To Present "Jack Pine Julips" at Oscoda

The Oscoda-AuSable Chamber of Commerce will present "Jack Pine Julips" at eight o'clock on February 25th at the Oscoda High School gymnasium. For the past two months the cast of 60 people has been rehearsing under the co-directionship of Ed. Johnson and Burdge Ashton. In addition to the cast, another 18 people are serving as stage hands, properties, personnel and in costuming. The show promises to be an outstanding production with a running time of two hours. It will be presented in the manner of a minstrel show and will be headlined by Earl Siglow, W. S. Osborne, Ralph Limbach, Dick Carmichael, Tom McGinnis and Rev. B. R. McNally as emcees.

There will be, in all, 16 specialty numbers consisting of singers, dancers and instrumentalists. In addition, the show has its own orchestra and chorus, all of which should add up to an evening of extraordinary entertainment.

As a result of many requests, and by special arrangement with the directors, those people who are unable to attend the regular performance on February 25 will be admitted to the dress rehearsal on Friday, February 24, at eight o'clock. Admissions for this performance will be the same as the Saturday night performance.

Knight Templars Honor Wm. Parker

Given Life Membership At Banquet Friday

At a banquet Friday evening at Flint in his honor, William H. Parker of East Tawas, Past Grand Master of Michigan Masons, was presented with a life membership in Genesee Valley Commandery, Knights Templar.

The ceremony was not only in recognition of his long time membership in Knights Templars, but also his distinguished service in Michigan Masonry. Parker is one of Michigan's most prominent Masons.

Bell May Extend Phone Service Into Grant

Representatives of the Michigan Bell Telephone Company told residents of Grant Townships they would put telephones into the homes of people in Grant Township who requested it providing they were successful in obtaining the franchise from the Michigan Public Service Commission.

E. R. Williams, District Commercial Superintendent of the Michigan Bell Telephone Company said that any company that would have to consider the concentration of phones and the dependability of users to continue the service. For this reason they had to consider the prosperity of the community, he said. If a farmer can make a good living on their farm they are sure he will have a phone, but if the farm is poor and it does not pay they are equally sure they will not be users for long. He said, after seeing the good concentration of prosperous farms, he was confident that it would be good business for his company to be servicing the Grant community.

He explained that it takes time, materials and money to complete their expansion program, but this new area could be served in 1951. Harold R. Clark, County Agricultural Agent, expressed his concern over the seriousness of the lack of communications in the event of emergencies. He stated that it is a matter of health and safety as well as convenience to have some phones in the community.

T. C. Mahar, Area Manager and L. J. Scratch, Division Commercial Engineer of the Michigan Bell Telephone Co., assisted Mr. Williams in the study and presentation.

The Tawas City Business Men Association will meet at the Legion Hall at 8:00 P. M. Tuesday, February 28.

Elks Add Two More Victories To Win Column

High School Tangles With Harrisville at Gymnasium Tonight

The 1949-50 basketball season is slowly fading away and the Tawas City Elks added two more victories to their win column, Mio Friday night, 54 to 32 and Pinconning Wednesday night, 72 to 44. These wins bring their season total to nine wins and seven losses. Tonight the Elks will write finis to the season, tangling with Harrisville at the auditorium.

The "Defibaughmen" had little trouble in their win over Mio, after a slow start in the first half. Both teams were tied with seven apiece in the first quarter, and the Elks took a four point lead at the half by virtue of a 15 to 11 count in the second stanza.

In the third quarter, Jerry Gracik cut loose for 10 points, while his mates came up with ten more, for a total of 20 points, while Mio had seven in the third quarter and seven in the last. The Elks whipped up 12 more points in the last quarter.

Jerry Gracik hit the hoop for a total of 23 points, to lead in the scoring department while Jones led Mio with 12.

Gracik was still "hot" Wednesday night when he slapped the boards for 24 points against Piny. McGuire was next with 16 and Bruce Myles had 15.

The Elks scored 19 points in each of the first three quarters and 15 in the final frame, while Pinconning had quarter scores of 15-7-10 and 12.

The Reserves stayed in their winning ways when they defeated Mio, 27 to 12, and won over Pinconning 73 to 20. Mike Westcott led in the Mio contest with 12 points, Toms was next with seven. Garv Humphrey was the leader in the rout over Pinconning with 12 points with Toms and Trask next with 10 points each.

Bill's Drive Inn Announces Opening

Announcement was made this week of the grand opening of Bill's Drive Inn Friday, February 24. Free doughnuts and coffee will be served to the public.

Last fall the drive-inn had to make way for the new M-55 which will cut through their old site.

A new modern building, constructed of cinder blocks was built a few feet from the old site.

A new counter and booth arrangement and grill are some of the improvements.

Farm Management Taught at Hale War Veterans Institute

Farm management, farm accounting, forage crops, dairying and general livestock management are subjects being taught at the Hale Veterans Institute operated at Hale since November 1, 1948.

The institute has an enrollment of 38 veterans of World War II who are actively engaged in farming and live stock production. The veteran enrollment must have 175 man hour units, based on acreage owned or under lease, live stock owned and suitable equipment for

Dairy Specialist Here Thursday

J. C. HAYS

J. C. Hays, Extension Dairy Specialist of Michigan State College, will speak at two meetings, Thursday, March 2, is an announcement received from Harold R. Clark, County Agricultural Agent. Mr. Hays will be at the Tawas Township Hall at 10:00 A. M., and at Reno Township Hall at 2:00 P. M. Mr. Clark explained that this arrangement was made to localize the meeting for the convenience of more people and to make it possible to accommodate those who would want to attend.

Mr. Hays is a well known authority on dairy farm management, having been a dairy specialist on the college staff for nearly thirty years and has been in nearly every community in the state. His main talk will be on feeding problems, but he will be prepared to discuss all other problems of the dairy farmer. Mr. Hays is a popular speaker and a favorite among farm groups.

All farmers are invited to attend one of these meetings.

Bernard Heads Conservation Club

Newly Organized Group in Plainfield

Ellsworth Bernard heads the Plainfield Conservation Association recently organized at Hale. With an initial membership of 40 members, the new organization meets on the second Wednesday of each month at the Plainfield Agricultural School building.

Other officers elected are Lloyd Murray, treasurer and Lyle Bielby, secretary. Three trustees will be elected later.

Organized for the purpose of improving the hunting and fishing conditions in the Iosco county area and co-operation with the State Conservation Departments, interested sportsmen from all sections of the county and state are invited to become members.

Perchville Featured In Life Magazine

Life magazines are really selling on local newsstands this week, one of the reasons being the article, "Fish Eye View" a picture story about fishing in "Perchville", on Tawas Bay.

Joe Clark spent two week-ends here taking pictures, with the most difficult being the underwater shot looking up from the bottom of Tawas Bay.

Mr. Clark made several attempts with different designs of his "Fish Camera", a wooden box with a glass top in it, before getting a picture that suited him. Several times the box filled up with water spoiling film and jrenching his Speed Graphic. But his final print proved to be worth his efforts, appearing on page 103 of Life.

Tawas City Legion Defeats Oscoda Legion

Hospital Benefit Game Saturday Night At Gymnasium

With a last minute field goal by Bob Rollin, Saturday night, the Tawas City American Legion defeated the Oscoda American Legion 42 to 40, at the Oscoda High gym. The locals led all the way until the final two minutes when Oscoda tied up the game at 40 all, setting the stage for Rollin's one hander from the corner.

With several of the Tawas City Legion team "ailing" from colds, etc., they "borrowed" Dick Bertch, Don Geringich and Herb Blust from the Tawas City Independents and Willard Musolf, who plays week-ends with the Legion, for the Oscoda road trip.

John Erickson, was high scorer on the Tawas City team with 12 points, followed by Geringich with nine and Musolf with eight.

Dale Landon, playing week-end ball with Oscoda, was high point man for that team, with eight. Havercroft and Bissonette, each had seven.

Don't forget the Tawas Hospital benefit double-header tomorrow (Saturday) night at the Tawas City Gym. Two good games are assured the fans, as two local teams, Tawas City Legion and C-YO Indies will take the floor against two Birmingham YMCA teams. The first game will get underway at 7:30 with the Tawas City Legion facing one Birmingham team, and the second game will start around 9:00 p. m. with CYO Indies and Birmingham tangling. Buy your tickets from Tawas City or East Tawas merchants or at the gate.

Only 20 Have Applied for Census Jobs

March 1 Deadline for Application for Census Employment

Applicants for employment as enumerators for the 17th Decennial Census in Iosco County will be required to pass oral and written tests to demonstrate their ability for the work, it is announced by William J. Kelly, District Supervisor for the United States Bureau of the Census. The tests will indicate which applicants can best comprehend and follow the detailed and exacting written and oral instructions given the enumerators as they train for their assignment.

To date, Supervisor Kelly stated, about 20 applications have been received for the 11 enumerator positions to be filled. Among these are a considerable number of war veterans who will be given preference for appointment over non-veterans provided they meet other qualifications. Final date for filing applications is March 1. No applications will be accepted after that date.

Applicants must be United States citizens of good health and character have completed high school or have comparable experience, be between 21 and 65 years of age, preferably between 25 and 45, and be financially able to sustain themselves for four weeks before receiving their first salary check. Persons are ineligible for consideration if they drew Federal retirement pay (other than Social Security) are State or local government employees, law enforcement officers, officers of political organizations, individuals engaged in political activity or contemplating such activity during the Census taking period. Close relatives will not be considered for employment in the same locality in this area.

