Jess N. Sloan Victim in Auto Accident

Had Been Isosco County Road Engineer
For Past 24 Years

Jess N. Sloan, Isosco county road engineer and highly esteemed resident of this community died Monday night at Omer hospital following an automobile accident in the early afternoon of that day. Death was due to chest injuries received in the accident.

The accident occurred at the East Branch bridge on the National City-McIvor road. When approaching the bridge his car became out of control, hit the wing of the bridge and landed on the other side of the stream. After an emergency treatment was given at the office of Dr. H. R. Hess at East Tawas he was taken to Omer Hospital.

The deceased had served this county as road engineer and maintenance superintendent since 1926, nearly at the beginning of Isosco county's Good Road program, and a large portion of our county roads were built or rebuilt under his supervision. A graduate of the department of engineering, University of Kentucky, he came to Michigan about a year following his discharge from service as a soldier in World War I. While employed as construction inspector in Saginaw county he came to the attention of Hon. Fred C. Holbeck at that time chairman of the Isosco County Road Commission. Isosco county needed an engineer in its extensive road program and the commission secured his services for the position which he held and in which he was on duty when he met with accident Monday afternoon.

Jess Neal Sloan was born April 14, 1889, at Clayville, Kentucky. In 1935 he was married to Emma Bygden Anschuetz, a teacher in our public schools. Surviving are the widow, a foster son, James; two grandchildren; three brothers, George and William of Lexington, Kentucky, and Wessel of Knoxville, Tennessee, and two sisters, Ada and Elizabeth Sloan, also of Lexington.

Funeral services were held yesterday (Thursday) afternoon from Grace Lutheran Church, East Tawas. Rev. E. H. Peterson of Bay City officiated. Military rites were given under the auspices of Audie Johnson Post, American Legion, of which he had been a member. Interment was in the Legion cemetery.

The pall bearers were: Clyde Everil, Kenneth Alstrom, Edward Burgeson, Archie Ruckle, Leonard Gottleber and Arthur Dillon.

Woodruff Makes
Early Statement

"In order to reduce doubt in this year of uncertainty, I am announcing myself as a candidate in the primary to succeed myself as the Representative in Congress from the Tenth Michigan District," said Hon. Roy O. Woodruff in a statement this week. "Early as it is, I believe this statement will help to clear the issue of our times—whether we want to proceed down the road to socialism and ultimately communism or to restore the American way of life."

"My record over the last thirty years can leave no uncertainty as to where I stand on this vital issue as applied to each question this Nation faces."

Mrs. Krumm then entertained by singing "Dreaming," accompanied by Mrs. Russell Klenow at the piano. Mrs. Krumm has a charming manner and sweet voice and her talk was enjoyed by all.

Britt Loses Road Post; Goulette Named to Job

At a hearing Friday held before the Isosco county board of supervisors the office of Isosco county road commissioner held by Elmer Britt was declared vacant. Arthur Goulette was appointed to fill the unexpired term.

Britt is sojourning in Florida this winter, and it was the opinion of the supervisors that by absenting himself for a long period, he was not acting in the best interests of the county. Britt, although notified of the proceedings, did not appear at the hearing, and remained silent on his part.

At a session of the road commission following the action of the board, Porter Sabin was named chairman. Britt, senior member of the road commission, had been chairman.

A veteran of more than half a century of commercial fishing in Saginaw bay and Lake Huron waters has retired.

With fishing poor, the market bad, and his equipment deteriorating, 69-year old Robert Mattison has closed up shop and gone home to guard his failing health.

Dissolution of his firm, Mattison Fish Co., 604 Martin street, was announced recently by Michigan Corporation and Securities commission.

It was a family corporation, but his son, Ralph, is now in another business, manufacture and installation of marine radar equipment.

The elder Mattison is taking it easy these days at the large white house on Leng street and reflecting on the glorious days when Saginaw Bay was one of the greatest fishing grounds in the nation.

One of his most vivid memories is the peak of production reached there in the early 1930's. Mattison and his competitors took more than

Elks Lose to East Tawas in Thrilling Game

Mio High School to Play Tawas City at Gymnasium Tonight

The Tawas City Elks lost another close game this week when the East Tawas eked out a 52 to 51 thriller over them at the local auditorium. Last week only one field goal separated Oscoda and Tawas City, with Oscoda the winner.

It looked as though Tawas City would make a clean-sweep over the Indians, when the reserves won 24 to 23 and the Tawas City girls won 32 to 24.

The Indians were off to a good start in the first quarter when they held a 15 to 10 lead over the Elks. They hooped 14 more points in the second stanza to make the score 29 to 21 at the half.

In the third quarter the Indians started to pile up a lead when they made 14 points to the Elks 11.

With the Indians leading 43 to 32 at the beginning of the last quarter, the Elks finally found themselves, scoring 19 points to East Tawas' nine, and with about three minutes left to play the Tawas City team took a two point lead, which was short lived when Bill Ludwig took the ball off the backboard for the Indians and flipped it to John Bolen, who was breaking down court, for two points. This was the basket that spelled defeat for the Elks as they were never able to gain possession of the ball again.

Top men in the scoring column were Bruce Myles with 15 points for Tawas City and Tom Tate, with 19 for East Tawas. Barry McGuire was next with 12 points and Bill Ludwig second with 10 for East Tawas.

The Indians, current leaders in the Huron Shore League, have made a clean sweep over the Elks this season, with their victory Friday night. They topped the Elks a few weeks ago 51 to 41.

Tonight (Friday) the Elks will meet Mio at the local auditorium, while the Indians will battle it out with the Bay City Business College on their home hardwood.

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS

Truman Announces U.S. Will Add Hydrogen Bomb to Arms Program; Major Housing Plan Is Envisioned

(EDITOR'S NOTE: When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of Western Newspaper Union's news analysis and not necessarily of this newspaper.)

H-BOMBS:

Time of Decision

One of the most important decisions in world history had been put up to Harry S. Truman. Should he order construction of the hydrogen bomb?

When, after a respectable period of deliberation, he did make up his mind, the President expressed his decision in the most matter-of-fact manner possible!

The U. S. would continue its development and production of all types of military weapons, including atomic armaments and the so-called hydrogen bomb. That statement, probably intentionally cryptic, may or may not have meant that the U. S. already has begun work on the H-bomb.

Only one thing was sure—it was a terribly important decision, not only to Mr. Truman but to every person in the world.

IT WASN'T the cost of the bomb that was a poser, even though that was expected to be in the neighborhood of four billion dollars. It wasn't a doubt as to whether it could be made, for science declared it could. It wasn't a hesitancy about its effect, for if an enemy decided to, and could, construct the bomb, any experiments on the part of the U. S. to make and test it would be justified.

No, it was none of these that aggravated the responsibility and the solemnity of the decision. Instead, it was the question of life and death involved and even more terrible, if purely speculative, question; Might not man be unleashing a force which would destroy all mankind?

