Tawas City Wins From Twining in Erratic Game

Start Second Half Off Against Twining Here This Sunday

In a close but erratically played game last Sunday, Tawas City topped Twining 7 to 6 on the down-stater's home diamond. The Tawas City infield was rather wobbly at times with several bad pegs and loose fielding setting up runs for the Twining team. While the infield was going through their erratic performance the Tawas City outfield played exactly the opposite, with several fine catches and throws. Groff cut off a sure home run by running back to the fence, making a leaping one handed catch. Manager Gackstetter hauled in two line drives after long runs, and Landon's perfect throw in the seventh cut down Ostrander at the plate.

Tawas City drew first blood, scoring two runs in the first, Peterson led off with a single, Katterman singled, Groff sacrificed, Libka fouled to Lammy, W. Mallon singled, driving in Peterson and Katterman, M. Mallon flied out to centerfield.

The locals scored three more runs in the fifth when D. Landon singled, went to second on overthrow, Gackstetter grounded out, Landon taking third, Thornton was hit by pitched ball, stole second, Peterson struck out, Katterman was safe when the centerfielder dropped his fly ball, with Landon and Thornton scoring and Katterman going to second; Groff singled, scoring Katterman, Libka flied to second to end inning.

In the Twining half of the fifth, they scored their first two runs, when Bessinger led off with a triple, Curriston singled, scoring Bessinger. A Bessinger hit a line drive back through the box which Mallon knocked down with his bare hand, throwing him out at first for the first out. Curriston going to second on the play; Ostrander singled, scoring Curriston; Newton grounded out to short and Lammy popped to Mallon. Mallon's right hand began to swell from the effects received from Bessinger's line drive, and he was replaced in the sixth inning by fireballer, Herb Look.

In Tawas City's half of the sixth, they added two more runs to their total, when W. Mallon led off with a single, M. Mallon forced W. Mallon at second on a fielder's choice; D. Landon struck out, Gackstetter tripled to center, scoring. (Continued No. 3, Back Page)

Alabaster Jumps Back into Win Column

Defeats Whittemore 7 to 5; Again Plays Whittemore Sunday

Alabaster jumped back into the win column last Sunday by defeating Whittemore 7 to 5 in a wild exhibition played at Alabaster. Both teams displayed erratic baseball, committing a total of 13 errors, and each team played 13 different men, including two pitchers each.

Whittemore started off with a bang in the first inning by pushing in two runs on a hit and two Alabaster errors. Then the game settled down, and Barr pitching for Whittemore, held Alabaster hitless until the sixth inning, when the Plaster City boys coupled four hits with two Whittemore errors to score five runs, and take the lead 5 to 2. In the seventh frame, Whittemore scored an unearned run on an Alabaster error, a man hit by pitched ball, a walk and a fielder's choice. Alabaster came back in their half of the inning to score twice more on an error, a double by manager Harold Rollin, and another Whittemore error.

Then in the eighth, Whittemore got to Bob Rollin who had replaced Paul Beyer on the mound for Alabaster for one hit, and two more Alabaster errors to score twice more to run their total up to five runs. The game ended soon after, 7 to 5.

Paul Beyer starting for Alabaster struck out seven, gave four hits, walked one, and hit three with pitched balls. Bob Rollin, who replaced Beyer in the sixth frame, struck out two, gave one hit, and walked one. Alabaster hitting was done by Harold Rollin and Joe Roberts, each with a two bagger to his credit, and Pat Erickson, Joe Martin, Pat Johnson and Wayne Wickert, each with a single to his credit.

Next week, Alabaster plays a return engagement with Whittemore, at Whittemore and the boys are determined to make it a clean sweep in their fight to regain the lead in the NEM league standings. Score by Innings: R. H. E. Alabaster 000 005 20x-7 6 7 Whittemore 200 000 120-5 5 6

Pioneer Iosco Resident Dies At Detroit

Services for James H. Nisbet Held Here Last Saturday

The funeral of James H. Nisbet, a pioneer of this section of Michigan, was held last Saturday afternoon from the Moffatt Funeral Home in East Tawas with burial in the Tawas City cemetery. He passed away in Detroit last Thursday after a short illness.

Mr. Nisbet was 81 years of age, being born in Beverly, Ontario, October 12, 1866. He came with his parents to Tawas City in 1876 when 10 years of age and has been a resident of Tawas City almost continually for 72 years. He finished high school in Tawas City and attended Alma College, graduating there in 1889. He then returned to enter the lumber business with his father, William Nisbet, and continued that arrangement until his father's death in 1901. He was one of the pioneer lumbermen in this section of Michigan.

He was married to Laura S. Black, who was a teacher in the Tawas City Schools July 11, 1894, and they recently celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary at their home at Island Lake. He was very active in community work, serving as president and as secretary of the Tawas City Board of Education and later as a member of the Iosco County Board of Supervisors, and several terms as City Treasurer.

In 1911 the Nisbet family moved to a farm at Maple Ridge in Arenac County, where again he was active in community affairs and served on the Board of Education. While living at Maple Ridge he organized and was president of a Rural Chautauque, which was a unique movement in community education and entertainment. This was a very successful venture and several of the state's and nation's leading speakers appeared on its programs. In 1926 the family moved back to their summer home at Indian Lake, and later to a modern home they built on Island Lake, where they lived until they lost it by fire last September. They then lived with their daughter, Mrs. Ray Mead at Island Lake until moving to Detroit just a few weeks ago.

