Old Friends And Foes Meet This Sunday

Prizes Offered in Old Timers Baseball Contests and Games

This Sunday, September 3, is Old Timer's Day at the Tawas City Athletic Field. An occasion for old friends and baseball foes to get together and renew acquaintances.

The program will get underway at 2:00 p. m. with a hitting and fielding exhibition by the "older" old timers. Prizes will be given for longest ball hit, in the following age groups: over 60; 50 to 60; 40 to 50. Prizes will also be given to three oldest players present.

An old timer's game will be held, following the hitting contest, with all "young" old timers taking part.

All Tawas Old Time ball players are invited to participate. Whether you played in 1899 or retired last year, all are welcome. If you have an old time uniform, wear it and show the fans how you looked "wavy back when."

The last Old Timer's day, held in 1948, drew a good many old timers and all enjoyed the day's festivities.

Some of the old timers present at the '48 affair were: Len J. Paterson and Art Wuggazer of the "Dutch Outlaws," Abe Mallon, of the "Wolverine Stars," Benny Boldt in old time Tawas City uniform; George Brabant, Jack McArdle, Aut Allen, Les Franks, Art Zink, Russ Rollin and Elmer Franks.

Others were Hank Newman, Walt and Charles Moeller, Jack Forsten, Fred Swartz, Fred Bublitz, Bill Groff, Glenn Long, Grant Bessey, Bill Wendt, Bill Youngs, Hank Sherman, Vic Marzinski, Mart Musolf, John Brugger, Nate Barkman, Jake Steinhurst.

Among the "younger" old timers taking part in the game were Ferris Brown and Mubb Lixey, Tawas pitchers of the "30's," Lefty Quick, Ed, Libka and Les Franks, C. G. Staudacher, ss; Don Anderson, 2b; Benny Boldt, cf; W. Kasichke, 3b; Carl Libka, Stewart Roach and Randy Fox, and others.

In case of rain on Sunday the Old Timer's day will be held on Labor Day Monday.

If you haven't had time to drop a card to Jack Rollin, secretary, just report to the sound car, the day of the game.

Carl Libka Named Legion Commander

Annual Meeting Held Monday Evening

Carl Libka was elected commander of Jesse C. Hodder Post, American Legion at the annual meeting held Monday evening. He succeeded Clyde Evril who had been commander for the past two years.

Earl Davis and William Mallon were re-elected 1st and 2nd vice commanders, and John Brugger was named post adjutant. Other officers elected were Joseph Homberg, sergeant-at-arms and Clyde Evril, post chaplain.

Meeting nights were changed to the first and third Mondays of each month.

Old Right of Way Closed to Public

The old railroad right of way between M-55 and National City has been closed to the public.

Since the abandonment of the Rose City Division of the Detroit & Mackinac railway, the roadbed has been kept in repair by the Consumers Power Co. and used to service its high tension transmission lines. At times the public has used it. The Isosco County Road Commission has been asked to notify the public that the road is now closed to public use.

Oscoda Boy Wounded in Korea Fighting

The defense department announced Thursday that Pvt. Leo Edward May, son of Mrs. Helen L. May, of Oscoda, is among wounded in Korea. He is a member of the army. He is among 29 Michigan men killed, wounded or missing in Korean fighting.

Mr. and Mrs. John Hurosky and children of Alma spent last week-end with her mother, Mrs. Joseph Wingrove. They were enroute to Mackinaw.

Primary Ballots Now Being Delivered

Large Vote Forcast Because of County and District Contests

Isosco county ballots for the coming primary election Tuesday, September 12, are now being delivered County Clerk Russell H. McKenzie said today. About 3,500 ballots were required for the election in Isosco county, he said.

Although there are five contestants for the Republican nomination for governor on the state ticket, the daily press of the state forecasts a light election. In Isosco county contests for the nominations for sheriff, prosecuting attorney and coroners, with local candidates in the field on the state ticket— Charles T. Prescott for state senator and William Parker for representative in the state legislature—a large vote is anticipated here.

In the race for prosecuting attorney, William R. Barber of Tawas City is contesting Reginald Barnett for the Republican nomination. Sheriff Ivan O'Farrell has as opposition, John Moran, who was defeated by O'Farrell two years ago.

Added interest in the Democratic ticket is provided by the two Isosco candidates, Wilbur C. Roach for state senator, and Charles H. Cliff for congress. Cliff is a resident at Sand Lake, Roach resides in Tawas City. There is only one contest on the Democratic ticket, that for the nomination for representative in congress.

The candidates appearing on the two tickets are as follows:

Governor

Republican—Fred M. Alger, Albert J. Engel, Harry F. Kelly, Eugene C. Keyes, Thomas Leith.
Democratic—G. Mennen Williams.

Lieutenant Governor

Republican—Harry Henderson, Laverne M. Laubengayer, Dan Mills, William C. Wanderberg.
Democratic—John W. Connolly.

Congressman

Republican—Roy O. Woodruff, Elford A. Cederberg.
Democratic—Charles H. Cliff, William J. Kelly, Fred L. Koenders.

State Senator

Republican—Charles T. Prescott, Ben Carpenter.
Democratic—Wilbur Roach.

Representative

Republican—William H. Parker, Richard Deadman, Gerald William Graves.
Democratic—Louis R. Pinkerton.

Sheriff

Republican—Ivan L. O'Farrell, John F. Moran

Prosecuting Attorney

Republican—Reginald T. Barnett, William R. Barber.

Unopposed candidates for county offices are: Russell H. McKenzie, county clerk; Grace L. Miller, county treasurer; Albert H. Buch, register of deeds; Charles C. Kurtzrock, county drain commissioner.

There are five candidates for coroner, two to be elected. The candidates are E. John Moffatt, Edward A. Jacques, Donald A. Evans, William J. Wilkin, Leslie A. Lambert.

Will Present Half Hour of Sacred Music

Paul Youngs will present a half hour of sacred organ music at Christ Episcopal Church, Sunday, September 3, at 10:00 a. m. A graduate of the MacPhail College of Music of Minneapolis, Minnesota, Mr. Youngs holds a Bachelor of Music degree. He has accepted a position as organist at St. Mark's Episcopal Church of Cleveland, Ohio for the coming year. Mr. Youngs will also play for the regular 11:30 worship at Christ Church next Sunday. The public is cordially invited. Paul is the son of Roy S. Youngs of East Tawas.

Mrs. Watson Coach of National Title Winners

Mrs. Rose Watson, swimming instructor at the St. Clair Recreation Center, Detroit, has the honor of being coach of the four-girl swim team which recently won the national title at the National AAU meet in Chicago. This is the fourth year that this team has held National honors. Mrs. Watson is a former national swimming champion and swam in Billy Rose's Aquacade in 1937.

Mrs. Watson and her husband are owners of Don and Rose Cabins near the Tawas River bridge on Lake street in this city.

CLOSED LABOR DAY

The Isosco county courthouse and offices will be closed Labor Day, Monday, September 4.

Isosco County Fair Now In Progress

Many Attractions And Exhibits to Entertain Visitors

Hundreds of school children packed the fairgrounds at Hale, Wednesday morning to take advantage of the nine cent rides offered to the largest carnival midway offered Isosco County fair supporters.

Fair officials were amazed at the response received from neighboring counties since inviting exhibits from them this year. Phone calls have come from Alcona, Arenac and Ogemaw counties from those who received no catalogs asking for information. They have been assured that they will be given every help by department superintendents in entering their exhibits properly.

John Dooley, fair board member in charge of horse pulling expressed concern over the problem of housing the number of teams entered in the lightweight, heavyweight and free-for-all barefoot pulling contests. $205 cash prizes are offered in each contest for the teamsters. The barns are filled with running horses awaiting their inaugural start on the new race track.

Six shows will be presented in the afternoons and evenings by the Jack Raum show from Ozark, Missouri. A great deal of expense was incurred in securing this attraction for the enjoyment of those attending this year's fair. The show consists of beautifully trained horses, high school horses, cowboys and cowgirls and educated mules. Added attractions provided will be the harness and hitch races, wagon races and the auction of last year's scramble steers. Fireworks will close the fair Saturday night.

Thurman Scofield announced today that hot rod races and horse races will furnish plenty of excitement following the close of the fair on Sunday, September 3. Labor Day celebrants will find plenty of thrills at the Hale grandstand with a feature 10 mile car race for $100.

