Dave Ellis and His Orchestra will furnish music for the Perch King's dance Saturday evening at the Community Building.

Newspapers and radio have been carrying pictures and stories of the spring fishing events in the Tawas area, and radio announcer and newsmen have been invited to attend the festival.

While smelt fishing has occupied most of the attention of many thousands of fishermen visiting this area during the past few days, perch fishing in the river and at the State Park Dock has been good. Indications are that there will be plenty of fish during the festival.

Chief Blue Cloud of Oscoda will be here to help entertain the visitors.

Postoffices Announce Change of Policy

To reduce the deficit in the Post Office Department the Postmaster General recently issued a directive ordering a reduction of Post Office hours, a reduction in hours for clerk and carrier hire, and elimination of certain services.

Hours of clerk hire have been cut which means that some of the Services given to the Public must be eliminated. The service to be eliminated that will effect the Tawas area most is that of Directory Service on ordinary mail. We receive considerable mail every day for people in the other Tawas. Some are business firms and others are people that we know to live there, so it has been our practice to forward this mail. This takes time. Hereafter, this mail must be returned to the sender. It is the burden of the sender to properly address his mail. Our instructions are that all mail must have a definite address and if it cannot be delivered as addressed it must be returned to sender unless there is a bonifide change of address on file. We are not allowed to spend time

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS

Need Claimed to Keep GI's Abroad If Continent to be Fully Guarded; Berlin Stocks Up for Emergencies

EDITOR'S NOTE: When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of Western Newspaper Union's news analysts and not necessarily of this newspaper.

EUROPE:

Just in Case

The demands of the cold war are becoming steadily more vast and insistent. First and continuing is money—American dollars to stem the tide of communism and protect itself—so the theory goes—by protecting Europe.

NOW IT IS MEN Europe wants. American GI's to garrison the continent. A permanent garrison of American troops in western Europe—even after German occupation ends—is vital to the Atlantic pact defense, several European experts believe.

THE EXPERTS quoted argue that American troops would provide on-the-spot leadership for Europe's defense forces, and would serve as a reassurance to France if German troops eventually are too powerful in the western European defense.

At present, as the pact alliance rounds out its first year, its 12 member powers have about 22 divisions of varying strength and effectiveness among them.

The normal complement of a division is 15,000 men. That means a total of 330,000 potential fighting men ready to meet any attack upon the pact signatories. It also means that each pact signatory is putting less than two divisions into the overall plan to protect themselves.

Under such a setup it is conceivable that America might have to bolster the defensive line; but the setup poses anew the question: How sincere is Europe in efforts to rehabilitate and protect itself?

BERLIN:

Fear Crisis

In the event of a crisis such as that precipitated by the Russian blockade in 1948, Berlin was ready. The west has stocked the city's bins with enough food and coal to make a mockery of any new blockade.

In the 11 months since the Reds lifted the blockade of the city, a steady stream of train, truck and barge traffic has piled up what is felt to be adequate supplies to meet any emergency.

When Russia clamped down the blockade, in an effort to impose its own political convictions on Berlin, the city had only an average of six weeks supplies on hand. Now the basic staples are in about six months supply and in all probability will continue to increase as further stocks are added.

It was felt that the Russians, aware of this process, would be less foolhardy than to attempt another blockade effort, but even so, no one was taking any chances because of the unpredictability of Soviet action and of the old truism that "what has happened once, can happen again."

HIGH COURT:

Accused Must Talk

A ruling of the U.S. supreme court is likely to serve as a powerful stimulant for those accused of Communist sympathies and refuse to talk.

The court refused to grant a hearing to two Hollywood writers convicted of contempt of congress. The action let stand a decision that congressional committees may compel witnesses to say whether they are Communists. The vote was 6 to 2.

By its action, the high court refused to interfere with a lower court decision holding that congress may abridge either the freedom of speech or the freedom to remain silent "when legislating to avert what it believes to be a threat of substantive evil to national welfare."

The high court handed down the opinion but did not explain its reason. It took the action in a brief order saying it would not hear the appeals of screen writers John Howard Lawson and Dalton Trumbo. They had been pending since last August 11. Lawson and Trumbo are each under sentence to serve a year in jail and to pay a fine of $1,000. They had been free under bond.

The court's order noted that Justices Black and Douglas favored a review of the case, and that Justice Clark took no part.

Lawson and Trumbo were two of 10 prominent screen figures who refused to tell a congressional committee whether they had been members of the Communist party.

CLAIM & COUNTER-CLAIM

Could Anti-Red Bill Win Congress' Okay?

Could a bill to control Communist activities in the United States win approval of congress? There was some squabbling about the question with claim and counter-claim being hurled.

Senator Ferguson (R., Mich.) claimed he could line up top-heavy support for such a measure, but said he expected the administration's leaders would try to block

Chills Charges

Brig. Gen. Conrad E. Snow, head of the U.S. state department's loyalty board, testifies before the senate subcommittee investigating charges of communism in the state department. He chilled charges by Sen. Joseph McCarthy (R., Wis.) when he told probers that he knows of no Communists in the department.

VACATIONS:

Why Not England?

For the American tourist planning a trip abroad, England can't be beat, according to Farnham F. Dudgeon, editor-in-chief of Western Newspaper Union, a newspaper syndicate.

DUDGEON visited England some weeks ago along with 14 other representatives of newspaper syndicates, press associations and periodicals. The host on the flight over the Atlantic and the trip through England and Scotland was the British Travel association which is engaged in a campaign to attract tourist trade to the British Isles.

The syndicate chief reported that "England definitely is the place to go" for the American who wants a memorable trip abroad at a modicum of cost. This is true, he said, because of the many places and things in England that are so closely tied in with our own history.

"Right now, England is a tourist paradise," Dudgeon said. "Especially is this true because the pound devaluation has added so much more purchasability to the American tourist dollar. For example, one may stay at almost any of the picturesque inns or hotels for as little as $21 to $23 a week."

"TRANSPORTATION facilities in both England and Scotland are excellent, even if the equipment is somewhat battered from the war. The British are eager to make Americans feel at home, and one gets the impression that this is a sincere hospitality, not motivated exclusively by the desire for American dollars."

There is little need to remind Americans of the particular charm and beauty of the British and Scottish countryside, with their lakes, moors, heather, famed resort spots and historic buildings and landmarks, because they are known, even if vicariously, to most Americans.

"But seeing them at first hand is an altogether thrilling and memorable experience," Dudgeon said.

RADAR:

Day & Night

The country was informed during the week that there is at least some insurance against another "Pearl Harbor" in the event an enemy should attack. That insurance is a radar and civilian-airplane-spotting network that is now far enough along to provide protection.

The announcement also reported that alarm systems have been installed that can flash an alert to air force interceptor squadrons and civilian warning centers within a matter of seconds. All these moves simply are preparedness, officials stressed, and do not indicate any need of these defenses is imminent.

