin America last winter.

The scripts in question, denounced by senators as sabotage, slander and libel of the U. S., first attracted attention in March during house appropriation committee hearings on the Voice of America. In the sample script that the committee wanted to look over were some ill-chosen remarks about Wyoming.

Stout-hearted Wyoming congressmen shrieked in anguish. Other scripts were examined, and Sen. Homer Capehart (Rep., Ind.) finally aired the whole thing before the senate.

The legislators shuddered as they heard Capehart read from the scripts such excerpts as:

"New England was founded by hypocrisy and Texas by sin."
"Nevada's two main cities compete with each other because people get married in Las Vegas and divorced in Reno."

The programs were handled by the National Broadcasting company under contract with the state department. Rene Borgia, the man who wrote the scripts, was fired, and Alberto Gandero, Borgia's supervisor, resigned.

Unhealthy Families

Families with two children are "socially unhealthy," however fashionable they may be, the National Congress of Parents and Teachers in Cleveland was told by a University of Chicago professor of education, Robert J. Havighurst.

"A significant section of our population now have too few children to reproduce themselves," he told delegates to the annual convention.

Oratorical Flight

If Secretary of the Navy John Sullivan had possessed wings he probably would have flapped them in his enthusiasm when he went before the house armed services committee to urge congress to let the navy speed development of a 65,000-ton super aircraft carrier, costing 124 million dollars.

CORNBALL: For Breakfast

Some of the more sentimental hands around the American Broadcasting company's Chicago studios like to think of Don McNeill as a beautiful and vibrant symbol of the rise and snowballing success of ABC itself. At least they both were young together and both had to fight their way up through a welter of opposable circumstances to find adjoining places in the sun.

As toastmaster of the uninhibited Breakfast Club program, McNeill will celebrate his 15th anniversary on June 23 with the same kind of capers he has been executing five days a week between 8 and 9 a. m. since 1933.

Despite the subterranean regard which this sophisticated generation purports to hold for the more direct and obvious types of humor, McNeill has found that being a cornball pays off. He works without a script and his gags are strictly off-the-cuff.

He once invited a herpetologist (a student of reptiles and amphibians) who visited the program, to "Come into the parking lot after the broadcast and I'll show you a rare specimen. A windshield viper."

And when a New Jersey woman told him that her husband is a butcher and she is a coquette, he commented, "What an ideal arrangement. He fattens them up and you pull them in."

McNeill parlays this kind of extemporaneous patter with a feeling of genuine camaraderie for the plain people who are guests on his show to produce a program that has had a nationwide cult of early morning listeners begging for more for 15 consecutive years.

Modern Thoreau Lives in Hills On $500 a Year

CUSTER, S. D.—Badger Clark, a bearded poet-philosopher of the Black Hills, has never let love, mankind or money stand between him and his life's aim — a quiet quest for God.

"The Badger" is a tall, distinguished man with a Vandyke beard who wears a flowing green necktie, forest green jacket, whipcord breeches and polished riding boots. For 25 years he has lived alone and liked it in a "cabin with four rooms and a path" he largely built himself in Custer state park. He pays $10 a year ground rent and hasn't held a steady job for 43 years — since he was 22.

"The birds make a cloud about my head when I step outside," he said.

Badger has written 260 poems and 30 short stories. He is a kind of western style Rudyard Kipling and at least two of his "verses"—as he prefers to call them—have become national anthology favorites. They are "The Job" and "The Cowboy's Prayer."

Lives on $500 a Year

His books have brought him little money, however, and for many years he said he had been earning his way "by my jaw." By this he meant the speeches he makes to banquets, women's clubs and high school and college groups. He doesn't seek out these engagements. People come to him.

"I've shucked off the things I don't need," he said. "I believe that by reducing life to its simple terms you get more out of it. It's like chewing a crust of dry bread. A hungry man finds in it all the flavor he needs."

"I believe with Thoreau that a man is rich in proportion to the number of things he can afford to let alone."

"I can live on $500 a year comfortably today—even on $400. I can't stand to be in debt and won't be. If I want something and can't pay for it, I do without it until I can. The only thing I have against poverty is that I can't afford all the wonderful books I'd like to have."

Cooks His Meals

Clark bathes in a washtub, cooks his own meals and eats only twice a day to cut down on the time required by housekeeping chores. His cabin, kept spotlessly neat, is lighted by a kerosene lamp. It has no telephone, no radio.

The Badger likes individual people but dislikes cities. He goes to town only once every two weeks to buy supplies and stays only a couple of hours.

"I have given up many things—fatherhood, society, financial success. But I enjoy my life to the limit. What am I looking for? I suppose it is God. What else? There are times when I would like to be with people—with my friends—but I am never really lonely. Life is a habit. And I feel I am the happiest man in the Black Hills."

Clark at 65 is still a handsome man. I asked him why he had never married.

"I am very frank about my income," he smiled. "That does the trick."

World War II Fails to Dim Oriental Courtesy in China

WASHINGTON.—Oriental courtesy has survived the war in China. The American consulate general in Peiping received the following letter with a copy of a new telephone directory:

"I am respectfully aware of your fine administrative efficiency and your ability to dispose of your official duties as easily as cooling yourself with a fan."

