Four Grass Fires Costly to City

Sight Seekers Must Not Hamper Fire Department

Tawas City Fire Chief, Fred Musolf, in a statement this week, said that during April and May there have been four grass fires within the city, costing the taxpayers $113.00, and all of these were set by people who had not secured a burning permit. Mr. Musolf warns residents that they are subject to fine for starting fires with out a permit, and while a permit is required by law to burn grass or rubbish, it doesn't relieve any responsibility of fires that get out of hand, burning someone else's property, requiring the aid of the fire department.

Chief Musolf also warns motorists that the local police department has been instructed to issue tickets to drivers who follow the fire trucks too close, or pull up behind them at a fire, thus blocking roads and hampering the firemen's efforts. At a fire call Wednesday evening, between 30 and 40 cars followed the trucks too close, and blocked a narrow street. Luckily nothing serious resulted. In a volunteer fire department such as Tawas City has, all of the firemen can't reach the city hall by the time the fire truck leaves, thereby driving their own cars to the fire. If the roads are jammed with sight seekers following the trucks, the firemen driving in private cars are hampered in their efforts. The State Laws will be enforced to the fullest extent.

East Tawas Defeats Prescott

West Branch Plays at East Tawas Sunday

Last Sunday the East Tawas Independents whipped Bob McPherson's Prescott nine, 10 to 1, at the losers home park. East Tawas broke out with seven runs in the sixth inning to set the Ogemaw county team back on their heels, on five hits, two fielding miscues, two base on balls and a hit batsman.

The veteran pitcher for East Tawas "Pete" Peterson, allowed only three hits in the seven innings that he was on the mound. Barr relieved him in the eighth and allowed but one hit. While on the mound, Peterson struck out twelve of the opposing batsmen.

The Prescott pitcher, G. McCord scattered the hits pretty well to the East Tawas batters, with no one getting more than one hit, but most of these were at an opportune time. Staudacher, Fogelsoy, Coleman, Peterson, Ulman, Katoch and Spencer all connected for hits, with Peterson clubbing a double and Staudacher a triple.

This Sunday, May 28, East Tawas will meet the league leading West Branch Strubs at the East Tawas Ball Park.

Alabaster Loses To West Branch

Pitcher's Duel Marks Last Sunday's Game

In a pitchers duel lasting 10 innings, West Branch outscored Alabaster 2 to 1 last Sunday.

The first run was scored by West Branch in the sixth inning, when Jerry Guy singled, stole second, went to third when Neubecker was out at first and scored on Stan Walter's long fly to right. The score remained 1 to 1 until the ninth. With two out, John Martin drove out a long double to center, with O. Herriman scoring on the play. In the tenth, Uhlir and Reminder walked and were moved up by Sanback's sacrifice hit. When Zettle was out at first, Reminder crossed the plate, and Alabaster failed to score in their half of the tenth.

Alabaster out hit West Branch, eight to two, and left eight men on base, while West Branch left only three.

Martin struck out 16 and Sanback 15; Martin walked three and Sanback one. John Martin and Hill made the only extra base hits, each getting a double. Vern Hill was the day's heavy sticker, with a double and two singles in four times at bat.

To Celebrate 100th Year of Synod

Special Services at Emanuel and St. Paul's

The Emanuel Lutheran Church will join with hundreds of other congregations in observing the hundredth anniversary of the Wisconsin Synod with which they are affiliated.

Special services will be conducted at Emanuel Lutheran church, Sunday, May 28th, at 10:00 A. M. (English) and at 11:15 A. M. (German). All friends and members are invited.

The Joint Synod of Wisconsin, was first organized at Granville, Wisconsin, on May 27, 1850, by five Lutheran pastors, representing 18 congregations. Since that time the Synod has experienced a steady growth. Today it numbers 833 congregations, 620 active pastors, 402 Christian Day School teachers, teaching in 221 schools with an enrollment of 13,799 pupils. Synod of Wisconsin has a membership of 297,292 baptized, 211,030 communicant members. Most of the churches are located in the northern states, from Michigan and the Pacific coast, with a number of congregations in Arizona.

Besides home missions, mission work is carried on among the Apache Indians in Arizona, the refugees in Germany; the negroes of United States and in Nigeria, Africa.

It also maintains its own educational institutions for the training of pastors and teachers; a theological seminary at Thiensville, Wisconsin; a normal school at New Ulm, Minnesota; a college at Watertown, Wisconsin and Lutheran high schools at Saginaw, Michigan and Mobridge, South Dakota.

It is hoped that a collection of one million dollars will be completed in the next few months to carry out a building program and to expand mission work. Construction at the normal school and college is underway. In the near future construction will begin on a new administration building at Saginaw. One million dollars for this purpose was already raised three years ago.

The 100th anniversary of the Evangelical Lutheran Joint Synod of Wisconsin and other states will be observed in St. Paul's English Evangelical Lutheran Church of Hale in special services May 28th, at 10:00 A. M. G. Schmelzer, pastor.

Tawas City Wins 9-5 Game From Hale

Independents Will Play at Prescott This Sunday

After losing the season opener last week, 5 to 4, to West Branch, the Tawas City Independents pushed across four runs in the first inning to jump off to a quick lead Sunday against Hale, with the final score winding up at Tawas City 9, Hale 5.

Herb Look started the season opener in the local park for Tawas City, opposing Hale's Grant Shellenbarger. Herb allowed five hits and threw the third strike past eight batters, while walking one and hitting one batter. Shellenbarger struck out five of the local batters while allowing eleven hits and walking three. Neither of the starting pitchers were on the mound however, when the game ended, with Look needing assistance from Mern Warner in the ninth inning, when he developed a sore hand. Al Miller relieved Shellenbarger in the seventh inning.

Both of the relieving pitchers turned in good performances with Warner allowing one hit, and striking out one. Miller allowed two hits and one run.

