Northeastern Michigan Resort Owners Convene Here 4 Days Next Week

Equipment Show and Workshop Sessions Daily

Seminars Conducted by Group of State College Specialists

The Northeastern Michigan Tourist and Resort Owners Convention and Equipment Show will open here next Wednesday in its four day session. Resort owners from all sections of the district of the district will participate in this event which is staged by Michigan State College with the co-operation of the resort owners committee of the Tawas Chamber of Commerce, and county farm agents.

From the experience of those who attended the service work shop, equipment show and convention held here last year it was found that the time spent was worthwhile to all who cater to tourists. One Tawas cabin operator said "I consider it a definite privilege for resort owners to have this opportunity of receiving practical instruction in our business. Many of us, otherwise, can get this knowledge by the hard way, which is long and costly."

The program opens Wednesday afternoon with the Equipment Show at the Community Building. The show will be open every day.

Starting with the EMTA banquet at 6:30 Wednesday evening at the Holland Hotel, there will be dinners each of the three evenings. John Gray of the Michigan Tourist Council will be principal speaker Wednesday evening.

At 6:30 Thursday evening a banquet will be held at the Holland Hotel. (Continued No. 2, Back Page)

G. O. P. Tickets Win Iosco City Elections

Non-Opposition Tickets in Tawas; Whittemore Had Two Tickets

Rumored sticker candidates at Tawas City and East Tawas brought out a large vote for a non-opposition election and Whittemore had close races, as usual, with its Republican and Democratic tickets in last Monday's balloting in Iosco county's three cities.

At Tawas City Mayor George Myles and the entire Republican ticket was elected. Myles received 194 votes. The remainder of the ticket was, Albert Buch, clerk; Margaret Lansky, treasurer; Karl Kobs, Fred Brabant and Harry Westrich, supervisors; Arthur Ziehl, Stanley Humphrey and Ray Ziehl, Stanley Humphrey and Ray Tuttle, aldermen. In the first ward, the name of former alderman John Coyle was written on ten ballots. In the third ward, the name of the former supervisor, George Philpot was written on 11 ballots. Former alderman Dan Rodgers received eight votes in like manner.

The candidates elected at East Tawas were: Henry Klenow, mayor; F. B. Lomas, clerk; Georgina Bergeron, treasurer; John Bolen, justice; Clarence McKenzie, Ed. Lixey and Elmer Werth, aldermen.

Results in the Whittemore election were as follows: For mayor—Edward Dickey 95; J. D. Lehman 73. Clerk—Henry Hasty, no opposition. Treasurer—John O'Farrell, 87; J. C. Munroe, 81. Assessor—William Wery, 96; William Kelly, 72.

In the first ward Stanley Drzewicki defeated Harold Drenberg 32-26 for alderman. In the second ward Merle Burnside defeated Basil Goupil for alderman by a vote of 67 to 42.

Charles Dorcay was elected justice by a vote of 65. His opponent Russell Williams, Sr., received 42 votes.

Mrs. William Anderson

Mrs. William Anderson, age 76, died Thursday morning at her home near Alabaster after a lingering illness. She was born in Finland, December 15, 1874.

She is survived by her husband, two sons, Carl of Detroit, and Euno at home; three daughters, Mrs. Sadie Callan of Detroit, Mrs. Bertha Bushart of St. Clair Shores and Mrs. Agnes Wright of Tawas City, two brothers and two sisters, eight grandchildren and five great grandchildren.

Funeral services were held Sunday afternoon at the Moffatt Funeral Home, with Elder R. D. Davis of Pontiac officiating. Burial in the Tawas City Cemetery.

Whittemore Boy Burned to Death

Victim When Home Burns Last Friday

A six year old boy burned to death and his 11-year old brother was rescued by their grandfather when flames destroyed the family home near Whittemore late Friday night.

The two brothers, Rodney LeRoy Edwards, six and Martin 11, sons of Mr. and Mrs. Orville Edwards were alone in their home, one mile north and one-half mile east of Whittemore, when the fire broke out at 11 o'clock Friday night.

The blaze was discovered by their grandfather, Ernest Edwards, who lives nearby. The grandparents were caring for the two boys while their parents were away.

The grandfather was able to get into the house and carry Martin to safety, but heat of the flames drove him back when he attempted to rescue Rodney. The house was destroyed.

The muddy condition of the roads delayed the Whittemore fire department in arriving at the scene, and held up state police from the East Tawas post, Iosco sheriff's officers and Coroner E. D. Jacques, who investigated.

Union Services Good Friday

Good Friday Union Services will be held from 12:00 to 3:00 at the Baptist Church in Tawas City on Friday. Special music will be presented by each church. The two Methodist churches, Assembly of God and Baptist church are joining together for this service with their pastors taking part in the service.

Auxiliary Coast Guard Unit Organized Here

Guests of Bay City and Alpena Flotillas at Banquet Wednesday

Tawas Flotilla No. 1504, U. S. Coast Guard Auxiliary, was organized Wednesday evening following a banquet at the Barnes Hotel in this city. The Tawas unit has an initial membership of ten men.

Seventy-two were in attendance at the banquet which was held by the Alpena and Bay City units of the U. S. Coast Guard Auxiliary, with interested men from Tawas City as guests.

Among the speakers were Phil Patterson, commander of the Bay City Flotilla; Jack Thomas of Air Arm of the Bay City Flotilla; Harry Fletcher, commander of the Alpena Flotilla; R. R. Waesche, Jr., Commander 9th District U. S. Coast Guard, Dr. John Bunting.

A search and rescue plan for the Saginaw Bay Area, was the subject emphasized in the talk by U. S. Coast Guard Commander Waesche, the principal speaker. He explained the necessity of Auxiliary Flotillas, and pointed out the work accomplished by such units, including the Bay City and Alpena Flotillas.

Commander R. R. Waesche, Jr., representing 9th District U. S. Coast Guard, presented awards to Captain Ken Ferguson, of the 15th Division and Commander Harry Fletcher of the Alpena Flotilla. The award to the 15th Division was for distinguished service in rescue and search activity during 1949. The Alpena Flotilla was awarded for top number of rescues and assists during the past year.

Eight 15th Division men were awarded medals for service during the War years of 1942 to 1946.

The new Tawas Flotilla needs more members and anyone interested is invited to join. The following initial membership was sworn in Wednesday evening: John Monarch, C. S. Everett, Jack Bronson, Richard Heineman, Morris Heiperman, Herb Ziehl, Jack Grant, Gordon Clute, Cecil Cable, Nelson Thornton.

Named as officers of the local flotilla are: John Monarch, Commander, C. S. Everett, vice commander; Jack Bronson, USNR, training officer.

D. & M. Freight Conductor in Fatal Accident

Funeral Services for J. W. Miller Held Thursday Afternoon

J. W. Miller, Detroit and Mackinac Railway freight conductor was killed while on duty Monday in an accident at the National Gypsum Co. plant. Mr. Miller was a resident of Tawas township.

The accident occurred while the train crew was switching at the plant. While checking cars, Monday, Conductor Miller accidentally stepped in front of a moving freight car.

Joseph Wilbert Miller was born April 23, 1890, at Deshler, Ohio. In 1917 he was married to Frances Bingley at Hillsdale. Mr. and Mrs. Miller and family came here from Jackson, Michigan in 1920, and became an employee of the Detroit and Mackinac Railway. In addition to his employment with the railroad he owned and operated a farm in Tawas township.

He is survived by the widow; one son, Paul, and a step-son, Glenn Wolf, both of Detroit; six grandchildren; a sister, Mrs. Roy Higgins of Burdon Kansas; two brothers, S. L. Miller of Billings, Oklahoma and Oliver J. Miller of Finley, Ohio.