"Under your command, the situation becomes settled and the military atmosphere is changed to auspiciousness. I look high upon your great brightness and offer you my hearty congratulations for it. I, Nieh Chuan-ju, am in charge of telecommunications and feel ashamed of my low ability. Owing to the beginning of the change of the year, a new edition has been prepared. I am, accordingly, sending you with this short letter a copy of the telephone directory for your inspection and keeping."

"With greetings and kindest regards, I am very truly yours, NIEH CHUAN-JU."

Marine of Iwo Flag Fame Is Reburied in His Home Town

ELIZAVILLE, KY.—Pfc. Franklin Sousley, 19, a Fleming county farm boy who helped raise the United States flag on Iwo Jima in 1945, was reburied in a simple ceremony in his home cemetery.

Sousley, one of five United States marines in the now famous flag raising picture, was killed in mopping up action on the small Pacific island a few days after the picture was made.

About 300 persons, including Gov. Earle Clements, attended the military funeral.

Throttling of Small Business Can Kill Democratic System

By BAUKHAGE

News Analyst and Commentator

WASHINGTON.—Over in England, where the majority voted to accept socialism because they felt the 400-year-old "capitalistic experiment" had been a failure, they are finding that you can't vote yourself into a prosperity any more than you can vote yourself into morality.

There are still a lot of Britons who think they have been voted out of the frying pan into the fire. Prime Minister Clement Attlee, in a recent report to the Labor party, admitted that conversion into socialist democracy was a long hard task, longer than they had imagined.

"We are engaged in a great venture," Attlee said, "We are trying to build a great, free, socialist democracy." He warned that a society changed by a democratic method is apt to lose the "habits of democracy."

I suppose he meant by that that socialism had to come by evolution, which is an ancient axiom of the more conservative socialists. Communists say it can come only by revolution.

Attlee also said that socialism was a way of life—not an economic theory. That will be questioned by some people. He added that socialism demanded a higher standard of citizenship than does capitalism. Some people will quarrel with that too. Many will say that it isn't that capitalism doesn't demand a higher standard of citizenship, but simply that capitalism (or any other known system, for that matter) doesn't always get it.

Capitalism fails, when it does fail, not because there is anything wrong with free enterprise or competition, but because sometimes the standard of morality or standard of citizenship if you will, running the system, bogs down. Then free enterprise is shackled and competition destroyed. The anti-trust laws were passed to punish people who tried to check free enterprise by killing competition.

Those laws wouldn't be needed, government intervention wouldn't be needed, if the standard of morality, of citizenship, were high enough among the people who control enterprise. Long before the war, and increasingly so when shortages began to appear later, big business began crowding small business out of existence.

Because of war conditions and the powerful influence of big business, the small buyer couldn't compete. He wasn't able to get the raw materials.

Small business is the keystone of capitalism. According to the Committee on Economic Development, 98 per cent of the business units in this country employ 50 people or less. Those "business units" of course aren't limited to manufacturing firms—they include the roadside hotdog stand, the one-woman hand laundry, the tea room, and the country store as well as the business men producing manufactured items on a small scale.

If this 98 per cent of a capitalist country's business isn't prosperous, capitalism can't succeed. In fact you can't have capitalism when big industrial groups monopolize business any more than you can have it when the state monopolizes business.

What is happening to small business today? It can't compete. Big business is making big profits, paying big wages (regardless of whether the take-home pay of the workers is equal to cover high prices or not). Small business can't afford to pay the big wages, and the small town merchant is not making sales and profits because the consumers in his company haven't the money to spend.

A recent issue of the Kiplinger magazine made a survey of conditions in small towns as reported in a thousand letters from small businessmen, teachers, preachers, doctors, lawyers, housewives, working-men and working women in those towns.

The net of the survey was that there was a definite letdown in business after January of this year, and that the people surveyed believed that there is a further letdown in prospect. There is evidence of reduced consuming power which is the first sign of a depression. A sign that the wealth of the nation is getting out of the buyers' hands.

Now that's a pretty gloomy picture and not wholly subscribed to by commerce department people here. They will tell you that business everywhere, large and small, showed a tendency to level off after January of this year, that there was a definite weakening in the first quarter of the year. But they believe that was a temporary trend, that it's over now, that business will reverse itself, and that the general trend is now upward again. They make no differentiation between large and small businesses in their prognostications and studies, and they feel that the trend for all business now is up.

But listen to what the people surveyed by Kiplinger say: A food wholesaler in Iowa: "Bread sales are extremely high, also flour sales are good and the sale of rolled oats is good, as people apparently are filling up on these nutritious foods in preference to more expensive items."

A baker in Ohio: "We are selling fewer cakes and pies."

Women are doing more sewing at home, with clothing prices so high. An Illinois businessman said: "The local high school decided to have a night school on sewing. The first registration was 135 women."

Young woman in Wisconsin: "I'm not the only working girl in this community who doesn't have the new look."

Illinois farmwoman: "We planned to buy some new furniture, but the price is too high. I am making slipcovers."

Even electrical items, dreamed of by housewives as an after-war necessity, are not selling well. Said an Iowa dealer: "The edge is definitely off on hard goods, such as refrigerators, washers, radios, stoves, etc. Prices too high."

A traveling salesman covering the small towns finds the going tough: "I cover New York state and I am working twice as hard for half the business."