Air force officials said more than 200 warning centers now are hooked up and many more will soon be in operation. The centers are selected by officials such as governors, mayors and chiefs of police. Headquarters will be in key cities and someone will always be available to man the warning apparatus.

action on it. That forecast of Democratic intentions burned majority leader Scott Lucas, of Illinois. He promptly retorted that Ferguson was "just talking politics."

But Ferguson told reporters he was convinced the administration is opposing passage of the bill and that the difficulty was in getting senate leaders to bring it up for action.

EGGSACTLY!

A Fowl Effort

Who was surprised? If you feed a radioactive dose to hens, why wouldn't you get radioactive eggs?

But Dr. Clyde Driggers, of the University of Florida agricultural experiment station, called them uncommon hens—and uncommon hens they were, inasmuch as they had been given doses of radioactive calcium and they laid radioactive eggs.

THE poultry-department scientist set out to learn what happens to calcium from the atomic energy commission at Oak Ridge and fed minute single doses to two hens and daily doses to another two. He kept them under close observation.

The hens suffered no ill effects and got along apparently as well as other hens until they were killed at the end of the project.

With the aid of a Geiger counter, the experimenters found:

THE SHELL of an egg laid by one of the hens 15 minutes after the first dose contained enough labeled calcium to make the counter tick, but none of the material was in the yolk or white of the egg.

Radioactive calcium showed up on the shell, yolk and white of an egg laid 24 hours later and the white contained 70 times more of it than the yolk.

PAKISTAN:

Peace Move

The Indian parliament ratified the new India-Pakistan pact and with that approval there appeared hope that bloody communal strife on the subcontinent might be ended.

Prime Minister Nehru, in submitting the pact, said he was satisfied it would halt a drift toward catastrophe. "We have stopped ourselves at the edge of a precipice and turned our back to it," Nehru said.

THE AGREEMENT guarantees the security of the Moslem minority in Hindu India, and the Hindu minority in Moslem Pakistan. It also permits the unhampered migration of both minorities across the borders of the two dominions.

The move was an idealistic one and had the blessings of the civilized world. But whether it would work was a problem that would still trouble hemisphere diplomats.

OUT OF INDIA were coming reports that the announced—and probably sincere—effort to abolish caste in order to bring about unity, was encountering more difficulty than was expected. Religious convictions, customs, traditions and practices of centuries are not sloughed off so easily.

CHILDREN:

A New Hope

A new hope for stunted children—a promise of speeding the growth of undernourished boys and girls—is held out in the drug aureomycin. The "golden drug," it was said, may prove a powerful growth stimulator.

THE ANNOUNCEMENT was made at the national convention of the American Chemical Society in Philadelphia, where delegates learned that already the drug has increased the rate of growth of hogs, chickens and turkeys by as much as 50 per cent. Its effects, delegates were told, "far exceed" those obtainable with any known vitamin. It is being tested now on undersized children.

Scientists said the growth-accelerating action of the drug "may hold enormous long-range significance for the survival of the human race in a world of dwindling resources," because it may prove of tremendous importance in extending the world's meat supply and reducing the cost of production.

Television Booms

Television production last year according to findings of the Conference Board, totaled nearly 2.9 million sets as compared with 6,500 in 1946. The above graph illustrates the sensational growth of this new entertainment medium. The video industry estimates sets in use this year will range around 4.5 million.

BUSINESS:

Too Many Idle

According to U. S. Commerce Secretary Charles Sawyer, business is good—but there is too much unemployment.

HE ADDED, however, that it is dangerous to set a specific figure as the danger point in unemployment because "people will get panicky" when it is reached.

He also said that his department was not drawing up any plan to combat unemployment.

PADDED HEADACHE . . . Rocky Graziano (right) of Brooklyn, N. Y., lands a blow to Tony Janiro's head, while Janiro counters with a left to Graziano's head. The two prizefighters fought a 10-round bout at New York's Madison Square Garden recently before 15,000 shrieking fans. When it was over, the judges declared the fight was a draw. Janiro was able to take the fight to Graziano through the fifth round, but after that, the crowd expected the charging Rocky to land a killing punch. But Tony put up a good defense, and Graziano could not break through the boxing skill that Janiro still carried.

FROM CHINA TO NEW YORK'S PELL STREET . . . Mayor of New York's Chinatown, Shavey Lee (left) points out a landmark on Pell street to Li Tsung-Jen (second from left), who was acting president of China until he was ousted from office early in March by Chiang Kai-Shek's announcement that he was "resuming the presidency." Mrs. Li (second from right) looks too. Kwock Chee (right), president of the Lee family association, accompanies the sightseeing party. The association gave the Lis a birthday party. Former President Li has been in this country for medical treatment.

"THE GREATER PATH" . . . Gil Dodds (front at right), the "flying parson" who flew to Japan to lecture on religion and teach the finer points of running to Japanese students, takes a training run at the Chuo university on the outskirts of Tokyo. Dodds, who won national recognition in 1941 when he won the national cross-country run over a four-mile course, still holds the national indoor mile title, which he won at the Melrose games in 1944. Although he keeps in training and runs regularly, Dodds says his major purpose today is to lead his fellow men along the greater path to a better life. The Japanese seemed interested in Dodds' teaching, both religious and athletic.

WORLD CITIZEN AT ELLIS ISLAND . . . Garry Davis, the "man without a country," points out some papers to customs collectors while he was detained at Ellis Island by immigration officials for questioning following his recent arrival in the U.S. He renounced his American citizenship in 1948 to become a "citizen of the world." He is a son of orchestra leader Meyer Davis. Davis told newsreel cameramen he is content to remain a stateless person, and has spoken no desire to regain his United States citizenship. His sister recently went to Europe to persuade him to come home. He has been called a "crackpot" by his critics and a one-man U. N. by idealists.

The Influential Editor

THROUGHOUT THE RURAL communities of America, you, as a general rule, will find the editor of the home-town paper accepted as the community leader, the man whose advice is more generally accepted than any other.

He starts with those personal characteristics that command respect and inspire confidence. In addition to these personal characteristics, he has his newspaper which gives him a medium through which to talk to people, each one of whom he knows.

They read what he says and follow his lead. When a local bond issue is to be voted upon, the chances of approval are enhanced when it can have the support of the editor of the home-town paper; when he says "yes," the people will say "yes," but should he say "no," the people, knowing the editor reads the small type in the contract, accept his judgment and say "no."

The candidate for nomination or election to public office will increase his chances of success if he has the support of the greater number of his home-town newspaper editors in his district or state. It is not a case of "As Maine goes, so goes the nation," but of "As the home town editor goes, so goes that community."

I remember hearing Victor Lawson, then the owner and editor of the Chicago Daily News, say to a group of business people in Chicago, when asked for the support of the News for a proposal in which they were interested: "Per thousand of circulation, the rural newspaper will make 10 votes for any worthy cause it supports to any one vote by the Daily News, or any other metropolitan newspaper." The truth of that statement has been demonstrated on many occasions.