THE PREPONDERANCE of persuasion was by those advocating the bomb. Sen Millard Tydings (D., Md.) chairman of the armed services committee gave voice to what the majority of presidential advisers was thinking.

He urged that the U. S. proceed with manufacture of the bomb, declaring that failure to do so could invite attack. But President Truman was probably thinking of the horrible and utter devastation, the incalculable deaths, the vast destruction which would be hurled upon enemy and innocent alike.

BROTHERHOOD:

Renewed Effort

Brotherhood Week, sponsored by the National Conference of Christians and Jews, will be observed from February 19-26, marking the annual observance of an event that has grown into national significance.

In accepting the honorary chairmanship of Brotherhood Week, President Truman urged "all Americans to ponder well the true meaning of brotherhood" adding that "there probably has never been a time in history when true brotherhood was so indispensable to the welfare of our own nation and to the peace and freedom of the entire world."

ing of brotherhood" adding that "there probably has never been a time in history when true brotherhood was so indispensable to the welfare of our own nation and to the peace and freedom of the entire world."

IN A SIMILAR VEIN, former Secretary of the Navy John L. Sullivan, named general chairman of the national observance, interpreted this year's event. "The big question today is whether the human spirit will remain free or whether it is to be enslaved by totalitarianism," Sullivan declared. "The dignity of man is on trial throughout the world," he continued, "and the fate of our civilization may well depend upon the outcome. It will survive only if the ideal of man's inalienable rights is acknowledged, respected and strengthened."

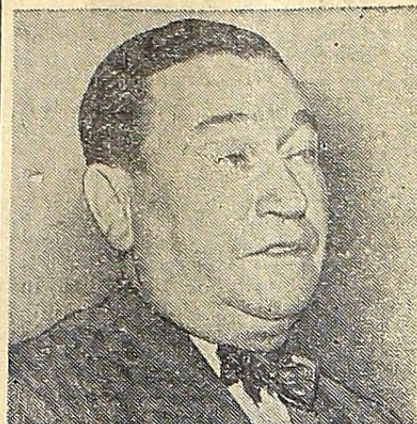

First established in 1934 by the National Conference of Christians and Jews, Brotherhood Week has been celebrated each year during the week of George Washington's birthday as a special period when the people of all faiths in the United States are invited to consider together the need and implications of good will among Protestants, Catholics and Jews.

IN 1934, some 300 communities across the United States participated in Brotherhood Week events; in 1942 there were 800 communities.

In 1944 the number spiraled to 2,000. The figure today is impossible to estimate, according to Sullivan, so widespread is the desire of Americans of all faiths to demonstrate their loyalty to the basic ideals of respect for people and human rights which are essential to our way of life.

As observed with growing community participation each year, Brotherhood Week dramatizes the practical things which people can do to promote understanding and realization of time-honored American principles.

Steel Defender

Benjamin Fairless, president of U. S. steel, testified before a joint congressional economic committee in defense of the recent increases in the price of steel. He called the rise "modest," laid the blame largely on union pensions.

HOUSING:

$8,000 Units

Could the American individual in search of a new home afford to pay $8,000 for it? Federal housing officials believe that to be a fair figure and Raymond M. Foley, housing administrator, explained to the house banking committee a bill for federal housing aid based on that premise.

FOLEY STATED that the administration is considering construction, through cooperatives and other non-profit organizations, of some 250,000 housing units on an average cost of $8,000 each.

The homes envisioned in the program would be for families with annual cash incomes of $2,800 and $4,000. One third of the urban families of the nation had incomes within that "middle-income" range in 1948.

The endeavor, even in the eyes of the severest critics, appeared laudable, but with the cost of living as it is and high income taxes for families without above-average exemptions, would still put the $8,000 home out of reach of many.

AS AN INSTANCE of that supposition, Foley said average monthly payments would be about $69. That's $828 a year. Add a $1,000 food, meat and milk bill, and the total outlay for the new home owner is $1,828. This would leave the $2,800 a year man $972. Taking average figures, utilities, health costs, insurance, clothing, transportation (there would be nothing with which to pay for a car) recreation and incidentals would amount to about $516. This would leave some $400, or less than $40 a month with which to meet emergencies or other needs.

So, it is easily apparent that the $8,000 house, the $69 monthly payment and a cost-of-living items would run the $2,800-a-year man so close to the edge, that he'd hardly have anything left for a pack of butts each week.

HOMELESS:

Break for DP's

An easement of the present law which limits entry of displaced persons into the United States to 205,000 in the two-year period ending June 30, this year, has been approved by the Senate judiciary committee.

THAT GROUP voted to permit 320,000 homeless foreigners to enter this country by June 30, 1951. This includes the approximately 124,000 who already have entered.

The committee voted by 10 to 3 to approve a bill which would make other changes in the present DP law which President Truman has urged.

For example, it would shift the date by which displaced persons must have entered European DP camps to be eligible for entry into this country. The present law fixed the date for December, 1945. The bill which the committee approved would change that to January 1, 1949.

THE ACTION came on the eve of the date which the senate had ordered the committee to report out a DP bill.

The house bill has been approved by the committee over the protests of Chairman McCarran (D., Nev.), who was in Europe at the time. After a heated floor fight, the senate sent the measure back to committee.

DRAFT LAW:

Bickering Starts

Atomic stockpiles . . . hydrogen bombs . . . billions for defense . . . incredible speed in the air . . . all these added up to a readily apparent conception that U.S. policy is committed to a course which believed that he is "best defended who is best armed."

The question was: Would the compulsory military service system be retained? The question of manpower remained an intangible factor,

LABOR:

Cry of 'Foul'

Labor is never so vocal as when it feels its own particular rights and privileges are being stepped on. This was evidenced by the cries emanating from Miami Beach, Fla., where angry AFL leaders charged that Robert N. Denham, general counsel of the national labor relations board, was campaigning to apply the anti-trust laws to big labor unions.

IT ALWAYS has been puzzling to the average American why labor itself is not subject to some governmental control—such as business and industry encounter in their operations. The average American's sense of fair play—were no other factors involved—would cause him to puzzle over that.

Denham catapulted himself into the AFL's bad graces in a speech before the American Trucking association. In that address, he singled out the AFL teamsters union with which the truckers do business. He said the teamsters have a tremendous "potential power" to paralyze the country with simultaneous trucking strikes over the nation.

DAN TOBIN, president of the teamsters, and William Green, AFL president, contended that Denham's views were unfounded and pointed out that the teamsters have had no "serious strikes for several years" and none now of which they were "aware."

The AFL council charged Denham has stamped himself by his speeches as the "antagonist of organized labor and the protagonist of the employers."

Then they advocated he be thrown out of his job, particularly because he suggested "certain labor unions are monopolistic."

Words oftentimes are convenient things: one can become all things to all men, as viewpoint or strategy directs.

DEFENSE:

A Contradiction

A slight confusion seemed to be the chief thing which could be read into the first annual report by Defense Secretary Louis Johnson on the activities and findings of his department.