Many little signs of hard times were reported by Kiplinger's survey. Examples:

A Texas housewife: "I am feeding tramps for the first time since before the war."

A deacon: "Collections are off at our church."

A loan company man: "More borrowing from small loan companies."

A village cobbler: "My shoe repair business is good."

As the Kiplinger magazine puts it: "The folks in the small towns are harder up. Their incomes haven't gone up as much as the prices they pay."

In other words, according to the survey, the wealth is getting out of the hands of the consumer. And whether this survey or the commerce department's optimistic prediction are more nearly correct, (congress abolished the small business section), this much at least can be said:

You can redistribute the wealth by the socialistic intervention of government. That kills capitalism. Or you can redistribute it by permitting full and free competition—competition on the part of the producers of raw materials, competition on the part of labor, (an expensive item), competition on the part of processors. Industrial or labor monopoly, as I said before, will kill capitalism in the end as effectively as the Communist with his little red hatchet.

Even Russians Get Reoriented

This item was passed along to me by a friend. A high officer in one of the armies which fought against Russia was visiting this country, and told this story:

Recently in Berlin, he was entertaining a high Russian officer stationed there. It was a farewell party as the Russian and his wife had been ordered to return to Moscow. The host remarked that it was nice that the Russian could take his wife back from the rigors of occupation life in Germany.

The Russian had dined well, and perhaps was indiscreet. Anyway, he confessed that he was anything but pleased; that he was dreading the period he and his wife must pass in the "camp."

Then he explained that every Russian, before he was allowed to return to the Soviet Union, had to pass through a re-education center, and be indoctrinated with just what he should say to his friends and relatives.

I repeat this item because it comes to me in a direct, intimate manner; not a part of any organized propaganda.

It's as hard to reach an agreement with 16 lawyers haggling over every word in a labor controversy as it is to get into heaven with 16 theologians haggling over how many angels can stand on the head of a pin.

Good pastures save grain, says department of agriculture. Yes, and around about foreclosing time, good grain will save pastures.

'NEW LOOK' REVOLT

Must the women of America dress to look part awning, part inverted tepee and part fashion slave? The question is being raised, and by the women themselves. From what this department hears the women's dress designers at last have succeeded in making the female worm turn, or nearly so. The current modes are not doing the gals any good pictorially and they know it.

Those long, loose, bell-bottom skirts not only make it difficult for a woman to look thin; they make it impossible for a thin one not to look fat. And unless the girls are just talking to hear themselves talk, a revolt against resembling a wigwam with a head and neck is on.

Any dress shop will tell you the women are mad clear through. "I am not a Mexican ballerina, a half opened umbrella or a poster for a colonial ball," insisted the missus the other day. "And I resent a conspiracy to make me look like a combination of all three. I have lived on lettuce and other rabbit food for a year to get fairly slender, and look what the garment industry does!"

"You women have yourselves to blame," we said. "Your slavish surrender to whatever some erratic style czars decree has been uninterrupted down through the years. Why don't you turn and kick them in the teeth by a simple refusal to toe the line? Your wardrobe is full of the recently outlived models. This is a time for sense, thrift, and . . ."

"There you go on that thrift stuff again! I am discussing styles, not economics. And I am not against smart changes in modes. What makes me boil is the abrupt switch from clothes in which a woman could look pretty good, if over 16, to these 1948 get-ups which make almost any woman look as if she was understudying a free balloon."

"I am with you, my sweet," we insisted. "The 1948 modes do for a woman what sailor pants do for a man."

"In the past a woman could always take something from her left-over dresses in a pinch like this and weather the tide, but you can't make a 1947 dress look like a forty-eigher unless it is for New Orleans, Mardi Gras purposes," she replied sadly.

"I have seen some women who, wearing the new look thing could enter a Mardi Gras as a decorated float," we said.

"Don't look at me," snapped the missus. "The simple truth is that few outside of this year's high school classes can blossom forth in modern fashion without resembling Whistler's Mother or Barbara Fritchie both wrongside up and very unhappy."

She put on her hat and started for the door.

"Where are you going?" we asked.

"To the United Nations! The matter belongs on their agenda. And what's more no candidate for president gets my vote who doesn't come out with planks to compel dress designers to register, take an oath they are not malicious, swear they are not undercover agents for Old Mother Hubbard and stop racketeering in feminine vanity."

THE DOVE

I can't make peace with any men,
Except through Mr. Wallace,

To each approach my stare is blank—
But not to Mr. Wallace (Hank);
It's funny how I give the gate

Ah, I am sweet and short of malice—
But only via Henry Wallace!

An appendix operation was the theme of a musical suite played at Hunter college the other night. The score, obviously, took a lot of cutting.

COLUMBIA RIVER DESTROYS OREGON CITY... This aerial view shows what is left of the war-built city of Vanport, Ore., after a dyke of the swollen Columbia river broke and let the flood waters pour destructively through. Homes were ripped from their foundations and smashed against one another and many others drowned. Elsewhere, vast areas of Oregon and Washington also were flooded by the rampaging Columbia. An approximate 90,000 persons were made homeless throughout the Pacific Northwest and the damage toll was at least 75 million dollars.