WOMEN'S RELIEF CORP

Members of G. K. Warren Women's Relief Corps No. 170 will enjoy a Washington Tea on Saturday, February 25, from two to four o'clock p. m. at the home of Mrs. Jennie Meyer, 604 Wadsworth Street, East Tawas. They are asking all members of the Daughters of Union Veterans to be their guests.

Mr. and Mrs. William Schaaf returned Tuesday from several days visit in Minden City with relatives and friends.

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS

British Laborites Face Major Test; Lewis, Miners Clash With Old Foe; U.S. to Continue Egg-Price Support

EDITOR'S NOTE: When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of Western Newspaper Union's news analysis and not necessarily of this newspaper.

BRITAIN:

Warning Sounded

The pledge of Anthony Eden, British deputy Conservative leader, who, with Winston Churchill and other party big-wigs in today's election, is hoping to overthrow the Labor party, that the Conservatives will work with all nations for peace, might have meant more than it indicated.

EDEN, being the astute world diplomat that he is, must know that there are elements in many places, particularly the United States, who feel that there must be no further support of power for the Labor party in England.

With the Laborites' position often regarded as the fostering of socialism, the more conservative people everywhere fear it. It has been an amazing thing to most students of world history how the British, traditionally jealous of their liberties, ever permitted the imposition of this kind of government upon them. A reduction of the answer to fundamentals might explain that it came about only through the economic distress of the once proud and mighty empire.

IT IS APPARENTLY assured that whatever the outcome, the Labor party faces its severest test in today's election.

Eden warned, in the first broadcast of a Conservative speech in the just-ended campaign, that the "United Nations is at its lowest ebb, the democracies are forced to pay dearly for armaments, and the nightmare of communism stalks through Asia." He made a telling point in recalling that the Labor party in 1945 declared that if it were returned to power, it could get along with the Russians because of its Socialist ideology—and how the world situation had gone from bad to worse since then.

OPPOSITION SPEAKER Laborite Fuel Minister Hugh Gaitskill, had told an audience at Leeds that the cost of socialism was high in Britain, and would remain high, but declared the cost worthwhile because under the Labor government acute poverty has really been abolished.

That was a debatable point about which the argument continued while Britain voted.

EGG PRICES:

No Humpty Dumpty

The American egg situation had no chance to rival the nursery Humpty Dumpty story, inasmuch as federal price supports were fixed so that no such fall as occurred to the nursery-rhyme egg could happen to this modern counterpart.

THE GOVERNMENT, which already owns some 100 million dollars worth of eggs intended to keep on buying them through March of this year. The idea was to support the price at an average of 25 cents a dozen on the farm.

The government's policy was quaintly stated by one federal official who summed it up with: "The hens are laying their fool heads off."

The farm price of 25 cents a dozen was about 75 per cent of parity, a level calculated to be equally fair to producers and consumers. Producers of dried eggs, the statement said, would continue to get about 95 cents a pound.

Most of the eggs the government buys are dried. In the past two years it has accumulated about 73 million pounds of these eggs, most at a price of $1.26 a pound. Some are stored in a cool cave near Atchison, Kansas. The rest are in warehouses in other sections of the country.

THE QUESTION of what to do with them has become the major problem. The law permits the department of agriculture to give them away if they are kept out of commercial, competitive channels. This restricts them to welfare purposes and similar uses.

TAXATION:

Get 'Em All

The treasury of the United States wants to put the tax bite on a lot of organizations which are not now paying any income tax on the operation of unrelated businesses.

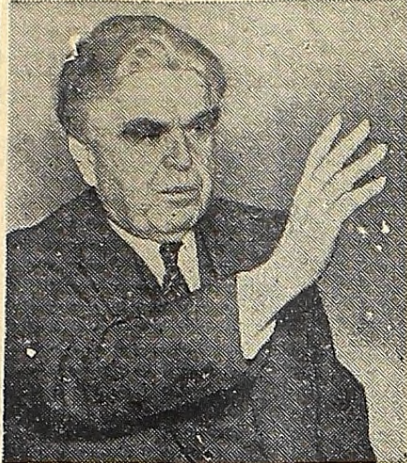

The treasury made a request to congress that this be done, asserting that some labor unions, business leagues, social clubs and charitable and educational organizations were getting away with non-payment of tax that the treasury insists should be paid.

Vance N. Kirby, the treasury's tax-legislative counsel, made it clear, however, that the administration tax program did not contemplate such tax treatment of religious bodies, except as they might be affected in the operation of educational institutions.

He said the proposals would apply to labor unions, business leagues and social clubs.

He also emphasized that the tax recommendation was concerned only with "business income which is not incident or related to the exempt purpose."

Thundering Again

Like a stuck Victrola record or an old movie constantly re-showing, John L. Lewis, mine union czar, was in the news again, this time with another coal strike on the boards. Lewis gestures as he appears before the conference table during contract renewal talks which broke down.

PIT MEN:

An Old Foe

An old and hated enemy was again at grips with John L. Lewis and his United Mine workers. After a delay which brought him sharp criticism, President Harry Truman had turned to the device he declares he hates in order to bring order out of the coal strike chaos.

THERE WERE MANY who had begun to wonder if Mr. Truman—known for the stubbornness he employs when balked—ever would resort to the T-H law to resolve the mine deadlock. Now that he has, it would cause much delight in the ranks of the political opposition.

The T-H law, however regarded, has been used several times in national emergencies with an effect that gives it a real cause for being, whether anyone likes it or not.

The miners, however, showed defiance. They still chanted the old traditional refrain: "No contract—no work." And it looked like a contract agreement was far off as the President named a three-member board of inquiry who would attempt to restore peace in the troubled situation.

TO THE BOARD, President Truman named David L. Cole, Patterson, N. J., attorney who headed a similar board in 1948 that settled a bitter contract row between Lewis and the operators: John Dunlop, Harvard university business school, and a veteran in labor management relations; and W. Willard Wirtz, Northwestern university law professor and former chairman of the wage stabilization board.

Theirs would be the difficult job, because John L. Lewis was a difficult man to deal with. He might be even more difficult since his three-day work week had reduced the nation's coal stockpile to a two-week supply at the time of the strike.

RED H-BOMB:

Terrific Echo

There was a sudden and dramatic interruption in all the talk about the hydrogen—or H-bomb. Just as everyone was pondering the fate of a world on which the monstrous weapon might be loosed, along came a report that the Russians already had it.

The reporter was an Englishman, a Mr. de Courcy, who claimed that he had secret sources inside the iron curtain which told him whatever was going on.

THE CLAIM was a bit rugged for the average American to accept, inasmuch as there was still no actual proof the Reds ever had the atomic bomb. Still, it was a nice, frightening topic of talk, and discussion was rather widespread.

Naturally, the first impulse was a great rushing to revamp all Atlantic defense plans and, perhaps more naturally, to talk of greater U. S. outlay of arms for herself and the pact nations.

Amid all the excitement ran an undercurrent of spy thrills and national menace with the disclosure that a German physicist, who had worked with the British in developing the A-bomb, had given secret information concerning that weapon to the Russians.

Good Omen?

As jitters mounted over reported leaks and treasonable acts concerning the secrets of the hydrogen bomb, apprehensive officials and citizens were further disturbed by reports that a former clerk in the French consulate at Stettin, Poland, had confessed he had led an espionage network that obtained information on British military movements. He was identified as Andre Simon Robineau.

POLITICS:

Sound & Fury

The sound and fury of the upcoming congressional elections was increasing in volume. If the Republicans could make it stick, they had found their issue: "Liberty against Socialism."

HOWEVER, it appeared the GOP was running into the same old trouble—inability to get along. The "me too" element, while pretending, or appearing, to have changed its collective minds, was nevertheless chomping at the bit when called upon to embrace a more liberal attitude.

In an 11-day closed meeting, members of the Republican national committee and house and senate Republicans attempted to iron out their differences. They had hoped that a proposed statement of "principles and objectives" would serve to unify the party and serve as a basic platform for the campaign electioneering.

Out of the welter of discord came these arguments within the party:

Vigorous opposition to most of Mr. Truman's Fair Deal policy.

A middle-ground on U. S. foreign policy, advocating continuance of the bi-partisan policy, but sharply criticizing the administration of it. Particular condemnation of "secret agreements" at Yalta and Potsdam.

Opposition to the spread of communism.

Denunciation of any socialized health program, wage and price control, the Brannan plan.

RETURN to a balanced budget and repeal of wartime excise taxes.

A fair price for the farmers' products.

That was the scaffolding for the platform which the committee hoped would satisfy all the Republicans. First results indicated it will not. All of which would bring smiles to Democratic hopefuls, inasmuch as there is little hope for victory at all by Republicans who are divided. It would be tough enough if they were all united.

FOREIGN AID:

Bottomless Pit?

The question of whether the United States ever would be freed of the burden of supplying economic aid to Europe was beginning to occupy the minds of many U. S. citizens.

With more than eight billion dollars already spent on efforts toward European recovery—that's on the basis of released figures—and western European nations now asking for another four or five billion for the next two years, the astronomical figures were becoming more astronomical.

The apparent situation indicated that all the ERP supporters had to do in order to get more funds for European aid was to report "amazing progress" by the foreign nations on the road to recovery, and immediately temper that with a "but"—the "but" being that more and more money would have to be spent "if" recovery were to be permanent.