WITH one breath, Secretary Johnson warned that an attack on this country "could come from the opposite hemisphere without warning and with unpredictable fury." In the next, he expressed belief that the prospect of war is diminishing despite the Russian attitude of belligerence.

Other than its further identification of America's first potential enemy, the secretary's report held little of excitement or import. It was encouraging to find that he was convinced that the military strength of the U. S. is a major deterrent in the start of a shooting war by any other nation. That conclusion would come as a comforting confirmation of the belief of many millions of Americans that a policy of armed strength at home is the best assurance against threats from abroad.

AFTER REPORTING on expenses of his department, military-diplomatic activities, and other functions, the defense secretary declared his belief that while he did not discount the damage done to unification of the armed services by the interservice controversies, he believes "that the extent of these conflicts has been exaggerated."

He also reported, parenthetically as it were, that Russia now has the secret of the atom bomb a fact with which everyone in the U. S. is all too familiar for any degree of comfort.

New Post

Maj. Gen. Gordon P. Saville, often called the "father of radar," has been named deputy chief of staff to hear the air force's new research and development command, a staff section charged with long range planning for military aircraft of the future.

Life Expectancy

Perhaps it's indicative, perhaps it isn't—but, for whatever it's worth in life expectancy computation, it's a fact that the United States has more than 3,000 people who are more than 100 years old.

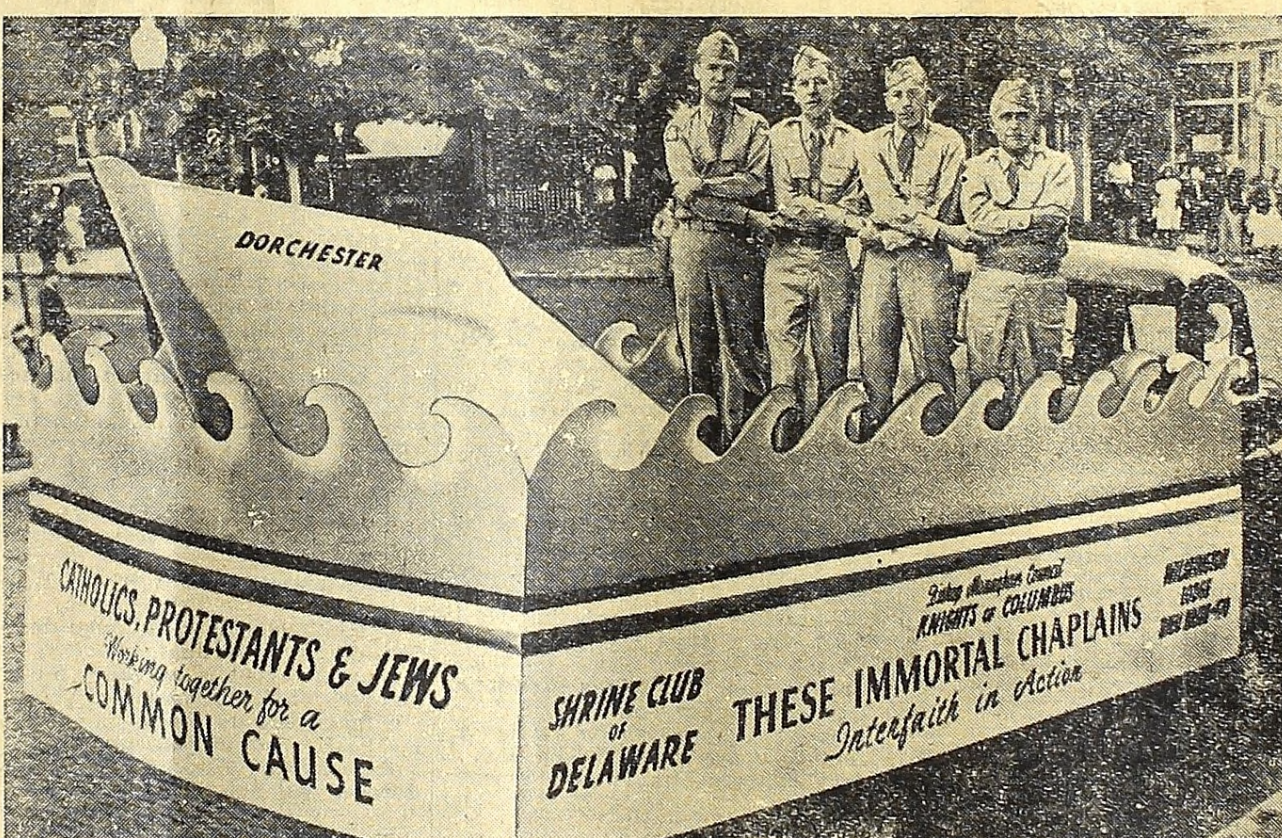

It wasn't too many years ago that life insurance companies on their annuity tables had everybody dead at 96. In other words, that was the extreme age at which anyone was supposed to be around.

DEFENSE SECRETARY JOHNSON ASKS DRAFT ACT EXTENSION . . . Defense Secretary Louis Johnson (left) confers with Maj. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, director of the selective service system, and Army Secretary Gordon Gray. Johnson appeared before the house armed services committee recently and asked Congress to extend the draft act for three years. He said President Truman recommends that selective service be continued until July 1, 1953, even though the draft is not being used. He said the peacetime draft was a "thunderous shock to the men in the politburo."

"THIS IS WHAT WE ARE TALKING ABOUT" . . . That was the yell of miners as they held up a lump of coal at the United Mine Workers' rank and file meeting attended by 3,000 in the Moose hall, Brownsville, Pa., recently. Shouts were for a "five-day week" and a contract, and members jeered union officials who urged them to return to work. Head man John L. Lewis had given the order to the men to go back to work on the three-day basis. The rebellious miners' total strike caused many industrialists to ask Truman to invoke the Taft-Hartley law against the union.

PARADE FLOAT HONORS IMMORTAL CHAPLAINS . . . This float, representing the ill-fated army transport, Dorchester, and her four heroic chaplains who died together when the ship was sunk during the war, appeared in a brotherhood parade at Wilmington, Del. A newly-organized group known as Inter-faiths, Inc., staged the parade which was witnessed by 20,000 persons. The float was sponsored by Shrine club of Delaware, Bishop Monaghan Council of Knights of Columbus and the Wilmington lodge, B'nai B'rith. Brotherhood week, February 19-26, has been observed every year since 1934. It was set aside by the National Conference of Christians and Jews for people of all faiths to practice brotherhood.

BUZES CONTINENT IN RECORD TIME . . . Famed speed pilot, Paul Mantz, waves and good-humoredly displays his stop watch as he arrives at Idlewild airport in New York city after succeeding in setting a new unofficial transcontinental record for conventional, piston-driven planes. The speed pilot flew from California to New York in a time reported as 4 hours, 53 minutes and 17 seconds. If Mantz's claim that he has broken the existing record of 5 hours and 5 seconds is sustained, he will have regained the speed title for transcontinental flying. Mantz is a veteran air racer and speed-distance contender. He also is an aerial stunt man.

