Elks Win Second Round In District Tourney

Oscoda, Hale and East Tawas Eliminated

Harrisville and Arenac Eastern Play Tonight; Finals Saturday Night

The Tawas City High Elks assured themselves a place in the District Finals Saturday night, with a 54 to 39 win over Hale, last night (Thursday).

A nip and tuck first half with Hale matching Tawas, basket for basket, kept the fans on the edge of their seats, with half time score reading: Tawas City 23, Hale 21. In the third quarter, the Elks hooped 18 points against Hale's nine, and in the final stanza, Tawas City scored 13 more, while Hale garnered nine.

Top man in the scoring column, was Shellenbarger, of Hale, with 21 points. For Tawas City: McGuire, 19; Gingerich, 15; and B. Myles, 11.

Tonight (Friday) Harrisville will go against Arenac Eastern, who drew byes for Wednesday and Thursday, Saturday night. Tawas City will face the winner of the Friday night contest.

Harrisville High pulled off one of the biggest upsets of the year Wednesday night, in the District tourney held here, when they squeezed by a strong East Tawas squad, 52 to 51, in the waning seconds of the last quarter. The Tawas City Elks, the same night, warped the Oscoda Owls, in another fast moving game 53 to 46.

Harrisville really upset the appecart as far as the odds were concerned. They looked very weak in the first quarter with the Indians cracking the whip to the tune of 16 to 5, but the second stanza found some of the fans squirming in their seats when Harrisville outscored East Tawas 14 to 13. East Tawas had a commanding lead at the half, 29 to 19, but spectators, about 600 strong, hadn't seen anything yet. Harrisville was red hot and they outscored the Indians 17 to 14 in the third quarter, slowly chopping away that 10 point half-time lead of the Indians.

The last quarter turned into a madhouse, when in the last 37 seconds, Vinson, crackerjack center for Harrisville rang up five points, the last basket coming within a split second before the bell. When the game ended Harrisville had racked up 16 points to the Indians eight, and it ended one of the most exciting games of the season.

Vinson, of Harrisville, played the biggest roll in the upset, garnering 26 points while Tom Tate, with 18 and Bill Ludwig with 15 led East Tawas.

The opening game of the night found Tawas City on the lung end of a 53 to 46 score over Oscoda.

This game was no pushover for Tawas City, as the score indicates, with the Elks holding a seven point advantage.

The Elks, outscored in the first quarter 8 to 7, came back in the second stanza, burning in 21 points while Oscoda came up with 10.

Another rip-roaring third quarter, the Elks came up with 16 points while the Owls garnered 13. The final quarter found Oscoda pouring in 15 points to Tawas City's nine, but that big second quarter (Continued No. 1, Back Page)

Returns to Picture "Fish Eye View" In Color

The article "Fish Eye View," in Life magazine, last week, by Joe Clark, free lance photographer, created quite a sensation, so much in fact, that Mr. Clark returned to the setting of his underwater picture taking on Tawas Bay, last week-end to photograph the same thing in color.

Perchville will be pretty well known around the country after having pictures in Life, Associated Press Wirephotos, and over WJR, Mort Neff, of Detroit, took movies of the Tawas Bay colony Saturday for his Television show in Detroit.

An interesting article about Joe Clark appeared in June, 1946, Popular Photography magazine. A few paragraphs of the story went on to say that "If you see a magazine cover or illustration with a line 'Photo by Joe Clark,' you probably will note a simplicity and common appeal that over a few years has brought this hillbilly from Tennessee into the top rank of photographers, with a success story that is as unusual as the beginning was accidental."

May Ask 2 Road Board Members To Resign

Supervisors Meet to Solve Fuel Problem—Put Heat on Road Commission

Called Tuesday to take care of a coal emergency at the courthouse, the activities of the board of supervisors expanded into matters pertaining to the Iosco County Road Commission, and the board considered an action to request the resignation of Glenn P. Sabin and Clarence Curry as members of the commission.

While the emergency meeting was called Tuesday to devise means to furnish heat for the courthouse, some real heat was placed under the remaining two old members of the road commission. This followed an informal report by Supervisor Gordon Welcome of the road and bridges committee on the policies and past activities of the road commission.

The board of supervisors have had the commission under fire for some time. This resulted in declaring Elmer Britt's seat on the commission vacant and the naming of Arthur Goulette as his successor. After hearing Welcome's report, the board was apparently ready to ask for the resignation of the other two members. Supervisor Harold Black, chairman of the roads and bridges committee, and Supervisor Theodore Bellville, however, urged the board not to be too hasty, and pointed out that the emergency meeting had been called for another purpose.

A special meeting of the board will be held next Thursday to hear a formal report on the road commission by the committee and at that time necessary steps to meet the situation will be considered.

The board requested Prosecuting Attorney R. J. Barnett to assist the committee in checking the records of the road commission in preparing the formal report which will be made Thursday.

The coal emergency at the courthouse was temporarily relieved by securing a quantity of coal at Alpena.

YWL Minstrels to Be Again Presented

The Young Women's League Minstrel show presented on February 20 and 21 at the Tawas City Gym was so well accepted and enjoyed that by special request it will be given again on March 16 at the Community Building in East Tawas. As anticipated, the show was enjoyed by everyone and many of the specialty acts were applauded so vigorously that several encores had to be given to satisfy the audience.

Due to the fact that many of the members were approached by friends and relatives stating they would like to see it again and some people expressing their misfortune in missing the presentation, it was voted at the meeting on Monday, February 27 to present it again with some additions and changes to make it more interesting for those who will be seeing it a second time.

After the regular business meeting Monday night at the Holland Hotel, Miss Lenora Hass, County Librarian, gave a review of several interesting books and a talk on the operation of the County Librarian's office.

The hastesses for this meeting included Effie Mallon as Chairman, Grace Hanna, Sophia Murrell, Virginia Coyle, Jean Davis and Marguerite Fox. The table was decorated with book ends and books in accordance with the scheduled program and cake and coffee was served.

The regular meeting of the D. U. V. will be held in the basement of the Beckett Real Estate Office, Wednesday, March 8.

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS

Einstein Calls Arms Race Suicide; Truman Asks GI School Abuse End; Bigger Cities Launch War on Crime

EDITOR'S NOTE: When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of Western Newspaper Union's news analysis and not necessarily of this newspaper.

TRUMAN BUYS FIRST POPPY . . . Mrs. Marie L. Sheehey, Rockville, Ill., national president of the American Legion Auxiliary, pins the first 1950 poppy on President Truman's lapel at a White House ceremony. The Legion poppy sale, proceeds of which go to disabled veterans, begins May 27.

ARMS RACE: Suicide Road

A solemn warning that an arms race between the United States and Russia beckons annihilation was issued by Dr. Albert Einstein.

Appearing on a television show, Einstein, hailed as the world's greatest mathematician and one of the great physicists of the world, declared the arms contest now underway is assuming "hysterical" proportions on both sides.

ONE of the chief contributors to the final development of the atomic bomb, Einstein declared that "the means to mass destruction are perfected with feverish haste behind the respective walls of secrecy. The H-bomb appears on the public horizon as a probably attainable goal and its accelerated development has been solemnly proclaimed by the President."

Then he uttered the punch line: "Armed security is an illusion if successful, radioactive poisoning of the atmosphere and hence annihilation of any life on earth has been brought within the range of technical possibilities."

To implement that conclusion, he said: "The ghostlike character of this development lies in its apparently compulsory trend. Every step appears as the unavoidable consequence of the preceding one. In the end, there beckons more and more and more general annihilation."

FEW MEN could speak with more compelling authority on that subject than the white-haired, brilliant-eyed, venerable scientist who has contributed so much to the sum of man's knowledge.

But each time civilization has been wont to attempt annihilation through war, there has been little disposition to listen to those voices who would cry out a warning.

GI SCHOOLS: Abuse End Asked

The fantastic, preposterous elements in the GI school program had just about run their course. Ballroom dancing, bartending, even a lot of individual flight training by ex-GIs who would never own an airplane or have occasion to need one, were on the way out, apparently, as part of the accepted GI school training program.

NO LESS A FIGURE than President Truman himself handed congress a catalog of abuses under this year's 2.75-billion-dollar GI education program and urged the legislators to clamp down.

Mr. Truman asked specifically for legislation to prevent "inferior" training of that type which is likely to do the veteran little appreciable good.

His report showed that 761 million dollars already has been added to the estimated cost of the GI schooling program for the current fiscal year ending June 30, and attributed this to increased enrollment for trade, vocational and other schools below college level.

THE PRESIDENT declined to say just how much might be saved by a careful scrutiny of the program, but hinted at a billion dollars.

Among others, the report made these points: 1. Enough poor-quality training is in evidence "to warrant serious concern."

2. The states—which under the law have the say-so about approving schools and courses—lack uniform standards.

3. Some states approve schools of a type which would not be approved in other states.

As an example, it is said that some states qualify barbers in 11 weeks, others require two years.

BUILDERS' DREAM

Mud Can Be Made Stronger Than Concrete

Certain chemicals plus a sloppy mud patch which, in 24 hours, produces a firm soil pack that may be a road stronger than concrete should prove to be a contractor's dream.

The new technique was reported by the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. It was reported the process is especially needed to "give a tough surface for landing

Crime A CHECK-UP

With 14 metropolitan newspapers taking a careful scrutiny of its operations, and the federal government opening a conference on what to do about it, U.S. crime appeared to have fallen on evil days.