He was an enthusiastic yachtsman in the Tawas Bay area, and for 65 years owned and operated his own yacht. Some of his yachts were: the Verve, Wanda, Sunshine, Ottawa and the Gable. He was a Commander of the Tawas Bay Yacht Club which for years promoted Regattas on Tawas Bay. Mr. Nisbet was especially active in the religious life of the community in which he lived. He was an elder of three Presbyterian, Tawas City, Maple Ridge and Woodward Avenue Presbyterian Church of Detroit. He was President of the Iosco County Sunday School Association and later of the Arenac County Sunday School Association. He also served on the Executive Committee and was vice president of the State Sunday School Association. He attended many meetings of Saginaw Presbytery and also of the Synod of Michigan as representative of the Tawas City and Maple Ridge churches. He was the first layman to serve as Moderator of Saginaw Presbytery and was twice its representative to General Assembly of the Presbyterian church at Buffalo and Atlanta, Ga. For 50 years he taught a class in Sunday School.

NEW STAMP DESIGN

"President Signs Bill for Stamp Honoring Poultry Industry."—News item.

Postmaster General—Well we have to get out another stamp.

Designer—What do we honor this time, the discovery of gold, the inventor of the walkie-talkie or the discoverer of lipstick?

P. G.—The hen.

Designer—Hen Wallace?

P. G.—No; the other egg layer.

Designer—What has it done now?

P. G.—I guess it's a matter of recognition of past performances. The hen has been around a long time and always done its best.

Designer—Do you want her on a postage stamp settin', layin' or roostin'?

P. G.—That's for discussion. How about her with a brood of chicks?

Designer—Is there room on a three-cent stamp?

P. G.—There is on the kind we are turning out these days.

Designer—If we are going to honor a hen, how about working in an egg?

P. G.—Hard-boiled or soft? Designer—Possibly a festoon of omelettes for a border.

P. G.—We mustn't emphasize the food angle, especially at present levels of chickens and eggs. I think we should limit the design to the chicken alone.

Designer—Now the question of what kind of chicken arises. What would you say to southern fried?

P. G.—With waffles?

Designer—I'm asking about a stamp, not taking a dinner order.

P. G.—My mistake. Cancel the southern fried. We don't want to have another war between the North and South all over a three-cent stamp.

Designer—Hmm. Did congress specify any particular breed of hen?

P. G.—I hear the Republicans were for the white Leghorns, but the Democrats favored the buff Cochins. In committee conference they finally compromised on a hen combining the best features of each, with a touch of Plymouth Rock to please New England.

Designer—Very well. I'll get busy and submit some designs.

P. G.—How will I know when you have accomplished something? Designer—I'll cluck.

But it is just possible that as a businessman suffering the harassments of today all problems put up to him by college professors seemed infinitesimal.

We can't understand the labor troubles at the Oak Ridge atomic plant. That would seem to me to be one place where money would seem the last thing to worry over.

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS

GOP Convention Hands Nomination To Dewey in Display of Unanimity; Warren Second Choice on Ticket

By Bill Schoentgen, WNU Staff Writer

(EDITOR'S NOTE: When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of Western Newspaper Union news analysts and not necessarily of this newspaper.)

GOVERNOR DEWEY AND FAMILY

... They want a new, white house ...

DEWEY EYED

GOP Convention

Out of the smoke-blurred rooms during the recess before the third roll call came the word: It was Dewey—first again with the medicine men.

From the very beginning of the GOP convention in the sweltering confines of Philadelphia's convention hall it was a simple case of Dewey against the field. The field was composed of Taft, Stassen, Vandenberg, Warren and MacArthur, plus a scattering of favorite sons.

Despite some frenetic jockeying for delegates by Dewey, Taft and Stassen over the week-end preceding the convention, the big three of the GOP started out on Monday with their pre-convention alignments unchanged.

But by the time Gov. Dwight Green of Illinois had finished with his keynote address Monday night it was apparent that a stop-Dewey movement was struggling to get under way. As it turned out that movement never did get beyond the struggling stage and Dewey remained virtually the only one unaffected by it.

In retrospect, the convention by that time already had assumed an inexorable course toward the Dewey camp. Second-guessers maintained that the whole affair oozed along as if motivated by some fundamental and changeless law, although that was not fully evident until the convention could be viewed as a finished product.

If there was a fundamental law it was compounded from a series of heterogeneous factors, political and personal.

First of all there was the superbly functioning Dewey machine, operating with almost 100 per cent efficiency to corral votes.

Secondly, the Dewey opposition was divided. Taft and Stassen, poles apart in their political philosophy within the Republican party, could not get together. Stassen flatly refused a deal and Taft kept waiting for a break that never came. California's Gov. Earl Warren refused to have a hand in a stop-Dewey drive, insisted he was running for the nomination and not just against Dewey. Vandenberg added to the confusion by remaining silent, noncommittal and even disinterested.

Nomination

Actual climax of the convention came when Sen. Edward Martin of Pennsylvania renounced his favorite son candidacy and threw his support, backed by about half the members of Pennsylvania's 73 delegates, to Dewey. That started the blitzkrieg. From then on it was Dewey and downhill all the way.

As the crucial balloting began in humid, steaming convention hall it became more evident that a stop-Dewey coalition had not jelled.

On the first roll call it was Dewey 434, Taft 224, Stassen 166. On the second ballot Dewey had gone up to 515 and Taft to 274, while Stassen dropped to 149.

At that point the convention recessed for three hours, a move engineered by Taft, Stassen and other anti-Dewey leaders to give them time to decide whether or not to continue the fight.

When the convention reconvened for the third roll call the stop-Dewey drive had changed to a nominate-Dewey stampede. Sen. John Bricker of Ohio was the first on the rostrum to withdraw the

Dewey Runs on Calculated Ambition

Thomas Edmund Dewey is a success story in himself, featuring the kind of success that is achieved not happenstance but through precisely calculated ambition spearheaded by precisely directed energy.

At 46 he has been elected governor of New York twice and defeated once for the same office. Moreover, he has received the Rename of his state's candidate, Senator Taft. This was swiftly followed by similar withdrawals by Warren, Stassen, Vandenberg and MacArthur.

