Iosco 4-H Clubs Exhibit Projects At Hale Today

300 Boys and Girls; Over 1000 Articles

Handicraft, Clothing, Photography, Electrical, Tractor Maintenance

Three hundred boys and girls will exhibit over 1000 articles which they have completed during the winter months at the Spring 4-H Achievement Day, Friday, March 24, at the Hale Community Building. Twenty-five leaders have been taking time out from their busy life to help these industrious youth develop their skills.

A wide variety of articles will be exhibited. The projects have been carried in clothing, knitting, handicraft, photography, electrical, tractor maintenance, hobby crafts, radio and the 4-H Club Girl. A varying degree of skills will be shown by beginners, second year and advanced members.

Members will attend a specially planned program which will be held between 10:00 A. M. and 3:00 P. M. The main feature of the program will be a dress revue and the presentation of award pins and certificates. The East Tawas High School band under the direction of Frank Humberger will offer a half hour concert. A fine movie will be shown and a 4-H demonstration will be given by girls of the East Tawas School under the leadership of Mrs. Harold Clark. Talks will be given by Iosco County's new Club Agent, Marvin Davenport, County Agricultural Agent, Harold R. Clark and State Club leaders, Amila Vasold and Kenneth Ousterhout. Walter Martens, president of the 4-H Council, will be master of ceremonies.

The program is under the supervision of the program committee of the 4-H Council. The members of the committee are Clara Bolen, Mrs. Hildur Rollin and Mrs. Ellen McGuire.

Sandwiches, pop, milk and coffee will be served at noon by the Hale 4-H Community Club which is led by Mrs. Blanche Douglas.

CYO Wins City League Title

Wallops Monarchs in Season's Final Game

The Independent City League ended last Friday night, with CYO walloping the second place Tawas City Monarchs 103 to 63, and winning the league title. The Tawas City Legion took the second spot with a 62-42 win over East Tawas, in the final game.

The CYO team had little trouble subduing the Monarchs, and at half-time were out in front 41-20. The second half found CYO again outscoring Tawas 62 to 43 and the game ended, CYO 103, Tawas City 63.

Center Jim Dubovsky, of the CYO tem, continued to lead his team and the league in scoring, with 37 points, followed by Green with 23 and Mandock 16. Steinhurst with 21 and Gingerich with 19, were high for the local team.

The Legion team had very little trouble in downing the East Tawas Indies and were ahead all the way. The Legion rolled up a 30-17 lead at the half and 32 to 17 score in the second half, for their 62-34 win.

John Erickson was the big man in the Legion offensive, with 31 points, followed by Pat Erickson, with 13. Blackie led the East Tawas scoring with 16, and Durant followed with 13.

In a game Sunday afternoon at Pinconning, the Tawas City Legion downed the Pinconning Independents 65 to 42.

Valuation of Tawas City Set At $940,950

New Homes, New Business Places Double City Valuation in 10 Years

The assessed valuation of Tawas City for 1950 as compiled at last week's session of the Board of Review totals $940,950.00. In 1940 the assessed valuation was $495,975.00.

The figures reveal a continuous healthy growth of the city over the ten year period. This growth is principally represented in new homes, new businesses and new business buildings. This growth is especially conspicuously shown in the third ward since the laying of the Lake street water main to the city limits. Here several new subdivisions have been developed and a large number of fine new homes have been constructed, as well as the establishment of a number of important businesses on U. S. 23 with excellent new buildings. All three wards of the city, however, have contributed their share in the city's growth.

In the first ward, material is now arriving on the site of a new building for Tawas Industries, Inc., which will be constructed this spring. The building will be located on Baguery street between First and Wheeler streets. This, with a number of other residences and business projects planned or under construction, promises that the growth of the city will continue.

Valuation totals of the city during the past ten years as compiled by City Clerk Albert Buch are as follows: 1940—$495,975.00; 1945—$575,415.00; 1949—$859,600.00; 1950—$940,950.00.

Farm Census Starts April 1

Questionnaires Will be Mailed Next Week

Between March 22 and March 27, copies of the 1950 Census of Agriculture questionnaire will be placed in the mailboxes of all farmers in Iosco county. W. J. Kelly, Census District Supervisor, said today, farmers are requested by the Census Bureau, U. S. Department of Commerce, to fill in the questionnaires in time to have them ready to give to Census takers who will call on and after April 1 to take the Censuses of Population and Housing and to collect the Census of Agriculture reports.

Distribution of the Agriculture questionnaire is being made in advance of the Census enumerator's visit to afford farmers time to consult their records for information about their farms and farm production during the year 1949. Mr. Kelly said, this method, he pointed out, will save time for both the farm operator and the Census enumerator.

The system of self-enumeration by farmers is being employed by the Census Bureau for use in 41 States. Self enumeration will not be employed in the seven Southern states of Alabama, Georgia, Louisiana, Mississippi, North Carolina, South Carolina, and part of Arkansas, because of complexities by tenant and landlord farm operations in those states.

All farmers in this county should receive the questionnaire by March 27, allowing them about a week in which to fill the answers to questions before Census takers start.

Large Crowd Enjoys Basketball Carnival

The annual basketball carnival of St. Joseph parish held at the Tawas City gymnasium provided excitement and entertainment to a large crowd as they witnessed games between all ages.

The Foco vs. Sass family game with the lineup consisting of the entire families proved to be one of the extraordinary events of the evening. The Sass family defeated the Focos 4-0.

Basketball technique and rules were thrown to the winds as the second and first graders played their game, resembling a combination of basketball, football, hockey and soccer. The second graders won 2-0. James Wilkusi made the only score.

Other games played during the evening were the Sixth graders, who lost to Tawas City Seventh 30-18. The High School defeated the Junior High 32-26, and the tenth grade girls showed their superiority over the ninth graders, 16-15.

The evening closed with a close battle between the C. Y. O. team and St. Bernard Independents. The C. Y. O. won 85-71.

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS

New Aids Asked for Farm Support; Coal Industry Seeks Strike Peace; Unemployment Surges to New Peaks

(EDITOR'S NOTE: When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of Western Newspaper Union's news analysis and not necessarily of this newspaper.)

FARM SUPPORTS:

New Aids Asked

Charles Brannan, U.S. secretary of agriculture, was still plumping for adoption of his (Brannan plan) system for farm price supports, arguing that new price aids must be provided now.

Pointing out that there is trouble getting rid of 1948 farm surpluses even as 1949 surpluses are pouring in, Brannan said the disposal problem "points to the need of supplementary action on price supports, particularly with respect to more efficient methods than procedures for handling price supports of perishable commodities."

THE agriculture secretary may have had a point there, but the main question was: Would his plan of letting farm products find their own levels on the price market, with subsidies making up the difference—provide an adequate solution?

Up to this point, he had been unable to convince congress that it would. What luck he would have in the future was wholly problematical. But there was no arguing the point that something needed to be done to clear up the muddled farm price support program. As it was being operated, federal farm policy seemed to be getting worse the farther it went.

Brannan was eminently correct when he admitted the present price support system programs "encourage over-production on one hand, and under-consumption on the other . . . and to find sufficiently new uses for the surpluses, or to divert them into non-commercial channels at anything comparable to the support price usually is impossible."

SUMMING UP, Brannan said: "Briefly, the outlook includes the likelihood of some further contraction in the total demands for U.S. farm products and points to the need for adjustment in production if a favorable price level is to be maintained."