The best advice that can be offered to those seeking a place, or those who have a place, on either of the two party tickets for seats in either the senate or house of the national congress is: See as many of the home-town editors in your district or state as possible; lay your cards face up on the table; do not attempt any mealy mouthed double talk—they will not be fooled by such statements; make the statements of your purposes short, honest and definite, and that home-town editor will listen.

If he can be sold, you, as a candidate, have added a valuable ally in that community where he has the top influence. The greater percentage of those home-town editors you have backing you, the greater your chances of winning will be.

The home-town editor is known and respected by all the people of his community. They consider him a man of keen judgment, and follow his lead. The candidate who ignores him makes a serious error, and jeopardizes his cause. He is looked upon as the oracle of his community. That home-town editor can be a valuable spoke in the campaign wheel of any candidate.

It is difficult to imagine the working of the fellow traveler's mind. Those who have enjoyed the freedoms, the advantages, the opportunities and the luxuries of living in America under our economic system and who urge that we sacrifice all of these to accept in preference the government offered by Joe Stalin, his politboro, the secret police and forced labor camps, seem to me to be fit subjects for a crazy house.

Could all of the 180 millions of the Russian people be transported to the United States, provided with jobs, and permitted to remain here for five years, at the end of that time what percentage would be willing to return to Russia?

The regents of the University of California called upon the members of the faculty to declare under oath that they were not communists. The faculty members raised quite an uproar over what they termed an effort to limit their thinking. They refused to take such an oath. It was all amicably compromised when each member of the faculty proposed a declaration that each, as an individual, was not a Communist. They had found the public generally, the tax payers who supported the institution, supported the position of the regents.

Senator McCarthy of Wisconsin may be off in some detail, and even if he is only partially right and if a part of his charges are for partisan purposes, we need a real investigation into the state department and its personnel.

The Fair deal is far more socialistic than the New Deal ever was.

Those rogue Republicans who have supported the Fair Deal socialistic policies should be read out of the Republican party.

In the Case of Coca Cola Versus Champagne, The Ban on a Beverage Can Work Both Ways

By BILLY ROSE

No French champagne is being sold at my night club in New York and patrons who request same will have to settle for domestic fizzlewater—which is a lot easier on the pocketbook.

What gives? The French Communists and Coca-Cola—that's what gives. As you probably know, the French national assembly recently passed a bill which, without naming the product, would prohibit the bottling and sale of Coca-Cola in France and its colonies.

Two pressure groups, were responsible for the measure—the wine interests which feared that the soft drink might cut into their profits, and the Communists, who, though they have no love for the vintners, saw an opportunity to take a rabbit punch at the United States.

Suited in white, the Commie paper, L'Humanite, unleashed a campaign against the "Coca-colonization" of the country, loud-mouthed that the basic syrup is highly toxic and would turn La Belle France into a nation of "Coca-holics." At the same time, the right-wing press, fronting for the fizzle merchants, began to blab along the same lines, and even the usually sensible Le Monde warned that "the moral landscape of France is at stake."

Billy Rose

Before I go any further, let me get it into the record that I'm not a big Coke drinker and never owned a share of stock in the company. As far as I'm concerned, the beverage is just another American product like Orange Crush, 7-Up or Dr. Brown's Celery Tonic.

By initiating an anti-coke campaign, they have given Stalin's stooges a made-to-order excuse for yelping, "Down with American imperialism" — the same sleazy slogan used by Communies everywhere to divert attention from the accomplishments of the Marshall plan.

As for the argument that the distribution of Coca-Cola would create unemployment and cut into profits—that, too, is a lot of bottle-tops. The set-up of the Coca-Cola Export corporation is such that the entire manufacture and sale would be carried out by French personnel, on French territory, and under French supervision and ownership.

Or to put it another way, it would be the beginning of a new French industry, and potentially a pretty big one, judging from the fact that more than 100,000 Americans derive part or all of their incomes from the parent company and its subsidiaries.

From where I cogitate, it boils down to this: John Q. Frenchman is being denied a choice between Leftists, aided and abetted by the bird-brain Righties, don't like the Coke and vino only because the country Coca-Cola comes from.

Well, Messieurs et Mesdames, two can play at boycott as well as one, and so, no French champagne will be sold in my night club until the idiotic ban against our home product is lifted.

Moreover, I'm hereby appealing to hotels, restaurants and night club proprietors all over the country to follow suit—and to wire or write me when they do. And if they'd like to explain the boycott to their customers, they're at liberty to run off reprints of this column—of course crediting this paper.

And remember, Messieurs et Mesdames, if that doesn't work we can get really tough and stop buying your French postcards.

This Is
Your Paper
Its People Are Human

By William R. Nelson

MEMBERS of this and all other newspaper staffs are victims of that quirk of human nature so well expressed by the axiom which asserts that: "An expert is a man away from home." Newspaper people are very much at home here, so they are seldom looked upon as experts. But they are experts, and specialists, in a wide variety of occupations and professions, all of them vitally important to this community.

A home town newspaper, such as this one, is published only through the teamwork of people of many skills. It is doubtful if any other business or institution in the community surpasses the newspaper in its complexity, in the varied nature of the expert know-how its operation requires.

Teamwork of Skills

Modern drug stores, which require a combination of merchandising and professional aptitudes, come closest to the newspaper in the variety of demands made upon staffs. But in addition to merchandising and professional abilities comparable to those of the drug store, the newspaper's people must also have mechanical understanding and skill of a high order.

Newspaper mechanical staff people must know both how to operate a variety of machines, and how to maintain and repair them.

Editorial staff members are specialists who perform their daily duties within the restricting confines of a code of ethics fully as binding as are those of other professions. They must have ability, a liking for people, knowledge of words, a feeling for art, insatiable curiosity, willingness to work all hours under pressure, and be familiar with mechanical practices and limitations of the printing plant.

Always with their Duty

While sharing with their neighbors the enjoyment of a community event, the editorial worker must also cover it, taking notes, names, dates and data, so that while others relax afterward, the story of the event can be written. The editor and reporter, like doctors, are "on duty" every hour of every day.

Members of the advertising and business office staffs, too, are specialists, each in his or her own way. And they, too, are important to the community.

STAGE-SCREEN-RADIO

By INEZ GERHARD

STANLEY KRAMER made "The Champion" for less than $600,000; it will gross more than two and one-half million. Then he made "The Home of the Brave" for the same amount; it had already grossed even more, though highly controversial. Hollywood respects those figures but doesn't see how this young producer does it. His new picture, "The Men", will make them wonder still more. He does it by buying a really good story, holding a two-week rehearsal before shooting starts, casting the right actors rather than stars, picking his director for ability, not his name—and then throwing in just a touch of genius that is purely Stanley Kramer.

Frank Lovejoy, who stood out as "Sergeant Mingo" in "Home of the Brave," will co-star with Kathleen Ryan in her American film debut in "The Sound of Fury," for United Artists release. And Warners has signed him to a long-term contract and are announcing that he is one of the brightest of the new crop of screen stars. His work in their "Rock Bottom" convinced them.

