Every Business Urged to Build Festival Float

Committee Meeting Wednesday Night Works Out Program Details

"Every merchant and organization in the two cities is urged to have a float in the Perch Festival parade," says Joseph Allen, chairman of the parade committee. At the meeting Wednesday evening, of the general committee of the rapidly approaching perch festival it was revealed that eight bands from northeastern Michigan towns and cities had indicated that they would take part in the festivities here.

The three days, Friday, Saturday and Sunday, May 5-6-7, will undoubtedly bring out the usual large crowd of fishermen who hope to catch perch, those who plan to enjoy a fish dinner and the many who come to enjoy the parade and program of events and make their early season visit to the scenic places here. Wednesday evening's meeting of the general committee was spent in arranging special features on the program and discussing plans for the big event.

In addition to the parade, there will be fishing contests, archery contests, a model power airplane show and band concerts. The model airplane show is by the Bay City Hobby Center. The Archery contest is sponsored by the Tawas Archery Club which is headed by Charles Nash of East Tawas.

The bands that have been listed so far are: Harrisville, Hale, Standish, Oscoda, East Tawas, Chesaning, Bay City Handy School and the Alpena "Drum and Bugle Corps."

The Perch King Dance will be held Saturday evening at the Community Building, East Tawas.

Those who intend to have floats should list them with the committee now. It's not too early to start plans and the construction of that good one you thought of too late last year.

Register floats with Hugo Keiser, Jr., at Tawas City and Joseph Allen, East Tawas. Floats of all kinds, including humorous, and bicycles and clowns.

'Mixed Concrete When You Want It'

Mueller Starts New Service at Plant Here

"Mixed concrete on the minute you want it" is now possible in the Tawas area, according to an announcement made today by Ernest Mueller, owner and operator of the Mueller Concrete Products plant in this city and gravel pit and plant at Greenbush.

While the ready-mix concrete plant and transit mix equipment had been ready for the past four years, the allotment of cement here was not sufficient to warrant its operation since 1946, states Mr. Mueller, and the work of the concrete products company was confined to building blocks, brick and similar products.

Ready mix and transit mix will save anyone who is building or the contractor, some money. As quick as the forms are ready, the desired type of mixed concrete will be on his job ready to be poured. And in any quantity needed.

One of the products manufactured at the Mueller plant is concrete burial vaults. Equipment for the manufacture of this product was designed by Martin Mueller, assistant manager. Installation of this equipment was made during the past winter.

Large stockpiles of gravel and sand are carried here by the company, and orders can be handled right out of storage at Tawas City. The general offices of the Mueller Concrete Products Co., are at Tawas City.

Women Bowlers Hold Banquet

Held Tuesday Evening At Holland Hotel

The Tawas Women's Bowling Association held their second annual banquet at the Holland Hotel, Tuesday, April 18, bringing to a close a very successful 1949-1950 season. There were a hundred members and guests in attendance and all enjoyed a very delicious turkey dinner.

Table decorations were carried out in true bowler's fashion. The speakers table was adorned with a lovely float of flowers, on top of which was a gold statue of a woman bowler in action, sculptured by Mrs. Al. Chaney. Individual favors were miniature bowlers made from pipe celaners and holding a ball of black painted clay. Color schemes of the different team uniforms were carried out between the skirts and headdress, the heads also molded from different colors of clay. For this novel idea, credit should also be given Mrs. Harold Moeller, chairman of the Banquet committee.

Welcome address was given by Mrs. Carrie Clark and the business meeting followed with the President, Mrs. Mae Shuman, taking over Officers for the 1950-51 season of the different leagues were presented, as well as the different league awards for the past season. The Association Tournament winners were also presented with their medals and checks. The Association officers of the past season were elected to serve another term, namely: President, Mae Shuman; Vice President, Lucille McCormick; Secretary, Dolores Siefloff; Treasurer, Marie Nash; Sergeant at Arms, Mabel Liske.

A fine performance of local talent was displayed by Karen Hunter who did several tap dances and sang a song, and Mrs. Carrie Clark who sang two numbers, accompanied on the piano by Mrs. Evelyn Price. Highlighting the entertainment was a skit "School Days," cast including Jean Fisher, teacher and pupils, Mary Lixey, Eva Ketcherside, Effie Mallon, Bea Durant and Shirley Prescott.

Nunn Named To Iosco Road Commission

Supervisors End Long April Meeting Wednesday Afternoon

W. D. (Mike) Nunn, well known East Tawas hardware merchant was named member of the Iosco County Road Commission during the final hour of the Wednesday afternoon session of the Board of Supervisors. The board was confronted with a number of important pieces of work at this meeting which extended it into seven days.

In addition to organization of the board and the ordinary routine business of the April meeting, a new law requires that the assessment rolls of the various townships and cities be equalized at the April meeting. This crowded a large part of work formerly performed at the June meeting into the April meeting.

The board was reluctant in accepting the resignation of Arthur Goulette as county road commissioner and members tried to prevail on him to continue on the commission, but he was firm in his decision to resign. In the election of a successor, three names were presented in nomination. W. D. Nunn, of East Tawas, Hobart Brayman of AuSable and Henry Hobart. The first ballot was quite evenly divided, with no candidate receiving a majority of votes. The second ballot gave Nunn 11 and Brayman seven votes. On the first ballot Henry Hobart received four votes.

The supervisors came to the April meeting with an increase of $685,310 in assessed valuation over last year. The totals for the county are: Real estate $11,245,000; persona property $1,569,450; total valuation $12,814,690. This was equalized by the committee on equalization at $13,000,000.

Allocation of school funds by the state is based on the equalization figures, and many members hoped to have the rolls of the county equalized at $14,000,000. In a very close vote the committee's equalized rolls at $13,000,000 was adopted.

Next Monday morning the Iosco county tax commission will hold its first meeting of the year in the business of allocating the 15 mill tax. The budgets of the county, townships and schools will be presented at this meeting. The members of the commission are: A. T. Vary, Edward Burgeson, Richard Fuerst, Mrs. Theresa Roiter, County School Superintendent Russell Rollin and County Treasurer, Grace Miller.

Chief Morey Outlines Coast Guard Work To Tawas Flotilla

Highlight of the Flotilla 15-04, USCG Auxiliary meeting Tuesday evening was an interesting talk by Chief Morey of the local Coast Guard Station. He outlined Coast Guard work, told of interesting rescues while in the service and answered Flotilla member's questions. He pointed out the need of an auxiliary unit here, and said members would get all the work on the water they wanted. A tour of the station followed, visiting the radio room, galley, mess room and sleeping quarters.

Sgt. Cobb of the Michigan State Police and former Coast Guardsman told how the State Police and Coast Guard worked together in the past and would co-operate in every way with the Coast Guard and Auxiliary on the Search and Rescue plan for Saginaw Bay.

During the meeting, By-Laws were accepted, as read last Tuesday, with meeting night falling on the first Tuesday of each month.

Under the Search and Rescue plan, the Tawas Flotilla will cover an area from four miles north of Oscoda to Point Lookout. With Cliberg's boat at Oscoda and Heiman's boat at Pt. Au Gres, plus the boats of the Flotilla docked in Tawas Bay, the unit will have a good coverage of the area and will be an invaluable aid to the Coast Guard station. Members of the Flotilla will also be schooled in handling the Coast Guard craft, and will go out with them on regular tours of duty to familiarize themselves with the Coast Guard equipment and technique.

The first lesson of the training period was given by Jack Colberg. Title of the lesson was "Manners and Customs at Sea," and a question period will be held next Tuesday, in another special meeting at the Coast Guard Station at Tawas Point. Anyone interested in doing this type of work, should get in touch with Commander Monarch or Vice Commander Everett.

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS

U. S. Defense Setup Challenged; Progress Reported in ECA Field; Truman Signs Crop Increase Act

(EDITOR'S NOTE: When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of Western Newspaper Union's news analysis and not necessarily of this newspaper.)

DEFENSE:
Charges Hurdled

Charges that the government has been "ragging its feet" in organizing civil defense against an A-bomb attack and in telling Americans how to protect themselves have been hurled by four big-city officials.

MAYOR Elmer E. Robinson of San Francisco minced no words in asserting that federal authorities have "fumbled the ball" of civilian defense. He urged that a policy of total defense be inaugurated immediately by the federal government.

Federal planners have said that local officials will have to assume primary responsibility for civilian defense against atomic warfare, the government's role being that of coordinator.

THAT MUST have seemed an odd stand to take to officials who have no knowledge of atomic bomb effects or of the first steps to take toward protection if such bombings occur. Surely public leaders were within the bonds of reason and logic when they demanded that the government channel to them more information on how to provide protection against atomic warfare—information which only the federal government possesses, if anyone or any group does possess it.

The government's attitude seemed a callous one and hard to reconcile with all the scare techniques prevalent in connection with the possibility of another war in which the A-bomb or the H-bomb would be the most frightful weapons.

FOREIGN AID:
Some Progress

As the economic cooperation administration started its third year of operations, Marshall plan countries were being urged to take two steps of paramount importance to make themselves independent of extraordinary outside aid by the time ECA ends in June of 1952.

COUNTRIES participating in the Marshall plan were to be told that they should intensify efforts to sell more products to the United States and other hard-currency areas. ECA pointed to that as one means of closing the dollar gap.

In that connection, the agency continued, the U.S. could assist by following increasingly liberal import policies and commercial policies generally so that trade barriers do not prevent European countries from increasing dollar earnings in this country.

AS TO European economic unification, ECA stated its belief that the establishment of an effective European payments union is of great importance. Elimination of public and private trade restrictions also were said to be a contributing factor to economic unification.

As a result of increased production and financial and political stabilization, ECA said, communism has been placed on the defensive in all participating countries.

HOGS:
No Progress

For the first time within the past eight years, hogs were being bought and sold at major U.S. markets without any price supports—and dealers admitted it was difficult to note any difference.