GOVERNOR WARREN

... He accepted ...

On the third ballot the 1,094 delegates to the convention nominated Gov. Thomas E. Dewey as their unanimous choice to run as the Republican candidate for President in 1948.

Warren

Selection of Gov. Earl Warren of California as the Republican nominee for vice-president came as a complete shock to almost everyone, despite the fact that the choice was a logical and reasonable one.

Warren was a surprise pick because prior to the convention he had maintained stoutly that he could not afford to take the vice-presidency and would not accept the second spot.

It was even more a departure from the norm in that the Dewey-Warren ticket failed to offer a grain of consolation to the old guard and isolationist wing of the party. Warren has strongly internationalist political views—even more so than Dewey—and has been a consistent critic of the GOP isolationists.

Initial speculation as to the vice-president spot ran to Rep. Charles Halleck of Indiana or Sen. Kenneth Wherry of Nebraska, both of the "conservative Republican" tradition.

But in the night-long pow-wow that followed the Dewey nomination it was Warren who was chosen. Dewey himself averred that he had not influenced the choice, that the party leaders had become convinced that the California governor was the best bet.

Nevertheless, Dewey had had to make certain promises in order to get Warren for the job: The vice-presidency, he said, no longer would be the stale, flat and unprofitable post it has been. He planned to make Warren a "full partner."

Significance

Whether the GOP convention constructed its policy platform to fit the candidates or nominated the candidates to fit the platform is, of course, an impossible question. Nevertheless, the Republicans managed to do both.

Categorically, the platform is a sound, forward-looking one in the light of the issues, both foreign and domestic, to be faced.

Strongly internationalist and bipartisan in tone, it rejects the old line of isolationism for isolationism's sake and upholds the European recovery program.

That foreign policy stand, harmonizing as it does with the previously stated convictions of Dewey and Warren, may stand as a historic milestone in development of the Republican party.

Emotional Asthma

Asthma, with its painful choking and wheezing, often may be the result of an emotional disturbance rather than being brought on by purely physical factors.

Dr. F. B. Schutzbank of Tucson, Ariz., told the American Medical association meeting in Chicago that many of the asthmatic victims who flee to Arizona for relief could save the trip simply by curbing their family quarrels and other distresses.

CRACKDOWN:

Marshal Tito

Russia's iron curtain had twitched apart along its Yugoslavian seam to provide a glimpse of the Communist stage set with the rickety scenery of dissension, fear and insecurity.

Marshal Tito of Yugoslavia was the central figure, but remained so for only a brief instant before his Soviet bosses whisked him off the boards.

Plain fact was that Tito, hitherto the fair-haired boy of eastern European communism, had been all but purged from the Communist party because he was trying to make a play for western capitalism.

Actually he, together with his henchmen in the Yugoslav government, was ousted from the all-important Cominform (Communist information bureau) which was established last year to provide greater unity for the Soviet satellite states of eastern Europe.

Tito and his regime were charged with virtually everything the Soviet politburo considers a crime—ranging from Trotskyism and anti-Sovietism to "inepness" and "false demagogic tactics."

Behind this official facade which the Communists had thrown up, however, were the real reasons for Tito's expulsion from grace:

As the only wartime hero of the Communists the Yugoslav marshal had begun to take himself too seriously, hence, was beginning to feel the need to express his own opinions and policies on matters political and economic. Stalin wanted no other boss in his sphere.

Tito was building up a "personal police" army which was molesting other Communists, including Russians, in Belgrade. Also, he had followed an independent foreign policy without Moscow's approval.

Finally he committed the cardinal sin of currying favor with western capitalist diplomats with an eye to obtaining reconstruction credits for Yugoslavia.

SERVICE:

Drafting

That draft which men in the 19-through-25 age group are beginning to feel is the result of the U. S. armed forces drawing in their breath and preparing to expand all over the place.

Between next fall and next summer the services plan on calling about 30,000 draft-age young men every month. Drafting is scheduled to start about September 22.

With a strength of 837,000 authorized by congress in the selective service bill, the army has estimated that it will need between 225,000 and 250,000 selectees to approach its authorized strength. That number is in addition to the 250,000 or 300,000 volunteers it so fervently hopes it will get.

In discussing plans for this second peacetime draft in U. S. history, Army Secretary Kenneth Royall explained that the army now has 542,000 men but it won't jump to the 837,000 figure immediately because funds for the fiscal year which began July 1 are not sufficient.

Thus, by July 1, 1949, the size of the army will be an estimated 790,000. The peacetime draft is a relatively slow-functioning process. Certainly it can't compare with the wartime levying of manpower. Peak of the induction rate during the war was reached in February, 1943, when 406,374 men received their greetings.

When the army attains its full 837,000 strength it will consist of 12 regular army divisions. Backstopping these will be six national guard divisions, together with other supporting elements such as anti-aircraft artillery and service troops.

BLOCKADE:

Berlin

Russia's freight blockade of Berlin, while a stark enough action in its own right, nevertheless was a secondary manifestation of the same old cold war crisis arising out of the Soviet bid for power in Europe.

While American and British planes by the hundreds were flying in food to besieged Berliners the western powers were pondering a question they had had to answer in 1938 when Hitler was in power—whether or not to appease.

Long range plans of the Kremlin, of which the Berlin blockade is just one phase, call for the forcing of the western Allies out of Berlin. This, according to Soviet thinking, could be done by either of two means: Either by threats and terrorization involving the risk of war, or by a four-power negotiation which could be hoped to result in a western appeasement policy such as grew out of the ill-starred Munich conference of 1938.

Britain and the U. S. are on a dangerous spot. If they pulled out of Berlin under pressure of force applied by Russia the power and influence of western democracy would be perilously weakened in Europe.