East Tawas Schools Open Next Week

Students to Enroll and Sessions Wednesday

The East Tawas Public Schools start its 1950-51 operations with a teacher's conference on Tuesday, September 5. Wednesday, September 6 at 9:00 a. m. students will enroll, with sessions continuing only during the forenoon. A second teacher's conference will be held Wednesday afternoon. Tawas City and East Tawas will have the same opening schedule because of their co-operative bus routes.

Teachers have been hired to fill all vacancies, however an additional later elementary teacher, authorized by the Board of Education has not as yet been selected. Following are the teachers or administrators now under agreement with the East Tawas School district. The new teachers are listed separately with their college and home residence.

Stacy B. Yawger Dies at Hale

Pioneer Merchant, Builder and Banker

Stacy B. Yawger, who resided in Hale most of his life and played a large part in shaping the early industrial and political life of Hale and Plainfield Township, died at his home here on August 17.

Mr. Yawger came to Michigan from Union Springs, New York when he was twenty years of age, having been born there on November 1, 1864. He made his home for a year with his uncle, George Yawger, near Battle Creek and while there learned the carpenter's trade. He left Battle Creek in 1885 and came to East Tawas and two years later came to Hale where he spent the remainder of his life.

For three years he worked in a mill owned by his uncle, George Yawger. When the mill burned he was given the contract to build the township hall that still stands on the corner as the Adams garage. One year later he built the Baptist Church and in 1893 he entered the mercantile business in which he continued for eleven years. In 1900 he built the store building on the corner that is now operated by the D. D. Pearsall Co. He also bought 120 acres of land on this corner and built the farm buildings that stand on the highway just south of the village. While in the mercantile business in Hale he also operated a store in South Branch in partnership with his half-brother, Clarence Martin. The latest building to be erected by him was the Hale garage and in it he installed the lighting plant that gave Hale its first electric lights.

In 1893 he was appointed postmaster by President Grover Cleveland. In 1905 he built and operated the first bank in Hale that is now the site of the Plastic shop.

On May 31, 1894 he married Jessie Esmond, who died in 1934. In 1937 he married Miss Edna Shattuck, who survives him.

Besides his widow, he leaves two daughters, Mrs. Glenwood Street, of Hale, and Mrs. Arthur Johnson, of Whittemore, and three grandchildren.

Funeral services were held in the Baptist Church on Sunday, August 20 with Reverend Roland G. Brooks officiating and he was laid to rest in the Hale cemetery.

Mary Blanche MacDonald

Mary Blanche Herrick MacDonald after a year of illness passed away at the family home on Newman Street, East Tawas, Tuesday afternoon. She was at Mercy Hospital several weeks for treatment preceding her death. Mrs. MacDonald had been an employee of the telephone company for the past nine years.

Mary Blanche Herrick was born in East Tawas, October 13, 1921. She was united in marriage to James MacDonald on July 8, 1944. She was the daughter of Katherine Herrick and the late Floyd Herrick. Surviving are one daughter, Patricia Ann MacDonald and the mother, Mrs. Katherine Herrick and a brother, John Herrick of East Tawas.

Funeral services were held this morning (Friday) from St. Joseph Catholic church, Rev. Robert Neuman officiated.

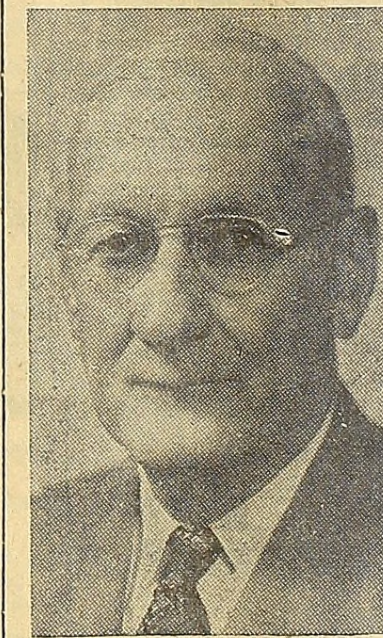

Half Year Auto Plates Now on Sale

Half year automobile license plates go on sale this morning (Friday) according to an announcement made by County Clerk Russell H. McKenzie.

Brody Speaker at Farmers' Picnic

To be Held Labor Day At High Rollways

The Isosco County Farm Bureau is holding its annual picnic at High Rollways Park Labor Day. Clark L. Brody, Secretary-Treasurer of the Michigan Farm Bureau will be the guest speaker. Mr. Brody has distinguished himself in farmer cooperative movements, has represented the state organizations in legislative matters and is a member of the State Board of Agriculture. His guidance has an important factor in establishing the great prestige the Michigan organization enjoys.

It is expected that a large majority of the Farm Bureau families will attend and will bring their family picnic basket. Games for young and old men and women are being planned. The juniors will compete against the seniors. A prize will be given to the local group that has the largest attendance.

The committees are: Mrs. Charles Kobs, chairman; Henry Hobart; marshal for the day, Sherman farm bureau will be in charge of reception, Mrs. Lloyd Newvine, chairman; Lyle Bielby and Frank Smith recreation and Jim Mielock, master of ceremonies.

Grayling Crew Win 240-Mile Canoe Marathon

Bissonette Brothers Second Place Winners; Toledo Team Third

Jay Stephan of Grayling, and Ted Engle of Gaylord won the grueling 240 mile AuSable Canoe Race, from Grayling to Oscoda, last week-end in the record breaking time of 18 hours and 32 minutes.

Stephan and Engle, in their new type Canadian racing canoe, broke the record of 18 hours and 57 minutes set last year by Hugh and Bud Bissonette of Oscoda.

About three thousand spectators were on hand to witness the finish at Oscoda Sunday morning.

The Bissonette brothers crossed the finish line twenty minutes after the winning canoe came in, with their time recorded at 18 hours and 52 minutes. The Rego brothers, Alfred and Robert, of Toledo, Ohio, were two minutes behind the second place team.

Stephan and Engle received first prize of $600 and the Marston Memorial Trophy. Hugh and Bud Bissonette received second prize of $350 and the Rego Brothers won third prize of $225.

Other finishers and their awards were: Al Gierke and Bernard Fowler, of Grayling fourth, $125; Earl Graham and Jackson Brown, of Alpena, fifth, $75; Neb Lemieux and Walter Kierat, of Alpena, sixth, $75; Edward Dumont and Charles Davey, of Oscoda, seventh, $50; Steve Kolonich, of Tawas City and Harold Spencer of Mio, eighth, $50, and Herbert E. DeWitt and Frederick E. Schroeder, of Flint, ninth, $50.

Of the twenty canoes who started down the 240-mile course on the AuSable, only nine crossed the finish line at Oscoda. One of the reasons being the heavy rain and lightning storm Saturday night which took its toll on the racers.

The winning team reported over the public address system at the finish line, that they had to stop and empty the water from their canoe three times, and once ran aground on a stump in the darkness below Five Channel Dam.

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS

Showdown Battle Looms in Korea; Jacob Malik Stops U. N. Action; House Votes Home-Front Controls

(EDITOR'S NOTE: When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of Western Newspaper Union's news analysts and not necessarily of this newspaper.)

KOREA:

Showdown Near

On the fifth anniversary of the liberation of Korea from Japan, Communist and United Nations troops were involved in a series of maneuvers and probing thrusts that indicated a showdown battle was near.

In the north the Communists made their most important gains with the capture of Pohang and forcing U.S. troops to evacuate an important airfield. American and South Korean forces were in action against a Red unit west of that city.

In the west, the Communists had crossed the Nakdong river at two points, north and south of Taegu. At one point 12,000 Red troops had crossed the river and counter attacking Americans attempted to throw them back with some success.

The Communists were reported to have 60,000 men massed in that area for the all-out drive to push United Nations forces from Korea.

In the south, U.S. marines consolidated their positions just four miles outside Chinju and continued to mop up isolated Red groups cut off by the American drive.

Military observers reported the Communist time-table had been upset by the stubborn defense of U.S. and South Korean forces. The Reds had set August 15 as the date for final victory and their so-called "liberation" of South Korea. A final and desperate attempt to gain that victory seemed but a matter of hours.

Meanwhile, American jet fighters and bombers continued raids on North Korean installations and ground positions. One striking force dropped 625 tons of bombs in a raid on an oil refinery.

The Navy announced the first combat use of a new rocket-type missile, the Tiny Tim, a 11.75-inch armor-piercing rocket. The rocket was credited with knocking out 13 Communist locomotives and destroying a bridge.

