AuGres River Fish Weir Assured

Fishery Division Head Says Project Will Follow Flood Control Survey

"Scotty Shuman, who recently attended the MUCC conclave at Clare came back to report that after months of work by the Iosco County Sportsman's Club, the proposed weir on the East Branch of the AuGres river is almost a certainty. Securing this part of stream and fishing improvement on the East Branch, one of the County's best and most fished streams was the Sportsman's Club number one project of the year. When completed this weir will keep all of the huge Rainbow trout in the main stream until the water level begins to recede in mid-summer thereby providing more, bigger and better trout in the stream longer instead of allowing them to return to the big lake as they do now. F. A. Westerman, Chief of the Fish and Fishery Division of the Department of Conservation informed "Scotty," that as soon as an engineer can complete flood control surveys in the spring the actual construction will be started. When completed this weir should make the East Branch a much better stream to fish and one where the big ones are caught.

Another of the problems discussed at the meeting was the deer situation that has plagued the farming districts this summer. All of the Michigan Sportsman Clubs and the Conservation Department are still at work trying to devise

"Loyalty over the years has paid dividends to the employees who early cast their lot with the then fledgling, two plant organization. Since then many of them built homes, raised families and now have grandchildren to brighten their lives. Through the years these veterans have played an increasingly important part in the company's progress. For after all, it is the loyalty of its employees which determines how fast a business can grow. ## Britt Re-elected To Iosco Road Commission

Supervisors Now in Session; Annual October Meeting

Elmer Britt, senior member of the Board of County Road Commissioners, was again named to that office Thursday afternoon by the Board of Supervisors which is now in session.

Britt has been chairman of the road commission for a number of years.

A resolution to return the selection of members of the road commission to the general election ballot was turned down by the supervisors.

Adjoining counties were urged to adopt a fox bounty plan similar to the one adopted here. It was felt that paying a bounty was riding the county of these predators to a considerable extent, and that with the cooperation of adjoining counties the plan would be even more successful.

The board voted to appropriate $5,300.00 to the county library. An appropriation of $300.00 was made for use at Silver Valley the coming season.

The bee business in the county received recognition with an appropriation of $150.00 for apary inspection.

It was voted to transfer $2,000.00 from the general fund to the welfare fund to cover the expenses of this department until the end of the year.

Grange Comes Back

THE unusually sedate and conservative National Grange, the nation's oldest farm organization, is planning to step out to take a more active, affirmative position in obtaining the recognition it deserves for the 82 history-packed years it has served rural America and the interests of the agricultural industry.

And oddly enough, the first fight the Grange has jumped into with both feet goes back to the original aims of the Grange when it was first founded back in 1866 by one Oliver Hudson Kelley of Boston.

The organization was first known, shortly after the Civil War, as the Patrons of Husbandry, "a society of farmers promoting the interests of agriculture by abolishing restraints imposed upon it by the railroads and other companies . . . and by eliminating the system of middlemen between producer and consumer."

In those years the "Grangers" as members of the husbandry society were known, were considered radicals and they wielded considerable weight and obtained some widespread notoriety with their unconventional method of operation.

The name was changed shortly, however, to the National Grange and it became a staid and conservative fraternal organization, differing from the other farm organizations in the respect that it has a ritual, several degrees and within its framework operates a mutual insurance company selling fire, automobile, windstorm and hail insurance. In the 8,000 granges throughout the country there is in effect approximately a billion dollars of fire insurance, and the Grange maintains this insurance has cost the farmers only about 50 per cent of the cost in old line companies.

The Grange set-up comprises four distinct divisions. First are the subordinate granges or local organizations, the first of which was the Fredonia Grange No. 1 in western New York state, established on April 16, 1868, and still flourishing. Four degrees are conferred in the subordinate granges. Next come the Pomona granges composed of subordinate groups within a given district or county and this grange confers the fifth degree.

The state grange is a delegate body representing subordinate and Pomona Granges, composed of both men and women on an equal footing, and the state grange confers the sixth degree of the order. The first state grange was the Minnesota State Grange, formed on February 23, 1869, then came the Iowa State Grange followed by South Carolina.

The National Grange which confers the seventh degree is the parent branch and is composed of two voting delegates from each state grange. It is the supreme legislative body of the order, holds annual sessions of nine days. In the 1941 annual session 12,999 grangers took the seventh degree at the Worcester, Mass., convention. The Grange structure also includes a juvenile grange for children.

Who's Making Money
Profits of business for the first half of 1948 are increased over 1947 but significant is the fact that profits for small business, or business with assets under a million dollars show a decline.

The National Grange has more than 800,000 members and is particularly strong in the New England states, New York, Pennsylvania and other eastern states, Ohio in the Midwest and on the Pacific coast, but its 8,000 granges are sprinkled liberally throughout the other states of the Union. It proposes to strengthen its position particularly in the Midwest and to win for itself in all the states recognition for the high place it occupies. Albert Goss, master of the National Grange, is recognized as one of the most forceful and most powerful men in Washington. His office is in the National Grange building on Jackson Place just within the shadow of the White House.

Campaign for Strength

On November 9 the Grange, along with other farm organizations, will appear before the interstate commerce commission to fight the orders issued by the commission regulating trucks in interstate commerce which carry "manufactured" farm produce to market. The commission has ruled that when these products enter the channels of commerce they are "manufactured products" and so trucks hauling them are subject to ICC regulations. Truck companies and railroads, of course, agree with this ruling.