TODAY AND YESTERDAY IN THE AIR... Here is visible evidence of the immense strides taken in aviation since the war. A mammoth Northrop flying wing B-35 bomber scoots past a B-17 bomber, one of the World War II heavyweights. There is a startling contrast in size between today's B-35's, weighing 100 tons and measuring 172 feet from wing tip to wing tip, and the flying fortress, backbone of bombing attacks on Europe. B-35s can fly 10,000 miles non-stop at speeds far in excess of the now obsolete B-17s. U.S. army air force is testing the flying wings for possible widespread use later on. Crew compartments, cargo space and engines all are housed within the wing.

U. S. S. SALT LAKE CITY'S LAST MANEUVER... Veteran of World War II and the Bikini atom tests, the U. S. cruiser Salt Lake City has been sent to the bottom by the shells and torpedoes of its own navy. The vessel weathered more than four hours of bombardment from planes and ships before the death blow came--two submarine torpedoes. It slowly turned on its side and slid beneath the waves of the deep Pacific. Twenty-five warships and nearly 400 planes operating from carriers of the first task fleet took part in the assault, the first such test since the 1920s. Believed still to be radioactive from the Bikini tests of the atom bomb, the cruiser was unusable for scrap and for that reason was destroyed.

HOUSEHOLD MEMOS... by Lynn Chambers

It's Time to Turn Luscious Berries Into Tender Jellies

WHEN ORCHARDS are covered with snow and vineyards no longer are bursting with their luscious berries, the best way to bring them back to the table is to serve, flavor-fresh, delicately tinted jellies made from the berries at their peak of the season.

A good idea is to make a sort of canning plan. Decide what your family likes most, figure out about how much they ate last year, and make up a program for the next year.

Sort out your canning supplies, buying any necessary equipment before you start the work.

When you make jellies and jams, try to work with small batches only. It seems to take less time, but far more important than that, the results are better. The jellies are tender and more colorful, and there is less chance for error.

If you have fruits and berries with small pectin content of their own, use a commercial product for quick work. You'll save color and flavor as well as time and energy.

When making jams and jellies, assemble your equipment and materials before you begin cooking the fruit.

IF YOU'RE STARTING to make jelly now, the following fruit and berry combinations are excellent for appetite appeal. They are also in season in most parts of the country so that you can make them readily:

1. Blackberry and rhubarb
2. Boysenberry and rhubarb
3. Dewberry and rhubarb
4. Loganberry and rhubarb
5. Raspberry and rhubarb
6. Youngberry and rhubarb

Here is the recipe for jelly made from any of the above combinations:

- 3 cups juice
- 4 cups sugar
- 1 box powdered fruit pectin

To prepare juice, crush thoroughly or grind about one quart of fully ripe berries. Cut into one-inch lengths (do not peel) about one pound of rhubarb, and put through food chopper. Place fruits in jelly bag of cloth and squeeze out juice.

Measure sugar and set aside until needed. Measure juice into a three- or four-quart saucepan and place over hottest fire. Add powdered fruit pectin, mix well and continue stirring until mixture comes to a hard boil. Pour in sugar at once, stirring constantly. Continue stirring, bring to a full rolling boil, and boil hard one-half minute. Remove from fire, skim and pour quickly into seven six-ounce glasses. Paraffin hot jelly at once.

ARE YOU FOND of unusual jellies? Here's an old-fashioned one with a lovely and unusual delicate flavor:

Rose Geranium Jelly

Select tart, sound apples. Wash and cut off blossom ends. Do not remove peeling or cores. Cut into quarters and barely cover with water. Cook until fruit is tender. Strain juice through a jelly bag and measure. Bring to boiling point and add three-fourths cup of sugar for each cup of juice. Boil rapidly to jelly stage (dip spoon into syrup. As the boiling mass nears the jelling point it will drop from the side of the spoon in two drops). When almost done, im-

LYNN SAYS: Pointers Will Help You In Making Jams, Jellies

Broken fruits may be used for making jams, but at least a portion of the fruit should be under-ripe. Overripe fruits and berries lack pectin, and some pectin is necessary to make the mixture "jelly."

It's a good idea to cook fruits and berries slightly before adding the sugar to give the pectin substance a chance to develop.

merge in the boiling jelly two or three rose geranium leaves. These wilt quickly and give off their flavor. Tint with rose vegetable coloring. Pour into sterilized jelly glasses and paraffin at once.

HERE ARE TWO PERFECT berries for jelly making. You'll be delighted with their fresh fruit flavors and beautiful colors:

*Currant Jelly

Select currants that are not over-ripe. Remove leaves but do not stem. Mash with potato masher. Add one-half cup of water to each two quarts of berries. Cook 10 minutes stirring frequently. Strain through jelly bag. Use three-fourths cup sugar for each cup of juice. Heat juice, add sugar and stir until it dissolves. Cook until the syrup sheets off the spoon. Seal in hot, sterilized glasses.

Red Raspberry Jelly (Makes 12 6-ounce glasses)

- 3 quarts red raspberries
- 7 1/2 cups sugar
- 1 bottle pectin

Thoroughly crush raspberries; place in jelly bag and squeeze out juice. There should be four cups. Heat juice; add sugar; bring to boiling, stirring constantly. Add fruit pectin. Bring to a full rolling boil; boil one-half minute. Remove from heat; skim; seal in hot sterilized glasses.

