A Message to My Friends From Russell A. Rollin

Occasionally most of us find ourselves in a position where we are almost at a loss for adequate words to express ourselves as we really feel. I am in that position exactly and will, however, do the best that I am able.

Everybody knows that I had my accident on February 8th, and that I was confined to Mercy Hospital for a period of seventeen weeks. During fourteen of those weeks I was absolutely unable to move and was entirely dependent upon other people for everything.

I have no way of telling you how much your flowers, visits, cards, letters and telephone messages helped to pass the time and to make it more endurable. I received literally hundreds of such mesliterally hundreds of such mes-sages and of course it would be next to impossible to personally answer and thank each one of you. JAPAN:

Outlaws Reds The Japanese Communist party received a serious setback with that government's announcement that the party would be outlawed Observers did not find the move surprising since such action had been hinted and only waited the outcome of the general election which was carried by Japan's Liberal party. The liberals alone stuck to a pro-United States policy in a highly nationalistic campaign. Prime Minister Shigeru Yoshida had announced the action would be taken if there were further acts of violence by Communists. He referred to the attack on five U.S. soldiers at a Communist rally on Memorial Day.

As expected, the Communists tried to blame the action on the American occupation, but Yoshida quickly denied it.

Meanwhile, the Liberal party seemed assured of victory in the election. Despite rains throughout the country, the voting was heavier than expected. Officials said 31.400,-000 voted, or 70 percent of those eligible. About 60 percent had been expected.

Yoshida's strong showing had been expected after his government firmly squelched projected Communist anti-American rallies and a socalled general strike called for elec-

COAL-STEEL PLAN:

Unites Six Nations

Britain's labor government has been caught short with the announcement that six European countries have formed a coal-steel alliance.

The United States gave the six countries - France, Holland, Belgium, Luxembourg, Western Germany, and Italy-its blessings, with, observers pointed out, an eye on the heavy gamble for postwar economic reconstruction of Europe as a means of further winning the cold

Under the plan, proposed by Robert Schuman, French foreign minister, the six nations have united to produce the sinews of heavy industry in peace.

Observers said it was fairly clear that Britain, struggling to win back a high place in world trade, was caught by surprise at the move.

The Schuman plan represents a historic surrender of national sovereignty of all the six countries in their economy. The pooled coal and steel industries will be directed by an independent international high Neutral observers were especially happy over the alliance. It is the first time in history that countries whose differences have caused numerous wars have gotten together to create a community of interests. This, observers contend, should eliminate the cause of wars.

Increased production is also expected from the merger. The total joint production could be far greater than the sum of their separate competitive efforts. It was pointed out, for example, the industrial Ruhr needs French coal and France needs the Ruhr steel but each put a permium on the materials they exchanged with each other.

Although the British have not joined the alliance or made any commitment on the plan, the way has been left open. Observers said it would certainly give the labor government something to think

State department officials said a recovered landing wheel indicated the plane had exploded in mid-air, and had possibly lost a wing before it spun into the sea.

The wheel floated because its tire was inflated with air. It was found by a Swedish fishing captain 48 miles off the Coast of Latvia.

A navy expert, Lt. Comdr. M. W. Cagle, exhibited the plane's front landing wheel, and pointed to a lever in a position showing that the wheel was retracted when the plane

MAUNA LOA:

Mauna Loa, the 13,680-foot volcano on the island of Hawaii, turned on a brilliant display of fireworks for island tourists with the greatest eruption in history.

Fortunately, no lives were lost in the eruption that sent streams from 3,515,000 in April to the May of molten lava across the island and into the sea. Construction in the United States has reached a new high, according to reports by the department of

According to department statistics, construction valued at nearly $2,000,000,000 was put in place in May. This was ahead of the 1948 and 1949 seasonal peaks.

Home construction accounted for much of the advance, although building costs have risen sharply.

Private construction in May amounted to $1,400,000,000, an increase of 12 per cent over April and 27 per cent over May of last year. The home building part of that was estimated at $825,000,000, an increase of 15 per cent over the month and 56 per cent from a year ago.

In the first five months of 1950, the total value of all types of new construction was nearly $8,100,000,-000, an increase of 21 percent from the corresponding period of 1949, the labor department announced.

HARRY GOLD:

Like the little boy who pinched off the icing on his mother's cake, Harry Gold, the American who turned against his own country to spy for Russia, wanted the sweet but didn't mean to spoil the cake.

Such an explanation would not appease the intelligence of the sixyear-old who pinched the icing. How can anyone give away the secrets of his country and not expect to hurt . observers asked?