Harold Wegner led the locals in their 13 hit attack by slapping out three safeties. Bill Groff, Don Geringer and Harold Blublitz each connected for two safeties.

Tawas City jumped off to a quick lead, in the first inning, when Don Youngs singled, Wegner singled, Warner was safe on an error, Groff forced Warner at second, Youngs scoring. Wegner scored on a wild pitch with Groff taking second. Uhlir, 3b struck out. Groff scoring. Look walked, Geringer struck out. Blublitz singled, Rollin scoring. Anshuetz flied out.

Fire Destroys Home At Whittemore

Fire completely destroyed the home of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Harsch southwest of Whittemore last Wednesday. Efforts of the Whittemore Fire Department to save the home were futile because the fire was burning so intensely by the time the members were notified and could arrive on the scene of the blaze at 3:00 o'clock in the morning.

The family escaped with a few armloads of clothing and bedding and a sewing machine. All other household furnishings were lost. By the time they were aroused the attic of the building was a mass of flames. Only a small amount of insurance was carried.

Would Organize Softball League

Meeting to be Held Wednesday Evening

The organization meeting of the Tawas Softball League will be held next Wednesday evening, May 31, 7:30 p. m. in the evening at the City Hall in Tawas City. Sponsors, managers, players or any one else interested in softball is urged to attend. Plans are now underway for a twelve team or more league. Youngsters and oldtimers are invited to attend also.

The idea of a softball league was initiated late last summer when several teams organized into a league, with games played two nights a week.

Work on the diamond in the city park will begin this week, with a few loads of clay for the baselines and pitchers box. Several diamonds will have to be laid out, because it is expected there will be more than twelve teams participating.

Softball will provide a lot of entertainment, for young or old, in the evenings this summer. Don't fail to be on hand at the city hall next Wednesday evening, to help get the league organized.

Literary Club Ends Successful Year

An interesting and successful year of the Ladies Literary Club ended on May 17 with a luncheon served by St. Anne's Guild of the Episcopal church.

A business session followed during which Miss Amanda Hamilton, Club historian, read the Constitution and By-laws as amended and the new rules were accepted. Mrs. Watson, retiring president, gave a short report on the accomplishments of the club during the year. Mrs. Watson then introduced Mrs. Arthur Johnson, the new president, who presided over the remainder of the meeting.

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS

May Day Disappoints Communists; New York Students Stage Riots; Gambler Admits Making $100,000

EDITOR'S NOTE: When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of Western Newspaper-Union's news analysts and not necessarily of this newspaper.

MAY DAY:

Disappointing Outside Russia, May Day proved a great disappointment to the Communists.

In Berlin, for instance, where the Reds had hoped for strife, a half million people, drawn from both halves of the divided city, roared defiance to the Soviet Union and German communism and pledged allegiance to freedom.

At least 500,000 staged a spectacular demonstration in the British zone, dwarfing the well-organized parade only a few blocks away. The Reds claimed that 800,000 participated, but east-sector police on the spot volunteered that the crowd was no more than 250,000.

And, although the meetings were next door to each other, there was no outstanding violence. A flurry of stone-throwing and a few fist fights was the extent of battle.

Of the speakers, aging Mayor Ernest Reuter of Berlin was the most popular. The crowd applauded and cheered when he said, "We Berliners are not afraid of anything."

In New York, the annual May Day parade was held to the tune of jeers from spectators and a few fist fights. About 13,000 persons attended the rally, the smallest number in years.

Also on the home front, the little town of Mosinee, Wis., experimented with communism for the day and a strong-armed "guerrilla" band ground 2,000 residents under the heel of a mock Communist boot.

The mayor was forced to surrender the town, the police chief was executed, a concentration camp was filled with hymn singers, churches were closed and food rationed. The residents of the little town felt it was well worth while.

All in all, the day outside Russia proved a great disappointment to the Communists. It was evident also, that the so-called "witch-hunt" underway in congress is making a great many Communists depart the company of fellow organizers.

GAMBLING:

Probe Continued

The battle against gambling syndicates conducted by cities throughout the nation and many states for years, and recently picked up by the senate, seemed to have reached the right road and moved along rapidly.

The senators, considering a proposal to bar the interstate transmission of information about gambling, hope to curb what some lawmakers say is a nationwide crime syndicate founded on illegal bookmaking and slot machines.

The senate subcommittee in its investigation gained two admissions from Frank Erickson, called one of the nation's biggest gamblers:

1. He broke the law in running up a $100,000 a year net income from taking bets which ranged from $20,000 to $40,000 a day.

2. His interstate operations would be stopped if the government prevented the transmission of gambling information across state lines.

At one point in the investigation Erickson admitted that he was often "ashamed" of his activities.

LABOR PARTY:

Stands Test

Bulletins on the physical condition of ailing members of the house of commons have become a part of British humor recently.

Members of the labor party, however, are not finding them very funny, especially since the one-vote victory on a minor issue. By just one vote the government escaped an embarrassing defeat and a serious blow to its prestige.

The issue, a token cut to the transportation appropriation amounting to only 1,000 pounds, tied 278 to 278. The chairman of the house, Laborite James Milner, cast the deciding vote on the government's side.

As a result of the narrow escape, English political observers said they expected Prime Minister Attlee to enforce even stronger discipline on attendance of Labor members in the house.

Observers said that the vote also gave a true picture as to just how narrow the balance of power in the British government has become.

BELGIUM:

Crisis Again

For the third time within a year the Belgians will vote on the question of the exiled monarch's future.

The new election was ordered after the collapse of a final effort to constitute a new coalition government of social christians and liberals for the recall of King Leopold III.

Observers predicted that the next election would be as indecisive as the recent referendum.

Students Riot

Holding a boy firmly by the collar, a New York mounted policeman is shown taking into custody one of the thousands of high school students who demonstrated and rioted in Foley Square as a follow-up of their support of teachers' salary and other demands.