The Marshall plan is supposed to end in 1952, but the follower of U. S. foreign policy as it affects aid to needy nations would lay the "customary eight-to-five" that the plan will not end in 1952.

By that time, with crisis mounting on crisis because of the imminence of the H-bomb and word that Russia already has it, it logically may be expected that there will be found multiple reasons for continuance of aid to Europe to an extent whereof no man can see the end.

Claims Rare Power

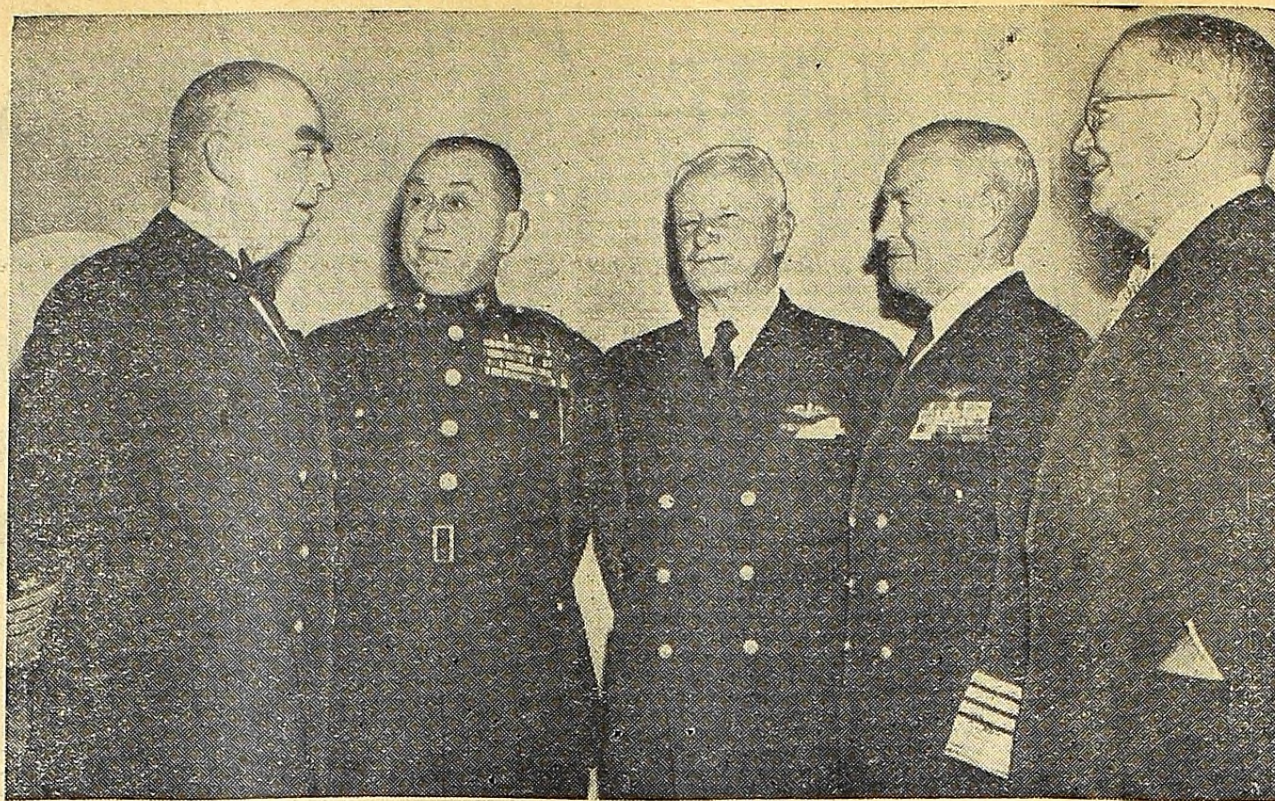

Gertrud Voleynik, (right above) shocked Berliners by claiming the power to raise the dead and heal the sick. She first amazed Berlin when she drifted in from eastern German territory and issued an appeal to parents of recently deceased children to bring them to her for revival. There were no takers. The "healer" is shown here attempting to cure a paralyzed woman who said she "felt much better" after treatment.

EUTHANASIA:

Case in Point

Advocates of euthanasia—"mercy killing"—would find support for their views in the action of a Bridgeport, Conn., jury in acquitting blond Carol Ann Paight of the slaying of her cancer-ridden father.

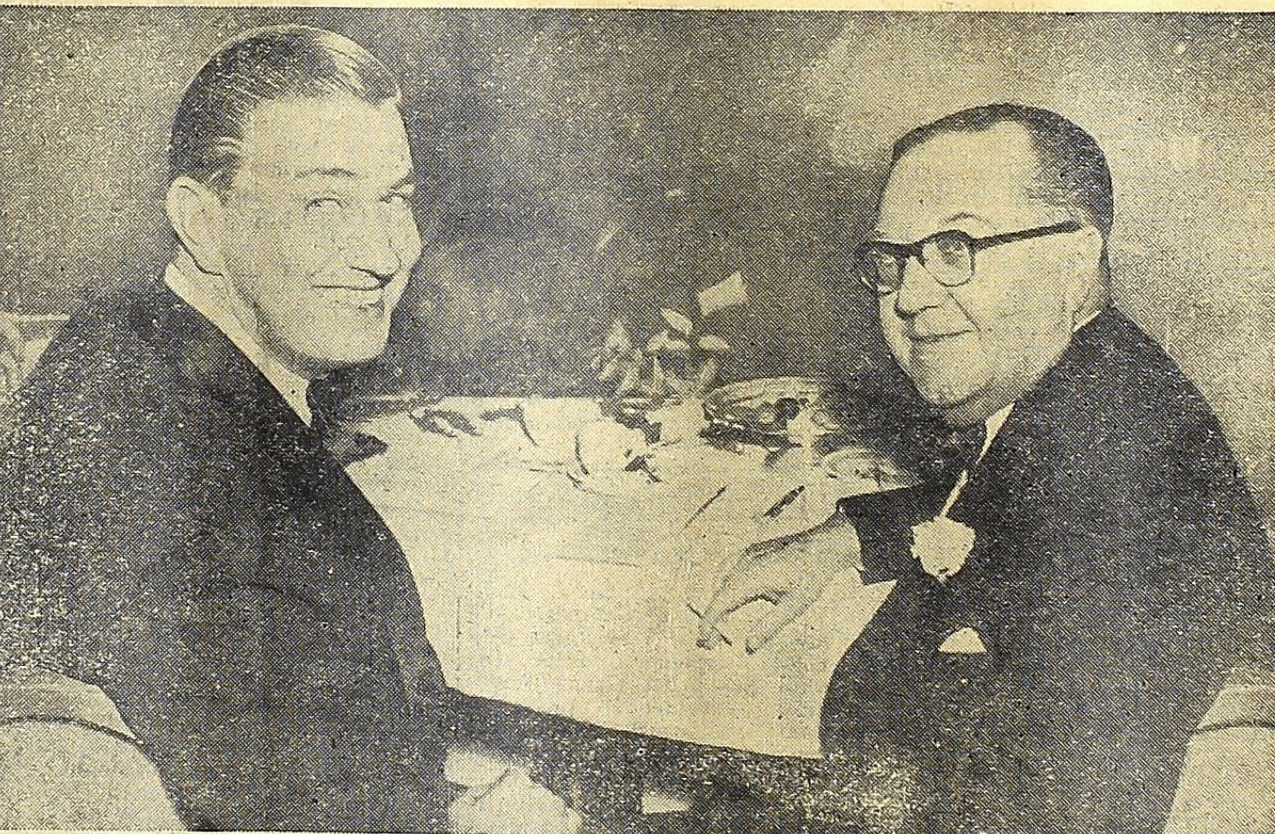

A jury made up of all parents found the 21-year-old college girl not guilty of slaying her father. Carol Ann had fired a bullet through her father's head after it was learned he had only weeks to live.

TOP BRASS HONORED BY CORRESPONDENTS . . . Members of the American war correspondents association have not always used treacle to grease their typewriters when writing of top brass. But recently, the correspondents awarded honorary memberships to a group of wartime leaders (left to right): Adm. Thomas C. Kincaid, commander of the eastern sea frontier; Gen. C. B. Gates, commander of the marine corps; Fleet Adm. Chester Nimitz; Adm. Forrest Sherman, chief of naval operations; and Fleet Adm. William Halsey, retired.

BERLIN BACKDOWN . . . J. P. McNulty, chief of United States property branch, removes a requisition from the entrance to the rail directorate building in the U. S. sector of Berlin while two west German police look on. The building was occupied by west German police after the Reds were ousted. The Russians implied that if it were not returned to them the blockade would be resumed. Gen. Maxwell Taylor, U. S. sector commander, gave the order to return the building "in the interest of the peace of the city." The building now is occupied by Red rail authorities but the Russians are continuing a "baby blockade" of Berlin, stopping truck traffic into the city upon the slightest excuse and causing British and American officials many inconveniences in the administering of the affairs of the allied sectors.

ENJOYING A $100-DINNER . . . Rep. Franklin D. Roosevelt, Jr., (left) dines with New York's fire commissioner, Frank Quayle, at a $100-a-plate dinner at the Hotel Commodore in New York city. Young Roosevelt addressed the gathering and told guests at the dinner that the Republican stand on fair employment practice legislation smacks "of hypocrisy, double dealing and political maneuvering." He added that the Democrats, in contrast, win repeated successes by remembering the people. Republican reaction to Roosevelt's remarks has not been gauged.