Jane Russell's first car, a Ford bought from the proceeds of her appearance as star of Howard Hughes' "The Outlaw", still stands in her garage. She says she'll always keep it as a memento of the picture that made her a sensation.

Two young men whose family names are known to moviegoers will make their screen debuts in "Tripoli", a Pine-Thomas production. One is 19-year-old Marshall Berle, nephew of Milton; the other is Pat Ford, son of John Ford, the well-known director. He has been working successfully as a screen writer for several years, but now wants to try his hand at acting.

Beverly Hills, home of so many movie stars, will receive a thorough coverage in "In a Lonely Place", Humphrey Bogart's new film for Columbia. Director Nicholas Ray chose representative spots all around town, which ought to give the public a pretty good idea of the city they have read so much about, but have seen on the screen only in isolated spots in the past.

Steve Cochran, star of "The Two Million Dollar Bank Robbery", will win $50,000 if the ice on the Yukon river starts breaking up at 6:09 a. m. May 13. He entered the famous Alaskan "Ice Pool" through his mother, who lives in Juneau.

Columbia's search for a handsome young southpaw baseball pitcher who can act a romantic role, or a handsome young actor who can pitch left-handed, ended with the signing of Richard Taylor for the romantic lead in "Kill the Umpire", William Bendix starrer. Taylor, a husky six-footer, was formerly a professional ball player with Salem, Ore., in the Western International league.

John Garfield, director Michael Curtiz, and writer Ronald MacDougall holed up on a telephoned, mail-less ranch while finishing "The Breaking Point"—wanted to keep the plot a secret. Garfield had but one request. "All I want," said he, "is more guns than Humphrey Bogart had in 'Key Largo'." Which gives you some idea of what kind of picture it is.

THE FICTION CORNER FELIX RETIRES

By Richard H. Wilkinson

WHEN FELIX BRENDLINGER retired to private life he ceased to be a "figure" in Mayfield. If you took time to analyze the reason, the answer was simple.

For 30 years Felix had left his home on Pleasant street at exactly 7:35 in the morning, walked a quarter mile to the railroad station, boarded the 7:48 train for Longview, and spent the day in that distant city at a desk in the insurance offices of Booth, Gill and Dyer. Every evening he disembarked from the 5:32 train and retraced the quarter-mile to his Pleasant street home.

Mayfield citizens were used to the sight of Felix walking briskly to and from the railroad station. Sometimes some one would ask him to do an errand in Longview, and he'd always oblige. Frequently he would deliver choice bits of news to friends and acquaintances. Booth, Gill and Dyer had for their clients two large steamship lines, and Felix could tell when the boats arrived in port, or when they were delayed by storms and when important personages were arriving from abroad.

There were a hundred and one things that Felix could and did do that achieved for him a certain recognition. After he retired, Felix ceased to be a figure. He wasn't an especially imaginative person, nor were his neighbors.

The neighbors knew unconsciously that Felix was no longer different from any of them. Felix knew it too. It troubled him. It hurt. It made him lonesome. It made him wonder. It threatened to develop in him an inferiority complex.

Felix tried hard to find pleasure in his retirement. He planted a garden and bought some chickens

"The idea," Felix's wife exclaimed. "Don't they know—but of course they don't—I'll write immediately and tell them how poorly you are!"

"You'll do no such thing!" Felix exclaimed, eyes gleaming. "I'm catching the 7:48 in the morning!"

THE JOB lasted three weeks. During that time Felix became a figure once more. People became used to him going back and forth to the train. Unconsciously they fell into the old routine of asking him to do errands and demanding choice bits of news. Felix was happy again. He beamed. He put on weight. He felt important. He was important.

On the day that Felix finished up the special work, Mr. Gill approached him.

"Felix, how about staying on with us awhile? You're not old enough to retire. We need you here."

"Need me?"

"As long as you'll stay. Oh I realize that sooner or later we'll have to get along without your help—but none of us realized how important you were."

Felix's face glowed. "Thanks, Mr. Gill. You couldn't have said anything that would make me happier. But as far as staying with you is concerned—I'm afraid I'll have to turn down the offer. You see, I've got some chickens and a garden out home that need my attention. And—well—now I'll be able to retire with a clear conscience."

and occupied his time as much as he could. But it was a physical occupation, and this gave him plenty of opportunity to think. Eventually his thinking changed to brooding, and the brooding nourished the growing inferiority complex.

Felix's wife noticed the change. She tried to talk to him, to learn the source of his moodiness. But Felix couldn't explain it. He felt a little ashamed, and didn't want to talk.

Another month passed and Felix's wife began to think he was a case for the family doctor. Then one day a letter arrived from Booth, Gill and Dyer. They wanted to know if Felix would consider coming in for a few days to assist in straightening out some matters about which they considered him an expert.

MANY FARMERS PLAYING IN A LOTTERY

Many farmers in Iosco county are playing in a lottery which is hard to win, suggests Harold R. Clark, county agricultural agent. "The risk on permitting fire hazards to exist in farm homes and other buildings is great and the odds are against the farmer winning," Clark explained.

The agent pointed out that one out of every hundred rural homes will be burned to the ground or damaged by fire this year, if figures of the past years continue. Five in farm homes and buildings is usually more destructive than in urban homes.

"A man's lifetime investment of time and money may go up in smoke in a single hour and all because proper precautions were not taken, the agent explained.

April has been designated as Spring Clean-Up time in Michigan's rural communities and on farms. It's the time for people to take inventory of debris accumulations and to see that they are removed. It's time for a thorough inspection of fire hazards, the agent believes.

Michigan's Cooperative Extension Service is helping the Michigan Rural Safety Council in its April program for clean up of Michigan's farms. "A tidy, attractive farm is also a safe farm," Clark said in conclusion.

Appointed District Conservationist

The appointment of E. M. Gulembo or Mount Pleasant as District Conservationist for northeast Michigan was announced April 12 by E. C. Sackrider, State Conservationist of the U. S. Soil Conservation Service. Mr. Gulembo's appointment fills a vacancy caused by the resignation of Paul C. Smith, who has returned to his native state of Ohio to engage in private business.

Mr. Gulembo is not new to northeast Michigan, having been active in soil conservation work in the Antrim, Clare and Isabella Soil Conservation District for a number of years, and more recently having charge of the U. S. Soil Conservation Service activities in northeast Michigan. He is a native of Scottville, Michigan, a graduate of Michigan State College, and previous to joining the U. S. Soil Conservation Service was a Vocational Agricultural Instructor at Weidman and Marion, Michigan.

Mr. Golumbo's headquarters will be at West Branch, and he will represent the U. S. Soil Conservation Service in the counties of Bay, Midland, Isabella, Clare, Gladwin, Arenac, Iosco, Ogemaw, Oscoda, Alcona and Alpena.

Feather-bedding scheme of Firemen's Union to put an additional fireman on diesel locomotives has been

CONSIDERED TWICE!

Fact Finding Boards appointed by Presidents Roosevelt and Truman have said these demands were "devoid of merit" and they were

REJECTED TWICE!