Not for decades had the boys who deal in shady enterprises had so much publicity focused upon them. Names were being called, police officials were getting the lifted-eyebrow treatment, wire services were ripping telephones out of bookie joints and, all in all, it appeared to be a real blow into which the craft of crime was wallowing.

THE PRESS would be the real instrument of exposure, granted that officialdom in cities included really wanted to clean up the undesirable conditions. For example, New York city's fabulous Frank Costello, often called the king of the racket, was the first target of the newspaper series. Costello was referred to as a "fellow so unbelievable he might have been dreamed up by a Hollywood script writer."

The story attempted to link him with top-flight gambling activities over most of the U.S. One significant line in the first of the newspapers' series was this: "Gambling can't operate for any period unless the police let it operate. Nor can the other rackets."

THAT was so obviously axiomatic that there could be no argument with it, and honest cops over the nation had to take the rap with the hand-held-ot boys when blame was being shuffled around for lax law enforcement.

The slot machine—termed variously the "one-armed bandit" and other unprintable names—was the target for a special government inquiry. It was indicated that their menace is so fully realized that the federal government may step in to help the state control them.

There is an ironical contradiction here, however, because the federal government licenses slot machines and accepts revenue from that source. If the federal government should outlaw them, it would go a long way toward insuring efficient state control.

INDONESIA: Uncle Comes Through

The United States, continuing its efforts to stop communism by strengthening local nationalist regimes over the globe, approved a loan of 100 million dollars to the new republic of Indonesia.

THE MONEY, according to reports, was to be used by Indonesia to finance purchase in this country of industrial material and equipment for reconstruction of the Indonesian economy.

It was reported that funds from the import-export bank, which made the loan, might be flowing to Indonesia in a matter of weeks for purchase of railroad cars, trucks and similar equipment, but that a longer time would be required for such items as heavy machinery.

THE INDONESIANS, numbering 75 million people, are faced with a major task of restoring production to an economy not yet recovered from the effects of wartime Japanese occupation.

The funds from the United States would go principally to repair of war-damaged port, railway, highway and processing facilities and replacement of damaged transportation facilities.

The loan was the largest since the import-export bank agreed to lend Israel 100 million dollars several months ago.

COAL DISPUTE: Strikes vs. Courts

If the recent coal strike did nothing else, it may have set in motion forces that will bring about a determination for all time of the power of the courts of the land to deal with big walkouts.

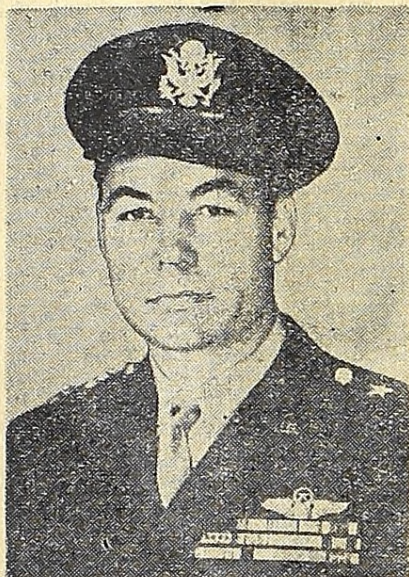

It is true that John L. Lewis, under pressure of the law, capitulated and ordered the miners back to work; but when he gave the order the miners were defiant and no one knew whether they would return to the pits in sufficient numbers to ease the production situation.

THE BIG QUESTION in the minds of most Americans was: What can be done about it? If the miners didn't want to work, who could make them return to the pits? In this still-free land, men can work or quit without penalty under the law. But could their union be punished because its members quit as a group, since the law says a union is responsible for the acts of its "agents"?

If that were the attempted remedy, the question surely would be raised: Were the miners acting as individuals in pursuit of their individual rights in working, or must they be regarded as "agents" of the union in their decision? It was a tortuous question and one certain to provide a classic case for the courts.

Of course if Lewis and the operators, under order of the court to resume bargaining, were to reach an agreement, the question would become a moot one. But under the recurrent stress of coal strikes—and usually at a time when coal stockpiles are lowest—the result may be the writing of some new law, or court-decision approach to break up the continual crises which hamstring production and contribute to widespread unemployment and consequent suffering.

A-Test Chief

Maj. Gen. Robert M. Lee will be in command of the air force units taking part in new atomic weapons tests to be held at the Eniwetok atoll proving grounds this spring.

MISSILES: U.S. Trailing

United States Senator Johnson (D., Tex.) is claiming that Russia is far ahead of the United States in development of guided missiles and has called for an immediate review of this nation's guided-missiles program.

JOHNSON ASSERTED that the United States is lagging as much as two years behind the Russians in this field of warfare and added: "If guided missile warfare should begin within the next two or three years—we at our present rate—would be very feeble participants for a push-button war, we have neither the push nor the button."

HE STATED that the nation's missile program is a "minor, almost obscure item" in the defense budget.

'Maybe So'

According to a California Democrat who might know, President Truman has been thinking about the 1952 presidential election.

George Luckey, Los Angeles vice-chairman of the California Democratic central committee, has reported that he put the question up to the President during a White House visit and got "maybe so" for an answer.

"He said 'maybe so,'" Luckey told reporters. "He said that if we have the same team together again, maybe we can do something."

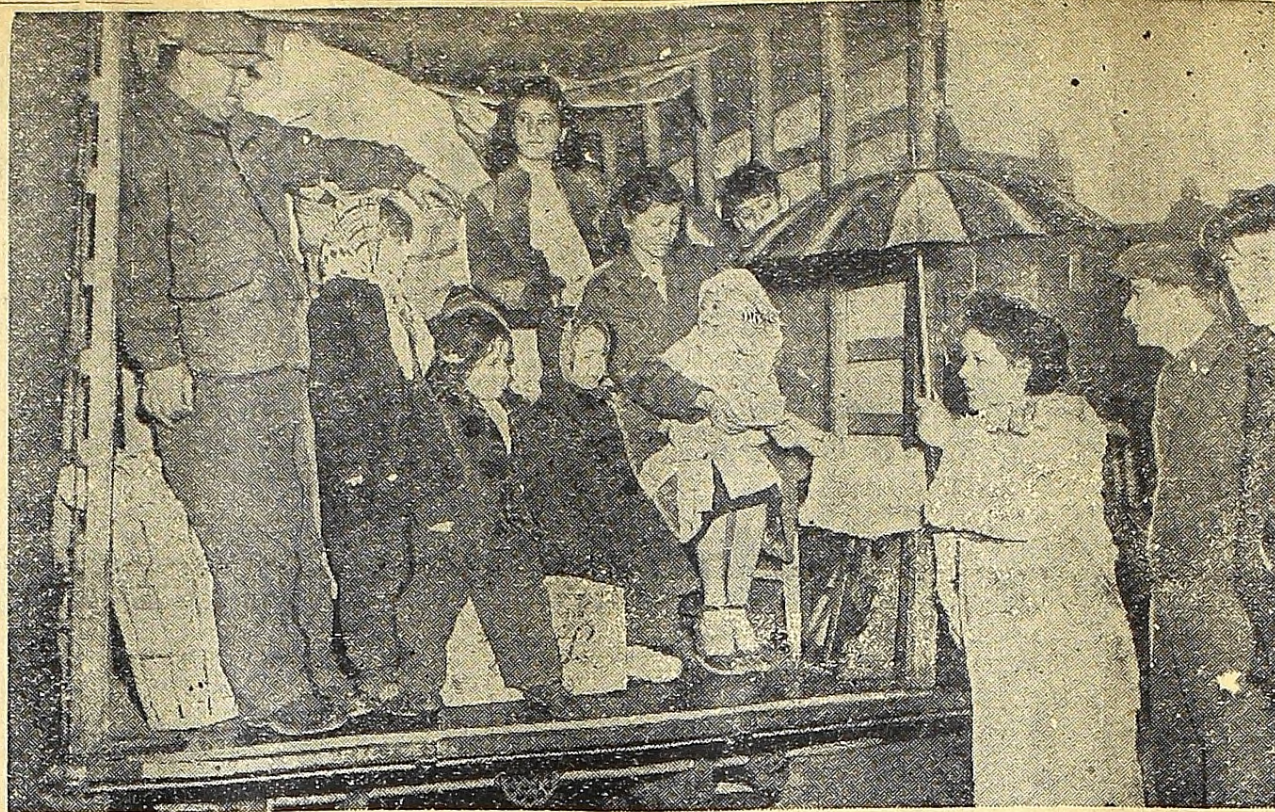

Luckey said by "team" the President meant those who supported him in 1948.

While Mr. Truman has never declared openly that he would be a candidate for reelection in 1952, he has never flatly ruled out the possibility.