JAPANESE NATIONALS RETURN FROM SIBERIA . . . Hundreds of people line the streets at Maluru, Japan, to welcome and greet a contingent of Japanese nationals who were the first to be repatriated from Siberia, according to unofficial reports. Of the 2,500 former prisoners to arrive aboard the Takasago Maru from Nahodka, 200 were ill and required hospital treatment. Some Japanese, released several months ago by the Russians, had been indoctrinated with communism, and upon their return home, they surprised their countrymen by staging a Communist demonstration in their homeland. Russia has been accused of turning Nippon prisoners into slave laborers for work on Russian projects.

U.S. 'Keeps Powder Dry'

THERE is a definite pattern of events traceable here in Washington which add up to a significant total and from which folks in the home towns of the nation may draw the conclusion that while the Truman administration is working for peace it is "keeping its powder dry" and taking preliminary measures to prevent any future Pearl Harbor.

Foremost in this pattern is the President's insistence on keeping the draft law in some form on the statute books and his increased budget for national defense topping the 13-billion-dollar mark.

But also are some unheralded happenings which fit into the picture such as the reactivation of the national security resources board and the civilian defense program.

More than a year ago, Russell E. Hopley of Omaha, Nebraska, was called down to Washington by the then secretary of national defense, James Forrestal, to draw up a civilian mobilization program. He did so, but the program was pigeonholed. Since that time, it is understood that several European countries operating under the Marshall plan have adopted this self-same program.

At any rate, the program is being dusted off. For months, after the senate refused to confirm Warren Magnuson as chairman of the NSRB, that important agency functioned only perfunctorily. Recently the President named one of his aides, John Steelman, as acting chairman. Since that time there has been a stream of industrial and agricultural leaders come to Washington to give the NSRB the benefit of their knowledge of their own industries and how they could best be mobilized for war. These "task forces" have run the gamut of industry, labor and agriculture.

Recently Blackwell Smith, former general counsel for NRA and with the WPB during the war, was named to head up a department of production control in NSRB to integrate in all the various industries the results of these meetings with industrial leaders. Assisting him in this work are two other former WPB executives, John Skillman and George McCloskey. Their basic work is to produce what is called CMP or control materials plan.

Pattern Expanded

Tied into the pattern is the announcement of the President that Russia has the atomic bomb and his urging in the budget of an increase appropriation for the atomic energy commission.

Only recently came the announcement that Paul J. Larsen, former official of the New Mexico laboratories doing research for the atomic energy commission, has been named to head up the civilian mobilization office of NSRB.

Larsen will supervise not only civil defense proper, but health resources, housing and community services, strategic dispersion of industrial and governmental facilities and censorship. Larsen will not take over his job until March. In the meantime, William A. Gill, a government career man is heading up the office.

Almost simultaneously with Larsen's appointment came the announcement by Secretary Johnson of the department of defense that he will recruit 150,000 volunteer airplane spotters. In this connection it will be recalled that the last congress made an appropriation running into many millions of dollars for the construction of a radar screen at eight strategic points throughout the United States.

Likely the weavings of this pattern of national defense may be aired in hearings by various congressional committees including the question of construction of the new and more powerful "H" or hydrogen bomb.

Questions Aiken Stand

This column last August quoted Sen. George Aiken of Vermont, to the effect that anything called for in the Brannan plan could be done under the Hope-Aiken law. Now the big farm organizations most certainly backed the Hope-Aiken law. If Senator Aiken is correct, the question naturally arises "Why do they oppose the Brannan plan?"

And conversely, if Senator Aiken is right, why was the Truman administration so intent on repealing the Aiken law for the Anderson law, and is now so hot for the Brannan plan? Could it be that some politics is being played on both sides with reference to the farm program?

After 27 years of trying, the senate finally has passed a resolution calling for a constitutional amendment giving equal rights to men and women. It must be ratified by three-fourths of the states.

BROADWAY AND MAIN STREET Attack of Amnesia Transforms Milquetoast Into Roost Ruler

By BILLY ROSE

The other day I picked up the telephone to call Eleanor, and it was almost half a minute before I could remember my number at home. At the time, this memory lapse didn't seem worth brooding about, but last night I happened to meet up with a well-known psychiatrist at the Stork Club, and over a jigger of ginger-beer I told him what had happened.

"It was probably a mild attack of amnesia," he said. "As a rule, the victims are folks who, consciously or unconsciously, want to escape from their routine chores, and every now and then their minds blank out as a protest against doing the same old things the same old way."

"What kind of pills should I take?"

"Fun pills," said the mind-medic. "Buy yourself a sailboat, take up skeet-shooting, or get a set of water colors and learn how to paint."

"And supposing I don't?"

"Chances are nothing will happen except that you'll forget a few more phone numbers. On the other hand, there's always the possibility that the spells may get longer and more frequent. That's what happened not long ago to a good friend of yours."

Billy Rose

JERRY—and I'm sure you know the Jerry I mean—used to be one of Broadway's leading juveniles and stay-up-lates. Five years ago, as you know, he put away his hair-oil and got a job producing radio shows. And not long after, he married the daughter of a network executive, bought a home in Scarsdale and decided to settle down.

"Well, as often happens when a girl has too much dowry, his wife did most of the settling for him. She made him exchange his friends for hers, his fun for hers and his life for hers. And within a year, the man who used to be a gay old dog became all dog—Westchester version of Caspar Milquetoast.

"After two years of being yammered at by his missus, Jerry came in to see me one day and said that he was having trouble with his memory—that it was blacking out on him now and then. I asked him some questions about his home life, and when he told me what it was like I advised him to stand up to his wife, and if necessary, slap her down occasionally. He told me, quite seriously, she wouldn't stand for such a thing.

"One morning several months later, he came to my office, and told me quite a tale. It seems that on his way home the night before he had had an attack of amnesia, and when he came to 15 hours later he was in a New York hotel room, with no idea of what had happened in between.

"I phoned his wife, and from her story, managed to put the pieces together. Jerry's memory had snapped as he got to the door of his house in Scarsdale—perhaps in protest against the stuffy people his wife had invited to dinner and all he knew was that he was standing on a strange stoop.

"AFRAID TO RING the bell, he sneaked into the back yard, found

To One In Sorrow

LET me come in where you are weeping, friend,
And let me take your hand.

I, who have known a sorrow such as yours,
Can understand.

Let me come in—I would be very still
Beside you in your grief;

I would not bid you cease your weeping, friend,
Tears bring relief.

Let me come in—I would only breathe a prayer,
And hold your hand,

For I have known a sorrow such as yours,
And understand.

GRACE NOLL CROWELL

an open window, hoisted himself through, then recognizing nothing, stopped to puzzle out the situation. Who was he? What sort of man would climb through the window of a strange house? Only a burglar, of course. Ergo, he must be a burglar. And so he tiptoed upstairs, entered his wife's bedroom and began stuffing her jewelry into his pockets.

"At this point, his missus walked in, told him to stop playing cops and robbers, and began badgering him at the top of her over-sized lungs. But Jerry, the burglar, instead of melting into the carpet, belted her one right in the teeth.

"That's all there was to it. Some how, he got back to New York, checked in at a hotel, and when he woke up his amnesia was gone."

"Did you tell his wife that her husband wasn't himself when he clipped her on the chin?" I asked.

The psychiatrist smiled. "Of course not, and what's more, I advised my patient to keep mum. Jerry went home to a big reconciliation scene—the old 'worm-turns' story—and ever since, the more spine he has shown the more supine his wife has become.

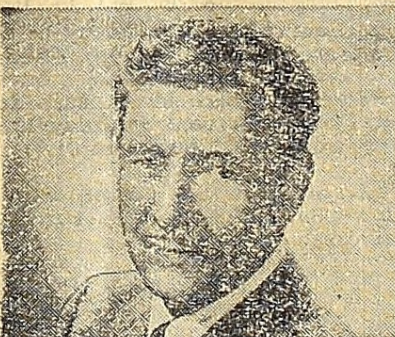

"I went out to his house for a poker session recently, and the only time she came in the room was when she brought in the drinks. To date, there have been no recurrences of amnesia, and it's my belief that if Jerry doesn't take any more nonsense from his wife there won't be."

"Are you suggesting I go home and bang a shiner on Eleanor's eye?" I asked.

"In your case," said the psychiatrist, "I doubt if it's necessary. However, if you have any more trouble remembering telephone numbers, I'd suggest you invest a few dollars in a water-color set."

STAGE-SCREEN-RADIO
BY INEZ GERHARD

THE SUCCESS of "Halls of Ivy", (NBC Friday evenings,) proves that radio sponsors who for years have been heckling Ronald Colman and his wife to do a radio program were right. For 10 years, during which he had made but one firm a year, Mr. Colman had held off, and Benita backed him up.

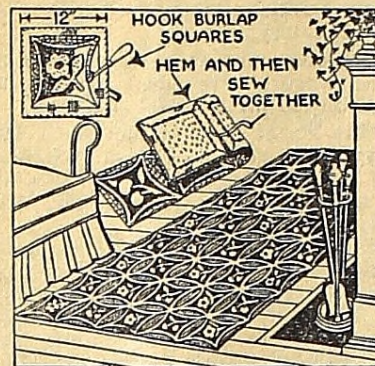

RONALD COLMAN

Then Jack Benny talked them into doing a guest shot on his program, and other such appearances followed. Finally along came Don Quinn, who years ago had brought Fibber McGee and Molly to the air. He had written the perfect show for the Colmans—for Colman as a college professor, Benita as an ex-actress, his wife. Result, "The Halls of Ivy" a hit from the start.