Now the Firemen's leaders seek to paralyze railroad transportation to compel the railroads to employ a wholly unnecessary additional fireman to ride on diesel locomotives. This scheme is plain

FEATHER-BEDDING!

LEADERS of the Firemen's union have called a nationwide strike starting with four great railroads on April 26. These railroads are the New York Central, Pennsylvania, Santa Fe, and Southern.

The union claim that a second fireman is needed on grounds of safety is sheer hypocrisy. Safety has been dragged into this dispute only in an unsuccessful effort to give a cloak of respectability to vicious feather-bedding demands.

After a careful study of the first demands of this union, a Presidential Fact Finding Board on May 21, 1943, reported to President Roosevelt that there was no need for an extra fireman on diesel locomotives.

Again, on September 19, 1949, after a second hearing on the union leaders' demands, a second Board reported to President Truman that: "there presently exists no need for an additional fireman... upon either the ground of safety or that of efficiency and economy of operation."

Safety Record of Diesels is Outstandingly Good

Although the railroads accepted the Board findings, the union leaders have brazenly rejected them. They represent that an extra fireman is needed for "safety" reasons. Here's what the Board had to say on that point:

"The safety and on-time performance of diesel electric locomotives operated under current rules have been notably good..."

"Upon careful analysis of the data submitted on safety, we have concluded that no valid reasons have been shown as a support for the Brotherhood proposal under which a fireman would be required to be at all times continuously in the cab of road diesels. The proposal must be rejected."

The real reason behind these demands is that the union leaders are trying to make jobs where there is no work. In other words, a plain case of "feather-bedding."

The railroads have no intention of yielding to these wasteful make-work demands.

"The Safety Record of Diesels is Outstandingly Good..."

PRESIDENTIAL FACT FINDING BOARD REPORT

Read these excerpts from official reports of Presidential Fact Finding Boards:

"The safety record of Diesels is outstandingly good, and it follows that the safety rules now applicable have produced good results."

"The safety and on-time performance of Diesel-electric locomotives operated under current rules indicate that Diesel-electric operation has been safer than steam locomotive operation..."

Remember! These are not statements of the railroads. They are just a few of the many similar conclusions reached by President Truman's Fact Finding Board which spent months investigating the claims of the union leaders.

Traffic Arrests by State Police Gain
Michigan State Police made 5,875 traffic arrests in March as compared with 4,157 the previous month. The increase of 41 percent was attributed largely to a gain of 20 per cent in car hours on patrol. In addition, February was a short month, volume of traffic increased with improved weather conditions and a number of arrests were made for failure to meet March 1 deadline for new license plates.

The department also received 5,008 complaints in other cases, an increase of 14 per cent over the 4,381 in February, and complaints arrested totaled 1,469 as compared with 1,352, a gain of nine per cent.

Ironing Delicate Fabrics

INVITATION—AND A CHALLENGE

"You never can tell till you try"—so we want you to try the 1930 Buick. And we especially want you to compare it with others. Drive any other car—then drive Buick and see what your money should buy in ride, room, handling and power.

Only Buick has Dynaflo—and with it goes:

HIGHER-COMPRESSION Fireball valve-in-head power in three engines. (New F-263 engine in SUPER models.) • NEW-PATTERN STYLING, with MULTI-GUARD fender, taper-through fenders, "double bubble" taillights • WIDE-ANGLE VISIBILITY, close-up road view both forward and back • TRAFFIC-HANDY SIZE, less over-all length for easier parking and garaging, short turning radius • EXTRA-WIDE SEATS cradled between the axles • SOFT BUICK RIDE, from all-coil springing, Safety-Ride rims, low-pressure tires, ride-steadying torque-tube • WIDE ARRAY OF MODELS with Body by Fisher.

RAP your fist against these stout bars—feel the gauge of the bumper stock they're made of—and you know you've got stout protection here.

But then figure:

Here are nine bumper guards (not counting the two that hold the parking lights) so that's one extra item you needn't buy.

And each is individually replaceable—if damage should occur you have only a simple part or two to replace, instead of a complete, cast-metal grille.

Thus this stunning new design—freshest front-end style note on the highways—protects your pocket-book as well as your car.

Avoids costly repair bills as it avoids "locking horns" with the car ahead. Cuts upkeep as it cuts inches from the car's total length, thus making parking and garaging easier.

What you really have here is a four-way front-end. A design that sets the coming style note—avoids many a tangle with the car ahead—makes handling easier—and costs less to repair.

And note that parking-light lenses, made of plastic and set deep in recessed sockets, are well out of harm's way—even when pushing a stalled car.

You'll find this bold front end only on Buick—as you'll find Fireball power, Dynaflo Drive,* Buick's wonderful ride, and many another headline value only on these beauties.

Why not see your dealer now for the whole story—including the happy story on prices to fit practically any budget?

The U. S. Lake Survey announces the availability of the annual Bulletin, which is No. 59 for 1950; the price has been established at $2.25 per copy. The price of the Supplements, which may be obtained by subscription upon purchase of the Bulletin, has been established at .25 for the series of seven issues.

Bulletin No. 59 contains detailed descriptions of the Great Lakes and connecting waters and general data regarding other waters charted by the Lake Survey, relating to physical conditions pertinent to navigation; the latter waters include waterways from Lake Michigan to Mississippi River, the New York Canals, Hudson River, and Lake Champlain.

The supplements, issued monthly May through November, provide advisory material for Bulletin descriptions and are essential if it is desired to keep the Bulletin abreast of the changing conditions affecting navigation. The Bulletin will be mailed immediately and the Supplements mailed monthly as issued, starting about the middle of May. There is no additional charge for postage.

GREEN GRASS OF WYOMING

By Mary O'Hara

Nell's fears begin to oppress her again. She has had strange dreams and they leave her with a sense of apprehension. She fears, for instance, that she will never see Howard again after he leaves for West Point and life in the military academy. Nell again beseeches Rob to get rid of the bull, Cricket, contending the barbed-wire enclosures aren't enough protection against him. Rob ridicules the idea and tells Nell he and Dr. Scott think she should take a long rest in a hospital. She scoffs at the suggestion. Nell misses her little daughter Penny and is horrified to find the child in the field with the bull. She rushes to Penny.

CHAPTER XV

She began to cry. How long was this going on? How long could she cling up here? If only Pilgrim would drive the bull far enough away she would slide down and dash for the fence.

She took off the bandana she wore on her head, wound it into a rope. She tied this tightly around Penny's body and put the ends through her own belt, knotting it fast—then consciousness left her. Penny wriggled and squirmed, stretching out her arms, yelling pitifully, "Dad-dee's ba-ba—" but she was held fast and could not get loose from the inert figure that lay on the tilted shelf of rock.

With an impact like the crash of a wave, Nell leaped back to terrified consciousness.

Ah! As if he had heard her wish, Pilgrim was at the bull again and Cricket was galloping after him, head down, heels and tail high in the air. His bellows were like thunder. Pilgrim was agile. Again and again he saved himself, then bored in to nip at haunch or shoulder as the hot charging mass swept past him.