MIRROR Of Your MIND

No Science
Of Marriage

By Lawrence Gould

Is there a science of marriage?

Answer: No, says Dr. Arthur N. Foxe in the Psychiatric Quarterly Supplement. But there is an "art of marrying" which is different from and more important than the art of getting married. This involves choosing a wife or husband, not on a purely "romantic" basis — since the romance that comes before marriage is less realistic than that which develops later—but because you know the person of your choice has a background, character, and "goals" that harmonize with yours. A psychiatrist who knows this art can teach it to his patients.

suit of his goal, the genius is apt to be ruthless, and particularly if he is an artist, the goal itself may take no account of moral values. Apart from such fields as medical research, if the genius is a useful citizen, it is by accident or indirection.

Do stimulants increase your capacity for effort?

Answer: No, say two Danish investigators, E. Asmussen and O. Boje, after studying the effects of drugs employed in "doping" athletes. Men not suffering from fatigue were tested with alcohol, caffeine, cocaine, strychnine, and nitroglycerin on a bicycle "ergometer" in exertions equivalent to various races from a 100-meter dash to a 1000-meter grind. None of the "stimulants" produced any visible increase in the men's strength or endurance except for a slight gain in endurance in the longer races from doses of caffeine.

Is a genius always a good citizen?

Answer: By no means. I have yet to see a definition—and still less an explanation—of a genius that entirely satisfies me, but roughly he (or she) is someone who combines rare ability in some special field with an overwhelming and almost "compulsive" drive to exercise it. In the pur-

New Treatment of Bronchial Asthma

By Dr. James W. Barton

FOR MANY YEARS the treatment for an attack of asthma had been the injection of 10 to 15 minims (drops) of adrenalin (epinephrine) under the skin. Lately we have been hearing and reading about the satisfactory results obtained in both asthma and hay fever by the use of the drug benadryl, of which I have written several times.

As most of us are aware, it is the histamine in the body that causes us to be sensitive or allergic to various substances such as food, feathers, furs, pollen of plants and house dust. For this reason, research physicians have been using newly discovered antihistaminic preparations to overcome the histamine in the system. Among these antihistaminics is benadryl.

In "The Southern Medical Journal," Dr. L. L. Friedman reports that acute attacks of bronchial asthma were easily stopped, reduced in frequency and severity or prevented entirely by aerosol benadryl administered by means of a hand bulb nebulizer. Each aerosol treatment consisted of 10 to 15 drops benadryl solution (steri-Benadryl).

The 12 patients studied ranged in age from four to 43 years. Nine patients had previously been treated with systemically administered antihistaminics and in seven cases treatment had failed.

The other two patients had obtained decided relief from both aerosol and benadryl taken by mouth. These patients, including one who had suffered from asthma for 25 years, had had no previous antihistaminic treatment.

All of the 12 patients benefited from treatment with nebulized benadryl aerosol. Acute attacks of asthma were stopped with as little as seven to eight minims of the aerosol. Treatment by this method either prevented attacks of asthma entirely or lengthened the time between attacks. When attacks did occur, they were milder.

The attack is usually stopped within 10 minutes, and difficult breathing and wheezing promptly stopped.

HOUSEHOLD MEMOS by Lynn Chambers

Youngsters Should Have An Opportunity to Cook, Learn About Food Items

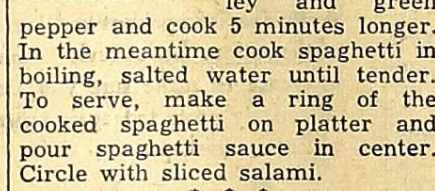

MOTHERS who give their children a chance to work in the kitchen with actual foods as they're supposed to be served contribute highly to bringing up good and helpful adults. Theirs aren't the daughters who are all thumbs when it comes to preparing their first meal after marriage, nor are their sons inept at tossing together a salad to help out a new bride!

Most youngsters actually like cooking, and during growing years can be really helpful to mother, if they're given the opportunity to learn. It's a smart idea to plan an occasional simple menu which the teen-agers in the family can take over completely. Start out by having them prepare one and two dishes on the menu, and it won't be long before they're saying, "Move over, Mother, we'll take dinner preparation off your hands."

SPAGHETTI is a favorite dish for teen-agers to prepare. Here's one made with salami that needs only a tossed green salad and fresh or canned fruit to complete the menu.

- Quick Italian Spaghetti (Serves 6-8)
- 1/2 pound salami
  - Lard or drippings for browning
  - 1 cup onions, chopped
  - 1 cup fresh mushrooms, sliced
  - 1 tablespoon flour
  - 1 1/2 cups tomato juice
  - 1 cup water
  - 1 1/2 teaspoons worcestershire sauce
  - 1/2 teaspoon salt
  - 1/2 teaspoon pepper
  - 2 tablespoons parsley, minced
  - 1/4 green pepper, chopped
  - 6-8 ounces uncooked spaghetti

Brown onions and mushrooms lightly in drippings. Cut 1/2 of salami into 8 thin slices and grind or chop other half. Blend into the onion mixture the chopped salami and flour. Add tomato juice, diluted with water and seasonings. Simmer 25 minutes. Add parsley and green pepper and cook 5 minutes longer. In the meantime cook spaghetti in boiling, salted water until tender. To serve, make a ring of the cooked spaghetti on platter and pour spaghetti sauce in center. Circle with sliced salami.

MEAT LOAF lends itself easily to preparation by novices in the kitchen. Here's one made mainly with ham and fortified with other meat and bread.

- *Ham Loaf (Serves 10)
- 1 1/2 pounds ground ham shank
  - 1/2 pound ground beef, lamb or veal
  - 4 slices bread, flaked
  - 2 eggs

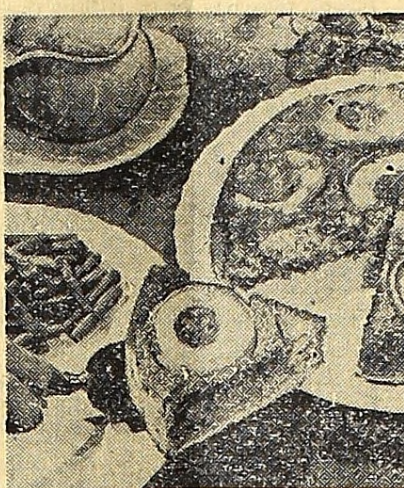

If daughter likes to try her hand at glamorous but failure-proof desserts, this sunshine peach pie is just her ticket. There's no trouble about a tender crust when sugar-honey graham crackers are blended with butter and sugar. Canned cling peaches go into the light chiffon filling as well as on top.