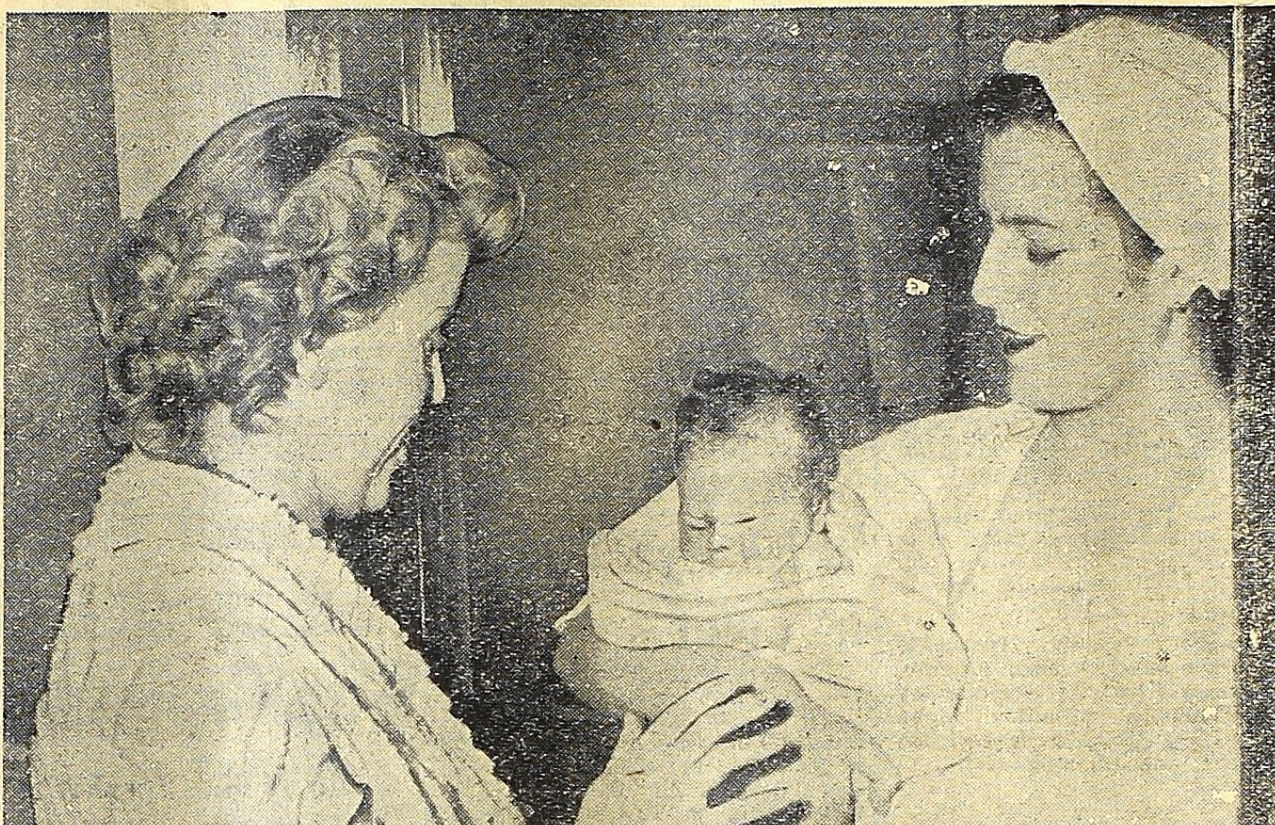

ASIA: Secret Talks

Some indication of the significance of Asia in developing world affairs could be had in the report that 17 American envoys had held a secret, three-day parley in Bangkok on the tumultuous problems of the continent.

They were attempting, report said, to find means of strengthening United States policy in an already half-Red and half undecided

EVICTED FAMILY FINDS SHELTER IN A TRUCK . . . Were it not for a large truck commandeered by a kindly neighbor, Carmine Laquara and his family of seven would have been out in the rain following eviction from their Brooklyn home. The family is on relief, and until it finds some place to live, it will make the truck its home. Reason for the eviction is that the owner needed the apartment for himself. BLOOD REPLACEMENT SAVES LIFE . . . Kathleen Anne Ruberry, one week old, frowns in arms of nursemaid, as the child's mother, Mrs. Ethel Ruberry, looks at her baby through a glass window at Chicago's Mt. Sinai hospital. Kathleen is on the road to becoming a normal baby because of a complete blood replacement transfusion in which her deadly Rh blood was replaced with normal blood from the hospital's blood bank. A similar operation saved the life of another of Mrs. Ruberry's children. Previously, she had given birth to four babies, all with the Rh factor, and all had died shortly after birth.

COMMITTEE MEETS TO CONSIDER ATOMIC SECRET LEAKS . . . The joint congressional atomic committee—Sen. Tom Connally (D., Texas), David Lilienthal, A. E. C. chairman, and Sen. Brien McMahon (D., Conn.), chairman of the joint atomic congressional committee—holds an emergency meeting in Washington to discuss with the A. E. C. "such information as the commission possesses regarding the British scientist, Dr. Emil Fuchs, who has been arrested in London as a spy." Atomic energy commission members reportedly told the legislators that this British case is far more serious than the 1946 Canadian spy case.

THE AIR FORCE DECORATES BOB HOPE . . . Comedian Bob Hope receives in Washington the "exceptional service award for long outstanding interest in military aviation and military airmen, and generous support of both," from Air Secretary W. Stuart Symington, while Hope's wife, Dolores, looks on with pride. After Hope received his award, one of the air force's highest decorations, Mrs. Hope received a scroll of appreciation which said, in part, her "talent and presence contributed much to the morale of airmen overseas and in hospitals." Hope spent Christmas with the boys in service in far-northern bases in Alaska. He spent most of the war years entertaining service men.

Matter of Garb Mr. Jones had the usual man-lost-in-department-store look about him. The floorwalker noticed him wandering aimlessly about, and noticing his rather shabby suit, inquired politely: "Are you looking for something in men's clothing, sir?"

No Hurry, Doc Mr. Jones (on phone)—"Hello? Dr. Smith?" Doctor—"Yes." Mr. Jones—"My wife has just dislocated her jaw. If you should be in the neighborhood in the next couple of weeks or so maybe you'd drop in and have a look at her."

Time for Caution Mr. Smith was always preoccupied when he washed the dishes and kept only one ear open for anything his wife might have to say. She gazed fondly at their small son sleeping in his crib and said: "He's more like you every day, dear."

"NO MORE SLEEPLESS NIGHTS"

"I feel so much better since I no longer have to dread those awful sleepless nights! My 'insomnia' turned out to be due to caffeine in the coffee I drank. So I switched to POSTUM and now I get 8 hours of restful sleep every night!"

Are sleepless nights, due to "coffee nerves", interfering with your good health?... Do you wake up in the morning, feeling tired and lousy?... Then, try a switch to 100% caffeine-free POSTUM. See if you don't enjoy good, natural sleep that makes you feel better and enjoy life more.

SCIENTIFIC FACTS: Both coffee and tea contain caffeine. And caffeine is a drug that acts upon the brain and central nervous system. Also—in susceptible persons—caffeine tends to produce harmful stomach acidity. So, while many people can drink coffee or tea without ill-effect, others suffer nervousness, indigestion, sleeplessness. But POSTUM contains no caffeine or other drug—nothing that can possibly keep you awake!

MAKE THIS TEST: Give up coffee—give up tea—drink POSTUM exclusively for 30 days—and judge by results! Ask your grocer today for INSTANT POSTUM—A Vigorous Drink made from Healthful Wheat and Bran—100% caffeine-free! POSTUM is a Product of General Foods.

GRASSROOTS by WRIGHT A PATTERSON

Empire Has Been Lost

KING GEORGE VI of England is reported in the invalid class, following an operation of some weeks ago. He is said not to be in a serious condition, but should anything happen and the Princess Elizabeth be called to the throne, she would be crowned as a queen only, not as an empress, as was her great grandmother, Victoria. There is no longer a British empire, and she will not be empress of India. Without that now defunct title all she will inherit is five queenly crowns, those of England, Australia, Canada, South Africa and New Zealand. With that of England goes the reign over England's colonies.

It was in the fall of 1913 that King George V, the father of the present monarch, explained the status of the English monarchy to a small group of American newspaper men, of which I was one. He said that as king he had no authority as a ruler; that to the British people, and to those of the British commonwealth of nations he was but a symbol, he was to them only what the American flag is to us Americans.

The head of the state, the government, in England, as in the other four nations, is the prime minister. In each of the five nations the king names the prime minister, but he has no choice but to name the individual the majority in the parliament of each nation selects for the job.

As the most direct and eldest of the ruling family, should Elizabeth be called to the throne of England, she will automatically ascend the thrones of Canada, Australia, South Africa and New Zealand. They are not and have not been for some years English colonies. Each is an independent nation, and in each a people's parliament has named the reigning family in England as the reigning family in its nation with the same rights of succession as is true in England.

At the Atlantic conference between President Roosevelt and the English prime minister, Winston Churchill, held aboard a British warship off the coast of Canada, the President suggested to Churchill that England grant independence to India. Churchill's reply was that in accepting service as head of the English government he had not done so for the purpose of liquidating his majesty's empire.

The specific purpose of Prime Minister Attlee when he was named for the job at the direction of the Labor party representing a majority in Parliament was to socialize England. The expense involved in doing that precluded the possibility of maintaining an armed force, army and navy, sufficient to police and protect the Indian empire, and to meet obligations for arms the war had brought to England. He chose socialism for England as more desirable than holding onto the empire. The king could have no voice in the making of that choice. Attlee had done what Churchill had refused to consider. As a result when the time comes to reign, Elizabeth will not be empress of India.