STUDENTS:

Stage Riots

Thousands of New York high school students staged repeated demonstrations—some outright riots—demanding higher pay for teachers and portesting a virtual halt in after-school activities.

As many as 5,000 students repeatedly rushed city offices and clashed with police. They shouted and shoved, threw stones, stuck pins in police horses, set off firecrackers, and made trouble in general.

New York's school problems can be traced directly to the teachers who have demanded more money. As a result, $13,000,000 was added to the school budget, but Mayor O'Dwyer cut this figure to $7,000,000. The teachers then called a modified strike, keeping classes but refusing to supervise "extra-curricular" activities such as commencement exercises, senior dances, plays, proms and class days.

As a result, the students staged demonstrations which at first were taken lightly, but soon gave evidence of brilliant organization and direction.

The picture became more confused when the Communist Daily Worker praised the demonstrators and accused the New York police of invoking "terror" methods against them.

Said Federal Judge John C. Knox of Southern New York district court: The photographs of jostling mobs "will bring joy to the inmates of the Kremlin"; the riots are "daring and disgraceful."

GERMANY:

People's Police

Two Communist storm troopers, who wandered into West Berlin, confirmed long-standing British and American suspicions that the Soviet Union was rearming East Germany.

The two strays, armed to the teeth, pleaded guilty in a U. S. court of entering the section in para-military uniform. Weapons included army pistols, machine guns and assault rifles.

The men said they were members of the Soviet zone "People's Police" but that it is in reality an army. Members of the organization get short training as policemen, including law courses, then go in for tanks, armored cars, light and heavy machine guns, grenades and assault rifles.

On top of that, daily classes in "political education" under Communist commissars are given the 36 units of 1,000 men each.

As if in answer to Communist plan, the United States defense department answered the following day that 146,500 army troops are maintained by this country in west Germany.

The department said nearly 600,000 men, more than 40 per cent of the country's total all-service armed strength, are on duty outside the United States.

Of the troops in Germany, an army spokesman said, 85,000 are concentrated in Berlin. The defense department has long operated on the theory that Russia would like nothing better than a chance to take over Berlin.

WAR:

Not Imminent

The world was glad to hear the words of Chairman Connally, of the senate foreign relations committee, that there seems to be no immediate danger of war with Russia.

The Texan said in an interview: (1) Communist pressure would force the United States to abandon South Korea; (2) the Baltic plane incident has not hastened war between this country and Russia.

TAXES:

Vote Cut

The all-important house ways and means committee has voted a 20 per cent slash of the federal admission tax on film, stage and sport tickets.

The action, were it to become law, would mean an annual loss estimated at $242,000,000, bringing the total cuts and exemptions approved thus far to $575,000,000.

Political observers agreed that the cut would be a popular vote-catching move, but at the same time, were beginning to wonder if there are enough "loopholes" in existing tax laws to make up the deficit that appears likely.

President Truman was of the opinion that by tightening certain tax laws, funds will be available for government operations the next fiscal year.

In fact, the President threatened to veto any bill that fails to offset the losses by provision of new revenue from other sources. He asked that the excise cuts be held to $655,000,000.

At this point another problem appears. The committee had not yet voted on two of the most important of wartime excises—communications and transportation.

Some members predict that another $500,000,000 cut would be approved in these fields. If that should be the case, the total reduction would climb to more than $1,000,000,000.

What happens next? If Mr. Truman kept his word he would veto any bill that did not take up the slack from another quarter. Add to that, the cut is 345 billion above what the President recommended.

It seemed that a battle was shaping up for the future. It was an interesting situation, to say the least.

EMPLOYMENT:

Almost Peak

The census bureau reported that employment was within a stone's throw of 60 million jobs, a pickup of 1,117,000 over the bureau's previous report.

Included in the report was the good news that the 1950 number of unemployed sank to 3,515,000—a new low for the year.

Secretary of Commerce Charles Sawyer said the gains were "probably greater than was generally anticipated." He cautioned, however, that the gains were at least partly seasonal.

Commerce officials had hopes that the high employment rate might be maintained through the summer. The reason: factory production and sales both at the highest levels in more than a year, new orders placed with manufacturers reached a postwar peak, and "unfilled" orders continue to accumulate.

Farming was the only branch not reflecting increases, however. Despite the seasonal rise in jobs, the total number in farm work continued below the level a year ago by about 625,000.

CORPORATION:

Capital Up

The securities and exchange commission reports the net working capital of United States corporations rose 2.9 billions last year to 64.7 billion dollars.

The business world took immediate notice of one item in the report. Corporate working capital at the end of 1949 was more liquid than at any time since the early part of 1947.

This increased liquidity last year resulted from a 2-billion-dollar rise in holding of cash and United States government securities, and a 5.5 billion decline in current liabilities.

In all, the outlook was good most observers agreed.

'Big Time'

Frank Erickson, big-time gambler, admitted to the senate committee investigation gambling that he made $100,000 a year from taking bets from "anybody who wants to bet." The senate group is studying legislation to bar interstate transmission of gambling information.

Rich Nizam

One of the richest men in the world, the Nizam of Hyderabad, India, who keeps silver, gold, jewels and bank notes valued at about $130,000,000 in air-conditioned vaults into which he alone may enter, patches and darns his worn garments himself.

Although he uses a large uncut diamond as a paperweight, he doesn't throw money around.

SET FOR ANTI-RIOT EXERCISE IN BERLIN... United States soldiers of the 16th constabulary practice diligently in the "headquarters" they erected in a forest west of Berlin in preparation for the anti-rioting exercise that was scheduled recently. United States troop units of the 16th infantry regiment and the constabulary troops were slated to take part in a full-scale exercise during which more than 100,000 mythical rioters were to attempt the storming of the headquarters compound in the U. S. sector. These maneuvers were practice for meeting actual rioting which might come later.