HOME-FRONT:

Truman Gets Power

The house voted, 383 to 12, a broad home-front mobilization bill that gave the President power to control prices and wages, ration consumer goods and impose industrial curbs to speed up the war effort. The senate also had a similar bill under consideration.

Some kind of control bill had been expected for some time, but there were several surprising aspects to the one the house voted. In the first place, the vote of 383 to 12 was startling. But even more startling was the fact the house, which usually jealously guards its authority and power, left it entirely up to the President when to invoke the price-wage-rationing and other control powers contained in the bill.

Mr. Truman insisted he was not ready for severe restrictions upon civilian economy. And although the bill gives him that power, it is not believed that such broad scale mobilization is in sight. However, the administration is reported anxious to use some of the industrial controls, particularly the power to allocate scarce materials to war industries.

If and when the President invokes controls, the bill stipulates he must peg wages at the May 24-June 25 level. For prices he would have to give only "due consideration" to the period as a base.

The bill would:

- (1) Give the President authority to impose wage and price controls and rationing at any time he deems necessary.
- (2) Make it a criminal offense, punishable by a $10,000 fine and a year in jail, to hoard food, clothing, automobile tires and other "necessaries."
- (3) Authorize the President to exercise consumer credit controls similar to those used during World War II.
- (4) Authorize the President to requisition materials and factories necessary to the defense effort.
- (5) Let the President set up a system of priorities and allocations for getting strategic and critical materials to defense plants.
- (6) Authorize the government to make or guarantee loans for defense purpose. The total of loans outstanding at any one time could not exceed $2 billion.

ESPIONAGE:

Suspect No. 7

Mrs. Ethel Greenglass Rosenberg, 34, mother of two children, was arrested by the F.B.I. as suspect No. 7 in the Harry Gold-Dr. Klaus Fuchs atom spy case. She was held under $100,000 bail.

Her 32-year-old husband also is under $100,000 bond. The F.B.I. said when he was arrested July 17 that he belonged to a spy ring financed by Anatoli Yakovlev, former Soviet vice consul in New York.

American Armor

A sight to cheer the GI's who fought the first holding actions against the North Korean Communists was the line of medium tanks, shown as they moved up the front lines to add their weight to the battle. Such tanks are often dug in and used as pillboxes.

UNITED NATIONS:

Anger and Frustration

Delegates to the U. N. security council watched with disgust as Russia's Jacob A. Malik blocked every move of the Organization to continue with its business after two weeks under his chairmanship.

Non-Communist delegates were angered and frustrated by his tactics, but were resigned to waiting it out until his chairmanship ended today, August 31 and Sir Gladwyn Jebb of Britain takes over.

Malik's strategy had been designed to stall any action of the organization on the Korean situation and to create as much propaganda as possible for the Communist cause. Some quarters believed that Malik scored some success along that line.

He continued to drum the theme that South Korea started the war and accused the United States of using "inhuman and barbarous methods of waging war in Korea."

The western delegates hit back much more forcefully than ever before. U.S. delegate Warren Austin pinned the responsibility for the North Korean invasion on the Russians—as the men behind the men behind the guns. Sir Gladwyn made biting attacks on the entire philosophy under which the Kremlin operates.

The western attack seemed to hit home. Malik seemed a little harrier and gestured more often.

Malik stated during one of the rounds that the only Russian arms possessed by the North Koreans were those "we sold to them when Soviet forces withdrew from Korea." It was the first time Malik or any other Soviet leader has admitted that North Koreans were using Soviet weapons.

The statement exposed Malik as a liar before the world because late model weapons have been captured from the Communists that were not even developed at the time the Russians were supposed to have withdrawn from North Korea. One such weapon was a late model mortar shell.

POLITICS:

An Issue Found

Four important Republican senators, members of the foreign relations committee, issued an indictment of Democratic diplomatic failures, charging the administration's policy invited Russia "to grab whatever it could in China, Korea, and Formosa."

Senators Wiley of Wisconsin, Smith of New Jersey, Hickenlooper of Iowa and Lodge of Massachusetts signed the statement that demanded the United States take immediate steps to "regain the initiative and the power for the organization and preservation of lasting peace, which it threw away in 1945."

The senators charged that the administration was responsible for "the disintegration of our armed forces in 1945," evidently forgetting that Republicans and Democrats both answered the screams of mothers and fathers throughout the nation to let their boys come home.

Republican leaders said they will discuss this issue in the congressional campaigns and expect their national committee soon to lay down a documentary "white paper" to support their position.

In other words, the Republicans believed they had found an issue for the coming political campaigns.

Income Up

The national production of goods and services boomed up to an annual rate of nearly 270 billion dollars in the second quarter of 1950, the commerce department announced. It is the highest quarter on record.

The 270-billion mark represented a sharp climb from the annual rate of 254 billion in the last quarter of 1949, and 263 billion in the first quarter of 1950.

WALLACE:

Makes Up His Mind

Henry A. Wallace resigned from the Progressive party. In a short (only two paragraphs) letter to his former political aide, C. B. Baldwin, he wrote:

"In view of actions recently taken by the national committee of the Progressive party and the various state committees, I am convinced I can more effectively serve the cause of peace by resigning from the national committee and the executive committee of the Progressive party.

"You will, therefore, take this letter as my formal resignation from the party."

It was the third time that Wallace has broken off political affiliations, and, some observers pointed out, a confession on his part that the Progressive party is too left wing for even his tastes.

He started his political career as an Iowa Republican. When the New Deal came into power in 1933, Mr. Wallace became a Democrat, first as secretary of agriculture and then Vice-President of the United States in Franklin D. Roosevelt's third term. In 1946 he quit the Democratic party and his cabinet post. In 1948 he was the Progressive party's candidate for president. His Candidacy, polling 500,000 votes in New York, cost Mr. Truman the empire state but not the election.

In recent days, the question has been whether Wallace would accept the Progressive's foreign policy line, obviously dictated by Communists in the party.

TAXATION:

Cost Will Be High

The senate finance committee served notice that the cost of war in Korea would be higher with its unanimous approval of increased individual income taxes amounting to about $3 billion.

The senate and house were expected to approve the legislation. Main points of the bill:

1. Dig deeper into the pockets of more than 50,000,000 individual taxpayers October 1. Withholding of wages and salaries, after personal exemption, will jump from the present 15 per cent to 18 per cent.
2. The actual increase in taxes will be around 20 per cent for millions of persons in the lower income brackets. For 1950, the present tax would apply on three-fourths of income, and the higher rates on one-fourth. In 1951 and thereafter the higher rates would apply on all income.
3. GI's fighting in Korea would pay no tax at all, and their officers would get reductions in their taxes, too. The tax exemption would not apply to servicemen and service women outside the war zones.

PROPAGANDA:

Straight to Cemetery

Russian propaganda at times has been ridiculous. The newest blast was directed against American football.

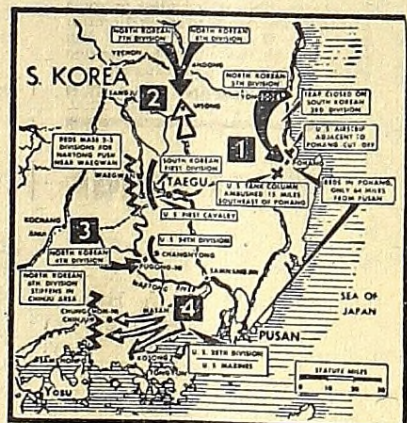

Radio Moscow said recently: "Football players at the University of Michigan are often carried from the football field to the hospital or even straight to the cemetery."

Moscow pictured American athletes driven to slaughter by greedy promoters. In fact, Moscow cried that it all was inspired by Wall Street to get the American public conditioned for war.

In retaliation, the Voice of America offered to buy a season pass for any accredited Russian correspondent who wants to see the University of Michigan football team play. Said the U. S.:

"The voice will gladly offer a season's pass to all games of the University of Michigan to an accredited U.S.S.R. correspondent to see for himself. We can assure him that he'll have no expense for flowers or wreaths."

All-Out Battle

Capture of Pohang (1) and U. S. last ditch defense of air strip highlight Korean war news. Reds mass tanks (2) for attack near Waegwan, (3) battle raged at the Pugong-ni (3) bridgehead. In the south (4) the three-pronged U. S. advance stopped at outskirts of Chinju.