PRICES were steady to 25 cents higher. What did that mean? Was it an indication that federal agricultural planners could have been wrong all these years? If that were the case, there probably would be no admission of it.

In fact, one U.S. department of agriculture spokesman hailed the event as a "normal market." It was "just a matter of supply and demand," he said, as if the department had been aware of it and had considered that venerable law ever since the government went into the farming business.

FARMERS and traders, however, held varying opinions as to what might happen when the markets opened for the first time since hog price supports were allowed to die. Some felt growers would become panicky and flood the market with hogs. But, as was reported, nothing happened.

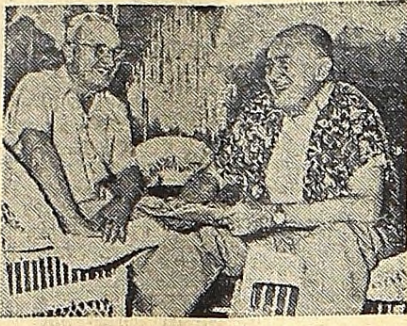

Anti-support adherents, nevertheless, could draw little consolation from the evident, for farm leaders had made it clear vigorous efforts would be made to restore hog price props.

SUBMARINES:
But Whose?

Cloaked with all the color and trappings of mystery and suspense was the report that a naval officer had made instrument contact with "one or more" unidentified submarines about 17 miles off the California coast.

OFFICIALLY, the western sea frontier, which ordered the hunt, reported "results and comment negative." It added the search had been discontinued.

'Hot' Shirt

Defense Secretary Louis Johnson (right) talks "cold war" in a "hot" shirt as he and President Truman discuss defense strategy and anti-Communist activities at the "Little White House" in Key West, Fla. Secretary Johnson's shirt recalls the "Solomon-in-all-his glory" quotation, but even it was topped by one the President frequently donned for pictures.

CROP BOOST:
A Compromise

In any manner likely to affect the farm vote—with the congressional elections not so many months away—President Truman showed an unwonted disposition to compromise, rather than come out fighting against anything he didn't like, as he has done so frequently in the past.

THE PRESIDENT compromised on an agricultural bill raising acreage limitations on cotton and peanuts for 1950 and modifying price supports for Irish potatoes next year.

In signing the measure after long study, the President noted, according to the presidential press secretary, Charles G. Ross, that "the good features outweighed the undesirable features." And with that profound utterance, the bill was signed into law.

The President acted after undergoing heavy pressure from groups urging approval of veto of the joint resolution.

The section affecting potatoes knocks out price supports for potatoes in 1951 unless marketing quotas are then in effect. Additional legislation would be needed, however, to put such quotas into operation in 1951.

THE MEASURE as approved authorizes an increase of 1.5 million acres in cotton acreage this year and a 50 per cent increase in acreage of peanuts planted for oil production. The previous cotton allowance was 27 million acres.

It would permit peanut growers—principally in Texas and Alabama—100,000 more acres and would permit excess peanuts to be grown for oil without penalties on certain conditions.

JAPAN:
Bible vs. Marx

Believing that Christianity and the Bible are the dykes that are holding up the flood of communism in Japan, the American Bible Society is beginning a campaign to send Bibles to Japan—Bibles printed in the Japanese language.

Already the society has distributed a total of 2,789,956 Bibles among the Japanese, but it is felt—and this sentiment is shared by Gen. Douglas MacArthur, that isn't enough.

GENERAL MacARTHUR isn't alone in that opinion. He has asked for millions more. And Dr. Shiro Murata, an officer of the Japan Bible Society, said: "The eyes of Japan are fixed on two books. One is Das Kapital by Karl Marx. The other is the Holy Bible. Japan is at the crossroads."

To usher in its program of Bibles for the Japanese, the American Bible Society this month is sponsoring a huge signature book of donors for the purpose of raising funds with which to purchase and send the Bibles. Every person who contributes one dollar or more to the project will be asked to sign the donor book.

WHEN the campaign comes to an end, probably this fall, the huge book, bearing the signature of every donor, will be forwarded to Japan where it will be displayed in the offices of the Japan Bible Society as a token of friendship from the people of America to the people of Japan.

Adam's Daughter?

Did Adam have a daughter, no mention of whom is in the Bible? Dr. Guido Kisch, noted scholar, has declared that a 900-year-old Latin manuscript claims that Adam had a daughter whose name was never mentioned in any version of the Old Testament. Dr. Kisch said the manuscript, oldest and most accurate version known as "Biblical Antiquities," mentioned a daughter named Noaba.

SECURITY:
A Denial

U.S. State Secretary Dean Acheson branded as falsehoods statements by Sen. Joseph McCarthy that Owen Lattimore—whom McCarthy had called a Soviet agent—was the actual director of American policy in the Far East. Answering questions at a press conference, Acheson added that:

1. Lattimore never was employed by the state department.
2. He (Acheson) isn't sure he ever met Lattimore.
3. Lattimore's contacts with the state department have been limited to a few occasions.
4. According to his information, Lattimore never had a desk at the state department.

Lattimore, a Far Eastern expert and a professor at John Hopkins university, had reached London from Afghanistan, from whence he was returning to answer McCarthy's charges. In London, Lattimore branded the McCarthy charges as "unmitigated lies."

McCarthy, meanwhile, was in a hospital after a four-hour senate speech in which he said he would produce a witness who would swear Lattimore was a member of the Communist party. He told the senate he had documents to prove that Lattimore was a Soviet agent who was getting instructions from Moscow as long ago as 1936.

Lattimore was most important to McCarthy, for the senator had declared he would rest his entire case of Communist leanings in the state department on the outcome of his charges against Lattimore.

And, unless the senator could produce his witness and his documents, the case boiled down to one of the senator's word against that of Acheson and Lattimore, with the public deciding as it pleased about who was right.

FLYING DISKS:
Navy Says 'No'

If there are, or were, any flying saucers whirling through space, the United States navy has nothing to do with them and knows nothing about them. The air force said the same thing.

THE SERVICES also denied that they are developing secret planes, guided missiles or anything else that could be mistaken for flying saucers.

These denials were issued after two published reports traced the saucers to navy and air force "secret" projects.

An air force spokesman declared that "the armed forces are not doing anything that could be traced to being the basis of reports of flying saucers."

He said the air force position was the same as it was last December when it announced—after investigating 375 reports of flying saucers—that they were "misinterpretations of various conventional objects, a mild form of mass hysteria or hoaxes." In other words "there ain't no such thing" as a flying saucer.

A NAVY SPOKESMAN denied with equal vigor that the navy is developing super-speed planes that have been spotted as "saucers."

Said he: "The navy is not experimenting with, or doing research on, any type of plane or guided missile that resembles in any way a flying saucer."

So, that should be that. However, it would be difficult to convince many Americans that there are no flying saucers, and if a troubled citizen, seeking, subconsciously or not, a momentary relief from his woes and burdens, thinks an object in the sky is a flying saucer, no particular harm has been done. In fact it may do him some good.