One of the final chapters of that sad story of the loss of an empire was written at the recent conference of the English commonwealth of nations held at Colombo, Ceylon. It was a gathering of the prime ministers of five independent nations. They do not necessarily talk as one, nor are they subject to the dictation of any one. The set-up of it all sounds complicated, but in reality it is not so much so as it sounds. For an understanding, we need to realize that the British commonwealth of nations is but a name; that there is no obligated cohesion between them; that they are bound only by a sentiment born of a common origin of their peoples, sharing the same monarchy.

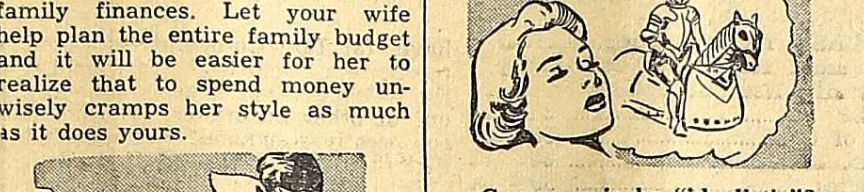

At some time in the future, the present Princess Elizabeth will wear the crowns of England, Canada, Australia, South Africa and New Zealand.

Soaking the rich for taxes is America's favorite sport. How long can it continue? There are in the nation 46,000 persons whose incomes are $50,000 a year and over. That is about 3 per cent of our population. That 3 per cent cannot long continue to provide the money with which to cash the 25 million checks the government writes for individuals each month. Some day soon the 130 million who are not rich must provide for themselves. Now would be a good time to start on the job.

MIRROR Of Your MIND Better to Share Budget Problems By Lawrence Gould

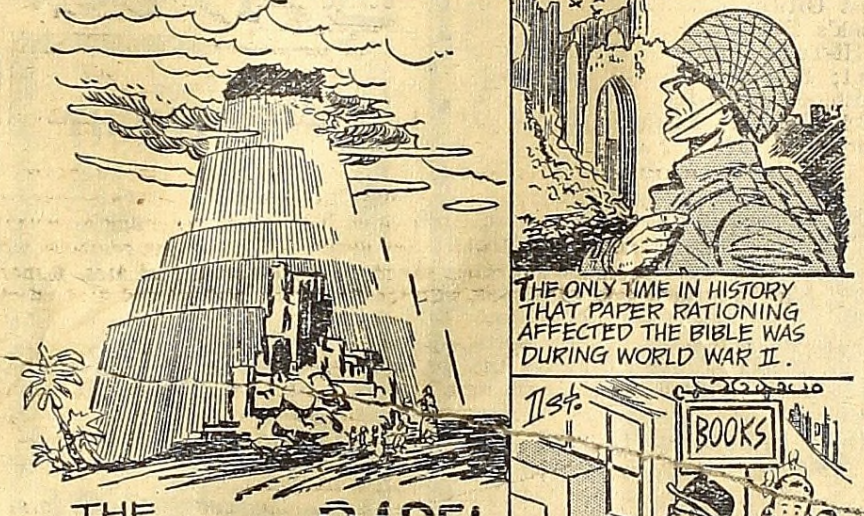

Can wifely extravagance be cured? Answer: If it's real extravagance, not just the protest of a stingy husband, it is obviously a childish characteristic based partly on a wish to hurt the husband and partly on refusal to accept the painful fact that she cannot have everything she wants. Both feelings are usually stronger in a wife who has no fixed allowance or share in control of the family finances. Let your wife help plan the entire family budget and it will be easier for her to realize that to spend money unwisely cramps her style as much as it does yours.

Can a cynic be "idealistic"? Answer: Yes, says Dr. Martin S. Fritz of Iowa State College. Responses of students to 200 "weighted" questions showed that although they were more prone to idealism than to cynicism, every student expressed both highly idealistic and highly cynical views. Actually, cynicism is only idealism "in reverse," since you must at least unconsciously have ideals or you would not become bitter over other people's not conforming to them. If you did not feel your neighbors should be honest, their dishonesty would not disturb you.

Do we make the world we live in? Answer: Much more than we realize, writes Edgar Rubin, Norwegian psychologist. What we think of as our everyday world—the world of objective things like trees, houses and people—is really created within ourselves by our thoughts, attitudes, opinions and

KEEPING HEALTHY Controlling High Blood Pressure

AS HIGH BLOOD PRESSURE is the cause of most of heart stroke (coronary thrombosis) and brain stroke (apoplexy), physicians try to caution patients about the risks they run if they are careless, and point out how they can live safely with high blood pressure as long, or nearly as long, as if they had normal pressure. Besides being given medicines to quiet and relax the blood vessels and rest the entire body, these patients are put on a low salt diet, must avoid tobacco and must not allow themselves to become overweight. In "The Canadian Medical Association Journal," Dr. E. Maurice Heller states that obesity (overweight) is usually, but not always, one of the associated causes of high blood pressure, "but so often the blood pressure drops significantly and even becomes normal and remains so if weight is kept within normal limits." As long as the patient is overweight, nerve cutting should not be done, as reduction of weight may be all that is necessary to bring blood pressure down to safe limits. Other methods of reducing blood pressure before surgery is used are rest, sedation (quieting of nerves with certain drugs) and psychotherapy (common sense advice as to why pressure is up and how it can be reduced). Dr. Heller points out the well-known fact that the emotional element, even in some cases where there are real underlying causes for high blood pressure, is very important and, that by helping the patient to acquire emotional control alone, the high blood pressure may entirely disappear. The effect of emotion on the body mechanism should be explained to the patient in simple terms and he should be instructed how to alter his daily routine. By showing him how his blood pressure drops when he rests and relaxes, and assuring him that the actual span of life may not be shortened because of high pressure if he follows directions, more severe or surgical treatment may not become necessary.

HEALTH NOTES

The age-old stigma must be removed from mental illness so that it will be accepted in all its forms as real, treatable, and in many cases preventable. Notwithstanding all that is known about cancer being curable in early stages, thousands die yearly whose lives might have been saved by early treatment. If varicose veins are present, your physician can make tests to find out if the deep veins will carry the blood back to the heart should the surface veins be removed by surgery or injections. Wiggling into an unnatural position in order to overcome bad eyesight may permanently affect the posture of the child.

Music Stores May Replace Druggist Shops

NEW YORK. — The time isn't here just yet, but it may not be too long before you can get your doctor's prescription filled at the music store instead of the drug counter.

Something like a symphony or sonata for sinus, some Debussy for that feeling of debility and a little Rachmaninoff for that restless feeling. And who would overlook Mozart for measles or mumps? Naturally, music won't set a broken leg or pull a tooth, but some of it will help you digest food better, quicken your breathing, give you more energy and lower your pulse and blood pressure.

The army spent money on the study of the curative and psychological effects of music at Walter Reed general hospital in World War II. Out of that venture has come the music research foundation.

It is not in any way an entertainment project. Indeed, the idea came as a rebound from an entertainment which drew an agonized scream from a wounded World War I soldier forced to listen to "Over There" . . . Over there where he had suffered terribly. His scream was heard by Miss Frances Paperte, then star of the Chicago Opera Co. Her eventual response was to decide that "all music is not good for all people." In World War II she tested out this belief among hospitalized soldiers, and later founded the Music Research foundation at a New York meeting in the home of Mrs. Benjamin Harrison.

Fritz Kreisler is honorary President. Charlotte Wilkie Pihl is Treasurer; directors include Jar-nilla Novotna of the Metropolitan Opera and Dr. R. C. Williams, U. S. assistant surgeon general; former advisers are Edwin Franko Goldman, Deems Taylor and Fred E. Ahlert President of ASCAP which was the first large contributor to the foundation's funds.

Musical classifications are "stimulating," "soothing," "happy" and so on. Among the listings prepared by musicologists, are Chopin's Waltz No. 6 in D-flat ("Minute") and the "Peer Gynt" Suite No. 1, by Grieg, "gay"; Chopin's Mazurkas op. 50, "stimulating"; Chopin's Prelude No. 7 in A major, and the Bach-Gounod "Ave Maria," "Soothing"; the Dance of The Spirits, from Gluck's "Orfeo And Euridice," "happy." Some neuropsychiatric patients, submitted to some curative music, were found to be less tense, to cry less, to "socialize" better, to have an improved emotional tone. New York medical men testify to the utility of music in the treatment of cardiac diseases and the administration of anesthetics. The doctor defines the patient's need: the musician selects and applies the appropriate number; the approach is primarily medical rather than musical, says Miss Paperte. She sums it up this way: "The Music Research foundation is attempting to make a reproducible science of the present haphazard application of music to various uses." The greatest present need, she says, is a "standardized procedure."

New Religious Gurus Doing Immense Business in Japan TOKYO, JAPAN.—Still booming are some 300 religious organizations in Japan as religion, following the war, is becoming even more topsy-turvy. Buddhism and Shintoism are gradually recovering from their great loss of prestige following the surrender and Christianity is said to be spreading very slowly, despite the occupation. It would appear that the tight money situation would discourage new cults, but it is very much otherwise. These new sects are doing a thriving business, attending the sick, advising disturbed businessmen and telling fortunes for the lovesick. Meanwhile, long-established churches are having trouble making both ends meet. Their followers either have deserted or have become impoverished. The religious section in the ministry of education reports that the 42 prewar organizations have been joined by 300 newcomers and that registrations are continuously pouring in from all over the country. The newcomers are credited with a following of 12,000,000 persons. The new religions are mostly mixtures of Buddhism and Shintoism. Their common characteristics are that the religious doctrines are simple and their founders are medium-like soothsayers. They stress the present world and do not distinguish much between clergy and laymen. They offer solutions for present ills such as sickness, poverty and crop trouble. Most of the founders of the new religions know something about medicine, magic and fortune telling, and use this knowledge effectively.

