Letter for Special Delivery To the American Auto Industry,

I didn't get too hot and bothered by that Washington inquiry into auto agency practices in the auto shortage. I suspect that many a man who can be loudest in his squawks against an auto dealer would, in a similar spot, be going after the last dollar, too, with gusto. The urge to make a fast buck is fairly general. Stacked right up beside the dealer who is out for all he can get I give you the customer who is not any too ethical.

For every dealer who takes your back teeth there are plenty of customers who resort to back alley negotiations, larcenous propositions and indiscriminate hocus pocus to get what they want when they want it. I have failed to run across a case where a car seeker yelled for the cops when discovering a way to get a new beach-wagon ahead of Joe Doakes. Nevertheless, the goings on in the retail auto business have not been free from bad smells. They are not good for the automobile industry. And since the industry has poured countless millions of dollars into the job of creating customer good will, I am flabbergasted that it hasn't gone all out to prevent this good will from being shot to bits.

No matter whether the dealer is more to blame than the cus-tomer, or vice versa, in the routine of forgotten priorities, low trade-in allowances, bribes, tips, etc., the public is sore. Almost from the time of the first horseless carriage, good will was the top aim of the auto industry. Dealers had to be warm, genial, popular figures in the community. And back of them stood the manufacturer shooting the wad to keep everybody hap-

Then, bang!-look what happened! Due to the war and the car shortage, a situation developed which, let the blame fall where it may, changed the old time friendly dealer into a deep-freeze unit, transformed countless salesrooms into polar icepacks and made the public sore as a pup at everybody from the phone girl in the town agency to the Detroit motor mogul himself.

Sure, the dealers have had their troubles. They have been in a tough spot. But why have they chilled up on Otis P. Karbuyer so much. Why that aloofness? Why those brutally low trade-in allowances? Why must the salesmen react to a guy opening the front door as if he were the community polecat? I'm only asking.

Mister Auto Manufacturer, you can do something. The dealers are not at heart bad guys. They will repent and revert to type if made to realize from the right quarters that they have been getting into bad habits. Maybe it needs a campaign of re-education with some movie of the old fashioned auto dealer and an illustrated talk on all the things he would rather do than go cold on a customer and lose the good will of even a distant prospect. How about it? Yours for your own best inter-

General Eisenhower's book on the war is a best seller. Lots of G. I. veterans of the conflict have been yearning to know just what hap-

It is for vegetable soup, never, we think, to be popular in German restaurants. What intrigues us in the recipe is this, "As a final touch in spring when nastur-tiums are green and tender, take a few stems, cut them into small bits, boil them separately and add the juice to the soup." FORT PIERCE, FLA .- As you read these lines I expect to be back where the quiet along the Potomac will be dis-turbed by the plans for an old-time inauguration party and the beginning of a new legislative year. But as I write I can see the blue of the Indian river whose eastern shore line is a slim silhouette of palm trees screening the Atlantic beyond.

When I stand up I can look over the seawall and watch mullet jumping higher than I ever saw a fish leap except when the Washington state salmon were hurdling the falls on their way to spawn.

A little way north of here a wide beach and dune, scrub pine and cabbage palm which forms apart of the barrier between the ocean and the great inland waterway stretching from New York harbor to Miami.

These occasional intrusions of the ocean don't disturb the Indian river in the slightest for through the dredged channels come the fish and the deep-sea fishing boats, the shrimpers and the freighters that mingle with the trim pleasure craft in the yacht basin. Approaching this spot on land you are welcomed by the brilliant red of the Turk's Caps, the flower that never opens - never has to. Perhaps it is too lazy. It loafs along the ditches, growing wild in fields or tamed in gardens, showing no envy for its more aristocratic sister, the hibiscus which throws its flames out in wide tongues, the dainty bouganvillea blossoms, or the languorous poinsettia.

When a crane flashes up from the river edge, a polished silver streak in the sun, you know you have left the northern city canyons far behind. Now the groves. Ripening oranges among the leaves shine like little golden beads against rich, green velvet tapestry. Quite a different green from the deli-cate tint of the little lizard sunning himself on the window screen beside me. He would match the tender tint of the clusters of new pine needles undulating in a breeze that keeps the palms fanning themselves with their rippling fronds.

I am met in new, blue truck which also transports fish, groceries and whatnot—eyen a marauding wildcat which has suffered his just deserts among the palmettos at dawn.

Over the cottage great bulbous blossoms of the yellow trumpet vine are waiting until the sun sets to send out their intoxicating per-

The next day starts, as it should, on the river. Overhead are the soaring fishhawks, the nervous kingfishers, the greedy, speedy and graceful black cormorants and high above all the tireless man-of-war birds with their wide sweeping wings, like an upper-case M, which never seem to change their shape.