LYNN SAYS: Use These Tricks For Food Preparation

When recipes call for seasoned flour to dredge meat or fish, use the following proportions: 1 cup flour, 1 tablespoon salt and 1/4 teaspoon pepper.

To make butter balls, scald and chill a pair of wooden butter paddles in ice water. Drop butter in seeping teaspoonfuls into iced water. When these are cold, roll each piece slightly between the chilled paddles.

Apple-sausage corn bread is a main dish which the whole family will appreciate, but it's easy enough for a beginner to prepare. The recipe is simple, the results impressive. Served with a green vegetable and a relish plate of carrot strips, celery, pickles and olives, then topped with a simple dessert, this main dish will give a well-balanced meal.

- LYNN CHAMBERS' MENU
- *Ham Loaf
  - Baked Squash with Buttered Green Peas
  - Cinnamon Apple Salad
  - Hot Rolls
  - *Sunshine Peach Pie Beverage

- *Recipe Given
- 2 cups milk
  - 1 medium sized onion, grated
  - 1/4 teaspoon salt
  - 1/4 teaspoon pepper

Combine ingredients in order given and pack into a greased loaf pan. Bake in a slow (300°) oven for 1 1/2 hours.

GIVE THE TEEN-AGERS desserts which are easy to prepare, but which look special when they're finished. Everyone likes to turn out desserts which are pretty as a picture.

- *Sunshine Peach Pie (Serves 6-8)

- Crumb Shell:
- 1 1/4 cups fine sugar-honey graham cracker crumbs
  - 2 tablespoons granulated sugar
  - 1/4 cup melted butter
- Filling:
- 2 eggs
  - 3/4 cup milk
  - 1/2 cup granulated sugar
  - 1/2 teaspoon salt
  - 1 tablespoon plain gelatin
  - 1/2 cup orange juice
  - 1 tablespoon grated orange rind
  - 1 tablespoon lemon juice
  - 2 cups canned cling peaches

To make shell, blend crumbs, sugar and butter and pack firmly into bottom and sides of nine-inch pie pan. Bake in a moderate (350°) oven for 10 minutes. Cool.

To make filling, separate eggs and beat yolks. Combine yolks, milk, 1/4 cup sugar and salt. Cook and stir over hot water until mixture coats the spoon. Remove from heat. Soften gelatin in orange juice, then dissolve in hot mixture. Add rind and lemon juice. Cool until the consistency of unbeaten egg white. Beat egg whites until stiff and gradually beat in remaining sugar. Fold into cooked mixture. Fold in peach slices, thoroughly drained, reserving a few for garnish. Pour into cooled shell. Top with remaining slices. Chill until firm.

- Banana-Apricot Fluff (Serves 6-8)
- 1 package orange-flavored gelatin
  - 1 cup hot water
  - 1/4 cup sugar
  - 1/4 teaspoon salt
  - 2 cups thinly sliced bananas (2 to 3 whole)
  - 1/2 cup apricot puree

Dissolve gelatin in hot water. Add sugar, salt and orange juice. Chill until cold and syrupy. Combine bananas and apricot puree; add to gelatin mixture. Beat with rotary beater until thick and fluffy like whipped cream. Chill and serve.

Fried foods should be well drained before serving so they are not excessively greasy. Use crumpled absorbent paper such as toweling arranged on a baking pan or a colander.

For shallow frying in a skillet, have at least 1 1/2 inches of melted fat or oil in the pan before placing the food in to cook.

Pan-broiling a cut of meat means that it is cooked in a skillet or frying pan without the use of extra fat. Make certain the pan is hot before placing in chops or steaks.

HEALTH NOTES

Tuberculosis after 40 is not a rarity today, and is much more common than is generally supposed.

Control of tuberculosis starts with finding people who are sick. It goes on by putting them in hospitals where they can be treated and where they cannot infect others.

While the ulcer patient may recover from an acute attack of peptic ulcer, there is always the chance that he will again have symptoms if he gets careless about his diet.

Research workers have been finding out that it is not just any irritation that causes cancer, but specific or special chemical and physical irritations

A cow exposed to any of these hazards is liable to suffer udder injury that leads to mastitis.

GREEN GRASS OF WYOMING
By Mary O'Hara

Through continued association with Carey, whom he finds wholly delightful, Ken learns how much she is dominated by her grandmother, Mrs. Palmer, who uses a feigned invalidism as a weapon to insure Carey's continued presence near her. Ken tells Carey how sorry he is that his stallion, Thunderhead, made off with Crown Jewel, and promises to get the filly back for her. A scene with her grandmother highlights the older woman's imperious attitude toward Carey. Mrs. Palmer frowns on Nell's suggestion that Carey might like to take rides about the ranch, pointing out that Carey's music practice is bound to conflict.

CHAPTER VI

Now the wind had dropped. Rob and Greenway, too, kept turning to look out the window. The lowest layer of clouds which had been grey were now crimson and edged with gold, and behind them were swirling depths of fiery color, changing in hue every minute.

"But the wind always drops at sunset," said Nell, "and then it rises again in the evening or during the night."

"Well—everything depends on the weather," Rob kept saying.

"I can imagine you are a fine weather prophet, Mr. McLaughlin," said Mrs. Palmer archly.

Rob glanced at her. "After all these years, I ought to be!"

"I wish I go could go along on the search," said Carey wistfully.

Nell answered, "At any rate, Carey, you must have some riding while you are here."

Mrs. Palmer's face lost its expression of affability. "She has no riding clothes with her."

"Oh, but we have plenty," said Nell. "That closet under the stairs is just full of old boots of all sizes and blue jeans and riding pants. She'll easily find something that fits her."

"I think," began Mrs. Palmer, "that with strange horses—" but Mr. Greenway interrupted.

"A swell idea! We'll ride together, Carey, you and I, while the rest of them go off on the horse-hunt. It'll be like being at the Blue Moon together, won't it?" He turned to Nell. "Carey and I ride together often."

"Carey rides very well," conceded Mrs. Palmer, "but her greatest talent is her music. She practices two hours every day."

Everyone at the table looked at Carey with new interest. This caused her no embarrassment.

"I see that you have a fine piano here. After dinner," said Mrs. Palmer, "Carey will play to you."

"Do you groom your own horse?" asked Howard.

Carey shook her head. Her grandmother, with a flash of her dictatorial spirit, answered for her, "I do not like her to be in the stables."

"Wouldn't do her a bit of harm," grumbled Greenway, "no use in wrapping a child up in cotton wool." "Carey is not strong," said Mrs. Palmer firmly.

"Oh, Grandma, I'm all right. I'm never sick."

As if amazed at this contradiction, Mrs. Palmer looked angrily at her granddaughter. Carey's cheeks were flushed, her eyes bright. She was looking, not at her grandmother but, eagerly, first at one of the boys, then at the other.

Mrs. Palmer began to cough violently. As the paroxysms continued, all conversation ceased and she became the center of attention. Rob offered her a glass of water. Carey half rose out of her chair and looked at her anxiously. "Is it your asthma, Grandma? Shall I get the medicine?"