TELL-TALE MARKS OF DRUG ADDICT... An unidentified victim of narcotics exposes an arm scarred by needle at the offices of the Pennsylvania boxing commission. Examining the tell-tale marks are (left to right) Dr. Joseph L. Levy, commission physician; O. DaGrosa, commission chairman; and Joseph Bransky, federal narcotics chief in Philadelphia. DaGrosa, state athletic commissioner, announced that he has launched a "complete investigation" to determine whether the narcotics racket has harmed the fight game in Pennsylvania. The announcement came after a meeting with Bransky, who is heading the current drive against Philadelphia drug peddlers.

"OPERATION HOMESICK"... Forty-one British war brides and their 32 children get ready to hop off in the "Flying Cradle" for a 35-hour flight to England for a four months' visit. The plane, a T.V.A. DC-4 Skymaster, was chartered by the British war brides' club for approximately $25,000. The flight will mark the first visit home in five years for the brides. Baby sitters aboard included Co-pilot George DiJeu, Stewardess Violet Sharman and Mark Burke. Here the wives bid their husbands goodbye before the large plane leaves the ground. The plane took off from an airport in Burbank, California.

THE LESSON IS THERE, BUT THEY WON'T LEARN... Five years after the death of the German dictator, Adolph Hitler, the great Reichschancellery in Berlin, where he plotted his dream of world conquest, might be exchanged for money or food. Allied airmen taught Berlin a terrible lesson. But some Germans won't learn. Here, a group of "free German youth," an organization that follows the Nazi pattern, marches in the city. Other sections of German youth have embraced communism and threaten to invade the western sectors.

MANY FOLKS throughout the country must be confused by the charges and counter-charges on most every controversial question before congress, and particularly, the hornet's nest stirred up by the wild, irresponsible charges made by Sen. Joseph McCarthy of Wisconsin concerning communism in the state department.

But one thing is certain, there can be no confusion over the following statement from the President of the United States: "Now I am going to tell you how we are not going to fight communism. We are not going to transform our fine FBI into a Gestapo-like secret police. We are not going to try to control what our people read and say and think. We are not going to turn the United States into a right-wing totalitarian country in order to deal with a left-wing totalitarian threat."

The President's talk before a national convention of lawyers followed closely upon the fighting speech made by Secretary of State Dean Acheson before the American Society of Newspaper Editors during which the staid, conservative Joseph Pulitzer, editor of the St. Louis Post Dispatch yelled above the applauding group, "Pour it on, Mr. Secretary."

And with Senator McCarthy sitting there before him, the suave, polished Acheson, in a cold fury, but speaking in his precise, clipped diction, likened McCarthy's charges to the "vicious madness" which prompted the madman in Camden, New Jersey, to shoot down 13 persons "without sense, without purpose, without direction;" or, with a man who says to himself, the best way to find a fire is to ring every fire alarm in the city in the hope of turning up a fire.

Citizens Urged to Help

President Truman said this government would fight communism wherever a Communist was found and he urged every private citizen to inform the FBI, or local law enforcing agencies, about any suspicious character, any form of subversion in any community. He pointed out that the government had prosecuted and convicted 11 top Communists in the nation; they had used every law on the statute books and recommended new laws where found necessary; that there are more than 1,000 persons under probe for revocation of citizenship on subversive charges; that 138 persons are facing deportation on grounds involving communism.

One Person Convicted

Here in Washington the records show that in three years of weeding and screening of government departments, the net result has been as follows: one person, Judith Coplon, convicted of espionage and approximately 3,000,000 federal employees and applicants for government jobs since 1947 have gone through the loyalty boards. Out of that total, questions were raised concerning 11,619 persons and were investigated by the Federal Bureau of Investigation. Some evidence that warranted further study was found against 7,342. Their records were turned over to the loyalty boards. Out of that total, 6,910 convinced the boards they were innocent of the charges.

That leaves 432 found ineligible for employment and, of this number, 182 actually were dismissed from the government, or barred from getting a job. On appeal to the Loyalty Board of Review and the presentation of new evidence, 124 of the 432 were restored to the eligible lists. The remaining 126 cases are in various stages of consideration. None, however, are working while their cases are pending.

Attacks Marshall

Head of the state department loyalty board is Gen. Conrad Edwin Snow, a New Hampshire Republican and former secretary of his state's bar Association. Head of the loyalty review board is Hon. Seth W. Richardson, an Iowa Republican and a former assistant attorney general under President Herbert Hoover.

Despite what may have happened or may still happen in the senate probe of communism, it is generally understood here in Washington that the motivation behind all these charges is the attempt to pin a campaign issue on the Chinese foreign policy of the administration.

Television Expanding

Television, fastest-growing of America's new industries, was striding across the nation like the proverbial puss-in-boots. A complete cross-country network was promised by industry leaders for early 1952.

The American Telephone and Telegraph Company's long-line department previously had announced extension of such facilities from Chicago to Omaha by this fall of 1950.

Two Stories of the Futures of Two People— A Girl Worried About Hers; a Man Did Not

By BILLY ROSE

Here are two stories, both true. The first is as mean as a thumb in the eye; the second, as heartening as a sunrise.

The man one is about a Philadelphia industrialist who, on one of his frequent business trips to New York, made the acquaintance of a young lady whose good looks were only surpassed by her amiability. Despite the fact that he was married, the tycoon began to see a lot of the girl, and it wasn't long before he had set her up in a Madison avenue apartment and was forking over $300 a week to cover expenses.

After a couple of cozy and clandestine years, the girl said to him one night, "if something ever happens to you, Daddy, I'll be left without a penny. Don't you think you ought to do something about securing my future?"

"You're absolutely right," said the industrialist. "Give me a few days to work it out."

Billy Rose

"The next time he called on the girl, he handed her half a million dollars worth of 3 per cent railroad bonds.

"These will yield you an income of 15 thousand a year," he said. "Every three months as the coupons come due, clip them and I'll cash them in for you, and you can use the money for expenses."