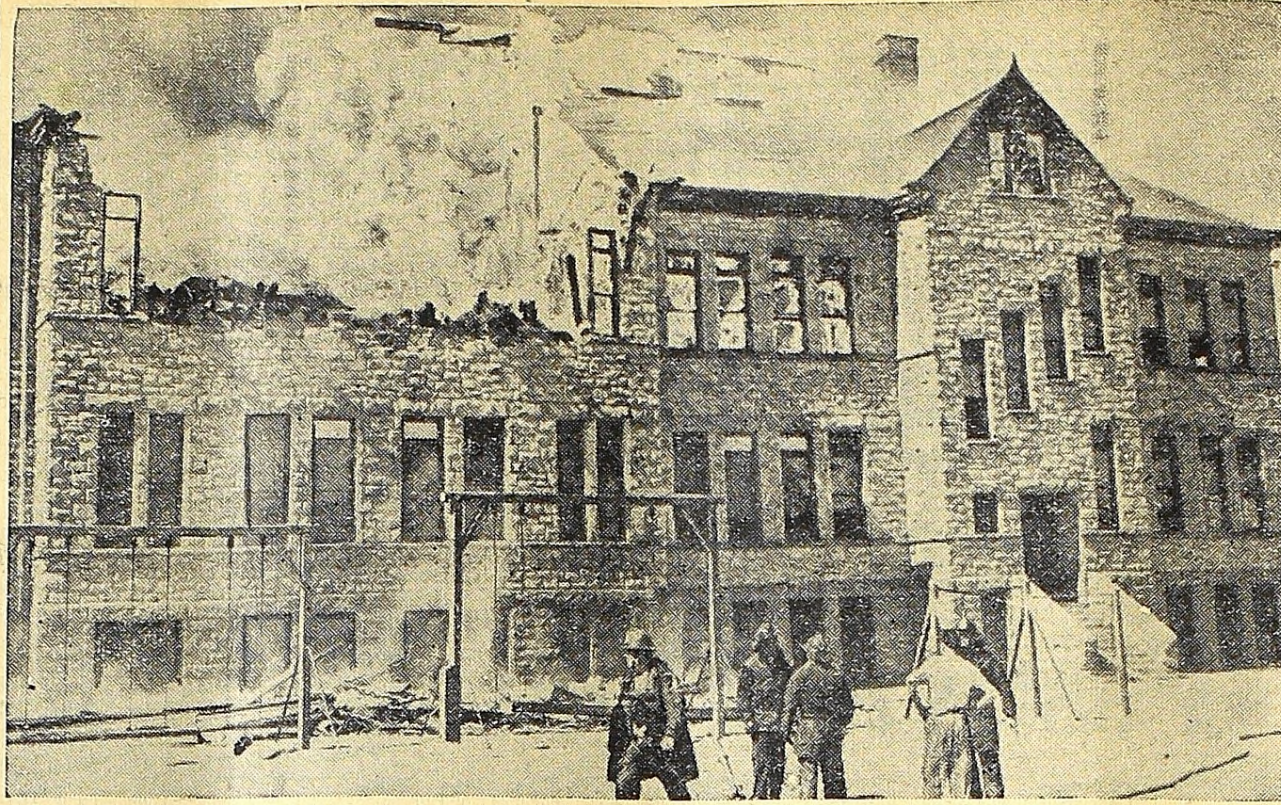

Boy of The Year

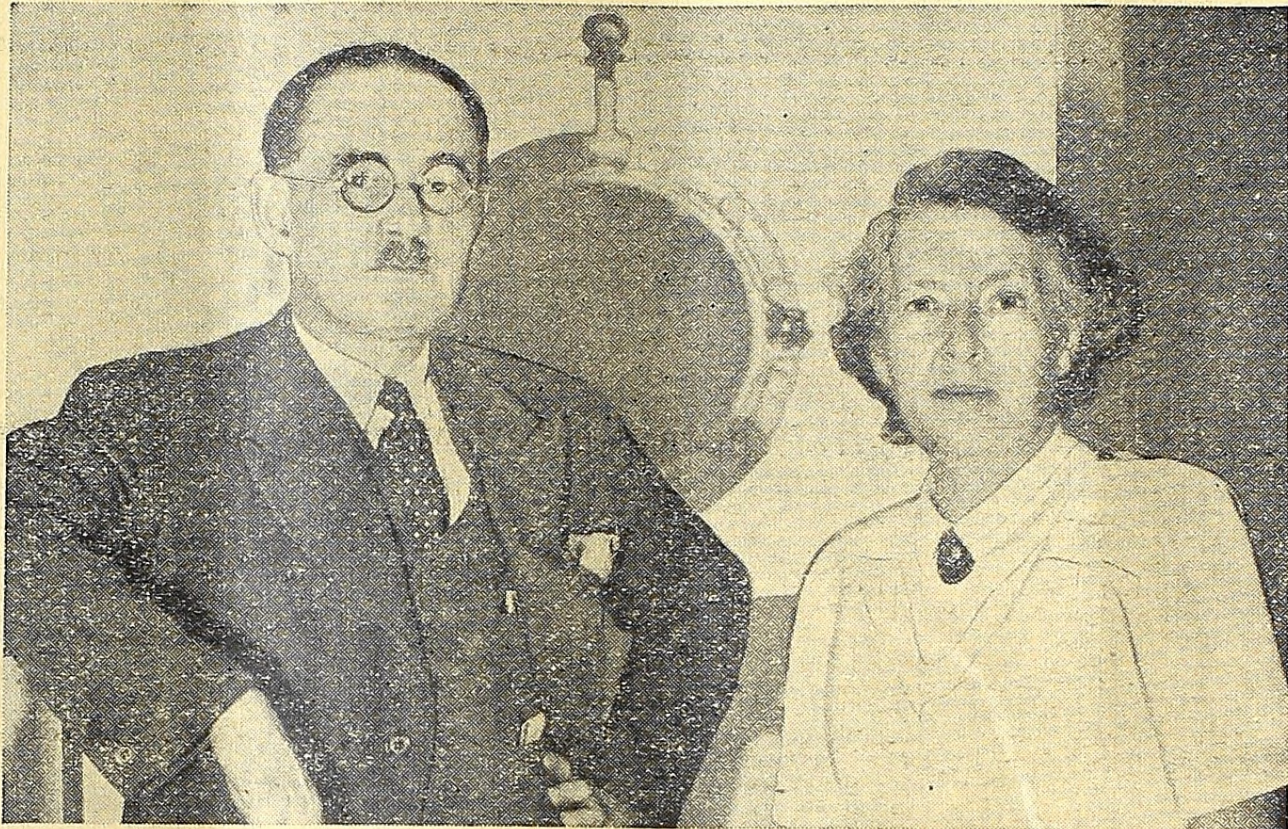

David Russo, who was selected "Boy of The Year" of the Boys Clubs of America, holds the plaque awarded him and gets a kiss from his mother after arriving in Hollywood for a three-day tour of film and radio studios.

GERMANY:
Crisis Impends

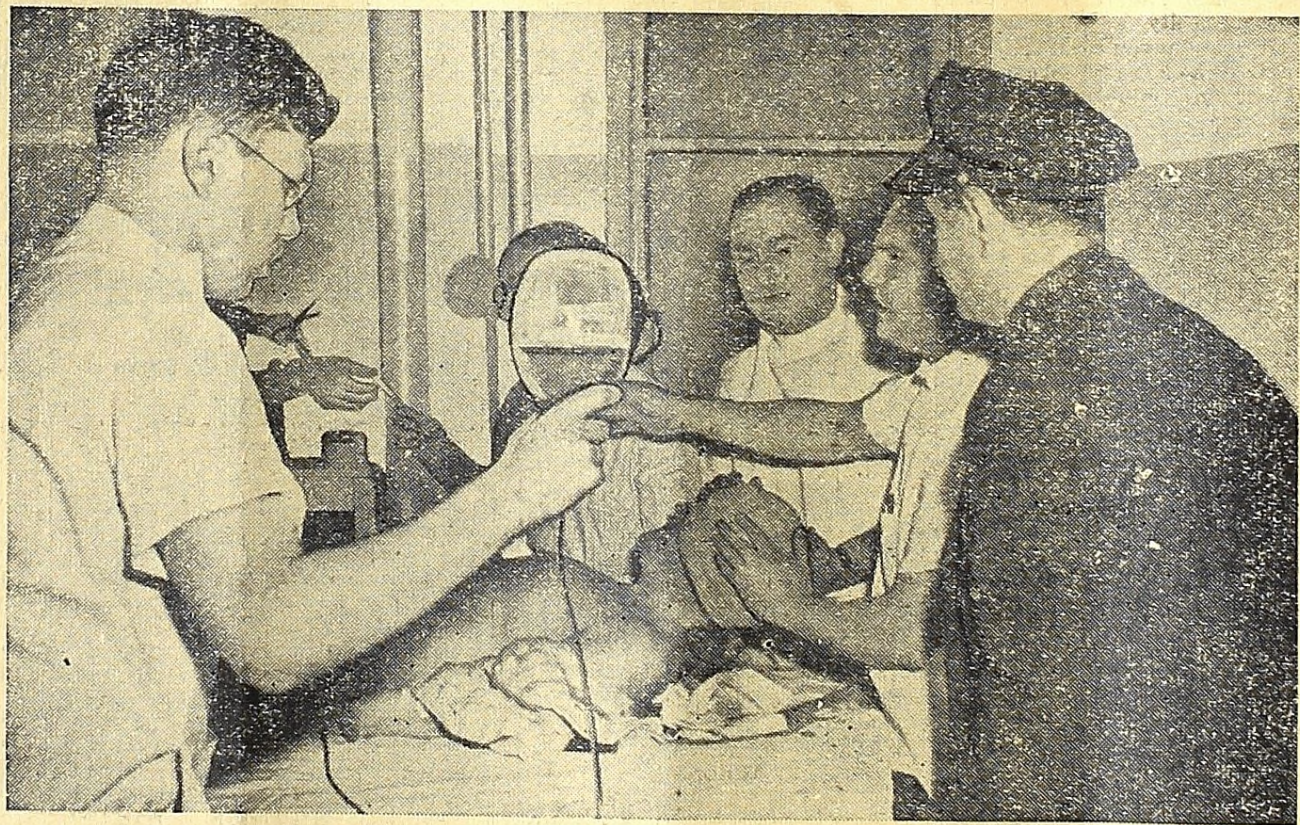

According to U.S. German High Commissioner John J. McCloy, a "real crisis" appears inevitable in Germany. McCloy uttered the warning in a talk before a congress subcommittee. He told a house group that Soviet pressure is a result of confidence, rather than any "sense of inferiority or fear of attack" by western forces. "The Russians feel their strength," he said.

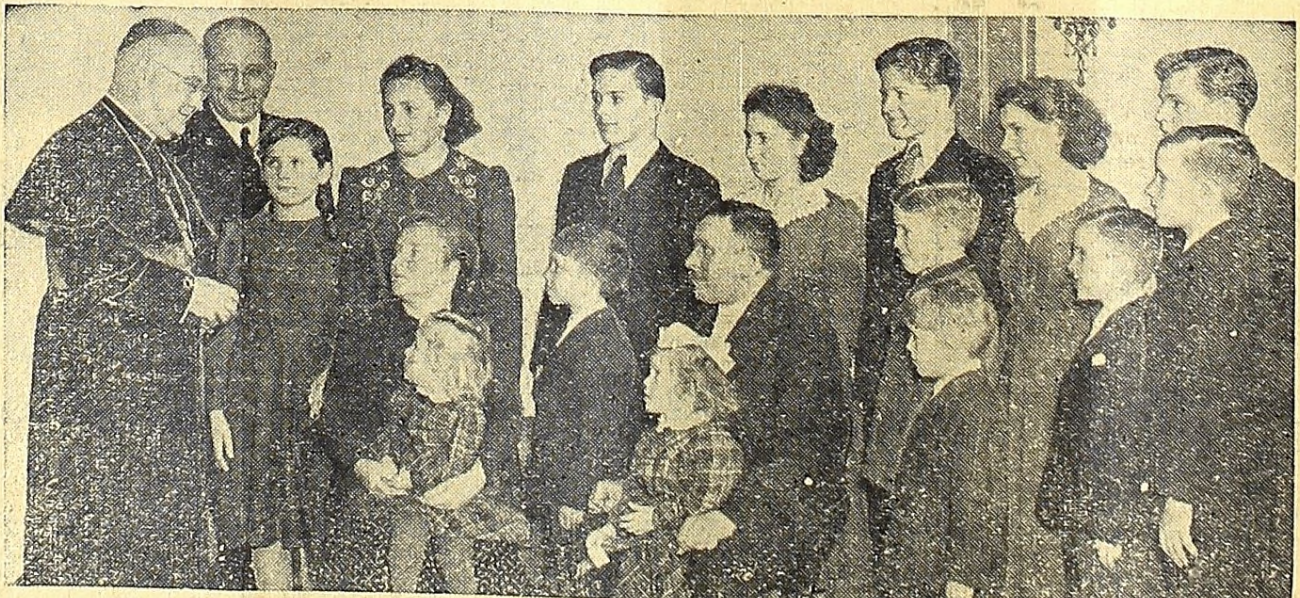

FIRE DESTROYS COLORADO SCHOOL FOR BLIND . . . Firemen fight a fire at the school for blind and deaf children located at Colorado Springs, Colo. None of the children was seriously injured, as school officials evacuated some 100 children from the burning structure without difficulty before the flames made great headway. Here is the main building of the school shortly after the roof of the center section caved in. School officials, without revealing the amount of insurance carried on the destroyed building, made the estimate that the damages amounted to approximately $500,000. No plans were revealed to rebuild the burned buildings.