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS

Western Allies Place Berlin Issue Before U.N. as Negotiations Fail; Two Unions Barred From A-Plants

By Bill Schoentgen, WNU Staff Writer

(EDITOR'S NOTE: When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of Western Newspaper Union's news analysts and not necessarily of this newspaper.)

'BLACK FURY': Peace Threat

There was no war in sight, yet the East-West situation was starkly dangerous.

It was dangerous for the United States, Great Britain, France and Russia—and for the United Nations which now had to thrust its hands into the tangled skein of diplomatic threads and try to straighten out the snarls.

PRACTICALLY no optimism existed among U. N. delegations in Paris. There was no reason for any.

The United States, Britain and France had broken off negotiations with Russia over blockaded Berlin and referred the issue to the U. N. security council as a threat to peace.

No hint of appeasement appeared in the western nations' attitude. They said they would reserve to themselves the full right to take whatever measures were necessary to maintain their position in Berlin while referring the case to the U. N.

BRITISH FOREIGN Secretary Ernest Bevin told the U. N. general assembly that Russia would be to blame if a "black fury," the incalculable disaster of atomic war, strikes the world.

Immediate cause of this inflamed condition in Europe was the blatant bad faith exercised by the Soviets during the 58-day series of talks in Moscow between the three western ambassadors and Stalin and Molotov.

After the three ambassadors, Smith of the U. S., Roberts of England and Chataigneau of France, had left the Soviet capital the western allies made public a 24,000-word "white paper" charging the Russians with wenching on a secret agreement by Stalin to lift the Berlin blockade.

WHEN THE western nations discovered the disillusioning fact that Russia was literally trying to pull a fast one in order to gain control of Berlin, further direct negotiation was patently useless. Thus, the issue was turned over to the security council.

Not that anyone hoped the security council would be able to take any effective action. The Russian veto probably would nullify any efforts it might make.

MOTIVES: Russian Washington believes the crisis centering in Berlin will continue at fever pitch at least until next spring—provided it does not explode into total war before then.

It is a bad outlook, of course, from the U. S. viewpoint. But for the Russians the coming six months loom as a golden opportunity to expand their power in Europe and throughout the world.

THEY WILL be able to do this, they believe, because American efforts and sentiment will be divided and weakened by the election campaign.

Official Soviet attitude is that American leaders will be so immersed in domestic affairs that they will be able to give only a fraction

These are the three western ambassadors to Russia who engaged in six weeks of rigorous but unavailing diplomatic fencing with Soviet Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov on the subject of Germany and the Berlin blockade. They were able to accomplish nothing and finally left Moscow to report to the heads of their respective governments. Left to right are: Yves Chataigneau, France; Walter Bedell Smith, U. S.; and Frank Roberts, Great Britain.

Bill Collector

Russia, the only nation that has not closed its lend-lease account with the U. S., has been asked to pay up pronto.

The state department, in a new note, called upon the Soviets to resume negotiations for settling its long overdue lend-lease account of 11 billion dollars.

News of the action was kept secret for two weeks for fear of upsetting the delicate Berlin discussions.

of their time to consideration of international developments.

That's why the Russians are trying to shoot the works now. It is why they saw fit to make the virtually impossible demand for control of all traffic—land, air and water—between Berlin and western Germany as one of the conditions for lifting the blockade which has throttled the German capital since June.

WHAT IS IT the Russians want so badly that they are willing to risk an atomic war to get?

Briefly, they want to get the U. S. out of Europe, and that means nothing else but that they want to control Europe themselves.

The Kremlin, some time ago, rejected a proposal that Russia and the western allies stabilize their military and political positions roughly along the lines that existed immediately after the war.

ACCORDING TO the Russian plan for domination of Europe, that arrangement would be no good because the Soviets fear the West would gain and they would lose too much.

With American help, western Europe could consolidate and strengthen its position and possibly prosper to the extent that Russia's situation in the East would be endangered. Moreover, the Soviet satellites, influenced by a free and thriving West, would be difficult to control.

IN THE RUSSIAN mind it follows, then, that America must be driven out, the European recovery program destroyed and the whole of Europe reduced to such a state of disorder and poverty that it would be unable to resist Russian demands.

ANYTHING NEW Cooler Crisis

HOTTEST QUESTION of the month in Washington for a while was not "Who will win the election?" It was not "Will we get into war?"

It was a question of who ordered 96 gleaming, new 1948 model refrigerators installed in the offices of every one of the United States senators.

Government workers were busily engaged in clamping the refrigerators to the office floors (at an estimated cost of well above $10,000) before anybody thought to ask who had conceived this ingenious scheme.

THE PROJECT called for moving refrigerators into the offices of senators who never before had had them and putting new ones into those senatorial sanctuaries that already were equipped with old ones.

It was a clear case of higher standards of living for solons. Senate appropriations committee staff-members denied they had approved any appropriation for senatorial refrigerators, said furthermore that there was no record of any such appropriation.

RANKING NEXT to the riddle of who put the refrigerators there was the question of why a senator should need a refrigerator in the first place.

Somebody said maybe they were intended to replace the pigeonhole as convenient spots to keep legislation proposed by the President on ice.

NO ATOMS: Two Unions

Morally afraid of skulduggery at the atomic crossroads, the government has acted to bar unions whose officers refuse to take the non-Communist oath from its atom bomb plants.

SPECIFICALLY, the atomic energy commission issued an order telling two CIO unions to keep out of atomic installations—the CIO United Electric Workers and the CIO United Public Workers.