The problem indeed was a grave one and made even more grave by the fact that the administration may be caught in a trap that has been long in the making—a trap created by the fact that having so long experienced the subsidy aid as is, farmers won't like any tampering with the program and might visit their ill will on anyone who may do so.

LEWIS:

A Fine Largess

John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers of America—a labor union which does not pay its members strike benefits and which subjects them to untold misery and hardship during strike periods—was offering a victory-flushed one-million-dollar loan to the C.I.O. United Automobile Workers union.

THE PURPOSE of the loan would be to help the UAW win new contracts from Chrysler and General Motors. Lewis wrote Walter Reuther, head of the giant auto workers union, that wage-welfare improvements in the coal industry were fought by money interests linked with "the financial group" which dominates car-making.

He added that this aid is needed so "your union may be assured beyond peradventure, of success in its present struggle." Reuther was in the midst of a long strike for pensions at Chrysler corporation. At the time of Lewis' offer, it was estimated UAW workers had lost 35 million dollars in pay and the company 250 million dollars.

Help for Reuther was authorized at a jubilant meeting of Lewis with his top union aides, where Lewis was said to have boasted that he had "licked" the strike-emergency injunction provision of the Taft-Hartley law, inasmuch as a federal court injunction issued under the law failed to halt the coal strike.

MOST of the big U.S. industrial concerns feared that Lewis' victory over the coal operators in the matter of wage increases and additional health and welfare benefits would touch off a series of strikes as other unions sought to do as well for themselves.

Coal was being mined again and industry's wheels were turning, but the immediate future appeared grim and uncertain. The question seemed to be: When and where will the next strike erupt? It seemed inevitable to even a casual observer that another round of wage-hike fights was in the making.

FRENCH-SAAR:

U.S. Worried

United States high level diplomats had a new and aggravating problem on their hands: The suddenly critical French-German split over the Saar region.

The situation was complicated when France and the semi-independent government of the coal-rich Saar signed a pact under which France would take the Saar's coal for the next 50 years which the German Chancellor resented.

Communist?

A sensation was caused in British political circles when Lord Beaverbrook's conservative London Evening Standard named War Minister John Strachey (above) "an avowed Communist."

COAL:

A Look Ahead

The most crippling coal strike in the nation's history had come to an end. Miners were pouring back into the pits and allied industries, faced with a threat of total shutdown, were reviving and calling men back to work.

John L. Lewis, United Mine Worker chieftain, apparently had won again. He had obtained a raise in pay for the miners along with additional health and welfare benefits.

But as the nation relaxed with a sigh of relief that the production-stop threat had been removed, leaders in the coal industry began to look farther ahead—to examine methods by which a permanent coal peace might be won.

Leading mine operators stated they hoped to complete arrangements to have Harry W. Moses, head of the "captive" mine subsidiaries of the United States Steel corporation, to leave big steel and devote all his time to handling the coal industry's dealings with Lewis.

APPOINTMENT of Moses as a full-time representative of the soft coal industry in its relations with the UMW is designed as a move to end the chaotic conditions that have existed in the mine fields for years. The move has the support of virtually all the principal operators in the north and west and was expected to win strong favor among southern operators as well.

A lasting industry peace has long been the goal of operators and the public, which is beginning to tire of the almost annual war of nerves between the mine union boss and operators while the nation stands almost helpless without fuel.

JOBLESS:

Hit New Peak

Again jobless numbers in the United States had catapulted to a new high, and again the federal commerce department appeared unperturbed about it.

Unemployment rose to 4,684,000 in February—the highest figure since 1941—when the total was 5,620,000.

DESPITE THE FACT that many industrial and economic leaders professed to see danger in the situation, the commerce department came up with the usual bland, un-concerned explanation as to the cause of the big jump in unemployment.

As was stated in January when jobless figures appeared alarming, commerce department boss said:

"The slight rise in unemployment between January and February (204,000) appears to be due mainly to seasonal increase in the labor force and not to any cutbacks in employment."

But was that the case? Wasn't it logical to assume that an "increase in the labor force"—meaning unemployed but available labor—meant a corresponding lack of employment for that same force.

IT WAS SIGNIFICANT, many observers felt, that the figure as reported did not include striking workmen, a fact that meant the unemployment picture was not distorted in that sense.

Why was unemployment apparently steadily increasing? How would the "seasonal turnover" explanation hold water? If there were serious threat of widespread unemployment in the nation, it seemed the government should ascertain the fact.

ARCTIC ARMY

Large masses of men never could be pitted against each other in Alaska, or other Arctic wastes, as they were in the last war, according to military experts who led the recent mock warfare in the Alaska sub-Arctic; but they couldn't agree on why that is the case. One reason given was difficulty of transporting supplies, another was that there simply isn't enough room.

U.N. COST:

One Dime Each

Each citizen of the United States pays less than a dime for his share of the basic United Nations annual budget.

At least three members of congress disagree on whether this is too much, too little, or about right according to the first issue of a weekly wall newspaper in color, the UN GRAM.

APPEARING for the first time this week, the new publication reports that Sen. Herbert R. O'Connor of Maryland, chairman of the senate committee on expenditures in the executive departments which recently issued a report asking that the U.N. reduce its expenditures for the United Nations and its affiliates, thinks that a dime per capita is too much. Congresswoman Helen Gahagan Douglas, on the other hand, says it is too little; while Sen. Estes Kefauver is quoted as saying it is about right.

The U.N. Gram, which tells subscribers about the United Nations, in this issue objectively presents each of these three viewpoints.

Buttressing Senator O'Connor's "too much" point, it states: "Internationalism, plus national defense, is a luxury. U.N.'s budget is just the start; each specialized agency asks more. How can the little nations pay?"

Supporting the "too little" approach of Congresswoman Douglas, it says: "New York City, U. N.'s permanent home, pays more for garbage disposal than U.N.'s annual cost; its subway deficit would run the U.N. for six months."

AND BACKING up Senator Kefauver's "just right" viewpoint, it argues: "Upping the U. N. budget, by forcing out power members, would make it a 'rich man's club.' If the U.S. paid the increase, still others might resign, charging that the U.N. was the 'creature' of the United States.

"Our aim," states publisher Wallace Thorsen, "is to get people thinking and talking about the United Nations and the job it is doing in building the world community."

"We try, in this and all subsequent issues, to present a simple, objective analysis of the problems faced by the world's only machinery for peace, to anyone with the time and inclination to pause before a bulletin board long enough to read the U.N. Gram—a matter of minutes."

FARM UNION:

Asks Red 'Bargain'

From a surprising source came a plea for the United States to "strike a bargain" with Russia and to spend 150 billion dollars in the next 15 years on the undeveloped areas of the world.

THE SOURCE was James Patton, president of the National Farmers Union. Patton said, "Somehow, I believe we will be able to find a way to live in this world with peoples who differ in viewpoint as to type of economy and social systems."

"Let us try to strike a bargain with those whom we are fighting in the cold war along with peaceful lines," he went on, "so that all of us can lay down our arms.

"Let us lead out in America by placing at the disposal of the people of the world an annual credit of 10 billion dollars for the next 15 years for the purpose of building TVA's on the Danube and the Yangtze, and for building man's productivity in all of the undeveloped areas of the world."

PRESIDENT PATTON'S proposal was magnanimous, generous, all-inclusive, but withal mostly visionary. It would delight those who operate on the theory that America can buy peace and good will with its dollars.