The Judy Coplon case and now the Gold affair have shocked the American public. Many Americans are remembering stern measures employed by founders of the nation in handling spies.

The business of espionage, under any circumstances, is a nasty thing. One is not inclined to be angry with a spy such as the Russian agent Gubitchev who was acting under orders. But to turn against your native land and give or sell its se-crets is an entirely different matter

Now an admitted spy asks the court to appoint him counsel, which he insists be counsel whose patriotism is unimpeachable, with the respect of the court, the public, and the bar. Further, he insists upon the right to cooperate with the F.B.I.

SUPREME COURT:

Three Decisions

The U.S. supreme court has handed down three decisions in the current civil rights controversy which will have far-reaching reac-

The court held that segregation of Negroes in railroad dining cars violates the Interstate Commerce Act, that Negro students must be admitted to the University of Texas law school because the state does not afford them facilities equal to those for whites, and that Oklahoma had been discriminating against Negro students at its state university law school by segregating them in classrooms and elsewhere on the campus.

The court, however, did not go into the cases as deeply as the justice department desired.

For instance, the justice department argued there can be no such thing as "separate but equal" facilities and treatment. It contended the mere fact a Negro has to use a separate public facility prevents him from having an equal facility. It is just as sensible, the department argued, to say that a thing can be "black but white" as to insist it can be "separate and Observers point out that had the court gone into the matter as deeply as the department asked and ruled in its favor, there would have been practically nothing left of segregation laws.

Some students of government believe such a ruling would have been a great deal more far-reaching than the passage by Congress of the much debated F.E.P.C.

The court, however, adhered to its long established practice of not determining constitutional issues if other grounds for decisions exist.

IOWA ELECTION:

Brannan Plan Test

The nation watched with interest the final outcome of the primary election in Iowa. And the outcome was what seasoned political observers expected - a final campaign between Albert J. Loveland and Sen. Burke B. Hickenlooper.

There was more to it, however, than just the outcome of a primary election to determine the Democratic and Republican senatorial candidates this fall.

Loveland, former undersecretary of agriculture, campaigned against five other Democrats using the Brannan farm plan as his main weapon.

On the other hand, Senator Hickenlooper is a strong opponent of the plan. He won the Republican nomination easily over two oppon-

Thus, the fall campaign takes shape. Political observers see Loveland campaigning with the Brannan plan as the main plank in his platform, while on the other hand, Hickenlooper will take his stand against it. Political observers are looking forward to this final test on the much debated plan in the heart of America's farm belt.

Political observers also pointed out that it is almost a sure bet now that President Truman and Secretary of Agriculture Brannan will campaign in Iowa for Loveland.

ECONOMY:

Observers are predicting another battle in congress in an attempt to cut President Truman's budget for the coming years.

According to some reports, Republicans are backing a move for a new cut of the budget which the house last month trimmed $2,068,-

Some senators would like a flat cut across the boards. But others want to exempt the military establishment, the Federal Bureau of Investigation, and defense spending.

A means of making the cuts on the Senate floor is being sought if the trimming is not done first by the Senate appropriations committee.

BELGIUM:

CAUSE FOR JOY . . . Union and management officials of General Motors corporation join hands in mutual congratulations after the successful conclusion of contract negotiations in Detroit. In the group, left to right, are U.A.W. president Walter Reuther; T. A. Johnstone, head of U.A.W.-G.M. division; Henry Anderson and Louis G. Seaton of the G.M. labor relations division. Agreement calls for five year contract providing for annual wage increases, pensions and health insurance, plus a form of union security. The contract assures the company of five years of uninterrupted production, as it lasts until May of 1955.

WHY REDS DIDN'T INVADE WEST BERLIN . . . French troops and armored cars line up in position along the explosive border of the French-Soviet zone of Berlin, Germany, in preparation for the much-touted and feared Communist youth demonstration. Communist spellbinders had been threatening an "invasion" of west Berlin on the big day. But the United States, British and French authorities showed they meant to nip any invasion attempt in the bud. So the Communists paraded peacefully on their own side of the fence and the day was marked by only minor violence and many catcalls between east Berliners and west Berliners, who it was feared would come to blows.

LANDING GEAR OF PLANE DOWNED BY RUSSIANS . . . The United States navy produced some new evidence recently to show that the United States Privateer plane fired upon by the Russians exploded in mid-air before it crashed into the Baltic sea with 10 men aboard on April 8, 1950. Lieutenant Commander M. W. Cagle points to a lever in a position showing that the wheel was retracted when the plane crashed. However, on some planes about to be crashlanded in water, the landing gear is left retracted. The plane's front landing gear was found by a fisherman 48 miles off the coast of Latvia. Russians claimed it was on a spying mission.