HERE ARE TWO very special recipes which you will enjoy having for they are perfectly delicious and make wonderful accompaniments to any meal, breakfast, lunch or dinner.

Deluxe Strawberry Preserves

- 2 pounds capped berries
- 4 tablespoons lemon juice
- 5 cups sugar

Mix berries with sugar. Let stand three to four hours. Place over low heat until simmering point is reached. Add lemon juice. Boil rapidly for 10 to 12 minutes or until berries are clear and the syrup thick. Cover and let stand overnight. Pack cold into hot jars and process 15 minutes at simmering (in hot water bath).

If you're making watermelon rind preserves, do so at the early part of the season for the rind is thicker on watermelon.

Watermelon Rind Preserves

- 2 pounds watermelon rind
- 1 tablespoon ground ginger
- 4 cups sugar
- 2 lemons
- 2 quarts of water

Cut off all green peel and pink part. Then cut rind into one-inch squares. Soak two or three hours in lime water. Freshen in two or three more changes of water. Sprinkle ginger over rind. Cover with water and boil one and a half hours. Drain and drop into cool syrup made with sugar, water and lemon juice, of one lemon. Boil gently one hour. Add second lemon, sliced thin. Continue boiling until the rind is tender and the syrup thick. If syrup gets too thick before rind is tender add a little more water. Let stand several hours. Pack into hot jars, and process in a water bath for 15 minutes at simmering temperature.

Jam is a highly concentrated mass that will burn easily unless care is taken. Stir the mass from the bottom to prevent burning. Cook briskly but watch carefully. Don't let it simmer carelessly for hours if you want to protect flavor and color.

The best jam is made when you do not add too much sugar. When you are not using a commercial pectin, the rule is three-quarters of a pound of sugar to one pound of fruit.

Olive Trees and Taxes

Many years ago, when the Balkan province of Macedonia was a center of contention among Turks, Bulgars and Greeks, the Turks, in possession at the time, set out to make the province unattractive to rival nationalities. They adopted the device of putting up taxes on olive orchards to the point that forced the unfortunate owners of olive orchards to cut them down. As olive growing was an important industry, the trick worked.

GARDEN HINTS

by Harold R. Clark
 County Agricultural Agent

One pound of humus will hold four times as much water as one pound of sand. Humus in the soil is like a wick or sponge. Humus provides plant food and is usually high in nitrogen. Humus provides a media for soil bacteria which are so important in converting minerals into available plant food. To have a successful garden, there must be an abundant supply of decayed vegetation or humus.

Mucks are high in humus, but after a few years of cropping the vegetation becomes depleted and so it is important that vegetation be continually added to all garden soils.

Sources of Humus

1. Barnyard manure is best source of humus. It is high in plant food, especially nitrogen. Commercial gardens apply as high as 20 tons (15 loads) per acre. For the family garden one load would be equivalent to that rate.

2. Green manure, you grow that yourself. In August sow sweet clover or rye and plow under in the spring. Green manures are high in nitrogen. By adding a commercial fertilizer that is high in phosphate and potash the plant food will well balance.

3. Composts—are made by piling leaves, weeds, old plants, garbage or any waste vegetation in an unused corner of the garden lot and covering with dirt. The compost is allowed to decay during the summer and winter and used in small beds or on the garden proper. An addition of commercial fertilizer will complete the balance of plant food. Never, never burn leaves or waste plants.

A rich garden is one that is high in humus. For real satisfaction mind your humus.

Self-Winding Clock
 First self-winding clock was invented by Benjamin Hanks about 1783. It had an ingenious attachment which operated by means of air.

We propose to build this summer, if there is demand for them, six homes for year around use. We have in mind a two or three bedroom home with plumbing, wiring and heating plant complete. If you have a lot in the Tawas area or elsewhere, we'll build on it a house to your specifications. If you want us to furnish you both house and lot we can do that.

Maybe you prefer to rent the home furnished or unfurnished. If you have a job and will lease a home by the year we will build one or more around the needs of such individuals.

In the 1880s, old shoes were gathered in the United States, cut into small pieces and for several days soaked in chloro-sulphuric liquid. When dried, pieces of leather were hard. After washing in water and drying again, the leather strips were ground into powder and mixed with glue. This material was used in making combs, buttons and knife handles.

"BUG FLASHES" Insect Control on Brambles (Cane Fruits)

1. Arsenicals, DDT and other suitable insecticides can be used for control of insects attacking when poisonous residues are not left on fruit.

2. Use 3/4% rotenone for such insects as currant worm, raspberry fruitworm and raspberry sawfly after the berries have formed.

3. Control aphids with nicotine sulphate, one pint plus four pounds of alkaline (harsh) laundry soap to 100 gallons of water. For small amounts: one teaspoonful of nicotine sulphate plus 1/2 ounce (one inch cube) of laundry soap. A 4% nicotine dust is satisfactory. Apply thoroughly and in the heat of the day.

DDT

DDT should be used with the same care as is taken when using arsenical insecticides as lead arsenate.

2. DDT should not be used when a residue is objectionable on food or forage crops. Food for man and animals containing poisonous insecticidal residue are not desirable products.