BRITISH SOCIALIST DIES . . . Professor Harold J. Laski, 56, prominent British Socialist, died recently after collapse of his left lung. Here, he is shown with his wife as they prepared to sail aboard the liner Queen Elizabeth for England in April of 1949. Professor Laski was a former active chairman of the British Labor party, and was for many years a practicing theoretician of the socialist idea of government. He wrote several books upon government as it is practiced in the United States, and was accused of being a Communist, although he disavowed that cause many years ago. He made a tour of the United States last year, lecturing upon socialist politics.

VICTIM OF MERCY TRAGEDY . . . Doctors in the Knickerbocker hospital in New York City work desperately against time over Michael Woods, 68, a pernicious anemia sufferer, after he was bludgeoned in an attempted "mercy slaying." New York police say that his brother, Charles, 66, attempted to kill Michael to save him further suffering. Charles then committed suicide, dying in a leap from a third floor apartment at 211 West 107th street. He apparently never knew that his attempt to kill his brother was unsuccessful, probably thinking Michael dead when he took his own life. Michael was in a critical condition at the hospital when this scene took place.

CARDINAL RETURNS WITH BIG D. P. FAMILY . . . Francis Cardinal Spellman returned from the first major holy year pilgrimage to Rome aboard the S. S. Atlantic with Josef Brandl, Mrs. Brandl and their 14 children. Brandl, a Hungarian farmer, and his family are displaced persons brought to America by the National Catholic Welfare Council, which has found them a home in Clifton, N. J. The Cardinal feared that the big family might have a rugged start in their new home, so he placed a roll of bills in Brandl's hands with the comment: "I would rather go ashore with no money than know that you with 14 children might not have enough."

Vandenberg Missed

FOR MORE THAN a month there has been a vacant desk in the senate chamber. It is the third seat from the center aisle in the second row in the Republican side. And the absence of its regular occupant, Sen. Arthur H. Vandenberg of Michigan, due to his extended illness, has thrown the country's bi-partisan foreign policy into a tailspin.

The absence of Senator Vandenberg during this critical time has permitted the isolationists on the Republican side of the aisle and, too, some on the Democratic side, to run wild in partisan attempts to break down the united front in the senate of the United States on foreign policy.

There is little doubt in one's mind here that Senator Vandenberg was at once the spark plug and the balance wheel of our foreign policy and the various programs enacted to implement it; there is little doubt but that the all-out attack by Sen. Joseph McCarthy of Wisconsin against Secretary of State Dean Acheson and the entire state department, would have ever come to pass had Senator Vandenberg been in his senate seat.

For it is this attack, these wild irresponsible charges of "Communist infiltration" by the "10-cent-store Robespierre from Wisconsin" that has done more to break down faith and respect in the nation's foreign policy and foreign commitments than if there were a dozen Commies in the state department.

Often Saved Day

More than once in the past, Senator Vandenberg has stepped into the breach and halted politics at the waters edge when some members of his party kicked over the traces and placed partisanship above the country's interests.

What many cannot understand here is how the senate has let this probe of communism in the state department get out of hand and develop into a full-scale Hollywood show daubed by the smear and "guilt by association" technique which is making of our state department a laughing stock for the rest of the world.

How much better it would have been, observers here point out, to have used FBI methods, namely to quickly and efficiently and quietly gather the evidence and if it constituted grounds sufficient to fire, or to indict, to have placed it in the hands of the department of justice without all the fanfare of movies, television, klieg lights and character assassination of many innocent and loyal Americans.

Russia Had Friends

Certainly anyone knows that during the war when Russia was our friendly ally, there were friends of Russia in the state department and in every other department of government. The Alger Hiss case is proof of that fact. We also know that when the American and Russian armies met on German soil after beating down the German armies, the American GI's and the Russian GI's threw their arms about one another in wild demonstrations of good fellowship and friendship in the full flush of victory.

But since then, times have changed and no doubt the sympathies of the people, friendly to Russia then, are just as unfriendly to Russia today.

But to lump all these people who expressed friendship for Russia and admiration for the stand of the Russian armies against German aggression back there during the war, as disloyal and pro-Communist today is a little bit ridiculous and an insult to the intelligence of the American people.

McCarthy Rapped

If, as Senator McCarthy declares, there is a "Hiss spy ring" in the state department, it was there when Gen. George Marshall was secretary of state. But General Marshall's reputation with the American people was and is such that it would have been politically dangerous for Senator McCarthy to attack him through the process he is now using to smear and innuendo against Secretary Acheson. The conservative Washington Star has criticized McCarthy in similar vein.

"If Senator McCarthy believes that Mr. Acheson should be fired, he has a right to say so . . . But if Senator McCarthy wants to be thought of as a responsible citizen and officer of this government, then he most emphatically does not have a right to snipe at Mr. Acheson from behind a cover of reckless and unsupported charges against the state department.

For when he retorts to that technique he is not making a case against Mr. Acheson. Instead he is blackening the reputation of this government."

Patty MacVeigh, a Patient Cop, Worked Hard To Solve 'Hugger Mugger in Automat' Mystery

By BILLY ROSE

As a burglar, I've done a considerable amount of hanging around police stations lately, and I've made a highly edifying discovery—the average New York detective is plenty smart and, considering how few of them there are, gets plenty of results. To give you an idea of what the ordinary cop can do once he gets going, let me tell you the classic story of Detective Patty MacVeigh and how he solved the case usually referred to as "Hugger-Mugger in the Automat."

One morning in August, 1933, two people died suddenly and within a few minutes of each other in the nickel-in-the-slot restaurant at Broadway and 104th street. One, a drowsy old dame named Lillian Rosenfeld, keeled over in the restaurant's mezzanine, and the other, a middle-aged garageman named Harry Jellinek, was found outside the little boys' room in the basement. The coroner certified that both deaths were caused by a powerful dose of cyanide of potassium.

Billy Rose

Was it a case of double murder? Was it double suicide? Or was it murder and suicide?

Detective Patty MacVeigh was handed this sizzling spud, and went about cooling it off not like a Sherlock Holmes but like an ordinary policeman. He started by questioning everyone in the neighborhoods where the victims had lived, inch-by-inch the tenement flats they had called their homes; jig-sawed together a lot of biographical bits and pieces, and came up with a solution so simple that no one connected with the case could imagine why it hadn't been thought of right away.

Jellinek's past was reconstructed easily enough. Starting as a helper in a garage, he had managed to save enough to buy his own business, and his garage had prospered until the depression hit it. When things got tough, he borrowed $150 from a bank, and when he couldn't meet the note on July 1, he was threatened with foreclosure.

Figuring he had nothing to lose, he purchased $3 worth of powdered cyanide and then, with his last nickel, bought himself a poppyseed roll at the Automat. He dug a hole in it, poured the powder in, bit off as much as he could chew and headed for the men's room. At the foot of the stairs he collapsed and died.

So far, so clear. Next, MacVeigh went to work on Lillian Rosenfeld. She had been a harmless old bat who scavenged around junk heaps, and for 28 years had lived in a $7-a-month basement room which was filled with everything from old piano rolls to a rusty weather vane.

From employees of the Automat, the detective learned that on several occasions the old dame had parked herself in the mezzanine where she could watch the tables on the main floor, and when someone left without finishing a meal, she would hurry down and eat the remains or scoop them into a paper bag.

That finished the case. Obviously the scavenger had seen Jellinek leave part of his roll and had popped the half-eaten bun into her mouth.

MacVeigh's investigation uncovered an additional irony. While sitting through the hodge-podge of Lillian's room, he found six bankbooks which showed she had $45,000 stashed in various banks in Manhattan and New Jersey. The annual interest on her nest egg was $1,200, or eight times the amount Jellinek needed to save his garage and life.

This is Your Paper 'Want Ad' Market Place

By William R. Nelson

PEOPLE who have visited market places in foreign lands find them picturesque, quaint and colorful. If they had studied them carefully they would have found them also most inefficient. To sell things there it is necessary to transport them to the market place, display them, wait for customers, and take home what remains unsold. Often considerably deteriorated in value. Perhaps one of the very real contributors to our high American standard of living is the greater efficiency of our less picturesque market places, the classified or want ad columns of our papers.

Classified advertising brings seller and buyer together without the necessity of meeting at a market place. And goods that change hands need be moved only once, need not be exposed to deteriorating forces. People wishing to buy things not offered in want ad columns can generally find it by inserting a "Wanted" announcement.

Classified or want ad advertising gets its name, of course, from the way such information is grouped under headings. Included in such columns is considerable of life's everyday paths and drama, its failures and successes, its comedy and its irony. Even such items as "Eggs For Sale" may herald an up or down in someone's life. Certainly there is a story behind "Exchange, set of golf clubs for baby buggy".

What ever one's problem, when using a classified ad to solve it, certain matters of technique may well be borne in mind. Number one is timeliness. Ice skates do not sell well in summer. Number two is convenience. Make it easy to respond to your ad. And number three is adequate description. The more you tell, the more you sell is an excellent bit of advice.

