Ask Highway Department To Intervene

Seek Aid from State In Correcting Any Possible Errors

In a compromise report in the form of a resolution brought in last Friday at the special meeting of the Board of Supervisors, the Roads and Bridges Committee asked for the intervention of the State Highway Department in the Road Commission controversy. The resolution, which was adopted by the Board of Supervisors after some discussion, seeks "assistance from the State Highway Department in correcting any possible errors that may have innocently occurred in the past" in the procedure of the road commission.

Following a discussion of rumored friction between the Roads and Bridges Committee and the Road Commission, Supervisor Gordon Welcome asked that he be removed from the Roads and Bridges Committee and his request was granted. Harold Black, chairman of the roads and Bridges Committee, then moved that inasmuch as their activities had caused much confusion, that the resolution authorizing the committee to meet in an advisory capacity with the commission be rescinded. The motion was defeated by a 10 to 6 vote. As there was only a short time before a new Board of Supervisors would be organized in April, no one was named to replace Welcome.

County Clerk McKenzie addressing the Board at this time, citing to the Board the statutory law which requires the County Clerk or his Deputy to record the proceedings of the County Road Commission, and requesting from them their opinion as to whether or not he should personally supervise the recording of such proceedings in view of the fact that there has been some criticism as to the completeness of the minutes of Road Commission proceedings.

No intimation was made of any irregularity in the records but that it was felt that the minutes were not in enough detail. The Board expressed the opinion informally that if the Clerk so desired and felt it expedient, his attendance at Board meetings, for a period of time, or permanently to assist in the recording of Commission proceedings, would be helpful.

The following was the resolution adopted:

RESOLUTION

Whereas, considerable confusion revolves around the recent matter brought to the attention of this Board concerning the Iosco County Road Commission.

And whereas, as a result of this confusion certain reflections have been cast upon certain members of said Iosco County Road Commission concerning their character and integrity.

And whereas, under the present circumstances it appears to be impossible for this board to review this matter in a light that would be to the best interests of the members of the Iosco County Road Commission, this Board of Supervisors, do hereby resolve:

Fire Damages Fletcher Gas Station Here

Interior of Building and Contents Ruined Monday Morning

Fire of undetermined origin early last Monday morning destroyed the interior and roof, and contents of the Fletcher Gas Station on Lake street. With a temporary building arranged near the gasoline pumps, business resumed Tuesday morning.

At about 6:30 o'clock, which is shortly before the station opens in the morning, Adam Birkenbach and Don Warner, on their way to work at the National Gypsum plant, discovered flames shooting through the roof of the building. They awakened William Horen, operator of the station who resides in a house near the station, and turned in the alarm to the fire department. Quickly arriving at the scene the fire department extinguished the flames within a few minutes.

Adding to the intensity of the flames was the burning of a new magnesium boat and a quantity of ammunition. Mr. Horen says that he wishes to thank the members of the fire department for efficient work, and everyone who helped during the fire.

Thousands Attend Iosco Booth

Excellent Display at Detroit Sports Show

The Tawas and Oscoda booth at the Detroit Boat and Sports Show did a fine job of selling Iosco county and the Tawas to thousands of prospective visitors to this area.

The booth was set up to show what we have to offer in our recreational area.

The Huron Shore Lumber Co., fish shanty brought many inquiries about Perchville which we of the Tawas originated.

The perch and smelt cards for registering fishermen were greatly appreciated by those interested and 2,000 people had their names and addresses placed on the cards.

Some of the highlights that were played up were smelt fishing in April; the Perch Festival in May; the Fifth National Archery Tournament in August; the Michigan Canoe Marathon Race on the Ausable in September and winter sports at Silver Valley.

The booth was set up in a very attractive manner. Included in the decorations were: mounted snow owls, deer heads, five large trout, a coyote and a large bear skin rug all furnished by the Oscoda Chamber of Commerce.

There were 7500 folders given out during the show. The folders picture the different sports, a map of the area, and an invitation to come to Tawas, "The Year Around Playground."

Chief Blue Cloud was there in full regalia and helped to sell this area to the people of Detroit.

1949 Good Year At National Gypsum Plant

$1,000,000 Paid in Wages and Salaries During Year

Nineteen forty-nine was a "good year" for National Gypsum Company as a whole, Keith W. Waugh, National City Plant Manager, stated today.

The local gypsum plant is operating seven days a week and has been since September 1949. Mr. Waugh reported that National maintained an average of 260 employees here during 1949 and paid about $1,000,000.00 in wages and salaries. In addition the Company spent about $100,000.00 locally for goods and services.

Mr. Waugh quoted Melvin H. Baker, President, as reporting that net sales for the Company as a whole amounted to $99,539,883.00. The president told stockholders in the Company's Annual Report that last year "when the anticipated spring upturn did not materialize, dealers found their warehouses full and stopped buying until their inventories were reduced. As a result, the Company was forced to cut back its production schedules. Then in mid-summer building took a sharp upturn and builders were caught with no stock to supply the increased demand. To meet this sudden revival of buying, plant capacities were taxed through the last five months and at the close of the year were carrying a backlog."

The Annual Report stated that National's net worth rose from $44,964,338.00 in 1948 to $48,100,466.00, last year and working capital was increased from $18,773,837.00 to $20,852,468.00. Earnings for the year totalled $5,836,707.00 or $2.57 per share of common stock. This compared to earnings of $7,997,976.00, or $3.60 per common share, in 1949.

Dividends distributed to 14,336 common stockholders during the year amounted to $2,640,420.00 or $1.25 per share. Wages and salaries for the year totalled $1,000,000.00. At the end of the year, National listed 4,897 employees.

In reviewing 1949, Mr. Waugh pointed out that it was the first year in which all of National's expanded production facilities were in operation.

Considering the business outlook for 1950, Mr. Waugh stated that National's local plant would continue to operate at a high level "as the Company gets its share of the continuing demand for building materials."

Elks Defeated In Regionals By Marlette

The Tawas City Elks bowed before a strong Marlette team last Friday night, in the Regionals in Saginaw, 53 to 40.

The Elks, outscored in every quarter except the final one, just couldn't click, with their offense bogging, unable to work the ball under the basket. Their defense was ragged under the basket, with the Marlette boys playing havoc on the backboard.

Marlette took a 10 to 6 lead in the first quarter, never to be headed by the locals. The downstate team added another 14 markers in the second stanza, while the Elks made 12. Halftime score: Marlette 24, Tawas City 18.