3. Use when possible rotenone, pyrethrum, nicotine, or other relatively safe insecticides in place of DDT or other new materials when residues on food crops become a problem.

4. Best results are to be had from the use of DDT, rotenone, or any other insecticide when insects are controlled on time.

We just can't produce telephone calls this way

It would be nice if we could make up a lot of telephone calls in advance and store them for future use. But we can't. Every telephone call must be made to your order on the spot . . . whenever you want it, day or night.

Every call requires a system of wires, cables and central office equipment which grows more and more complex as it becomes easier and faster for you to use. And as more telephones are added, the equipment needed per telephone multiplies.

There, in brief, is the "rising-cost characteristic" of the business that always challenges the telephone industry.

Over the years, better equipment and more efficient methods have been able to meet this challenge. But today, these alone are insufficient to offset the overall increase in the costs of running the business.

You can be sure, however, that we shall continue to provide the best possible service at the lowest possible cost. And every day—as the telephone system grows—the value of your service increases because you can call more people and more people can call you.

The FICTION Corner

THE BIG CHANCE

By FREDERICK LAING

HE WASN'T the kind to pick a secretary by the color of her hair. Not Bill Hargrave. Both Paula and Nancy had been smart enough to know that. And for some time every one in the office had known that one of them, Paula or Nancy, was going to get the job. In fact, the decision probably would come through this afternoon. Hargrave was leaving town and wanted to get it settled.

The two girls could see him from their desks outside his office. Maybe it was only a set of proofs for the Zippo campaign that he was looking at with cool, keen eyes. But for a moment his finger seemed to pause above those two efficient little push-buttons. If he pressed the left one, it would be Paula's pulse that would go into high speed.

Paula couldn't keep her eyes off that light on her desk. She kept making mistakes in her typing and nervously ripping the sheets out to start fresh again.

She leaned across her typewriter and said to Nancy: "The boss is all dolled up today. Must be going on a special trip with the new president of Zippo."

She was just talking to relieve her nervousness. Nancy took her time about answering. She wasn't used to having Paula talk to her in such an intimate tone. Not since they'd learned a month ago that they were both in line for a promotion, for the important job as Bill Hargrave's secretary.

"He does look nice," she said, finally.

Hargrave was young and outside of office hours he was said to be human. But that wasn't why he'd gotten to be one of the key men at Advertising, Inc. He was quiet, and some of the boys in the office hadn't realized how fast he was traveling until they somehow happened to get in his way.

The two girls saw him get up from his desk and walk to the doorway of his office. He stood there with one hand in a pocket of his double-breasted blue flannel suit. There was a small white flower in his buttonhole and the usual keen, unrevealing smile on his face.

"Did you send for the tickets?" he asked Nancy.

"I got the tickets all right," she answered, "but . . ." and she tried to smile in the same hard way the boss did. She looked as hardboiled as a white kitten. "But there just aren't any staterooms to be had," she told him. "Not for love or money."

The boss was certainly disappointed. Anybody could see that.

"Suppose I try it?" Paula suggested quickly.

And for the next 10 minutes, half the office force could hear Paula telling the ticket agent where to get off.

"Listen," she said, "I don't care whose reservations you have to cancel . . ."

Well, the job was worth going after. There was the salary, for one thing. And there was the prestige. The boss' secretary knew a lot of answers. And there were the interesting people she got to talk to. The big shots. And the boxes of perfume, flowers and candy they often left on her desk.

And there was Bill Hargrave for a boss. Young and clever and attractive. That was a factor, too. Because in the advertising business you called the boss "Bill," and he called his secretary "Nancy" or "Paula," and took her to dinner on the expense account, on nights when the work was late.

It was all strictly business, but it seemed intimate and informal.

Both Paula and Nancy knew about these dinners. Bill had tried to be fair. He would ask Paula to stay one night, and then it would be Nancy's turn the next.

But Paula had been smart. She'd soon learned how impersonal Bill Hargrave could be, even at those intimate dinners. About as personal

She handed him the envelope. It contained the two sets of tickets. "That's your stateroom number on the outside," she said crisply.

She had on a double-breasted blue flannel suit something like Bill's, and it was clear he thought she looked pretty smart in it.

"Don't forget the time," she added, "eight fifteen."

Hargrave grinned. "So there were no staterooms for love or money, eh?"

He looked again at the number of his stateroom and he put the

And for the next 10 minutes, half the office force could hear Paula snappily telling the ticket agent where to get off.

as an ad that says: "This means you." And she saw how much harder to please he was during the overtime hours — more irritable, more apt to get that edge of complaint in his voice.

So when Nancy had said, "I don't mind staying nights, really. I know Paula usually has a date. She's popular with the men . . ." well, Paula had been glad to let it go at that. She'd been quick to see that neither of them was going to get the job mainly on sex appeal, and she was right.

Paula didn't need any lessons when it came to office politics. She was the one who was always busy when some copy cub wanted his stuff typed. "Sorry, but it's impossible, Mac. Why not ask Nancy?"

And they did. It left Paula free to do Bill Hargrave's work in a hurry. Never too busy for Mr. Bill.

When Hargrave finally pressed one of those buttons it was at Paula's desk that the light flickered. She started to make a grab for her note book, but she whipped out her mirror first. Then she grabbed up her note book and an envelope that was on the desk.