CHURCHILL:

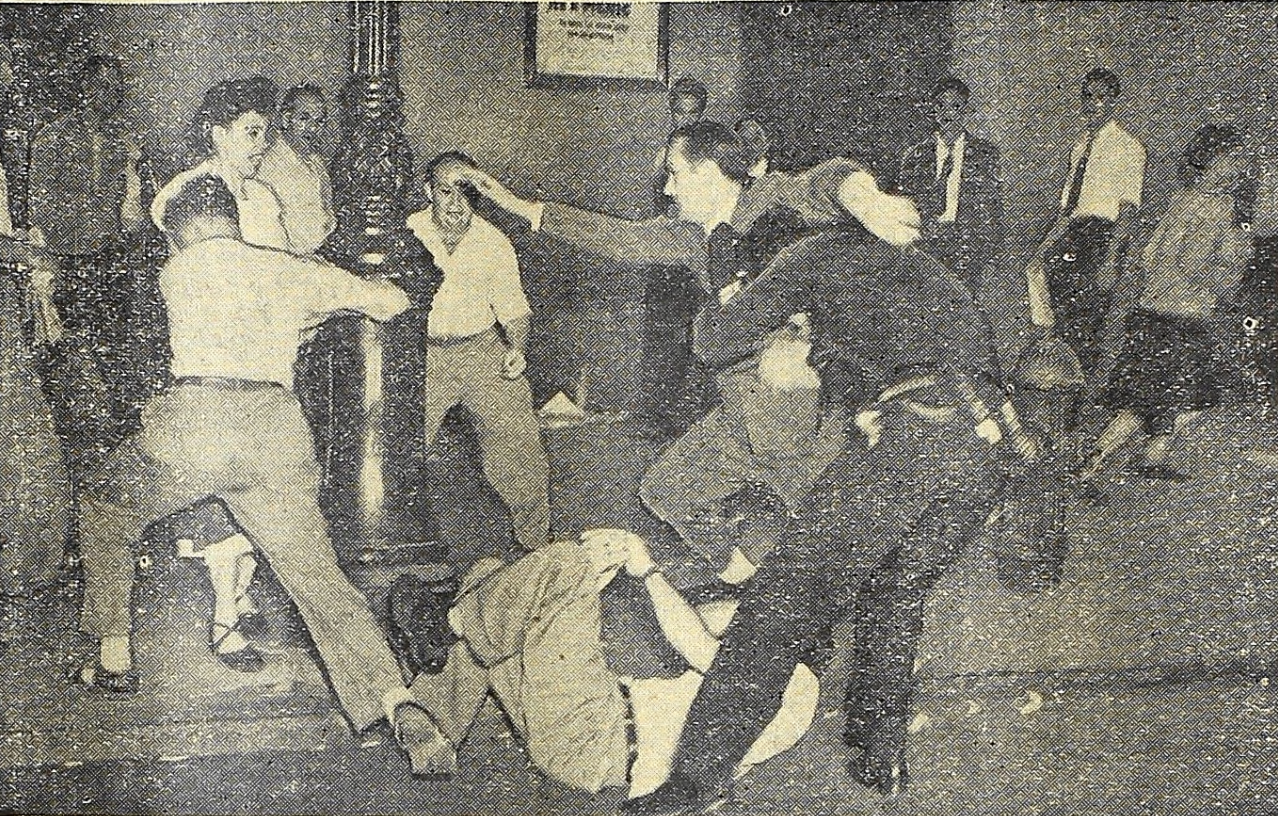

The Old War-Horse

Winston Churchill roared again in the consultative assembly of the Council of Europe, warning of Europe's weaknesses and stating flatly that America's atomic bombs shielded Europe from Communist aggression. He proposed a unified army for Europe and the council approved by a vote of 89 to 5.

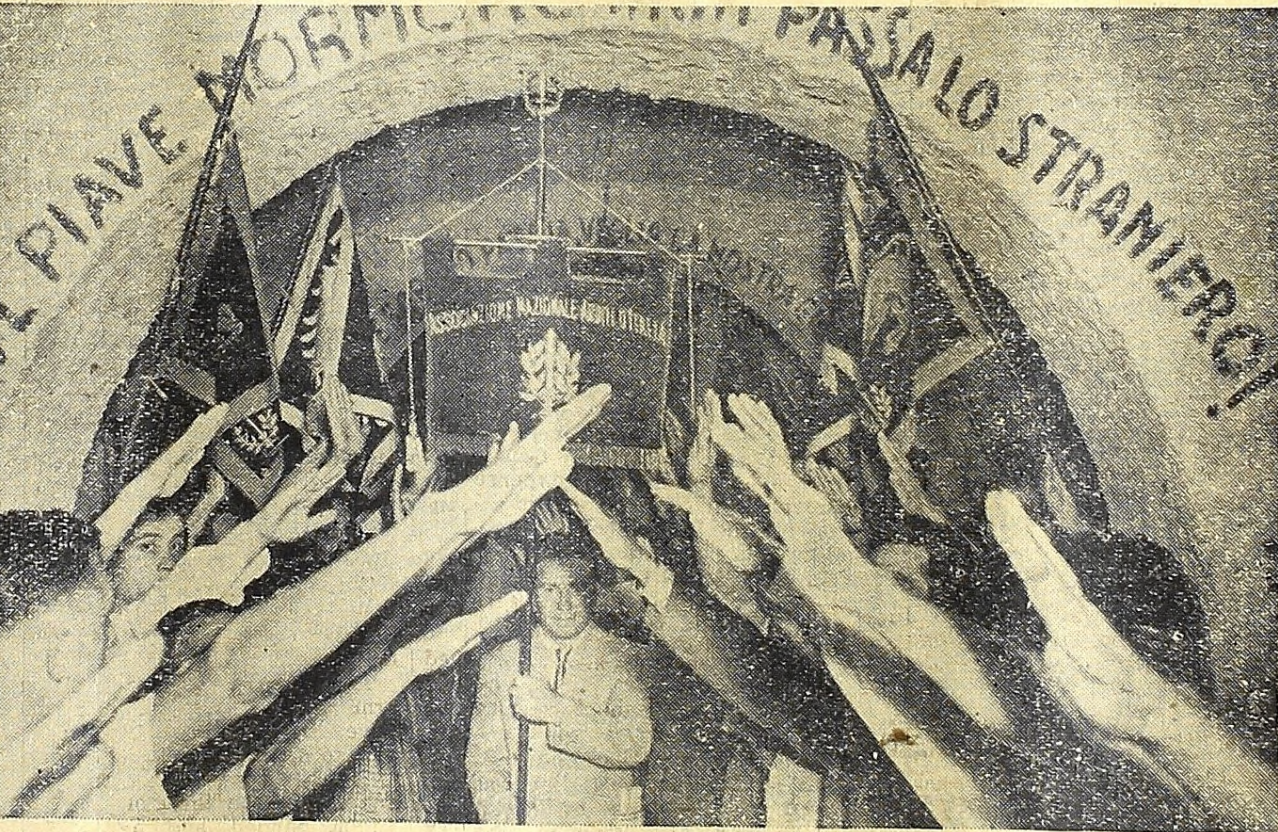

A number of critics said the old war-horse had gone too far, but others considered it a major victory.

BAIL JUMPER AND TWO RENEGADES . . . Gerhard Elsler, bail-jumping fugitive from justice in the United States and propaganda boss for east German Communists, smirks from between a British corporal, Keith Waller (left), and a United States private, Robert Natzkakula, at a press conference in Berlin where the western soldiers told of their desertion to seek asylum in eastern Germany. U. S. authorities said the American went AWOL while waiting for shipment to the U.S. and discharge from the army as undesirable following three disciplinary court martials this year.

NO PICNIC HERE . . . This action at Union Square in New York City was unscheduled—at least the headbreaking and scratching portion of the activity. It was entered on the agenda when a "peace in Korea" meeting turned into a riot which required almost a regiment of cops to quell. Here, a demonstrator hits the ground as a policeman mixes with others in his attempt to disperse the rioters. The sign in the store window in the background ironically proclaims: "It's a Picnic."

KOREAN WAR REVIVES ITALIAN VET GROUP . . . The Korean war has resulted in a revival of the "Associazione Nazionale Arditi D'Italia," association of veterans of two world wars—composed of special shock troop battalions which also helped Benito Mussolini's march on Rome. The movement uses the Roman or Fascist salute, as demonstrated by this group of members greeting one of the banners under an archway in Rome, lettered with one of the mottos used during World War I. The translation of the banner is: "The River Piave murmurs, the foreigner will not pass." To collect money the organization sells postcards containing Mussolini's slogans and writings.