Morey Amsterdam is lining up bookings for a spring concert tour; seems the comedy star is an accomplished cellist whom top-ranking musicians have praised. He plans to perform both classical and semi-classical selections.

Listeners to Elliot Lawrence's Friday night air show may soon hear his latest composition, "Ballet for Thirsty Arabians in Search of Water." Elliot says it was inspired by the water shortage from which New York is suffering.

Odd Things Happen At Carnegie Hall As Famous Appear

NEW YORK, N. Y.—Nearly 50 years ago a young man lectured in historic Carnegie hall on a subject which would undoubtedly serve him better at the present time. The subject was: "The War as I saw It," illustrated with lantern slides. And the lecturer was Winston Churchill, then a freshman correspondent who has escaped during the Boer war from Ladysmith, South Africa.

Churchill was only one of many great men and women who appeared on that same old stage, John J. Totten, music manager of Carnegie hall, recalls.

Carnegie hall was opened in May, 1891, with Tchaikovsky conducting the first concert. Years afterward, Tchaikovsky said of the famous Manhattan landmark: "When I come to the stage of Carnegie hall to conduct a concert, as soon as the music begins I forget all the surroundings, for I have the impression of a sonority like a Stradivarius. . . . It is my conclusion that Carnegie hall is one among the very few best auditoriums, acoustically. It will be a pity if one day an idea should come to anyone to abolish this historically and musically ideal auditorium."

Totten, who has been with Carnegie hall for 43 years, first as an usher, next as assistant house manager and for 22 years in his present capacity, told some of the highlights of the past and a few of the more recent happenings.

In 1918, Caruso, Heifetz and Rachmaninoff occupied the stage one afternoon, lending their talents for a Red Cross benefit.

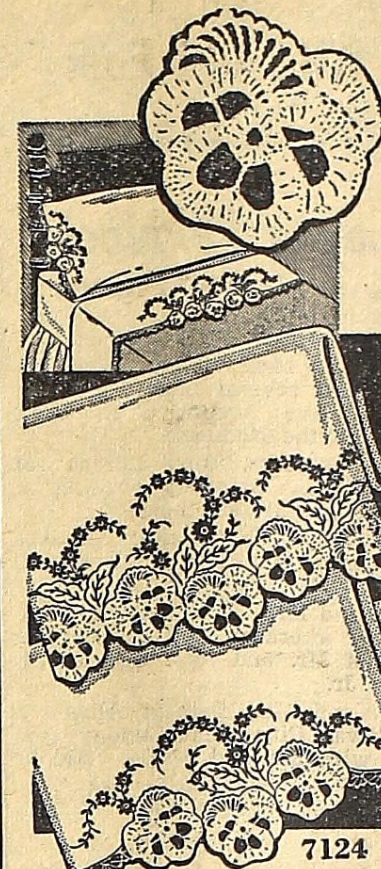

"There was a Turkish meeting one night in the hall," Totten said. They wanted to decide which city was to be the capital of Turkey. It ended in a riot, with women using hatpins as weapons on those who did not agree with them."

Totten recalled that in 1919 the hall had its biggest flop when President Woodrow Wilson spoke there after he had returned from the peace conference in France. The hall was only half full—because, Totten explained, there were so many policemen, detectives and secret service men around the entrance that the waiting crowd could not get in.

CREOMULSION for Coughs, Chest Colds, Bronchitis

The Fiction * NARROW ESCAPE * Corner

By Richard H. Wilkinson

"JUD'S ONLY going to be here a couple of weeks," Connie said. "And after all, he's my brother Tom's guest and it's up to me to help entertain him. You understand, don't you, Marc?"

"Sure," said Marc, not looking at her, "sure, I understand. You go ahead and be nice to him, Connie. I understand all right."

Which was true, bitterly true. Marc had begun to understand two days after Jud Morrison had landed at the Norberts' for a fortnight's visit. Jud was big and handsome and had a way with him. In college he had been quite a rage. Tom Norbert, his roommate, had raved about him before he arrived, but even Connie hadn't expected such a splendid specimen of manhood as Jud proved to be.

A roadster stopped before the house and Jud came bounding up the walk. "Hi, Connie," he grinned. "All set for our round of golf?" Then he saw Marc standing on the porch beside Connie. "Hello there, Marc. How about joining us?"

Marc smiled and shook his head. "Thanks," he said. "I've got a tennis date. See you two tonight."

If, he reflected, he could only get Jud out of his element perhaps the college hero wouldn't show up so well.

Several nights later at the country club dance Marc got Connie alone and suggested a fishing trip for the next day. "We can take Jud along," he explained. "It'll be something new in his experience and probably he'll get a bang out of it."

Connie, who liked fishing herself, thought it was a grand idea. And so the three of them drove up to Beaver Lake the next day.

"And, besides, I'm satisfied with the man I have—a man who's big enough to be kind to a man like Jud Morrison."

In the afternoon they put on their waders and fished.

Connie elected to show Jud how to rig his line and cast, and watching them Marc knew a feeling of frustration. He had planned to somehow get Jud to follow him into the rapids where the going was treacherous and where only one experienced in such things could navigate without losing his foothold. He had a vague idea of rescuing Jud from the swirling torrents, thereby establishing Jud's weakness in Connie's mind and his own prowess.

SUDDENLY HE KNEW that he was helpless. There was nothing he could do about the thing that was happening between Jud and Connie. The feeling that he had toward Jud was not one of condemnation, but envy. If Jud were trying to steal Connie away, he was doing so unwittingly. Any one but a fool could tell he wasn't aware of any understanding existing between the girl and Marc.

And so Marc abandoned his scheme for revenge.

They returned home the next day, and the day after that Marc made a business trip to Bellnap. When he got back, Judson Morrison was gone. Marc didn't call Connie. Tomorrow or the day after he was leaving on a month's journey upstate. He didn't want to see Connie before he left. It would hurt too much.

But he did see her, Connie came over that night and found him sitting alone on the porch.

"Hello," she said, "where in the world have you been?"

"Away on business. Unexpected."

"Well, I should think so." She came close to him and sat down. "Jud left this morning. He asked me to say goodbye to you."

"Jud's a good egg," Marc said. "Too good," said Connie. "Goodness, I'd hate to be married to a man like that."

"You would?" said Marc, astonished, "why?"

"Why? Why, because—I would be too self-sufficient." She laughed. "And besides, I'm satisfied with the man I have—a man who's big enough to be kind to a man like Jud Morrison."

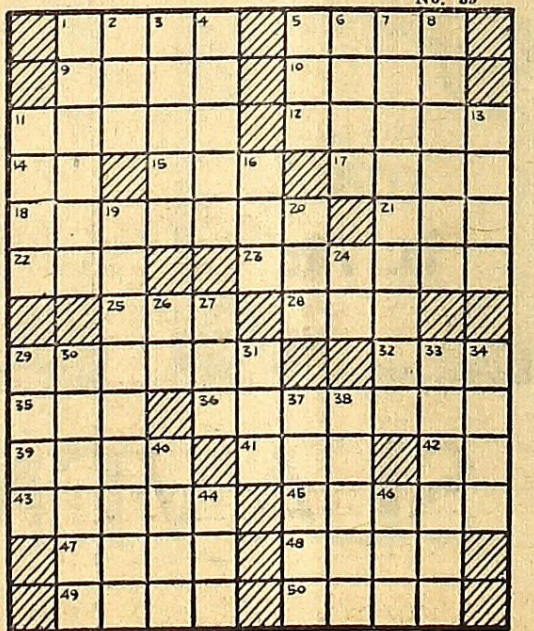

Abruptly he laughed, and when, puzzled, she asked him what was funny, he shook his head. "There's nothing really funny," he said. "I was just thinking about a close call I once had—how near I came to making a fool of myself—and what a relief it is to know I escaped."

LOOKING Backward

50 Years Ago—February 28, 1900

Tawas City loses its oldest mill, and the oldest landmark in the county by the removal of the Wilmona Salt & Lumber Co. Mill, built in 1894 by G. O. Whittemore & Co. of Pontiac, was operated by the Whittemores until 1898. At that time it was purchased by McBain & Whitney, and it was operated for a time by William Nisbet and J. C. Adams. Purchased by the Wilmona Salt & Lumber Co., it was operated by that firm until 1894.

Thus passes into history what was at one time one of the largest and best lumber mills on Tawas Bay. The salt block in connection with the mill has produced as high as 20,000 barrels of salt in a season.

A lath mill is being placed in the old mill house and the lumber in the mill and dock will be manufactured into lath.

L. H. Braddock of Saginaw will be the new manager of C. H. Prescott & Sons hardware department. He will take charge of the department in about two weeks.

W. C. Sterling & Son of Monroe have leased offices on the first floor of the Emery Block. It will be used as headquarters of their extensive cedar business.

Mr. Fotheringham of Richmondville is about to start a bank at Whittemore.

Thomas Leslie has about 1,000,000 feet of logs in his mill yard at Whittemore.

C. R. Jackson is supervisor of the 12th census for the 10th district of Michigan. There are 153 enumeration districts in the 10 counties. Iosco county with a population of 12,340 has eleven districts.

Rev. H. F. Shier of East Tawas is at Ann Arbor and Detroit this week.

George Morse, a former Tawas boy, is now located at Onaway in the hardware business.

Sheriff Peter E. Shien is at Lansing this week.

Judge of Probate E. Laidlaw was at Saginaw a few days last week.