They might even add that America must be the most hated nation in the world, inasmuch as it appears it has no friends except those who are won and kept with money.

Another Shirley

In Germany they are comparing six-year-old Dagmar Glombig to America's Shirley Temple when the latter was rising to stardom as a child in Hollywood. Dagmar is the daughter of composer and conductor Eberhard Glombig and has played in several German films.

RUSSIA:

Parley Proposed

That there was at least a possibility of a Big Four meeting including Russia taking place was indicated by a report from Paris that the three western foreign ministers, meeting in London, would discuss the matter. French Foreign Minister Robert Schuman was the authority for the statement.

From a nother authoritative source came word that the Big Three would "study the problems."

PRESIDENT MEETS FUTURE FARMER . . . George Lewis (center) of Hersman, III, the national president of the Future Farmers of America organization, is received by President Harry Truman at the White House in Washington, D. C. John Kraft (right), president of an American foods manufacturing company in Chicago, introduced the young farmer to the president of the United States. The Future Farmers of America is a youth organization formed in the interests of vocational agriculture. Generally sponsored by the agricultural department of the schools, the various chapters offer young agriculturists a chance to learn farming.

"NOW, ABOUT DINNER" . . . Federal mediator Cyrus Ching is explaining to his wife via telephone just why he will not be home in time for dinner again to the amusement of federal mediation board member William N. Margolis (left). The reason, of course, was the coal strike situation which kept Ching busy sitting in on operator-union conferences. The incident took place just before a late press conference during which Ching said he could see no sign of progress. The strike was settled after a federal judge found the United Mine Workers "not guilty" of contempt of court in the strike of 372,000 miners.

ATOM AND EVES . . . The male island in a sea of females is Sumner Pike, acting chairman of the atomic energy commission at a private party given by leading newspaperwomen of Washington. They are, clockwise from lower left, Vera Clay, Newsweek; Rose McKee, International News Service; Mary Cottrill, Nashville Banner; Gladys Montgomery, McGraw-Hill publications; Ruth Montgomery, New York Daily News; Josephine Ripley, Christian Science Monitor; Dorothy Brandon, New York Herald Tribune; Mae Craig, Portland (Me.) Press Herald; and Doris Fleeson, columnist. Pike put aside thoughts of the A- and H-bombs to relax at the party.

Streamlining Slowed

IF YOU SHOULD ASK any congressman or senator, or if you should ask any citizen if he is against waste and extravagance in government, it would be like asking him if he is against sin. The answer would invariably be "of course we are against waste in government." But unfortunately, as in the case of sin, even though we are against it we do little or nothing about it.

Which is exactly what the congress is doing in the matter of the recommendations of the report of the Hoover commission for reorganization of the executive branch of the government. While congress only has the authority to reorganize the executive branch, it would appear that first somebody must reorganize congress before that body will act. Somebody must take the bull by the horns and wake in if we are to see any of the recommendations of the Hoover commission go into effect.

President Truman has sent to the congress seven reorganization plans based on the recommendations of the Hoover commission. Some of them have been in congressional pigeonholes for almost a year and yet no public hearings have ever been held on any of those suggested improvements in the federal government set-up.

Up to this time the folks running the Citizens' Committee for the Hoover Report have been using the shotgun method of creating wild public opinion behind their program. In other words they have been pointing out the defects in all the departments of government without pin-pointing in any one department.

Postal Agency Target

Now indications are that they are attempting to focus public opinion on reorganization of the post office department. There are several reasons for this. Everybody uses the post office department and in spite of the many charges of inefficiency, the post office department in the minds of many people is just about the most efficient here in Washington. But admittedly they have some old fashioned methods, upon which improvements might be made. But the Hoover attack, for instance, on the department of agriculture, has riled some farmers.

The proposed reorganization plans for the Veterans' administration has aroused the ire of the American Legion and other veterans' organizations. And so on down the line. But since everybody uses the post office, that department has no single powerful defender, so let's all jump on the postal department.

Last July President Truman sent two bills to congress. One to the house, which seeks to set up a more efficient accounting system and the other a senate measure which would place fourth class postmasters under civil service and thus eliminate the political appointment of these men. But no action, not even hearings on these bills.

Today the postoffice department is audited by the General Accounting Office located in Asheville, North Carolina. The office has about 800 employees and is from eight months to a year behind in its work.

If there is some question in the mind of GAO about the routine report of the postmaster at Oakland, Maryland, for instance, then they write to the Postmaster General, voicing the question. The PG then writes to the PM at Oakland. The PM at Oakland then writes to the PG in Washington in turn passes on the information to the GAO at Asheville and so on and so on.

Avoid Jitters

Remember, you folks in the home towns of the country, this is an election year. Don't get the jitters. Don't let politics, even irresponsible politicians on either side of the fence scare you. There is enough that is real danger in the world today to cause us to stop, look and listen without being stampeded by the speech or statement of some senator or congressman or other politician that this government is being taken over by Communists, that Russia has us hamstrung, that your government is being handed over to subversive interests, that our leaders are a bunch of stupid oafs, that the FBI and J. Edgar Hoover don't know the score.

The facts of the matter are that here in Washington, except for these very irresponsible politicians about whom we have spoken, the consensus from Democrats and Republicans alike is that there is probably no leader in the world today who is more conversant with the facts, who has better advisors and who has his two feet on the ground more solidly than that little man in the White House who has his hands full of problems.

His efforts, though seldom 100 percent liked, have been honest and effective.

SERVICE IN PEACE AND WAR

Disaster Relief Work by American Red Cross Swiftly Brings Nationwide Resources to Aid Of Areas Stricken by Fire, Flood or Winds

By General George C. Marshall

I BELIEVE the disaster relief work of the Red Cross is more appreciated and better understood than any other service it renders.

Its resources, nationwide, can be quickly brought to the aid of stricken communities. These resources are not solely in funds and trained workers but also in the organization's facility for mobilizing the sympathy of the nation when situations require it and converting that sympathy into material help.

The ability to rush aid wherever needed is one of the greatest assets of the American National Red Cross. The instant a disaster occurs the Red Cross gets into action—not only from outside the disaster area, but also within the community affected where the local chapter disaster preparedness plan functions instantly.

The impulse to help someone in distress is a very human reaction. It inspires the staff personnel and the thousands of volunteers who give their time and talents to the Red Cross. Their effectiveness lies in providing prompt relief and results from the organization's network of 3,745 chapters and 4,668 branches in the United States, its territories and insular possessions.

There are only a few county seats in the United States without an active chapter. There is scarcely a town in the country which does not have an active branch.

There are three distinct phases of every Red Cross disaster operation. They are preparedness for the disaster; emergency relief for the victims in the form of food, clothing, shelter and medical care; and rehabilitation afterwards for those who cannot finance their own recovery. This last is the least understood and frequently the most important.

Preparedness means that the local chapter has a disaster committee which has planned for fast action whenever and wherever trouble hit.

It means that the local chapter has understandings with the police, fire and health departments, with veterans' organizations and other groups as to the roles each will play. It means that the committee knows where it can get critically needed supplies in a hurry. It means that the disaster committee has arranged with local radio operators to swing into action if the regular lines of communication are wiped out. In most sizeable disasters, these "hams" have proved invaluable.