WYTHE COUNTY HEALTH DEPT.

VIRGINIA COMMUNITY WARNS TOURISTS . . . Wytheville, Va., the town which has suffered the worst polio epidemic in the history of the nation, has set a precedent for selfishness, by warning tourists of the outbreak and advising them to bypass the town for the present. Every year the town entertains thousands of tourists, realizing a good source of income from the tourist trade. This fact makes the community's gesture all the more praiseworthy. Health authorities state that next year, Wytheville will be one of the safest places from polio in the United States because of the epidemic this summer.

Things to Come

WHAT IS AHEAD in the foreseeable future for the American people? This is the question being asked throughout the length and breadth of the land, in the home-towns and rural areas, and in our major urban centers. Insofar as making an accurate prediction is concerned there can be no definite answer.

There is, however, one crystal-clear fact, and that is the American people must understand they are in greater peril today than ever before in the 174-year history of this nation and that it behooves every citizen from high to low estate to realize they must undergo whatever sacrifice, whatever hardship to fend off and conquer the imperialistic Soviet despotism which is committed to a policy aimed at not only conquering the free world, but in capturing men's minds with the ideology of atheistic communism.

Watching the trend of events here in Washington since the fateful, history-weighted decision of President Truman to stop Communist aggression in Korea, there is every reason to believe that the United States will be in a state of ever-increasing mobilization of men and resources for the next 10 years. Present indications are that the Korean war is a preview of things to come.

It is fairly obvious to this column that if the people are not fully aware of the awesome dangers which confront our nation, they are at least far ahead in their thinking than their elected representatives in the congress, and in some instances, seem prepared to accept more sacrifice and restriction than even the President himself is aware.

Truman Ready for Crisis

Unfortunately, this is an election year and despite the acute danger which threatens the moves on Capitol Hill to back up the President have been tinged and weighed with political consideration. As a matter of fact, although the President himself has declared politics out the window, some of his satellites still persist in looking at the situation through politically tinted glasses. This fact, however, doesn't justify some of the news stories which are going out of Washington through some mediums to the effect that all here is confusion and muddled thinking, or that the President is not giving his associates a clear sense of direction, or there is a scramble for power or bickering among "small-bore bureaucrats" as one writer called it.

This writer believes that the record shows that President Truman anticipated what might happen long ago and that he was primed and ready when he made his decision even over the advice of his military leaders and his political advisers. He made it on a moral principle to which this nation was committed. That he did not have the tools at hand is no fault of Mr. Truman, and had he waited even a day, it is likely there would have been no beach-head at Pusan on which to make a landing.

Stand-by Controls Urged

Then what is the record? On January 4, 1949, Mr. Truman recommended to the congress to set up a system of stand-by controls to be used in an emergency, "to impose price ceilings on scarce commodities which basically effect essential production or the cost of living."

A few days later in his economic message he spelled out these proposals and on Feb. 15, 1949, he sent congress the draft of a stabilization bill which advocated these stand-by controls. On March 3, 1949, he told newsmen at a press conference he needed these powers for any sudden development.

On January 7, 1950, he again sounded a warning in his economic legislators to give him power to regulate consumer credit, to regulate speculation in commodities on the commodity exchanges and to give the federal reserve board authority over banking reserves. That is the record.

NSRB Directs Mobilization

This reporter has talked to officials in the national security resources board, aside from the military establishment, the most important war agency today. There is no confusion there, except the incidental confusion to haste. The only doubt to be resolved in the minds there is how far to mobilize.

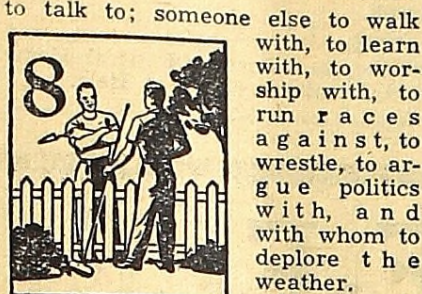

They are geared to all-out mobilization of men and resources, but that would mean placing the nation on the same footing it was when we had 14,000,000 or more men in the military establishment.

Today we have something like 1,500,000 and are increasing that number daily, but the President reasons, and so do other officials, that we do not now need resources and production mobilization on the same scale as if 14,000,000 men were to be equipped, fed and clothed.

GOOD CITIZEN

People Acting Together Make Strong Community and Nation

This is the ninth of a series of ten articles from the booklet "Good Citizen" published by The American Heritage Foundation concerning the rights and duties of an American.

The eighth promise of a good citizen: I will try to make my community a better place in which to live. The Pilgrim fathers "got together" to come to this country. From other countries came groups which settled together at a "good bend in the creek." Neighbors built cabins near each other, leaned on each other, worked with each other, protected each other. Man has always liked someone to talk to; someone else to walk with, to learn with, to worship with, to run races against, to wrestle, to argue politics with, and with whom to deplore the weather. Men early found that by their joint efforts they could achieve something far greater than they could hope to accomplish singly. The more things that people working together in a community can do without depending upon the federal or state government, the more our individual rights will be preserved, the stronger our nation will be.

YOU HAVE cast your vote and paid your taxes. Don't stop there. There is also an intangible obligation to make a community a little better for the time you have lived in it.

You don't have to be a professional do-gooder to be a good citizen. No matter how busy he is, in addition to church and school, nearly everybody can find time for at least one community activity. It may be the Boy Scouts, or Girl Scouts, the 4-H Club, the Red Cross, the Future Farmers of America, the Community Fund, the Campfire Girls, slum clearance, a new park, a public swimming pool or golf course, or merely your family helping another family.

The spirit which motivates these groups is what makes one community so much better to live in than another town the same size which doesn't have the spirit. These things call for your time and ability rather than your money, and they will give every good citizen an inner glow of pride and satisfaction for having done them.

"IN THE MAKING OF A TOWN," William Allen White said of Emporia: "... the material—the brick and stone and mortar and lumber that make this town, are but a small part of it. Hundreds of towns in the country have just as much brick, stone, lumber and lime as Emporia has, that are not nearly such good towns. "Those who have lived during the half century now passed, put something besides houses and streets and trees and material things. They put practical work in politics, in religion, in education, in business, in the social organization to make this a good town. Emporia did not just grow. To have a clean town meant a fight, every day in the year for someone; it meant sacrifice for scores of men and women—sacrifice of time and money and health and strength. To have all these schools and churches meant that thousands gave freely and in a great faith without material results in sight, that we who now enjoy what we have, might reap where we have not sown.

"This town is the child of many prayers. This town is the ideal realized only after those who dreamed the ideal, laid them down to rest with the dream still a dream. His town is the fruit of a great aspiration, and we who live here now, have a debt to posterity that we can pay only by still achieving, still pursuing; we must learn to labor and to wait, even as they learned it who built here on this townsite when it was raw upland prairie..."

Ruth Roma, while working in "Three Secrets", paused long enough to order a swimming pool. "Just put it anywhere," she told the contractor. He went to work the same day, and she got home that night to find that the hole for the pool occupied the space formerly used by the driveway to her garage. So she now uses half the double garage next door.

Gloria Swanson is likely to be known as the Iron Woman if she continues her current routine. Recently she completed a three-month tour of 31 cities in the United States and Canada, on behalf of her Paramount picture, "Sunset Boulevard", a trip which she began not long after a similar one to publicize "Samson and Delilah".

When it was announced that Bill Boyd, star of Mutual's "Hopalong Cassidy" radio series, is to co-star with Bing Crosby in a film every-one began speculating as to whether the Western star would sing with Bing. Boyd settled that question in short order; his reply was a definite "No! Leave that to all the rest of them." And to Bing's sons with a desert island; she is frank, intelligent, and has a sense of humor second to none. She has a terrific part in "The Furies", soon to be released, but talked not about her own role but about the late Walter Huston, whom she admired and liked so much. "The Furies" was his last picture.

Barbara Stanwyck, pausing in New York on her way to Rome to join Robert Taylor, admitted that she was none too happy about going by plane; aviation is one of the few enthusiasms she does not share with him. One of the most interesting and best informed actresses in Hollywood, she would head the list of those I'd like to be marooned

"DOING BETTER"

By Richard H. Wilkinson

LAURIE, Sam Edgewater's pretty daughter, brought in the news. "There's a nester squatting in our lower range," she said. "He's building himself a home, and when I told him to pack up and get out he laughed at me. More than that he was rude and insulting!"