HOT TIME AT THE CROSSING . . . What happens when a few thousand gallons of gasoline and a railroad switch engine get together was demonstrated in Albany, N. Y., when an engine struck a gasoline truck at a crossing. Firemen drag up hose lines as they fight the fire that resulted from the collision. This was the second mishap involving a gasoline truck in a few days, the other being the collision of a Chicago streetcar and gasoline truck in which 33 were burned to death. In the Albany wreck, seven firemen and a gate tender were injured, but no deaths resulted. The fire cut off power and telephone service to Albany's

Kline-Brannan Feud

AS A RESULT of the all-out, no-holds barred feud between Allan B. Kline, president of the American Farm Bureau Federation, and Secretary Charles F. Brannan, of the department of agriculture, the AFBF stands to lose the advantage it has held over other farm organizations in finan-cial support of the agricultural extension service in the land grant colleges.

There has been a certain degree of jealousy from the other farm organizations because of the hold AFBF has in the extension service. In several of the states the AFBF pays part of the expenses in cooperation with the federal government.

The house agricultural committee now has before it a bill which would end this relationship by prohibiting any affiliation between the various state extension services and private organizations. The committee heard J. Lewis Henderson of Bay St. Louis, Miss., testify that the county agent, who is the head of the extension services, in some states led membership drives for the farm bureau and gave bureau members preferential treatment.

This was immediately denied by R. E. Short, vice-president of the AFBF. Mr. Short said the bill, would "scuttle" and "hamstring" the cooperative aspect of the extension service, which is, after all, the objective of the bill under discussion.

According to members of the house committee the heads of the land grant colleges, generally, are in sympathy with the objectives of

Said Short: "Obviously misleading information has been spread with regard to Farm Bureau-Extension relationships and this has created some confusion in many people's minds as to the real facts of the situation."

Ohio Farmers in Capital

Recently the Kline-Brannan feud over the so-called Brannan plan was brought to Washington when 50 members of the Ohio Farm Bureau Federation, who are at odds with the parent organizations, came here to consult with farm leaders and placed on the record the result of the Ohio poll as to what they wanted on farm legisla-

The poll, at the time incomplete, showed: Against all government price supports, 36 per-cent; in favor of the present system of price supports, 17 per cent; for a combination of price supports for storables and reduced payments for perishables as urged by Secretary Brannan, 39 per cent; for production payments for both perishables and non-perishables, 8 per cent.

The Ohio group, headed by John Sims, executive secretary, called on President Truman at the White House and presented a commendation to him for his support of farmer cooperatives "against unfriendly legislation."

NAEC Proposes Plan

The national association of Electric companies, composed of 100 operating electric companies, recently issued a new long-range policy "for joint government-public-private industry development of the nation's water power resources."

While stating that close cooperation between government and private companies is essential to the continued growth of the nation's economy and for national defense, the 20page printed document sets out its own terms upon which it is willing to cooperate with the government. And while NAEC is willing that the government should undertake to build the h u g e hydro - electric power dams, they hold only flood prevention, water supply, reclamation and navigation are functions of government.

Where a multiple purpose project is built by the government, the private companies want the opportunity to build the power house and the transmission lines. On top of this they want the net income of government owned electric utili-ties taxed by the federal government, plus a tax by states and their sub-divisions similar to those levied on private industries.

Bill Is Signed

The biennial rivers and harbors bill ,known as the "pork barrel bill," always passed in an election year, has been signed by the President after he sent a message criticizing some of its provisions. It carries a total authorization for $1,800,000,000. The President protested authorization amounting to $96,000,000. None of the money has been appropriated and the President's protests may have effect when time comes to put up.

Some weeks ago when the newspapers front-paged the story of the leopard which strolled back into its cage after being AWOL for three days, a lot of people wondered whether it returned because it was hungry or because it was lonely for a certain lady leopard in the next enclosure.

It so happened that around the same time, by a strange double-take of destiny, my Uncle Charlie also went on the prowl, and his return a few days later raised the identical question on the lower East Side-was it lunch or was it love?

It all began when my Aunt Frieda got the social bee in her babushka, joined the Delancey street chapter of the Daughters of Deborah, and went off to Atlantic City for its annual convention. Knowing Charlie for what he was-a man with his feet in the cloud's and his Bonita Granville plays the piano in Eagle-Lion's "Guilty of Treason," and actually plays! No off-stage double performs for her, as is usually the case. Originally she intended to be a concert pianist; experienced musicians say she easily could become one now if she would give up her motion picture career and buckle down to practising and studying.