"You'll notice I haven't put your name on the bonds. Well, that's because the transfer of so large a sum would come to the attention of the board of directors and cause a lot of talk. However, if anything happens to me, you can write your name in and sell the whole lot at any brokerage house."

The girl thanked him, and the pair continued seeing each other until the tycoon keeled over in his Philadelphia office a couple of years later with an attack of coronary thrombosis. When his lady friend read the obituary in the papers, she wrote her name on the bonds and took them to the brokerage house.

The broker examined the certificates. "You're a little late, Miss," he said. "This railroad went out of existence almost 30 years ago."

The girl picked up the worthless paper and walked out. "The dirty double-crosser," she muttered. "All he gave me was the same three hundred a week."

AND NOW let me take the thumb

out of your eye and show you the sunrise.

Some years ago, an Iowa garage man went bankrupt and decided to make a fresh start in another state. He scraped together a little cash, loaded his wife and kids into a beat-up Chevrolet and headed for California. Unfortunately, the jalopy broke down outside of Tucson and the cost of getting it fixed cleaned him out.

To get a little eating money, he set out to canvass the garages in town for a job but quickly found the supply of local labor was greater than the demand—Tucson, because of its climate, was filled with tuberculosis victims, a good many of whom were mechanics.

At the last garage on his list, he repeated his hard-luck story and got the standard turnaround, but as he started to walk out he was stopped by one of the mechanics.

"If you need a job as bad as you say," he said, "you can have mine. I'm pretty sure I can fix it with the boss."

"Don't you need the job yourself?" said the man from Iowa.

"I've saved enough to last me for six months," said the mechanic, "and the doctor who's treating me for TB says that's all I figure to live."

This Is Your Paper Not All Pictures Are Good Ones

By William R. Nelson

A PICTURE may or may not be worth "10,000 words," as the Chinese proverb claims, but it certainly represents a pretty penny in costs, time, space and judgment, if published in a newspaper. In addition, it is seldom desirable to republish a picture, so all of the effort, time and money expended is for a single use.

Editors appreciate the interest shown when readers suggest publication of pictures, and they comply as often as possible. But publishing a picture in a newspaper is not as easy as it may seem.

Pictures are only "worth 10,000 words" when they convey desired information. That immediately classifies them as news and means they should be selected for their news value. Unless a photograph is of someone or some event currently in the news, publication has little or no meaning.

Assuming that a picture has news value, it then must be of such quality it will reproduce well in the paper. Many photographs which are entirely satisfactory for an album cannot be reproduced distinctly enough to be recognizable in a newspaper. Publishing such pictures is a disappointing waste of space, effort and money.

There are other factors, too, such as permission of those in the picture for its publication, its news value or the amount of interest in it among the paper's readers, and whether there is time to make a cut.

If not taken specifically for the paper, on its order, a photograph may not be timely and therefore its use may seem incongruous. Even if timely but received too late to get a cut made, it may not be practical to use it in a later issue because reader interest will have waned by then.

For these and many other reasons, the editor is always the best judge of whether or not a picture can or should be published. If the paper publishes other pictures, some not local in origin, in the very issue for which yours was rejected, it is well to remember that in addition to the above factors, there is still another. It is that some pictures, always of news value, are furnished to the paper in forms that make their use easy and inexpensive, because they are also supplied to many other papers.

He has had plenty of radio experience, and as singing lead in the musical, "Call Me Mister," was signed by MGM for a role opposite Ann Sothern in "Nancy Goes to Rio". He stands six feet-four, is good looking, is now appearing on Broadway in "Texas, Li'l Darling" and doing fine.

Irene Tedlow, "Mrs. Archer" of "Meet Corliss Archer," says she has learned a lot about bringing up her two young children from her years on the CBS show—and about what to expect when they reach their teens. She's had the role since the very beginning, and has never missed a performance, but manages her household, does other radio shows and several movies a year.

3 Minute Fiction

THE DAY BEFORE Darling's three-ring circus, largest to ever visit New England, came to Dexter, Silas Ledbetter called his 12-year-old son in from the barn and said:

"Look here, Jackie, you've been a pretty good boy this summer. Guess you deserve being on hand with the other boys at that circus when it gets here tomorrow."

The Ledbetters were poor as church mice, and Jackie hadn't dared even let himself think his pop would let him attend the circus. Consequently, his round blue eyes grew even rounder.

Old Silas grinned and swallowed a lump in his throat. He dug down into his pocket and brought out a shiny, new silver half-dollar.

Jackie carefully placed the half-dollar in a pocket of his tattered overalls, pulled his straw hat well over his ruddy face, puckered up his lips and began to whistle. He whistled all that afternoon and was still whistling when he came in from the lower lot for supper.

Once upstairs, Jackie carefully took off his shirt and then felt in the pocket of his overalls for the half dollar. He'd better sleep with it under his pillow, he reasoned, like he'd read about folks doing.

It was right then that Jackie's heart sank, right then that the world turned black and there was a horrible, terrifying, empty feeling in the pit of his stomach. The half dollar was gone!

Jackie wanted to cry, but he was too much of a man for that. He searched through the other pocket very carefully, and then looked in his shoes, and under the bed and about everywhere that the half dollar might have been. But it was gone, completely vanished.

And so Jackie, his heart aching with misery, crawled into bed. And then—he couldn't help it—he cried. But all the time he kept telling himself he was a man now and he'd better stop crying before mom came up to tuck him in and kiss him good night.

If mom found him crying she'd feel bad and probably cry, too. And Jackie didn't want that to happen.