The action came on the heels of congressional charges that a network of Soviet spy rings tried during the war to dig up atomic secrets.

Also, the atomic energy commission said, other unions from now on will be recognized officially as qualified to work in atom plants only if they can qualify for certification by the national labor relations board.

Said David E. Lilienthal, chairman of the commission, all atomic energy facilities must be operated "in a manner best calculated to assure that those who participate in the program are loyal to the United States."

ACTUALLY, UNION activity in all atomic plants, with the exception of the one at Oak Ridge, has been curtailed sharply since the atomic bomb project was launched. Nevertheless a number of unions have tried to keep active in the hope that the curbs on union organizational work would be eased in the future.

A congressional committee had heard testimony from a self-described former Communist that the United Electrical Workers was "the largest Communist-dominated organization in the United States."

Rose Bushed

No one has yet counted up all the "Tokyo Roses," but it seems like there's one behind every bush. Latest of these is California-born Mrs. Iva Togury D'Aquino, whom the U. S. government charges with being one of Japan's most ardent wartime radio propagandists. She was brought here to stand trial for treason.

WHIZ: Rocket Plane

It wasn't the sort of subject that Stuart Symington cared to be very specific about, but the air secretary did hint in an Air Force association speech that the U. S. X-1 rocket-powered research plane might have blasted through the air at a speed of from 880 to 1,000 miles an hour.

SYMINGTON MADE this startling semi-disclosure in an off-hand manner. Enumerating achievements by the air force during the past year, he made mention of "an airplane flying hundreds of miles faster than the speed of sound, which is 760 miles per hour at sea level."

AS ORIGINALLY designed, the X-1 was supposed to reach a speed of 1,107 miles an hour at 40,000 feet altitude and 1,700 miles an hour at 80,000 feet.

AS FAR AS is known, only two X-1 type planes now are in operation by the government—one by the air force and the other by the national advisory committee for aeronautics.

Five other X-1 models are on order, and a new and drastically different design, the X-4, is awaiting trial flight.

BIG LIFT: To Berlin

Despite the smug Russian belief that Berlin could not be supplied from the air, the American air lift to the blockaded German capital has been spectacularly successful.

DURING THE first 90 days of the great aerial portage American transport planes flew more than 200,000 tons of food, fuel and medicine into Berlin since the Soviets clamped on their blockade in mid-June.

Air force headquarters at Wiesbaden said its planes had flown more than 15 million miles, through good weather and bad, along the narrow air corridors from the western zone of Germany to keep the heart of Berlin's isolated western sector beating.

IN THE FIRST 90 days 28,846 flights were made, with the air cargo including 125,608 tons of coal, 68,142 tons of food and 7,748 tons of other necessary items.

A typical 24-hour period in the air lift has about 400 flights carrying more than 3,000 tons of supplies into the besieged city.

EXPORTS: Up or Down?

Predictions by the department of agriculture that U. S. grain exports during the current crop year may top last year's record by nearly four million tons were expected to give rise to a cabinet tiff over how much grain should be shipped overseas.

There are two schools of thought. Charles F. Brannon, secretary of agriculture, favors increasing exports to prevent possible surpluses in the U. S. that might lead to an expensive price support program.

SECRETARY OF Commerce Charles W. Sawyer, on the other hand, insists that grain shipments should be cut to a minimum in order to keep food prices down in this country. He argues, also, that Europe would be better off to use its dollars for industrial machinery rather than food.

According to the agriculture department, the world's big exporting countries probably will have about 10 per cent more grain to spare this year than in 1947-48 when exports topped 34.6 million tons.

THE DEPARTMENT added that the U. S. "is again likely to provide nearly half of the total world trade."

Last year the United States exported slightly more than 15 million tons—nearly 44 per cent of all the grain exported.

PEARY: Left a Note

A United States expedition to the Arctic last summer found documents left there in 1905 by Rear Adm. Robert E. Peary, discoverer of the North Pole, a recent state department announcement has disclosed.

The brief report contained no explanatory details. It said: "As is usual on northern expeditions, Peary's notes found in the cairn were replaced by appropriate documents."

Oregon Men Attempt To Prove They Are Better Than Horses

LEBANON, ORE.—The men in this part of the country keep insisting they are better than horses. Their trouble is they can't prove it.

There was Chet Fitzgerald, the 220-pound poolroom strong man, who told everyone that no horse could move him in a tug of war—that is, if he were allowed to lie flat on the ground and brace his feet against a timber.

Everyone got bets down. Chet took his position and a horse took the other end of a 100-yard rope. Chet went flying head over heels and half the countryside was broke for days.

Since then, three other men similarly have been put in their place by the same horse, Old Baldy of Waterloo, Ore.

Now comes Paul Smith, 63, of Mill City, convinced no horse can outdo him. His specialty is walking. He has challenged any horse—even one from Waterloo—to a walking contest.

"I can outwalk any horse. A horse has to stop for grass and water. I eat as I go. And I get there first," he asserted.

Well, he found a horse just three miles from Waterloo to take up the challenge. A 10-year-old ex-cowhorse named Larry.

The match will be conducted over a 100-mile course to be determined later. Smith said he would stick to walking, but for all he cared the horse could gallop or even run.

A $500 wager between Smith and Larry's owner and rider, Jess Moss of Lebanon, rests on the outcome.

Calf Hurtles Through Windshield of New Auto

CHARLESTOWN, W. VA.—Farmer Eben Trussell considered himself lucky when he received delivery on his new model car—until he drove it home, that is. He parked the automobile in the barn lot. There a bull saw his reflection in the windshield, took a running leap, crashed through the glass and bounced back on the hood.