Not a "honey-money" fish like a trout or pompano, as my wife would say, making a little more euphemistic the terminology of the commercial fisherman. Bill Turner smiles. He knows the personal histories and habits of the furred, feathered or finny folk that inhabit these parts and gets as much pleasure out of seeing somebody else land a catch as he does doing it himself. And he has an uncanny sixth sense that takes him straight to the spot close to the bank in the green shadow of the mangroves, outside on reef, deep in the cuts wherever fish will be if fish there are.

Baukhage and Friends

inlet breaches the natural strip of fact as far as I am concerned, she, not Hernando de Soto, discovered the place. . . I land a snook, enough! Fried, with corndogers, crisp and golden brown, a salad of grapefruit, oranges, pineapple and fresh cocoanut from the backyard, that snook is delicious. And so to bed.

Next day I go after a different species of marine fauna. (See ac-companying photograph.) Mer-maids aren't as hard to find as they used to be before that ingenious creature, homo-press-agenticus, was discovered and carefully cultivated by the chambers of commerce of all energetic resorts.

Although I didn't intend to make a busman's holiday out of my vacation I couldn't help getting one or two interviews.

I called on Douglas Silver, president of the local chamber of commerce. I had known him when his beat was Broadway and the New York advertising district. His office was as busy as one in the Merchandise Mart or Radio City. 'Do you like it any better here?' I asked him. "In some ways it's worse," he said.

I nearly fell off my chair. Such a statement from a Floridian! He saw my consternation, immediately realized my misunderstanding, and hastily proceeded to put me right.

"I see you don't mean what I mean," he said. "I thought you were asking me if I like work any better here. Frankly, I have the same allergy to useful effort that you have. But work for you up north is all you have to do. Now look out there." He pointed out the window to a gentleman in wrinkled slacks and a faded khaki shirt sitting in a boat out on the river.

Even from where we stood we could see the look of almost childish contentment on his tanned face. Just then he stood up and began reeling in his taut line. Silver gave one look and pushed back his chair. "Listen," he said, "I can finish up what I have to do in about 15 minutes and we'll get right out there. But to answer your question: work is no better here than any place but the difference here is that when you quit you don't have to take a train or a plane to get where you really want to beyou're there already."

Shrimp Also Abound There

The lizard has moved over to get into a patch of sunlight leaking through the leaves of the magnolia

Some shrimp boats are coming in through the inlet. This is probably the biggest shrimping port south of Savannah. I think I will go over and see if I can't get some nice fat ones. Bill Turner will clean them until they are sweet and delicate as a newly opened gladiolus. They will be boiled with just the right amount of salt. They will be chilled (not drowned in ice water until they are mushy).

My wife will do something miraculous to the sauce. How I long for that dish. Why I haven't had a real shrimp for I don't know how longit must have been as long ago as yesterday at lunch!

Fort Pierce Has History

Fort Pierce was a real fort once -built in 1838 as one of the chain of east coast defenses against the Indians. It was a strategic point on the Indian river because a natural opening to the sea permitted easy water communication with the north. Settlers came, fought off the Indians, planted their pineapples, citrus groves, and vegetables for the winter markets. Later the artificial inlet was dredged so the big ships could Florida played more of a part in the Civil war than most textbooks record. It was the food basket of the Confederacy and also one of the great blockade running bases, and I have no doubt these cuts sheltered many a contraband cargo going to or from Cuba or the Bahamas as they did in the days of the rum runners.

The town felt the shock of World War II, literally felt it, for the submarines crept close to the coast and explosions rocked the houses far inland. Wounded survivors were brought in and cared for here as in other coast towns. Later, because land and water conditions could be simulated to resemble the terrain in the Pacific, it became the country's largest amphibious training base.

QUESTION: I have taken all the paint off a wicker set down to its natural color. Now I would like to know what I can put on it to preserve it, as it is very dry. Should I varnish it or leave it as ANSWER: If you have used a commercial paint remover to clean off the old finish, you should go over the surfaces with turpentine in order to take off every trace of the remover; otherwise your new finish will fail. If you like the color, you can finish the pieces with spar or quick-drying varnish. This should protect the furniture, especially if it is to be exposed to sunlight. Otherwise you can use clear lacquer, which would give a lighter finish.

QUESTION: My living room is finished in natural wormy chestnut that has been waxed. How can ANSWER: There are many good cleaning preparations on general sale which should serve your purpose. An alternative would be to clean off the soiled wax with a liquid wax that is meant just for cleaning waxed surfaces. Still another method would be to go over the woodwork with a cloth dampened with turpentine, then apply a thin coat of paste wax, and when dry polish thoroughly.