One reason for the effectiveness of the Red Cross work is that it can provide without delay funds to carry out relief and rehabilitation. That is why in its current budget there is earmarked $5,000,000 for these purposes, in addition to a reserve fund of $7,000,000 kept on hand.

In the event of a minor disaster that is, involving a few families the disaster chairman of the chapter and his committee handle the situation with local funds or, if necessary, with a supplementary grant from the national disaster relief appropriation.

But when a chapter finds itself confronted by a major disaster, a countrywide concentration of resources is the order of the day. First the local officials notify one of the four area administrative headquarters in Alexandria, Va., Atlanta, Ga., St. Louis, Mo., and San Francisco, Calif.

If the area office finds that the problem is beyond its facilities, it calls upon national headquarters, which brings to bear the resources of the other areas.

There are three resources that must quickly be put into action. First, if the chapter in the disaster region lacks funds, the word is flashed to national headquarters which authorizes an immediate grant or allotment so the chapter can carry on without delay.

Or perhaps the chapter is small and needs experienced help. The area office will send workers from SOLICITUDE . . . its regular staff and if more are needed it will recruit and assign trained workers from its list of disaster resources.

Then there is the matter of supplies. Drugs, whole blood plasma and the like are brought in from the closest sources. Food, clothing, and essential furniture are procured, locally if possible. And when additional shelter is needed, tents and cots are borrowed from the national guard or the United States military establishment.

A good example of disaster relief was demonstrated recently when a typhoon struck Guam. The chapter there, headed by Gov. Carlton Skinner, had $38,000 which could be used for emergency. The committee moved in fast, securing food, clothing, and medical care for the victims.

Because the crops were destroyed, supplies of food were shipped or flown into the island. Rehabilitation started as soon as the high winds permitted.

This is just one of the numerous disasters that the Red Cross has dealt with during the brief period of my association with the organization. More recently, the organization has been called upon for help in relieving Midwest flood sufferers and the victims of winter storms in the Far West.

In the finest sense, this service exemplifies the time-honored American tradition of neighbor helping neighbor. The Red Cross merely promotes and implements the neighborhood spirit.

A Free-Moving Group

Many duties of the Red Cross involve emergency operations, often on a very large scale. In addition to local service by the chapters, Red Cross activities are both national and international. You can see that the Red Cross must always be free to mobilize and expand its services to meet situations as they arise. It must be able to concentrate its whole strength on the relief of a stricken community or meet the huge demands of a national emergency. No one can foresee exactly what burdens the Red Cross may be called upon to assume each year.

It therefore should be apparent that the organization cannot well delegate its fund raising responsibility to another agency. Nor can it commit itself to an alliance which might hinder its freedom or capacity to meet its national and international responsibility.

MIRROR Of Your MIND

Relaxation Aids Memory

By Lawrence Gould

Is your memory better when you are "relaxed"?

Answer: Yes—even for non-sense—writes psychologist Gerald R. Pascal in the American Journal of Psychology. The subjects of an experiment were tested for their ability to recall meaningless syllables, first seated in a chair, then lying on a couch after instruction in the art of relaxation. They remembered "significantly better" in the relaxed state. Psychiatrists long ago discovered that their patients recall seemingly forgotten feelings and events more easily when physically relaxed, and use "the couch" partly for this reason.

make up to himself for feeling that nobody loves him. To an even relatively normal person, money can be the source of much pleasure and it is as unrealistic to despise it as to feel your value as a person depends on how much you are "worth."

Are ambitious people the best workers?

Answer: That depends on whether they are realists or day-dreamers. What you think is great ambition may be no more than a childish picture of the power and importance which you feel ought to be coming to you because you want them so badly. The test lies in whether you feel that routine tasks are beneath you or you can recognize them as the necessary step toward your goal. It's all right to "hitch your wagon to a star" if you recognize that hard work is the tow-rop. Otherwise, the unambitious chap may be a better worker.

Is it true that "wealth won't make you happy"?

Answer: Only in the sense that the capacity for happiness is in your mind, and that if it is paralyzed by inner conflicts, you will find pleasure in nothing. If a wealthy person is unhappy—as is often the case—it may be because he amassed his wealth for neurotic reasons such as the need to

Emotions and High Blood Pressure

By Dr. James W. Barton

NOW THAT MOST men and women know that high blood pressure is the commonest cause of heart strokes (coronary thrombosis), and brain stroke (apoplexy), blood pressure is the health subject most frequently discussed when old friends meet one another. One who claims his blood pressure is 200 or more thinks he is a "sicker" individual than one whose blood pressure is only 190.

While high blood pressure is a serious matter if due to organic disease, what physicians are trying to teach their patients is that a high blood pressure at a given time may be down to normal an hour from that time.

A boxer, whom I had examined before his bouts for several years, was driven to a city 250 miles away for a special bout. On the way, the car, in trying to avoid an accident, went into the ditch and rolled completely over. While the boxer was unhurt, his blood pressure was so high that the examining physician, refused to pass him. He pleaded with the physician that he had boxed in large cities, including New York, and had always been allowed to box. The physician, against his better judgment, allowed him to box. When I examined him the following day his blood pressure was, as usual, normal. The point here is that emotional or exciting circumstances, even the fear of having the blood pressure tested, may send it up 50 or more points.

In "The Journal of the American Medical Association," Dr. David Ayman, Boston, states that all patients with either mild or severe hypertension (high blood pressure) have constant variations of blood pressure levels. The "upward" tendencies, or rises, in blood pressure are usually due to emotional reactions either pleasant or unpleasant, and the drops in blood pressure are caused by relaxation and calmness.

It is because of the effects of the emotions on the blood pressure that your physician doesn't always take your blood pressure when you consult him regularly.

Drug fever is rarely serious if recognized and the drug discontinued.

Attacks of epilepsy may be greatly lessened and even prevented by more attention to diet.

It is unfortunate that slight hearing defects are not discovered earlier in children.

One cause of vertigo is irritation of the hearing nerve.

One of the findings in World War I which was of great help in the following war was in treatment of what was called shell shock and nervous cases.

Aga Khan Sees U.S. Strength as Hope For World

NEW DELHI, INDIA.—The Aga Khan raised his vast bulk in bed—to which he had retired with a slight cold—laid aside London and New York newspapers received by air mail and delivered an impressive half hour of opinion on the hydrogen bomb, the world political situation, begum Aly Khan (Rita Hayworth), his personal wealth and the matching of his weight in platinum in 1954 by his religious followers, which will bring in several million dollars.

The hereditary imam (leader) of the Ismaili sect of Moslems said that he tipped the scales at 225 pounds the last time he was weighed and estimated that when his body was balanced against platinum four years from now in his jubilee ceremonies at Bombay, Karachi, and either Dar es Salaam or Nairobi, he will gain the equivalent of about a million dollars in each place.

He declared that he would contribute the entire amount to various foundations for the betterment of his people in countries where the contributions were made. His weight was matched in diamonds in 1945 on his 60th birthday anniversary.

Aga Khan, who among many other activities of his busy and colorful life has been an international statesman, sees the United States as the present world's "only hope" and he thinks Americans should build hydrogen bombs and arm to the teeth at once lest some other nation use the superbomb first and start a war that destroys civilization.

"If the United States is suddenly submerged by a war for which it is not prepared the whole world will go down," he declared. Urging that America readopt Theodore Roosevelt's maxim, "Walk softly but carry a big stick," he added: "I beg with my small voice for what it may be worth, America be strong—have a big stick, the biggest stick of all."