Sam Edgewater took one look into his daughter's angry eyes and sent for Tex Tremont and Chuck Wellington. Tex and Chuck had worked for him for 20 years. Sam explained briefly what Laurie had said, and added: "We'll ride down and warn him off. No violence this first trip. But we'll make it clear he ain't going to be allowed to stay. This here's my land by right of settlin' it."

En route to the lower range Sam fell to wondering how it was that the nester had proved insulting.

A young man was hewing logs in a clearing when the trio rode up. He drove his axe into a tree trunk and looked up at them, smiling pleasantly.

"Howdy gents," he said. "Climb down and squat awhile."

"Never mind the formalities, mister, I'm Sam Edgewater and I own this property. We don't tolerate nesters."

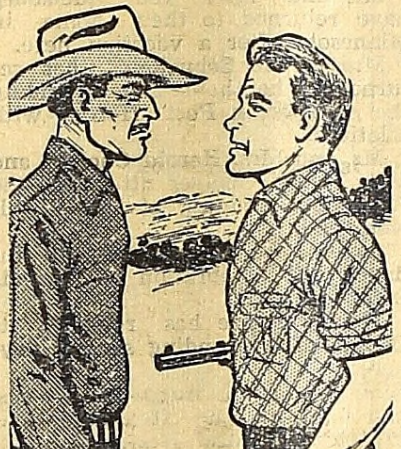

"They told me I could come down here and pick myself a home. It'd be mine if I improved it some. And I aim to improve it."

"This here's been my property for 20 years. It's mine by right of conquest," Sam roared.

The redhead grinned. "Well, if you got papers to prove it's yours, I suppose I'll have to get off. Otherwise, I'm staying."

Sam's face grew purple. He turned to Chuck and Tex. "Boys, you forget what I said about warnin' this jigger. We're gonna have a showdown right now. Kick him out!"

None of them saw the redhead move, but suddenly he had a gun in his hand. It exploded and Tex

The redhead wasn't grinning. None of them saw him move but suddenly he had a gun in his hand.

was staring down at his shattered wrist. The redhead wasn't grinning. He looked at Chuck. "Well, mister, I guess you're Edgewater's hired gunman too. How about it, want to try earnin' your pay?"

Chuck looked mad but helpless. He wasn't a fool. Sam recovered after a moment from the shock of what had happened. He ordered his men back on their horses. "O. K.," he said. "You win this play, Red, but we'll be back."

"Yeah," jeered the redhead. "Next time bring a dozen with you."

EIGHT DAYS later Sam rode down to the lower range at the head of seven grim-faced punchers.

"Son," said Sam Edgewater, "we don't want to hurt you none, but we aim to kick you off this land. You must have sense enough to realize you ain't got a chance, playing a lone hand."

The redhead grinned. "The government," he said, "allowed I could have this here land. However, you look to me like a square shooter, so I'll make you a square proposition. I'll take on any three of your heroes single handed—and agree not to marry your daughter if they beat me."

"Agree not to what!" Sam belated.

The redhead looked surprised. "Shucks," he said, "I thought Laurie had told you we were fixin' to get married. You see, I kissed her the first day she come down here and that sort of settled things—"

"Laurie! Is what this young whippersnapper says, true? Is it?" Laurie looked at the young whippersnapper, then at her father. "He did kiss me that first day I came down," she said.

Sam stared at her and swore under his breath. After a moment he turned his horse and galloped away, and the punchers galloped after him. Laurie confronted the redhead and her eyes were angry.

"That," she said, "was about the most—the most—" Her expression softened, because Red was grinning. "The most unromantic way of proposing," she finished.

"I can do better," said Red. "Want me to?" Laurie didn't answer. She didn't have to.

Show Business Offers Heart Break to Stage-Struck Girl

By BILLY ROSE

As everyone and his Aunt Esmerelda knows, there's no business like show business for the fortunate few who make the grade. But in 1946, a stage-struck lass from Nebraska named Judy Peters moved into a boarding house off Times Square and began looking for work in the theatre. As per usual, she was average bright, round of face, figure and eye, and determined to make her mark on the 45th Street marquees.

A few months later, thanks to a stage manager who took a shine to her, she got her first part—a three-line role in a two-act play that lasted four performances.

For a solid and sobering year after that, Judy made the rounds, eating the usual health salads and waiting on tables to pay for her furnished (after a fashion) room. It was heart-breaking work, but it finally paid off when the Big Chance came along—the second lead in a Shaw revival.

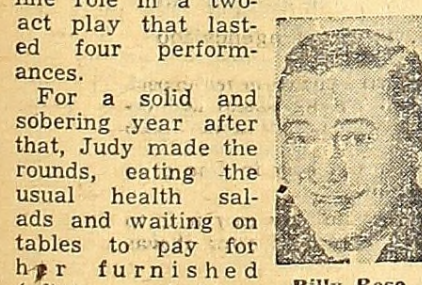

THE DAY AFTER the play opened out of town, Judy wired her folks they wouldn't have to help her any more, and when George mer stock company. He asked her to bone up on the part of Judy Linden—a typical farm girl whose accent was pure Midwest, and whose face and figure were more silt than sex.

THE AUDITION WENT off without hitch or hesitation, and Judy was in the heaven above seventh when the director complimented her on how well she read her lines. He told her he'd let her know definitely the following day, and she went back to her one-room-and-half-bath to wait.

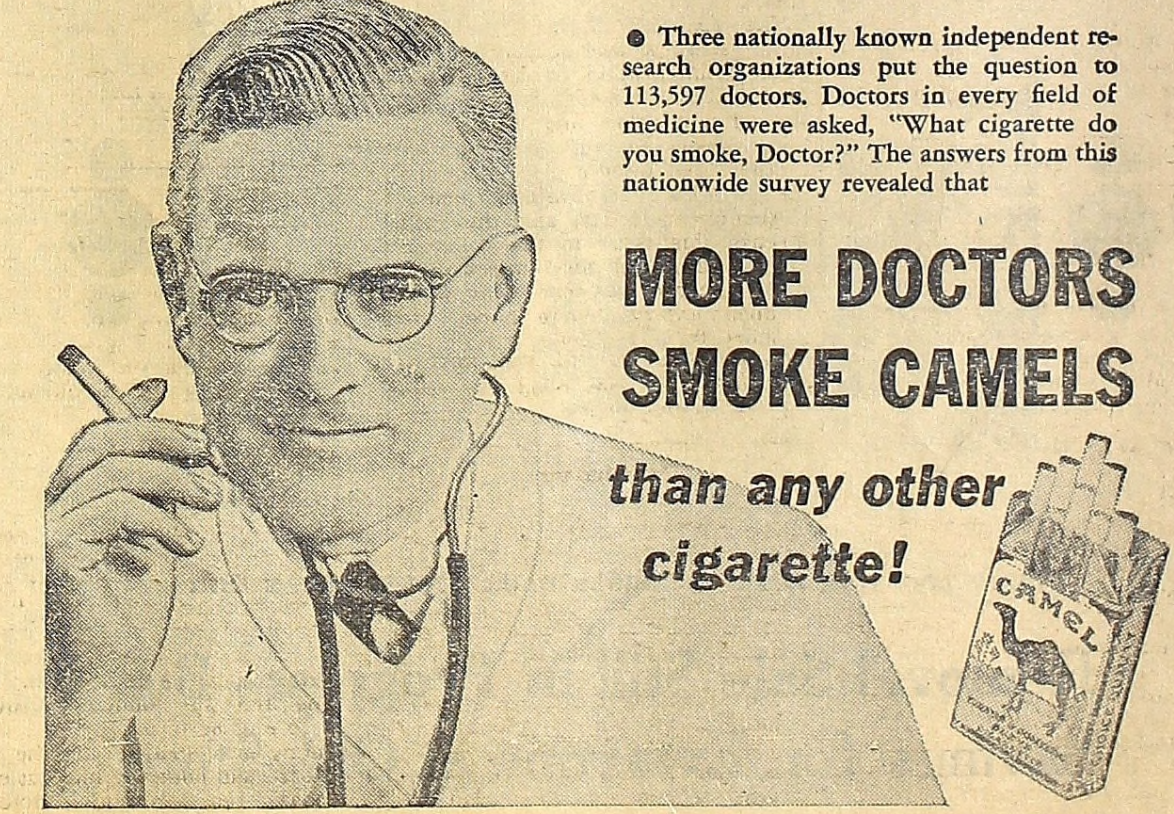

The next night the landlady smelled gas, but by the time the police arrived Judy was dead. On the bed by her side was the script of "The Shining Hour" opened to the scene in Act Two where Judy Linden, the farm girl, takes her own life.