Burning Rubbish
Safety officials warn against burning rubbish in open piles. Sudden gusts of wind, they point out, often carry flaming particles to dry rooftops where many destructive fires break out. The recommended method of burning rubbish calls for the use of galvanized steel rubbish burners. These containers permit rubbish to burn rapidly inside of a safe all metal framework.

The meeting was called to order by the chairman Vernon Anderson with the Roll Call, Secretary's and Treasurer's reports being read by the secretary, Mrs. Lyle Robinson.

Due to having no Discussion Leader, the chairman led the group in discussion of "Co-Operatives Solve our Marketing and Buying Problems?" (1) Are Co-operatives a form of Socialism? We decided that they were not. (2) Why have Co-operatives? To render some services to patrons and farmers that they don't always have. (3) Do Co-operatives tend to create a monopoly? We decided the Cooperative keeps monopoly out of other businesses. (4) Should co-operatives expand? We decided that they should expand if needed.

The motion was made by Lyle Robinson, seconded by Nate Anderson that the meeting adjourn. Motion carried. Refreshments served by Mrs. Lyle Robinson.

RED CROSS HAS RECORD NUMBER SERVING U. S. MILITARY FORCES

With U. S. military forces at five times their prewar strength, a record number of American Red Cross workers are serving them throughout the world.

More than 2,000 Red Cross representatives today are stationed at 1,300 military installations and 123 hospitals here and overseas. About 1,400 staff workers are serving troops in this country. The others are working at occupation and defense posts abroad. Only during the peak years of World War II were a larger number on duty.

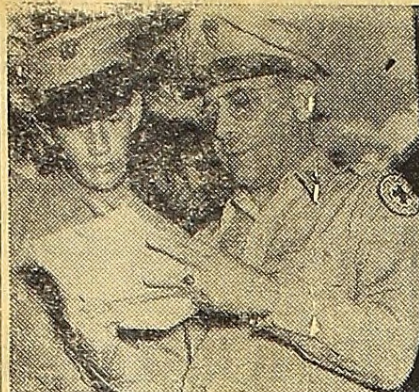

The duties of these Red Cross workers are as varied as the locale in which they work, involving a wide range of welfare services that contribute to military morale. They may include tiding over a soldier's wife with grocery and rent money until her family allowance check comes through, or getting a welfare report on an Eskimo serviceman's mother via weather bureau radio. Sometimes it means getting word of a family emergency to a sailor with the fleet in the Mediterranean.

Service of the Red Cross worker in a military hospital may be helping a man through the difficult hour when he learns that he will never be well again or removing the worry that often stands in the way of his recovery.

Under federal statute and regulations of the Army, the Navy, and the Air Force, the American Red Cross furnishes volunteer aid to the sick and wounded of the armed forces and acts in matters of voluntary relief and as a medium of communication between the people of the United States and their armed forces.

In the last year Red Cross staff members handled more than 102,000 welfare cases in military hospitals. More than 500 professional Red Cross workers are stationed at 40 army hospitals, 26 navy hospitals, and 14 air force hospitals.

For the able-bodied, too, whatever the problem or wherever the serviceman is stationed, the chances are that

The Red Cross man at Hickam Air Force Base, Hawaii, lends a helping hand to a young marine, enroute from Kwajalein to his Maine home on emergency leave.

The Red Cross has a field worker on the spot or nearby who can help try to solve it.

In this country 361 field directors and their assistants cover 148 base stations, 31 substations, and 923 itinerant stations. During the last year field directors at camps handled more than 672,000 cases. Health and welfare reports requested by servicemen or their families were the most common type of help asked for. More than 179,000 such cases were recorded. The next most frequent type of request was that involving leave or extension of leave. The Red Cross cannot grant leave, but military authorities depend upon the organization for reports of conditions underlying leave requests. These cases run into many thousands each year.

Abroad, Red Cross coverage is almost as complete as in this country. In Japan alone, 159 men and women are serving occupation troops at 31 military installations and 14 hospitals. Other parts of the Far East are equally well staffed.

In Europe, 248 Red Cross workers serve military personnel and their dependents at 51 military installations and 15 hospitals, most of them in occupied Germany. Coverage is also given in England and to miscellaneous units still in France.

BRING SPRING PIGS TO MARKET WEIGHT FASTER

Spring pigs will reach market weight faster if they're farrowed on clean ground and fed in sanitary lots, points out Harold R. Clark, county agricultural agent.

The agent cites tests made by the American Foundation for Animal Health which show that well cared for pigs reached a market weight of 210 pounds a month earlier than pigs retarded by internal parasites.

The test also showed that pigs raised on clean ground required a half pound less grain per pound of gain.

In addition to controlling parasites, agent Clark says, sanitary farrowing and feeding practices help prevent a number of infectious diseases and intestinal disorders which account for heavy pig losses every spring.

1. Install guard rails in farrowing houses to protect pigs against crushing.

2. Furnish clean earth for the newborn animals, to provide them with iron.

3. Check rations against deficiencies of B-complex vitamins; prevent overeating of rich concentrates.

4. At the first sign of a disease outbreak, sick animals should be isolated and a prompt diagnosis obtained to make sure of the exact cause of the illness.

5. Pigs should be vaccinated against hog cholera, and in certain areas against swine erysipelas.

What is the value of a land use planning program?

This question is frequently asked of Harold R. Clark, county agricultural agent, who cites a report of Raleigh Barlowe, Michigan State College agricultural economist, as an answer.

Barlowe says that solving land use problems in many Michigan counties is no longer left to someone in a far away place. Alert and informed local people have found that they can best solve their problems.

Sanilac county is an example of good land use planning, he states. For 50 years, controversy and litigation prevented the much-needed improvement of the vital Black River and Elk Creek drainage systems. Then, after only one year of educational work, the county land use planning committee brought the opposing factions together. The arguments are now at work.

The Sanilac county program includes more than strictly land use planning projects. Two years ago, only two pieces of fire fighting equipment served two rural townships of the county. Chiefly as a result of work of the committee, more than three-fourth of the farms in the county are now protected by a modern fire fighting system. Definite plans have been locally approved for serving the remaining farms.

Still other problems are attacked by actively working sub-committees in the county. They include schools, roads, industrial relations, taxation, rural health, weed con-

Control, soil and wildlife conservation, building restrictions, and zoning.

Barlowe reports that since 1939, twenty-three counties have set up intensive land use planning programs. They are aided by an assistant county agent who works with local committees, and by the state Land Use Planning Committee which was set up in 1940. The legislature, through enabling acts, has encouraged local planning.

CO-OPS HAVE NO MAGIC FORMULA

The latest in a series of Michigan State College discussion pamphlets cautions farmers to examine local conditions thoroughly before launching a new co-op business. According to Harold R. Clark, Iosco county agricultural agent, the pamphlets are used extensively in Iosco county and throughout the state.

D. E. Hathway, extension specialist and co-author of the series, explains that co-ops have no magic formula for success. Sound business principles are needed in co-operatives as much as in any other business.

The current pamphlet, "Will Co-ops Solve the Farmers' Problems?" presents both sides of major issues on co-ops. It suggests arguments for many questions.

For those thinking about organizing a co-op, the pamphlet emphasizes several points for careful consideration before going ahead. Success, it is pointed out, depends on such questions as whether there actually is a need for a co-op, or whether some existing business is servicing the area satisfactorily.

FOUR NEW SERIES OF CARS ...

The Series Sixty Special Sedan

..All Dramatically Restyled...and Powered by Cadillac's Sensational New Engine!

TODAY, we are presenting, for your consideration, the finest, most beautiful motor cars we have ever been privileged to announce.

They are the new Cadillacs for 1950—and we want you to come and see them.

We not only want you to see them—but we think you should see them. For to see and inspect these wonderful creations will make you a sharper judge of all cars—and increase your motor-car wisdom in every respect.

There are four entirely new series of cars—all with wholly new bodies, and all completely restyled. We think you'll agree that nothing so sleek and dynamic and beautiful has ever been seen on the world's streets and highways. They are arrestingly and breath-takingly gorgeous—and all are distinctively Cadillac.

And not only are they advanced in beauty—but their performance is finer in every way.

Cadillac's great new high-compression engine is even smoother; it is actually quicker in acceleration; and it runs so quietly that only the indicators reveal when it is in action. It is simply wonderful to drive.

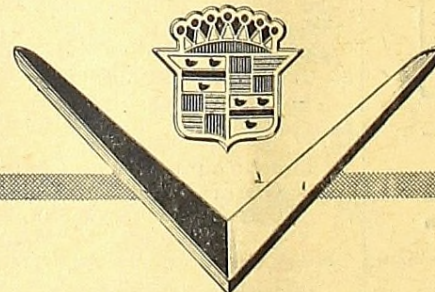

And—difficult as this will be for owners of 1949 Cadillacs to believe—the 1950 cars are even more economical to operate. Gasoline mileage really approaches that of the smaller, lowest-priced cars. It is no less than amazing that cars so big and luxurious should run so far on a gallon of gasoline.