Eve Arden, winding up her stint in Warners' "Tea for Two," has both eyes on Broadway. Richard Whorf has written a comedy about life in a Boston boarding house, "The Birds Were Up All Night;" she wants to play in it.

The newspaper plant operated by Macdonald Carey in the Pine-Thomas "The Lawless," which is wrecked by a mob, was a real one. Bill Pine, on location, saw that it was what he wanted, told the owners he'd have to wreck it for the picture, but would rebuild it afterward. They agreed. So he went ahead with scenes in the plant, it was wrecked, and he had it repaired, for $25,000.

CITY COPS

T'VE INVESTIGATED some queer cases but the jewel robbery up at River's End Lodge topped them all. Tracy and I were dumb; we're ready to admit that, but, after all, we're city cops not primitive wilderness

9 - Minute Fiction

The reason we were called in was because Homer Livermore's wife had lost $50,000 worth of gems, and neither she nor Homer trusted or had faith in

Eben Jackson, the local constable. Jackson met us at the station, and it wouldn't take a sleuth to see he was sore at the Livermores. "I'll show you what I al-ready found out," he told us briefly, "then let you smarties dope out the rest." He took us up to the lodge and showed where a ladder had been placed against the house. Then he allowed the thief had probably taken his loot and skun off in the woods to hide.

Then Tracy had an idea. "If we gotta browse around through the to be the national chairman of its bushes we ought to have a native guide."

> who, it seemed, was a guide who didn't have enough money to buy a license for himself, hence was out of work. We explained our predicament to him and he shrugged indifferently. Then Tracy flashed a $20 bill and he changed his mind.

He took the twenty, and a promise of two more after a week's work, and went away. He came back the next morning dressed up in new high-laced boots, riding breeches, a checked shirt and a big hat. He was mighty proud, and

Well, sir, we started out. We trekked through the woods for a whole day. Then Bronco Pete led us to a desserted shack. Outside we found a set of fresh footprints, the heels of which were marked with a common iron cleat. "Chances are," said Eben, "if we find the owner of these here boot-marks we'll have us the thief. I seen tracks like that around the lodge beneath the window."

Pete set off through the brush like a hound on the scent. Tracy and I followed wearily.

Pete led us straight back to the lodge, and there, sure enough, were marked footprints beneath

day we'd split the reward. "Mean it?" he said.

"Come with me," he said. He took us directly to the jail and pointed through the bars at a prisoner, Bronco Pete.

Well, sir, this was it: Bronco had committed the theft all right, but it didn't do him much good, because he couldn't dispose of the jewels. Nor could he spend the $50 in cash he'd swiped along the rocks, because he hadn't worked for months, and to do so would have aroused suspicion. Then we came along and advanced him $20 and he bought himself a new outfit with it, including a new pair of boots with cleat marks on the neels.

IT WASN'T a pleasant prospect,

Answer: Not against your real will, ever. Character grows from within out, and the only way that anyone can "influence" you is to give some quality or impulse that already exists in you a chance to develop and express itself. Nobody can "make" you fall in love with him, for instance, if you do not have a (possibly unconscious) craving for the kind of happiness he seems to offer. In "The Canadian Medical Association Journal," Dr. Harold N. Segall, Montreal, states that after studying heart pain for the past 30 years he can repeat the description of this pain as given him by these patients.

Instead of calling it a vise-like pain, as is taught to medical students, the patients described it as a pain under the breastbone (sternum) and as "a sense of weight,"
"pressure," "pressing," "squeezing," "load on the chest," "burning," "fullness."

The pain in most cases extends to the left arm, but occasionally to right or both arms. In a few cases there is discomfort in upper abdomen and shortness of breath. Dr. Segall states that in his experience there are three degrees lieve the pain.

lasts a little longer than in mild type, and appears for no apparent reason, even with patient at complete rest. There is a change in the electrocardiogram but this is corrected within a day or less. Finally there is the severe type.

Pain comes on for no apparent reason and lasts for two to four hours or more. Morphine is necessary in these severe cases to re-

More than 2,000 Michigan Unemployment Compensation Commission blank benefit checks are in the hands of safe robbers who have twice in recent weeks raided outlying branch offices of the M. U. C. C. Efforts to cash these checks may be expected anywhere in Michigan within the next few days, Max M. Horton, Assistant Executive Director, said today.