If tempted to keep the cost low by being too brief, remember that your reader knows only what the advertisement says, so telling a complete story is one way to assure success. Remember also how much time you are saving, by not having to go to a market place, and be willing to spend some of that saving on additional words in your classified advertisement.

American Bride Less 'Costly' Than Primitive

WASHINGTON, D. C.—America's lovely women may set up a howl at this, but it's a fact that American brides come cheap—original cost, that is—compared to their less-civilized sisters of the grass skirt sets in primitive lands. And no less a source than the National Geographic Society is the authority for that statement.

The society points out that the American lover who has $2 or so in his jeans can purchase a marriage license and hustle his gal to the altar. There, after the usual pledges, he can slip the parson whatever he can spare and be away on his honeymoon.

But it isn't that simple among primitive tribes. Take New Guinea. There the native swains find a price tag of $600 on their lady loves. True, they can go into the woods and pluck a few wild flowers and maybe spear a wild boar for the wedding feast, but there still remains the original cash outlay.

May Cost $250
In Nigeria, the high cost of brides is causing a fine old to-do. Among the Ibo-speaking people of that country, a shapely, pretty gal may win for her pappy as much as $250, while the parents of a homely girl with skinny pipes and buck teeth would have to be satisfied with three mangy goats.

Around the world where bride-buying is an accepted custom, a girl must hide her head in shame unless she earns something for papa.

Among the Kaffirs, members of the Bantu race of South Africa, a girl who is not bought with cattle is dubbed an "old cat" by her campfire sisters. An "old cat" down there adds up to one word—"worthless."

With the Kuki-Lushai people of Assam, India, a young man is expected to give a few gourds of fire-water to his sweetheart's parents when he calls to ask her to be his own.

Groom Goes to Work
If the folks accept him, he moves in on the girl's father and goes right to work. He becomes a servant in the household for three years. Then, if he has behaved, he is free to wed. But another two years of servitude is required before he can go into the woods and cut down the material for his own thatch hut.

In Alaska, the situation is different. A hopeful suitor of the Kenai doesn't bother to ask for parental consent. He slips silently into the old man's igloo and begins to cook, clean and take care of steaming up water for the baths. If he does a good job, he is allowed to work on for a year, then he can marry the girl and start igloo inhabiting on his own.

All of which makes America a wonderful country. We fellows expect, by tradition, to have the papa-in-law foot all of the bills for the wedding, give us a set of sterling and maybe a new house for a wedding present.

Alienation of Affections Wrong, Even in Dog Case

NEWPORT NEWS, VA.—Alienation of affections, even when it's only puppy love, won't be tolerated here, the court said.

That was the ruling of Police Judge John Massey when he found himself confronted with a new version of the old "eternal triangle." The defendant, Lee Miller, was charged with cursing and abusing. His accuser was Thessalonia Smith. Miller denied any back room language. Instead, he charged that Smith had petted and fed his dog so much that he just didn't like it and told Smith so.

The judge observed: "It looks like the main charge should be alienation of affections of a dog, and I've never heard of it before."

Then he ordered: Miller to pay a $10 fine for incorrect language. Smith to ignore Miller's pup's advances and, above all, to stop feeding it.

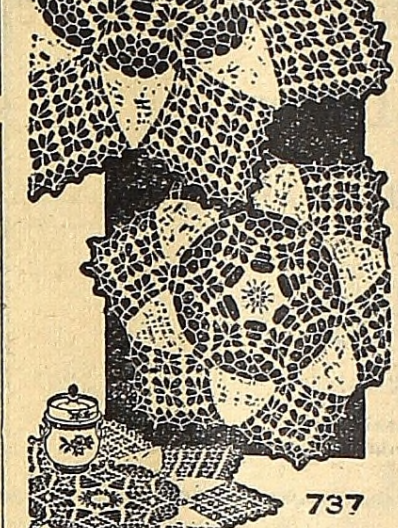

Heroism Held Inherent In Entire Human Race

PITTSBURGH.—According to a declaration by a hero-recognizing agency, which preferred to remain anonymous, heroism is an "inherent trait in the human race." It was contended that "heroism is prompted by what happens on the spur of the moment and what the man has in him."

But the basic characteristic of human nature itself is to try to help. Therefore a great percentage of people would respond to the situation and try to be helpful. It's an inherent quality of a human being. "Station in life doesn't have much bearing on heroes. They come from all walks of life, the poor, rich, and middle class. We have no heroes under the age of 8—a child doesn't distinguish between danger and nondanger. After that heroes can be any age. Heroism frequently is almost a reflex action."

OLIVE DEERING'S stage career began when she was twelve, in a Broadway success; her screen career began with the important role of "Miriam," in "Samson and Delilah." C. B. DeMille had not been able to find the right actress for that part; the day before shooting began he found Olive. She made a second picture, "Caged," for Warner's, then she and her husband, Leo Penn, headed east in their car. He was one of the leading men in "Not Wanted." Had a fine trip all the way. They are a delightful young couple, very much in love. And with their good looks, talent and experience, they should go far in pictures.

Mrs. Gertrude Berg, author and star of the CBS "The Goldbergs," has received an offer from George Jessel for a featured role in a forthcoming film, the fifth picture contract offered in recent months. She's too busy to accept.

This does seem to be going a bit too far. By unanimous consent of its city council and approval of its mayor, Hot Springs, New Mexico, has changed its name to Truth or Consequences, in honor of Ralph Edwards' NBC show!

American producers have been trying to sign British Kathleen Ryan ever since she appeared in "Odd Man Out." Producer Robert Stillman has done it—one picture a year for seven years. Her first will be United Artists' "The Sound of Fury." Knowing he was associated with Stanley Kramer in making "Champion" and "Home of the Brave," she accepted the role without reading the script.

Elizabeth Taylor won all hearts one recent afternoon in New York. She was having several coats and suits fitted, and was practically out on her feet from fatigue, but she willingly posed for photographers. She was going out with her fiancé that evening, was flying to Texas the next day, and her mother thought she ought to stay home that night and rest. Elizabeth went out!

Howard Lesieur, director of advertising and publicity for United Artists, has come up with something new. He has engaged two retired detectives, formerly of New York's police department and homicide squad, to visit key cities and promote "D. O. A." ("Dead on Arrival,") story of a man who "reports his own murder." Edmund O'Brien stars, Pamela Britton and Luther Adler co-star.

George Stern, playing "Tippy" in Warner Bros. "Barricade," has a lot of stern critics lying in wait for him. In his off-screen moments he taught English and dramatics at Lafayette Junior high school in Los Angeles.

NO SALE

By Richard H. Wilkinson

"WE could sell Dusty," Sylvia said. Joe stared at her. "You don't mean that!"

Dusty thumped his tail on the floor and pricked his ears. There was, he hoped, a possibility of being taken for a walk up the slope behind the house where rabbits frequently ran and offered no end of excitement.

Sylvia laughed nervously. "Of course I don't. I was only joking. We wouldn't sell Dusty for a million dollars." She reached down and twisted one of Dusty's flopping ears around her forefinger. Dusty lolled his tongue and sighed in contentment. Next to chasing rabbits, there was nothing he liked better than having his ears twisted, unless it was hunting a glove or an old shoe or pocketbook that either Joe or Sylvia had hidden.

Joe lay awake that night and thought about what Sylvia had said. He felt guilty and ashamed, but when you haven't enough to eat and you own some property that would bring an easy thousand dollars on the open market, you can't help thinking about it.

Sylvia's aunt had given them Dusty the week before they left for Hollywood. He was seven weeks old, a pure bred Springer Spaniel, black as coal and intelligent as two ordinary human beings. The next morning Joe decided to go down onto the boulevard. Sometimes on the boulevard he met someone he knew and would get talking and perhaps get a line on something. He put Dusty on his leash and started out.

Joe turned down Vine street. Just below Selma, some children

"How much?" said Joe, not looking at him. "Nine hundred."

Joe thought of Sylvia. She was probably hungry. She'd be hungrier tonight. The only alternative was city relief. A man has his pride. He remembered the hug Sylvia had given Dusty before they left. He thought of the way Dusty would nip at their toes when they were getting dressed in the morning. He shook his head. "No!" he said. "No! Not for twice that amount."

The rotund man laughed. "Then how about hiring him? You, too, of course. We're making a picture that requires a cute dog who will go find things that have been hidden." Joe threw up his head. "What?"

"Think it over," said the rotund man. "Pay would be $25 a day. Here's my card." He smiled. "Hope I didn't insult you with that nine hundred offer. Your dog's worth two thousand, if a cent. Never saw a pure black Springer with those lines. Be sure to look me up. If $25 doesn't suit you, we can probably talk terms."

Joe stood on the curb and watched the black limousine recede. He glanced at the card, then down at Dusty. Dusty was watching him expectantly. He wanted to walk some more. Joe slipped the card into his pocket and started up Vine street at a pace that rather surprised Dusty.

were playing on a lawn. One of them was crying. Joe stopped to see what the trouble was. A little girl had lost her rag doll. It was somewhere about, but she couldn't find it. Dusty licked the little girl's hand. She cooed happily and patted his head. The other children crowded about. Joe unsnapped Dusty's leash, held the little girl's skirt to his nose and said: "Go find!"