Funeral services were held Thursday afternoon from the Tawas City L. D. S. church. Rev. Frank Sly officiated. Interment was in the Tawas City cemetery.

Mrs. May Curry

Mrs. May Curry of East Tawas passed away in Washington, D. C., last Sunday, April 2. She had been spending the winter with her sister, Mrs. Curry had been a resident of East Tawas most of her life. She was the widow of Charles Curry who was engaged in the coal industry.

Mrs. Curry was a Charter member and the first Worthy Matron of Iosco Chapter, Order of Eastern Star in 1899 and 1900.

The body was brought to the Moffatt Funeral Home Wednesday. Obituary next week.

Tax Collections in County Average 84%

Roach-Montgomery

Miss Joyce Ann Montgomery, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clyde W. Montgomery to James Roach, son of Mrs. Wilbur Roach and the late Mr. Roach, were united in marriage by the Rev. Frank Turner, in the Tawas City Baptist Church at four o'clock Sunday afternoon.

The bride wore a Navy blue suit with Navy and white accessories, and a white orchid corsage and carried a white prayer book.

Louise Luedtke, the maid of honor, wore a Navy suit with Navy and blue accessories and wore an orchid corsage.

Donald Roach, brother of the groom was best man. The ushers were Richard Roach, brother of the groom and Jake Montgomery, brother of the bride.

A reception was held in church basement for 150 guests. Out of town guests were present from Detroit, Mt. Clemens, St. Johns, Birmingham, Bay City and Hale.

Mrs. Roach, mother of the groom wore Navy blue and grey dress, and Mrs. Montgomery, mother of the bride, a maroon suit with black accessories. Both wore orchid corsages.

Mrs. Leslie Nash

Mrs. Leslie Nash, ill for the past several months, passed away last Monday morning at two o'clock at the family home.

Funeral services were held at Grace Lutheran Church on Wednesday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock with Rev. E. H. Peterson of Bay City officiating. Burial was made in Greenwood Cemetery.

Anna E. Roiter was born in Oscoda, July 5, 1892, and was 57 years old. She lived in Alabaster as a girl. She married Leslie Nash in Alabaster on December 8, 1915. The family has resided in East Tawas since then. Leslie Nash preceded his wife in death on March 10, 1943.

Surviving are five sons, Charles of East Tawas, Carlton of Flint, Claude, Clair and William of East Tawas, two daughters, Miss Marie Nash and Miss Ruth Nash of East Tawas; two brothers, Herman Roiter of Alabaster and Charles Roiter of Charlotte. She also leaves seven grandchildren. Mrs. Nash was a member of Grace Lutheran Church.

May Have Park Playground Program

Plans Discussed at Businessmen's Meeting Tuesday Night

A playground program will be adopted for the Tawas City park and athletic field if plans discussed at Wednesday night's meeting of the businessmen's association materialize. This worthwhile project was initiated by the Tawas City Parent-Teachers Association, Board of Education and the city council. The businessmen's association was invited to assist in the program.

The project includes the retaining of Coach Mark Defibaugh as director of playground activities and purchase of the necessary equipment for the park program.

John Monarch, chairman of a special committee on the park project, reported that an investigation by his committee had found that shuffle boards were among the popular recreations in similar parks in other sections of the state. The members of the association were favorable toward the purchase of shuffle boards, and other playground equipment including softball equipment. Means of financing the purchase of the equipment and the association's portion of the playground director's salary were discussed.

A two-hour parking ordinance on Lake street will be enforced in this city according to a report made by Howard Hatton, chairman of the committee named to work with the city council on the parking problem in the business district. Signs to indicate where the two hour parking will be enforced have been purchased by the council.

James Dillon, president of the association named the following as members of a business promotion committee: Neil Thornton, R. W. Tuttle, Elmer Slaven, John Monarch, B. Filipiak, President Dillon and John Brugger, secretary-treasurer, will also act on the committee.

NOTICE

It is my wish to inform the voters in the first ward that I had no intention of running on slips as a candidate for alderman in the recent election. Mr. Ziehl, who is a man well qualified to represent us on the council, had my wholehearted support and good will.

Jack Coyle.

Tawas Girls' Basketball Teams Honored

Entertained by Young Womens' League At Holland Hotel

The Young Women's League of the Tawas entertained the girls' basketball teams of the Tawas City High School and the East Tawas High School to a pot luck dinner on Monday, March 27 at the Holland Hotel. Thirty-two guests were in attendance and each girl was presented with a daffodil corsage from the center piece which included a basketball surrounded the flowers.

After the dinner the regular business meeting was held with Mrs. Sophia Barkman presiding.

Bertha Christeson, chairman of the square dance committee, reported that the dance planned to be held on Friday, April 14, during the Tourist and Resort Owner's Convention was cancelled due to the fact that many of the people coming from out of the city would be anxious to get back to their own places of business for the week-end and would be leaving either Friday afternoon or evening. In view of this fact, the Tourist and Resort Owners' local committee voted to cancel the scheduled dance.

Oliver Barnett gave a report on plans for the Fair to be held in May and called on each chairman to give a report on what the various committees have accomplished.

A motion was made to entertain the graduates of the two high schools and their parents at a reception after graduation. After considerable discussion pro and con a vote was taken and the motion not carried.

Dorothy McKay gave a report on plans for the forthcoming dinner dance and it was voted that the (Continued No. 3, Back Page)

Mrs. Theodore St. James

Mrs. Theodore St. James, age 74, passed away last Thursday at her home in Whittemore, after a short illness.

Marie Lydia St. James was born in Saginaw on August 4, 1876. Her husband passed away last year. She is survived by two sons, Victor of Highland Park and John of Tawas City; four daughters, Mrs. Gladys Herbeck of Saginaw, Mrs. Elizabeth Sweet of Jackson, Mrs. Mercedes Laney of Alpena, and Mrs. Adelaide Drennan of Whittemore, a brother, Noe St. James and a sister in Duluth, 12 grandchildren and eight great grandchildren.

Funeral services were held Monday morning from the St. James Catholic church in Whittemore with Fathers Walsh of Auburn, Cronkite of Whittemore and Frawley of Omer, officiating at the Solemn High Mass. WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS

Coal Operators Hint at Price Hike; Britain Faces New Economic Crisis; Federal Tax Reduction Poses Puzzle

(EDITOR'S NOTE: When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of Western Newspaper Union's news analysts and not necessarily of this newspaper.)

COAL: The 'Payoff'

The "payoff" in the recent coal strike settlement was coming more quickly than was usually the case in the settling of these disputes. The cost to the consumer of John L. Lewis' power over the operators and his union was to be felt very soon.

ANNOUNCEMENT came in the form of a statement by spokesman for the soft coal industry that there is now in preparation a 10 to 40 cents a ton increase on the price of coal.

When the United Mine Workers long strike against the industry was settled recently, operators forecast a rise in prices. However, discussion of the price hike indicated there would be no blanket increase. Rather, the boost would vary according to the financial situation and contract commitments of individual firms.

One official was quoted as saying: "If it (the increase) only amounts to 10 cents a ton, the retailer should be able to absorb it. But if it goes any higher, it will affect the price of coal to the consumer."

It seems logical that the retailer could assume an added cost of 10 cents a ton—but the question was: Would he? Except for competition, which would hardly be forthcoming in the way of a price fight, the retailer could pass on any coal price hike to the consumer.

BRITAIN: Another Crisis

Great Britain truly had fallen on evil times. Barely escaping one financial crisis after another, the word was that the nation was facing another financial-economic crisis in 1950—just as she did in 1949 and 1948.