The checks included both state industrial checks and G. I. checks, Horton said. In an effort to protect merchants, small business men, banks and other business establishments from cashing these forged benefit checks under the impression that they are valid checks, the Commission this week in the commission that they are valid checks, the Commission that the Commission

Mrs. Connell

Mrs. W. E. Connell, 3001/2 Forrest St., Gadsen, Ala., was "Nervous fired when I got up in the morning, had no appetite, lost weight and food just didn't taste good at all." Then, she became one of the countless thousands who took HADACOL on the advice of her druggist.

But all that suffering is over now because HADACOL has helped Mrs. Connell just as it has so many others who were suffering from ailments or sickness caused by deficiencies of Vitamins B1, B2, Niacin and Iron. She has taken about 10 bottles of HADACOL and intends to continue taking this wonderful medicine.

Like New Person Mrs. Connell says: "I was nervous, tired when I got up in the morning. I had no appetite, I lost weight and food just didn't taste good at all. Then I heard about the wonderful results that other folks were getting from HADACOL After taking three bottles I felt like a new person, I have a huge appetite, I am not tired in the mornings any more. I just feel wonderful, thanks to HADACOL."

Try HADACOL With Certainty . . . because it is sold on a moneyback guarantee. HADACOCL is scientifically formulated, compounded to help you get that wonderful, wonderful HADACOL feeling. Refuse substitutes. Don't let anyone try to convince you that something else is "just as good!" Insist on the genuine HADACOL. You can't risk a cent, because it's sold on a strict money-back guarantee. You'll feel great with the first few bottles you take, or your money will be refund-was on the wind again. A mile away, the howl was heard by Ken, and by Flicka, and by Sparks' Ken's packhorse. Ken had been about to pitch camp for the night but the trail was very fresh. He knew that he was following Pete and Jewel and her foal and some wolves. There was still light enough -he would press forward.

His heart beat with excitement. Coming up with them at last! Wolves - they wouldn't harm a human being, but a foal-no doubt they were after Jewel's foal. He took his gun from the gunboot on his saddle, cocked it, put his heels into Flicka's side and moved for-sound he was waiting for and his head lifted with a jerk. It could Pete was down. He had not gone down of intention, he had just sunk to earth, a mountain of flesh, drained bloodless and weak, nearly gone. The wolves came closer and padded around him. He half got up—his forelegs braced. They came at him all three together. He lunged to his feet and fought savagely. Fangs ripped him, his great jaws opened, he seized a wolf by the neck, crunched, raised his head, flung it from him. A gun cracked.

His head relaxed in Ken's arms

Another wolf leaped into the air and fell writhing. Pete fell, too. If there was a living wolf left it vanished. He was alone. His head stretched forward on the ground.

He heard the thud of horses' hoofs, tried to stir, tried to rise, but a stinging weariness was through all his veins. Presently there were their soft muzzles. It went on for sounds, a human voice, "Pete, old fellow! Oh Pete—" Footsteps, was five days old when suddenly human hands—somebody was close and get your oats!" the wolves were close around them, to him on the ground, lifting his Ken held the nose bag in his left darker than the darkness, moving great head, cradling it, and the arms and hands were tender, the voice gentle and comforting-this was a friend. And there was that gun there, too-no more danger for Jewel and the foal-

His head relaxed in Ken's arms. Peace . . . his eyes closed in the final weariness.

Ken sat up, staring at Jewel. There she was, diamond and pendant and all! The long search ended! Confused thoughts of Carey rushed through his head. She ought to be here too! Carey and Jewelthey belonged together. He was so taken off balance by the sudden appearance of the filly that he felt dazed and could only stare at her, taking count of her perfect proportions, her small spirited head, all her keen, fine lines. She shone. Although her mane and tail were full and sweeping, every aspect of her proclaimed race and condition. She danced on her hind legs as she wheeled from one horse to the

Jewel Follows Ken In Docile Fashion

"Gee-ee! What a beauty!" The horses heard him. Flicka and Sparks whinnied and began to hop toward him, expectant of morning oats. Jewel, with the wariness born of forest dangers, leaped away, called her foal to follow, and disappeared. Ken paid no attention to this. He took off the hobbles of Sparks and Flicka and filled their nose bags with oats. He filled a third nose bag. When he was feeding his horses Jewel appeared again, whinnying nervously. She pushed in between the two. She nipped at Spark's nose bag. When Ken approached her she let him halter her and put her nose bag on. He fastened the halter rope to a tree and went about getting his own breakfast. When he started back on the trail he had come, Jewel was on a lead rope at his right side. She followed docilely.

It was late that afternoon when, that brassy, faraway neigh. No- it was not imagined. This time the horses heard it, too. As he pulled Flicka up she turned her head and pricked her ears, and suddenly all lenging voice answered, there was bedlam for a moment or two, then silence.