HE COULDN'T, he decided, even let mom know that he had lost the half dollar. Or pop either. That wouldn't be fair. He'd just go off by himself tomorrow afternoon and make them think he was at the circus all the time. He wouldn't want them to know for anything. There wasn't any one in the world had a better pop and mom than he. Jackie fought to keep back the tears. He didn't wait long after

GREEN GRASS OF WYOMING

By Mary O'Hara

Carey March is beginning to realize a growing affection for Ken. She feels a sudden surging of the heart when she sees Ken again as she and her uncle, Beaver Greenway, join Ken and his dad, Rob, and brother, Howard, at Westgate to begin the search for the filly, Crown Jewel, who has been added to his herd by Thunderhead, Ken's banished stallion. Carey's grandmother forbids Carey going out with Ken that night, but Ken wangles from Carey an admission that she "likes" him. As the searching party plans progress, the sheriff raises a point about Crown Jewel's ownership, since she bears no brand and can't be identified that way.

CHAPTER XVIII

The work of cutting the timber and building the forty-by-forty-foot corral went on quickly and quietly. No hammers or nails were used. Posthole diggers made the holes for the uprights, the long poles were fastened against them by bailing wire.

And then the wings, wings a hundred feet long, seven feet high. "I should think," said Greenway as he and Rob rode slowly along the mountain side above the corral, "that six-foot wings and fences would have been high enough."

"Six-foot fences would have been high enough for the mares," said Rob, "there won't be any trouble with them at all. They've all been handled, they'd trot right into a corral and look for oats. Unless he has picked up some wild mares as well. Buck was saying he thought there were some wild mares in the bunch—but Thunderhead is the only one there will be trouble with, and if he really wanted to get over a six-foot fence, he'd manage it somehow."

Greenway whistled. "Six feet! Great Scott! Why, no corral or pasture will hold him!" "That's the devil of it," "What are you going to do with him when he's caught?"

Rob laughed. "Theme song! What to do with Thunderhead! You wouldn't like to buy him, would you?"

"Rob, I want to ask you something," "Shoot."

"I'd like to take Ken back with me to the Blue Moon for a visit of a few weeks—or as long as you can spare him."

Rob said doubtfully, "That's certainly very kind of you—"

"Not kind at all—purely selfish. Carey and he are great pals—have you noticed them together?"

Rob turned to face him and both men burst into a laugh. "I sure have!"

"Well, that young child of mine doesn't have enough companionship with young people her own age. She's had the time of her life with you and your wife and your boys this summer and it's been good for her and I want it to go on."

Greenway puts foot down for own ideas

Rob asked, "How will your sister feel about this?"

Rob was looking at him, waiting for him to answer. Greenway cleared his throat with a little embarrassment. "In a matter like this, it's my say-so. But I don't mind telling you, Rob, that I'm quite worried about the way my sister has got Carey under her thumb. She's a very imperious woman. She won't have anything to do with anyone she can't rule. Except me. The way I've managed, I live my own life, keep out of her way, kid her a little bit, let her do as she wants. But when it comes to Carey—it's a—"

He hesitated. "Well," said Rob slowly, "I've noticed a good deal of that. Is she really ill?"

"I wish I knew. She has a doctor come to see her at home, a tame cat. In my opinion she makes her own diagnosis, tells him what's the matter with her, what she ought to eat, do, how people ought to treat her, then pulls that on Carey and me and anyone she wants to rule. He falls for it. She turns on her charm—she's got charm, you know."

"Yes, and knows how to use it," said Rob. "But surely, when it comes to Carey, you can do what you think best?"

"It's not so easy. I haven't interfered much so far because Carey is so young and, by and large, has been happy and well. But I admit I have often had a sinking sensation when I thought about what would happen when the time comes for the girl to marry."

"You'd better look out or Carey will never marry. Many a time, a character like your sister's made an old maid of a girl."

"I know it. She did her best to prevent her daughter's marriage, and she'll do her best to prevent Carey's."

"That accounts for the way she looks at Ken. As if she would like to poison him."

Greenway laughed. "Yes, he's the enemy right now. But it's more than that. Carey's growing up. Her life is opening out. And she feels Carey escaping her."

He said, "You look out, or she'll ruin your little girl's life."

"No," said Greenway, "I shan't give in to her. The thing that will do it is to send Carey away to college. Meanwhile, let me have Ken. There's another reason I want him, Rob."

"Yes?"

"He did a wonderful job training his stallion."

"Yes, I can say that for him."

"Well, Jewel is going to need a lot of training and I'd like your boy to do it."

"Jewel will be in good condition. This life on the range puts them into top form."

"She may have a foal."

"Even so, she won't be soft. I'll wager she'll be in racing form by October or November."

Ken Suggested As Jewel Trainer

"All the same, she'll need training and Ken's the one to do it."

Rob did not answer. As between having the gelding done with Ken looking on, or away at blue Moon. Then, when Ken returned he would be presented with a fait accompli.

Ken asked: "How will your sister feel about this?"

"Well, all right, Greenway. I consent and I think it'll be a fine thing for Ken."

"That's settled then. I am delighted and I know Carey will be."

Rob pointed down at the camp. "Look, smoke! Time for lunch."

They rode down and dismounted, and joined the men.

Ken came to the fire, took his mug of coffee and sat down on a rock. Greenway studied his face, noting something wistful in the eyes, something stubborn in the mouth—all of it very sensitive, quick, and handsome. Gad! no wonder Carey—

"Ken," he said, "your Dad and I've been cooking up a plan that concerns you."

Ken looked up, "You have, sir?"

"Yes, I'm looking for someone to train Jewel for me. How'd you like to come to the Blue Moon with me and put some good work on that filly?"

"You mean right now?" Ken's face flushed clear to the top of his brow. He was thinking, Carey!

Carey—

"Yes. As soon as we've caught her."

"Why, gosh! Mr. Greenway, that'd be keen—" His eyes swung over to his father. "Did Dad say I could?"

"Certainly. I think it would be a nice visit for you."

"What's going to be done with Thunderhead?"

Rob was silent. Every man present was willing to contribute suggestions. No one had as yet had a good look at either Thunderhead or the filly. The sides of the ravine were timbered nearly to the top. To reach the corral site the men rode out on an old timber trail along the outer side of the ridge. And Rob had given orders that no one was to go close to the horses.