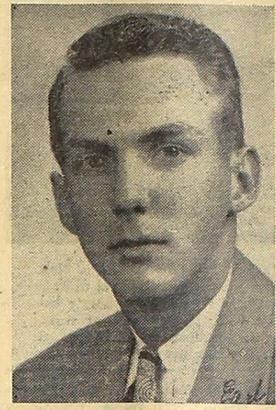

Marlette rang up 19 points in the third quarter, while the Elks came up with 11, and the final stanza found Tawas City with 12 and Marlette 10.

Barry McGuire was the Elks top scorer, with 16, while Bruce Myles had 12. Shackelford proved to be the thorn in the Tawas City team's side, with the big Marlette forward garnering 23 points. A big crowd from Tawas followed the team.

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS

British Laborites on Rocky Road; Scientists Warn of H-Bomb Threat; Senate Spy Hunt to Be 'Witchless'

EDITOR'S NOTE: When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of Western Newspaper Union's news analysts and not necessarily of this newspaper.

REPORT ON MASS-DESTRUCTION WEAPONS . . . Sen. Brien McMahon (left) chairman of the joint congressional atomic energy committee, confers with Gen. Omar N. Bradley shortly before Bradley, who is chairman of the U. S. joint chiefs of staff, reported to the senate-house group on possible types of mass-destruction weapons an enemy might use against the U.S.

BRITAIN:

Close Call British Prime Minister Clement Attlee and his Labor party were still holding the reins of British government—but it had been a mighty close call. There was a serious question of how long the Labor government could stand as a result of its meager majority in parliament.

Added to that was the peril of an intra-party strife in which it was reported left-wingers in the party were planning a test of strength with more moderate leaders of Attlee's government.

THE PROBLEM was an easily obvious one: Should the Labor party walk easily in the face of its hairbreadth escape from defeat in the elections, or should it strike out boldly for continuation and expansion of socialism?

The primary interest in the election for Americans was, of course, whether or not the British people were committed to more socialism and resultant nationalism of industry and their way of life, or had they grown apprehensive enough concerning the direction of government to change it?

The answer was clear to the extent that a bare majority of the people are satisfied with conditions—enough at least to return the Labor government to power. But, significantly enough, the balance of that power had waned so much in the past five years that it was almost nonexistent.

WHAT DID IT MEAN? It was much too early to gauge the elections' effect on the American economy or on Europe's overall recovery program, but disappointment in the U. S. was widespread and there was some concern lest the uncertainty of the Labor government's position interfere seriously with American recovery plans abroad.

One American newspaper woman was able to put into print concisely and graphically the divergent British viewpoints when she reported a Conservative as saying that England would never recover until the Laborites were completely thrown out, and a poorer-class workwoman declaring that she didn't care how much she had to do without, just as long as the rich didn't have any more.

H-BOMB:

More Warnings Mere and mere came the warnings of experts of the dread potentialities of the hydrogen bomb. True, there was some disagreement, but a poll would show at this stage that a majority of scientists who should know what they are talking about believe the bomb could kill everyone in the world.

Four top scientists have issued that warning. They have declared that the bomb, if it works, could be a suicide bomb. Why? How?

Here's what they say: IF THE BOMB is ever made and used, it would kill slowly by poisoning everything and everyone with radioactive dusts.

The dusts would be carried around the world by the winds. The dust would be in the air people breathed.

It would settle on and poison plants and trees, everything humans eat or use.

THE H-BOMB, they add, could be intentionally rigged to do just that—and it would be relatively simple to do it. Makers of the bomb would have only to put harmless chemical elements around the H-bomb. The bomb itself would turn these chemicals into the fantastic killing dust. Dust of that sort could be made so that it would remain active a few days, a few months or as long as 5,000 years.

That is a frightening, appalling possibility.

But there is a ray of hope. These same scientists say it will be another three years before anyone will know if the bomb can be produced.

That gives mankind a little time in which to make up his mind. The decision had better be right.

SPY HUNT:

No 'Witches' There was to be "no witches—no whitewash" in the senate foreign relations subcommittee's probe of alleged infiltration of Communists into the U.S. state department.

That's what Sen. Millard Tydings (D., Md.) said of the investigation when he was named chairman of the committee which was to conduct it.

THE NAMING of the committee stemmed from charges by Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy (R., Wis.) that an un-named group of Communists hold—or have held—high state department posts.

But, McCarthy rather put the committee on the spot at the start when he said that if President Truman persists in his refusal to make state department employee loyalty files available, "an investigation would be useless." Mr. Truman has so persisted and declared he would ignore the senate's action in granting subpoena rights to the committee.

Indications were that a court test of the President's position was in the making if the committee chose to use its subpoena rights and called upon the President to deliver the wanted records.

TYDINGS DECLINED to pass on this issue at the outset, and said, instead, that he expected a "full, fair and complete investigation" of McCarthy's charges.

"We will let the chips fall where they may," he said, "and this will be neither a witch-hunt nor a whitewash."

The senator's intentions no doubt were good—but there might be little to worry about where the chips would fall, so long as Mr. Truman declined to pass the committee the axe they needed.

Answer Still 'No'

President Truman persisted in his refusal to give congress confidential loyalty files on federal employees.

However, he said he had promised the senate foreign relations committee he otherwise would cooperate in disproving what he called false charges made by Senator McCarthy (R., Wis.) that a Communist ring exists in the state department.

He told newsmen that subpoena powers voted by the senate for committee investigators would "make no difference" to him, pointing out that it would be difficult to serve a subpoena on the President of the United States, since the government affords him protection from such services.

And, indeed it would. But, it doesn't say anywhere that the President may not give information—if he chooses—to those seeking to ascertain the degree of this nation's security against subversive elements.

SPUD TALK:

Ethics vs. Dollars It was ethics versus American taxpayers' dollars as the senate argued whether it would be honest for congress to remove the price supports already promised on the 1950 potato crop.

AS ALMOST every schoolboy knew, the government's potato program was one of the most jumbled, fantastic, reason-assaulting procedures ever evolved in the U. S.

Farmers were being paid a subsidy on potatoes to compensate them for market price differentials, each year the potato surplus was growing, and farmers were permitted to buy back the subsidized potatoes as low as one cent per hundred pounds for use as fertilizer. And all this in the face of world food shortages and a real need for the surplus potatoes by local relief agencies and school lunch programs over the nation.

ODDLY ENOUGH, many Republicans were stringing along with the lets-not-destroy-subsidies thinking, with Sen. Scott Lucas, Illinois, Democratic floor leader, sponsoring a move to cancel price supports for all 1950 potatoes not already planted. Republicans favoring retention of the 1950 subsidy plan included Senators Brewster, Maine, Aiken, Vermont, and Millikin, Colorado.