Comfort and handling ease are also remarkably advanced. There is far finer road balance and over-all steadiness at all driving speeds. Steering is softer and more positive. Brakes are more efficient and longer-lived. The over-all satisfaction of driving—from every standpoint—is simply "out of this world."

Truly, here are cars so fine and beautiful that they deserve your personal consideration.

Make your plans now to come in and see them. You will be cordially welcome at any time.

They Still Grow Up

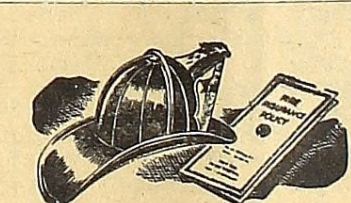

Almost 500 years before Columbus, Vikings were voyaging to America to harvest the forests, yet woodlands still cover more than 630 million acres. With the spread of modern forest management methods that increase regrowth, forests can continue to supply the country's needs forever. The American tree farm movement—the growing of trees as a farm crop—has been extended to nearly 14 million acres of privately owned woodlands. With improved forest management and adequate protection from fires, tree farming is expected to provide America with perpetual forests.

ANNOUNCES PRICE SUPPORT ON BEANS

The U. S. Department of Agriculture has announced that price support loans and purchase agreements on the 1950 crop of dry edible beans will be made available only to those growers who plant within assigned farm acreage allotments next spring.

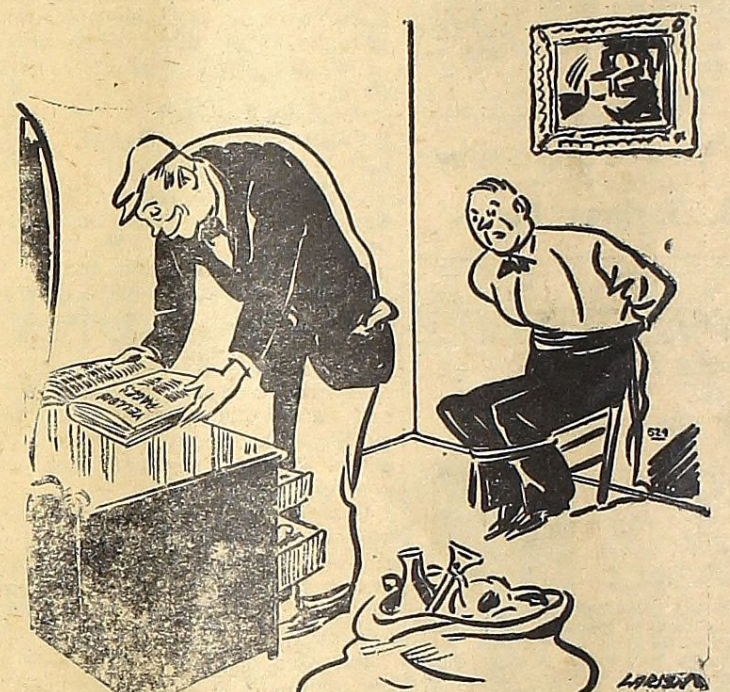

At the same time, it was announced that the price support rate for the 1950 dry bean crop will be about 25 cents per hundredweight less than the 1949 rate. Price support will apply to Navy beans, Red Kidney beans, and Cranberry beans in Michigan and only these varieties will be assigned allotments in Michigan. There will be no support acreage allotments on Yelloweye beans.

Earl M. Partlo, chairman of the Iosco County PMA Committee, said that individual farm acreage allotments for beans would be established and farmers notified in the early spring, well in advance of planting time.

Cooperation in the allotment program is entirely voluntary. Farmers who desire to plant beans in excess of their allotments may do so, but in so doing they declare themselves ineligible for price support next fall on their 1950 crop.

The acreage allotment program, combined with the price support program, are designed to affect production adjustments that will maintain supplies and prices at fair levels to both producers and consumers. Because of the large crop of beans nationally in the past two harvests, and because foreign outlets for beans have fallen off sharply, it is expected that more than 9 1/2 million bags (100 pounds each) of the 1948 and 1949 crops will still be in storage next fall when the 1950 harvest gets underway. This carryover will represent almost two-thirds of a normal year's requirements.

GREEN GRASS OF WYOMING

By Mary O'Hara

Seeking Crown Jewel, a valuable filly which has been freed from her crate by Thunderhead, a white stallion owned by Ken McLaughlin and banished to the Wyoming hills, a search party headed by Ken's dad, Reb, gets underway. The filly is owned by Beaver Greenway, an Idaho rancher, and he and his niece, Carey Marsh are along on the hunt. Ken, who is smitten with Carey, is riding in the pickup truck with her. Howard Ken's brother, finds a footprint of Old Pete, a range bum, who is known to be hanging around Thunderhead and Jewel. As the men leave the cook wagon to begin the search, Carey goes for a ride in the hills.

CHAPTER VIII

Carey mounted the roan. It pranced a little, feeling the strange hands and the unaccustomed lightness of the rider. Carey slid around in the far too large saddle. "The stirrups are too long," she said and held the mare while Cookie shortened the stirrup leathers. Then she took command of the pony, got a firm hold with her knees, touched her heels into her side and swung it in a small circle.

"Say! You're right handy with a horse!" exclaimed Cookie admiringly. He stood watching, his arms folded over his stomach underneath an unbelievably dirty, white apron.

"What's her name?" asked Carey.

"Name's Mamie."

"Well, come on, Mamie. We're off." They cantered away.

Cookie watched them a moment, then turned to his wagon and busied himself at the table. He mixed a quantity of honey and butter together on a large tin plate, stirring it with the flat of his knife as a painter mixes paints on a palette, then cuts himself a thick slice of the white bread which he made himself once a week, and placed this on top of the mixture, pressing it down, lifting it with a fork and soaking the other side.

Gus left the engine and walked over to him.

"Better keep away!" warned Cookie jovially. "When I get started everybody better have a bathin' suit on!"

Rut Gus had something else on his mind. "Dot pony she's ridin'— is it a mare or a geldin'?"

Cookie hastily swallowed his mouthful of bread and honey and wiped his mouth, looking at Gus.

"It's a mare, Gus. I never give it a thought."

"Well, that ain't so gude with this stud around." The two men turned and watched Carey cantering toward the group of hills. Gus spoke in a worried way, "Dot white stallion of Ken's is nuthin' to fool with."

"Sure, I know all about it," said Cookie, "but say, she ain't goin' in that direction." He pointed at the troop of men riding southwest, still clearly to be seen.

Gus took off his hat and scratched his head. He looked first at the riders, then at Carey who, even as he watched, disappeared behind the nearest of the cone-shaped hills. He looked back at the riders and spoke his thought. "When horses is out free dey don't go in a straight line, unless dey be headin' fur some place. Thunderhead an' dose mares cud have circled around and be watchin' us from behind our backs, right now."

"Say!" said Cookie. "I jes remembered. The mare's with foal, anyway."

As Carey climbed the little peak she realized that no more feathery little stars or gauntlets were falling on her sleeves or face. She kept turning to watch the riders. They progressed in a close pack and a cloud of dust followed them.

When she reached the summit she halted her mare, put the binoculars to her eyes and tried to see if she could pick Ken and Howard out of the group. Then she swung the glasses to right and left, studying every detail of the plains which, because seen through the round circle, took on startling significance. They seemed not real at all, but something created and planned especially for her.

There slid into view a beautiful picture, framed in the narrow circle: the statue of a horse, pure white, standing on a sharp crest. He was motionless, slightly turned, his head twisted up, every muscle taut and ready.

Carey lowered the binoculars. Her heart was thumping. Was it Thunderhead? No—it wasn't real at all; it was just something in the binoculars—

She sat a moment trying to gather her wits. She looked, without the glasses, at the hill where she had seen the horse but could see nothing new except the barren-looking plains, the ridges and rocks, the Snowy Range far away. No, there it was! A speck of white on a hilltop!

Similarity of Cones Baffling to Carey

She put the binoculars to her eyes again, seeking him, swinging the glasses in small circles until she captured him. She adjusted the focus with painstaking care until every detail of the stallion was revealed as if an etching—the intent, white-ringed eyes, the sharply cocked ears, the widely flaring nostrils with a hint of scarlet inside. They palpitated. Was he actually smelling her? Certainly he was watching her—examining her and the mare inch by inch just as she was examining him.

It seemed to Carey that she had never seen anything so beautiful, so wild and so pure.

Then, as she watched, the low sky sank lower. A mist dimmed his shape—he was completely blotted out.

Astonished, she let the glasses fall on their strap and looked around her. Everywhere the sky was sinking. Mist, clouds, fog, snow enveloped her.

She heard a whinny in the air. It was in the wind. The snowflakes were not big feathery stars now, but a cutting frozen mist, a horizontal sheet of powdered ice that bit and burned.

She whirled the little roan mare and put heels into her side. "Get back there to camp, and get there in a hurry!" Mamie plunged willingly down the slope.

She must sit down again and rest a little longer.