Ken answered in the negative. "I don't want him gelded," he said.

"A lad of one idea," said Rob sarcastically.

"Why Ken, golden! won't hurt him none," said Tim.

"It might kill him," said Ken. "Could happen, but ain't likely."

"Besides," said Ken, "he would never be the same again."

"Ken means," said Rob in the same mocking manner, "that he would never be the great Thunderhead, any more!"

The men gulped down the coffee from their big tin mugs.

"But g'durn it, Ken, what use is he?" demanded Hank Perry, tall leathery woodsman from one of the lumber camps.

"What I tell him," said Rob, "is that, whether or no he wants Thunderhead gelded, it's going to be done, either by a good veterinarian with clean instruments or by a rusty old pocket knife in the hands of some enraged rancher."

"Better let me have him, Caplain," said the persistent Ross as he tended the fire, "don't take any of that ginger outen him."

Ken's face was pale and set. Here it was. The same jam he had been in after Thunderhead lost the race at Saginaw Falls, only now he couldn't say that there was a valley in which he could lock the stallion up and keep him out of trouble.

As they rode along the lumber trail Ken said, "Mr. Greenway, I'm awful sorry, but I don't think I can go up there with you to the blue Moon."

"Why not, Ken?"

"Well, because of Thunderhead. You see, we haven't really decided what to do with him, and I'd be afraid to leave him with anybody else."

Greenway pulled up his horse, Ken turned to face him and they looked into each other's eyes. "I'll be damned," thought Greenway, "he believes his father is going to geld the horse the minute his back is turned."

"Don't know as I blame him," muttered Greenway. "But I don't blame the kid either. He'd better stick tight."

"What did you say, sir?"

"Just thinking out loud." He pulled up his horse again and slung the field glasses off his shoulder. He aimed them at the bottom, and through them could see the horses moving in the underbrush.

"Want a look?" he handed the glasses to Ken.

Ken sick as Rob Hints Stallion Fate

Suddenly there was an exclamation from Ken. "Oh, gosh! There he is!" He dropped the glasses and strained his naked eyes and saw the whiteness of the stallion crossing a patch of green. Mr. Greenway took the glasses, put them to his eyes, and had a glimpse.

"Well, there he is," he said, as they moved on again. "And little he knows that he has come to the end of his career of crime."

He looked, smiling, at Ken. "Gives you a big thrill, I guess, at the idea of having him again?"

Ken's face was all lit up. "And how!" He kept turning in his saddle to look back.

"Ken, I'd like to help you out."

Ken looked at the old gentleman questioningly.

"Suppose we take Thunderhead with us to the blue Moon?"

Ken's face went blank. He thought hard.

"You see, I want you to come and if I can't get you without the stallion—"

"Gosh, Mr. Greenway!"

"Well, will you come?"

"Will I come! You bet I will! Mr. Greenway, I'm ever so much obliged. You don't know what a fix this gets me out of."

Mr. Greenway was saying calmly, "We'll locate a double trailer and put Thunderhead and Jewel in it together. They ought to be good friends after this year spent together."

One morning—it was the day on which the corral and wings were to be finished—Carey came down to the hotel dining-room in a dress instead of riding clothes. She explained to her uncle that she would not be able to go out to the camp with them, because her grandmother was staying in bed and she had to bring her meals up. Carey was downcast for tomorrow was the round-up.

Without a word, Mr. Greenway rose from the breakfast table and went upstairs. He found his sister sitting up against pillows, a thin silk bed jacket over her shoulders and a copy of the Westgate Weekly Sentinel in her hands.

He drew up a chair beside the bed and took hold of her wrist at which she put her paper aside and looked at him in astonishment. He said gravely, "What is the matter with you, Caroline?"

"I am feeling very badly," she answered with hauteur.

"You need some castor oil, about five ounces."

"Don't be vulgar, Beaver."

"Well, what is it then?"

"My heart has been jumping and fluttering and I have dizzy spells. This intense heat is very bad for me."

"I believe there is a good doctor in Westgate, I'll try to look him up and send him in to see you. Perhaps we had better postpone our departure tomorrow?"

"We are leaving tomorrow."

"The work is practically finished. We will drive the horses into the corral early tomorrow morning. Then there is nothing to keep us. We can leave immediately."

"I shall be very glad to leave this place." She sank back weakly against her pillows. "You don't know what it is like to be ill and alone in a strange place. Carey has been constantly away from me."

"For the last few days she has, because I insisted on it. But I do not want you to be left without attention if you are ill. That is why I spoke of getting the doctor. Or a nurse."

"I do not need a nurse. There is nothing that Carey cannot do."

THE BIBLE SPEAKS International Uniform Sundry School Lessons By DR. KENNETH J. FOREMAN

SCRIPTURE: Micah, especially 1:1; 2:12, 3:5-12, 6:6-8. DEVOTIONAL READING: Psalm 72: 1-9.

God and Our Rights

Lesson for May 21, 1950

CIVIL RIGHTS are now a political football in the United States. Every legislator likes to be known as favoring them. Everybody seems to be all out for rights for everybody. The truth is, a lot of us just talk. When it comes down to political facts, the people who get their "rights" recognized first are the people with the most votes. The little people, especially if they haven't too many votes, are likely to be stepped on.

Dr. Foreman

Cannibal Country

THIS IS NOT a new problem. Long ago the prophet Micah faced it, said some brave words about it. He was a small-town man living in a village near the Judah-Philistine border line. Judah was at that time mostly rural.

The villages were made up of farmers, who did not live on their farms as we do but lived all together for protection, going out into the country by day to work their farms, coming back to the village at night. None of them owned very much land, and few indeed were rich.

There was just one big city in Judah, Jerusalem the capital. Compared with the rest of the country it was immense and enormously rich. Now it does not take two guesses to know how Judah, as a nation, was run. Jerusalem ran it. The big city was growing richer and richer while the country grew poorer and poorer.