Lucas was on firm ground as far as economy and mathematics went. Already the record showed, the U. S. is in the red 100 million dollars for price support operations on the 1949 crop alone.

Lucas jibed at Republicans for talking about the need for economy and then opposing his potato-curb legislation.

PROGRESSIVES:

Support for Henry Too much attention to name-calling and too little attention to issues. That's the way O. John Rogge, former assistant attorney general of the United States, summed up the trouble with the new Progressive party of which Henry Wallace—one-time vice-president of the United States—is the chief figure.

ROGGE'S STATEMENT was made in support of Wallace, who had made a virtual demand that the party stop trying to "save face" for the Communists in declarations of policy.

The party held a convention in Chicago to develop aims and objectives during which Rogge declared of the party's being called "Red baiters":

"We should be as unafraid of that label as we are of the labels 'Communist' or 'Communist front.'"

There were delegates who found signs of new attitudes among Soviet-friendship groups as an outgrowth of the Tito-resistance. The resolutions committee was reported to have shelved quietly an anti-Tito statement. Rogge touched on this schism briefly when he said:

"WE SHALL NOT BEND reason backward in order to attempt to justify the conduct of the Cominform countries toward Yugoslavia. But when the Soviet Union offers a plan in the field of atomic energy which, with all its faults, at least offers a better basis for opening and continuing negotiations than the Baruch plan, we are going to say just that."

No one doubted Rogge's stand. The Progressives, whether they were happy about it or not, were so completely tagged with Soviet-sympathy labels that there would be no confusion in the minds of the voters when its candidates offered for office.

Whadda You Think?

According to a group of Hollywood photographers, Tony Curtis, a new star on the movie horizon, is the possessor of a profile worthy of comparison with that of the late John Barrymore, whose profile was an international classic. In this composite photograph, you can compare Barrymore's (left) with Curtis' and make your choice.

LOOTER:

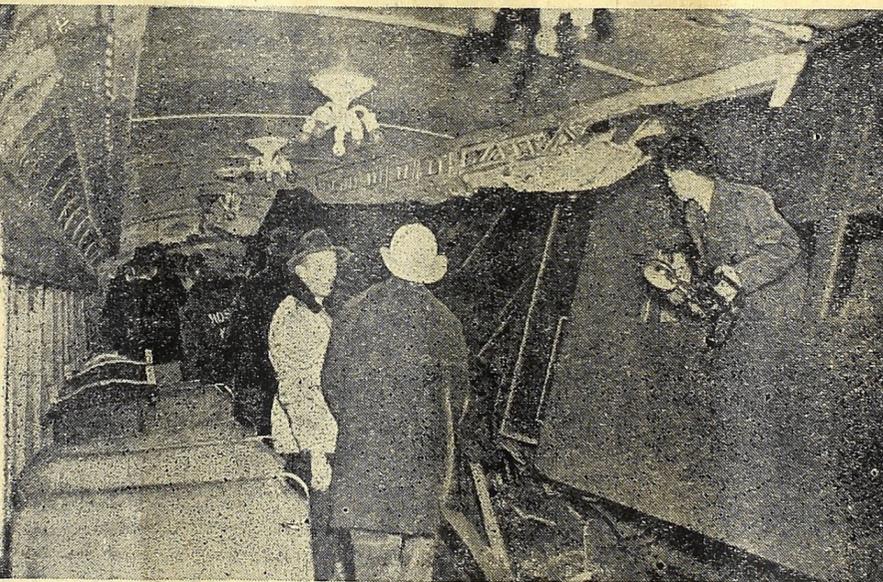

Force of Habit Leslie C. Potter, the 40-year-old Detroit factory personnel expert who turned burglar by night was a victim of habit, he told police. Admitting some thousand or more burglaries in the Detroit area over the past seven years, he said looting homes was his "avocation." Incidentally, there was quite some profit in Potter's hobby—possibly as much as $80,000, authorities said.

MERCY-SLAYING PRINCIPALS . . . Dr. Herman N. Sander, holding on to his hat as stiff wind blows, smiles as he arrives at Hillsborough county courthouse, Manchester, N. H., with his wife and his attorney, Louis Wyman (left), for the start of his trial. Dr. Sander was accused of the "mercy" slaying of Mrs. Abbie C. Borroto, 59, a cancer victim, by injecting air into her veins. The county sheriff claimed that Dr. Sander admitted killing his patient in "a weak moment" after yielding to pleas of her husband to "eliminate" her to relieve her suffering. The defense contended that the patient was dead before the air was injected into her veins.

ACHESON, HOFFMAN PLEAD FOR EXTENDED E.C.A. AID . . . Secretary of State Dean Acheson and E.C.A. Chief Paul Hoffman asked for $2,950,000,000 to speed European recovery, block communism and secure world peace by halting Russian aggression before a joint senate-house foreign relations committee. Left to right are Chairman Tom Connally (D., Tex.) of the senate foreign affairs committee, Chairman John Kee (D., W. Va.) of the house foreign affairs committee, Hoffman and Acheson. After the hearing before the committee, the pleas of Acheson and Hoffman were heard by congress.

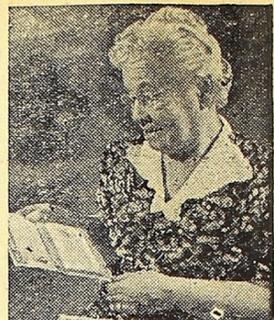

INSIDE WRECKED CAR . . . Workers inspect inside of car of one of the Long Island trains that was involved in a head-on collision at a main intersection at Rockville Center, N. Y. More than 30 persons were reported killed in the wreck and approximately 100 were injured. Two independent investigations of the tragedy were started. The crash, worst in New York city's commuter history, occurred a block and a half from the Rockville Center station. An eastbound train from New York City struck the westbound train head-on. Rescuers had difficulty in freeing the mangled bodies from the wreckage.

EUROPEAN LEADERS URGE UNITED EUROPE . . . Maj. Gen. William J. Donovan (center), chairman of the American committee on united Europe, meets with Dr. Joseph H. Retinger (left), secretary general of the European movement and Thomas Braden (right), director of the American Committee for united Europe. Donovan revealed that more than 30 European statesmen from Norway to Turkey joined in urging the quickest possible economic or political union—or both—to speed recovery of western Europe. The statements came from such world leaders as Winston Churchill, Georges Bidault, Count Carlo Sforza and Paul-Henri Spaak.