Glorify Holiday Leftovers! (See Recipes Below.)

After-Holiday Meals

SMART HOMEMAKERS, instead of looking on holiday leftovers with scorn, will welcome having them because they save time in meal

r preparation as well as conserving time in marketing. Who doesn't welcome succulent slices of ham, turkey or roast beef when served with slices of bread or rolls? They're the re-frigerator raiders' delight!

Then, too, there are excellent dishes which Mom can prepare quickly from vegetables and roast. Everything's cooked and needs just a bit of ingenuity and heating to make them ready for the table!

To make leftovers palatable, it's best to disguise them completely. With the right recipes, it isn't much of a trick, and it's fun, too, to test your ingenuity.

*Chicken Rice Loaf (Serves 6)

THE TAWAS HERALD

Return to Prayer

Bell Syndicate-WNU Features. By KATHLEEN NORRIS

TEW YEAR'S EVE seems a good time to talk again about Betty McCoy. Betty Mc-Coy's trouble was that she couldn't find God; she just didn't believe. It all seemed pretty enough to her — the churches and the prayers—but not convincing.

Not in years have I had as many letters in answer to any article as I had to that one. Hundreds of women and a few men, several clergymen and priests and lecturers, from places in my own town and Canada and Australia, wrote me their own experiences in this most delicate and personal of all adventures.

And some 20 persons, including a college dean and two college instructors, assured me scornfully that there is no God. The contrast between the believers' eager, help-ful letters and the discontent of the teachers was marked. The latter not only didn't believe but they resented anyone's believing.

In the mass of these letters more than a few were directed to the Betty McCoy who had written me "from Salt Lake City." One fine woman wanted to meet Betty, to befriend her, to try to interest her in church and church work. The difficulty of this situation was that the name of the writer of the original letter was not Betty McCoy, nor was her town Salt Lake City. Spiritual Hunger

In all my 20 years of writing these little talks, I never have used a real name nor described a situation so closely that anyone could be embarrassed by being recognized. It is the human value of the story that I try to preserve, very often by exact quotations from actual letters.

Well, anyway, I sent a dozen let-ters on to the real Betty and she may have answered some of them by this time. Her great hunger was for something more than just the everyday material of life-the waking and sleeping, eating and working, washing dishes and washing clothes.

Isn't there something, Betty demanded, that lifts life out of the commonplace, puts light behind the drab realities that all of us have to face?

Yes, all of us. Rich and poor young and old, life presents us all with dreadful hours. We push them into the background, but they come back again. Sometimes they come in the dark wakeful stretches of the night, sometimes while one is sitting wearily in an odorous lunchroom, sometimes in a market when a sweet, weary woman with an anxious face, eyes the meats and the bread and fingers a few folded bills.

In those hours a sort of terror may take hold of one. What's it all about? Why isn't life easier? Why is even childhood checkered with humiliations and disappointments and despairs? Why is the short sweet deceptive time of youth and love and mating so blind and so brief, so soon encroached upon by disillusionment and tedium?

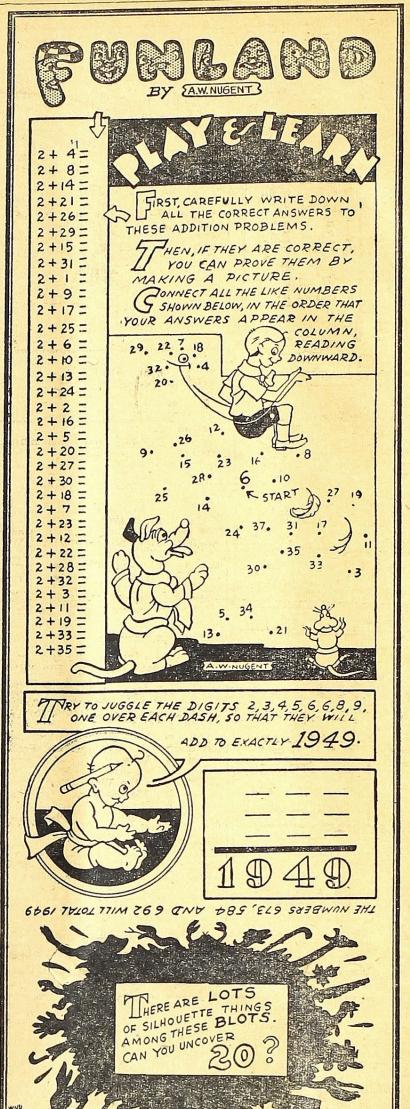

Courage for Middle-Age As for middle-age it takes supernatural courage to get through it. Fatigues, failures, gray hair, baldness, headaches, losses, dental replacements, hearing aids, indigestion, corns-isn't it a frightful summary of ills! To some persons, that is. To others it is the pleasantest time yet.