The car's windshield was shattered. The calf was worse off, requiring a veterinarian's services to stitch him together.

Doctor Claims Men Should Not Retire at Age of 65

SAN FRANCISCO.—Are you through at 65? Listen to Dr. Edward L. Bortz—and get back on the job.

Society, said Dr. Bortz, president of American Medical Association, literally is killing men by making them retire too early.

For many, the years between 50 and 70 are the most useful. Yet society, he lamented, insists on pinning the "antique" label on men at 65.

"The whole system is pernicious," said Dr. Bortz.

"I am against all present retirement programs.

"Men should be retired, not on the basis of their chronological age, but on the basis of their physical and mental age."

Medical science now is making it possible for persons to live longer lives. The present life expectancy of 68 probably will be increased still further by new medical advances, he said.

Lovelorn Camel Rejects Attention of New Mate

DALLAS, TEX.—A one-sided love affair is going on at the Marsalis park zoo in Dallas. It could be a reciprocal proposition if only Punkin, the lonesome dromedary, would quit biting his lady fair on the nose.

For nine years, Punkin lived a life of solitary discontent, staring back at the hundreds who daily gawk at him in his pen. The people of Dallas, especially those who spend their Sunday afternoons walking in the zoo, finally took pity on the camel.

Josephine, a three-and-one-half-year-old member of the opposite sex, was turned into his pen. She gave him the cold shoulder, and kept her distance after Punkin took several love nips at her nose.

The zoo superintendent, Walton Carlton, explained, however, that love should blossom eventually.

Heroic Motorman Who Lost Legs Is Told of Amputation

BOSTON, MASS.—Alphonse J. McDonald, 31, heroic motorman who lost both legs trying to stop a runaway trolley car, has been told for the first time about the amputations.

The Rev. Lawrence Brock made his daily visit to the hospital and just as he was leaving he grasped McDonald's hand and said: "There's one more thing I want to tell you before I leave until tomorrow. We all believe you have won your fight for life—you're that kind of man—but to save your life surgeons were forced to amputate your legs."

Bravely, McDonald tried to smile. "I'm glad you told me, Father. Yes, I'm glad you told me and thank God, Father, that I'm alive. The wife and children are depending on me to get well now. I still have to take care of them."

Will Stratovision Arrive? They're Working on It Now

By BAUKHAGE
News Analyst and Commentator.

WASHINGTON.—"Is television here to stay?" That has been the favorite crack in AM (regular broadcasting) circles for some time. Now it's been displaced by another: "Will stratovision arrive?"

If it doesn't, say the enthusiastic stratospheric promoters, millions of people in rural areas will be unable to receive television programs for years, if ever.

What is "it"? "The stratovision system simply puts the antennae and television transmitter in an airplane flying in lazy circles above the earth," they explain, "and the shortwave sent out from this airborne antennae blankets the earth's surface like a great inverted ice cream cone and covers an area approximately 500 miles across."

Since television waves travel in a straight line and not in high, leaping loops like long-wave radio, their range is limited, just as human sight is limited. You can't see nearly as far on a level city street as you can from the top of a mountain. That parallel isn't an exact one, but it's a good rough comparison.

So television waves have to travel on a special cable underneath the ground (co-axial cable), or else leap from one high tower to another (microwave relay). And the farthest they can travel is some 35 to 50 miles. But stratovision waves come from a transmitter as high as the plane carrying the transmitter can fly, 30,000 feet, we'll say.

What about storms? Well the stratospherites say they miss most of them at that height, and anyhow, they can use more than one equipped plane, so they can shift the point of transmission of a program from one to the other and thus dodge the storm. They insist that they have already demonstrated that this is possible, that they can deliver.

I haven't seen any of the recent tests so I don't know. Naturally the oldtimers (although the oldest oldtimers in television are still pretty new) are skeptical. After a test held recently in Zanesville, Ohio, for the benefit of newspaper and radio folk, many were still skeptical. It was admitted that conditions on the test day were not ideal by any means and it was claimed that there was interference from other stations which would be eliminated.

Variety magazine's correspondent, a keen observer of radio, said: "Demonstration proved that the higher the altitude, the clearer and more extensive the pick-up. For all practical purposes, though, the specific, physical certainty of the underground co-axial or the thru-the-air microwave relay would seem to have the networking edge for the time being."

("Be not the first by whom the new is tried. . .")

The backers of the new system, Westinghouse Radio Stations, Incorporated, think differently. Their request for a commercial license established the surprising fact that there were lots of television sets in areas which could not possibly be reached ordinarily (by co-axial cable or microwave). At the first call for response to the test programs many letters came from such areas. Probably amateurs who had built their own sets, and perhaps erected their own antennae on some high elevation.

It would seem that the country is willing to try the Nobles experiment if it gets the chance.

The Russians, after claiming that not Marconi but a Russian invented, wireless telegraphy, now are saying that the electric bulb, the flashlight, the transformer and electric welding all started in Russia. Next thing you know they'll claim an invention of the one thing which could make Ananias turn in his grave.

To get the most fun and enjoyment from bicycling, it is well to know a few simple things about buying one, says the bicycle information bureau. One thing it might be well to know is whether you have enough money to pay for it.

altitude and the various other calculations formulae, logarithms and assorted humorous material which an electronic engineer toys with instead of reciting limericks to himself to pass away the time, he suddenly thought:

"If I only had a television transmitter with me, and my folks had a set, and if I had some other planes for relays, they could get the same television programs New York does."