EDUCATION

Military Effort at School Rule Charged

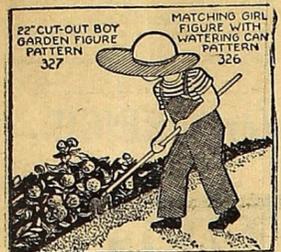

According to scores of educators and other prominent people in the United States, there is a "systematic and well-financed effort" by the national military establishment to "penetrate and influence the civilian educational life of America."

This charge was contained in a booklet of 80 pages of fine print, put out through the national council against conscription. Among the signers were famed scientist Albert Einstein, author Louis Bromfield and a number of prominent church leaders.

The report centered on the activities of the reserve officers training units, military science teaching, research contracts with universities, and what it sees as a trend toward putting military men in high educational places.

SERVICE IN PEACE AND WAR

American Red Cross Plays Important Role In Vital Job of Maintaining Soldiers' Morale By Giving Aid in All Kinds of Emergencies

By General George C. Marshall

THE ARMED FORCES agree upon one factor that ranks high in the list of essentials for military personnel. And that is morale—that combination of zeal, spirit, hope, and confidence which spurs the soldier, airman, sailor, marine or coast guardsman to give his best for his country, his service, and himself. The man who has it, whether in peace or war, is a match for a dozen without it.

The maintenance of good morale is a primary military responsibility. All commanding officers recognize the importance of such factors as pay, food, shelter, clothing, religious facilities, training, sanitation, medical care, proper discipline, leaves of absence, recreation, and welfare activities. They recognize also another factor which, in my judgment, affects the serviceman's morale profoundly. That is the man's deep personal concern as to the well-being of his home folks.

And that is where the American Red Cross comes into the picture. Its importance to the well-being of the servicemen of our democracy was one of the compelling reasons for my leaving private life to to a military hospital in the United States. Although he could see, his face and eyelids were in need of much plastic surgery. His hand muscles were contracted. He was in great pain. The doctors and nurses were there with their skillful and considerate attention. But also at his side were those team mates of the medical staff, the Red Cross social worker and recreation worker, and their trained volunteer aides.

Later, the Red Cross planned with him and his family for his vocational and social adjustment on his return to civilian life, and assisted him in filing his claim for pension. All this involved many cooperative activities with doctors, nurses, and rehabilitation personnel of the hospital, and constant correspondence with the Red Cross chapter of the boy's home town.

I cite these stories to show that the serviceman has in the Red Cross an understanding counselor and ever present friend, working with the military, but not an organic part of it. A great civilian agency, one helpful arm extended into the serviceman's setting, the other reaching into the home.

One arm is made up of Red Cross field directors and their staffs at military stations and hospitals in the United States and overseas. The other consists of the wide network of Red Cross chapters throughout this country and its possessions. Field directors and chapters work together as a team, enlist the assistance of thousands of competent volunteers, and cooperate freely with all related public and private agencies.

The military community has in the Red Cross field director a channel to all the facilities of the national organization and its chapters, such as Home Service, Volunteer Service, Safety and Health Services, Disaster Services, Junior Red Cross and College Units.

The civilian community through the Red Cross chapter has available for the families of service personnel all of those services in which the chapter is engaged, and in addition the services of the field directors at the military installations where the men and women from the community are on duty with the armed forces.

Services rendered include communications in illness or other emergencies; information as to the location and welfare of the families at home or the men away from home; financial assistance in emergencies to service personnel and their dependents; reports for commanding officers or medical officers regarding home conditions, social, economic, or health facts required for the sympathetic consideration of questions of welfare, leave, discharge, diagnosis or treatment; supplemental recreation for the able-bodied and assistance with medically-approved recreation for patients; and information concerning government benefits, and assistance in applying for them.

Assume leadership of this great organization.

A young married man, ordered to overseas duty, was aboard a transport about to sail when the Red Cross field director at the port received a wire from a Red Cross chapter in a distant city. It stated the man's wife had been rushed to a hospital, gave the doctor's diagnosis, and urged the man's immediate presence. The field director phoned the commanding officer of the replacement center.

The CO cleared with his post surgeon as to the seriousness of the diagnosis, had leave papers prepared, and approved a Red Cross loan for the trip home. But when the field director arrived at the dock, the ship's gangplank had already been drawn in and it seemed impossible to get the serviceman off. An alert crane operator on the dock offered to help, swung the long arm of his crane up over the rail, and lowered the man to the dock.

In another instance, a 20 year old soldier, seriously burned by an explosion, was flown from Japan

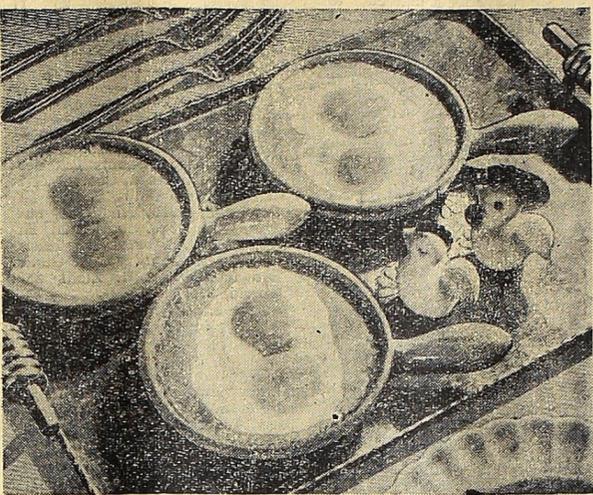

The good right arm that is making it possible for this patient in the veterans' hospital at Columbia, S. C., to answer the letters of the folks back home belongs to Mrs. Theo. Ravenel, Gray Lady chairman at the hospital for the Richland county Red Cross chapter.

Marshall on Red Cross Volunteers

"Volunteers—and we are very short of them—are the very life-blood of the Red Cross. They are the bases of all of its efforts. They work long hours. Usually their efforts are recognized only at the chapter level and not by the general public. Without ready volunteers, the Red Cross would be unable to perform the essential services it now provides for the people of America and to the world at large in some instances.

HOUSEHOLD MEMOS... by Lynn Chambers

Serve Protein-Rich Foods for Lent
(See Recipes Below)

Lenten Main Dishes

LENTEN MEALS need an extra spark to keep them interesting and appealing since they are meatless. They should, however, be substantial and nourishing, and with plenty of cheese, fish, eggs and vegetables they will have plenty of stick-to-the-ribs quality.

Don't get into a rut with one or two dishes each season. There's plenty of variety and interest available in Lenten dishes if you'll just try new recipes and plan sparkling menus.