A week ago the astounding Baby was born in our hearts again. New Year's is a good time to determine to keep Him there. New Year's is a time to slip into some dark church and get started toward that comfortable philosophy that will convince us that life is a privilege, that the old world is a good place in which to be and that familiar delights are in reach of us all-a walk in country lanes or city streets, an appetizing dinner, plans for the next holiday and the car, music, a good book, a turned down smooth bed, work and friendly con-

Berlin 'Candy Lift' Grows As Hungry Children Clamor

The sight of sweets-hungry children on the outskirts of Berlin's Tempelhof airdrome prompted Lieut. Gail Halversen to drop a package of candy on a handkerchief parachute. That started it.

Now, the air force reports, crews and pilots on the Berlin shuttle run drop an estimated 1,500 candy-laden chutes every day. Biggest trouble to arise so far is a shortage of handkerchiefs for parachutes.

Old Game and the New

THE football that used to beand the football that is today—are two entirely different games. If you don't mind, we'll take you back a bit—just a few years. I spent most of one recent week-end with my old friend Pudge Heffelfinger, who is still Mr. Football. Pudge was a mighty football player at Yale from 1889 to 1891.

He was just as

40s. He played for 54 minutes against a crack pro team when he was 53. He was still playing at 65 against another leading pro team in Minneapolis. Pudge suffered a bad knee at 65 and

couldn't understand it. Heffelfinger can't understand why a football player can't go 60 minutes at least twice a week. "What are these young fellows made of today?" Heffelfinger asks.

Pudge is now 81 years old. He only weighs 270 pounds, and he still moves around like a lightweight. He has hands like two sets of hams. Bud Kelland says Pudge is a throwback to the dinosaurs.

Now I'll take you to another case -to another friend of mine. His mame is Shep Homans of Englewood, N. J. Shep Homans was Snake Ames' substitute at Princeten around 1889. "I never got in a game that year," Shep tells me. Hemans was Princeton's fullback in 1890 and 1891. Homans weighed 167 pounds. He played 70 minutes in 22 consecutive games.

His substitute never got to play. "Sure I was hurt," Shep told me long afterwards. "But you don't quit a game because you happen to get hurt.

"If you don't mind, you might also mention that Snake Ames was a greater all-around athlete than Glen Davis or any other college athlete. Snake was the greatest college player I ever saw. He was also the greatest college baseball player I ever saw. He held three big league teams to less than five hits and be othern all. He was also a great golf. I've paid to find that

Either the football players of 40 and 50 years ago were much tougher and rougher and had more fiber than the present bunch-or the game today is far rougher than it used to be.

Walter Eckersall was a good friend of mine. Weighing 148 pounds, Eckie could travel 60 minutes without taking an extra breath. He carried the ball—he did all the kicking-he blocked and tackled and passed-and he finished fresh. Maybe the game today is too rough. Either the football players are much too soft-or the game is much too rough.

At the finish of this season many of the best backs in the country including Doak Walker of SMU, Stuart and Stephenson of Army and many others were too badly hurt to be of any use.

Sitko and Brennan of Notre Dame were both out of action. So was Charley Justice with a bad shoulder, according to Carl Snave-ly, in the William and Mary game. Most of the good backs were hurt and out of action, or useless in action, a good part of the year.

The game today is far rougher than it used to be. The old game was mass pushing and shoving. The modern game is a matter of collision at top speed. The equipment is atrocious, something the coaches should have corrected years ago. They admit their fault now, a little late.

Stamina and Speed

When you measure the old against the new, you run into deep trouble. In the matter of timing and inches, in the way of measurements, the years prove that the modern stars outclass most of those who belong to the past. They run faster—or at least just as fast. They jump higher or further. They keep breaking records.

Wherever you can use the stop watch or the measuring tape, the new years bring you new champions. But you can't measure baseball and football. You can't measure the days when Walsh and Johnson and Mathewson and Alexander pitched over 400 innings a seasonagainst the stars of today who pitch from 280 to 300 innings.

As we check back we find the eld-timers lead in stamina and fortitude-the new stars lead in speed and quick records. It may be that since the invention of the automobile, no one ever walks anymore and leg power is a missing factor. Something has happened to stamina. We have pretty fair runners from 100 to the 800 meters. Not much after that.