As for Nancy, what else could she do but sit there with her pretty blonde bent over her typewriter? Nancy was a natural blonde, and that seemed the best way to describe her. She just didn't seem to know any tricks.

The moment Paula got inside Hargrave's office, he asked about that stateroom.

"Any luck, Paula?"

No, Paula hadn't been dumb. It was the little things that would add with Mr. Bill. Orchestra seats when the client was in town and the show was sold out. Or a stateroom when there were "no staterooms to be had for love or money."

envelope carefully in his inside pocket.

Then he told her. She had a new job. He mentioned the salary, too. He didn't neglect to mention the salary.

She took it just right. Just enough of gratitude. And then, the old sportsmanship. How sorry she felt about Nancy. She didn't look sorry.

And neither did Bill. He told her it was okay, that Nancy wasn't made for the job anyway, and that they were leaving on their honeymoon tonight. Tonight, at eight fifteen.

CORDUROY COMOTION — By actual survey, we find that you high school jills think every boy looks his best in a corduroy jacket. You're partial to the light tan jobs, worn with sharp slacks. You also like to date something in a three-quarter length corduroy coat. And, with his letter sweater, you think yellow corduroy slacks make him look as suave as Rory Calhoun.

BEAUX WITHOUT BOWS — The majority of teen-age girls vote against bow ties—but go all out for wild four-in-hand ties that light up the dark without benefit of electricity. On his ties you like one of those new clasps that looks as if it had been pierced right through the fabric. In fact, you like them so much that you're begging, borrowing, or stealing them from him. Well, if at first you don't succeed when you ask for one—just cry, cry again!

BRING 'EM BACK ALIVE!

The revival of "Gone With the Wind" has made lots of you wonder where are the movies of yesterday, and why doesn't someone bring them back. When you enjoy a book you read it over and over. How many times have you read "Seventeenth Summer"? But, when you enjoy a movie—it's usually only the memory that lingers on; the movie, itself, disappears like yesterday's snow. According to a recent soda fountain survey, here are the epics you'd like to eat popcorn through again.

"STATE FAIR" — Jeanne was so lovely—and there must be a word for Dana, but we can't think of it. Then, there's that music! "JOLSON STORY"—It's practically everyone's choice for a revival at least once a month.

"MRS. MINIVER" — You'll even forgive Greer for "Desire Me" if she'll bring the Minivers back to town with her.

Well, when it comes to movies — one good showing deserves another.

cent, and what she calls East New Orleansese — says it's her "native tongue." With the musical and also "Lulu Belle" finished, she has been in New York, combining a vacation with business and a bit of ear trouble.

It's hard to get guest stars from Hollywood to commit themselves to broadcast dates, so when "Mystery Theater" executives asked K. T. Stevens if she would be in New York for their show they were startled when she said, "Sure, I'll be here six weeks from now, even six months from now." Was she giving up her career? "No, I've a new career, that of 'Mother,'" she explained.

Franchot Tone will provide romantic competition for Cary Grant in "Every Girl Should Be Married," playing a wealthy wolf with frivolous intentions—right up his alley! Grant's protege, Betsy Drake, is the girl in the case.

"The Time of Your Life" is a magnificent picture. In transferring the Pulitzer-prize winning play to the screen, the Cagney brothers have reached a standard rarely achieved in Hollywood. This one should win a flock of Oscars. The cast is superb; it includes James and Jeanne Cagney, William Bendix, Wayne Morris, Broderick Crawford, Ward Bond, James Barton, Gale Page, and Reginald Beane, every one excellent.

Between scenes of Paramount's "The Great Gatsby" Alan Ladd judged his 154th beauty contest. It was to pick the 1948 "Dream Girl" for the University of Washington chapter of Pi Kappa Alpha fraternity. Fifty photographs were submitted, and co-stars Betty Field and Macdonald Carey helped select the winner. With his experience, Ladd could have done it alone.

Everett Sloane helped make movie history when he stole a picture from Orson Welles. He did it with his great performance in Columbia's "The Lady from Shanghai." James Barton does the same thing, in "The Time of Your Life," to James Cagney. Barton is so good as Kit Carson, the old trapper, that few who see the picture ever will forget him.

At RKO they believe that in "Battleground" they have a worthy successor to those film classics of World War I, "All Quiet on the Western Front," "The Big Parade" and "What Price Glory." It is based on factual incidents of the battle of Bastogne, written by Robert Pirosh, a combat veteran who won the Bronze Star for valor at Bastogne.

Woman Wins Prizes As Spare Time Hobby

SPRINGFIELD, ILL. — Some women knit and many collect china. Still others prefer to dig in the garden or play bridge. But Mrs. Homer McLaren of Springfield scorns these long-popular feminine pursuits. She likes "contesting."

In four months Mrs. McLaren has reaped a washing machine, radio, radio-phonograph and three $10 prizes for her entries. But then, she's been "contesting" for 10 or 12 years. Mrs. McLaren, author of numerous magazine articles, also teaches a course in "tricks of the contesting trades," at the Springfield community school for adults.

She prescribes her hobby especially for shut-ins, hospitalized veterans, and those who want to forget their troubles.