20 Years Ago—February 28, 1930
In anticipation of widening the highway from Whittemore to Hale, a new pole line will be constructed for the Hale Telephone Company.

H. E. Friedman has moved his store from the Sawyer Building to the new Keiser Building.

The Tawas Independents defeated the Cuyler Quintet in a hotly contested game at Harrisville Monday evening. The score was 12 to 16.

Benjamin N. Carpenter of Harrison has announced his candidacy for state senator. B. M. Long, one of the best informed students of politics in this county, says that Carpenter has what it takes to win in the coming election.

H. S. Karcher of Rose City was elected chairman of the District Health Unit at a meeting here Friday evening.

R. A. Bentley is Iosco county delegate to the Michigan Live Stock Exchange.

A. R. Weir and N. C. Hartingh leave New York Tuesday on a vacation to Bermuda.

Mrs. Arland Lundy of Detroit is visiting at the Eugene Hanson home.

Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Goodale are visiting at Detroit and Flint.

Mr. and Mrs. Guy Murray of Detroit are visiting relatives here.

Mike Sommerfield of Port Perry, Ontario, arrived Saturday for a few weeks visit here.

Mr. and Mrs. Lee Carson of Pontiac spent the week here with relatives.

Bids will be received March 20 for the construction of the proposed state park dock.

William Rahl of Hale brought in one of the largest pike caught here in years. Speared in Loon lake, weighed 20 pounds.

Edward H. Pickard, Plaintiff, vs. Margaret H. Pickard, Defendant.

At a session of said court held in the courthouse in the City of Tawas City in said County this 17th day of January, A. D. 1950.

PRESENT: Honorable Herman Dehnke, Circuit Judge.

It is satisfactorily appearing to this Court by affidavit on file that the defendant, Margaret H. Pickard, is not a resident of the State of Michigan, but resides at 75 Whitehall Avenue in the City of Buffalo in the State of New York. On motion of H. Read Smith, attorney for the plaintiff, IT IS ORDERED that said defendant, Margaret H. Pickard, cause her appearance to be entered in this cause within three months from the date of this order, and in case of her appearance that she cause her answer to the plaintiff's bill of complaint to be filed, and a copy thereof to be served upon the plaintiff's attorney, within twenty days after service on her of a copy of said bill, and notice of this order, and that in default thereof that said bill be taken as confessed by said non-resident defendant.

Herman Dehnke,
Circuit Judge.

AND IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that within twenty days after the date hereof, the said plaintiff cause a notice of this order to be published in the Tawas Herald, a newspaper printed, published, and circulating in said County of Iosco, and that such publication be continued once in each week for six successive weeks, or that he cause a copy of this order to be served personally on said non-resident defendant, at least twenty days before the time above prescribed for her appearance; AND IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that the said plaintiff cause a copy of this order to be mailed to said defendant at her last known postoffice address, by registered mail, and a return receipt demanded at least twenty days before the time herein prescribed for the appearance of the defendant.

Excitement Features Carey's Truck Ride

At the same moment Rob was telling Gus, "Watch out for the little girl, Gus." And Gus said, "Ya, Boss," and their eyes met on the promise.

And then, just as Ken was letting

GREEN GRASS OF WYOMING

By Mary O'Hara

Howard, Ken's older brother, meets Carey again and the two become fast friends. He has met her once before on the train as they were both coming to the McLaughlin ranch. Ken and Carey discuss the ranch and Ken outlines for her how the ranch is operated and tells her about all the animals and their names. The plans for starting the search for Crown Jewel progress and it is decided that 14 men shall make up the search party. The hunt program is stimulated with a call from For Daly saying he knows the whereabouts of Crown Jewel and Thunderhead. After much persuasion, Carey gets permission to ride part way with the searching party.

CHAPTER VII

Greenway's face took on its intimate expression and he held her elbow tight. "Carey, by the time you get to be ten or twenty years older, there will be a few larks you can look back upon—things you did you weren't supposed to do, nights or early mornings when you skinned out and went gallivanting somewhere without anyone's knowing—everyone's entitled to that. I can look back on quite a few escapades of that sort and—tell you a secret—" he put his mouth close to Carey's ear, "your Granny can, too!"

Carey looked utterly shocked, "Oh, Uncle Beaver, I don't think so!"

"I'm tellin' you! And this will be one for you! A barrel of fun, and not a bit of harm."

Again Carey's breath lifted her breast in a great gasp. "But Uncle! I sleep with her in the same bed!"

"Didn't I hear that you were to set your alarm at three o'clock, Ken?"

"Yes, sir."

"Well, your Grandma is a very heavy sleeper, Carey. Especially at three in the morning. You can slip out of bed, go to the bathroom, have your clothes there, dress there, and presto! What's to stop you?"

"Clothes!" gasped Carey, visualizing all this, "Oh, Uncle Beaver, may I really do it?"

"You not only may, but I insist upon it, and I'll have no disobedience."

"When we unload the horses," said Ken, "I'll give you a ride on Redwing."

Carey looked from one to the other completely carried away.

"Come on with me," said Ken, "and we'll pick out some riding clothes for you, boots and pants, then you can stow them away in the bathroom."

"Give her a lumberjacket, Ken," said her uncle, "it's going to be mighty cold at three o'clock tomorrow morning."

"There's a black leather jacket there," said Ken. "Mother used to wear it. Lined with plaid wool."

The men were preparing to go. Rob handed every man a glass, and the bottle went from one to the other—some of the tumblers were filled to the brim.

Ken and Carey sat on the floor in the big closet under the elbow of the stairs. Piled about them were jackets and jodhpurs, boots, sweaters, bluejeans. Carey stood up and held one pair after the other against herself until one of the right length was found. She sat down, took off her shoes, tried the boots on, and finally found a pair.

Ken dangled them in his hands. "I think I wore those when I was about six. Carey, how are you going to wake up? You can't have an alarm clock."

"Grandma has a nightclock with a luminous dial. If I happen to be awake I can see the time."

"But if you don't?"

Carey was sure she would. She was so excited she thought she would not go to sleep at all.

"What side of the bed do you sleep on?" asked Ken.

She looked up at him. In the dim light his face looked gentle and beautiful.

"The side nearest the window."

"Leave the screen up a little. I can put in my hand and reach your shoulder."

Her head sank. It was a gesture of assent, but that was not all. There was something tremulous that moved between them. For a few moments they sat so, in silence.

Then they got to their feet and returned to the living-room where the men were pulling on their coats and making ready to leave.

Carey's uncle said to her, as he put her into her seat in the pick-up, "You'll want to see all you can," and hung his binoculars on their leather strap over her shoulder.

And as she was thanking him, he leaned closer and whispered that the only reason he wasn't going along himself as far as the Monument was to leave her free to have her little spree without supervision. Carey suspected that the stiffness which he was feeling as a result of his ride yesterday had something to do with it, too.

Storm Threatens Break Before Search Ended

His voice was deep and firm—quite like his father's—when he answered. "Haven't you noticed the animals? The cows and horses have got fur two inches long all over them! They've been getting ready for it. They know!"

"Two inches!" marveled Carey.

The cars ahead swung off the highway, crossed the railway tracks and took a dirt road that went southwest. It was not a very good road, and Gus slackened speed a little. Carey could see that the country was changing. They were getting near to the Buttes.

The chuckwagon, in charge of one of Bill Beasley's cooks, was at the rendezvous before them. Carey did not know exactly what she had expected the Monument to be, but certainly not just a great rock sticking up out of the plains, roughly shaped like a small pyramid, with one face smoothed off and inscribed with the brief tale of the massacre of a troop of American cavalry by Shoshone Indians in the year of 1873.

Gus, leaving the horses still in the truck, walked slowly to the chuckwagon for coffee. Some of the men did likewise, others were following the example of Ken and Howard, studying and discussing in the clutch of the pick-up to follow the station wagon, Rob jumped on the running board and Ken pulled the car to a stop.

"Yes, sir?"

"Keep the same order you are in. Don't pass Howard."

"Yes, sir."

Rob dropped off the running board and Ken let in the clutch.

The lights in front of them curved off. She felt the rough-going of a country road; then other curves, awkward and tilted; then some terrible chuckholes through which Ken eased the truck expertly, then suddenly they were in a wide yard before the black shape of a house, parts of it picking up outline from the lights of the truck. A window sprang into light as a blind flew up, and there was the silhouette of a very fat woman clutching a gown around her. There were little sharp knobs all over her head.

There was a chorus of yapping dogs.

The air was torn by the sound of a horse neighing and several answering from the distance, the hoofprints that were plainly seen pressed upon or cut into the ochre-colored, dried up grass.

Howard suddenly gave a yell that brought the men crowding around him. "See here? That's Pete's hoofprint! As big as a bucket! He's still with them!"

Buck thought hard riding might catch up with the horses before the day was over. No tellin'—they might be tucked away in some depression of the ground or some little draw within five or ten miles of the Monument. It was worth a try anyhow.

Thinking about this—that Jewel might be somewhere quite near, Carey squeezed her hands together in excitement.

Gus brought her a cup of coffee. "Awful black, but give you strength, Carey." Carey went to Cookie for sugar who, with a beaming smile which showed absolutely toothless gums under his drooping brown moustache, poured sugar into the thick black fluid.