THE DAY had passed when Americans could say to such news: "So what—what has that got to do with us?" For the fact was that because of U.S.-British economic-financial ties stemming from the early Franklin D. Roosevelt era, whatever happened to Britain economically or financially could be expected to happen to the U.S.

The reason was that in any such crisis there was no one but the U.S. to whom the British could turn for help.

The problem, as British leaders viewed it, was that although Britain's production is about as high as it can go in the near future, it does not yield enough exportable goods to meet pressing British problems.

ONE OF THESE is the need to increase sales to the United States to earn more dollars and solve Britain's current inability to pay for the goods she must get from the United States.

Another is conflicting pressure on Britain to ship goods to other creditors as a means of paying on huge debts acquired in wartime and since.

Possible solutions included negotiations with creditors to ease pressure on old debts and—as was inevitable and expected—provisions of further loans from the United States.

TAX CUTS:

A Problem

Cynical observers of congressional tax-cut maneuvering might be forgiven a "so what?" reaction to announcement that while Democrats had thrown out President Truman's limitations on excise-tax slashes, they promised to dig up other revenue to balance the losses.

TO THE AVERAGE taxpayer that must seem to be a senseless business. What was the point in abolishing one type of taxes and levying another? Excise taxes affected almost every one in the nation, and the substitute for a slash there—tightening up of tax loopholes and "such other taxes as may be deemed feasible"—would most likely affect a majority of taxpayers.

That "other such taxes as may be deemed feasible," was the clincher that cut off any relief taxpayers might obtain through a slash in the excise levies.

President Truman has threatened to veto the excise tax cut if the loss of this revenue is not balanced by other sources. With developments as they were, it appeared certain that there would be no excise tax reductions before July 1.

QUICK COFFEE

Glass Stove Perks Water in 50 Seconds

Among many other important things connected with coffee-making is speed of operation, with most users always casting about for methods to hasten the process.

Now, a new glass is a transparent stove that heats air or boils water for coffee—and it will start water perking inside 50 seconds. The glass has a transparent skin that conducts electricity, but re-

Accused

Dorothy Kenyon, named by U.S. Sen. Joseph McCarthy (R., Wis.) as first on the list of alleged "fellow-travelers" or Communists, in the state department, was listed as a $12,000-a-year member of the economic and social council of the U.S. commission to the United Nations.

ACHESON: Rapped Again

Tall, debonair, Dean Acheson, U.S. secretary of state, was under fire again. He was charged, among other accusations, with trying to "shift the blame" in defending the alleged loyalty-suspect cases Senator McCarthy (R., Wis.) has been airing on capitol hill.

SINCE ACHESON made his now-famous remark that "I will not turn my back on Alger Hiss," following the latter's conviction of perjury in question with treason charges, Acheson has been more or less on the pan as accusers of the state department deliver their verbal blasts.

This time, McCarthy charged three key state department aides as having shown Communist sympathies and demanded investigation of a navy civilian scientist whom he described as working on "top-most defense secrets."

The charge that the state department harbors men and women of Communist leanings or sympathies is not a new one. It has been cropping up for the past several years, and on each occasion the department indignantly rushes forth with a denial.

ATTLEE: Doing Okay

To the surprise of most observers, England's so-called "shaky" Labor government had survived two major tests of strength in parliament.

FOLLOWING the election, in which Prime Minister Attlee's Labor party won a bare majority of parliament seats, it was predicted that the victory margin was so slight that the government might crumble—that a new election was practically inevitable.

In the recent test—action on a Conservative motion to beat down the cabinet's housing program—Attlee made a considerably stronger showing than on a previous issue.

THE LABOR VICTORY was made possible by support from the Liberal faction, a development at odds with popular speculation as to where the Liberals would go in parliamentary tests. Many top political observers had predicted that the Liberals would stand with the Conservatives against Attlee's broad program of nationalization-of-industry-and-resources, but closer observers of the British political scene had pooh-poohed the idea that the Liberals would ever be found standing with the Conservatives. And, apparently, these prognosticators were correct.

While it had appeared that the Labor forces were to trim down their nationalization program because of the close election result, these new victories might reshape the pattern of intent. For example, following triumph on the housing issue, Health Minister Bevan, whose ministry administers the housing program, declared . . . "the government's program will be persisted in."

TRUMAN: Costly Figure

Republicans, sniping at President Truman, declared that he, as a private citizen, "is one of the best, if not the best paid man in the world today."

Figures lending themselves to many artifices, the gentleman issuing that statement, Rep. Roy O. Woodruff of Michigan figured it out this way:

A PRIVATE CITIZEN to match the standard of living now enjoyed by the President would need an income of three to three and a half million dollars a year.

Mr. Truman has take-home pay of $110,000 a year out of his salary, $50,000 of which is tax-free.

He has 42 facilities for travel, including 35 automobiles, airplanes, his own yacht, the Williamsburg, a private Pullman car and "vacation retreats" in Key West, Fla., and Maryland.

He has an estimated staff of 665 persons at an annual cost of $1,491,540. He has a travel allowance of $33,000 to $40,000.

Then Representative Woodruff listed the costs of the yacht, the President's personal plane, his private railroad car, a destroyer escort for the yacht, secret service and White House guards, White House salary costs for a staff of 225.

THEN said Representative Woodruff: "By comparison, President Roosevelt in 1945 had a staff of 53 costing only $256,431 and President Hoover's staff totaled 37 at a salary bill of $127,200. Present White House salary costs, he said, amount to $998,254 annually.

That was an impressive list of conveniences and privileges and special help, certainly; rivaling in many instances the best that an Indian Potentate could boast. Yet, democracy comes high, and there was little likelihood that a resume of what the presidency costs the people would raise the blood pressure of many American taxpayers.

ELECTIONS: Certainty & Doubt

A graphic contrast between choices by electorates in Communist and other countries was provided in the Russian and Belgian elections. In Russia, there was no choice.

Premier Stalin was the Number 1 candidate of the Soviets, and he had no opposition. As head of the Communist ticket, he was shooting for as nearly 100 per cent of the vote as possible—with no "No" votes to come.

Stalin and associates campaigned on a pledge of following a policy of peace. The Russians elected a new parliament of 1,302 members.

IN BELGIUM the situation was quite different. The issue was: Should King Leopold III be returned to the throne? Fifty-seven per cent of the voters said he should, a fact which must have been comforting to Leopold, inasmuch as he had vowed to abdicate unless he received 55 per cent of the vote.

However, the victory at the polls didn't mean Leopold was back on the throne. Parliament would have the last word, as the election was only advisory—being designed to show parliament how the people felt about Leopold. The election was tumultuous, with rioting and fighting marking the balloting.

LEOPOLD had drawn the ill will of millions of Belgians because of his capitulation to the Germans in World War II, although his supporters pointed out there was little else he could have done.

The crux of the election was some 151,000 invalidated ballots. If these were counted, the result would give Leopold only 54 per cent of the votes and he would have to act on his pledge of abdication if he failed to receive the 55 per cent he had mentioned.

Fights Tax

Fred N. Acker, Cleveland, Ohio, attorney, is testing the validity of present federal income tax schedules which he declares are "confiscatory." Acker admitted he had not filed any return or paid any direct taxes for several years, and "invited the government charge."

CURVES: In or Out?

The matter of whether millady's curves were to be played down or accentuated in this spring's fashions was a subject of no little controversy among designers.

One school of thought wanted curves concealed—The other would have them displayed to the best advantage. The subject was important to the American male who, in the end, would be most concerned because he would pay for most of it.