Vegetable combinations can give plenty of texture, color and menu interest. Cheese as a main ingredient snaps many a main dish from the doldrums. Add fish to macaroni or spaghetti and you'll never miss meats. Try new ways with eggs, and the family will cheer you to new culinary accomplishments.

Eggs Mornay
(Serves 2 to 3)

- 4-6 eggs
- 2 cups thin white sauce
- 1/2 teaspoon paprika
- 1/2 cup grated cheese
- 2 egg yolks

Add paprika and cheese (reserve about 2 tablespoons for top) to hot well-seasoned sauce. Beat in yolks. Pour layer of sauce into well-greased shallow baking dishes. Slip eggs into sauce, one at a time. Pour remaining sauce around edge, leaving yolks partially exposed. Sprinkle with remaining cheese. Bake in moderately hot oven (375°) 15 to 20 minutes, depending upon doneness of eggs desired.

Fresh Vegetable Casserole
(Serves 6)

- 2 cups cooked carrots, sliced
- 2 cups cooked string beans
- 2 cups cooked peas
- 2 cups cooked lima beans
- 1 cup vegetable stock
- 1 cup cooked creamed celery
- 6 broiled mushrooms
- 1/4 cup vegetable glaze

Have all vegetables cooked and seasoned separately. Grease shallow individual casseroles and place sliced carrots around the sides of each dish. Place a spoonful each of string beans, peas and lima beans in the dishes in the order given; add a little vegetable stock; then top with a small spoonful of creamed celery and a broiled mushroom. Put a spoonful of vegetable glaze over the mushroom and when all dishes are filled bake in a moderately hot oven (375°) for 10 minutes.

Maine Casserole
(Serves 6)

- 3 onions, sliced
- 2 cups kernel corn
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- Dash of pepper
- 1 1-pound can baked beans
- without pork
- 1/2 cup ketchup
- 1/2 cup dry bread crumbs
- 2 tablespoons butter

Cook onions in boiling water 20 minutes and drain. Arrange corn in casserole. Cover with a layer of

Deviled Tuna and Macaroni
(Serves 4)

- 4 ounces shell macaroni
- 2 tablespoons butter
- 1 tablespoon enriched flour
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1/2 teaspoon paprika
- 2 teaspoons Worcestershire sauce
- 1 1/2 cups milk
- 1 tablespoon lemon juice
- 1 cup flaked tuna (1 7-ounce can)
- 2 hard cooked eggs
- 1 tablespoon chopped pimiento
- Sliced stuffed olives

Cook macaroni in boiling salted water until tender (about eight minutes). Drain and rinse. While macaroni is cooking, melt butter in saucepan. Stir in flour, salt, paprika and Worcestershire sauce. Gradually add milk, stirring constantly until slightly thickened. Add lemon juice and tuna. Dice hard cooked eggs, reserving one yolk for garnish. Fold eggs and macaroni into deviled sauce. Mix thoroughly. Pour into four greased individual baking dishes. Bake in moderate oven (350°) 20 minutes. Garnish with sieved egg yolk, pimiento and olives.

LYNN SAYS: Use These Essential Rules For Good Meals

Do not eat very much more than you need unless you are planning to do heavy, muscular work, as extra food will be stored as fat in the body.

The average man will need about 1 1/2 times as much as the average woman. This can be managed by giving him slightly larger servings. Growing boys and girls between 12 and 20 will need slightly more than the average adult.

Baked Beans and Onions Au Gratin
(Serves 8)

- 2 cups dried marrowfat beans
- 5 cups water
- 2 1/2 teaspoons salt
- 12 medium-sized onions
- 1/4 cup old-fashioned molasses
- 3/4 teaspoon dry mustard
- 1/2 teaspoon black pepper
- 1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
- 1 1/2 cups grated cheddar cheese
- 1 cup soft bread crumbs
- 2 tablespoons butter, melted

Soak beans in water overnight. Add 1 teaspoon of the salt and onions. Simmer but do not boil until onions are tender but still retain their shape (about 15 minutes). Remove onions from pot, continue cooking beans until tender (about 45 minutes). Drain. Save water. Combine liquid molasses, mustard, pepper and Worcestershire sauce. Place half the beans in two-quart casserole. Sprinkle with 1/4 cup cheese. Add remaining beans and arrange onions over top of beans. Add liquid. Bake uncovered in moderately hot oven (325°) for 45 minutes. Butter bread crumbs and sprinkle over top of casserole. Return to oven and cook until crumbs are brown (about 15 minutes).

Couldn't Lose
"The dam must have burst," thought the judge as the talkative lawyer spoke on and on and on. He listened for a few minutes. "Well, now," he informed the lawyer when he was able to get a word in, "I do believe you have stated your case fully and completely. I therefore award the decision to your client."
The lawyer thanked him very much but seemed to have a few points he didn't want to waste. He continued to talk and it was fully five minutes before the judge could interrupt him again.

"Despite your arguments," he said firmly, "I am fully convinced that your client should win the case."

"Now, Sam," he said, "you can confide in me. Did you really steal that horse you were accused of stealing?"
"No, sir," replied the man, "I thought I had, but your speech to the jury convinced even me."

VanCamp's TENDERONI

Do not have large meals nor so-called heavy foods in the evening if it can be avoided. They interfere seriously with sleep. This is one of the common mistakes made by most people, especially in city life.

The evening meal should ordinarily be finished by seven, not begun at that time. If dinner is served in the evening, adults should take a walk or some similar exercise before retiring.

Do not eat when hurried, irritable or nervously or physically tired.

Salt Important
Feed cattle salt daily. Sodium and chloride, the elements of salt, are constantly excreted in the milk and have to be replenished in the body of the cow. There is nearly a gram of salt in a pint of milk. Cows also need salt for maintenance of the body in addition to requirements needed for milk.

They Still Grow Up

Almost 500 years before Columbus, Vikings were voyaging to America to harvest the forests, yet woodlands still cover more than 630 million acres. With the spread of modern forest management methods that increase regrowth, forests can continue to supply the country's needs forever. The American tree farm movement—the growing of trees as a farm crop—has been extended to nearly 14 million acres of privately owned woodlands. With improved forest management and adequate protection from fires, tree farming is expected to provide America with perpetual forests.

Winter Accidents

Because of icy conditions, 53 per cent more people are killed in auto accidents during the winter than during the summer. This is why: A car going only 20 miles an hour requires approximately 169 feet to stop on an icy street, as against 21 feet on dry concrete.