No Right-Minded Candidate Will Antagonize Newsmen

By BAUKHAGE

News Analyst and Commentator

CONVENTION HALL, PHILADELPHIA.—The notes for this column are inspired by a view from the extreme left wing of the Democratic platform. I do not mean that figuratively, but literally.

I am sitting in the left-hand corner of the wooden platform filled with the brass hats of the party and their friends who are gathered together to nominate a Democratic candidate for President of the United States.

The scene isn't so very different from other political conventions I have attended back to—well, never mind how far back. I have in my mind's eye a different picture. It is a platform, viewed from just about this angle, but instead of this high rostrum protruding into the hall from the middle of the wide platform there is just a wooden box with boards atop it—rough-hewn rails to fence off the speakers from the shouting delegates. The name of Abraham Lincoln is being put in nomination. This vision, let me hasten to add, is purely visionary. I did NOT cover that convention. I saw a picture of it in a book.

The scene I have been watching is no more placid. That Democrats love a Donnybrook is an old saying. No smoke-filled rooms, no private fights for them—rather a free-for-all in a wide field, even if they know what the final outcome is to be in advance.

But frankly I have been thinking about something else as I sit here in this tropical heat—that is, in the moments when I have been able to think between the flashing of the light which is the silent bell on the telephone beside the mike I am sharing with Earl Godwin. The flash of the light on the phone means someone in the ABC booth, high above us, wants one or the other of us to jump in and give a brief word-picture of what is transpiring in our immediate neighborhood, for we are in the thick of things here and, believe me, sometimes things are pretty thick.

What I have been thinking about is the lot of the newsman and the small thanks he gets for his pain and suffering in a political year. Besides being hauled and mauled by the public—his public, as the listeners of a commentator are referred to—besides that, he is under slantwise attack by the candidates when they forget themselves.

Nobody, either the partisan listeners or the politicians, ever thinks the columnist, commentator or reporter is being fair unless he is boosting his side.

Candidates, when they are in possession of their full senses, don't go around arousing the wrath of the newsmen. Even Franklin Roosevelt, who was forever needling the newspapers, always carefully explained that it was the publishers and editors and headline writers who twisted the news, not the men who wrote or broadcast it.

But sometimes candidates slip. And as we sit, perspiring under the klieg lights and trying our best to tell the truth without malice and with as much charity as possible about what is going on before us, we recall without too much rancor, the statement of the candidate who is not being unanimously nominated. On his recent trip he made one off-the-cuff remark, which prompted him to send that offending piece of haberdashery to the laundry immediately after he had thought it over.

President Truman opined to one rear-platform audience that it was almost impossible to get the facts definitely before the public "because there are certain people in the newspaper business and certain people in the radio business who have a distorted view of what the people ought to know and what the people ought to think."

It might have been better if he had worded his plaint in the language of an earlier candidate—much earlier—John Quincy Adams, who at least narrowed his charges against the press to a few papers, even though he didn't name them specifically. This offered a sop to the rest.

However, President Truman, in a previous outburst on that same western trip was specific too. He attacked the Chicago Tribune and the Spokane Spokesman-Review. In lambasting the Tribune, he was following in Franklin Roosevelt's footsteps. You may recall that on one occasion when FDR was asked a particularly sharp question by a Tribune reporter, he replied: "Oh, tell Bertie (Robert McCormick, publisher), he's seeing things under the bed."

Mr. Truman's attack on the Tribune came about this way: While travelling through Washington state, a reporter put to him a question which, although it seemed guileless, might have concealed a barb. Anyhow the President interpreted it that way when Senator Magnuson re-

by WRIGHT A. PATTERSON

A SAGA OF OLEANDER

MY earliest memory as a child of four years, goes back to a big oleander bush, set in an extra large wash tub. It was the pride and joy of my dear old grandmother's heart.

Grandmother, an energetic, lovable, Pennsylvania Dutch woman, widowed when her children were but little tots, had supported the three of them and herself by operating a hotel in the town of Vernon, Iowa, on the banks of the Des Moines river. One room on the first of the two floors served the triple purpose of a family sitting room, hotel office and hotel lobby. The oleander occupied a considerable space in that room.

As a child, between the ages of four and eight, I spent a portion of each year at grandmother's. On the occasion of my fourth birthday anniversary she gave a party for me. The feature of that party was a birthday tree. The oleander was that tree, although in reality it was but a bush some 10 feet high, filled with pink blossoms. From it she took the presents I received, but the children were not permitted to touch the tree. Had it not been for that oleander I am sure I would not remember that party or my fourth birthday anniversary.

One of grandmother's two sons, Uncle John, did not inherit his mother's energy. He was not expected to do much, but he did have, I learned later, one "must" job during the winter months. He "must" keep the fire going in the big wood stove in that triple service room day and night so the temperature never dropped to even near the freezing point. The winter temperature in Iowa frequently dropped to 30 and more degrees below zero. Over a period of many years Uncle John made good at his one "must" job. The oleander never froze. It finally died—30 years after that birthday party.

In my California yard there are three oleanders. They are in a far corner and I cannot reach them with a hose without changing it to another connection. I find that more of a job than to carry water to the trees in a bucket. During the summer months they call for water practically every day. I frequently think I will cut them out or let them die. Each time such a thought enters my mind I recall grandmother's oleander, my fourth birthday anniversary, Uncle John's long years of faithful fire tending, and my oleanders are spared. I continue to carry water.

Grandmother's oleander attracted admiring visitors from considerable distances. It was referred to as a breath from the southland, and the marvel was her ability to keep it alive in so cold a climate as that of Iowa's 30 and more below zero. Grandmother lived until well past 90, but the plant she had cherished, withered and died some 10 years before her passing. I do not know how many years it had lived under her own and Uncle John's care.