BERSERK YOUTH STABS SIX . . . This is what can happen to a man merely strolling along the street minding his own business. Police report that William Jones, for no apparent reason, suddenly began slashing pedestrians with a knife at Bergen St. and Fourth Ave., Brooklyn. Here, one of his victims, Kenneth Kennedy, 23-year-old Mohawk Indian, lies on the sidewalk in a pool of his own blood, waiting in a critical condition to be taken to a hospital. Jones, who turned the neighborhood into a scene of carnage, was overpowered by Policemen Jack Pond and Dan Leahy, and taken to police headquarters, where he had to be tied to a chair before he would be restrained.

JAP GENERAL GETS OUT OF THE POKEY . . . Maj. Gen. Kesao Kijima, who commanded a brigade on Boganville during World War II, is greeted by his daughter-in-law, Yasuko, and her baby, Takashi, on his release from Sugamo prison. The general was one of a number of Japanese prisoners released under a directive from General MacArthur's headquarters at the request of the Australian government. These prisoners were not the usual prisoners of war, captured in battle, but were Japanese leaders, convicted after the peace treaty of being war criminals by special courts conducted by the Allies.

PRINCE BERNHARDT ARRIVES FOR LUNCH . . . Prince Bernhard of the Netherlands, the husband of Queen Juliana, arrives at the Washington, D. C., airport in order that he may attend luncheons as a guest of President Harry Truman. Prince Bernhard was vacationing by taking an informal tour of the United States in his private plane. Here, he receives the greeting of the Netherlands' ambassador to the United States (left) and Maj. Gen. L. C. Craigie, commander of the air force institute of technology, which is at the Wright air force base near Dayton, Ohio. The prince is interested in the technical phase of aviation and planned to study American developments.

New Telescope Is to Be Shared By 3 Countries

GLENBROOK, CONN. — A new type of telescope, the first of its kind ever built, designed to penetrate farther than ever before into the vastness of the Milky Way with its hundreds of billion stars has been transferred by its makers to representatives of three nations. They will collaborate in its use in South Africa.

The new telescope, a marvel of optical precision, will enable astronomers to photograph areas in the Milky Way 30,000 light years, or 180 quadrillion miles away. It will produce star images of near-perfect quality over an area of the sky equal to almost 100 times the area covered by the full moon.

Its penetration into space will be three times greater than present instruments of similar design, which limited the detailed exploration of the Milky Way to a distance of 10,000 light-years. (A light-year is the distance traveled by light in a year at a speed of 186,000 miles a second, or six trillion miles.)

Is Giant Camera

The new explorer of space is known as a Baker-Schmidt type of telescope, a greatly improved version of the famous telescope invented by Richard Schmidt of Hamburg, Germany, which combined the ability of the reflecting telescope to penetrate to great distances with that of the refractor type's ability to cover a wide area of the sky with perfect image quality over the entire photographic plate.

The Baker-Schmidt type was designed by James G. Baker, research associate of the Harvard observatory and consultant to the Perkins-Elmer corporation here, which built the first model of this type.

The Schmidt telescope, actually a giant camera, has one mirror and a correcting lens. The Baker-Schmidt telescope-camera has two mirrors in addition to the correcting lens. The addition of the secondary mirror makes it possible to use a flat photographic plate, instead of the curved plate of the conventional Schmidt telescope.

This flat field, or flat focal surface, it was explained, makes it possible to photograph stars with one-hundred-thousandth of the light of the faintest star seen by the naked eye in no more than twenty minutes, much faster than ever before. The flat field also makes it possible to photograph a much larger area of the sky than ever before.

Jointly Owned

The telescope will be owned and jointly operated by three world famous observatories — the Harvard Observatory, the Armagh Observatory of Northern Ireland, and the Dunsink Observatory of the Republic of Ireland. Astronomers of each observatory will work on separate sections of the Milky Way at the Boyden Station of the Harvard Observatory of Bloemfontein, Orange Free State, South Africa, headquarters of the "Hub of the Universe" expedition, as the venture is named.

Harvard has staked out a claim on the center of the Milky Way, while the two Irish groups will study the outer parts of the vast galaxy, of which our solar system is an insignificant part some 30,000 light-years away from the center.

Technical Brain Human Enough to Do Cheating

KELLOGG, I.D.A.—A mechanical brain so human it even "cheats" has been developed by an 18-year-old scientific wizard here.

The machine can beat any human at ticktacktoe without cheating, says its inventor, Noel Penney Elliot, a senior in Kellogg high school.

But still it will try to chisel a little if its human opponent isn't careful.

The game is played by switches and lights in nine squares on top of the 13-inch-square, 10-inch-high machine. The hapless human throws a switch in a square to start the game.

Instantly the machine comes back with its move, "without even stopping to think," says the husky, bespectacled young scientist. And so on until the machine either has won or tied.

"I catch it cheating now and then," Noel said. "Sometimes it will turn on lights in two squares during one turn. I'm working on it to see what the cause is."

Teen-Ager Out-Wrestles Assaulter, Who Escapes

CLEVELAND, OHIO. — A girl teen ager who learned wrestling tactics by watching television routed a street thug here.

Marion Vilt, 17, told police that when the man grappled with her, "I grabbed his index finger and bent it back hard. He let go and I punched him twice. He ran one way and I ran the other."

She also credited her brother, Don, a football player for Bowling Green university, with teaching her some of the tricks.

Red Cross 'National Blood Program' Called Just as Important Now in Defense, Security As It Was as a Survival Factor in Wartime

By General George C. Marshall

MILLIONS of Americans are familiar with the nation-wide blood donor service of the American Red Cross during the war because most of them made a personal contribution of their own blood. They knew that their donations saved the lives of many soldiers and sailors.

Few however, are aware that wartime service has been revived and expanded by the Red Cross. Now it is called the "national blood program." It is probably just as important today for our defense and security as it was during the war when it was a major factor in the survival of more than 97 per cent of all wounded American servicemen.

Since taking up my new responsibilities with Red Cross in October, I have visited a large number of cities from coast to coast conferring with Red Cross leaders. I found in most regions the blood program of the Red Cross aroused greater interest and made a greater appeal to the Red Cross workers than any other activity at this time.

They felt that they were making a very important contribution to the health of the people and were establishing the organized framework to meet any great disaster instantly and effectively in this phase of relief.

A national military emergency might possibly require more blood in one week than all our requirements during one year of the late war. In a great emergency, volunteer donors would come forward in the desired numbers, but without the framework of the system now being progressively established, the contributions of these volunteers to the nation's physicians. Another blood derivative is said to be invaluable in treatment of shock, burns, and certain kidney and liver ailments, and there still are others now in use or being clinically tested for future availability. Most of this fractionation to date has been done with surplus war plasma returned to the Red Cross by the army and navy. In one case, a ship that had been sunk in Manila Bay was raised and the plasma aboard was found to be in satisfactory condition for this fractionation.

Immune serum globulin, a blood derivative used to modify or prevent measles, is being used here on a two-year-old girl following her exposure to the disease. More than two million vials of the serum have been distributed since 1944 by Red Cross to physicians throughout the nation.

But today this supply is about exhausted. Therefore, the national blood program is being stepped up to meet this special need.

It is estimated that a donation of one pint of blood from one out of every 25 American adults will be required each year to meet the nation's normal demands for whole blood and blood fractions.

People have asked me why the Red Cross does not require pint-for-pint replacement by the recipient's friends or family. To demand replacement in kind, rather than replenishment, or to make any charge whatever for blood which has been donated voluntarily would be a departure from the basic Red Cross principle of helping people solely on the basis of need.