The cops, looking for a suicide motive, didn't have far to look. On the dresser was a note from the director: Sorry, honey. You read the part fine, but I'm afraid you're not the type."

FARM FACTS

from your County Agricultural Agent

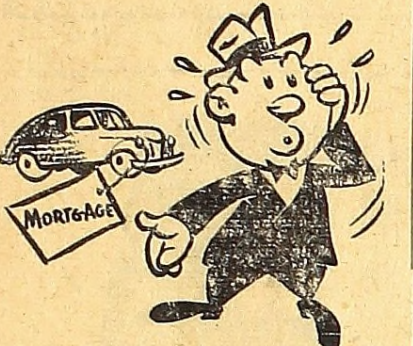

Harold R. Clark, County Agent
 If I was a farmer I think I would like a mack hay like Arthur Povish does. He makes all of his hay from the tractor seat. He mows his hay with a seven foot tractor driven mower, rakes with a side delivery rake powered by a tractor, loads it with a field chopper and blows into the mow when he finishes curing, with all the leaves on, by blowing air through it with an electric powered fan. No forks, no loader, no slings. In fact, the mow during the drying period is the coolest place on the farm. This system eliminates the heavy work of leading and mowing away the hay.
 This is just one of the examples of advancement in farming. In the early 1800's, when the farmer cut the hay with a scythe, raked it with a wooden hay rake, loaded by hand and pitched every forkful into the mow where another man was moving it away. In those days it took about 35 hours to harvest one ton of hay. The evolution of hay-making methods includes the inventions of the power mower, the dump rake and later the slings and hay track and now the field chopper and mow drier. The last method has increased the efficiency so that now it takes a little over one hour to harvest a ton of hay. It speeds up the time required for curing of the hay thus producing a higher quality hay.

 I have just received a reminder from Ray L. Jones, Extension Specialist in Entomology of Michigan State College, that our Hessian Fly "free date" is September 7. This fly used to be a serious threat to the wheat industry until entomologists learned to control it. Farmers are now fitting the land for wheat but will not plant until after September 7. The larvae or maggots, which do all the damage, hatch from the eggs laid by the adult Hessian fly. The scientists discovered that the flies do not live after late summer, so if there is no wheat when it makes its exit there will be no eggs laid on the wheat and therefore no maggots.
 Our engineering specialists suggest that now is a good time to change the light bulbs in the hay mow. With the hay mow now full the light bulbs are usually easy to reach. Replace all light bulbs now and save the good ones for replacement in a location easier to reach. Many light bulbs that burn out when the hay mows are low in hay are not replaced. Dark stairways, dark ladders and dark corners in the hay mow create hazards.
Schedule of Events:

FARM BUREAU MEETS WITH THE BLACKS

The August meeting of the Farm Bureau Board of Directors met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Black. Present were Directors Smith, Robinson, Hobart, Kobs, Black, Barnes, Lorenz, Herriman, Strauer, Junior Farm Bureau Director, Harold Smith, County Women's Chairman, Mrs. A. T. Vary, Mr. and Mrs. J. Mielock, guests, H. Clark, District Representative, Arlo Wasson.
 Mrs. Kobs reported that plans for a fine picnic were well underway, that committees are enthusiastically working on every detail. The picnic will be held on Labor Day at High Rollway Park.
 Other committees to report were Farm Supply, chairman, Lyle Robinson; Junior Farm Bureau, Counselor, Frank Smith.
 All groups present submitted their opinions on the two Wilber resolutions of July. The Grant group presented a resolution to be considered at the September discussions regarding placing an advertisement in the papers to call out the Rural vote.
 Harold Clark introduced the benefits of a Soil Conservation program in the county and the Board voted to co-sponsor with the Whittemore Grange such a project. The county president will name the committees.

DISCUSS FARM BUREAU PICNIC

The meeting of Vine Farm Bureau was held at the George Prescott, III, residence on August 16, with several of the members in attendance.
 The director's report was asked for and she gave a report on the address given by Mrs. Barker, regarding the importance of voting. Director Kobs also passed out the booklets on Oleo Legislation.
 We discussed the Farm Bureau Picnic that is to be held on Labor Day, and it was decided that as many could would attend the picnic.
 Director Kobs informed the group the County Board has stated it is optional if associate members are to be accepted.
 Discussion Leader Prescott opened discussion of the topic for the month "The Facts on the Oleo-Butter Controversy," which was very much in line with the address by Mrs. Karker regarding the importance of voting, and whereas every member of the House of Representatives are subject to replacement this fall, and with the trend toward socialized agriculture, it is important that those elected that will make every attempt to help the farmer interests. Therefore, everyone should exercise their right to vote. Mr. Prescott pointed out that 45,000 Dairymen and men employed by the Dairy Industry will be affected by the action, taken on colored oleo. Last year 18 billion pounds of milk was replaced by the use of Oleo. The cost of coloring one ton of oleo is only 80 cents, however, in states where this bill has passed, oleo has raised in price 22 cents to 27 cents per pound. In other words, where it was, say 27 cents per pound, it now sells for 49 cents, etc.

 Two resolutions from the Wilber Farm Bureau Group were presented, namely, one covering their desire to have Pheasant season remain closed for another year at least.

4-H CLUB NOTES

4-H Club Reporters Say—

Members of 4-H clubs in Home Economics and Handicraft are competing for state honors with representatives from almost every county this week during the State 4-H Show at Michigan State College.

District 4-H Club Agent, Marvin

Davenport, reports that more than 2000 state club members representing the states total membership of 60,000 are at East Lansing this week for the event.

A week long program of entertainment and education features is a regular part of the State 4-H Club Show. During the day, rural youth show their animals and participate in judging and demonstration contests.

This year's delegation from Iosco county and the exhibits which they are showing include:

Donna McCormick, Alabaster, Dress.

Dorothy West, East Tawas, 4-H Club Girl Demonstration.

Gailya Werth, East Tawas, 4-H Club Girl Demonstration.

Virginia Hildner, Hale, Food Preparation judging contest.

Leaberta Townsend, Hale, Clothing judging contest.

Mrs. Herbert Townsend is 4-H club leader accompanying the exhibitors.

A joint meeting of Burleigh Wizards was held at the Grange Hall with a very good attendance of members. Five parents were present. We miss Jean Bellow who is in Munson Hospital, Traverse City. Both leaders were present. Plans were made to have a float at the fair and Dorothy Shellenbarger was chosen our queen.

A demonstration on First Aid was given by Melba Sheffer and Aileen Ward. A report was given of $14.11 from our bake sale at the home coming.

"Mix-up" games on flowers and birds were played and a delicious lunch was served.—Aileen Ward, reporter.

The Hale 4-H community club had their project tour and 28 members and leaders attended.

4-H members, Carol Buch, Norone Huber, Faye Huber, Eileen Shellenbarger, Evelyn Gitchell, Leaberta Townsend, Olive Beane, Janet Helzheuer, Ruth Barnes and Janice Parkinson showed us their exhibits for the county fair. These young ladies exchanged ideas and discussed their methods of canning and freezing fruits and vegetables.

Alton Buch, Lenford Gitchell, Ronnie Ropert, G. Whitney, Charles Krueger, John Webb, Ron Cation and Bill Seaver showed us their dairy calves. If all these young fellas exhibit, nearly half the dairy exhibits will be from the Hale 4-H community club. There will be a lot of brushing, trimming and cleaning up going on with the dairy projects. Feeding one part whole oats, one part whole corn with good legume hay is the thing that does the trick for our dairy calves. We should feed no more than sixteen pounds of milk per day, but the grain and hay supplement this feeding. Don't forget salt and bonemal in the right proportions depending on the amounts of grains mixed.

We saw some beautiful vegetable and flower gardens. Sandra Greve, Rebecca Webb, Mary Jane Douglas and Sonja McGirr provided the beautiful flower gardens. These young ladies will exhibit a bouquet at the Iosco County fair. Be sure to see them because they have done a nice job of beautifying the home grounds.

Mr. and Mrs. Pat Jordon of Baltimore are spending a two weeks vacation at the homes of his father here and her parents in Whittemore.

Harvey Smith of Flint and Evelyn Smith of Bay City spent the week-end at their home here.