Inflation Control

A Republican-controlled congress seems disinclined to accept President Truman's inflation control plan and the subsequent return to price fixing and rationing. Congress could, if it would, strike at the foundation of inflation by enacting legislation that would reduce and regulate bank credits and also stop the mounting increases in the amount of our phony printing press money. Increasing credits and increasing cheap money produce inflation.

Congress can enact legislation which will restore the former requirements of 35 and 40 per cent reserves in federal reserve banks instead of the present 25 per cent. That would help to restrict credits. Congress can repeal the Greenback law and can call a halt on the issuing of more printing press currency.

The danger of run-away inflation will be with us until money and credit expansion is curbed and only congress can apply the remedy. To be sure the President might veto such legislation but congress definitely can fix the responsibility.

There are some 4,000 chances for a mechanical error in each of these columns you read, aside from those caused by human frailties. It is to the credit of competent workmen that so few errors occur.

The farmer must compete with nature; the industrialist must compete with other industrialists, a fickle public and uncertain labor.

Uncle Sam is expected to keep the Irishman's pipe filled. No one has attempted to explain why.

The Russian politburo would listen more attentively to the explosion of an atomic bomb over Moscow than to a diplomatic note from Washington.

CONVENTION CLEAN-UP, OLD STYLE . . . The man who made the cleanest sweep of them all at the Republican national convention in Philadelphia comes up the aisle—behind a broom. By this time the last weary delegate had left the hall, the emotional speeches marking the naming of seven aspirants to the Republican nomination had ended and the dead trappings of the hectic nominating and voting demonstrations littered the aisles and corridors.

MINE WORKERS WIN PAY BOOST . . . John L. Lewis was in again. After a series of rocky conferences he and the soft collar mine operators announced a new 1948 wage contract providing a dollar-a-day pay increase for 400,000 miners. The agreement, which became effective July 1, also hikes the industry's 10-cent-a-ton contribution to the UMW welfare fund to 20 cents a ton. With Lewis here are James Owens (left), UMW secretary-treasurer, and Thomas Kennedy, UMW vice president.

COMING IN OUT OF THE DRAFT . . . The race was on. Passage by congress of the 19-through-25 peacetime draft bill brought a rush of youths within the susceptible age group to join national guard and reserve units throughout the nation. One provision of the bill exempts members of the national guard or active reserve groups from service in the armed forces.

TWO LITTLE OPTIMISTS FROM EUROPE . . . Janice Hermanson, 2, and Emmi Mittersich, 5, of Norway and Austria respectively sit hopefully on a rock near Rye, N. Y., and watch their fishing lines with in-lure. They are confident that any day now they might get a bite. They were two of a group of immigrant children who enjoyed a boating party and picnic given them by the Overseas Aid-United Nations Appeal for Children relief organization.

EMISSARY . . . President Truman has named James Grover McDonald of Bronxville, N. Y., as the first special representative of the U. S. to head the American mission to Israel. McDonald recently has been a member of the Anglo-American commission of inquiry on Palestine.

OBJECTOR . . . James D. Peck of New York City chained himself to a railing in the White House near the East room in dramatic protest against the recently passed draft law.

NOT NOMINATED . . . One of the several men who didn't get the GOP presidential nomination they wanted was Carl C. Countryman, 74-year-old poet and lecturer. Countryman campaigned assiduously for months under the slogan "Countryman for his countrymen, his countrymen for Countryman."

BASEBALL . . . Although he's not good for any paid admissions, the Pittsburgh Pirates have no more loyal rooter than this 14-year-old chimpanzee at the Highland Park zoo who sports a Pirate cap.

PERMANENT . . . Mrs. Martha Jane Thompson of Valencia, Pa., who recently turned 100, is convinced that a woman should try to look her best at any age. So she got a permanent wave. She says she is opposed to shawls.

Hybrid Seeds Are Designed to Give Improved Crops

CHICAGO.—This year on the farm promises to be the biggest season yet for those hybrid seeds designed to produce more food per acre.

Their performance was hampered last year by bad weather, but farmers expect them to show what they really can do this time.

The hybrids are the plants whose parents have been carefully chosen for many generations. None of the great progress with them came easily. Pioneering work in the laboratory, test plot and field must be carried on by agronomists for at least 10 years—sometimes up to 20 years—to develop new varieties of plants.

But since the hybrids entered the big time early in the '30s, these things have happened in representative states:

Corn was up 22 per cent in Illinois and Iowa in 1946, although combination of heavy spring rains and midsummer drought wrecked the crop last year. The Illinois peak yield was 57 bushels average to the acre in 1946, compared with 43 bushels in 1932, the best prehybrid season.

Wheat Yield Climbs

Average wheat yields have climbed 20 per cent or more in Ohio, and still are rising. They have increased nearly a third in top-producing Kansas.

Old-line varieties of soft red winter wheat in Ohio, like Poole, Fultz, and Fulcaster, have consistently yielded an average of 36 bushels an acre. Butler, the newest of the hybrids in production there, is yielding 43½ bushels. This means Ohio farmers will get an estimated six million bushels a year more than they would by sticking to the older types.

Oats have coasted at around a national average of 32 bushels to the acre for several years, but a new variety called Clinton gets into the big show for the first time this year. In test fields in Illinois it has run an average of nearly 83 bushels an acre for the last six years.

Other major crops like rye, barley, clover rice and soybeans are better today too.

In work with hybrids these men may choose parent stocks because they are heavy producers, or can resist disease and drought, or are better fitted to the soils and climate in which they are to grow.

Records Are Important

Simple surgery and carefully kept record books are the two keys to open the doors leading to better plants.

Surgical tools of the agronomists trade are few: A couple of tweezers, a needle, a pair of manicuring scissors, and a set of magnifying spectacles. Some plant work, as in the removal of tiny anthers and florets from the flower of oats or soybeans, is so fine the human eye needs help; hence the magnifiers.