"I suppose long hours of intense work on military radar had so crowded my mind with details of its operation that I looked for radar possibilities in everything I saw," the young stratovision creator said afterward. "Radio already had proven its adaptability and value for airplane communications and in navigational aids, including blind flying. Turning these facts over mentally, I concluded that Westinghouse already had at hand basic engineering information which seemed to justify the ambitious plan."

He sold the idea to Westinghouse and Glenn Martin and they went ahead and backed his extensive, not to say expensive, experimentation.

I caught some of the enthusiasm which I know "Chili" must radiate from the young man who sat across the table from me explaining the drawings.

"Think of what stratovision would mean to the readers of your column," he said.

"We only asked for a license for one station but with more we could link up the Pacific and Atlantic coasts so that we could pick up Hollywood and New York studios (I don't know why he left out Chicago) with only eight planes flying 400 miles apart. By adding six planes to the system to cover the Northwest and Southeast we could serve 78 per cent of the population!"

And once we got the rural televiewers looking, I thought, what a lot of new material would be put into the telecasts to say nothing of the greatly broadened market for television sets and advertising which would be created.

The first stratovision experiments established the surprising fact that there were lots of television sets in areas which could not possibly be reached ordinarily (by co-axial cable or microwave). At the first call for response to the test programs many letters came from such areas. Probably amateurs who had built their own sets, and perhaps erected their own antennae on some high elevation.

Study Proposed Amendments

The voters have usually and rightly viewed with suspicion proposals to amend the state Constitution, voting NO unless reason to vote YES is apparent. This year six proposals are to be voted on. If ever there was a time to vote NO on everything this is it.

The first proposal is to regulate succession of the office of governor on a contingency that has never happened, probably never will. The second is to reverse the decision recently made to give the schools and local units part of the sales tax. The third is that the legislature be given power to regulate the governor's salary, the fourth that they be given power to fix their own. Since when has the legislature shown such fidelity as to be worthy of such a trust? In the convention which built the Constitution of the United States, James Madison, "Father of the Constitution," later president of the United States, said, June 22: "The legislature is too much interested to ascertain their own compensation. It would be indecent to put their hands into the public purse for the sake of their own pockets." The fifth proposal is to scuttle the 15 mill tax limitation, by authorizing a levy of 100% of the assessed value of homes and farms for local improvements on a majority vote, perhaps at a special election. Have we forgotten 1932, when half the land of the state was confiscated by excess taxation? How many times have the tax consumers tried to get rid of that limitation since it was adopted? Every time the people have voted NO. This is the worst proposal yet. Ask any farmer or home owner who remembers 1932 what the 15 mill limitation has done for him. The sixth proposal is that a state convention be elected to revise the whole Constitution at one jump. Such conventions are the tricksters' paradise. There they can put through concealed jokers for special interests that never could be obtained by themselves, like the provision obtained on the last revision, that no provision obtained by hook or crook by trust companies shall be repealed or amended without the affirmative vote of two-thirds of the elected members of both houses, whereby such corporations are immune to any regulation without their own consent. (Art XII, Sec. 9) Don't fail to vote No on all these proposals.

THE END OF THE LINE
By CHARLES S. PARK

Nogales was the end of the line for John Todd, and he arrived there in a blaze of glory the citizenry would never forget.

Nogales, end of the line. When the three-car train pulled slowly alongside the tile-roofed, stone depot building and stopped, John Todd moved tiredly from his seat and from the car. Within him was a strange depression; a feeling that for him, too, this was "the end of the line."

He walked away from the tracks, a tall figure in big city dress that hung on his thin frame poorly. He followed the traffic and made his way through the gate in the International Fence. Long legs carried him past the slower moving, dark-clad Mexican women returning from their marketing in Arizona stores. He had seen them before. He was not curious. But he envied them the comfort of the homes they would go to, though they might be only mud huts, with roofs that leaked and windows patched against the weather.

He carried no luggage, so the Mexican customs men barely glanced his way, and then nodded him through. He knew where he was going; this was all a part of the plan. A plan only half-formed, perhaps, but one that had been long in the back of his mind. All he needed to carry it out was nerve.

Desperation was taking care of that. His hands had a new tremor. To still it he shoved them deep into the pockets of his slack coat. Fumbling there, they found pipe and tobacco. He stopped, stepped out of the moving pedestrian traffic into the vestibule of a curio store, loaded and lit up. With the pipe clenched between his teeth and drawing well, he glanced over the passersby. It was funny, he was always looking for a familiar face, yet even friends were of no use now. He knew what he had to do and at last, his mind was made up.

There was even more purpose in his stride as he left his temporary shelter and headed across the street to the ticket office of the Mexican railroad. He was a young man, yet hollow cheeks and graying temples made him appear much older. He looked as sick as he was. Well, South Mexico was his last hope, just as far south as he could get. They said there was health to be had in the hot, high climates.

But it was here in Nogales that the trail branched. Even in Mexico, where it was said one could live so big on so little, money would be necessary. Almost his last cent went for the railroad passage, but he knew where there was more for the taking. So, with the ticket safely in an inner pocket, he moved out into the Sonora sunset, found a place to sit, to rest and to wait, and gave himself up to his own bitter thoughts.