1950 POTATO PRICE SUPPORT ANNOUNCED

The schedule of prices, by months, at which 1950 crop potatoes produced in Iosco County will be supported was released by county office of the Production and Marketing Administration. The prices, which are based on 60 per cent of parity on January 1, 1950, range from $1.45 per hundred in September, 1950 to $1.90 per hundred in March, 1951, for potatoes grading U. S. No. 1, U. S. Commercial, and U. S. No. 2. Potatoes grading U. S. No. 1 in Size B will be supported at $1.00 per hundred throughout the fall and winter months of 1950 and 1951.

To be eligible for support, growers must stay within their acreage allotments, pay a nominal fee, (comply with marketing regulations issued under the marketing agreement and order for this producing area) and enter into an agreement with the Department of Agriculture under which, among other things, limits may be set on the rate at which potatoes may be offered to the Department, and the growers may be required to withhold specified low grades and sizes of potatoes from commercial markets. Eligibility requirements of potato dealers and cooperatives will be in line with those required of growers.

With certain exceptions, all potatoes produced by eligible growers will be eligible for price support. The County PMA committee list these exceptions: (1) Potatoes failing to meet the quality requirements of the various grades. (2) Potatoes whose distribution is restricted or limited by State or Federal quarantine regulations. (3) Potatoes harvested from land designated by State or Federal agency before harvesting time as infested with golden nematode. (4) Potatoes not in suitable shipping condition under regulations of the Perishable Agricultural Commodities Act, or potatoes found objectionable because of odor, flavor, internal discoloration, or other invisible damage, whether or not this damage is apparent at time of shipment or subject to determination by customary shipping point inspection procedure. (5) Potatoes less than fairly well matured, as defined in applicable program or purchase announcement.

WORKERS SHOULD CHECK ON SOCIAL SECURITY

Every worker who is 65 or over and has been working in employment covered by the Social Security Act should get in touch with the nearest office of the Social Security Administration for information. If he is qualified for benefits he will be assisted in filing a claim. A worker who is insured under this plan and is 65 years of age can receive a benefit check for any month in which he earns $14.99 or less on jobs coming under social security. If he needs additional work to be insured, he will be told just how much longer it will be necessary for him to work. Similarly when a worker dies, who has been employed on jobs where the social security tax was deducted from his pay, the widow or other survivor should contact the social security field office nearest their residence without delay.

Neutra Parbat

Nanga Parbat is an ice-sheathed giant that rises from the hot valley floor of the Indus river, in north-west India, to a height of 26,660 feet, or more than five miles above sea level, notes the National Geographic society. Although topped by unconquered Everest and half a dozen lesser cloud-breakers of the Himalayan chain, this mountain, in its isolated grandeur, long has been a tantalizing challenge to the "highest yet" fraternity. Twenty-nine men have lost their lives to the mountain during 50-odd years of attempts to scale its crowning peak.

Use of Silos Recommended

Many silos have stood empty for years which could be profitably put back into use on farms where livestock are being fed. Use of 40 to 80 pounds of molasses as a preservative, 150 to 250 pounds of grain or 30 to 40 pounds of dried whey per ton will help to insure good quality silage. Research has shown that making silage will save 16 per cent more protein and 8 per cent more dry matter than when the same crop is made into hay. This protein saving equals 400 pounds of linseed meal per acre.

RED CROSS HOSPITAL WORKERS HELP SPEED PATIENT RECOVERY

The job of rebuilding sick bodies and minds of servicemen in military hospitals and restoring them to useful life is carried forward by a team—doctors, nurses, and Red Cross workers. The Red Cross worker may be a medical or psychiatric social worker, a recreation specialist, or a combination of them assisted by a Gray Lady.

Red Cross hospital workers assist medical officers with welfare and recreation programs for military patients.

Military physicians and nurses find that restoring the health of a sick man requires much more than medicine and food. The will to live and the will to do things must be revived before medical treatment can get in its beneficial work. That's where the Red Cross enters the picture.

A young soldier, only 23, was injured in an accident at a munitions proving ground. Half of his face and neck were blown away. Painracked and frightened, he had little taste for ordinary hospital recreation. He loved music, though, so the recreation worker brought to his bedside a radio phonograph and then, by mere chance, found she could satisfy a greater longing. The boy revealed that he wanted to write to his young wife those tender, personal things that he hesitated to dictate.

Under federal statute and regulations of the Army, the Navy, and the Air Force, the American Red Cross furnishes volunteer aid to the sick and wounded of the armed forces and acts in matters of voluntary relief and as a medium of communication between the people of the United States and their armed forces.

EARLY BUCKET-HANGER GETS MOST SYRUP

The "early bucket-hanger" gets the most maple syrup County Agent Harold R. Clark, warned Iosco county farmers who catch the sap flow and make tasty maple syrup. The county agricultural agent said WKAR, the Michigan State College radio station, would again offer sap weather forecasts during its Farm Service Hour broadcast each noon. In cooperation with the U. S. Weather bureau, information will be broadcast during the 12 to 12:10 weather report each day except Sunday.

P. W. Robbins, MSC forester, reports that early sap flows enable producers to get syrup on the market early when the demand is high and the supply low.

Being prepared to go when the sap starts flowing is important, the county agent said. He suggests hanging one bucket on trees 10 to 16 inches in diameter; two on trees so you will not waste time and fuel on trees 20 to 26 inches across. He recommends covers for buckets, so you will not waste time and fuel boiling out rainwater. The west, south and east sides of trees are usually best for hanging buckets. Complete information on maple syrup production is available in the bulletin "Syrup Production in Michigan," available at the county extension office in the Federal Building, East Tawas.

Milk Cow Production
Average production of the 23,200,000 cows milked on farms in 1948 was about 3,000 pounds

Plant a Tree
Few farmers and rural home owners realize the increased valuation they can add to their place by planting a few carefully chosen trees. The initial cost of a tree is not high—most of the value being in the years that have passed over its head. Consult a reliable nurseryman and have him outline just what can be done to improve the appearance of your farm or country home with ornamental trees. Unsightly vistas and encroaching neighbors can be screened off with trees and shrubs and necessary buildings hidden behind hedges of deciduous or evergreen shrubs.

Maybe This is the Year!

A great many people have been saying that—if their luck keeps pace with their dreams—they're going to own a Cadillac one of these years.

If you are among them—and we hope you are—this may be the year. Listen . . .

. . . Cadillac has built a great new car, for 1950, that is just as practical to own as almost any car you would consider buying.

It is the new "Sixty-One"—and it is priced lower than the highest-priced models of a number of other cars you would never think of as in the same class with Cadillac.