The potentate said that a strong United States would "keep all other nations in order" and restore free trade.

Red Cross Depends on the People

"Fundamentally the Red Cross is a membership organization. It receives no financial support from the government and desires none. It depends upon the support of the American people and upon the work of thousands of volunteers, who outnumber the regular staff by 100 to 1. The Board of Governors believes that the interest of these essential volunteers and contributors must be maintained. Then too, each person must be given the privilege of participating in the organization's work to whatever extent he himself decides."

The Reno No. 1 Community Farm Bureau met March 15 at the home of Nate and Vernon Anderson with eight members and four visitors in attendance.

The meeting was called to order at nine o'clock by the chairman, Vernon Anderson. The roll call and treasurer's report and minutes of previous meeting were read by the secretary, Mrs. Lyle Robinson. The meeting was turned over to the Discussion Leader, Frank Smith, who had as his topic, "Are there Too Many Farmers?" These questions were asked and answered as follows: (1) Should farm people advocate a program to aid the re-location of the farmers who are unable to produce a fair living standard, we decided if anyone did that the farmers should. (2) Should other economic groups advocate this? We decided that they should not. (3) Should re-location of these farmers be left to the individuals or the government? We decided it should be left to the individuals. (4) What do you consider a fair living standard for an average family with four children? We decided from between $3500 to $5000 at the present standard of living. (5) Should the farms be kept as a family unit? We decided it should. (6) Should rural youth be encouraged to stay on the farm. We decided that they should be encouraged to stay on the farm. (7) Should larger farms be encouraged to insure greater efficiency operation. We decided that they should not.

Meeting was adjourned and refreshments were served by Mrs. Genevieve Jacobs.

The next meeting will be held April 19 at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Smith.

Mr. and Mrs. Eddie Graham brought their twin baby girls home from West Branch hospital Monday. Mrs. Dio Hunt of Flint came to help take care of them for a few weeks.

Whittemore School News

Forensic Contest Held

The second annual forensic contest was held at the school Thursday evening with a capacity audience.

The six contestants in declamation were Dorothy Barrington, who gave "Where the Heart is," Audrey Blust, with "A Four Letter Word," Don Briggs, with "That God Forgot to Wind," Jeanette Bellville, with "Whose Responsibility," Veronica Pavlik, with "The Story of a Boy," and Don Thompson with "Must We Have War?"

There were three entrants in dramatic reading, Melba Sheffer, who read "A Retrieved Rebuttal," Sandra Carlton whose reading was "The Chief Operator," and Antoinette Berry, who gave "A Secret for Two."

First place in declamation was awarded Jeanette Bellville, and second to Donald Thompson, Antoinette Perry, who represented Whittemore in the district contests last year was winner in dramatic reading with Sandra Carlton, placing second.

Arlen Bell who has participated in debate this year will represent his school with his oration "Nature's First Law."

Judges for the contest were Mrs. Wm. Curtis, Mrs. Robert Curtis and Father Glen Cronkrite.

The winners will represent Whittemore at the district contest to be held at Beaverton.

Sophomores Hold Card Party

The Sophomore class held a card party on St. Patrick's day and in spite of stormy weather had a good crowd who enjoyed a very pleasant evening.

The study was attractively decorated in green. Coffee and cake was served at the conclusion of games. Prizes were won by Mrs. St. James and William Dorsey.

Consolation prizes were awarded Verda Sheffer and Dale Blust, who also won the galloping prize.

Athletic Banquet Huge Success

The members of the P-TA served a very delicious banquet to the coaches and members of the boys and girls senior high school teams and the cheer leaders at the high school Saturday evening.

Horace Dillon, Jr., served as toastmaster, who introduced Mrs. Richard Stock, the girls' coach, who presented varsity letters to Clarissa Dorsey and Betty Belson, co-captains, Jeanette Bellville, Dorothy Barrington, Reda Fortune, Lillian Dorsey and Toni Perry. She also mentioned Melba Sheffer, Vivian St. James and Norma Groulx, who though not having played quarters enough to receive letters had been valuable players.

Francis Clegg, boy's coach, with appropriate remarks, gave varsity letters to Douglas Dodder, Larry Bellenger, Eugene Carrick, Leonard Robinson, Dewey Thompson, Jim Freil, Arlen Bell and reserve letters to David Boyer, Peter Demoroco, Bill Biggs, Lloyd Provoast, Earl Nichols, Jim Perry and Ted Goupil.

John Cummins played two piano solos and also accompanied Ann Lynch, who sang "Ireland Must Be Heaven" and responded with an encore "Maybe Its Because."

The speaker of the evening was Reginald Barnett of East Tawas, whose brief and pertinent remarks were thoroughly enjoyed. The program concluded with a movie of the World Series, last fall.

The tables were attractively decorated and clever place cards and programs marked the individual places.

P-TA MEETS

The March meeting of the P-TA was held on Tuesday. At the business meeting it was decided to buy black curtains for Mrs. King's room to facilitate showing movies. Plans were also made for the athletic banquet, to be held Saturday.

Two beautiful selections were sung by the high school glee club, directed by Mr. Cummins, and a demonstration debate was given by Ida Bentley and Arlen Bell.

GREEN GRASS OF WYOMING

By Mary O'Hara

Ken visits Jeremy, the shepherd, and they talk of Thunderhead and many other things as the sheepman seeks to dispel his loneliness. Ken announces that his brother, Howard, has passed the entrance exams for the U. S. military academy at West Point. This is no news as Jeremy has already heard it. Ken announces that he and Howard are to be godfathers when their little sister, Penny, is baptized. Jeremy recalls that Rob promised to have that done a year ago, and didn't. Rob, Ken and Howard meet Carey in Cheyenne and all the talk is of the search to find Crown Jewel. Carey is urged to join the search party.

CHAPTER XI

Carey laughed. "Well it was just luck. You see, when your father wrote to Uncle Beaver to tell him he had sent Buck Daly out to locate the horses he said at the end of the letter that your mother was writing inviting me down right away for a visit. And that same day my Grandma received the letter from your mother, inviting me. Grandma was writing to say I couldn't go until they all went. But Uncle Beaver wired your mother and said I could come, and then told Grandma what he had done. So there wasn't any use in her finishing her letter."

The boys laughed loudly. Howard seemed to have a morbid interest in the strange psychology of Mrs. Palmer. "Was she mad?" he asked hopefully.

But Carey gave him no satisfaction. "She didn't like it very well," she said in a reserved manner.

"Gee! I'm glad you came," said Ken.

"So'm I." Carey's eyes were on her plate.

"We'll have a lot of fun!" said Howard.

On the drive home, Carey sat behind, between the two boys, and asked them why the officers had called Howard "the Cadet." They explained. Carey looked at Howard almost with reverence, then gravely shook his hand and said, "Congratulations, Cadet McLaughlin."

Ken writhed inwardly. Was it going to be like this? Would Howard be the one she looked at and admired? It was tough having your girl see you always with your elder brother who was handsome and full of teasing talk and funny ideas and would soon have a West Point uniform on.

"He's got a girl," Ken blurted out.

"Oh, has he?"

"Hey! What are you giving us!" exclaimed Howard.

"Yes he has, her name's Barbara Bingham and he's got her picture in a case in his pocket and a big one in his room and he gets two or three airmail letters from her every week."