Some people ask why the program must operate on a nationwide basis. The answer is simple. A major disaster would require the instant shipment of large quantities of blood from one section of the country to another. Only a national hookup, to use a radio term, would facilitate this service to the injured. A frequent question is whether this program is not a form of socialized medicine. Socialized medicine implies compulsion. It also implies governmental control. There is neither in the Red Cross program which is based on an entirely volunteer procedure and is not subject under the law to government control.

Up to the present time the major control and financing is centered at American Red Cross national headquarters, but this procedure has only been followed as necessary to get the program under way. A gradual decentralization is now being initiated which will transfer the major burden of direction and financing to local chapters.

Last year, 688,532 vials of this serum were supplied by Red Cross

Primary Grades Need Kindness

By Lawrence Gould

Do small children need picked teachers?

Answer: Yes. Teachers of preschool and primary grades should be chosen more carefully than any others, not so much for formal training as for kindly attitudes and well-adjusted personalities. To be separated from his mother for the first time is a real emotional shock for the small child, and if along with this he finds himself faced with an exacting, unsympathetic teacher, he may be too frightened to learn or make friends with other children and become what the uncomprehending teacher will call mischievous and lazy.

lack of understanding from commanders do NOT prepare the soldiers for their fearful future task." Discipline based on fear masks mutual hostility between leaders and men, and tensions resulting from this tend to produce mutiny or panic.

Is shock treatment useful in depression?

Answer: Yes, writes Dr. William P. Beckman, Director of Mental Hygiene at the South Carolina State Hospital. The type of severe mental depression once called "melancholia" — especially when associated with the menopause in women or with involution in men — responds better to this treatment than to any other. It should be used in all such cases, with the patient staying in the hospital, unless there are complications like delusions or arteriosclerosis. Perhaps the shock satisfies the "need to suffer" that is characteristic of this illness.

Does strict discipline help soldiers' morale?

Answer: No, says Dr. Joost A. M. Meerloo, Dutch psychiatrist with wide war experience, in his fascinating "Patterns of Panic." "Too strong discipline weakens morale," as witness the collapse of German resistance in the Tunisian campaign. "Rigid saluting, a too rigid drill, lack of humor,

KEEPING HEALTHY

Movements Assist Body Processes

By Dr. James W. Barton

NOW THAT PATIENTS who have undergone operation are allowed up on their feet the same day or a few days afterwards, we are all getting used to the idea of early rising after operation or illness.

The idea behind early rising and moving about the room within such a short time is to keep all the organs of the body—heart, lungs, organs of digestion and movement of wastes from the body—active. Not only do all the organs and body processes work better when we are up and around but we feel better mentally when we are a part of our surroundings instead of remaining motionless in bed.

As there are a number of cases in which it would be unwise, even unsafe, to have the patient up and around, a means was sought by which the patient could receive the benefit of motion or movement of his body without danger. Thus, in "The Journal of Medicine," New York, Drs. G. D. Whedon, J. E. Detrick, and E. Short report their investigation as to the favorable influence of a specially designed oscillating bed on the body processes of individuals who had to remain in bed for long periods of time.

Three healthy young men were studied on a constant food intake before, during and after a five-week period lying motionless in plaster casts in oscillating beds. These three young men had all taken part in the immobilization experiment (on standard hospital of fixed beds) previously reported. Data on nitrogen, calcium, phosphorus, total sulfur, sodium and potassium balances, together with other measurements of interest, carried out under rigidly controlled conditions, are given in detail.

The results show that the oscillating bed may be useful in the management of disorders in which the individual has to lie motionless. Research workers on sleep state that a healthy individual moves his body from 30 to 50 times during a normal night's sleep. We can see that any movement of the body, whether we move ourselves or are moved, stimulates safe and healthful action of all the body processes.

Big Mace of House Held Mighty Weapon, But Is Little Used

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Joe Callahan, of Bellevue, Ky., hasn't used it yet, but he is equipped with a mighty powerful weapon. It's the mace, symbol of authority, of the national house of representatives. Callahan is house sergeant-at-arms. Rules of the house, adopted in 1789, point out that his job is "to maintain order under direction of the speaker" and that the "symbol of his office shall be the mace, which shall be borne by him while enforcing order on the floor." One sergeant, apparently, had gotten into trouble trying to enforce order with no mace.

The mace would not be very effective to stop a street-corner battle. In fact, some suspect it would be a handicap to Callahan if he had to sprint up the aisle tomorrow to part two battling congressmen. Its power lies in the fact that it is the symbol of authority of the house.

The mace is 46 inches in height and consists chiefly of 13 ebony rods—one for each of the original states—bound together with silver bands and surmounted by a 4 1/2-inch silver globe, atop which sits a solid maple eagle, wings spread. It's the second mace used in the house. The first was burned with the Capitol by the British in 1814. This one was made by William Adams, a New York silversmith, in 1841. Cost $400.

Our Mace is a survival of the Roman fasces, which was a bundle of rods wrapped around an ax handle and carried as a symbol of authority. The rods signified authority to flog; the ax, authority to behead. The Romans took fasces to Britain and we got the idea from the house of commons.

Ours serves one other purpose. When the house goes into session each day, one of Callahan's helpers places the mace on a green marble pedestal at the right of the speaker's desk. If the house resolves itself into the committee of the whole, he moves it down to a lower pedestal by the desk of the sergeant of arms. Thus a member, by a glance at the mace, can tell what kind of session he's in.

If a member gets abusive (that is, beyond the bounds of house rules), the sergeant at arms, at the direction of the speaker, is supposed to go after him with the mace. He simply walks up to the member and holds the mace out toward him. If the member refuses to acknowledge his authority of the house, and shut up, he makes himself subject to discipline by the house, which can be severe.

Program Hater Takes Radio Station off Air

YORK, PA.—This is a new switch on man's turning the tables on radio programs. The hero of this story didn't bother to turn off his set, he simply went out and turned the station off the air when it presented a program he didn't like.

State police said they wouldn't have cared if the 32-year-old York man had turned off the program in the usual way. But Holmes Gibson, they said, took the entire radio station off the air. Gibson walked five miles in the rain from his home to the transmitting station of WORK and asked Chief Engineer Merle Miller: "Where are the switches to turn the station off?" Miller began rushing from switch to switch, turning them off. Miller was right back of him, turning them on again.

The engineer finally gave up the chase, went to a near-by home and returned with a fellow station employee. The two stopped Gibson and got the station back on the air before police arrived.

Retired Chemist Solves Too-Many-Hamsters Problem

ALBUQUERQUE, N. M.—M. J. Stuart, retired chemist, and his son, Frank, are experiencing a great relief now that all of their 300 hamsters are gone. They finally passed out the last of the animals to persons who drove from many sections of the state to get them. Stuart said he had the 300 hamsters on his hands and didn't know what to do with them. They had been given him by a friend who had to leave town. They have been used in laboratory work and the friend had nothing else to do with them.

It was the hamsters' fabulous ability to multiply that had the Stuarts worried. Frank figured out that, in theory, at least, the 300 could increase to 11 million in a year. To complicate things, there's a law against freeing the animals because of possible crop damage. Father and son appealed for help—make fine pets for the kids, they said—free.

The pet seekers descended on them today. Some came out of curiosity—and went home with a pair of the small furry animals. Others took singles and some got away with a dozen or more.

"Very likely," reported the Stuarts, "some of the folks will turn up with more than they can handle shortly—but they're off our hands now."

Hemlock Road

Mud and bad roads are keeping people home these days.

Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Ball spent Monday in Bay City shopping but were unable to get home on account of lower Meadow Road being flooded by Dead Creek and M-55 being closed. They stayed at Tawas all night.

Sympathy is extended to Mrs. Nellie Latham Wilson in the loss of her husband. Several from the Hemlock road attended the funeral.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Brown spent Wednesday evening with Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Ball. Mrs. Brown's birthday anniversary was celebrated.