Furthermore, this new Cadillac will give gasoline mileage which actually approaches that of the lowest-priced popular cars.

Yes—from the standpoint of practicality—you've lost about your last logical reason for waiting any longer to buy a Cadillac.

And, oh, the things that say you ought to buy one—right here and now!

There's Cadillac's irresistible beauty—its delightful performance—its world-wide prestige—and its unbelievable endurance and length of life. Truly you'd find every motoring experience enriched and enlivened if you owned this magnificent car.

Better come in today—and find out whether this is the year! We'd be delighted to see you.

CUT EXCISE TAXES

TAX THE TAX EXEMPT—

Virtually everyone in Washington who has anything to do with the tax policies of the Government—even the Administration, itself—has publically stated that if business-depressing wartime excise taxes are repealed or substantially reduced, the revenue must be replaced with new income. Considering the present condition of the Federal Treasury, burdened with a staggering deficit, that is a reasonable attitude.

What is completely unreasonable, however, is the fact that so far the Congress has not taken action to obtain that new revenue from a very obvious and plausible source, namely: presently tax-exempt commercial business enterprises. If the Congress fails to reduce or repeal the excise taxes because of a continued ignoring of the tax exemption question, it will certainly be derelict in its patent duty to consumers, businessmen and the Federal Treasury.

Taxing the tax-exempts would produce more than one million dollars in new revenue, more than enough to grant effective excise tax relief. Action to require all commercial business corporations to pay Federal income taxes is long overdue and the present situation with regard to repeal of excises merely highlights what is, and has been, a bad condition for a long long time.

Income tax exemptions to such enterprises as cooperatives, foundations, trusts and educational institutions engaged in profit-making operations are an anachronism today. They grew up when not very much Federal income tax on corporations produced more than enough revenue to support the Government. At that time an exemption of a corporation or an individual was thought of as the reasonable generosity and freedom of a Congress with ample resources.

But today the Government must exploit just about every tax source it can find in order to balance its heavy expenditures. Consequently it has become very clear that the exemption of any corporation or individual means heavier taxes on everyone else.

The tax environment has completely changed in the last 25 years, but the exemptions have not. It is high time that Congress took a realistic look and eliminated these out-dated exemptions, using the additional revenue to bring about what everybody wants and needs—the repeal or reduction of the wartime excise taxes on everyday needs and minor luxuries.

GREEN GRASS OF WYOMING

By Mary O'Hara

The filly, Crown Jewel, "kidnapped by Thunderhead, the stallion is now running with his herd of mares in the Wyoming hills. Unlike the range horses, she is having difficulty adjusting herself to the winter weather and almost freezes as she waits for her sleek coat to become shaggy. Jewel is harried by Thunderhead and would like to flee from him. Her only comfort is Old Pete, the range "bum" gelding who is ever at hand when she needs him. Ishmael, a young, white colt, keeps running at the edge of the herd, despite Thunderhead's efforts to run him away. He cannot adjust to being away from his mother, Hager. News comes to Rob of Thunderhead.

CHAPTER X

It was Saturday, the twelfth of June.

Ken McLaughlin was out on the Saddle Back filling his eyes and his nostrils and his lungs and his heart with sky and plains and wind and grass.

On the peak of a ridge they stood in silent companionship, the tall, thin, seventeen-year-old boy and his mare, Flicka. He had dismounted and was leaning against her. So had they been standing for the last fifteen minutes.

They were just looking around. Ken searched the hill above the water hole some miles to the east, but it was bare of life. His eyes wandered away again, losing their focus, falling back into their dreamy contemplation.

He must not forget his errand. Again he turned his eyes to the barren hill above the water hole and in spite of its apparent emptiness he kept on looking. There were two small black bushes on the hillside near the top. Suddenly they moved. One made a dash. They were sheep dogs. Then it looked as if a wave of grey water washed over the hill and rippled down. The sheep. Three thousand of them. The whole band.

He mounted Flicka and rode slowly toward the water hole. Jeremy, hungry, as all sheep-herders are, for a breath of the outside world, was standing out in front of his wagon, eagerly awaiting his visitor.

Greetings were exchanged as Ken dismounted and threw his reins over Flicka's head. Jeremy's eyes went to the saddle upon which several packages were fastened.

"Did ye bring me any magazines, Ken?"

"Sure. And some candy and a couple of records." Ken took the bundle off Flicka's saddle and handed it to Jeremy. "This one's a Spanish rumba. Hot stuff. This one's a Western."

The herder took the two records in his hands and looked at the writing.

"The Western," said Ken, pointing, "it's about—all this." He swung his arms wide.

"All what?"

"The grass. The greengrass. See the title? Green Grass of Wyoming." Jeremy read the title slowly aloud and stood thoughtfully looking at it while Ken stretching himself, gazed around with his far, dreaming gaze.

"Must have been a guy that saw all this—the greengrass, and so much of it—and wrote that song about it."

"Grass is awful plain stuff to write poetry and music about," said Jeremy thoughtfully. "Still and all, come to think about it, we live on it."

"Not us," corrected Ken. "The animals do."

"Well, the beef eats the grass and we eat the beef."

Ken laughed. "That's right." Presently he said, "I know why he wrote about the grass."

Jeremy looked up.

"It kind of gets you," Ken explained. "I always feel that way when I've been off at school and then come back. It's so awfully big, so awfully different from anything else in the world—and yet, it's—just grass."

Howard Passes Exams For West Point Entry

Ken threw himself full length on "the grass. I came up to tell you," said he, "that Dad's got Garcia and his men for the shearing. It'll be about in two weeks. He wants you to keep the sheep where they are until then if there's feed enough."

Jeremy took a deep pull at his pipe. "There's plenty of grass here yet—the lambs are lookin' fine. Your brother home too?"

"Sure. Say—did you know Howard passed his exams and is ordered to report at West Point on the Fourth of July?"

"That ain't no news! He took them exams last January. He got the notice he had passed in April, the wire to your Dad came through the telegraph agent over to Tie Siding, an' he spread the news—I bet I had it afore your Dad did. And I kin tell you sumpin' else too. Your Dad went into Cheyenne and painted the town red. Waal, he ended up at the Post, and the Army officers give him a dinner of congratulation, and they did say your Dad got tight as a tick. But, say! Who'd blame him? Sixteen thousand dollars! That ain't a minnow—that's a good big wad of dough."

"Sixteen thousand dollars?" said Ken. "What you givin' me?"