With a beating heart, Ken dismounted. His chance had come at last. Was Thunderhead racing toward them through the forest at this moment? Now: to plan wisely, to keep his head, to make not one error. Halter and rope. Nose bag of oats. Lariat. The other horses tied to trees beyond any possibility of getting loose. Mobbled, too-that would be safest.

He worked furiously, quietly, his face scarlet. He led the three horses, excited and prancing as they were to a clearing so that, if he had to use the rope, he would have free play for it. He hobbled them, tied their halter ropes to trees—snubbed them up close. There was the danger—that if they got excited, if Thunderhead harried them, they would jerk backward, or rear, and break the catches of their halters or the rope iself.

While he was doing this he did not dare turn his head to listen for fear he would hear the crashing of the underbrush before he was ready.

At last it was done. He picked up his lariat and looked around for a hitch. That broken stump of a tree-solid as a rock. He fastened the end of the rope to it, laid the rest of it, neatly coiled, beside it. Then he took Thunderhead's halter and lead rope-strong new onesfrom the pack and hung them over his left shoulder. He filled the nose bag-the biggest one of all. He had brought it along for just this contingency.

Ken Waits Out Thunderhead Whims

And now to wait. He had hardly sat down on the rock when the horses burst out with wild whinnies again, prancing, straining at their ropes. There came an answer from the forest.

Ken stood up.

Should he whistle? There was not time. There was the sound of a heavy body moving through the forest and then Thunderhead stepped out into the clear-

"Hey, boy! Hey, old fellow! Well! So you thought you'd come up and see us at last! Well-how's the boy?" He held out his hand, walked closer.

Thunderhead included him in his inspection. He sniffed at his outstretched hand, then reared and wheeled back to the mares. He smelled them thoroughly. He sniffed at the foal. He snorted at Sparks and gave an angry neigh at him. Sparks, frightened, drew away as far as he could. The mares whinnied coquettishly and excitedly. Thunderhead caressed them, going from one to the other, touching a time.

"Oats! Thunderhead! Oats! Come

hand. The lead rope was in his right.

Thunderhead walked to him, sniffing, a deep rumbling whinny acknowledging his master. As he came closer, Ken let the bag hang almost to the earth, and as Thunderhead stopped his head to smell it, stood close at his side, putting his right hand, which held the rope, against his neck. He rubbed the big muscles softly, up and down. Snorts rippled from Thunderhead. He smelled the oats in the bag but could not get to them. He lifted his big hoof and pawed at them. Ken let go the bag entirely, slid his right arm under the stallion's neck and up on the far side. At the same time his left hand reached up to the crest of the neck to meet his right hand and take the end of the rope. If he once got that arm around the stallion's neck-just so he had always put the lead rope on him. But the big head came up with a jerk and Thunderhead took a step away. All to do over again now-talk to him; coax him; tell him about the oats.

Thunderhead wheeled, trotted around the clearing to the mares all over again. Then at last he came back to the oats. Ken opened the bag and let him eat some of them, but the moment Ken tried to put the rope around his neck, he moved away.

An hour passed. And another. Ken was exhausted by the strain. Thunderhead now and then would forget the mares, and begin to graze. Not even then would he allow Ken to complete that last step of drawing the lead rope over the top of his neck. Ken tried going up to him head-on, with the halter in his hands. He had always been able to halter Flicka that way. Thunderhead declined the honor. He walked away, dropped his head again, munched the grass.

Ken sat down on the rock, put his head in his hands and groaned. This might go on for days. He hadn't tried the lariat. Thunderhead again, he heard or thought he heard | didn't like it, no horse does, but after all, he had been well broken and trained. Ropes, halters had been everyday affairs in his life. If the rope was once around his neck-

SCRIPTURE: The Book of Jonah.
DEVOTIONAL READING: Ephesians 3:

Peevish Prophet

Lesson for June 25, 1950.

TONAH THOUGHT he knew better than God. When men said, "Be a prophet," Jonah decided to take a long vacation. He took a ship for a far place so far away he thought even God could not follow. When God said, "Preach to Nineveh," Jonah decided that was the very thing he did not want to do. When God said, in effect, "Be a missionary," Jonah thought he would rather be a tourist. Of all the prophets on record, Jonah was the peevish one.

Dr. Foreman

The remarkable and unique little book of Jonah is perhaps the most misunderstood book in the Bible. Nobody knows how much ink has been wasted on the whale (which, incidentally, was not a whale but a fish!), whereas the real message of Jonah is not about whales at all. It is about taking the message of God to the most unlikely places in the world; it is the story of how the very people who ought to be doing it, sometimes won't do it.