Our sympathy goes to the St. James family in the loss of their mother, also to Jack Higgins who spent the winter in Florida and has suffered a stroke.

Many Hemlock people missed the 4-H Achievement day at Hale also Grange last week, because of bad roads.

Stanley VanSickle walked out Monday and called on neighbors on the Sand Lake Road, which is closed, also the Russell Binder road which had a culvert washed out.

Miss Hazel Burt of Flint, spent the week-end with her father, Ralph Burt.

Miss Ruth Herriman of Wheaton College, Illinois, home for the Easter vacation with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Will Herriman. Don Herriman and friend of Detroit spent the week-end at home.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Herriman attended a Hi-Speed banquet in Bay City on Wednesday.

We had a snow storm Sunday evening and its more mud than ever now. But, we are thankful to have the mail get through.

Burleigh News

Victor St. James was at the West Branch on business Monday. Bob Ruckles and Gerald St. James were at Prescott Saturday.

Miss Donna Bielby of Hale is visiting with friends here this week.

Most of the roads here are impassable since the spring rains, and a number of people are on the sick list making it difficult for a doctor to get to them.

Mrs. Eva St. James visited with relatives at Bay City the first part of the week.

Ellwood Ruckles and Berton Partlo were in Wisconsin last week buying cattle.

Gerald St. James was at Bay City Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. George O'Farrell and family of Rose City stopped here for a short visit with relatives Sunday morning. They were on their way to Bay City.

PARTLO EXPLAINS ACREAGE ALLOTMENT POLICY
Farm operators who grow more than one subject to acreage allotments in 1950 are advised this week on some questions about eligibility for price support on the allotment crops by Earl M. Partlo, Chairman of the Iosco County PMA Committee.

The PMA official explained the overall policy to be followed in determining producer compliance with acreage allotments as a condition for price support on the 1950 crops. The price support law requires that while allotments are not compulsory, growers who plant in excess of their allotments will not be eligible for price support on the particular commodity or commodities which they have over-planted.

Crops in Iosco County currently subject to acreage allotments are wheat, potatoes, and dry edible beans. Where acreage allotments are in effect, Mr. Partlo said, farmers will not be required to use the acreage diverted from production of the crop in any specific manner.

Eligibility for price support on any particular crop will be determined independently. For example, if a producer complies with his farm wheat acreage allotment, he will be eligible for 1950 wheat price support whether or not he has planted in excess of his acreage allotment for potatoes or dry beans. Producers who exceed their acreage allotment for any particular crop will not be eligible for price supports on that crop.

Where a producer owns or has an interest in more than one farm producing a commodity subject to acreage allotments, provisions vary according to the commodity.

For potatoes, a producer who has more than one farm must comply with acreage allotments on all farms in which he has an interest; for instance, if he exceeds his potato allotment on any one farm, he will not be eligible for price support on any potatoes produced on any of his farms.

For wheat, and dry edible beans, a producer with more than one farm will be eligible for price support only if the sum of his shares of the actual acreage of the commodity on all his farms does not exceed the sum of his shares of the acreage allotments for the commodity on all his farms. However, such a producer will receive support only on the production from those individual farms where the individual farm acreage allotment has not been exceeded; in other words, he will not be able to receive price support on production from those farms where the acreage allotment was exceeded. Thus, if a producer's total wheat allotment is exceeded, the producer will not be eligible for any wheat price support, even though he keeps within the wheat allotment on some of the farms in which he has an interest.

These are the general rules governing producer eligibility for price support on the 1950 crops. Mr. Partlo said, and farmers who have further questions should check with their County PMA office. Responsibility for determination of producer compliance rests with the County and State PMA Committees.

CONSERVATION PROGRAM HAS MORE ASSISTANCE

A greater amount of financial assistance will be available this year to Iosco County farmers who participate in the 1950 Agricultural Conservation program by carrying out approved soil and water conservation practices.

Earl M. Partlo, chairman of the Iosco County PMA Committee, said that $22,376 has been allocated to Iosco County for the 1950 ACP program as compared with $18,799 allocated at the beginning of the 1949 program.

This will make it possible, Mr. Partlo said, for more farmers to participate in the conservation program, and in most cases, for individual assistance payments to be more substantial this year. The rate of payment vary with the individual conservation practice carried out but for the most part, the payment represents half or less of the actual cost of carrying out the practices, excluding the farmer's labor.

GREEN GRASS OF WYOMING

By Mary O'Hara

Carey learns of Howard's plans to enter West Point and extends her congratulations. Ken, becoming increasingly aware of Carey's allure, begins to evidence signs of being jealous of Howard. Subconsciously seeking to ward off the threat of Howard as a rival, he tells Carey his brother "val- ready has a girl." Ken invites Carey to go for a walk to Castle Rock and also accepts. Meanwhile, Nell chides Howard for trying to "cut out" Ken with Carey, something which he de- mands. Nell is afraid of Cricket, the bull, and begs Rob to dispose of the animal. Ken is upset as Carey talks of her desire for babies after she is married.

CHAPTER XII

"I see what you mean. It's just a kind of make-believe." He glanced at her questioning, and she became serious and then nodded doubtfully. "Well, let me be in it, too. Wouldn't I do?" He laughed gaily and presently Carey laughed too, hesitatingly at first, then more hilariously as their emotion found an outlet. They roared to- gether.

This caused more uproarious laughter, then Ken said, "I pass on both counts. Anything else?" Carey gaily counted the points on her fingers. "He'd have to be a good physical specimen—"

Ken flexed his arm and showed his muscle. "I'm the wry kind. I had pneumonia when I was ten, but I'm all over it."

Carey was giggling. "He'd have to be religious, but I know you are."

Ken asked, "How do you know?" They were beginning to forget that it was a game of pretend.

"Because your family is. Your father says grace and you all go to church. But," added Carey, "I don't know if you yourself are, are you?"

"I don't know." "Why don't you know?" "Well, how can you tell?" "Do you say prayers?" "Sure," said Ken. "Then you're religious. Why did you say you didn't know?" "Well, I thought you meant, sort of, if I was good."

"Oh, no! I don't think it's the same thing at all. Well—so you are religious. And healthy enough, I guess."

Carey laughed, sighed, reverted to her first theme. "Just think of naming them all! And the color of their eyes and hair—all different!" Ken felt shut out again. These children of hers!

She straightened up, the soft wind blew her hair back from her face. Clapping her hands she looked far off into the western horizon as if she could see several of the little ones sitting on the small clouds that were gathering around the sun. "I just hope one of them will look like Penny. I think she is the most beautiful baby I ever saw."

"Well, if I am the father, maybe one of them will. She's my sister, you know."

He said this so seriously that Carey was brought up short. She gave a little embarrassed laugh. "That was just pretending, you know."

"I know," said Ken. "Oh, Ken! Just think of giving them all their baths and putting them to bed!"

Ken gave an exclamation of annoyance. "Those children of yours! You don't think of anything else! You're just a little girl playing with dolls! I really don't think it's exactly proper!"

"It certainly is," Carey defended herself. "It is a subject that is of the greatest importance to all young people, especially girls, and one has to study and think about the things that are important."

"Let's go back," said Ken abruptly.

Carey Exults Having Two Boys Seek Favors

Carey was in the delightful state of mind that any girl is in when two handsome and attractive boys vie for her favor and there is al- ways someone, a male someone, looking at her. She was as gay as a lark. She was always laughing, always singing, always running off with one or another or both of them. Rob and Nell tasted the joy of having a grown girl in the house.