Gus and Moody were talking about the weather. A storm was sure coming. It was getting cold fast. But they might catch up with the horses before it broke. This sky—it was getting lower—looked like it was going to be fog pretty soon. If they didn't get the horses now, before this storm came, they wouldn't get them until spring. This wasn't just a storm coming. It was winter. Look at the thick fur on the horses. Been getting ready. A hard winter and an early winter. Thunderhead was taking his mares to the foothills of the Snowy Range, and when they once got there, goodby.

Spring, thought Carey, her heart sinking. Into her coffee cup fell a big feathery flake of snow. For a split second she saw the star shape of it, then it was gone. She raised her face and looked for more, and saw them here and there, drifting softly. And the wind was more than a drift now, and it was from the east.

"Here it comes, boys!" yelled George Dale. "We better get moving!"

They bolted the last of their coffee and doughnuts, picked up their bridles and crowded around the truck. The back was lowered, the horses clattered down and each man took his own.

Carey wondered if Ken had forgotten that he had said he would let her have a ride before they got off. No, there he was coming toward her leading a big sorrel.

"Here's Redwing, Carey. You're going to have a ride before we leave."

Gus raised his voice. "Looks to me like you're licked. Dis is an easterner an' it's comin' fast. You can try, but you may wantin' me before noon, so I won't go back to de ranch right away. If you don't stay away too long, I'll be here to take you home."

But Carey shook her head. "I don't believe there's time, Ken," she said. "Look at them. They're all mounting."

Leonard Moody swung into his saddle and turning his head said, "Come on, fellers."

"Go on, Ken," said Carey. "I'll be seerin' you."

"Come on!" It was an impatient yell from Howard, who was already mounted.

"Goodby," said Ken. He put out a hand and they shook hands gravely. Their eyes met.

Then Ken mounted Redwing and joined the others.

Carey Sets Out For Ride in Hills

Carey felt very deserted and her face quivered. The wind was terribly cold and it cut through the cotton of her trousers to the skin.

"Don't the little gal have a horse to ride?" asked Cookie sympathetically. "See that roan pony over there a-grazin'? Ye can take a ride on her, as good a pony as there is in Wyoming. I've had her eight years."

"But," said Carey quaveringly, "she's yours, and you'll be taking her along with you. I've got to go back with Gus."

"Gus ain't goin' till noon or so. An' I'm not startin' after the boys just yet. Ain't had my breakfast."

"You mean your second breakfast!" yelled Tim.

"Or your third!" contributed Wink.

Cookie ignored them. "When everybody else is fed, then I get mine. I won't be leavin' for a while yet. I'll saddle the pony for ye and ye can get a look around anyways."

Carey pointed to a group of cone-shaped hills to the northwest, one quite high. "Think there's time for me to ride up that hill? I could see from there, I could see the men riding." She lifted her binoculars.

"With these," she added.

"Sure, sure, plenty of time," said Cookie amiably and went to saddle the roan for her.

Gus sang out, "What you saddling up for, Cookie?"

"The little gal wants to try my pony," shouted back Cookie. "She kin be ridin' around while I eat my breakfast."

Doctor Keeps Body of Wife In Glass Case

LONDON. — Dr. Martin Van Butchell, a distinguished London doctor, was a man of wide learning and skill, but he could not bear to be parted from his wife. When she died, he was stricken with grief—but he thought out a scheme by which he might continue his day-to-day life with her.

Mrs. Van Butchell alone had seen the soundness of the reasons underlying her husband's eccentricities. Other people were inclined to laugh when the doctor rode a pony painted with brilliant green and blue spots. But Mrs. Van Butchell agreed that since her husband had first learned to ride on a rocking horse, it was wise for him to keep as close to the original as possible.

Dr. Van Butchell detested buttons and designed a garment of white elastic wool, stretching from ankles to neck, which served the purpose of coat, trousers and waistcoat all in one. His wife appreciated its convenience in saving a busy doctor's time.

Poured Drugs in Lake

Even when the doctor visited the Serpentine and by pouring drugs into it turned it into a lake of medicine, Mrs. Van Butchell could never see anything but common sense in the affair.

The doctor made very good medicine, and so prodigious a dose as an entire lake of it enabled everyone to try its qualities, if they felt so disposed.

The doctor realized how well it pays to advertise. When he went riding, he carried a jawbone slung about his waist as a sign of his profession. Once every week he sat on his doorstep with a little tray of cakes, tarts, sweets, apples and nuts, and gleefully dispensed hospitality to the children of the district, making good friends with them, knowing that the children of today can be the doctor's patients of tomorrow.

Now, with all these means of adding to the gaiety of life lingering only in his memory, he looked at his wife's body and considered his scheme for enjoying her company for years to come.

Appearance of Health

He consulted his old friend, Dr. William Hunter, one of the foremost anatomists of the day. Hunter was familiar enough with his friend's queer ways, but he listened in astonishment.

Dr. Van Butchell wanted to embalm his wife, restoring the appearance as nearly as possible to one of health. He dispatched her body to Dr. Hunter's dissecting room, and there a remarkable change took place in Mrs. Van Butchell's appearance.

A mixture of oil of turpentine and camphorated spirit of wine injected into the vascular system gave her an appearance of ruddy health, particularly when her cheeks were suitably padded and stuffed with powdered niter and camphor. In a glass-fronted case, Mrs. Van Butchell was laid and held in place by a bath of plaster of Paris.

Errant-Husband Seeker Has Outstanding Record

NEW YORK.—George H. Lamb is one of the few favored men in the nation who are able to combine business with pleasure to an extent each year which insures them of a nice vacation.

Lamb is chief of the abandonment bureau of the Queen's district attorney's office. Every year, at about the time the season in New York indicates how desirable a warmer climate may be, Lamb hies himself to Florida or California or some other equally attractive setting.

Instead of a rod and reel, however, he takes along a few bench warrants charging abandonment and a lot of addresses and telephone numbers supplied by deserted wives with families to support.

He usually returns with a large bag of errant husbands. His last haul was 24 delinquent husbands and fathers out of a possible 37. Of these, 21 signed papers agreeing to help support their children. The other three refused to sign. With the aid of local police, Lamb had them arrested and returned to New York.

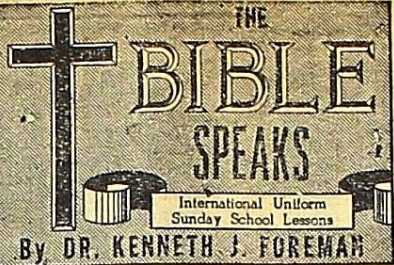

In his day Lamb has brought back some 3,000 errant fathers. He likes to think of the children who have benefited by his work.

Governor Receives Letter Addressed Only With Photo

ST. PAUL, MINN.—A picture of Gov. Luther Youngdahl pasted on the face of the envelope was the only address on a letter recently received by the governor.

The picture had been clipped from a newspaper and the letter came from Mrs. Elizabeth N. Fischer, postmaster at Streeter, N. D.

She explained that her hobby is collecting personal letters and autographs of persons in the news. She asked Youngdahl for a letter and a picture to add to her collection.

Satan's Throne

Lesson for February 26, 1950

"I HOLD NO BRIEF for him" is a lawyer's expression often borrowed by other people. A lawyer who holds a brief for a man has been employed to represent him. It is his duty to present the man in the best light possible.

Now we know about the early church at Corinth from two sources: Luke and Paul. The book of Acts was written, among other reasons, to show that the Christian church, far from being a subversive movement as its enemies claimed was a benefit to the world. Of course this was true; but since this was Luke's purpose, he naturally omitted as much of the church's shortcomings as he could, and played up the good features.

Church with the Lid Off

Paul, on the other hand, writing to the church at Corinth (and to others as well), held no brief for them. He was not trying to praise them or to tell anybody how good they were.

He knew them intimately; he had indeed converted most of the members.

His letters to Corinth, from which our lesson gives a small sample, shows us a church "with the lid off."

Where Satan's Throne Is

YEARS AFTERWARD, another Christian writer said of another church that they lived "where Satan's throne is." You might almost have said the same thing of Corinth. It was a large commercial city; people from everywhere funneled into it. Like any city of this sort it had earned a reputation for wickedness of every kind—drink, liquor, gambling, women, cut-throat business, rotten politics—it was all there. Even in the easy-going Roman world, Corinth was notorious.

Corinth was a sort of man-made jungle, like our own great cities today. It made a sort of test case: If the church could succeed in Corinth it could succeed anywhere.

If the power of Christ could make new men and women out of the denizens of that great city, there was no jungle, man-made or nature-made, where Christ could not go. Can men and women be Christian in the midst of a non-Christian, even anti-Christian world?

Our Pagan World

PAUL'S ANSWER, of course, is Yes: on one condition. You must take your pattern for living from Jesus, not from the world around you. The big problem at Corinth, which included all other problems, was the fact that the Christians there were acting too much like the people outside the church. Christians must be different! insisted Paul. This is not an echo of a bygone time.

Our own world is a new Corinth. Even into the remotest village, the most isolated farm, the world of our time pushes in, by radio, movies, magazines and papers and advertising, even by schools and clubs. And it is a pagan world.

Take the movies alone, that fertile source of most young people's ideas. Hollywood's idea of marriage—a temporary affair till boredom do us part; Hollywood's idea of a good time—liquor flowing free; Hollywood's idea of success—an immense house with an even bigger swimming pool.

Not that there are no good moving pictures; but in general what is made glamorous on a thousand screens is anything but a Christian world.