Mrs. Palmer emerged from her napkin smiling, waving them back to their seats, apologizing. She made Ken feel uncomfortable. What was it that kept everybody fussing about her?

Ken Explains Hard Life of Wild Stallion

Nell suggested that Carey and Ken ride out to the highway with Howard and then walk back.

They got into the new Studebaker which was standing on the hill behind the house. Howard took the wheel, Carey and Ken sat in the back. Howard watched Carey in the little mirror over the windshield. She looked at him, now and then smiling. Ken noticed this and fell silent, sitting morosely in the corner. At the highway they got out and walked slowly back together.

"Oh, I love the wind!" cried Carey, spreading her arms wide and running before it. Ken grasped one of her hands and they ran down the road together.

A big jackrabbit leaped out of the brush, sailing on the wind with long jumps, and Carey stopped short. "Oh, look! I thought it was a deer!"

"Look over there," said Ken. She gave a scream of excitement. "What is it? Where? Is it Jewel?"

She shook her head and pointed. She saw the three deer then, feeding quietly by the stream and near them, a black colt grazing. Ken went to the barbed wire fence and whistled a soft, far-carrying trill. Deer and colt raised their heads, then the deer resumed feeding and, as Ken continued to whistle, the colt came to the fence.

"This is WhoDat," said Ken, stroking the colt's face.

Carey laughed at the name, and Ken told her how it had come to be given to the foal who, on the day of his birth, had lost his mother in a blizzard.

"It's a wonder we raised him, but he's a beauty. He's going to be our stud when he's old enough. He gets special feeding and care."

"But what about Banner?" asked Carey, who when she had first arrived at the ranch that afternoon, had been taken with her uncle by Rob to the pasture to see Banner and his mares and colts.

"Banner's getting old and tired," said Ken. "A strange stallion has tremendous responsibilities, you know. He has to care for the mares on the range, keep the band together, keep any other stallion away even at the risk of his life. He's got to protect them from wild animals and guide them to good food and shelter and water. Dad says it would take two or three cowboys, working day and night, to give the mares and colts as fine care as one good range stallion."

"I never knew stallions could do all that."

For a moment they were silent. Then Ken said abruptly, "I wish it was the beginning of the summer instead of the end."

"Why?"

When Ken stammered, "Well, d-d-don't you see, you're here now, and if it was the beginning of the summer you c-c-could stay and—" Carey caught embarrassment from him and ducked her head, her brown hair fell forward and Ken could see nothing of her eyes except the straight up-tilted brows and the full smooth lids and dark lashes.

A car whizzed past on the road. Ken looked after it. "That's Reuben Dale. I bet he's going up to talk to Dad about going after Jewel."

Carey jumped up. They did not want to miss any of the talk and planning. They hurried to the house.

Fourteen men were to go on the search. This included Ross Buckley, Gus and Wink and Tim could not be spared. Howard and Ken were to go, but had to be back at the ranch by September eleventh whether or not the search was successful, for they were to leave on the twelfth for school.

All evening, cars drove up to the ranch house. The living-room gradually filled with tall weather-beaten men in boots and spurs. Outside there was the blustering wind and the clashing of trees, and strange noises, like voices, around the chimneys. Inside was the crackling of logs in the stone fireplace and Rob's deep, harsh voice explaining and planning and an occasional word or short question from one of the men. They seemed to communicate with each other by monosyllables and glances and silence.

Carey Begins Worrying Over Fate of Jewel

Reuben Dale was there with two of his six strapping sons, all fine horsemen and clever with ropes.

Crosby had finished his hay and he and his two hired men would go. Others had been reached by relayed messages, the country grapevine, which, as effectually as the South African's mysterious method of disseminating news, had spread the knowledge of this interesting event over the countryside. And the men were glad to go. Work or no work, they would snatch at any excuse to get away from the monotony of their daily routine. The men preferred hard wood to soft cushions, sheering away from these almost in alarm, so when the supply of chairs gave out, they found seats on wood-box, piano bench, or tables, while the davenport was occupied by Mrs. Palmer and Nell with Carey between.

Rob was particularly pleased that he had got Milt Norcross to go on the search. Milt was an old man, but then, he always had been. He never shaved, and little of his face could be seen between the thatch above his eyes and the whiskers below.

A message came in over the telephone which created a stir. It was from Joe Daly. His boy, Buck, had been able to follow the trails of Thunderhead, Jewel, and Pete, through the Buttes. Then they had headed west, and only three miles away joined up with a band of eight other horses.

"Gosh!" exclaimed Ken, "he had his band of mares not three miles from where we were!"

Daly's boy said the band was moving west, straight toward the desert-like expanse of country south of Laramie. If they kept on, they would end up in the Snowy Range. They were moving slowly, grazing as they went. Also, near the Monument which commemorated the massacre of a troop of cavalry by the Shoshone Indians, he had found the filly's blanket coat, torn and filthy. Looked as if it had been ripped by the stallion's teeth.

Gus said thoughtfully, "There's no water in that country. Not till they get near the mountains. They'll have to start moving fast—unless snow comes. We shouldn't lose no time."

But Carey was thinking of something different. She started to get up. Her grandmother's hand pressed her knee. "Sit still, dear."

"I just want to ask Collins something," said Carey urgently, and her grandmother let her rise.

Carey sat down on the piano bench on the other side of Collins— young Georgie Dale, blushing scarlet, rising to make room for her. "Collins, will she catch cold? Jewel, I mean, without her blanket?"

Collins made one of his weary and discouraged gestures. "Gawd knows, Miss. She's wore her blanket half the trip out, hiner crate, hin the hexpress car. Now she's aht hin the wilds with nuthin hon!" He shook his head.

"Out in the wilds with nothing on," repeated Carey in a wondering murmur as this picture unfolded itself to her mental vision. And suddenly Jewel looked not like a filly but like a little naked, shivering girl.

Ken came over to them. "What's that you said, Collins? Do you think she'll catch cold?"

"She's never 'ad a cold hin 'er life, but wot's 'appenin' to 'er now runnin' abah with hall them wild beasts hin Greenland's hicy mountains, 'oo can sye?"

Beaver Plans Journey To Include Carey

Several of the men went out on the terrace to inspect the weather. Collins joined them and Ken sat down on the piano bench beside Carey.

"Ken!" called Rob. Ken woke out of a dream and leaped to his father. "Yes, sir!" Carey followed and stood behind him.

"Gus is going to pick up these fellows' nags at daybreak tomorrow and load them into the truck and drive them to the Monument. Howard will take the men in the station wagon. You'll take the saddles and equipment in the pickup. Set your alarm for three o'clock."

"Yes, sir."

"Oh, Ken!" Ken heard the soft whispred behind him and turned to look into Carey's face. "I wish girls could do things like that! I wish I could go along!"

Mr. Greenway heard the remark and turned to put his arm around Carey.