One morning a message came from the Mexican shearers that they would arrive at the Goose Bar Ranch next day, and Rob went down to the corrals where the boys were working with their colts, and called out that one of them should ride up to Jeremy that afternoon and tell him that they would be moving down to the ranch the next morning early for the shearing.

The two boys looked at each other, then at Carey. "Which of us?" asked Howard. "Ken can go," Rob walked back to the house.

Ken looked at Carey. "Will you ride up with me, Carey?"

Howard said quickly, "I'm going fishing. Carey, you said you wanted to do some fishing."

Carey decided that she would prefer the fishing to the ride, and soon after the noon meal she and Howard were out digging in the flower beds for worms, while Ken saddled up.

He was coming home late in the afternoon when, without intending to spy, he saw a strange scene on the big flat rock which overlooked one of the best pools on Deer creek.

From where he was riding high up along the Saddle Back he got almost a bird's-eye view of it. First there were two figures, then there was one figure, then there was some sort of a scuffle.

A flame of anger poured all through Ken. He didn't want to spy. He turned his face away, took another tack down the mountainside and rode slowly home, knowing what it was to hate his brother, to hate the hate, to feel utter misery.

He unsaddled Flicka and walked down through the Gorge, going toward the back door. Then he heard them coming up from the stream. They were behind the house and Howard was laughing as if he would burst. Ken stopped walking and stood still. In a moment or two he would be face to face with them. He was trembling.

Howard said, "But, Carey, I

Rob and Nell tasted the joy of having a grown girl in the house.

didn't mean—"

Carey's voice interrupted him—it sounded as if she were half crying.

Then they turned the corner and came into Ken's view. Carey was soaking wet and covered with mud. She was in a sobbing fury. "Don't you ever speak to me again as long as you live, Howard McLaughlin!" And she rushed in the back door.

Howard turned. The boys looked at each other.

"What did you do?" demanded Ken. "You tried to kiss her!" "I did not," denied Howard. Then, angry at himself, he gave Ken an ugly look. "What's it to you if I did? Whose business is it, I'd like to know?" And he threw up his hands into boxing position and shuffled his feet threateningly.

Boys Keep Eyes Peeled for Rob

The gesture was half in earnest, half in pretense, but it startled Ken and made him jump. He threw himself into a position of defense. Howard shuffled his feet again and began warily to circle Ken. Ken lit out, Howard countered, they be- gan to spar.

After a moment or two Pearl came to the back door to see what was doing.

"Why, you two boys!" she ex- claimed. "You ought to be ashamed of yourselves!"

The make-believe fight was be- coming a real fight. To Ken particularly it was an outlet for pent-up feelings. He landed a stiff arm jolt in Howard's midriff.

Pearl danced with excitement. "Good for you, Ken! Give it to him again! Oh, cripes! My spuds are burning!" She vanished into the kitchen, but a moment later was at the back door again. "Hi-Ya! Go it!"

They did not need to be spurred on. They were fighting as hard as they could now but in deadly silence, their ears on the alert for the sound of their father's step or voice. The hot blood poured up into their faces. Their eyes blazed.

"Where's Dad?" asked Howard as he landed one on Ken's eye. "Around on the front terrace," said Pearl in a stage whisper. "Watch him, will you?" grunted Ken, swinging as hard as he could. The sound of their father's voice came to them.

"Cheese it!" exclaimed Pearl. "Your father's coming!" "What's the matter with supper, Pearl?" called Rob and his steps came loudly along the terrace toward the back of the house. "Just going to ring the bell, Cap- tain McLaughlin!" said Pearl. The boys vanished behind the house, and a few moments later were at the supper table. So was Carey. All three had high color.

The boys' hair was plastered down in the fashion which meant a light- ning session with head and comb under the water faucet. Carey's hair, too, was wet, and she said little and kept her face turned to Nell.

One of Ken's eyes was slowly closing and a purplish hue sur- rounded it.

Howard had a place on his lip to which he kept touching his napkin. Rob glanced from one boy to the other but no questions were asked and all the talk was of the shearing which was to begin next day.

Big Joe and Tommy, Rob Mc- Laughlin's heavy team, blinked their eyes as they jogged along the top of Saddle Back, going up to the sheep camp to get Jeremy's wagon and bring it to the ranch for the shearing.

They trotted side by side, festooned with harness. The braces were looped up, the big collars were loose on their necks.

Astride of Tommy was Ken. Astride of Big Joe was Carey. Big Joe's trot was long and rough. Without a saddle, and unable to post or knee-grip, she bounced madly and often had to grab the hames.

The wind was cool, the sunrise filled their eyes, they were on the top of a wide and empty world and they should have been friends but Carey's face was turned away from Ken and his heart hurt him.

It was his own fault, he knew that. He had been mad at her ever since she had chosen to go fishing with Howard the day before. It had made him still angrier that some- thing had happened between them and that she was shut out. This ought to be threshed out and explained, she had to tell him all about it, and until she did, things could not be right between them. His manner toward her, hurting her and showing her plainly that he was af- fronted, was what would make her try to conciliate him; she would want to win him over, and then he would understand and forgive, and take her back into his friendship, and, oh—love her, love her—

But Carey had not played her part in this imagined scene at all. From the moment when they had kept their rendezvous, so early that it seemed practically in the night, she had been bright and sweet and ob- livious to his mood and his attitude. This had made him scowl more fiercely, though, in the darkness, what use was it? She ought to be able to tell by his voice, by the short sharp sentences he spoke as he led her from the house up to the stable corral where Big Joe and Tommy were waiting.

Carey had made a few surprised, stumbling rejoinders at first, then had fallen silent, her face turned away from him. Finally she had given a little cold laugh. "Well, you don't own me, do you?"

They arrived at the wagon and before Ken had got to the side of her horse to help her she had slipped to the ground. They arrived at the ranch in time for breakfast. Already Garcia, the Mexican, and his men were there. Bunkhouse breakfast was over, the men were busy preparing the shearing pens.

Fishing Exhausts Rob's Patience

Rob heaved a deep sigh, shoved his hat farther back and scratched his head. Then, squinting, knotting the impatient lines which criss- crossed his forehead, he looked slowly over the heavens, the horizon, the far mountains.

It was his habitual, almost auto- matic gesture.

Rob heaved another sigh, pulled his hat down over his eyes and concentrated on his fishing. He reeled the line in, frowning heavily, cast the bait to a likely spot downstream under the farther bank, watched a moment with intense determina- tion, impatiently yanked it out, got to his feet, walked upstream, found himself another place, and sat down to fish again. His bait was gone. Cursing freely, he got the can out of his pocket, forced a worm on the hook and dropped it under the bank.

At some distance from him, Rodney Scott, his friend and doctor, leaned around a bush, wigwagging for silence. Rodney took his fishing with appropriate seriousness. No worms for him! Few were the Satur- day afternoons that did not provide him with an outing and a creel full of trout.

But Rob's short patience was ex- hausted. He pulled in his line and walked up to Rodney.

"How the hell a grown man can waste his time in such foolishness!" exclaimed Rob. "How do you expect me to catch anything if you come stamping and shouting around?" complained Rodney bitterly. At that moment he felt a strike, played his fish and drew out a shining ten-inch trout.

Rob watched him glumly as he took it off the hook and dropped it in his creel. "What do you think I got you out here for?" Rodney looked at him suspicious- ly. "Well, you said to come out and fish but I had an idea you had something else in the back of your head. If you want to consult me professionally why don't you come to my office when you're in town?"

Trial and Triumph

Lesson for April 2, 1950

IF YOU HAD BEEN ON the top of the city wall on that first Palm Sunday, watching the crowds roar- ing into Jerusalem, and some one had told you that all the shouting was for Jesus of Nazareth, you would certainly have thought that his success was assured. Here, surely, was a King who had arrived!