He was watching for another chance at the nose.

Ah! He had it! His teeth closed! Once again the frenzied beast swung his head and the dog with it. Pilgrim went sailing. But this time, when he hit the ground, Cricket was there. He made a sideways scooping motion with his head. It came up with a small twisted form on the horns. Down again. The bull knelt. Pilgrim disappeared from view—the bull was making motions of grinding his head into the ground.

Nell heard the death cry of the dog, turned her face to the rock, clawing it to keep it from whirling out from under her. The whole universe whirled. She knew that she was fainting again—Oh, Pilgrim! Pilgrim!

Pearl groaned. She sat on the edge of the bed and held her head in her hands. She had been sitting that way some time, listening to Cricket and muttering profane epithets directed at him and his incessant noise.

She heard a horse galloping up the road. Leaning to the corner of the window, she saw it swing off the road across the field. It was Ken on Flicka and they were going hell-for-leather. Where on earth was he going? He was heading straight for the barbed-wire fence! He would never try to jump it! No—he pulled Flicka up on her haunches and leaped off, then seized the post of the fence and vaulted over and vanished from view.

At this point, Pearl dropped the binoculars on the terrace and ran screaming up through the Gorge. The men were in the corral, just returning with the light wagon from a lay spent on the fences.

"The bull!" she screamed. "Gus! Jim! Get the pitchforks! The bull's killing Ken!"

Gus Tells How Ken Held the Bull Off

"Ya, Boss," said Gus, "like I'm tellin' you, Ken, he held de bull off de rock wid his quirt while his mudder come down wid de baby. He go fur him gude. He give yells. He bang him in de face—eyes—nose—and Cricket he squeel lak a pig, and he back off, an' he turn an' run, den he cum back at Ken, an' Ken, an' yump yump in time, den he run after him an' he yell like crazy, an' beat him an' lash him, an' Cricket turn 'round ag'in, an' back away—he back an' back—an' Ken he give it to um in de face all de time—den we come wid de forks—"

Rob, Howard and Carey were nearing the story at ten o'clock that night. They had just reached some and were standing in a group on the front terrace in the darkness.

"He killed the bull, yo', say—" Rob's voice was slow.

Chills ran up and down Carey's back.

"Ya, Boss. De Missus, she faint, she cum to. She faint ag'in. Ken got her to de house while we drive de bull to de corral. He kep' roarin' an' pawin'. He mak' a terrible racket. His nose an' his eyes hurt aim. He smell blood an' he taste it. He's terrible mad. De Missus she cum down from de house holdin' de big express rifle. Ken he walk along wid her. She reach de corral fence an' put de gun troo de bars. Ken took de gun away from her an' she begin to cry."

A harsh sound came from Rob's throat.

"Ken, he say, 'You stand away, men.' He say it yooost lak dat, Boss. We get out de way. Ken shoot de bull. De bull do down—mak' a big crash. De Missus, she go down too. Ken he pick her oop again, he say to me, 'Gus, you hitch chains to his horns, take de truck, cart him away, dump him down de ole mine shaft.'"

"And you've done it?"

"Ya. Ve drug heem away. He's oop dere—down de mine shaft."

There was silence for a few moments. Carey thought of the truck dragging the great inert form over the half-mile of road, then across the prairie to the trees and the old mine shaft—of the great body hurtling down, as limp, as helpless as a little dead gopher and the crash at the bottom piling him up in a shapeless mass.

"Go—osh!" exclaimed Howard under his breath.

"And Mrs. McLaughlin wanted to go in to town?" Rob's voice was labored.

"Ya, Ken, he say he go for de doctor. She say, 'No, tak me to heem.' Boss, she hold her throat. Her eyes stick out. She bust out

"He bang him in de face . . ."

cryin'. Den she laugh. Den she pass out. Ve put her in de car. Ken, he drive her away."

"The baby?" Rob's voice was sharp.

"Ken, he tuk her too. Vas nobody here but Pearl."

"Thank you, Gus." Rob turned to the others. "Go to bed, children. I'll go on in to town."

He walked around the house, got into the station wagon which he had just parked on the hill and drove off into the darkness.

Carey felt awed. When, at last they went to bed, she lay awake, thinking it all over, thinking of Ken. Again and again she rehearsed the scene as Gus had described it. It was like Ken to do that . . . he was brave—hot tears filled her eyes—he was the bravest, most wonderful boy she had ever known or could imagine . . . she wished she had not been so mean to him, teasing him all the time. She turned her face to the pillow and burst out crying. She fell asleep at last, only to wake with a jump after some hours.

It was the sound of cars that had waked her. She ran to the window and parted the curtains. She saw the two cars coming. Headlights blazed, then wheeled past the house. A moment later voices approached her window. Rob and Ken came past, talking in low tones. They walked close together. Rob carried the sleeping baby in his left arm. His right arm was laid across Ken's shoulders.

Carey Tells Ken That He's 'Wonderful'

Then they disappeared from her view. There was the sound of the front door opening, more low voices, then their steps going upstairs.

Ken was home. Carey lay thinking that they were under the same roof again, she and Ken. And Ken was certainly a hero.

Suddenly she saw a dark form before her.

When she realized that it was Ken, it was a shock. Of all people, she would have wanted to be with Ken; to say something to him about what he had done, to touch his hand and feel his eyes looking at her.

She stood there, her hair hanging on her shoulders, tears streaming from her eyes, her hands outstretched to him, forgetting that she was dressed only in her white silk pajamas.

"Oh, Ken! I do think you're so wonderful!"

Bewildered, thrilled, weary, excited, Ken moved hesitantly toward her. How close did he dare to go? He put his arms around her, he hugged her tight, he bent his head down upon hers. He felt the slim little-girl body against him, her arms went around him, and her hands held on to his waist. She cried and sobbed.

"Gosh, Carey—"

"We-ell—I guess I've g-g-got to go—" Carey's chest heaved and her breath came with catches. She drew herself out of his arms and wiped her eyes with her hands. "Good-night, Ken—"

"Good-night, Carey."

He stood there while she pattered away from him. He looked up at the sky, all around, as if he were dazed. Then, suddenly, with fists clenched, he thrust both arms upward as high as he could reach—a gesture of triumph. Then he sped silently indoors.

Nell was kept under opiates for several days. The fainting, the incessant weeping stopped. She was to remain in the hospital until she had entirely recovered from the shock of her terrible experience and until the doctor had had time to make a thorough examination of her. A competent infant's nurse was sent out to the ranch to take care of Penny.

Howard and Ken walked up and down the platform of the Tie Dying station. Evidently each of the boys had something on his mind. They were not talking. Howard felt as if the solid ground had fallen out from under his feet. To go away from home and not have his mother there to say goodby to him! The doctor wanted no visitors at the hospital, so Howard had had no last words, no kiss, no little lecture on the love of God to take away with him. And his father was at a stockman's meeting, so there was only Ken to see him off. It made him feel like a stranger, drifting off into the world with no one caring.