"You couldn't," said Ken, "not just one girl with a lot of men."

Greenway suddenly took Ken and Carey, one by each arm, and drew them away from the crowd. There was a larkly conspiratorial expression on his face that intrigued both of the youngsters. "Carey, how would you like to drive out with Ken in the pick-up to the Monument—then come back with Gus in the truck?"

"But that's just what I said, Uncle Beaver! I'm just dying to!" "Well, would you?"

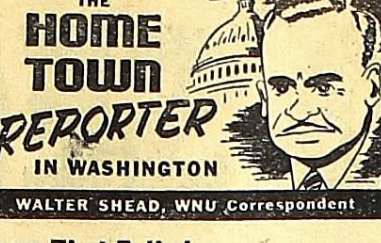

She drew her breath in and squeezed her hands together. Her mouth opened and closed soundlessly, her whole face was ecstatic.

"Okay! Then we'll fix it."

Carey found words, almost horrified words, "But Uncle Beaver! Grandma would never, never let me!"

Civil Rights Lost

There is every reason to believe that the civil rights program of President Truman will be lost in this congress. There is no effective weapon yet devised against the senate filibuster. But the rest of the Fair Deal program was also at stake and the President had everything to gain and nothing to lose, since the southerners are opposed to most of his program anyway.

Coup That Failed

WASHINGTON is still talking about the tense, dramatic battle in the house of representatives in which a southern Democratic - Republican coalition attempted to overturn the house rules committee, grab control of the entire Truman administration program and again set up a totalitarian dictatorship in which seven men at their own caprice could hold or withhold legislation from action by the other 428 members of that body.

The coup failed by a vote of 236 to 183, but only after President Truman himself had entered the fray throwing the weight of his entire administration into the battle to hold the lines against the coalition.

The southern delegations were pressured as never before by the Dixiecrats. They used all the intolerance engendered by the civil rights program. They played upon the desire of the Republican leadership to stop cold the Truman Fair Deal program. The administration sent out wires, phone calls, used every pressure to bring back house members who were absent.

The tip-off came when a Republican motion to adjourn was defeated. It would have delayed a vote until over the week-end. Then with a packed gallery and a house quiet with tenseness the vote came. The Republican leadership could not hold many GOP congressmen in line, particularly in the New England states. Truman won. Here's the background of this fight which may have far reaching effects on this congress. It could cause a long session or failure of this session to accomplish anything for the nation.

Powerful Group

For many years the rules committee of the house was the most powerful in that body. It still is. It acts as sort of a traffic cop for legislation. It has 12 members—eight Democrats and four Republicans. In the 80th congress it had eight Republicans and four Democrats. Under house procedure all bills considered by other committees go to the rules committee for handing down for action.

Under the old procedure the committee could hold these bills indefinitely. Only a petition signed by a majority of the house membership could pry loose a bill.

At the last session of the 81st congress when this same group of men tried to take over control of the committee from its chairman, Congressman Adolph J. Sabath of Illinois the house voted overwhelmingly to clip the power of the committee and place a maximum of 21 days on the time the committee could hold a bill. After that time, the chairman of any other committee could call down a bill from the rules committee for house action.

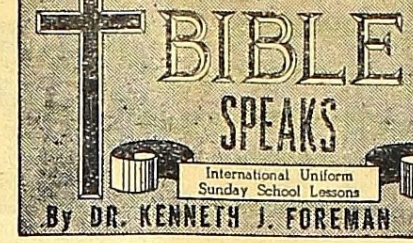

Chose Their Time

The rebel leadership on the committee, headed by Congressman Eugene Cox of Georgia, picked a time three days before the controversial Fair Employment Practices bill was due for handing down.

He corralled two other southerners, Congressmen Howard J. Smith of Virginia and William M. Colmer of Mississippi, and had little difficulty in persuading the four Republican members to join them in a coalition taking operation of the committee out of the hands of its chairman.

Seeking to beat the deadline on the FEPC bill, they went to the house floor with a majority motion of their committee asking the old dictatorial power of the committee be invoked once again. It meant the death of all civil rights legislation and even of all the Fair Deal legislation to which the seven men were opposed.

Republicans joining in the coalition bloc were the GOP ranking member, Leo E. Allen of Illinois, chairman of the committee in the 80th congress; Clarence J. Brown of Ohio; James W. Wadsworth of New York and Christian Herter of Massachusetts. They prevailed upon the house GOP Leader Joe Martin, former speaker, and Charles Halleck, former GOP floor leader, to go along.

Fight for Freedom

Lesson for February 19, 1950.

THERE ARE TWO KINDS of problems with living things. One is the kind of problem caused by its growing too fast; the other is the problem caused by not growing fast enough. The early church had mostly the first kind of problem, at any rate it was taking in a lot of members whom the older Christians found strange. At first all Christians had been Jews; no one thought of anything else. But in Antioch, as we have seen, and even more as the church spread westward around the edge of the Mediterranean, the Christian churches were filling up with non-Jewish members, just as they are today.

It is no secret that in the Masonic order there are 33 degrees. It is not possible for a new member to be taken right into the 33rd degree the first night. Everybody has to go through the lower degrees which are called the Blue Lodge. Now many persons in that early church thought of the Jewish faith as a sort of Christian Blue Lodge.

All the very earliest Christians had been members of that lodge; why shouldn't every one else be the same? So when Paul and Barnabas came back from that historic missionary tour of Cyprus and points north, telling about the large number of new Christians, these old-style Christians shook their heads.

Paul was by-passing the Blue Lodge; he was taking in members who had not gone through the proper preliminaries, the first degrees.

What Makes a Man a Christian?

PAUL KNEW a real Christian when he saw one. So did Barnabas. And the two of them knew, right down in their souls, that they had seen real conversions, genuine cases of persons coming out of pagan darkness into Christian light, without being Jews at all, even for five seconds.

The vital question was simply this: What makes a Christian? The old-style Christians, who had been Jews themselves and still were, for all their Christian faith, said: Unless you are circumcised and keep all the laws of Moses, you cannot be saved—you cannot even begin to be a Christian. Paul and Barnabas—not alone, but as spokesmen for many others in the church—said: You are saved by faith.

The Jerusalem Christian said: Yes, you are saved by faith, AND by keeping the law of Moses. Paul said: you are saved by faith, period.

How They Settled It

THE WAY that problem was settled is a model for all Christian churches with problems on their hands. First of all, the argument was brought out into the open; it was not a whispering campaign. Second, it was settled after giving both sides plenty of opportunity for full discussion in public. Third, it was settled not informally but by a church council, a group of representative leaders, not by a simple majority vote of all church members indiscriminately. Fourth, it was settled (as the reader of Acts 15 may see) by appeals to fact and to Scripture.

Finally, once the leaders had made up their minds, the church at large accepted their decision promptly, without further bickering. This has been the pattern for the Christian church ever since, though alas! it has not always been followed.