But before the week was out you would have seen this same Jesus on trial for his life, and not a voice raised in his defense. The same dusty-throated mob on that Sunday shouted "Hosanna! Blessed is He!" was shrieking on Friday morning, "Crucify him!"

There is a popular notion float- ing around to the effect that God gives good people an easy time. It is not always just that way. But when a man who has been good (or thinks he has, or has tried to be), runs into trouble, he asks right away, "Why must this hap- pen to me?" The truth of the mat- ter is better expressed in the lines of an old hymn: "Must I be carried to the skies On flowery beds of ease, While others fought to win the prize, Or sailed through bloody seas?"

Jesus was incomparably the best who ever lived; yet his moments of popularity were short, and he was finally tor- tured and killed by the lead- ers of church and state, amid the jeering approval of masses of the people.

He himself said that any follower of his must be willing to take up his own cross. "In the world you will have tribulation," he said to his disciples.

All Tyrants Hate the Church

THE MORE GENUINELY Chris- tian the church is, the more it is likely to run into opposition. There are several reasons for this. For one thing, the church stands for love, and the generosity and un- selfishness, the sympathy and even the sacrifice that go with love and are produced by it. But "what makes the world go 'round,"—the world of the politician, the money-maker, the social climber, the war-maker, the world of the power-thirsty in every sphere—what makes that world go 'round is pride, selfishness, shoving- ahead, Me-firstness. The selfish and the proud do not take kindly to love of the Christian sort, indeed they despise it as a weakness.

But the church, when it is a true church, stands up for Hu- manity even when it has to stand against Profits; and the man for whom Profit is the first law of life never under- stands the attitude of the church. Then the church (when it is a real one) always stands for the people against the Ty- rant, whoever and wherever he may be, even when he is in some church himself.

And consequently all tyrants hate the church. The Roman em- perors hated it and persecuted it till they found they could use it (which, by the way, was a bad day for the church). Mohammed, a ty- rant of sorts, hated the Christian church and would have totally de- stroyed it if he could.

Victory—When?

IF WE SUFFER with him we shall also reign with him," said St. Paul. But when and how? The end of the church's struggles could come in either of two ways. One way would be for the church to give up struggling against the world. Let the church become a club for the social, let the church raise no voice of protest against in- justice in society, against untruth, violence and greed; let the church give in to the world, in short, and she will have no further trouble from the world.

But in that case she would be dead. Another way is for the church finally to overcome the world. The triumph of the true church is the same as the tri- umph of divine Love.

That is the future to which the Bible bids us look. When? We do not know. But the Kingdom comes "one heart at a time," and with every soul the church wins from the world-way to the Christ-way, the victory of Love draws nearer.

Appeal to Appetites With Novel Methods Of Food Preparation

IT ISN'T ALWAYS the elaborate meal that tastes the best, nor the most expensive food that makes the family call for more. When the food, no matter what it may be, is cooked perfectly and served attractively, it's bound to please.

Certain foods should not be allowed to over- cook, as they will lose their appetite appeal because texture is destroyed. This is true of both fish and cheese, so popular in menus right now.

Fish is delicate and tender. To have it reach perfection, time its cooking to the minute. Then you'll have fish anyone can enjoy!

Cheese becomes stringy when cooked at too high temperatures. Cooked slowly and carefully, it's mouth-watering, creamy texture is preserved.

ADD A DELIGHTFUL garnish to foods if you find they aren't going over too well with the family and serve them as beautifully as you possibly can. You'll be sur- prised how much of a difference in their acceptance this little but thoughtful touch can make.

*Pan-Baked Perch (Serves 6)

Place two one-pound packages of ocean perch fillets in a baking dish. Add salt and pepper to taste. Melt 1/2 cup butter and mix in 2/4 cups cracker crumbs. Cover the fillets with the butter-crumbs mixture. Sprinkle with chopped parsley, if desired. Bake 30 minutes in a moderate (350°) oven or until fish is done and the crumbs browned. Serve with pickled onions and beets.

HERE'S A RICH and spicy sal- mon casserole which will give you a complete meal when served with a fruit salad:

Spicy Salmon Casserole (Serves 4)

1 pound canned salmon
2 tablespoons butter
2 tablespoons flour
1 cup milk
1/2 cup catsup
1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
1/2 pound American cheese, grated

Toasted crackers
Flake the salmon and arrange in bottom or individual dishes. Melt butter in top of double boiler. Stir in flour and add milk. Cook slowly until smooth and slightly thick- ened. Add cat- sup, sauce and cheese; cook un- til cheese is melted. Arrange toasted crackers around edge of baking dish. Heat thoroughly in a moderate (375°) oven for 20 min- utes, or until cheese sauce bub- bles. Serve at once.

OYSTERS have a rich mineral content and are especially deli- cious when prepared in this man- ner and served with rice:

Oysters Poillette (Serves 4)
1 pint oysters

Remove 10 choice tips about 2 1/2" long, split lengthwise and cook un- til tender; use for garnish. If using canned vegetable, set 10 tips aside, as above. Cut remainder of aspara- gus fine, cook until tender, then press through a coarse sieve. Measure puree and liquid; there should be about two cups. Melt butter, add onion and cook slightly. Add milk, stirring constantly. Cook until smooth and thickened. Add puree. Just before serving, add grated cheese, stirring until melted. Add parsley and serve garnished with asparagus tips.

Fish is easily and attractive- ly prepared for the table when pan-baked and served with a topping of crumbs and en- circled with pickled beets and onions.

LYNN SAYS: You Can Make Laundering Speedier and Easier

If you can't get to all the ironing after it's dampened, store in plastic cloth or cellophane bags in refrigerator to prevent mildew.

Lace tablecloths and bedspreads need no ironing if they are placed on a curtain stretcher for drying. They shape beautifully.

Never dry blankets in harsh sun- light. Shade is best for keeping their color as well as their texture as new as possible.

Turkish towels will shrink slight- ly when they are washed the first few times as their knit is drawn closer together. They will reach maximum absorbency after four or five washings.

A bit of glycerine added to the last rinse for woolen things will make them softer and smoother. Do not dry any woolens near heat. Mops can be washed in luke- warm water and mild suds just as such clothing is laundered. Do it frequently to keep mops condi- tioned.

That Would Hurt!
For the first time in his life Cal Smith was in need of a lawyer's services. He remembered that his father had known a rather prominent attorney so he went to see the man. The lawyer agreed to take the case and won it quite handsily. Then he went to the lawyer to pay the bill.
"Let's see now," said the lawyer, "you won $500 in that case, didn't you?"
"Yes, sir," replied Cal.
"Well, since I knew your father so well, I must make it easy for you. Supposing I set my fee at $400?"
"Whew!" whooshed Cal, "I'm sure glad you didn't know grandfather."

TAWAS CITY GARDEN CLUB

The Tawas City Garden Club met at the Tawas City library Tuesday afternoon with a splendid attendance.

A. Marvin Davenport, 4-H director of Alcona, Oscoda and Isoco counties spoke and showed slides relative to the accomplishments of many local groups. Since this club plans to sponsor a Junior garden group this season, he explained methods of procedure, eligibility, aims and requirements, and awards. The lesson was both interesting and instructive.

The following officers were elected for the new year: Mrs. Frieda Ross, president; Mrs. Florence Moeller, vice president, Mrs. Meta Westcott, secretary-treasurer. Four new members joined the club, mesdames William Dockter, Nelson Ulman, Russell Rollin and Earl Davis.

The scheduled program of "Wild Flowers and Wild Life" will be carried over to the next meeting in May.