Record books containing the complete ancestry of the plants help the workers to trace down the exact traits they want in the new breed.

Information tags are attached to the plant, and the rest is left to sun, moisture and time to develop another step toward a possible new variety.

Plant breeders admit that though extensive work has been going on for many years, there still is much to be done in development of hybrids.

Efforts continue to push up yields, but now it is hoped to find varieties which will continue to give high production but will take less nutrients from the nation's rapidly depleting soil.

Prisoner Shows Police How To Scale High Wall Unaided

LOCK HAVEN, PA. — Police couldn't believe that a 21-year-old prisoner climbed over a 20-foot jail wall unaided. They made him prove it.

Sterling Wensel, of nearby Mill Hall, re-enacted his escape from the prison less than 12 hours after he fled and later was recaptured at his home, said Sheriff George A. Hickoff.

The agile youth demonstrated before Wensel and state police observers how he scrambled up and over the old plastered stone wall, using cracks and crevices as hand and footholds.

Hickoff said Wensel is awaiting trial on statutory charges.

Professor Raises Own Mosquitoes for Lab Use

LAWRENCE, KAN. — Three colonies of domesticated mosquitoes have been living on a special diet of powdered dog biscuits and raisins at the University of Kansas.

The mosquitoes were grown from eggs by Dr. H. B. Hungerford, professor of entomology.

The idea, Dr. Hungerford said, is to raise mosquitoes for safe experimental use in his medical entomology class.

The mosquitoes used were of the yellow fever type. But the insects were injected with bird malaria, which humans can't get.

Thus they were usable for class experiments with no danger to the students.

Use of Electric Lights

Use of electric illumination in the United States has more than doubled in the last decade, and today America spends more than 200 million dollars annually for incandescent and fluorescent lamps. Despite this increase, it has been estimated that 30 million American homes need four times as much light as they now are using and 258,000 schools need seven times more light.

Use Cooking Liquid

Cooking liquid is recommended for packing most vegetables because it may contain minerals and vitamins dissolved out of the food. Boiling water is recommended when cooking liquid is dark, gritty or strong-flavored, and it may be used if you haven't enough cooking liquid. Processing time is the same whether hot cooking liquid or boiling water is used for packing.

Jonah Sailed from Jaffa

Jaffa, Palestine, is the town from which Jonah sailed before he was cast to the whale. It has been the Mediterranean port for Jerusalem since Biblical times. The oldest part of Jaffa, where the town's few hundred residents of a century ago lived, is a citadel-like cluster of houses with narrow streets perched at the edge of a rocky cliff.

Danger in Winter

Winter months are the most dangerous in the year for people who are careless or take chances, according to the National Conservation Bureau. The average daily death toll from accidents of all kinds last winter was 294, the bureau said. The death rate in the fall was 269 a day, 266 in the summer and 259 in the spring.

The aardvark, the only anteater with teeth, likes nothing better than to trip into a termite nest and lap up the pests with his sticky tongue. It will average about five feet in length. The aardvark has a pig-like snout, tubular mouth and the usual termite-catching tongue — a sticky one.

Canned Fruits Aid Health

Stock Up on Fruit

NOW IS THE TIME to use summer's plenty to bolster winter diet patterns and add nutrition to them. The gardens, orchards vineyards and berry patches are all at your disposal with their infinite variety. It's really easy to can fruit because there is little to preparing it for canning, and provided you take care to follow directions nothing will spoil. Besides, well stocked shelves with a colorful array of fruit will make wintertime meals so much more easy to plan. Fruit may be canned without sugar for dietary reasons but, if you can eat sugar, plan to can fruit with sugar as it gives a better product.

IF YOU DEPEND upon home-canned fruit as a main item for winter, it's a good idea to make up a canning budget. For example, if you serve tomato juice four times a week, one cup a serving, plan to set enough aside for 40 weeks. This requires 40 quarts of tomato juice per person. For a family of five you'll need 200 quarts.

Do you plan to serve apples twice a week? At one-half cup per serving you'll need four quarts for 15 weeks or 20 quarts for a family of five.

Peaches, at a half cup a serving, twice a week for 40 weeks will amount to 10 quarts per person or 40 quarts for a family of four.

If you serve berries twice every three weeks, at one-half cup per serving, you'll need three and one-third quarts per person to last 40 weeks.

If you serve pears once every two weeks at one-half cup per serving you'll need two quarts to last one person 32 weeks. This amounts to 10 quarts for a family of five.

Do you like to serve fruit juice at least twice a week? At one cup a serving, one person will need 15 quarts for 30 weeks. A family of five needs 75 quarts.

DIFFERENT VARIETIES of fruit come out better in the canning process than others. If you will study these tips and abide by them you'll have fine results.

Apples to be canned whole should be bright and red and hold their shape well although cooked. You'll find that Jonathans work out nicely for this method.

For applesauce, tart apples like Duchess, Maiden Blush, Greenings or Early Transparent are best because they cook to a mush easily. Use them at the peak of the season.

Fully ripe apricots are ideal for canning. Any good eating variety may be canned.

Firm, well-ripened peaches make the best canned ones. Select Elbertas or Hales that are fine textured and delicately flavored.

LYNN SAYS: You Need to Know These Canning Terms

Acid foods include fruits, tomatoes, ripe pimientos, sauerkraut and green peppers.

Non-acid foods are vegetables, meats, fish, poultry, game and soup mixtures.

Precooking means boiling food a short time until it is thoroughly heated.

Head space is the space left when filling a jar, at the top.

Bartlett pears are good for canning but some people prefer the smaller Kieffer variety, which also are good if they are allowed to ripen in a cool place (60 degrees) for a week or two after picking.

Any variety of plum may be canned as long as it is well flavored and ripe.