Somewhat later he looked up to find a swift-coming night had fallen. He was worried that perhaps he had dallied too long. He pulled roughly away from a small and very dirty shine boy who tugged at his sleeve. He walked across the street, back into the United States, and moved by the border officials with his new assurance to hurry down the main street of the little Arizona border town. He glanced into darkened store windows, looked into shadows, testing and feeling the night and the tenor of the town with his senses.

He walked past an open door; the neatly lettered sign that hung above it read: "Money Exchange." His heart action quickened as he looked inside.

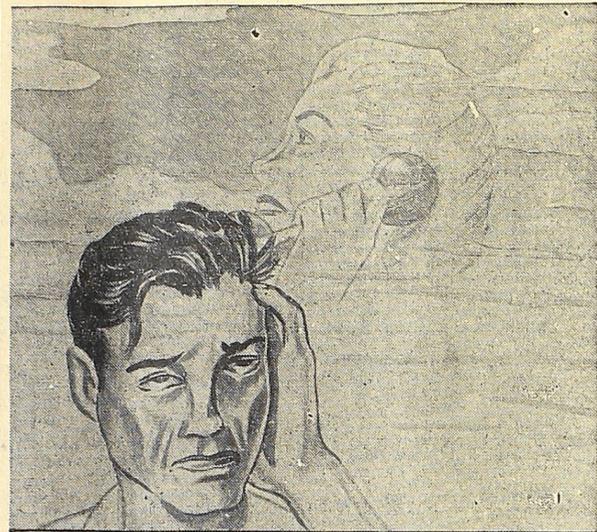

The room was divided by a high counter. Behind were two objects that called for his attention. One;

an open safe. The other; a dark-haired girl in a red dress.

She was counting out money to a couple of tourists. Todd knew that under the counter and in the safe there were racks of silver and bills of all denominations.

He hoped his nerve would hold up, to provide support yet a little longer as he continued down the block. He crossed a street and entered a small park. He seated himself on a bench.

The streets were gradually emptying. A police prowler car eased quietly by and its occupants turned their heads to look at him. He started back. Yet at the same time he felt a coldness around his heart. Two border patrolmen passed in a jeep and he was conscious of their scrutiny.

Down the street the lights in the money exchange went dim. He rose from the bench and stepped out briskly. The prowler car had turned the corner, the patrol jeep was out of sight. Todd judged the distance to the International Line; noticed with satisfaction that the officials had all moved inside their guardhouse. A quick move, a fast sprint, and the business would be done.

Once across the line he could easily lose himself among the shadows between the adobe buildings, and as easily stay hidden until train time.

TURNING abruptly into the Money Exchange, he saw the girl in the red dress coming toward the counter with a tray of money from the safe. Her eyes were very wide, very brown, and she was very pale. In front of the counter, his back toward Todd, there stood a man. A tardy customer, perhaps, but desperation told Todd it was too late now to back out.

He gripped the pipe in his pocket and poked the stem of it against the cloth convincingly. He curbed the fine tremor that was coming back to his fingers and spoke in a voice made harsh and sharp by the urgency of the moment.

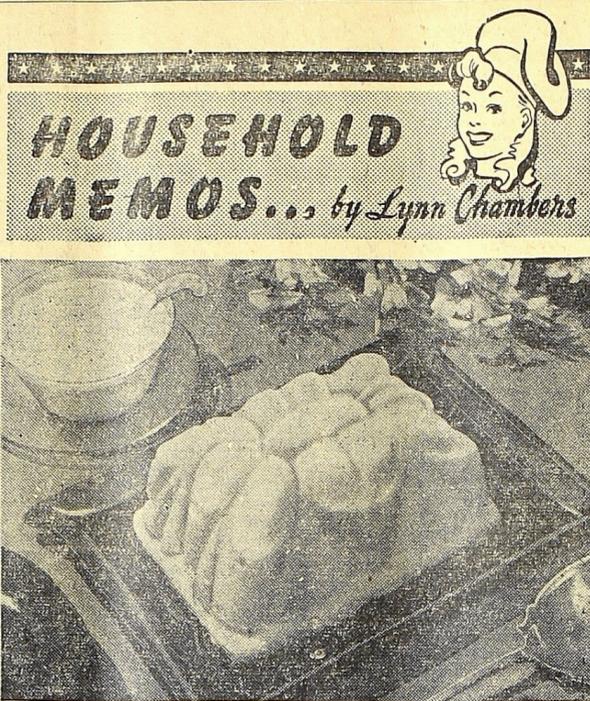

"Put that down and raise your hands."

The man at the counter jerked around. His hand stabbed out. Todd felt a tearing, ripping sensation high in his chest even as the shrill bark of a small caliber pistol hit his ears. In a continued motion, the man broke into a dash for the door.

Only instinctive reaction made Todd stick out a long leg and trip him up. The same motivation caused him to dive forward onto the prostrate figure, to scramble for the little gun and wrench it from temporarily limp fingers. The heavy blow delivered to the base of the man's skull with the butt of the pistol was a part of the same pattern.

It was then that realization caught up with Todd. He arose slowly, feeling the pain in his chest a sudden, live thing. He moved back to the counter; leaned against it. The room became a whirling wheel, and he its hub.

He never heard the girl speak into the telephone. The shriek of a siren was only a high note piercing the roaring in his ears. But he did

Families Enjoy Variety in Desserts!
(See Recipes Below)

Dessert Patterns

"MY FAMILY CAN enjoy the same meat and vegetable dishes," says a homemaker, "but they really want variety in their desserts. It's hard to keep enough good, easy to make things on hand to satisfy them."