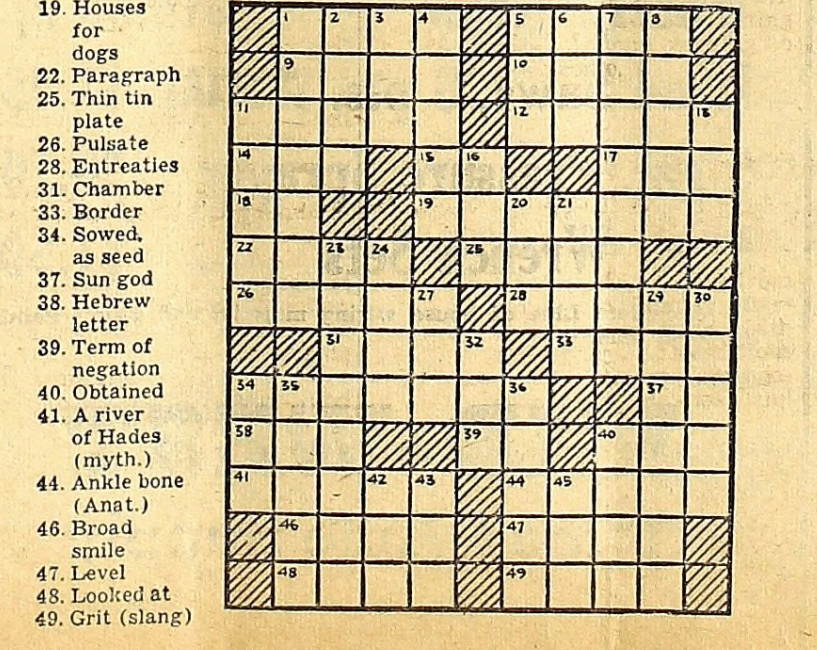

Dusty let out a yip and went bounding away. Two minutes later he came back, holding in his mouth the rag doll. The little girl clapped her hands. "Smart dog," said a voice.

Joe turned. A car had stopped at the curb. A small round man with a friendly face had emerged onto the sidewalk. Joe nodded. "Pure bred Springer. They're all smart." "Are they?" said the little man. His eyes twinkled. "Like to sell him?" Joe said nothing. He felt a queer prickling at the base of his skull. "Like to sell him?" said the man again.

New Low-Cost Quonset Designed for Utility

A new low-cost utility building, the Quonset 24 Special, is being added to this line of steel, arch-rib structures. It features a "streamlined" design using high-tensile alloy steel members by which new economies are achieved in small-building construction. These savings, according to the manufacturer, result from minimizing the material, parts and labor required without sacrifice in size, strength or durability. The 24-ft. wide building's length may be any number of 12-ft. units.

GREEN GRASS OF WYOMING

By Mary O'Hara

Bob McLaughlin, becomes worried about his wife's strange mental condition and attitude toward things in general, invites his friend and physician, Dr. Rodney Scott into a fishing trip. As the men fish, Bob details the things about which he is apprehensive and confesses that once he and his wife, Nell, were on the verge of separation. By judicious questioning, Dr. Scott elicits the information that Nell has never been away from the ranch, with the questioning indicating that what she needs is a long rest, although the doctor makes no diagnosis. The ranch is electrified by the news that Buck Daly has located Thunderhead.

CHAPTER XIV

"Doggie! Doggie!" exclaimed Penny, and patted the top of his head with a little fist.

Cricket's roars were getting closer. He was being brought to the barn with the cows for evening milking and feeding.

A wave of fear went over Nell. It was not the bull. It was the meaningless fear she had had this last year, always accompanied by a feeling of helplessness to avert whatever fate was impending. It was as if suddenly she were going to be run over . . . a locomotive was bearing down upon her . . . or a crowd of men with uplifted axes were hurling themselves upon her . . . or she was drowning . . . or someone had her by the throat . . . or she was going over a cliff in an automobile.

She put her hand to her throat. There was that terrible feeling of constriction. Could there be the slightest reason for this or was it pure hysteria? Was it true, as she thought, that she really had not long to live? How—this little talk he asked for—was it farewell? Would she ever see him again? Two years—

The conviction came to her that she would not live that long. She was not getting better, she was getting worse.

She stood up and walked nervously down toward the cow barn. She saw the cows coming around the shoulder of the hill in the calf pasture. Tim was driving them. She noticed the pitchfork in his hand.

She was standing there, watching the bull, when Rob and Rodney Scott returned from the window. Milking was over and the cows were in the corral. The gate stood open to the calf pasture. A few of them were moving out. Cricket was quiet.

"I want Rob to sell that bull or have him killed, Rodney," said Nell as they approached her. "Don't you think he should?"

"I should say not!" exclaimed Rob. "We raised him from a calf, and now he's proved. His first calves are milking and giving higher butterfat than any of our other cows. Sell him? Don't be silly."

"I really mean it," said Nell. "Rodney, you know the awful things that happen. You're always reading in the paper about thoroughbred dairy bulls going their owners. You hear the tales on every farm. If a bull turns bad-tempered, as Cricket has, sell him! And sell him the day before something happens—not the day after!" And suddenly her voice was shaking.

Thunderhead Located, Buck's Wire Announces

"Listen, honey, Rodney and I've been talking about you. You're a nervous woman. That's why you worry about the bull and everything. We want you to go to the hospital and take a long rest."

Nell looked at him as if he were crazy. Then at Rodney.

Rodney seemed embarrassed, but presently he nodded and said, "How would you like that, Nell?"

"I wouldn't like it at all," said Nell with a short laugh. "I think it's the silliest thing I ever heard of. Go on up to the back door and get the fish smell off yourselves, then come to the terrace and I'll have something cool for you to drink."

Howard came round the corner of the house. He had been swimming. His hair was wet, his towel was over his arm. At that moment the telephone rang. Howard said, "I'll answer it!" and ran indoors.

Presently he came out holding a sheet of paper upon which he had written down the message.

"It's from Buck, Dad! A telegram from Westgate, Colorado! They telephoned it from the station! He's found the horses!"

Rob set Penny on the terrace and held out his hand. "Let's see," and took the paper Howard held out. Have located Thunderhead and seventeen head of horses west of here. Will wait here till you come, Buck.

After dinner they got the maps out and studied them. Westgate was on the North Platte near the headwaters.

Rob glanced at Ken. "Want to come, Ken?"

Ken was silent. His face paled. During the five days of the shearing he and Carey had not really got together, whereas Carey and Howard had. If she had been angry at Howard for whatever it was he had done, in the intimacy of being amongst the sheep, watching the work of the shearers and helping Jeremy move the sheep from one pen into the other, she had forgiven him and forgotten it. They were thicker than ever. They seemed to have something new to laugh about. And Ken was completely in the dark. If he went along in the station wagon it was certain Howard would have the inside track with Carey and he would be the gooseberry. A whole long day of that!

He said he didn't want to go alone.

"Suit yourself," said Rob, and gathered up the maps.

It had been a hectic morning. Pearl had not appeared to make the breakfast. When Nell went looking for her she found her still in bed, groaning with the misery of a hangover. There had been a party the day before, following Penny's baptism and everyone on the ranch had partaken of champagne. But Pearl had also had a visitor, and the visitor had brought a bottle, and Pearl had made an occasion of it. Nell made the breakfast next morning.

Then the station wagon had left with Rob and Howard and Carey.

Nell watched Cricket eating his oats.

Ken had disappeared somewhere on horseback in a very bad temper. Kim and Chaps had gone with him. The house was in a mess. Nell had dusted and tidied and made beds all morning, then given Penny her dinner and lain down beside her for a rest. When they awoke there was still no sound from Pearl's part of the house.

Nell took her sewing bag and sought out her favorite spot and settled herself here to spend the remainder of the afternoon. She was glad to be out of the house. She hoped Pearl would have slept it off soon.

Nell felt quiet and at peace. For one thing, she was alone on the ranch, or practically alone. And another thing, Penny's baptism had come off at last. Two of Nell's women friends and Howard and Ken had been the godparents.

"What is the name of this child?" "Penelope Margaret."

"Dost thou in the name of this child, renounce the devil and all his works . . . wilt thou keep God's holy will and commandments and walk in the same all the days of thy life?"

"I will, by God's help."

Howard had taken it in his stride, but not Ken. He took his responsibilities seriously. Renouncing the devil and all his works for that little bundle of TNT—a big order! Ken had had a very funny look of despairing disapproval on his face when Penny had begun to be naughty.

Nell looked up. Penny was running along the barbed-wire fence. In the sky overhead some chicken hawks were tilting and circling. One of them gave a series of raucous cries. The bull had stopped roaring. There was no wind, the day was extraordinarily quiet. Pilgrim lay in the shadow, his eyes on Nell.

Cricket, the Bull, Menaces Baby Penny

Nell took another piece of thread and threaded her needle. She took up the fine nainsook, found her place in the scalloped edge and began weaving of her needle.

She looked up to see what Penny was doing and could not find her.

Nell stood up swiftly, her sewing dropping to the ground. She looked at the creek running so close to her, but it was shallow—if Penny had fallen in she would have made an outcry.

Then she saw her. The baby was seated in the midst of a clump of the flame-colored Indian paintbrush, pulling at the stalks, gathering them in her hand. These flowers were at the base of a towering clump of rocks in the pasture beyond the barbed-wire fence—how had the child got there? Through the fence? She went everywhere.

Nell went and leaned on one of the fence posts. "What's baby doing?" she called.

Penny said, "One, two, fee, fi, ten, ate, two, fee—"

Suddenly the baby stopped counting. She pointed and said, "Doggie, doggie—!" She gurgled with laughter. There was a little chipmunk darting across the rock above her. It came to a stop and sat up, nibbling its fingers.

"Not a doggie, darling," said Nell, "that's a chipmunk."

Then the corner of her eye caught a movement—something big and dark coming silently down the meadow.

Cricket. His eyes were on the white dress of the baby and the patch of scarlet flowers.

Nell dropped to the ground and rolled under the wire. Her skirt caught in the bars. She attempted to force herself through, so embedding the bars more firmly in the strong cloth. With a muffled scream she exerted all her strength and jerked and tore at it.

She saw Cricket reach the baby, lower his head and stretch his nose out, sniffing at her. Penny drew back a little at the sight and smell of the great dark head so close to her, and then said, questioningly, "Doggie?" She reached out a tiny hand.

Cricket's right hoof went back and under, gouging up the ground in a cloud of dust. A deep rumble came from within him, and at this terrifying sound, Penny burst into wild crying and tried to scramble to her feet. The bull turned his head and advanced it slightly, presenting the horn.