And Be Ye Separate

PAUL KNEW it is not practical to have no contact with evil. He would not approve of Christians going into monasteries where they would henceforth see none but top-grade saints. Christians have to live in the world,

Charter Member
It was decided by the members of a humane society to rent a store window and put in an exhibit of wild furred animals to aid them in their campaign against the ruthless killing of the creatures. It was a grand exhibit and was spoiled only by a man who insisted upon getting in amongst the stuffed animals.

"I belong in there," he insisted. At first they thought he was intoxicated but when he pointed out his argument they admitted he had some cause for his actions.

His reason for wanting to join the exhibit was a large sign the society had had printed and placed in the window. It read, "We were skinned to provide furs for fashionable women."

Hadacol is Helpful to Folks of All Age Groups

Countless thousands have proved that HADACOL is beneficial to folks of all ages.

For instance, Miss Ethel Guidry, 822 Montgomery St., Port Neches, Texas, only 17 years old, was "feeling nervous, had little appetite, her face was pale and drawn and she suffered from gas on the stomach." Miss Guidry says she could not eat the kind and type of food she wanted without feeling "stuffed" afterwards.

Miss Guidry, who recently graduated from high school, is already working in a bank. She said that after taking several bottles of HADACOL she is now "feeling wonderful" and has "lots of pep and energy."

Most folks take HADACOL because it has worked such wonders for relatives or friends. Miss Guidry took HADACOL because her mother had taken 12 bottles with excellent results.

In nearby Port Arthur, Texas, Mrs. W. M. Thompson took HADACOL because it had done her husband so much good. That is the reason so many purchase the large economy size bottle so all the family can benefit from nature's Vitamins and Minerals in HADACOL.

Mrs. Thompson's normal weight is 135 pounds, but she was down to 110 pounds before taking HADACOL, and after taking a few bottles of HADACOL she regained her normal weight.

"I was bothered with stomach trouble, gastric disturbances, I had lost my appetite and was bloated," said Mrs. Thompson. She had tried several preparations before taking her husband's advice on HADACOL and now she enthusiastically recommends HADACOL to her friends.

She, too, like Miss Guidry and the others, was suffering from the lack of the B Vitamins and Minerals in her system which HADACOL contains.

A lack of only a small amount of the B Vitamins and certain Minerals will cause digestive disturbances... Your food will not agree with you... You will have an upset stomach... You will suffer from heart burns, gas pains, and your food will sour on your stomach, and you will not be able to eat the things you like for fear of being in misery afterwards. Many people also suffer from constipation. And while these symptoms may be the results of other causes, they are surely and certainly the symptoms and signs of the lack of the B Vitamins and Minerals contained in HADACOL. And if you suffer from such a disorder, there is no medicine, drug or treatment that will cure you except the administration of the Vitamins and Minerals which your system lacks.

HADACOL contains not only one, but five of the B Vitamins. HADACOL contains not only one, but four of the necessary Minerals. It comes to you in liquid form, easily assimilated in the blood stream so that it can go to work right away. You cannot be satisfied with just temporary relief. HADACOL attacks and cures the source of such deficiency diseases.

It is easy to understand, therefore, why countless thousands have already been benefited by this amazing tonic, HADACOL. Accept no substitute—insist on the genuine HADACOL!

So, it matters not who you are... matters not where you live... or if you have tried all the medicines under the sun, give this wonderful preparation a trial. Don't go on suffering! Don't continue to lead a miserable life. Many persons who have suffered and waited for 10 to 20 years or even longer, are able now to live happy, comfortable lives again because HADACOL supplied the Vitamins and Minerals which their systems needed. Be fair to yourself. Give HADACOL a trial.

We are so firm in our belief that HADACOL will help you that we sell HADACOL on a money-back guarantee. If you don't feel perfectly satisfied after using HADACOL as directed, just return the empty carton and your money will be cheerfully refunded. Nothing could be fairer.

Sold at all the leading drug stores. Trial size only $1.25, but save money—buy the large family and hospital size—only $3.50.

If your druggist does not have HADACOL, order direct from The LeBlanc Corporation, Lafayette, Louisiana. Send no money. Just your name and address on a penny postcard. Pay postman. State whether you want the $3.50 hospital economy size or the $1.25 trial size. Remember, money cheerfully refunded unless you are 100% satisfied—Adv

Ruth Herriman Writes from Wheaton College

Dear Folks,
The Lord hath done great things for us; whereof we are glad. You've probably been hearing what's been happening here at school for we've been getting reports back from all over the U. S., and even across the oceans.
I really don't know how to tell you about it. It's so wonderful there aren't words for it. I didn't even imagine that I'd ever see such a demonstration of the working of the Holy Spirit, and truly that is what it has been.
We had been praying for a revival, and yet none of us realized what we were praying for. We prayed that the Lord would see fit to start it in us; yet if we had realized what it involved we would have been truly afraid.
The services Sunday and Monday weren't so very unusual. Pastor Ed. Johnson of First Mission

Church in Seattle, Washington, brought messages straight from the Word of God, making no emotional appeal. He pointed out the greatness of the small sins in the eyes of God. Tuesday was a day of prayer and all classes were disbanded.
Wednesday night it all started. We sang a hymn, had prayer and sang our theme chorus "Send a Great Revival to My Soul." Then Dr. Edman asked if there were any testimonies. He was going to have them before the offering, hymn and message. They started testifying and more and more kept standing. I've never heard anything like it. At eleven o'clock the next morning, we sang the hymn and at 9:00 Thursday night we had the offering—just 26 hours later. We had a message Thursday night, but then the testimonies went on through the night. The two prayer rooms were full with kids getting things right with the Lord, and these rooms stayed full most of the night.

At 9:00 A. M. on Friday, Dr. Edman asked that the remaining testimonies go into one of the prayer rooms. He was afraid there were too many outsiders coming to watch out of sheer curiosity, and he was afraid it would stop the working of the Holy Spirit. Of course, the newspapers played it up as though the revival stopped in its 40th hour. But, praise the Lord, it's not. It's still going strong. How we have proved the truth of John 1:9—"If we confess our sins, He is faithful and just to forgive us our sins and to cleanse us from all unrighteousness."
Some of the papers and many people attribute it to purely emotion. But we know it's not. Emotion can't convict a person of sin; emotion doesn't search your heart the way the Holy Spirit has searched ours; emotion can't make it complete change in our lives and give such a wonderful desire for real communion with our Lord. That's not emotion; that's the power of God.
Some of the reporters were visibly touched by it. The Life reporter has been really sincere, and when he called my girl friend again Saturday, she said he seemed so interested. Clifton Utley, the news analyst, was out one night. He's been on the campus before, so he knows something about Wheaton. He met one of our Profs in Chicago Saturday and was telling him about a party he'd been to. They were discussing the revival out here and were attributing it to emotionalism. But he told them, "I'm afraid I'll have to differ with you on that point, I know those kids and I know they're sincere." God has been touching hearts. It's just a miracle the way He's worked. One atheist from the University of Chicago came out Thursday night with one of the reporters. At 3:00 A. M. he accepted Christ.

ST MARY'S GUILD
At last week's meeting of St. Mary's Guild of Christ Church, Ray Coleman related experiences of his 14 months in Japan during the war. Chiefly an agricultural nation, he said the farms averaged only two acres each. Few cows were to be seen, and milk is available for only babies and the sick, while chickens are practically unknown in Japan.
Mr. Coleman showed yards and yards of silk materials, some of which was exquisitely embroidered. He had lovely bowls of teak-wood, a light weight, tough wood found only in Japan. Parasols of silk and of parchment, beautifully hand embroidered kimonos, table cloths of finest linen, guesome swords, guns and a hari-kari set, were other items of his collection.
So sure were the Japanese that they would take over the United States they had paper money already printed in English! And some of the illiterate Japanese soldiers returning from the war thought they had been fighting in Texas.

Mr. Coleman paid tribute to the frugality of the Japanese, their ability in the arts and feel that Christianity will be welcomed and embraced in Japan at the present time.
The program of the evening was followed by a lovely lunch served from a Valentine decorated table. Mrs. Harry Haun, Mrs. Ray Chandler, Mrs. George Gifford and Mrs. Harley Welch were the committee.

Up Pike's Peak
Up from summertime at the base of Pike's peak, passengers ride the famous cog railway through spring temperatures, finally emerging to winter at the summit.

EAST TAWAS P-TA

Monday evening the East Tawas Parent-Teachers Association met at the High School with President Paul Dixon in charge.
Stuart White gave a talk on the work of the Area Study Committee and presented a colored movie, "The Way of Life," picturing scenes at the Rural Agricultural Consolidated School of Beaverton, with sound effects. Paul Dixon named the following committee to represent the P-TA in working with the School Area Study Group: Mr. and Mrs. Bert Stoll, Mr. and Mrs. Kingsley Smith and Mr. and Mrs. Berkeley Smith.

Plans were made to hold an open house and exhibit in all rooms for parents. Mrs. George Newcomb was named chairman to plan this affair.
After the meeting lunch was served in the home-arts room by Tenth Grade Mothers. Decorations were a centerpiece of red and blue lighted candles and a drum with an arrangement of American flags.

Many Madisons
More than half of the American states have cities or towns named Madison. There are 27 of them, including two in Alabama; located in different counties. Adams is next, with 26 states, according to the Railway Express agency.

Some of the papers and many people attribute it to purely emotion. But we know it's not. Emotion can't convict a person of sin; emotion doesn't search your heart the way the Holy Spirit has searched ours; emotion can't make it complete change in our lives and give such a wonderful desire for real communion with our Lord. That's not emotion; that's the power of God.