At the bottom, Carey found she had forgotten just how she had reached that central highest peak. On every side there were these steep cones going up. The snow was thicker. She could not hold her eyes open against it. Mamie plodded forward. She seemed to be going up another peak. Carey stopped her and tried to remember. Sitting still on her horse for that moment, she chilled through. Where the wind drove the snow against her leg it melted and instantly froze so that as she tried to brush it off, it was a thin sheet of ice that shattered beneath her hand. And immediately there was another sheet of ice forming on her thigh. Then on her cheek. She kept brushing the ice off. Mamie started forward of her own accord. Carey remembered now that she had gone up and down one small hill before she had reached the central peak. It was this small hill that lay between her and the camp. Mamie was right. They must go up this hill. She urged the little mare forward, bending low, shielding her face and eyes with one arm. She tried to see where she was going but there was only the thick white smother. She thought wonderingly. Why, it's like a sheet wound around me!

They went up the hill and down. Presently Mamie started up another hill. Carey halted her. That's wrong, she thought, there weren't two hills to go up and down. Mamie pulled restlessly at the bit. Carey thought of the wind. It was an easterly, she remembered. The wind was driving from the east. That should direct her to the camp. But here amongst the peaks, the wind was swirling from every direction. You couldn't tell a thing from the

Carey Realizes Way Back to Camp Lost

Everyone knows that horses will find their way home if given their head, thought Carey. But I want to go to the camp. Will she feel that is home because the team and the chuckwagon and the other horse and her master are there? Or will she head for her real home, the Beasley ranch—and how far away is that? She did not remember, but thought it was seven or eight miles. If Mamie had real sense, real horse sense, she would go to the nearest place; she would go to the Monument. . . . She gave her head again, and said, "It's up to you now Mamie, you find the way."

If she weren't so cold.

She had no idea how far they had gone or how much time had passed. There was nothing to measure by. No change of light. No landmarks to be seen. Just the utter sameness of white driving snow and wind, and the cold getting deeper into her.

Carey decided they must go back and tried to stop the mare. But Mamie fought for her head. When Carey pulled her more determinedly she reared, then plunged. Her foot slipped and she crashed to the earth. Carey rolled free, still holding the reins. But her fingers were stiff and when Mamie scrambled to her feet, one jerk of her head pulled the reins from Carey's hand. In a second, the mare had vanished, and there was no further sight nor sound of her.

Carey sat on the ground a moment, turning her back to the wind, shielding her face, then got to her feet and started forward. It was, she realized, just an aimless wandering. She had not the faintest idea where she was going. But you can't keep still in a storm like that. You'd freeze. Really freeze to death. People did. It was on the front pages of newspapers. Farmers froze to death trying to get from their own barns to their houses. Or people caught in automobiles on the highways. You've got to keep your blood circulating. You've got to keep moving. . . .

She kept at it a long time, then, worn out, flopped in the lee of a rock on a hillside and told herself she would just rest a minute or two, get a little strength back, and get going again. If only someone would find her now, before she had to move.

It seemed impossible to get going. She tried once, but decided to rest a little longer. Then she did get up. She was shaking all over. She weaved as she walked. She was stiff with the cold. She must sit down again and rest a little longer.

She whipped herself back to reality. A fine thing to do! Just to sit there with her head hanging on her chest, letting herself be frozen to death!

But she could not take another step.

It was Gus who found her an hour later.

Other men joined them before they reached the camp and she was aware of the riders coming galloping in, horses and men so coated in snow that they were unrecognizable. There was much shouting. Gus lifted her and put her into the cab of the truck which was warm because the engine was going and the heater was on. Gus left the door open and stood outside, talking to the men. Cookie had harnessed the chuckwagon.

She could hear what they were shouting—to make for Beasley's ranch. Cookie knew every turn of the country and could lead the way—a safe way for the truck to follow, and the station wagon and pick-up, and the men on their horses since it was impossible to load them into the truck. Some of the men shouted that they would make for home.

Suddenly Gus slammed the door shut and she was alone in the cab. The feeling of comfort and security was almost too much for her, and again her eyes were hot with tears. She stuck her fists into them. Her body still felt queer.

The door opened and Gus put Ken into the cab beside her. "Keep her movin' and talkin', Ken, shake her if you have to, I'll be back."

Ken's face was both awed and frightened. He took her hands and rubbed them as if he feared they would break. She tried to smile at him.

Carey Sheds Tears While Held by Ken

For a long moment their eyes met, sharing all that happened, for Carey's mind had gone all of the way toward death—the rest would have been easy—and her eyes clung to Ken's and she leaned toward him, putting the burden of this on him too, to help her carry it, and suddenly the long-held tears and sobs burst through and she cried, "Oh, Ken!" and flung herself on his breast. He put his arms around her and held her tight.

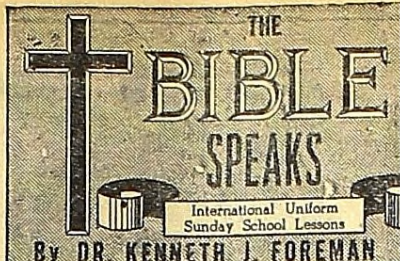

Fifteen minutes before the little calvacade turned into the Beasley ranch, Mamie trotted up to the bunkhouse, her reins dragging. She stopped before the lighted windows and gave a beseeching whinny.

Thunderhead's band now numbered fourteen. There were ten mares and three colts aged two or three months. The colts belonged to three of the mares he had brought from the valley with him, a bay and a sorrel and the large black mare Ken had named Hagar.

These mares had also had yearlings, but when the new foals came Thunderhead had driven the yearlings out of the band.

It is the common law of horsemanship that when a mare drops a foal the yearling running at her side must be banished. One is enough for her to nurse and care for. The stallion sees to it and drives them away. At first they try desperately to get back and the struggle continues for days. They cannot conceive of life, separated from their dams. Eventually, bitten and bleeding and scarred, they accept their first serious defeat.

Base of Operations

Lesson for March 5, 1950

THERE IS NO RULE in the Bible forbidding Christians to have common sense. You are not supposed to lay aside your mind when you become a Christian.

This has had many illustrations: let us take Ephesus for one. Put yourself, in imagination, back to the first Christian century. Ask yourself: Where can we start a church where it will do the most good? Where can we put a church that will spread out, one that is sure to have daughter churches? Where can we reach people of influence? Where can we locate a church where it is certain to be heard of?

As your eye ranged over a map of the Empire, you would have lighted on Ephesus as the very place. It was a true capital, not a merely political one.

Strategy

It was a master-stroke, selecting Ephesus as a base of operations. It made possible the rapid spread of the Christian faith into the province of Asia. The decision to plant a church there had been matched by other strategic decisions in Christian history since then. One of these was founding the church in Rome. That was an even greater city and capital than Ephesus, and it has lasted much longer.

If the Christian church had been content to be provincial, all right for the smaller towns but afraid to tackle the big ones, if the early church had learned to seat itself in Rome, the whole history of Europe would have been different.

When the Roman Empire crumbled, as in time it did, the church rose on its ruins and took its place as the great civilization of Europe, the strong force that kept a continent from decay for nearly a thousand years.

Our Ancestors FROM THE DAYS of the early Roman church there comes a well-known story which may be true. In the slave market at Rome the Pope saw some handsome small boys, whiter than the average Roman, for sale. Who are you? he asked. "Angli," they said—Angles, from far-off marshes along the North Sea. No, smiled the Pope, who was a bit of a punster, you are too good looking for that; "Non Angli sed Angeli," not Angles but Angels.

Anyway, the church did send some missionaries to far-away Anglia and elsewhere in Northern Europe. It turned out to be another strategic base of operations. Eventually France and Germany and England and the other countries in that part of the world were converted to Christianity. The time came when those very nations took the lead in moving into the rest of the world, into the western hemisphere, "down under" to Australia, even into Africa. Where they went, they carried their religion with them.

Suppose the church had not thought our ancestors worth converting? Suppose all the colonizing movements of the 16th and following centuries had been waves of sheer pagans?

It is not mere racial pride to say that the sending of missionaries to those savage peoples of northern Europe was one of the most strategic moves ever made by the Christian church.

And Today? THE CHURCH has not always been smart. Sometimes we have missed the boat. There have been strategic centers we might have occupied—and did not.

There was a time, for instance, when Russia, that mighty nation, was open to Christian teaching. Many who knew that country were saying about 1918 that it was possible to capture that land for Christ. But the Christian church was little interested. . . . and now whatever Christianity is there has to stay underground.

Farther east, our own General MacArthur has been calling for missionaries to Japan, thousands of them. Japan is wide open to Gospel today as never before. But where are the missionaries? Going over in dribbles.

Whenever Christianity has seen a strategic point and taken it, future generations have been blessed; whenever we miss our chance, future generations will wonder how we could have been so blind.

Speculator cheering at football games is an 80-year-old American practice. On November 13, 1869, when Rutgers and Princeton universities met for the second intercollegiate grid contest in U. S. history, Princeton supporters invoked lungpower, shouting an old Confederate battle cry to urge their team on to victory. P. S. Princeton won, 8-0.

Aid Asked in Placing Displaced Persons

The Iosco County PMA Committee has been asked for assistance in placing on Michigan farms, as employees, individuals and families coming from abroad as displaced persons. A high percentage of the displaced persons coming from overseas are people who have had previous agricultural experience and it is anticipated that only those with farm experience and qualified for such work in this country would be channeled into available farm employment. Most of these displaced persons are married couples with children, although there are some single men qualified for farm work. The committee asks that any farmer who needs help and who would be interested in placing a qualified hired man or family from among the displaced persons get in touch with the Iosco County PMA Committee, Tawas City, Michigan, and further information will be given.