"Sure. That's what it takes to put a boy through West Point. When Howard passed them exams he put sixteen thousand dollars in your Dad's pocket, or words to that effect. Say, Ken, any other news down at your place?"

Ken thought hard, then shook his head.

They continued to talk until the light changed. Most of the sheep were drawing nearer to the fold for their evening feed of cotton cake.

Ken said, "I've got to go." He put his hand in his pocket and took out a small paper. "Here's the receipt for the letter Dad took to town and had registered for you."

The herder took it and rummaged in his pocket. "I owe your Dad fifteen cents for the registration fee."

"Yes, he told me to bring it."

Here's two nickels and three pennies and a two cent stamp. Sorry his band of mares? Had he seen Jewel?

Rob explained that he was in Fox Park trailing them, had not yet seen them, but might at any time, and asked, "What races are you going to put her in, Carey, when you get her back?"

"First, the American Grand National at Belmont Park, in November," said Carey, calmly, and Ken gasped.

Rob laughed. "Two and a half mile steeplechase! That'll be some going for a youngster."

"That is," said Carey, "if she's in condition. We don't know if she's been hurt. She mightn't be able to run."

"You don't need to worry about that," said Rob. "She's been in charge of a range stallion, remember, and she's on Wyoming greengrass."

"Wyoming greengrass," murmured Carey, feeling the lilt of the words. "It sounds like something magic."

"It is, believe me!" said Rob. "This country up here does something for horses that is out of this world. Gives them strong lungs, staying power, makes them hard. Jewel will be in better condition than she has ever been in before."

"Oh, it's the green grass!" sang Howard softly.

Some Army officers whom Rob knew came by and stopped to speak. The boys got up and stood. Again, the talk was of Jewel and the expedition which was to be sent out to get her and of the races she would run in. Her frame, and the interest of her story, had gone all over the state. The officers asked who was going out to get her?

"We're all of us going," said Howard.

Colonel Harris looked at him. "This is the Cadet, isn't it?"

Howard grinned and nodded.

"Yes, sir. My last vacation here for two years."

Colonel Harris shook him warmly by the hand. "Welcome to our midst, Howard. Rob, couldn't you find a better fate to wish on him?"

Rob went over to their table for a few minutes and now the boys talked more freely. They wanted to know about last fall, after the blizzard, when Carey had left the ranch with her Grandma and uncle. Had she got an awful bawling out from her Grandma for having gone with Ken in the pick-up to the Monument?

Carey shook her head. Her face was contrite. "Oh, it wasn't like that, it was just that it made Grandma ill, she was so worried about me. I shouldn't have done it."

"Is she coming down here with your uncle when we go out after the horses?"

"Of course," said Carey, "your mother has asked her."

The boys looked at each other. Ken said, "But this summer, won't you go along with us?"

Ken thought hard, then shook his head.

They continued to talk until the light changed. Most of the sheep were drawing nearer to the fold for their evening feed of cotton cake.

"First, the American Grand National at Belmont Park, in November," said Carey, calmly, and Ken gasped.

Rob laughed. "Two and a half mile steeplechase! That'll be some going for a youngster."

"That is," said Carey, "if she's in condition. We don't know if she's been hurt. She mightn't be able to run."

"You don't need to worry about that," said Rob. "She's been in charge of a range stallion, remember, and she's on Wyoming greengrass."

"Wyoming greengrass," murmured Carey, feeling the lilt of the words. "It sounds like something magic."

"It is, believe me!" said Rob. "This country up here does something for horses that is out of this world. Gives them strong lungs, staying power, makes them hard. Jewel will be in better condition than she has ever been in before."

"Oh, it's the green grass!" sang Howard softly.

Some Army officers whom Rob knew came by and stopped to speak. The boys got up and stood. Again, the talk was of Jewel and the expedition which was to be sent out to get her and of the races she would run in. Her frame, and the interest of her story, had gone all over the state. The officers asked who was going out to get her?

"We're all of us going," said Howard.

Colonel Harris looked at him. "This is the Cadet, isn't it?"

Howard grinned and nodded.

"Yes, sir. My last vacation here for two years."

Colonel Harris shook him warmly by the hand. "Welcome to our midst, Howard. Rob, couldn't you find a better fate to wish on him?"

Rob went over to their table for a few minutes and now the boys talked more freely. They wanted to know about last fall, after the blizzard, when Carey had left the ranch with her Grandma and uncle. Had she got an awful bawling out from her Grandma for having gone with Ken in the pick-up to the Monument?

Carey shook her head. Her face was contrite. "Oh, it wasn't like that, it was just that it made Grandma ill, she was so worried about me. I shouldn't have done it."

"Is she coming down here with your uncle when we go out after the horses?"

"Of course," said Carey, "your mother has asked her."

The boys looked at each other. Ken said, "But this summer, won't you go along with us?"

Ken thought hard, then shook his head.

They continued to talk until the light changed. Most of the sheep were drawing nearer to the fold for their evening feed of cotton cake.

Ken said, "I've got to go." He put his hand in his pocket and took out a small paper. "Here's the receipt for the letter Dad took to town and had registered for you."

The herder took it and rummaged in his pocket. "I owe your Dad fifteen cents for the registration fee."

"Yes, he told me to bring it."

Farm Bureau Committee Chairmen Appointed

The February meeting of the Farm Bureau Board of Directors, postponed because of weather conditions was held March 6, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Lyle Robinson of Whittemore. Arlo Wasson, District Representative, was guest speaker and counselor.

County President Andrew Mathews appointed the following chairmen to resume responsibility of their respective Committee for the rest of the year.

A. T. Vary—Community Farm Bureau.
Harold Black—Budget.
Herman Drengberg—Blue Cross.
Mrs. Charles Kobs—Publicity.
William Herriman—Membership.
Tom Nelkie—Resolutions.
Mrs. A. T. Vary—Women's Activities.
Andrew Mathews—Farm Supply.

The Membership committee became active immediately in making plans for a welcome party for new members. A. T. Vary and James Mielock will assist on the committee.

March 22 is the new date set for the Farm Bureau school, which was postponed in February because of bad weather. It will be held at the Glennie Community Building. A new program is being prepared and members will be notified.

The Tawas City Monarchs kept on the heels of CYO with a 61-45 win over the East Tawas Indies in the second game. Friday night will see the wind-up of the league, with CYO Indies playing Tawas City and East Tawas tangling with Tawas City Legion.

In the third quarter, the Legion was held scoreless and CYO took a big lead, 39 to 26. In the last quarter, the Legion brought their score from 26 to 47, but the CYO was just two jumps ahead, sending their score to 60.