Nell flung herself upon him, bringing her clenched fist down across his nose. She snatched up the baby and leaped for the rocks. She felt the blow of Cricket's charge against her thigh and stumbled. She clawed at the rock with her right hand, clutching Penny to her with her left. She clambered up the first, the lowest of the rocks.

To get a grip on the stone with one hand, to pull up her skirts so that her bare knees could fasten upon it too—it was a frenzied effort that left her fingers and knees bleeding.

Pilgrim was barking and trying to deflect the attention of the bull. But a bull cannot easily change his target. With deep roars he swung his head low, this way and that, pushing Pilgrim aside as if he were a bothersome fly, but kept his eye on Nell. He forced himself through the smaller rocks at the foot of the great one, reaching a horn for Nell's body.

Nell screamed. She was slipping, she could not maintain her hold. Then her fingers caught in a crack and she clung there. Penny was striking out with legs and arms, trying to squirm out of her mother's clutch. Just above on the rock was a place where a piece seemed to have been sliced off, leaving a tilted shelf. Nell clawed herself up until she reached this shelf. It was not high enough to be safe, but she could climb no farther.

Suddenly Cricket, angered by Pilgrim's persistence, turned from the rock and galloped after the dog. Pilgrim fled, stopped, turned, the bull shot past him and ground to a stop. As Cricket swung himself around, Pilgrim catapulted himself at the bull's head and seized him by the nose.

Dog Makes Heroic Effort to Save Baby

In agony as the sharp teeth went into the tender flesh, the bull roared and swung his head in a great arc. Pilgrim was swung too, but his teeth held, and when, at last he went flying through the air, there was a small piece of bull flesh between his fangs, and blood streamed from Cricket's nose.

Pilgrim hit the earth with a thud and lay still. Cricket came after him.

Nell's head was bowed over the screaming child clasped to her breast. She was drenched with sweat. Her heart pounded so that it shook her whole body. She watched with despair. If Pilgrim was knocked out—

The bull was upon him. With amazement she saw the dog crawl out from behind Cricket's forelegs and trot away to the fence before Cricket could be after him again. The bull had missed his aim and gone right over the dog.

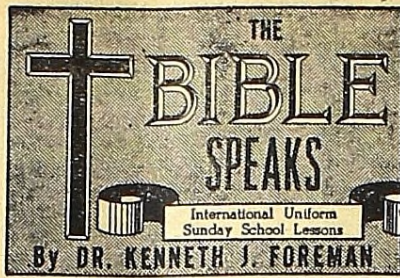

Cricket came for the rock again. Frantic from the pain in his wounded nose, he raged around the base of it, forcing himself close, reaching up with his horns.

Nell's head wavered. There was a film before her eyes. She was afraid she was going to faint or to be so dizzy that she would fall off. "Dad-dee's-ba-ba" shrieked Penny with an accompaniment of wild howls, "Dad-dee's-ba-ba!"

She looked wildly around. She could see the corner of the ranch house in the distance. Was she there? No one to drive the bull away and get her down from here?

Within herself she was screaming for Rob, but Rob was far away—besides he had refused to get rid of the bull . . . and now this . . . it was all his fault—rage at her husband mingled with her terror.

Nation Going Soft

Lesson for April 23, 1950

AFTER the fraternity dance one of the "brothers" shot another, for no good reason. Well, there was a reason of a sort. The killer was drunk, on liquor the fraternity had bought and served him. His excuse, when arrested, was that when he was "tight" he was trigger-happy . . . A prominent motion picture star divorces her husband for cruelty. It comes out at the trial that he was mean anyhow, and that all his meanness got worse when he was drunk. One wonders: Did she know him very well before she married him?

Every day the papers carry reports of cars that "went out of control" with serious or fatal results. Careful reading of the story too often brings out the fact that the boys had been visiting a night-spot or two before the crash. Survivors will tell the police they couldn't have been drunk, they had only had a few beers. Well, you don't have to be drunk to let a car get out from your control. This writer personally has observed a driver who had had exactly one beer run a car right off the pavement in broad sunlight.

Gets Monotonous, Doesn't It?

A SEX CRIME is committed by a middle-aged man who sheds tears over it afterward and can hardly remember anything about it. "I never would have done it if I had been sober," he says . . . A girl is found murdered in a men's rooming-house, a nice girl too.

Nobody was drunk—they had only been taking a few drinks . . . A 27-year-old woman was shot and killed during an argument with her sister-in-law. The shooting, it was claimed, was accidental. They had been having some friendly beers in a near-by tavern "for a couple of hours" before the shooting.

After they got home, there was an argument. One woman got her husband's revolver out to scare the other woman, and the first thing she knew, she was being arrested for murder. Her husband told the police that when sober his wife was "deadly scared" of guns.

(Beer, the brewers' ads tell us, is the friendly drink, it is the drink of moderation; "Beer Belongs." It does, indeed, but where? Possibly that unfortunate killer-woman had believed what the ads told her.) . . .

The Truth About Liquor

WELL . . . this could be strung out to the length of several columns, without half trying. The above items are not from some chamber of horrors conducted by the W.C.T.U., not from a sermon by some Anti-Saloon league preacher, but gathered from newspaper items from a few days' papers in a city which certainly is not prejudiced against liquor.

The truth about liquor can never be learned from the advertising pages, it can be better learned from the news columns. Better yet, if you want to know the truth about it, ask the lawyers, doctors and ministers you know. Ask the lawyers if their business would be brisker or slower if liquor were not in existence.

Ask the doctors whether steady drinkers have stronger or weaker resistance to disease. Ask the ministers if they know of any troubles in their congregations due to liquor. (And if even church people have troubles with it, what about people with no religion?) . . .

Drink and Doom

IT IS NOT TRUE that if liquor were totally abolished from the earth, all the troubles of mankind would vanish. Man has too much meanness in him. A sober scoundrel is one of the worst. But it is true that liquor lends itself all too easily to all sorts of troubles, all sorts of sins. When Amos thunders against the evils of his time, drunkenness is one of the sins prominent on his list.

Remember that in Amos' time there was no whisky, no brandy, no distilled liquors, only "mild" stuff like wine. Every denunciation of drink in the Bible is directed against what would now be called light wine and beers.

One thing is as certain now as it was in Amos' time: A nation that insists on having its liquor is not the nation God will insist on saving when its day of doom arrives.

MIRROR Of Your MIND

Disapproval Won't 'Reform' Hubby

By Lawrence Gould

Can a wife "reform" her husband?

Answer: As a rule, not if she goes about it on the basis of a conscious or unconscious feeling that she's morally superior to him. For while superficially, some men want to feel that way about their wives, their self-esteem will finally rebel against the situation and may drive them to find consolation with a less demanding woman. The only sure way to "reform" anybody is to help him realize that he can get more satisfaction out of your way of life than out of the one you disapprove of. Making him ashamed won't do this.

lack of interest in people, even their parents, are disturbed by changed surroundings, and either do not talk or develop their own private language. The illness is not hereditary or due to physical defect, but seems caused by wholly unaffectionate parents.

Do more old men than old women commit suicide?

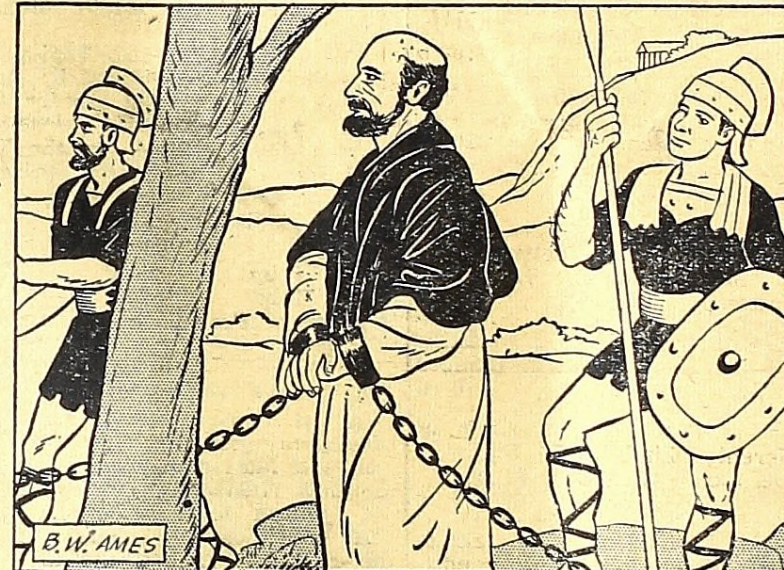

Answer: Yes, reports Dr. A. B. Stokes in the Canadian Medical Association Journal. While many characteristics of extreme age are common to both sexes, the suicide rate is "extraordinarily higher" among men than among women. One reason for this may well be that a woman usually gives up active life so gradually that the shock of having "nothing to do" is comparatively gentle. The more suddenly one is deprived of the sense of being useful, the stronger the feeling of frustration, and the rage this generates may lead to self-murder.

Can a baby be "psychotic" (insane)?

Answer: Yes, though rarely. Dr. Leo Kanner, noted Johns Hopkins child psychiatrist, reports having studied more than fifty cases of a form of early schizophrenia which he named "infantile autism," and which "is apparent as early as the second half-year of life." Victims show a total

Poliomyelitis Epidemics Are Costly

By Dr. James W. Barton

ALTHOUGH THE EPIDEMICS of poliomyelitis (infantile paralysis) do not occur usually till toward the end of August and during the months of September and October, parents of small children dread the coming of these months as much as do residents of hurricane districts.

When we think of the hundreds of thousands of dollars given by sympathetic men and women to the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis, we may wonder where and how all this money is spent. Yet epidemics of polio are not decreasing, though fortunately recent ones have not been so damaging as previous years.

When we see these many thousands of dollars so carefully and yet so generously distributed to the various reliable research organizations throughout the country, we fail to understand why so much money is spent every year with no apparent effect upon this disabling disease.