Does God Care?

CONSIDER the good reasons Jonah might have given for not going to Nineveh. They are like the reasons people give nowadays for not believing in foreign missions. (A mission to Nineveh was about as foreign a mission as any one could have thought of, in those days. Reason number one: The Ninevites were mean people. So they were. Assyria, of which Nineveh was the capital city, had done, and would do, Israel more harm than any other enemy she had. The Ninevites were an unscrupulous, greedy people. They knew no law but force. They spread by violence into many a country. They were the nation nobody loved.

Should the message of God be given to such a city? Jonah thought not; God said it should.

And of course, God was right. If the message of God had been sent only to peoples and nations that "deserved" such a favor, God's messengers would all have stayed at home.

Too Far From God

REASON number two: Nineveh is a long way off. Indeed it was. To reach Nineveh, Jonah would have to pass through at least a dozen other cities, all of which no doubt needed preachers. Were there not enough people the campaign. at home who needed preaching course there were . . . Only Jonah did not preach to them. He had a wonderful missionary opportunity there on the ship. Every man of the crew was a heathen. But Jonah was fast asleep.

This is often too true. People will protest about foreign missions; why send preachers and doctors and teachers and money so far away? Aren't there plenty of heathen right at home? Of course; but you won't often find the objector to foreign missions doing much about it.

Any church that is awake and active in supporting foreign missions will be found to be just as alive and intelligent in meeting the problems of the neighborhood.

Judge The World

REASON number three: (This sounds like a silly reason, but Jonah actually put it forward-Jonah 4:2.) God is too good! What was the use of preaching to Nineveh, Jonah wanted to know, if God was going to be gracious and not destroy the city with fire from the

If God is good and merciful, why should we bother about sending missionaries anywhere? Won't he save every one anyhow? Isn't God too good to judge the world?

Jonah overlooked the fact that God had mercy on the Ninevites because they repented. Nowhere in the Bible is there any encouragement to believe that God has mercy on the unrepentant. To all who turn to him, God is gracious; and the job of the missionary, whatever else he does, is to persuade people to turn to God. Be ye recconciled to God," said Paul, the great Christian missionary. If rebels will not lay down their arms, how can there be an amnesty?

The great tragedy of Judaism is the tragedy of Jonah: God wanted his people to win the world; but they became ingrown, they ceased even to wish to be a missionary faith. Shall the same tragedy overtake Christianity?

The Silent Statesman

DRESIDENT TRUMAN is reported to have said to a group of newspaper men attending a White House press conference:

"No man, who is not a politician, can become President of the United States."

In * comparatively recent years, I know of one man who was not a politician, but who was a statesman, who became President of the United States. I saw that man nominated for the presidency on the first ballot at the Republican convention at Kansas City in July of 1926. I saw him elected by a tremendous majority in November, 1926.

That man was Herbert Hoover-a man whose name was recognized in the realm of statesmanship, but who knew little or nothing of the game of American politics. He was a man who, while serving as President, renounced politics. Because of economic conditions of which he had no part in the making and over which he had, nor could have had, no control, I saw that same man defeated for reelection to a second term, largely to be sure, because he knew so little of the game of politics and had not played at that game during the four years he occupied the White House.

I saw in a very definite way the politicians of his own party, who did not want Herbert Hoover in the White House, successfully exert their efforts to defeat him. In that campaign, no effort was made on the part of Republican orators to present to the people the Hoover accomplishments as President.

When the campaign was nearing its end, some of those who were familiar with what was happening urged upon Hoover the necessity of taking the stump to tell his own story. Mr. Hoover looked upon such a course as impossible. He said:

"I am President of the United States. For me to degrade the office I hold is utterly unthinkable, no matter how great the need. The President cannot be a stump speaker in his own behalf."

Those presenting that urge were persistent, and after hours of argument he was prevailed upon. His first speech, made during the closing days of the campaign, was delivered at Des Moines, Iowa. But it was too late. There was not time enough before the election to get the facts he presented across to the voters of the nation.

I did not have any hand in the preparation of those Hoover speeches. No one ever has. He has always written his own. I have seen the manuscript of many of them delivered through more recent years. I did have a part in preparing some newspaper copy used during the last few days of

That copy covered the prices the American farmer received for his crops of grain and meat animals compared to the prices paid to Canadian and Mexican farmers for the same products of the same quality. For example, the price of No. 1 hard winter wheat at Minneapolis and Winnipeg: the transportation on wheat from Minneapolis and Winnipeg was exactly the same, but the American farmer was paid, day after day at Minneapolis. more than the Canadian farmer received at Winnipeg.