Ken got all the evidence out before he could be interrupted. But Howard was nonchalant. He winked at Carey and said, "So what?"

Carey kept looking at him smilingly and wonderingly. Ken leaned back in his corner and sat silent and glum.

At the ranch, Nell took the girl into her arms and gave her a warm embrace. Carey had fallen in love with Nell the summer before. To be taken in her arms and hugged and then kissed on both cheeks, with Nell's tender, dark blue eyes smiling a welcome, almost made a lump come into her throat. This was the way mothers were.

That night, when Carey put her head on the pillow, she heard a hoot owl calling plaintively. The next morning, it seemed, she rolled over and stretched her arms, yawning, and the blue-and-white striped sleeves of her pajamas slid to her shoulder, and it was morning, and there was a different smell, smell of coffee, and bacon, and the far-away sound of a bull roaring.

Nell had turned over Redwing for Carey's use. This time Carey was equipped with her own riding clothes. They were all unpacked, and hung neatly with her other things in the pine-scented closets of her room, with her riding boots and shoes in a row underneath. In the mornings, with riding and stable work ahead of her, she wore blue-jeans and a cotton shirt. In the evenings, she would put on one of her ruffled summer dresses and win an approving smile from Rob.

The evenings were long and light. It seemed as if, in the gentle twilight hours, the fruit of the day was gathered up and eaten. Sometimes Nell and Carey played duets. Sometimes they all sat on the terrace and talked while the animals hung around turning their curious and affectionate eyes upon the different members of the family.

On one such evening Ken suggested to Carey that they walk down the meadows to Castle Rock. Carey glanced around. She was sitting on the steps of the terrace, watching the puppies playing.

Ken Proposes Carey Join Him in Walk

"How about it, Carey?"

Carey had heard about Castle Rock. The boys had told her of the finding of the carcass of Rocket's foal there, half-devoured by the wildcat, and of all the other skeletons and grisly remains in the caves under the rock. She would like to see it. And an evening walk alone with Ken through the meadows—the thought slightly quickened her pulse. Still, there was a deliciousness about this family group on the terrace after supper and she was reluctant to leave it.

Howard, chinning himself on one of the poles of the pergola, said, "Why don't you take your gun? I'll come along and we'll get some cottontails."

Nell was coming out the door. "Don't shoot any cottontails today. We have more meat on hand than we need. I want to talk to you, Howard."

Nell sat down in the hammock and Ken and Carey started off. Howard stood looking down at his mother questioningly. Her face was merry as she looked back at him. There was a little teasing grin. She patted the hammock beside her and he fitted himself "Why," she said, taking hold of his hands which were clasped across her chest, "do you want to cut out Ken with Carey?"

In the evenings she would put on one of her ruffled summer dresses.

"Wha-a-at?" exclaimed Howard. "Why, Mother!"

"Don't 'Why Mother' me," she said trying to pull out of his arms, but he held her tight. "I'm on to you. But what I really want to ask you about is Barbara Bingham."

All her senses were alert, and clasped against his chest as she was, she could feel the slight reaction of his body to this name—a tension, a waiting.

"Howard, you are so secretive!" she cried. "Why do you make a mystery about this girl?"

"I don't make any mystery," he rubbed his chin on her hair tenderly.

"I like Barbara's looks, judging from the pictures of her you have around, but if she is to be my daughter-in-law, I'd like to know it."

Howard made no answer to this, and Nell muttered impatiently, "Oh, you make me tired!" She struggled to free herself, Howard released her, stood up, then stooped, gave her a quick kiss and leaped off the terrace. He walked down to the cowbarn. Nell sat, touching her foot to the ground, so that the hammock swung a little.

Men Gossip Away The Long Evenings

There came a deep roar from the corral of the cowbarn. Usually, after evening milking and feeding was over, the bull was quiet. Sometimes he went out to pasture with the cows, sometimes, even when the cows had left him, he remained in the corral where he had received his feed, standing there motionless in one of his dark meditations upon the primal joys of blood and lust. He appeared to live in a chronic state of smoldering fury, viewing any person, any moving thing, any life outside himself, as something which it was his duty to put an end to. Even the calves were not safe with him. Only the cows.

"Rob," said Nell, "I wish you'd sell Cricket, or have him butchered."

Rob made no answer. He was absorbed in trying to discover what Penny had, shut up in one small fist. He tried to open the wee fingers. She resisted him and squirmed in his grasp.

"Rob!" said Nell.

"Oh, he's all right," said Rob, "now that I've put the ring in his nose. It's Howard he's yelling at." He raised his voice. "Howard!" he shouted. "Cut that out!"

"I'm not doing anything!" Howard shouted back, then wandered up from the cowbarn to the bunkhouse. The men were sitting out-of-doors on the wooden benches which flanked the front door. Here they gossiped the long evenings away, falling into silence when music came from Nell's piano. Howard joined them. Cricket ceased his bellowings. And Nell's foot touched the ground, and gave her hammock a little push, and another, and another. . . . She wondered where Pilgrim was and her eyes wandered, searching. She knew he was looking at her from some hideout, from the grass behind the spring house, from the trees under the cliff, or the edge of the path leading up to the barn, but she could see no sign of him. She put Willy down. Willy picked up a leaf, lifted his head proudly and trotted down the terrace carrying it with an important air.

The long winding hay meadows of the ranch had their names, names which had never been given them, which had just come to be. The closest to the house was called the Home Meadow. The next was Crooked Meadow, because of the tortuous twists and turns of Lone Tree Creek winding through it. The farthest meadow was called Castle Rock because, overhanging the aspen grove at the far end was the great rock, jutting up seventy feet high, as big as a house, constructed in the strangest manner with parapets and turrets and balconies and underneath it the chambers of horrors which the boys had described so vividly to Carey.

Now she stood in one of them, in pitch darkness. Ken was there beside her but she could not see him and he did not make a sound. It was frightening. She made a little murmur of fear and felt Ken's hand reaching out, asking for hers. She gave it to him and he clasped it tight and then, standing so, the fear left her. It became a thrilling experience, and it was hard not to breathe in such a way that Ken would know how she felt. Gradually her eyes became accustomed to the dark and she was able to follow him about from one cavern to the other, inspecting the bones and skeletons.

Then they climbed the great rock, Ken helping her in the difficult places, and at last they were up on one of the high platforms at the very top, lifted into the freshness of the evening sky.

Carey skipped about. She put her head back and lost herself in the soft indigo depths of the heavens. She scanned all the wilderness of the plains and the rolling hills. And she chattered to Ken.

They were never tired of discussing the events of last fall. It was like having the adventures all over again. Carey told Ken what she had done at the Monument after he had ridden away with the men. How Cookie had saddled the roan for her and told her to go off and have a ride, and how she had gone, and climbed up the little cone-shaped hill, and then, at the very top, had taken out her binoculars and had seen Thunderhead ten miles away or so, standing up on the top of a peak like the statue of a horse, looking right back at her.

Ken Shows Jealousy Of Howard, Carey

"You've seen him since I have," said Ken jealously.

"But you'll see him soon now, Ken. You're going to get him back."

"Maybe," said Ken, who was in a despondent mood.

"That's what you want more than anything else in the world, isn't it?"

"I don't know."

"You said last summer the thing you wanted more than anything in the world was to get him back and ride him in one more race."

"I know I did."

"Don't you still want to?"