Only physicians and medical research workers can really know something of the tremendous amount of work on polio that is being carried on everywhere throughout the country. This knowledge is made known to them by means of Poliomyelitis Current Literature, a periodic annotated list prepared by the library of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis at the American Medical association, Chicago.

Generally sneaking, "the crippling and disabling effects of poliomyelitis that occur in about 20 per cent of the cases in an epidemic constitute a 'cumulative' effect upon a community." These cases require long periods of orthopedic care (straightening of limbs by exercise and surgery) to enable the child to walk and play again. This takes years.

When you see a youngster two or three years of age being wheeled about, and then a few years later see this child playing and running about like other children, the expense does seem to be worth while.

HEALTH NOTES

While colitis may be caused by irritating food, nervousness causes an irritation of the colon.

In a reducing diet, fat foods are cut by one-half while proteins are cut 25 per cent, or not at all.

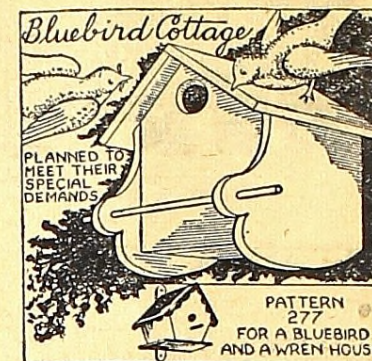

Allergy was almost unknown as a definite condition or disease of the body until recent years.

Relief in some cases of migraine headache may be obtained from ergotamine tartrate (gynergen)

The overweight should remember that his fat tissue is loaded with water and that water is weight.

Rheumatism is considered the oldest disease known to man.

MANY NEVER SUSPECT CAUSE OF BACKACHES

As we get older, stress and strain, over-exertion, excessive smoking or exposure to cold sometimes slows down kidney function. This may lead many folks to complain of nagging backache, loss of pep and energy, headaches and dizziness. Getting up nights or frequent passages may result from minor bladder irritations due to cold, dampness or dietary indiscretions.

If your discomforts are due to these causes, don't wait, try Doan's Pills, a mild diuretic. Used successfully by millions for over 50 years. While these symptoms may often otherwise occur, it's amazing how many times Doan's give happy relief—help the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters flush out waste. Get Doan's Pills today!

Prisoner Magazine Raps 'Crime School' Programs on Radio

WETHERSFIELD, CONN.—Since the following came, it might be said, from an authoritative "voice of experience," it will might be heeded by parents, officials and everyone concerned: "I object! I vehemently object! I get glassy-eyed with anger and my trigger finger jerks spasmodically every time I think how the radio crime-presentation industry operates, its debasing crime schools.

The writer said he had listened to 50 radio "crime" programs in two weeks, one of which "gave details on how to snatch 75 G's worth of diamonds," while another "showed how to case a bank for a 50-G stick-up."

Also included, he said, were programs which "told how to blackmail recently widowed women out of 5 and 10 G's apiece," and gave "details on a 40-grand kidnaping plot, with a little murder and extortion thrown in."

Calling radio crime presentation "the most blatantly debasing and most crime-inducing factor with which the American listening public has to contend," the writer-inmate turns to television and asks: "When they get television so good that half-congealed blood drips onto the nursery floor, will you still allow it? Will you still think it is thrilling?"

The foregoing was from the Monthly Record, published by inmates of the Connecticut state prison and circulated "outside" and was contained in an article entitled "15,000 Murders a Month," which was written by an inmate of the prison.

Dad Stands Incredulous When Held up by Own Son

CLEVELAND, OHIO.—Arthur Dunlap couldn't believe it really was happening when his son thrust a revolver in his face and demanded his money.

Incredulous, he asked: "you'd stick up your own father?" The son, Arthur, Jr., 20, stilled any further doubts about it when he shouted an order: "Drop your billfold!"

Dunlap, a 62-year-old barber, took the wallet which contained $55 from his pocket, dropped it to the floor.

His wife, Lottie, 50, started up from her chair, "Don't fool us with that gun, son," she said, hoping it was a joke.

But her son turned the gun on her and she sank back. He stooped, picked up the billfold and with his companion, a stranger to the parents, walked out of the house and his parents' hearts.

Dunlap went to a phone and called police. "My son robbed me," he said, simply. "I didn't think he had bad in him."

Ghost of Highworth Rd. Returns After Exorcism

BRISTOL, ENGLAND.—"Mrs. It" the ghost of 13 Highworth rd., is back again — with a playmate.

Only recently the haunt was exorcised by a Church of England vicar in a religious rite to drive away spirits taken from early Christian records.

The peace of No. 13 was short-lived. Mr. and Mrs. William Barber, who lived in the house, say the ghost now does a nightly routine up and down the stairs with an unidentified partner. Sometimes it sounds like they're dancing, sometimes like wrestling.

The Barber theory is that the original ghost—which they named "Mrs. It"—is that of a woman who died in the house 18 years ago. "Mrs. It" first began prowling around the place in December.

The vicar—the Rev. Francis Maddock, went through a rite of exorcism after a month of nightly uproar at No. 13.

One night the Babers called in a spiritualist. All they found out is that "Mrs. It" (1) speaks a foreign language—possibly Russian—and (2) is an atrocious speller.

A ouija board was used to see if she had any message. What came out was "EEHFHMEV."

Try Dancing if Putting Child to Sleep Difficult

HOLLYWOOD, CALIF.—Gene Nelson, movie dancer, started dancing bedtime stories for his baby a year ago. He didn't know what he was getting into.

"Now I have to dance wake-up stories for him," Nelson said, "and also feeding stories, bath time stories and dressing stories. Not to mention putting him to bed with a dance, too."

This is a highly specialized type of child training and Nelson can't recommend it to every parent. But it's very successful for him.

"Other parents envy me," he said, "When I tell them I can get the little guy to sleep just by running through a rehearsal of the dance I have to do the next day."

It gradually took more and more of papa's pas de deux, however, to get baby to sleep. Then he started working in "Rosie O'Grady" and dancing all day.

"I was a pretty tired father by supper time," he said, "I began to wish I'd stuck to something conventional, like singing lullabies."

Announces Hadacol Rationing

SENATOR DUDLEY J. LeBLANC

The continued increasing demand for HADACOL, one of the truly great medical discoveries given to the world by Senator Dudley J. LeBlanc, has made it necessary to decrease the ration allowance on HADACOL from six to two bottles.

"We placed the limit at two bottles to a customer only after trying every other alternative," said Senator LeBlanc in Lafayette, La. "The demand for HADACOL has increased 1000 per cent in the past year."

"When I created HADACOL I read every available authoritative medical and drug book in order to use the very finest ingredients regardless of cost. I read on page 234, U. S. Dispensary, 23rd edition, that 'Theoretically Calcium Glycophosphate should for many purposes be superior to most other calcium salts because it represents both calcium and phosphoric acid in a soluble combination.'"

"Little did I realize when I made Calcium Glycophosphate a part of the now famous HADACOL formula that in time the demand for this great medical discovery—HADACOL—would be so great that we would use up the entire available supply in the United States of this product."

Yes, in HADACOL, Senator LeBlanc envisioned the medicine that would bring blessings to folks of all ages. Perhaps others could have placed the same ingredients in a medicine, but it remained for him to develop a formula which contains the most expensive ingredients of their kind. For instance, he uses Vitamin B-6 which costs at the factory $550 a kilogram, which is less than half a gallon.

At the present time it is difficult to predict how long the shortage of HADACOL will continue. It is still being merchandised in less than a third of the nation and is being denied to all foreign countries because of the production bottlenecks.

Senator LeBlanc was the first candidate for Governor in Louisiana to advocate the Old Age Pension. In fact, it is said by some that he was the first public official to talk about specific Old Age Assistance in the United States.

His heart has always beaten in sympathy with the cause of the down-trodden, and with that very thought in mind he developed a medical formula known as HADACOL that is now sweeping the Southland. People are singing the praises of HADACOL everywhere it is sold.

Senator LeBlanc has served his people in public life faithfully and well. In private life he brings to you a service which is appreciated by suffering humanity—HADACOL.

And, as he has so often said to his enemies and to those who opposed his Old Age Pension: "Let me quote you an ancient mandate of God Himself:

"Honor thy father and thy mother that thy days may be long upon the land which the Lord thy God giveth thee."

So it is that there is a man who has worked untiringly for the cause of the common man, the infirm and the sickly, and by his past activities in behalf of these people you have the assurance that what he has produced in HADACOL he believes to be the best for you that money can buy.

So, if you have been sickly for a long time and you can't find the cause, then you owe it to yourself to try HADACOL. Why not be wise? Don't be satisfied with temporary relief. Get after the cause of your trouble. And, as so often, it's because you need this amazing health-building, nerve and tissue repairing HADACOL formula. Millions of people have benefited by it. So don't you think that you owe it to yourself to give this great medicine a chance to help you? Remember the name HADACOL! Remember the man who discovered this remedy! Remember his activities in behalf of the poor, the humble and the needy! Don't delay. Start using HADACOL—you and your family—today!

We are asking our customers to have patience, and accept no substitute. Insist on the genuine HADACOL! Remember there is nothing that was ever made but what it could be made worse and sold for less, and that is what you call imitation.

Trial size only $1.25. But if you are so fortunate as to obtain the large family or hospital size, we urge you to save money—only $3.50. We are so firm in our belief that HADACOL will help you that we sell HADACOL on a money-back guarantee. If you don't feel perfectly satisfied after using HADACOL as directed, just return the empty carton and your money will be cheerfully refunded. Nothing could be fairer.

If your druggist does not have HADACOL, order direct from The LeBlanc Corporation, Lafayette, Louisiana. Send no money. Just your name and address on a penny post card. Pay postman. State whether you want the $3.50 hospital economy size or $1.25 trial size. Remember, money cheerfully refunded unless you are 100% satisfied.