The total of that difference amounted to many millions of dollars but it was not a subsidy paid for out of the taxpayers' money. It was a result of the Hoover farm policy. That was one of the accomplishments of the Hoover administration. Had there been sufficient time to present such facts to the American voters through Republican campaign orators, newspapers or other sources, information of such character could have made the difference between defeat or victory for a statesman. But politicians refused to use such facts in that campaign and by refusing to do so caused the Hoover defeat.

Last year President Truman asked the American people to elect him as a Democratic President and to elect for him a Democratic congress, senate and house. The American people did as he requested, but he had not asked for just what he wanted. He wanted not a Democratic congress, but a Fair Deal congress.

Labor did not get the candidate it wanted to oppose Senator Taft in Ohio. That might be the alibi should Taft win in November.

With what enthusiasm we oldsters contract new debts for the youngsters of to-day to pay for through the tomorrows. In my town we did just that by voting an approximately two million dollar bond issue to build new schools. The kids of to-day will do the paying over the next 25 years.

In Past 10 Years

NEW YORK — Roadside ham-burger stands are about the only log cabins left in America's farm areas thanks to home-building progress of the past 10 years.

In 1940 the farm and small town homes were far behind the city house in comfort and convenience. Today they differ in little but location, says a Tile Council of American report on home-building trends.

If farm and small town dwelling improvement in the next decade equals that of the last, modern features such as radiant heating, clay tile bathrooms, and automatic tem-perature control may be commonplace on the farm, according to the council. The 1940-50 decade, during which farmers spend $7,000,000,000 on construction, was the greatest era of farm building and improvement in the nation's history.

In the past 10 years about 850,000 new rural homes were built, about 500,000 got major repairs, and 400,-000 old farm houses were eliminated. The number of farms wired for electricity was doubled, as was the number with private bath and flush toilet. Now seven out of every ten of these dwellings have electricity, and nearly three out of 10 have private baths and flush toilets.

Housewives are the beneficiaries of these most recent home improvements. Conveniences such as electric dishwashers, kitchen walls of easy-to-clean materials and gas ranges are making life easier for the rural housekeeper.

Delaware Judge Rules Out Witchcraft Trial

WILMINGTON-It is hard to believe, but in the year 1950 a woman was almost tried for witchcraft.

Mrs. Helen Evans, 23, was charged with witchcraft after she allegedly gave a young woman a charm to sleep on after telling her that her handwriting indicated she was under a curse.

The judge, however, ruled that the young mother would not stand trial for witchcraft, but for tell-ing fortunes.

The judge said: "It is unbelievable that a charge of practicing witchcraft could be brought in the enlightened state of Dela-

Trussed Up Wife Changes Mind About Getting Divorce

SEATTLE-Robert Johnson, a traffic investigator for Boeing Airplane Company, was determined his wife was not going to get a divorce. He was so determined, he tied her

It happened like this:

They had not been getting along too well, so he trussed her up and tossed her into the family automobile, vowing he would take her back to Osakia, Minn., their former home, and end the divorce nonsense. He took along their 18 month old

On the way they had an accident. Mrs. Johnson was taken to a hospital, not badly hurt. Johnson was taken to jail, where he was held for reckless driving.

At the hospital her first questions were about her uninjured son and husband. Then she offered to bail

"Might even move back to Minnesota with him, too," she added.

Radioactive Metals Used In Commercial Research

BRECKSVILLE—Peacetime use of radioactive metals in commercial research, first started here, may bring the first of many contributions to mankind that are expected from this death-dealing wartime discovery.

Under licersing just granted by the atomic energy commission, scientists at the B. F. Goodrich research center are using a four-inch pencil-like rod of uranium metal to 'see" particles so small that a million of them laid end to end would cover an inch.

Dr. Howard E. Fritz, director of research, said that the study is being directed toward the compounding of tougher, longer-wearing rub-

"Once we know all we can about the makeup of the rubber-and being able to see these minute particles is a big step in that direction we shall be able to improve the quality of the product."

The original uranium "pencil" should last from three to five years,

'Sinners' Donate $43 To Pay Preacher's Fine

CAMPBELLSVILLE-Tom Meredith, who calls himself the "highway and byway evangelist" was arrested and jailed for violation of the city's anti-loud-speaker ordinance. He was later fined $10 and cost—a total of $21.50.

He was also fined $10 and cost on a second warrant charging breach of peace.

After he was fined, he told Judge Robert Hord he would ask "the sinners to pay" his fines. He was permitted to go outside the court. From the crowd that had gathered he collected $43 to pay the fines and costs.