The small farmers were losing their lands and becoming tenants or hired men (2:1-2). Micah even talks of the princes of Israel, the aristocracy, as cannibals, eating the flesh of the people.

Half Slave, Half Free

NO COUNTRY is a good country, no country is in a healthy condition, if one part of it is tearing the other part down. If the strong are living off the weak, the whole nation grows weak. Micah saw that exactly; indeed, he predicted that because of the kind of country it was, half opposed and half oppressing, it would be destroyed.

No enemy of his country, he did not enjoy forecasting its downfall. But he loved people, he loved his country neighbors; he could see what was happening to people who were being crushed down into the dirt, he knew that could not go on and on without a smash. (And it came!)

This has been the story over and over again in the history of nations. When the few grow strong at the expense of the many, when wealth is concentrated in a few cities, or in a few individuals or families, look out!

When this goes on for a long time and becomes a sort of national habit, the nation may not fall at once but becomes a pushover for anybody who wants to take it. Why, for instance, was the downfall of the "Nationalists" in China so swift? It was because the Chinese people had become convinced that the political leaders and their wealthy backers were in it for what they could get out of it.

Why did so many Nationalist troops fail to fight, why did they surrender repeatedly without striking a blow? Because armies are made of common men, and the common man has been taking a beating too long. There is very little patriotism in a beaten man.

We Have Our Own Problems

WE ARE FORTUNATE in that we live in more democratic times and lands. It should never be forgotten that democracy is a fruit of the Jewish-Christian tradition which the prophet Micah helped to form. It was the prophets who plowed deeply the soil out of which democracy has grown.

Many of the laws of our land are intended to keep the strong from eating up the weak. The farmer, the man out of work, the man with the small job, the man with the small business—they are protected under our government, whether in Canada or in the United States, as they never were in ancient Judah.

To test whether we are treating others right, especially those who are weaker than ourselves, we need first to ask these basic questions: Do these people get their share of justice, and are we helping them get it? Do we treat them with mercy or do we only "use" them for our own benefit?

Cook Strawberries Quickly When Preserving (See Recipe Below)

Preserve the Strawberry

THE STRAWBERRY SEASON is all too short, especially if you like this handsome, red, luscious berry. However, while it's here, plan to put away some of the berries in the form of jam or preserves so you may enjoy them the year around.

Strawberries are rich in vitamin C but should be eaten fresh to get maximum benefits from this nutrient. Short cooking time will avoid complete loss of the vitamin, as well as preserving the color and flavor.

The berries have an affinity with pineapple and rhubarb, and may be combined with them, as you will see in the recipes.

Rhubarb-Ripe Strawberry Jam (Makes 7 6-ounce glasses)

3 cups prepared fruit 4 1/2 cups sugar 1 box powdered fruit pectin To prepare fruit, trim and slice fine (do not peel) about 1/2 pound small red-stalked rhubarb. Grind about one quart fully ripe strawberries or crush completely one layer at a time so that each berry is reduced to a pulp. Combine fruits.

Measure sugar into dry dish and set aside until needed. Measure prepared fruit into a five- to six-quart kettle, filling up last cup or fraction of cup with water if necessary.

Place over hottest fire. Add powdered fruit pectin, mix well, and continue stirring until mixture comes to a hard boil. At once pour in sugar, stirring constantly. (To reduce foaming, 1/4 teaspoon butter may be added.) Continue stirring, bring to a full rolling boil, and boil hard 1 minute.

Remove from fire, skim, pour quickly. Paraffin hot jam at once.

Ripe Strawberry Jam (Makes 10 6-ounce glasses)

4 cups prepared fruit 6 1/2 cups sugar 1 box powdered fruit pectin To prepare fruit, grind about two quarts fully ripe berries, or crush completely one layer at a time so that each berry is reduced to a pulp.

Measure sugar into dry dish and set aside until needed. Measure prepared fruit into a five- to six-quart kettle, filling up last cup or fraction of cup with water if necessary.

Place over hottest fire. Add powdered fruit pectin, mix well, and continue stirring until mixture comes to a hard boil. At once pour in sugar, stirring constantly. (To reduce foaming, 1/4 teaspoon butter may be added.) Continue stirring, bring to a full rolling boil, and boil hard one minute.

Remove from fire, skim, pour quickly. Paraffin hot jam at once.

Strawberry Preserves

THE COLOR and flavor of strawberries are easily destroyed by heat. Hence, in making preserves it is well to cook them only a short time.

Method I. Select large, firm, tart berries. Wash, drain, and remove LYNN SAYS: Tempting Taste Tricks Depend on Flavors There's a nice surprise in prunes for everyone if you'll just cook them in pineapple juice drained from the fruit.

Pep your last of the canned green beans by adding a finely minced clove of garlic to them while heating.

Marjoram added to stewed tomatoes give them a special touch which will have the folks calling for seconds and thirds.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

Raisin Donuts Maple syrup and raisins! There's a delicious combination, especially when you serve it this way. Cook 1 cup raisins in 1/2 cup water until raisins are plump and soft. Add 1 cup maple syrup and 1 teaspoon lemon juice. Pour hot honey raisin sauce over donuts in individual dishes.

Renewing Powder Puff To put new life in a soiled powder puff, wash it in warm soap-suds, scrubbing the bad spots with a fingernail brush. But don't lay it out flat to dry. Pin it instead to the sunny side of a window curtain so the air can get at it.

Lengthening Blanket A blanket that's too short for the bed, or the occupant therein, can be made usable. Sew a 15-inch piece of flannel or flannelette to the bottom of the blanket. No one will notice if this end is tucked under and the rest of the blanket will be long enough.

Ginger Toast Ginger toast is a nice change. Simply chop some preserved ginger, add a few drops of lemon juice, a tiny bit of water and stir and cook to marmalade consistency. Cut the bread into strips, toast, butter lightly and spread with the marmalade.