"Yes, but," he turned his face to look at her with a glance half wary, half bold, "but now—what I want most has something to do with you, I think. I feel as if I would want most in the world to do something for you."

Their eyes met timidly, slid away again. It seemed a huge admission Ken had made and he hastened to cover it up.

"What do you want most? Oh, I know! You want to be a singer."

"No."

"Then a concert pianist."

"No."

"Well, what then? Or don't you know, either?"

"Yes, I know perfectly well. I want to be a mother and have about eight lovely children! Oh, I think that would be the most wonderful thing in the world!"

Ken frowned. "You're too young to be thinking of things like that, Carey. Why, you're only sixteen."

"But my mother married when she was seventeen, and she must have been thinking about it before then, so why can't I? Why I'm a woman, Ken!"

World-Wide Church

Lesson for March 26, 1950

GOD WORKS his purposes out in ways that not even the wisest of his servants can foresee. A beautiful example of this is the way Paul went to Rome. Long before he saw that city he wanted to preach there. All roads led to Rome, as they do to all world-capitals, and people went there from everywhere.

World Horizon
When Paul writes to his "pen-friends" at Rome (15:22-29) of a projected trip to Jerusalem and Spain, taking in Rome on the way, he was laying out a trip to the east and west ends of civilization, the jumping-off places. His plan was as ambitious as if a modern evangelist would write to some church in India: "I aim to visit Iceland and Japan, and call on you on the way out."

Bond Voyage
PAUL EXPECTED to go to Rome a free man, his ticket (so to speak) reading on through Spain. Actually that was the end of his run. He went there under military guard, prisoner under sentence. The story is all there in Acts, how first he was jailed for protection from a blood-hungry mob, then kept in jail on general principles (which is to say, the governor kept hoping he would pay well for an acquittal), and finally appealed to Rome, the highest court of the empire. Appeals were expensive and slow, then as now.

But Paul must have come to look at his imprisonment, false as it was, as a heaven-sent opportunity to make that journey to Rome. It was a gilt-edged accident insurance. Free, he might never escape the plotters and reach Rome alive. Chained, the efficient Roman army would see that he arrived and he did.

Four pairs of eyes were on him night and day. No plotters could stick him with a dagger or shove him overboard. So—after some hair-breadth escapes to be sure—he was delivered safe and sound in the very city of which he had been dreaming all these years.

The Church at the Hub Of The World

THERE IS NOTHING at all in the New Testament to indicate that the church at Rome was considered, by Paul or any one else, as The Church, or the Mother Church. There is no claim that it was founded by St. Paul, still less by St. Peter.

It grew, as other churches grew, by infiltration. Christians who moved to the big city would get together, and there the church would be. Yet, of course, the Roman church was important.

It was important because it was at the hub of the civilized world. Paul did not seem to mind it in the least, that he could work only inside his prison, or "confined to quarters."

Writing from his jail cell to the Philippians, he mentions converts from the army and from the imperial slaves. ("Caesar's household" in Phil. 4:22 does not refer to the Emperor's family, but to the retinue of palace slaves.) We know from the letter to Philemon that Paul converted at least one "jailbird" named Onesimus.

The True Church Is A Marching Church

PAUL KNEW that a soul is a soul, sitting in the emperor's chair or waiting at the emperor's table. God is no respecter of persons. But he also knew that these Christian soldiers would not always stay in Rome; that even Christian slaves would be sold down the river; that the restless feet which brought their owners to Rome would take them away again. Great cities are like that.

Putting down Christianity in Rome was not like putting a single seed into a sheltered corner of the garden. It was like scattering a handful of it to the breeze, to be carried far and wide. Paul's vision is still the vision of the church at its best. The true church marches on, along the high-roads and byroads of the world.

We shall never be content with a narrow, sheltered Christianity. We cannot be satisfied with half-world religion. Only world-Christianity matches the grandeur of the New Testament ideal.

Serve Simple Refreshments to Children (See Recipe Below)

Children's Parties
"MOM, why can't I give a party like Betty," asks a society inclined five-year old. Why, indeed, mother, since it involves so little and will make such a hit of your little boy or girl with his or her friends?

Youngsters do not need to have a lot of special preparation for their parties. In fact, with their abundant good spirits, cookies or sandwiches and a glass of milk or a dish of ice cream served after school can well be turned into a party.

You need not wonder or worry where your children are if you have refreshments to serve them every so often when they trip gaily home from school to your house.

IF REFRESHMENTS are served after school, and thus, before the evening meal, make them light but refreshing, so no appetite for the meal need be ruined. Simple and palatable beverages are an excellent choice, as are small cookies and sandwiches.

Milk Fruit Shrub (Serves 4)
1 cup crushed strawberries with juice
¾ cup orange juice
¾ cup lemon juice
Sugar to sweeten (½ to ¾ cup)
1 quart milk

Combine all ingredients and beat with rotary beater. Pour into glasses and serve.

Prune Milk Drink (Serves 2)
1 pint cold milk
½ cup prune puree
2 tablespoons lemon juice
2 teaspoons sugar
Dash of salt
Sprinkling of nutmeg

Blend prune puree with lemon juice, sugar and salt. Add chilled milk and stir until thoroughly mixed. Pour into glasses and sprinkle with nutmeg. A tablespoon or two of vanilla ice cream may be floated on top if a richer beverage is desired.

Fruit Lemonade
1 cup sugar
½ cup water
Juice of 2 lemons
Juice of 1 orange
¾ cup pineapple juice
4 tablespoons cracked ice
4 cherries
Few slices of banana
1½ cups ginger ale

Boil together sugar and water for two minutes; set aside to cool. Pour ½ cup of the cooled syrup into a shaker or glass jar, add the fruit juices and ice and shake until thoroughly mixed. Fill glasses about half full, add fruit, then ginger ale.

Hot Malted Eggnog (Serves 6)

6 eggs, beaten
1 tablespoon sugar or honey
½ cup malted milk powder
Dash of salt
4½ cups milk, scalded
Dash of nutmeg
1½ teaspoons vanilla

Combine eggs with sugar, mated milk powder and salt. Add scalded

LYNN SAYS:
These Food Tips Reveal Ingenuity
Squeeze a bit of lemon juice into the food chopper before putting through dried fruits. They'll grind more readily.

Baked custard can be a glamor dessert if you serve it with butterscotch sauce and chopped nuts.

Whipped cream makes a more interesting topping for cake, puddings or fruit salads if some chopped maraschino cherries are added to it.

Sugar Cookies (Makes 90)
1 cup butter
2 cups sugar
1 teaspoon vanilla
3 eggs, well beaten
4 cups sifted flour
½ teaspoon salt

Cream together butter and sugar. Add remaining ingredients and blend thoroughly. Roll and cut in fancy shapes with floured cutters. Bake in a hot (400°) oven for 8-10 minutes or until golden brown.

Peanut Butter Cookies (Makes about 150)
1 cup butter or substitute
1 cup granulated sugar
1 cup brown sugar
2 eggs, well beaten
1 cup moist peanut butter
2 teaspoons soda
½ teaspoon salt
2 tablespoons boiling water
3 cups sifted flour
1 teaspoon vanilla

Cream together butter, granulated and brown sugar. Add eggs and blend well.

Mix in peanut butter. Dissolve soda in hot water and add to mixture. Sift salt with flour and add to first mixture. Put through cookie press or drop by spoonfuls on greased baking sheet and press with fork. Bake in a hot (400°) oven for 8-12 minutes.