She said: "It can also keep a good many housewives from turning into neurotics and it's a fine time-killer for commuters."

Mrs. McLaren began entering contests just as a hobby, but she told of one woman who helped support her mother and brother on her prizes. The winnings come in pretty handy, too, around Christmas time.

The whole thing's so easy, the Springfield woman doesn't understand why almost every housewife doesn't take up the hobby.

She continued: "All you have to do is carry around a pad and pencil while you do your work. If an idea strikes you, jot it down." Mrs. McLaren adds that the idea seems to have caught on among a widening number of the public. Publications are sold listing current contests and supplying information on how to become a "winner," and contest clubs have even been formed through the country.

Rat Sets Off Jail Break Alarm in Detroit Prison

DETROIT.—A rat turned in a jail break alarm that sent police scurrying through prisoners' quarters.

Officers who heard the general alarm bell hurriedly converged on all exits to police headquarters. Others checked the cell blocks, but found everything in order.

Then the search was extended to the basement, where Lt. Richard Bowen discovered rats had chewed through a wire. That caused the short circuit and turned on the alarm.

Indian Bridegroom Trades Herd of Horses for Bride

DURANGO, COLO. — A bridegroom doesn't have to be a good horsetrader. But it helps, if he marries according to the centuries-old tribal ritual as Howling Wolf did.

Wolf, flockmaster of the Navajo reservation, was married to Dot Klish near this southwestern Colorado town. The wedding started as he came riding over the mesa, driving horses to be exchanged for his bride.

The parents of the bride inspected the horses and weren't impressed. After considerable argument, the groom agreed to replace two colts in the herd with two full-grown horses.

The bride's uncle sprinkled a circular ring and cross of the sacred blue pollen of the larkspur upon a basket of porridge. The bride sat on the west side of the Hogan, her prospective husband joined her, and the porridge was placed between them.

Careful to use the first two fingers of his right hand, the man took a pinch of the porridge from the east side of the basket and ate it. His wife-to-be did the same. They proceeded in this manner until they had completed the circle and taken a final pinch from the center.

Should the wife ever want a divorce, it's simple. She simply will toss her husband's saddle from their Hogan.

Stone Cutter Cleaves Large Star Sapphire Worth $300,000

LOS ANGELES.—The story of the cutting of the world's largest star sapphire, valued at $300,000, was disclosed by the man who performed the delicate task.

Known as the Black Star of Queensland, the giant gem originally weighed 1,156 carats but now is 733 carats in its finished state. It is larger by 170 carats than the previous record holder, the 563-carat Star of India in the J. P. Morgan collection in the American museum of natural history.

"I could have ruined it a hundred times during the cutting," said Harry Kazanjian as he told how he and his brother, James, polished the stone.

They first heard of it when it was uncovered in a river bed in Queensland, Australia, in a mine in which the Kazanjians have an interest.

Kazanjian made elaborate drawings before he began the polishing process. The task was to bring out the six-pointed star of the stone in the exact center. A special set of cutting and polishing tools was used in the painstaking work, which continued for days.

The stone was cut here and shown in New York. The Kazanjians said the gem is not for sale.

FIRST AID to the AILING HOUSE

by Roger C. Whitman

QUESTION: My house was painted five years ago with fairly good paint. The paint is now all cracking and peeling down to the wood. Should I scrape off the old paint and apply a coat of aluminum paint, then a coat of good house paint?

ANSWER: That would be a good way to handle the problem. But first examine the walls for leakage. It is quite possible that since the house was painted five years ago, small cracks may have opened up around the window and door frames that admit water during driving rains. This rain water leaks down inside the walls and on warm, dry days is drawn through the walls, taking off paint from the surfaces.

QUESTION: Is it necessary to flush a hot water system every year or two?

ANSWER: At the beginning of the heating season it is advisable to draw off several pailfuls of water to flush out some of the accumulation in the boiler, but it is not necessary to drain off the entire heating system. Use a boiler cleaning compound every two or three years.

QUESTION: I would like to know if coal ashes do any harm to a garden?

ANSWER: When correctly used, coal ash can be of benefit to a garden and lawn.

New Synthetic Ingredient Keeps Bread Fresh Longer

Bread, so often called the staff of life, forms part of nearly every meal and is relished by everyone. It has, however, one serious drawback—its tendency to become stale quickly.

This tendency towards quick staling now has been reduced by about one-third, scientists claim, by introduction of a new ingredient. Use of this ingredient, whether in the bakery or the housewife's kitchen, will save many dollars for each American family that throws the stale end of the loaf into the garbage bucket. Incidentally, this discovery also may go a long way towards the grain-saving needed to feed the starving peoples of Europe.

All you do—or all the baker does—is to add a small part of a new, edible fatty substance made of synthetic ethylene oxide, to the regular bread recipe.

If use of the new substance becomes widespread, it is expected to mean that home bakers will need to bake only once or twice a week, that customers need to buy bread only a few times a week instead of daily, that restaurants no longer need to throw out tremendous amounts of bread and that bakeries no longer may need night-shift work to provide fresh bread.

dividing the two legs of the course in half thereby providing a three mile course for the smaller boats.

In each case the starting line and finish line will be at right angles to the course, and it is thought that this change will provide much more interesting sailing as well as afford the spectators a much better view of the race.