Well, our hunger patterns are usually satisfied by the time we get to the "frosting" of the meal, and we all like something special. We may want to save or the main course, but we like surprises for desserts.

The woman who is busy with many household duties might like to skip dessert just because she can't think of something new, or because desserts are a bit too complicated to prepare, or so she thinks. How about some easy but sure to be good desserts for family or company dinners?

YOU'LL WANT to choose a light, fluffy gelatin or fruit dessert when the meal's been substantial. If, on the other hand, the meal has been a hurry-up affair then give the folks a nice, rich, baked dessert which will really stick to the ribs. Above all, make them picture pretty, gay, colorful and breath-takingly good like those in the column today.

Cranberry Log
1/2 cup sifted cake flour
1/2 teaspoon baking powder
1/4 teaspoon salt
3 egg yolks
3 egg whites
1/4 teaspoon cream of tartar
1/2 cup sugar

Beat egg whites until frothy. Add cream of tartar and beat stiff. Add 1/4 cup sugar and beat until points are formed. Add remaining sugar to egg yolks and beat until thick and light colored. Fold carefully into egg white mixture. Then fold in sifted dry ingredients. Pour into a shallow pan, 9 by 12 inches, which has been greased and lined with waxed paper. Bake 20-25 minutes at 350 degrees. Have ready a strip of waxed paper cut about 15 inches longer than the cake. Sprinkle thickly with powdered sugar the section on which the cake will be turned. Roll up 15 inches of paper to form a thin roller which will make center for the rolled cake.

When cake has baked, turn out on powdered sugar. Remove paper from cake. Then, starting with roller, roll up cake like a jelly roll. Cool. Unroll cake when cool and spread with soft-ened cream cheese and reroll tightly.

Cherry Cream Pudding
(Serves 6-8)
6 eggs, separated
1 1/4 cups sugar
1/2 cup boiling water
1 cup sifted cake flour
1 teaspoon cream of tartar
1/2 teaspoon vanilla
1/2 teaspoon almond extract

Slowly boil sugar and water until it threads when dropped from the end of a spoon. Beat the whites stiff. Pour hot syrup over whites slowly, and beat until cool. Beat egg yolks until thick and lemon-colored and blend in egg white mixture. Add

Give pork chops a new and different flavor by breading them, and then baking in tomato juice with slices of lemon.

All fruit salads may be made to appear richer when made with fruit flavored gelatin and sieved cottage cheese, and then molded. If you're afraid that dinner won't fill appetites well enough, add a hot cream soup or chowder to the menu.

flavorings, then sifted dry ingredients. Bake in an ungreased tube pan in a moderate (350 degrees) oven until golden and done, about one hour. Cool and fill center with one can (No. 1) of black, pitted cherries which have been folded in two cups sweetened whipped cream.

Molded Rice Pudding
(Serves 6-8)
2 cups cooked rice
1 No. 2 1/2 size can apricots
2 tablespoons gelatin
3/4 cup cold water
2 slices pineapple, cut up
1 cup whipping cream
2 tablespoons sugar
1 teaspoon vanilla

Add the juice from the can of apricots to the cooked rice. Stir over a low flame until rice has absorbed the juice. Soak gelatin in cold water. Stir into hot rice. Add all except a few apricots (saved for garnish) which have been rubbed through a sieve. Mix in pineapple. Mix lightly so as not to mash the rice. When mixture begins to set, add whipped cream which has been mixed with sugar and vanilla. Pour into a cold rinsed mold and allow to chill. Turn out onto platter and garnish with apricot halves and additional whipped cream, if desired.

HERE ARE EASY variations of an unflavored gelatin and orange juice dessert. You also may use any other fruit juice you prefer to unlock even more possibilities for you.

Basic Clear Orange Gelatine
(Serves 4)
1 envelope unflavored gelatine
1 1/2 cup cold orange juice
1 1/4 cups hot orange juice
1/2 cup sugar
1/2 teaspoon salt

Soften gelatine in cold orange juice. Add hot orange juice, sugar and salt; stir until dissolved. Pour into molds and chill until firm.

ORANGE WHIP: Use basic recipe with following change. Chill gelatine mixture until slightly thicker than unbeaten egg whites; beat with rotary beater until light and fluffy. Turn into molds and chill until firm.

*ORANGE SPANISH CREAM: Use basic recipe with following changes. Soften gelatine in one cup cold milk in top of double boiler. Place over boiling water. Add sugar and salt and stir until gelatine and sugar are dissolved. Beat two egg yolks slightly. Pour a small amount of the hot mixture over egg yolks. Return to double boiler and cook over hot, not boiling, water, stirring constantly until mixture coats the spoon. Remove from heat; cool. Stir in three-quarter cup cold orange juice; chill until thickened. Beat two egg whites until stiff. Fold in gelatine mixture and chill until firm in mold.

THE DAY

Grace Noll Crowell

THE day will bring some lovely thing,
I say it over each new dawn,
"Some gay, adventurous thing to hold
Against my heart when it is gone."
And so I rise, and go to meet
The day with wings upon my feet.

I come upon it unaware,
Some sudden beauty without name;
A snatch of song, a breath of pine,
A poem lit with golden flame;
High tangled bird notes, keenly thinned,
Like flying color on the wind.

No day has ever failed me quite:
Before the grayest day is done
I find some misty, purple bloom,
Or a late line of crimson sun.
Each night I pause, remembering
Some gay, adventurous, lovely thing.