HAVE YOU EVER found yourself in the midst of packing fruit into jars and suddenly discovered that you won't have enough? This means digging into the storage closet or running to the store for more, and then washing and sterilizing them. All this comes at a time when you should be rushing the food into jars as fast as possible.

Avoid this by figuring out how many jars you need ahead of time:

One-half bushel of good-sized, perfect peaches yield eight quarts.

Six pounds of apples yield three to four quarts.

One-half bushel of apricots gives nine to 11 quarts.

One-half bushel of plums will give 10 to 11 quarts.

Two and one-half pounds of pears yield one quart.

Five cups (about two pounds) of berries will give one quart.

Eight to 10 tomatoes (2 1/2 to 3 1/2 pounds) give one quart.

HAVE ALL EQUIPMENT, including jars with proper lids, ready. Check jars for nicked tops and cracks. Wash in hot, soapy water and rinse thoroughly. Do this the day before.

Use only fresh fruit and berries for canning. Discard those with badly broken skins, broken or over-ripe specimens.

Pack cold or precook according to directions in chart.

Fill jars to within one and one-half inches of top; add syrup to within one-half inch of the top.

Place into a boiling water bath (with water coming an inch or two above the jars). Count processing time from the time the water starts to boil, not when it is just simmering, unless so specified. If you use a pressure cooker, follow time given in chart.

After 24 hours cooling period, wash the jars off with a damp cloth, dry and label. Store in a cool, dry place.

Boiling water bath, sometimes called hot water bath, equipment consists of a large vessel such as a wash boiler, lard can or kettle the bottom of which is fitted with a rack or platform on which to set jars while they are processing. This should come fitted with a cover.

Sealing means closing the jars airtight.

Cold pack means filling the jars with food in its raw form.

Hot pack means filling the jars with hot food from precooking.

THE FICTION CORNER

BANDBOX BETTY

By MARY KEMPE CHEATHAM

HEAT shimmered from the downtown pavements. Torrid light fell in bars through the Venetian blinds in Mr. Humphreys' private office, carrying with it a coppery odor, like that of a penny clutched too long in a perspiring palm. It was a hot day all right, and the city lay panting under the noonday sun.

"Leave the door open, Miss Barclay," called Mr. Humphreys, as Betty returned from lunch. "Let the air circulate." "Whew," he added, mopping his brow, "we've got to get some air conditioning in this hotbox."

Betty smiled, removing her white gloves and her crisp white hat. Mr. Humphreys said the same thing every summer. She laid her gloves and white purse neatly away in the bottom desk drawer and sat down at the typewriter. With her blonde hair sleek and smooth and her pale green dress miraculously unwrinkled, she looked as cool and fresh as an iced limeade.

"How do you do it, Miss Barclay!" marveled Mr. Humphreys, entering the cubicle of an outer office where she sat as secretary and receptionist. "You can't be as cool as you look! Anyhow, let's put this fan out here somewhere to stir up a little breeze."

He looked around vaguely, pulled out a chair a few feet from Betty's desk, set the fan on it, plugged in the cord and returned to his own large desk through the open door marked Private.

Betty gazed doubtfully at the fan whirring away on the chair before her. She anchored the fluttering papers on her desk with paperweights, and with a little frown of annoyance, smoothed back the tendrils of hair which were beginning to blow loose from the bun at the nape of her neck. She caught Mr. Humphreys looking at her and smiled. After all, Mr. Humphreys was the boss. If he wanted to go around putting electric fans on chairs, it was no business of hers. Anyway, Mr. Humphreys was nice. Nice, and quite, quite happily married.

They were all quite happily married, thought Betty with a sigh, as she began on her transcription. All the really nice members of the office force in the other departments, all the nicest salesmen. That business of romance in an office was just something you read about in magazines.

"Is Mr. Humphreys in?" She looked up as a tall, broad-shouldered, red-haired young man strolled toward her desk and thrust a business card into her hand. Before she knew what was happening, he had pulled up his trouser legs slightly, to preserve their meticulous crease, and had begun to assume a sitting position over the whirring fan.

"Don't sit down!" Betty shrieked, simultaneously with Mr. Humphreys' shout.

The young man catapulted away from the chair as though a bomb suddenly had sprung from the fan blades. Backed against Betty's desk, he stared, then grinned. Mr. Humphreys, flown to the rescue, was mopping his brow again, but not from heat.

"That," he said, shakily, "was a narrow escape." He disconnected the fan and stood, bewildered, holding it.

Her composure regained now that catastrophe had been averted, Betty became once more all cool efficiency. She glanced at the card. She chuckled. She could not help it.

"Would you," she asked, "have had coverage for THAT?"

The card read, "John J. Thomas, Insurance."

The young man chuckled, too. "I came here," he remarked, "to talk to Mr. Humphreys about accident insurance."

"Sure, sure," murmured Mr. Humphreys, still shaken. "Come right in. Have one of the boys put that thing on a bracket for you," he said to Betty, indicating the fan.

When they emerged from Mr. Humphreys' sanctum, John Thomas had a pleased expression on his face and, no doubt, a policy in the bag.

"It was really her fault, you know," he remarked to Mr. Humphreys, loitering at the door. "She looked so cool, I didn't even see that chair."

"Miss Barclay always looks cool in summer," said Mr. Humphreys proudly, "and neat all the year 'round."

Muggsy gave her a broad grin, the more effective for three missing teeth. "You're pretty," she said. "I like you."

Betty flushed. She had had the expression applied to her before. Since her first days with the company, she knew she had been familiarly referred to by the other employees as "Bandbox Betty," but it was disconcerting to be discussed in this fashion.

"The least she can do," he teased, "is give me a dinner date."

"That's fair enough," echoed Mr. Humphreys, "if it's all right with Miss Barclay."