Ken cleared his throat with embarrassment. Both boys had been swept beyond their recent estrangement over Carey and yet it had not been thrashed out. It stood there between them.

Ken was whipping up courage, there wasn't much time, the train would be along any minute.

Finally he blurted it out. "Howard, you know that time you and I had the fight?"

"Yep."

"Well, I wish you'd tell me what had happened."

"You mean with Carey?"

"Yes. What had you done to make her so mad?" His heart quickened now that he had actually asked for it.

Howard turned his head in a haughty manner. He never permitted his younger brother to question any of his actions. But this was a different Ken, and back of the quiet intensity of his face and his questioning eyes was authority! Ken asked as if he had a right to know. Besides, Howard was weakened by the sadness he was feeling about his mother.

Howard Eases Ken's Jealous Feeling

He looked away rather sheepishly. "Oh, it wasn't anything like what you thought! I never kissed Carey, or even tried to."

Ken hid his jubilation. He had kissed her—he was ahead then—way ahead. "But she was so mad at you," he said. "I heard her."

"Oh, it was just a lot of kid nonsense," said Howard. "I pushed her off the rock up above Deercreek when we were fishing. She fell in that shallow pool—all mud. She looked so funny when she got out. I laughed at her."

"But you let me think—you said—you fought me—" stammered Ken, overcome with relief and happiness. No wonder Carey had told him nothing about this humiliating experience!

"Well, I was sore that you would call me to account for anything I did. Why shouldn't I kiss her if I wanted to, if she would let me? What business was it of yours?"

There was the train in the distance. Both boys fastened their eyes on it. Howard grabbed one of his suitcases, Ken the other. Howard looked around, almost wildly. He felt as if he were plunging into an abyss—he turned to his younger brother and Ken turned as eagerly, as warmly to him. Their right hands clasped—impulsively they leaned to each other and hugged.

"It's all right, Ken. Carey doesn't care a rap for me."

"Gosh, Howard—"

"That's right—"

"I'm awfully sorry, Howard—"

"Hey! I don't care a rap either—"

The train roared in. There was to be only an instant's stop for this one passenger. Even before it quite stopped the porter let down the steps, swung off and seized the bags. Howard got aboard, turning to wave to Ken. Both boys were lightened of their distress, their faces were flushed with love and happiness. Ken saluted smartly.

"Hi, Cadet!" he yelled. "Good luck!" There was a broad grin on his face.

The conductor waved his arm, the train picked up speed and Howard vanished from view as the steps and door clanged shut.

International Uniform Sunday School Lessons

SCRIPTURE: Amos, (especially 4:4; 5:4-9, 14-15, 21-24)
DEVOTIONAL READING: Psalm 13: 1-6

When Worship Is Wicked

Lesson for April 30, 1950

DON'T THINK for a moment you could stand before some Recording Angel, with a memorandum in your hand showing the number of times you had attended church last year, and expect to see the angel break out into a beaming smile. "Fifty - two trips to church, 52 Good Deeds!" you would smile confidently at him. But he might freeze you with a look of complete contempt. "Fifty-two sins!" he might say. "Next case!"

Dr. Foreman

Can It Be a Sin To Go to Church?

Church-going is not necessarily a good act. Worship may be a quite wicked deed. Most people are slow getting that into their heads. They think that one act of worship on Sunday will somehow make up for a lot of bad behavior Monday through Saturday inclusive. But it is not so. The first person in history to see and to say that worship need not be good and can even be very bad, was none other than the prophet Amos.

The Israelites to whom he spoke were what we would call a church-going people; they were certainly temple-going. They followed the same ritual that was used in Jerusalem, they offered tithes and sacrifices, they kept the Sabbath, they attended the feasts and they sang the sacred hymns.

Yet Amos denounces the whole business, and condemns the worshippers as guilty sinners. What was wrong?

It Looked All Right

READERS of the Old Testament will remember that at Bethel, where the Israelites had one of their principal temples, golden calves had been set up to represent Jehovah their God. Now even though the people worshipped the true God, surely it was wrong to worship him in the form of an animal.

The form of their worship was all wrong, much further wrong than any form of Christian worship is today; yet Amos does not condemn them for worshipping in this mistaken way. Never once anywhere does he say a word about the golden calves. And if he does not say anything about a big thing like golden calves, still less does he have anything severe to say about less important departures from "good form" in worship.

He does not condemn the people for having the wrong hymn-book, or for not having a good choir. He hasn't a word of blame for non-attendance at worship; indeed he comes down hardest on those who do attend. Apparently church attendance in Bethel was excellent—that was not their trouble.

Again, he has no fault to find with the Israelites because their services were uninteresting." Maybe they were; but on the other hand they were probably full of color and of pageantry, something to see as well as to hear. Yet Amos was not impressed. Further, he makes no complaint about poor sermons.

What Was the Trouble?

THE TROUBLE with those people, the thing that made their worship sinful, was not some defeat in the act of worship itself. There was nothing they could do, Amos can improve the worship program" as we would say.

The trouble with those people was not in church at all. It was on the outside. Almost alone in his time, a voice in the wilderness—for no one paid him any real attention—Amos, speaking for God, told the Sabbath-keeping, church-going, hymn-singing, tithing citizens of Israel an important truth.

Religion, in short, cannot be shut off from the rest of life, as nearly everybody then thought and as too many people now think. Worship is simply no good if it is not lined up with a good life, a life good by intention and effort.

Jesus underscored this same point. If you are at the very altar of God, in the act of offering him a gift, and remember that your brother has something against you, go and make matters right with your brother before you offer the gift. See your brother before you see God! Or else God will not be at home to you.

Mint Flavors These Chocolate Ice Cream Puffs

(See Recipes Below)

Dessert Contrasts

IF YOUR MAIN DISHES for the season are of the lighter variety, then your dessert patterns should be just a shade richer than usual to give the menu variety, balance and contrast.

To avoid loss of interest in food entirely, which is so apt to come at this season of the year, select some interesting desserts such as are featured in today's column.

You have your choice of ice cream, puddings and cakes, all of which are unusual and good, too!

There's always audible approval from youngsters and grownups alike when cream puffs are served. And cream puff shells made especially tempting with a filling of ice cream are a dessert that really goes places. The cream puff shells are flavored with chocolate and filled with cool mint ice cream.

Chocolate Mint Ice Cream Puffs

(Serves 6)

- 1/2 cup butter
- 1/2 cup boiling water
- 1/2 cup sifted all-purpose flour
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1 tablespoon sugar
- 1 tablespoon cocoa
- 2 eggs, unbeaten
- 1 quart mint ice cream
- Hot fudge sauce

Add butter to boiling water; heat until butter melts. Sift together flour, salt, sugar and cocoa; add to butter mixture, all at once, stirring thoroughly. Cook, stirring, until mixture leaves sides of pan. Remove and cool a minute. Add unbeaten eggs, one at a time, beating until smooth after each addition. Drop by heaping tablespoonfuls on greased baking sheet, two inches apart, shaping with wet spoon into rounds. Bake in hot oven (450°) 10 minutes. Reduce heat (350°) and bake 25 minutes longer, until lightly browned. Cool and cut off tops. Fill with peppermint ice cream and top with hot fudge sauce.