There would have been fewer church splits if the example of the early church had been more seriously taken.

Faith and Obedience

ESSENTIALLY, that first great church council decided on the side of Paul and Barnabas. But they did not throw the Old Testament overboard. The moral law was as good as it ever was. But the council showed, once and for all, the true relations between Christian faith and obedience to the law of God.

There is just one doorway to the Father's house, the doorway of faith. We do not have to keep the law of Moses, or any set of laws, first. We are saved BY obedience.

We are not saved FROM obedience. But we are saved FOR obedience. A Christian's obedience to God is not a way of earning God's good-will. It is a grateful response to God's grace. And that makes all the difference in the world.

Hardly at All

After being badgered and tongue-lashed by the plaintiff's lawyer for a good fifty minutes, the man on the witness stand, who was defending himself against charges of assault and battery, still insisted that he did no more than push the plaintiff.

"I want to know just how hard you pushed him," demanded the lawyer. "Will you please step down and demonstrate on me the sort of push you gave my client?"

The defendant jumped down with alacrity. He headed straight for his tormentor, jarred him with a stiff left hook, lifted him a foot off the ground with a terrific uppercut, grabbed him before he could fall, and tossed him half-way across the room. He then turned to the judge and explained, "I pushed the plaintiff just about one-tenth as hard as that, Your Honor."

Cairo Typist Seeks World Championship As Heaviest Eater

CAIRO. — Mohammed, the "muncher" is out for a world's title—he would like to be the champion eater of the entire hemisphere.

His full name is Mohammed Riad, an Egyptian typist, who is now down to an eating weight of 225 pounds.

In competitive eating, to vie for the world's singles, two-handed eating title, the contestant must include hardboiled eggs. However, they may be shelled first, the rules say.

According to the best information on the subject, the present world record for hardboiled egg consumption is held by an American who put away 60 eggs in 30 minutes.

So far Mohammed's single weakness—hunger—has kept the title just a few dozen eggs out of his reach.

He made a title attempt only a few weeks ago. But listen to Riad's sad story:

"While I was waiting for the judges to arrive, I went to wash my hands and found a large piece of chocolate in my pocket. One of my fans had put it there and I could not resist it.

"Believe me, this was the cause of my failure. Also, I ate a large bowl of pea soup before the contest. This was a mistake, too.

"I am ashamed to say I ate only 43 eggs and drank two bottles of soft drinks in 23 minutes."

One of the hazards of the sport, a sharp pain in the region of the stomach, put him out of play at that juncture. He turned pea green and bolted from the room.

"Now I am training for a new championship attempt," Riad said, "I absolutely will eat 100 eggs for a sensational new record. My honor is at stake.

"Also, I am thinking about changing my technique. Do you think I made a mistake in dipping each egg into red pepper dipping?"

This Is Novel Joke Twist In Radio Give-Away History

YOUNGSTOWN, OHIO. — There is a new trend in "practical joking" that's giving radio give-away programs a bad jolt.

A local housewife reported that she received a phone call purportedly from a radio station. An unidentified voice offered her $100 for the best suggestion on "how to tame your wife." She said she quickly replied, "Why, spanking, of course."

The voice then repeated the promise of $100 if she would have her husband spank her loud enough to be heard over the phone. Eager to win the $100, she called in a neighbor to administer the spanking because her husband wasn't home.

When the spanked housewife called the radio station to arrange to collect the $100 prize, she was told the whole thing must have been a hoax, as the station hadn't offered any such prize.

Sicilian Takes Big Fortune From Salt Water Annually

TRAPANI, SICILY.—Many are the schemes and dreams of taking treasure out of the sea—but there is one man who is making the ocean provide him with a fortune.

He is Rocco Ricevuto, owner and manager of the Trapani salt marshes from which he is taking about one million dollars a year. The marshes yield about 200,000 tons of salt annually for which Ricevuto receives an average of $5 a ton.

Water from the salt-laden Mediterranean is pumped into drying basins where the hot Italian sun evaporates the water and leaves the salt in a growing pile.

In 1943 fleeing Germans destroyed all the plants in the salt marshes "because they could have been of use to the American troops." Ricevuto said he still wonders how the Americans could have used the salt marsh plants for war purposes.

"Destruction was carefully planned and faithfully carried out," Ricevuto said. "When I came back after the Nazi-Fascists evacuated Trapani, I found that nothing remained of the plants my father had built with loving care through 50 years of hard work.

"For a year I came here every morning, and studied how much of the rubble could be salvaged.

"One day, that was in 1944, I decided that I must do something to make the plants work again. We always had a group of more than 500 men working in the salt marshes. I called them to a big meeting in the place where the old silos were built and asked them to help me out.

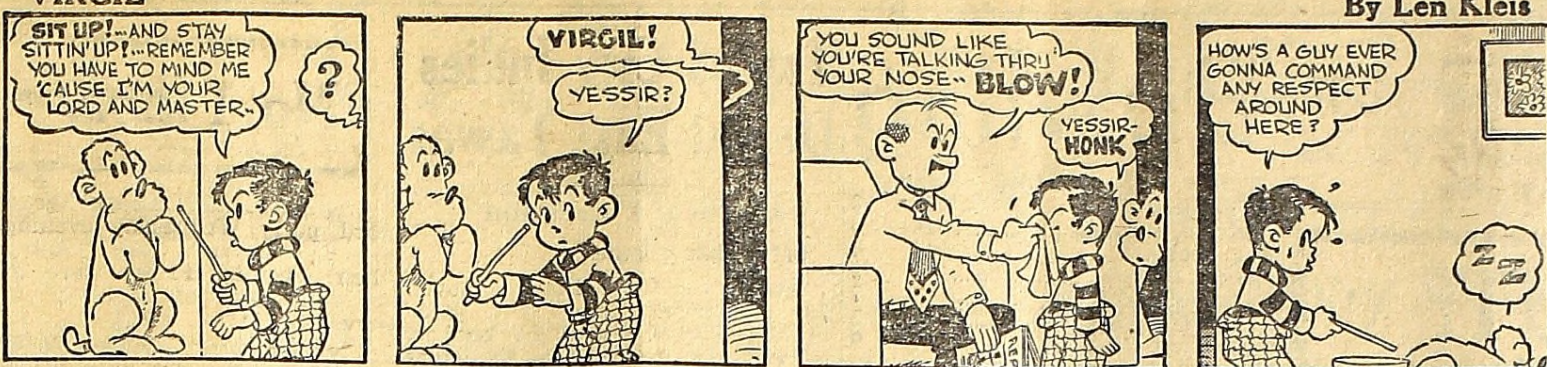

"In two years I got my plants running again.

"Little by little we recovered our business. Ships come here now at an average of one every week or two loading salt for eastern and northern countries.

"Trapani's salt is good for industrial use, so Norwegians and Japanese come here to buy it.

"After years of loading the ships by hand, with men carrying the heavy baskets of salt on their shoulders, I now have my new chain system rolling again."