By INEZ GERHARD AFTER months of preparations and several postponements, Columbia Broadcasting will present "The Hollywood Story" on October 27. One of their expertly done documentaries, running from 10:00 to 11:00 p. m. EST, it will examine the way in which a picture is put together.

Leo McCarey, producer-director of RKO's "Good Sam," predicts that the near future will find more children on the screen, in better roles, because we are entering on a new era of wholesomeness, Americanism and family life.

Howard Hawks' "Red River," (United Artists) takes a page out of American history, based as it is on the first cattle drive over the Chisholm trail, from Texas to Kansas. It has all the requirements of a super-western—fights with Indians, a cattle stampede and not much love story. John Wayne heads the A-1 cast, which includes Montgomery Clift, Walter Brennan, Joanne Drew, Harry Carey Sr. and Jr., John Ireland, Noah Berry Jr. Micky Kuhn is fine as the boy, played by Clift as a man.

Patricia Knight has 18 changes of costume in "The Lovers," her first co-starring film with her husband, Cornel Wilde. Seventeen are gorgeous creations; the 18th is a baggy dress obtained from the California state prison for women!

Girls from 12 to 17 may enter the "Teentimers Club" radio program's contest to help the U. N. Crusade for Children. The grand prize is valued at $10,000, including a college scholarship, an outboard motor, a diamond ring, and other prizes. Clues are given on the program, on Mutual. To enter, send name and phone number to P. O. Box 96, Times Square, New York City.

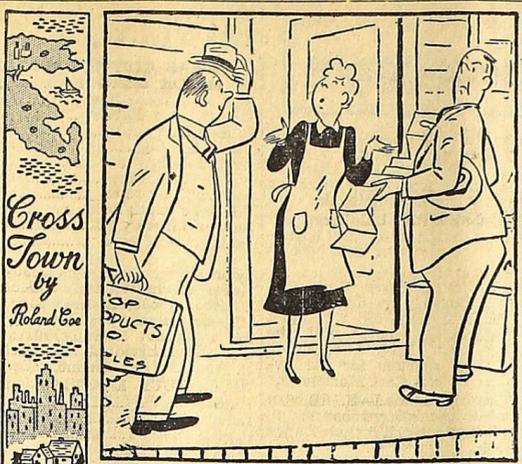

"The Pilot to Kill Roosevelt," released this week, is a fiction-based-on-fact picture, inspired by a "top secret" circulated in all the European capitals. A thrilling story of espionage and counter-espionage, it stars Derek Farr.

Alexis Smith, boarding a Hollywood-bound plane to leave Pentecost, B. C., after presiding over western Canada's annual peach festival, stumbled and fell flat on her pretty face. Hundreds of people who had come to see her groaned in sympathy. But their groans changed to laughter when she stood up, smiled and said, "Always leave 'em laughing, that's me!"

When Guy Hoskinson won an extra role in RKO's "Rachel and the Stranger," part of his costume was a coonskin cap which he wore home the first night. His young son exclaimed "That's just like one Randolph Scott wore in a movie." And was he thrilled when his father took the cap off and examined the leather lining for ink was written "R. Scott."

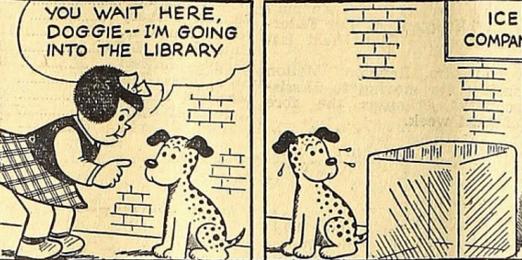

CBS's master of ceremonies Bill Cullen works so hard he hardly has time to sleep, what with appearing as quizzmaster on "Winner Take All," "Hits the Jackpot," and doing numerous other chores on the air. ODDS AND ENDS—Lawrence Tibbett Jr., son of the famous singer, will make his screen debut as a singing actor in "El Paso." ... Dane Clark's car acquired a profitable flat tire; service station attendants found it had been caused by a large gold pin which still clung to the rubber. ... While vacationing at Solano Beach, Zachary Scott got courage enough to part with his mustache, which didn't fit his role in Joan Crawford's "Flamingo Road." ... Ford Bond, announcer on the NBC "Band of America" show and head of his own radio programming service, is radio adviser to Governor Thomas E. Dewey.

It may be caused by disorder of kidney function that permits poisonous waste to accumulate. For truly many people feel tired, weak and miserable when the kidneys fail to remove excess acids and other waste matter from the blood. You may suffer nagging backache, rheumatic pains, headaches, dizziness, getting up nights, leg pains, swelling. Sometimes frequent and scanty urination with smarting and burning is another sign that something is wrong with the kidneys or bladder.

some method to satisfactorily answer this problem. Buffer plots and other methods help, but do not entirely clear the trouble. The Conservation Department does issue discretionary permits, but this does not provide an answer for the question either. In instances it is necessary, as the case in our own Wilber District this year, but one of these permits in the wrong hands can lead to indiscriminate killing of does, bucks and fawns, and can be likened to our killing our grandparents and children to cut down our own overpopulation. One permit in the wrong hands can willfully destroy more deer in one week, than those lost in all of our overbrowsed areas during the winter. The problem is varied and complex, everywhere throughout the state experts are working on this problem trying to find some solution.

Your Iosco County Sportsmen's Club is working hand in hand with these men and the other Sportsmen's Clubs throughout the state to help, not only the Sportsman, but you the farmer and you the townspeople to build a better community and a better Iosco County.