At Oscoda in Lecture On Far East Conflict

Prof. Russell H. Fifield will open the University of Michigan extension lecture series on The Russian-American Conflict when he speaks on "The Conflict in the Far East" at Oscoda on Wednesday evening, March 8. The lecture is scheduled for eight o'clock in the library of the Oscoda Agricultural School.

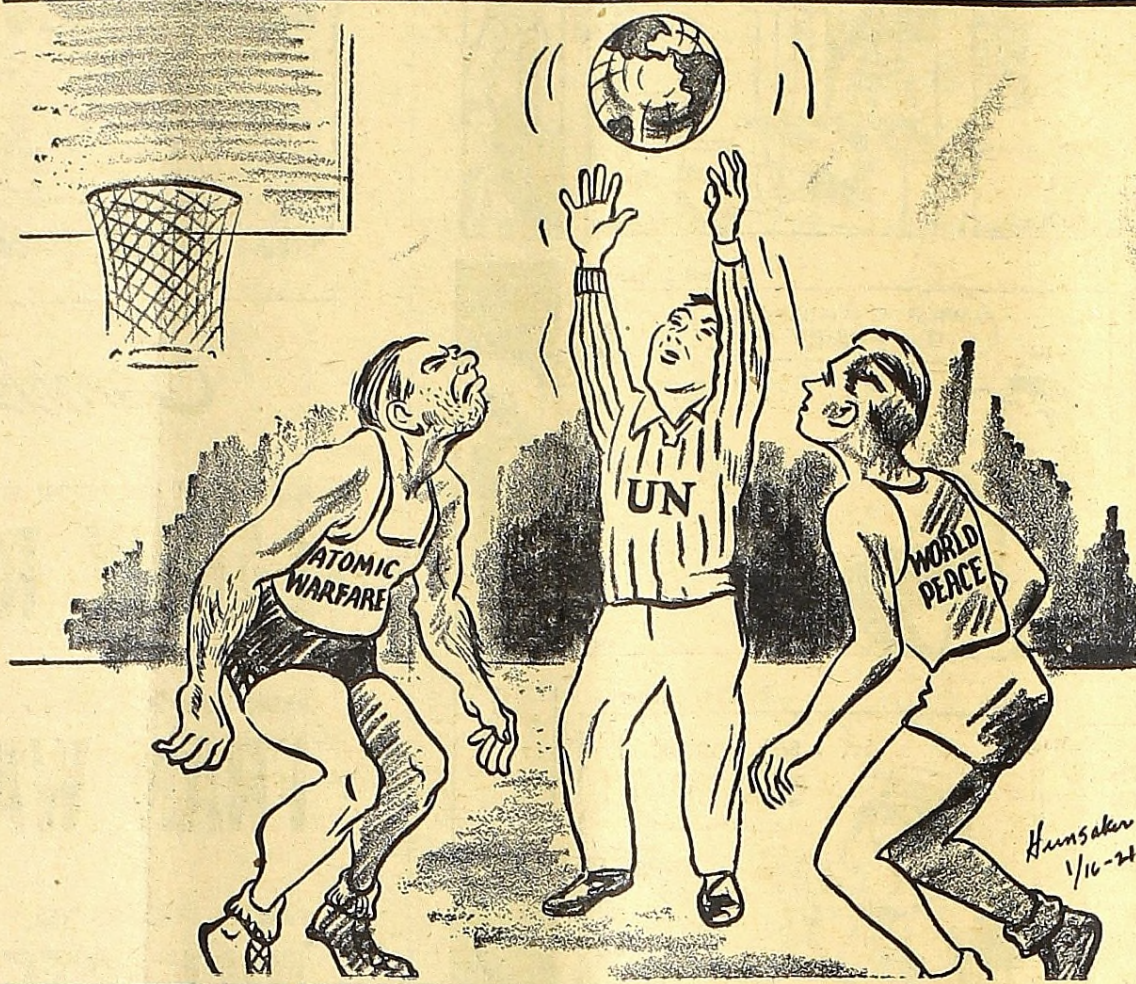

Mrs. Ada G. McRae of the Library Group of the Oscoda Schools will introduce Prof. Fifield and preside at the discussion which follows the lecture. The series is being presented in Oscoda under the local sponsorship of the Library Group.

Purpose of the four lectures by University authorities is to provide opportunity for the average citizen to acquire perspective as well as factual information about Russian-American relations, which will be a matter of importance not only in world affairs but in those of the individual, for some time to come.

Prof. Fifield is particularly well qualified to discuss the topic assigned to him. Prior to his appointment to the political science department of the University in the fall of 1947, he had served for two years as American vice-counsel in China and Formosa. Before his service with the Department of State, Prof. Fifield had taught in the secondary schools of Maine, at Springfield College, and at the University of Missouri. While in China, he also taught part time at the National Wuhan University, Wuchang. He has written extensively for publication and has lectured widely for the Extension Service. Enrollment for the lecture series may be made at the first lecture.

Jerry Gracik came through with 13 points to help along the cause, and Barry McGuire had 10. Bruce Myles played his usual fine game on the backboards, garnering eight points. Lee Herriman played a stellar game at guard, while coming up with six points and Del Myles added two free throws to complete the scoring. Moore and Schrock each had 11 points to lead Oscoda, while Hohman was next with 10.

LADIES' LITERARY CLUB
The Ladies Literary Club of East Tawas met at the Club rooms on Wednesday afternoon, March 1st. Mrs. Eugene Hansen was Roll Call chairman and after a short business session election of officers was held.

Mrs. J. A. Carlson, Legislative chairman, read a resolution passed by the General Federation of Women's Clubs recently in session in Washington, D. C., in which they voted against Medical control by the government.

Miss Amanda Hamilton, Historian gave an interesting account of an Anniversary celebration held in 1901 at the Holland Hotel, at which the ladies came in beautiful costumes representing prominent women of early times. Included were the Empress of China, several Japanese ladies, the Queen of Holland and Colonial dames. The elaborate banquet and meeting lasted till the early morning hours. Edward Louk of Oscoda and the late Dr. Thompson of East Tawas were guests.

Because those in charge of the scheduled program were unable to be present, Mrs. Dorothy Pierson took charge and entertained with two interesting stories, "The Name," by Ann Petric and a Welsh tale, "Coats for St. Patrick's Day."

reer, Joe said goodbye to the hills in the middle '30's, with his pappy's blessings and three twenty dollar bills. With best wishes from his kinfolk and neighbors he joined the migration to the city where anybody could make at least five dollars a day.

After a couple of different jobs, a series of accidents that could happen to nobody but Joe Clark, H. B. S. S. (The H. B. S. S. stands for Humpty Snap-Shooter) his loneliness for the hills inspired many tales which he told his fellow workers, and when vacation time rolled around, they trust an old camera into his hands and told him to bring back some pictures to prove his stories. Back in the hills after studying the camera and having several completely blank films, Joe returned to Detroit with some pictures, and his friends, after a few "ons and ahs" no longer made slighting remarks. Joe thought this was fun" so he bought himself a used Rolleiflex and started to take informal pictures in the department store where he worked. (J. L. Hudson Co.)

He sold these pictures to the advertising manager for $500.00, five hundred dollars looked like easy money for just walking around taking pictures, so Joe bought himself an enlarger, trays, etc., out of the catalogue.

After one of his trips to his beloved hills, snapping trees, streams, bridges, his kinfolk and neighbors everyone liked his pictures, so the store put on a one man exhibit on his prints. During one of these exhibits an editor from Life magazine wandered in and asked Joe to "send us some pictures." Joe didn't think they were good enough, but the editor thought he should send them anyway. Joe received a long enthusiastic telegram followed by a sizeable check for the pictures. Later when some friends were married "down home" he took pictures, and were used by Life, as a series called, "Mountain Wedding."

Prints from his first roll of film were used in Coronet, National Geographic, Detroit News. Since then his pictures have appeared in Life, Newsweek, Charm, Field and Stream, Time, Minicam, to mention a few.

All the folks in the area extend their thanks and appreciation to Mr. Clark for his fine story in "Life" magazine, and the time he spent in putting Perchville "on the map."

20th CENTURY CLUB
The Twentieth Century Club met Wednesday night, March 1st, at the home of Mrs. Albert Mallon, with Mrs. George Leslie assisting the hostess. There were 26 members and one guest present.

The meeting was called to order by the president, Mrs. George Leslie. It was decided that the club sponsor the Red Cross Drive in Tawas City as they have done in previous years. Mrs. William Schaaf was appointed chairman of the drive.

The program was conducted in "Breakfast in Hollywood" style, and was hilariously funny. Miss Arlene Leslie acted as MC. Mrs. George Leslie and Mrs. Charles VanHorn went through the crowd with roving mikes. Such celebrities as Margaret Truman, Kate Smith, Martha Tilton and Judy Canova were present.

Everyone present wore original hats and each appearance brought forth gales of laughter. The prizes for the funniest hats were awarded to Mrs. Glenn Schlaack, Mrs. Frank Turner and Mrs. J. A. Campbell.

At the conclusion of the program a delicious lunch was served by the hostesses.

The next meeting will be at the home of Mrs. Ray Tuttle, March 15 with the program in charge of the Garden Club.