Orange Dessert Cake

(Serves 6)

- 1 orange, medium size
- 1 cup sugar
- 1 cup raisins
- 1/2 cup shortening
- 2 eggs, beaten slightly
- 2 cups sifted flour
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1 teaspoon soda dissolved in milk
- 1 cup evaporated milk mixed with
- 1 tablespoon lemon juice

Cut the orange and squeeze out 2 tablespoons of the juice. Add to this juice 1/4 cup of the sugar and reserve for glazing the cake. Cut out and discard the central core and the seeds of the orange. Grind the orange with the raisins, using the medium blade of the food chopper. Cream shortening and sugar together. Add the beaten eggs. Sift flour with salt. Add alternately to the egg mixture with the milk, beginning and ending with flour. Stir in the orange and raisin mixture quickly. Pour no frosting, since the orange juice and sugar make a wonderful glaze for the top of the cake.

Burnt Sugar Cake

(Makes 3 9-inch layers)

- 2 cups sugar
- 1 cup boiling water
- 3 cups sifted cake flour
- 3 teaspoons baking powder
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1 cup shortening
- 4 eggs, separated
- 1 teaspoon vanilla

Place one cup of the sugar in a skillet and heat, stirring constantly until sugar melts and becomes brown; remove from heat, add boiling water and stir until sugar is entirely dissolved. Cool. Sift flour, baking powder and salt together. Cream shortening with remaining sugar until fluffy. Add unbeaten egg yolks, one at a time, beating thoroughly after each is added. Add vanilla. Add sifted dry ingredients and caramel sirup alternately in small amounts, beating thoroughly after each addition. Fold in stiffly beaten egg whites. Pour into greased pans and bake in moderate oven (350°) 30 to 35 minutes.

LYNN SAYS: Fortify Leftover Foods With Extra Flavor

Slices of cold roast veal make an excellent sandwich when treated with a spread of anchovy paste and butter and fresh rye bread slices.

Extend that bit of grape juice in the refrigerator by mixing with cranberry juice. Serve chilled for an appetizer.

Serve that last bit of cauliflower with a tangy cheese sauce and shower with toasted, salted almonds for a genuine flavor treat.

into a greased 8x8x2 pan and bake in a moderate oven (375°) about 45 minutes. After baking and while still hot, cover with the two tablespoons orange juice and sugar mixture and let stand in pan until sugar is absorbed. Do not dissolve sugar entirely, as it should glaze the top of the cake.

BUTTERSCOTCH Pecan Cake-Pudding

Butterscotch is a dessert that offers a surprise. Although this luscious pudding begins with batter in the bottom and pudding mixture on the top, it doesn't end that way. During the baking, the batter rises to the top, a wonderful tender cake, with the luscious butterscotch pudding on the bottom. There's a generous share of crisp pecans all through the pudding for flavor and texture interest.

Butterscotch Pecan Cake-Pudding

(Serves 6-8)

- 1/2 cup shortening
- 1/2 cup sugar
- 2 eggs, separated
- 1 teaspoon vanilla extract
- 1 cup sifted flour
- 1 1/2 teaspoons baking powder
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1/2 cup evaporated milk
- 1/2 cup pecans

Blend shortening and sugar. Add beaten egg yolks and vanilla. Gently fold in the beaten whites. Sift flour with baking powder and salt. Add dry ingredients to egg mixture alternately with the milk. Stir in the pecans and turn batter into a greased 1 1/2 quart casserole.

Pudding:

- 1 1/2 cups brown sugar
- 3 tablespoons flour
- 1 cup evaporated milk
- 1/2 cup grapefruit juice
- Blend sugar and flour. Stir in the milk and grapefruit juice. Mix well and pour gently over batter. Bake in a moderate oven (350°) for one hour. Serve warm.

Burnt Sugar Cake

- 1 cup boiling water
- 3 cups sifted cake flour
- 3 teaspoons baking powder
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1 cup shortening
- 4 eggs, separated
- 1 teaspoon vanilla

Sift flour, baking powder and salt together. Cream shortening with remaining sugar until fluffy. Add unbeaten egg yolks, one at a time, beating thoroughly after each is added. Add vanilla. Add sifted dry ingredients and caramel sirup alternately in small amounts, beating thoroughly after each addition. Fold in stiffly beaten egg whites. Pour into greased pans and bake in moderate oven (350°) 30 to 35 minutes.

Roast beef hash takes on improvement when it's served with a smooth, tart hollandaise sauce.

On the second or third night that you serve spaghetti sauce, try it with slivers of ham, sauteed mushrooms and a sprinkling of sweet basil.

Leftover sweet potatoes take an extra flavor and glaze when they are heated with a bit of orange marmalade.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

Window cords will last longer and raising and lowering of windows will be easier if cords are dusted twice a year and rubbed with an oil-saturated cloth.

Stale soap lasts longer than fresh soap. Buy in advance and remove the wrappers as soon as you get home, so the air can get at the soap while it's stored.

Pile fluffy mashed potatoes into an attractive shallow baking dish, sprinkle with paprika and brown in the oven just before serving.

If you prefer some commercial brand of sand-soap—especially for removing paint—and it isn't kind to your skin, add a little petroleum jelly to the soap before you use it.

If hankies and other small flat articles start doubling back over the rollers when you try to put them through the wringer, squeeze some of the water out of the front end of the hanky with your fingers first, then feed it through.

After an ironing board cover has been washed, it should be put back on the board while damp. When it dries, it will shrink up enough to be smooth and tight.

To sprinkle clothes without spattering everything around, lay them out in the bathtub and drop the water down on them. After that, they can be rolled up and kept covered inside your washing machine until ready to be ironed.

Planning to wash your lamp shades soon? The quicker they are dried the better for them. Turn an electric fan on shades as soon as they are rinsed. This prevents colors from running.

We know that the above directive will have reaction, there will be complaints and hard feelings, as some mail returned will undoubtedly be for reservations for cabins, parts orders, etc, that will mean a loss to the addressee, however, there is no reason why persons or business establishments in another town should continue to receive mail through this office. The same will apply to residents of this City whose mail is being received from other towns. If this mail is returned to the sender once or twice they will correct their records and you will eventually receive better service. Advise your friends and correspondents of your correct address. That is your responsibility. Effective immediately there will be no directory service except for Perishable, special delivery, registered, insured and C. O. D. mail.

There will be no more two or three attempts to deliver improperly addressed mail. All mail must have a definite address. If it is for general delivery it must so state on the address. All mail should have a street number, a box number, or be addressed to Star Route.

The above directive from the Postmaster General. The purpose is to save clerical costs. It will do just that. There can and will be no exception made. Please do not request any. Your duty is to advise your correspondents of your correct address. Do it now!