*Hermits

(Makes 5-6 dozen)
½ cup butter or substitute
1½ cups brown sugar
2 tablespoons sour milk
3 eggs
1 teaspoon soda
3 cups sifted cake flour
1 cup currants
½ cup nuts, chopped
½ teaspoon nutmeg
½ teaspoon cinnamon
½ teaspoon grated orange rind

Cream butter until fluffy, then work in sugar. Add milk and well beaten eggs. Sift soda with half the flour and add to creamed mixture. Add remaining flour to fruits, nuts and spices and work into first mixture. Drop by teaspoonfuls onto greased baking sheet. Bake in a moderately hot (375°) oven for 12-15 minutes. These will keep nicely for a long time.

When broiling chops, serve them with this fruit combination: top pineapple slices with apricot halves and brush with bacon fat before broiling.

Tiny biscuits make a good snack for evenings when they're spread while still warm with cream cheese and deviled ham.

When using canned baked beans, add some extra flavor by mixing in 2 tablespoons brown sugar, 3 tablespoons chili sauce, a dash of Worcestershire sauce and a bit of chopped green pepper.

Hunting Fossils May Be Pursued In Own Back Yard

CINCINNATI, OHIO.—Old fossils can be a lot of new fun and the person who has never thought to go exploring to find them is missing a lot of enjoyment. Many may have been stopped by three big hurdles—money, time and technical hurdles which are always envisioned when stories of exploration and explorers, such as William Beebe and Roy Chapman Andrews are mentioned.

For those, there is a great deal of encouragement in news that you don't have to possess those three things at all to go exploring for fossils because they might be right in your own back yard!

Go back a short space of time—say, a few million years—and see what conditions were in your back yard.

"Skippy" the Scallop
Picture a blazing sun shining on a broad, mirror-like sea. Far below the surface, zooming from one spot to another, is a little organism that closely resembles our present-day scallop. Not to be too scientific, we'll call him "Skippy." It so happens that "Skippy," being a very active little scallop, reaches that stage in life when his usefulness is over and with one final spurt, gives up the ghost and sinks to the bottom. It isn't long before the shifting silt of the ocean floor has completely covered him over.

Years pass, the silt layer deepens and is compressed by the tons of ocean water above. And "Skippy," once a happy little bi-valve, is but a memory.

Following "Skippy's" demise, after a few million years of course, the broad expanse of sea shrinks to several large puddles; two of which we now call the Atlantic and Pacific oceans. And out of the depths emerges... your back yard. That, in a nutshell, is the whole story. It may sound a trifle fantastic but it is the truth and easily proved. Let's take a look at the stone walk you made last summer, the one from the house to the garage. See that large flat rock, about the third one from the end? See the small lump? Know what it is? Right the first time! It's "Skippy."

Field Stone Very Old
The "Field Stone" used throughout Cincinnati for walls, rock gardens and terraces is the old ocean floor of the Paleozoic and Cambrian ages. One small piece of this sedimentary rock contains thousands of fossilized specimens including "Skippy" and his cousins. You can easily pick out the beautiful sprays of coral, perfect impressions of marine plant life and the fragile skeletons of minute denizens of the deep. Each small fragment is pure exploration for you never know just what you'll find. There is always the possibility that you'll find new secrets concerning these ages of long ago.

The equipment needed for collecting these small fossils is no problem, you can find it in the basement. A hammer, a screwdriver or chisel and one watercolor brush of the cheapest sort, will do. Since this sedimentary stuff is soft, many times you can pick out fine specimens with only a nail file. The brush will come in handy for cleaning the finer details of the specimens. Once removed from the matrix, the fossils can be kept from crumbling with a coat of clear lacquer.

Long Miles Just Routine To Car Road Test Pilots

NEW YORK.—Washington to St. Louis, 806 miles; Dallas to Denver, 803 miles; New York to Atlanta, 875 miles. These distances represent two or three days of tough, hard driving for the "speediest" of tourists.

But for the road-test drivers, such distances are just a day's work. For example, one group of test drivers recently set a record of better than 800 miles per day for 70 days—and that in the blistering heat along the Mexican border that ranged as high as 110 degrees. Fourteen hours every day, six days a week, at speed averaging 60 miles per hour, six cars were pushed over a 200-mile route. The pace was maintained for more than 50,000 miles—a distance equal to five years' mileage for the average family car.

The terrific driving record was made in road-testing performance of a new motor oil developed by Continental Oil company. In a tear-down of the motors at the end of the long run, measurements of moving parts under observation of technicians of the Southwest Research Institute showed no wear of any consequence. In fact, actual measurement with highly sensitive instruments showed the wear averaged less than one one-thousandth of an inch on cylinders and crankshafts. Original factory machining marks were still visible on piston rings.

Another result of the road test was the demonstration economy of operation. Gasoline mileage for the last 5,000 miles was as good as for the first 5,000—actually there was an average difference for the fleet of only 4/100 of a mile per gallon, or 184 feet.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

When grinding bread or crackers, tie a paper bag over the end of the grinder to prevent crumbs from spilling.

Brush the bag on your vacuum cleaner inside and out once a month. Never was it as that might remove the finish that insures a dustproof bag.

A table of weights and measures attached to the inside of a kitchen cabinet door is very handy for ready reference.

65 Iosco Farmers

Attend Grant Meet

Sixty-five farmers attended the third annual meeting of the Tawas Artificial Breeders Association at the Grant Township Hall, Thursday, March 16. S. J. Culver, Fieldman of the Michigan Artificial Breeders Cooperative of East Lansing described the progress and function of the Breeding association.

Mr. Culver said this organization grew from a small beginning in 1944 to 134 local associations, serving 17,000 farmers and inseminating 150,000 cows in five and one-half years. The M. A. B. C. I. film of the Michigan program was shown.

Secretary Waldo Curry, in his report of the annual business showed that the Iosco Association had 117 members who had 914 cows enrolled, of which 521 cows were Holsteins and 463 Red Danes. The gross income for the year was $2684.87.

Tom Nelkie, Inseminator-manager, reported a rather heavy turn over by sales and other reasons and emphasized the necessity of continually signing new members to maintain a good volume of business.

Breeders reported, that after being in the program for three years, they now have artificial heifers in production which were showing good improvement over dams.

County Agent, Harld R. Clark, led a discussion in which many problems were revealed. It was generally felt that if farmers would give their full cooperation, the program would prove satisfactory to all. Mr. Clark was of the opinion that we should use the service on 100% of the herd and look to the milk sheds in the Detroit area and eastern states as substantial market for our surplus dairy cattle.

Dornace Bellville was elected to the Board of Directors to complete the term of George Prescott, III who resigned.

Julius Anderson, President of the local Association presided.

St. Mary's Guild

Mrs. G. N. Shattuck entertained St. Mary's Guild at her home Monday evening. During the business session, a contribution to the Red Cross was voted and plans were made for sending clothing overseas.

Mrs. Mischa Krumm gave an informative talk of her experiences behind the Iron Curtain in her native Roumania. "My people," she said, "were formerly a hard-pressed people like you Americans, but now there is only horror and abject poverty in Roumania. Let Americans beware of the insidiousness of Communism lest they too lose their freedom."

Mrs. Ray Chandler reported on the recent Episcopal convention in Detroit. Refreshments were served with Mrs. Harry Haun presiding at the tea service.