"Well," conceded Betty, "but I warn you, I have all the insurance I need."

Dinner with John Thomas was distinctly pleasant. It was cool in the Orchid room and the table appointments were perfect. The floor show was good, the food even better. From cocktail to parfait, the courses were faultless. John himself met every requirement as an escort. Betty began to be glad Mr. Humphreys had put the fan on a chair.

"Not a hair out of place," John commented, studying her across the table.

"They drill it into you," countered Betty, "at secretarial school. White collars, tidy fingernails, all that."

"I'll bet," John said, suddenly, eyes twinkling, "YOU WOULDN'T EVEN GET MUZZED AT A PICTURE!"

They parted early for, as Betty pointed out, a good secretary had to have plenty of rest. Besides, there was the usual routine of washing hose and gloves, cleaning shoes and purse, doing her nails and pressing a dress for tomorrow.

She had a number of dates with John, their tempo always smooth and pleasant. Her work suffered no misplaced commas, Mr. Humphreys was happy, John seemed happy and Betty was almost happy. Only—that was all that ever happened. Never once had John attempted to kiss her or even hold her hand. He was, she concluded finally, a confirmed bachelor.

"Just as I," she thought, poking savagely at the typewriter keys, "am a confirmed old maid."

It was a Saturday, almost noon quitting time. John had not called, and the future suddenly became a whole series of weary calendar pages, neatly torn off day by day and deposited in the wastebasket.

As she walked from the building, there was John's convertible parked at the entrance.

"Get in," he called, "we're going on a picnic!"

It was amazing how his red hair could brighten up the day! Betty was happily in the car before she even noticed his female companion. "Oh!" she gasped. For there, huddled between John and a bulging picnic basket, was a startling apparition—a little girl with freckles, wide blue eyes and the same red hair!

FIRST AID to the AILING HOUSE

by Roger C. Whitman

QUESTION: Our old house is full of chameleys, some of which we would like to use occasionally. They don't smoke, but they are open with no damper, so that they really consume warm air and fuel. Can a damper be purchased that will not require taking out half the chimney to install?

ANSWER: That cannot be done in a chimney that is already built. If you wish to close off the fireplace opening much of the time, have a sheet metal panel made to fit the opening that can be taken out when the fireplace is to be used. This panel will prevent the escape of warm air up the chimney.

QUESTION: I have a large window, the pane of which when broken is expensive to replace. I am wondering if it would be practical to put in a vertical strip to divide the sash, thus using two panes half the present size. Could I do it myself?

ANSWER: It would be best to take the sash to a millwork shop to have the muntin bar inserted there. The sash will have to be grooved to hold the bar in place. If there is no mill handy, a competent carpenter should be able to do this for you.

QUESTION: How do you remove black marks on a varnished floor caused by bed rollers?

ANSWER: Rub lightly with a handful of very fine steel wool moistened with turpentine, then touch up the spots with a little paste wax.

QUESTION: Could I use a lacquer paint on my concrete floor? The cement work is a home job, and it seems to be coming off in spots. It washes off like pieces of sand or small stones.

ANSWER: Give up the idea of painting the floor with lacquer. You might be able to pour a new topping coat on the present floor, since it probably is rough enough already. It might be better to break it up and use it as a base for a new surfacing.

Secretaries Have "Good Chance"

It is reasoned that well trained and well groomed secretaries have excellent marriage prospects because they work so closely with men. Secretaries need not dress expensively, like show girls, to impress an employer but they should be crisp looking at all times. To be avoided are, glaring nail polish, short sleeves, chewing gum, skimpy skirts, seductive necklines, high heels and jewelry that jangles, says the director of a secretarial school.

TOMORROW'S BRIDGE

Grace Noll Crowell

TOMORROW'S bridge as I look ahead
Is a rickety thing to view.
Its piers are crumbled, its rails are down,
Its floor would let me through.

The chum it spans is dark and deep,
And the waters foam and fret;
I have crossed that bridge a thousand times
Though I never have reached it yet.

It has crashed beneath me to let me through,
Although it is miles away,
But strange, the bridges that I have crossed
Have all been safe today.

Perhaps I shall find when I reach that one
That lies in the distant blue,
Some hand may have mended its rickety floor
And its piers may be strong and new.

Poultry or Play House

IN RESPONSE to many who have requested information that would simplify building a small, general purpose backyard house, I designed the unit illustrated herewith.

It can be built 4 feet by 8 feet, 8 feet by 8 feet, 8 feet by 12 feet, or any number of additional 4-foot length units. To conserve lumber, the outside sheathing consists of non-critical asbestos and cement board, available at your local lumber yard.

Patterns are supplied for cutting the angles of each piece of lumber. User merely cuts lumber according to length each pattern piece indicates, saws and assembles. The platform, back, front and sides are first built as individual sections, then nailed together. Complete list of materials, step by step instructions, numbered assembly illustrations included. Keeping Bees Persons who are planning to go into beekeeping should consider first their personal reaction to stings, relations with the neighbors and suitability of their locality. In the early days bees were kept to supply the only natural sweet available, but they were also kept by some for observation, for the interest in their life and habits. Beekeeping is interesting, independent work, which may be practiced with supplementary agriculture or some other occupation. It is also a fascinating hobby.

Conservation Officers Fly to Isle Royale Forest Fires

Four Michigan conservation officers experienced in forest fire fighting have been flown to Isle Royale, to direct crews battling a fire that had swept 1,100 acres of the National Forest park and was still spreading.

Lack of roads and the rocky terrain of the island prevent use of heavy equipment, restricting the fire fighters to hand tools and portable pumps. Transportation is mostly by small boats.

Two small forest fires broke out on Keweenaw peninsula Sunday as weather on the mainland continued very dry. Some rain is in prospect, conservation department officials reported.