George Blust of Flint spent the week-end with his mother here.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Dickson and son, Robert Jr. spent a couple days at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Smith.

Robert Kavanaugh of Bay City spent the week-end at the Joseph Schneider home.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Stoner, Jr. and new son are spending a week at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Stoner, Sr.

Mr. and Mrs. James Brigham are busy entertaining their grandchildren, the O'Briens, of Bay City.

Matt Pavelock had the misfortune of having his new car badly damaged when a man with a pick-up backed into him.

Mr. and Mrs. Walt Smith and son, Michael, and Mrs. Frank Smith spent Tuesday in Bay City.

Mr. and Mrs. Victor Hartman of Flint spent the week-end with her parents, Mr and Mrs. Dewey Ross.

Mr. and Mrs. Elbridge Cataline have taken over the gas station at the Silver Gables corners.

A large group from here attended the St. James Church picnic at Whittemore Sunday. In spite of rain there was a large crowd in attendance.

Mr. and Mrs. John Allen of Whittemore called at the Frank Smith home Monday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Schneider and Mrs. Robert Stoner were business callers in Tawas Thursday evening.

Jack Elliott, of East Tawas, was a business caller, here Monday.

To the Voters:

My name will appear on the ballot, Republican Ticket, at the primary election to be held September 12, as a candidate for Prosecuting Attorney of Iosco County. I would appreciate it greatly if you would give my candidacy favorable consideration.

Tight Rope

By Allison L. Burks

Dorinda considers abandoning the masquerade and returning to her own station of life and her own identity. She is lonesome in her role as Dorinda Lane Croix and wants to return to her own self as Stella Moore, secretary. She has consented to play the part of a dead girl in order to help keep alive that girl's grandmother who, she is told, might die of shock if she knew the real Dorinda was dead. At Edward Thorndyke's insistence she decides to remain and play out the part for his mother, Dorinda's grandmother. Edward declines to let Dorinda attend the movies with nurse Carol, which the former resents. Cleve Adams gives Dorinda a puppy to keep her company.

CHAPTER VI

"You know I haven't any rouge. Cleve, he's adorable." She set the little dog down on the ground where he promptly pounced upon one of her feet, worrying her shoestring and growling with mock fury.

"Three months old, sound in mind and limb, housebroken and possessed of exceptional intelligence," Cleve said proudly. "Do you want him?"

"Do I want him? Of course, I want him. He's the very nicest present I've ever had in my whole life."

"Well, you didn't come after him, Dorinda, and somehow I had a feeling you never would come." Cleve sat down on one of the brick steps, his back against a white pillar. "I thought perhaps you needed a lift after what happened yesterday, so here I am, me and my dog—your dog, I mean."

"Cleve," Dorinda's voice was only a whisper. The laughter had faded from her face. "They found he—Taylor—had taken some kind of a sleeping medicine before he crashed. Hawley phoned and told Uncle Edward."

Cleve whistled. "The devil he did! What do you suppose Taylor did that for?"

Edward Phones Hawley About Taylor Inquest

"I don't imagine they think he did it intentionally. It wouldn't make any sense. I think they believe that girl—the one that looked like me—gave it to him in his drink."

"So then it's murder!" Cleve said softly.

Dorinda's hand pressed against her mouth. Cleve had said it—the word she wouldn't let herself speak. He threw a quick glance at her face.

"It's a horrible thing. But people are murdered every day, Dorinda. And we didn't know him."

"Oh, well, the sheriff himself will be back in a few days. Poole's a different dish of tea. A shrewd guy though I'm not sure how he will stack up in a case like this."

"Let's talk about something else, honey. I have a message for you. As I mentioned a few minutes ago, I had a feeling you'd never come over to my place after that pup, or for any other reason. So my mother has issued a special invitation to you to come over for dinner. And that, from her, is equivalent to a royal command. I want you to meet my mother, Dorinda. When can you come?"

Dorinda bent over the dog, her loosened hair hiding her face. "That's nice of you, Cleve. I'll let you know. I must ask Uncle Edward—I wouldn't want to interfere with any of his plans."

"What a dutiful child you are. A rare specimen in this day and age. When you get married, Dorinda, are you going to obey your husband as you do your uncle?"

"No, indeed. A husband is, as you say, Cleve, a different dish of tea."

"I might have known it," Cleve grumbled. "But I suppose a fellow can't have everything." He glanced down at his watch. "I'm supposed to be in town right this minute. I've got to step on it." He gave one of her curls a yank before he stepped into his car. "Don't forget that invitation."

Carol called to her softly from the hall. "Do you know where Mr. Thorndyke is? His mother has been asking for him."

"If I'm not mistaken, Uncle Edward and Fay are driving in the gate now," Dorinda said. She was glad of the interruption.

Taylor had been killed early Tuesday morning. The inquest was held the following Thursday. No one from Thorndyke House attended. But early in the afternoon, Edward telephoned to Hawley.

He had hesitated about doing this. "Perhaps it's better to stay entirely clear of the matter," he said uneasily. The three of them, Edward, Fay and Dorinda, had lingered over luncheon in the gold and white dining room on the west side of the house.

In spite of Edward's decision, he telephoned Hawley some time later in the day. Fay had left the house and Dorinda had taken her dog and gone down to the beach for a romp in the sand. Edward met her as she came up the wooden steps, the puppy at her heels.

by the automobile crash, said crash being the result of the drug Taylor had taken. They recommended investigation be continued to determine whether the drug was self-administered, taken by accident or was given him by someone else, possibly with homicidal intent.

Dorinda's brows knit in a puzzled frown. "Why do you think about it, Uncle Edward? Maybe it did seem queer—Taylor recognizing me that day and then dying that night. But it can't be anything but a coincidence. Let's forget it."

Edward's gaze was on the far horizon. "Forgetting—that's a thing more easily said than done."

He was right, Dorinda found, when she went to the village late that afternoon.

There was a new alertness in the faces that looked back at Dorinda as she walked down the village street. Eyes filled with questioning, with surmise, as they met hers. She thought of what Edward had said, "What one person in Trent-village knows, the whole town knows."

She found Anne frankly inquisitive. But somehow she didn't resent it in Anne. In fact, she found it a relief to hear spoken the thing the whole town was thinking.

"Oh, Dorinda, isn't it exciting?" Anne bubbled. "They say you were questioned by the police. Weren't you thrilled? I do believe you're a femme fatale—one of those women who attract strange and fascinating adventures."

Dorinda laughed in spite of herself. "Anne, you dope, how you do run on. By the police, I suppose you mean Mr. Hawley."

Anne grimaced. "Well, perhaps he is a little lacking in lurid qualities. A nice boy, though rather inclined to blush. I imagine, without half trying, you wrapped him around your little finger and reduced him to an abject mass of apology."

'Grandmother' in First Probing of Dorinda

"I didn't even half try," Dorinda sat down in the Windsor chair beside Anne's desk. "And the apologies were all to Uncle Edward for daring to connect his precious niece 'even in thought'—quotation marks—with a man like Taylor. Seriously though, Anne, I didn't think it funny."

"I've never told this to a soul, Dorinda," she said in a conspiratorial whisper, "but that night after you'd been gone for about half an hour, Taylor came in here. He pretended to be interested in the books but what he really wanted was to ask questions about you. How long you'd been here and if you had money, oh, a lot of things."

Dorinda's slim fingers gripped the book she held in her lap. "Did you tell him?"

"Not much. I told him I knew practically nothing about you. He'd never lived in a small town or he wouldn't have swallowed that tale. What do you suppose was the idea? Do you think he had aspirations to marry the village heiress?"

"Your guess is as good as mine," Dorinda countered.

"Dorinda," Anne said excitedly, "maybe he was a Nazi spy—or a Gestapo agent. He might have followed you from France—"

"Oh Anne, we're not at war with Germany. Not yet. Anyway, it wasn't that important."

"You're destroying all my romantic ideas," Anne said ruefully. "Getting down to brass tacks, I suppose Taylor was just a wolf trying to make a pretty girl."

"Thanks for the adjective."

"It is eerie, isn't it? I can just see Taylor stalking you through the twilight," Anne shivered. "Gee, I'm scaring myself. Here's a new novel your grandmother will like. Dorinda. Just came in this morning."

Outside the air had grown cooler. The wind brought with it the chill from the sea. Trees against the sunset cast black bars of shadow across the road, and in the fields the poppies closed their brilliant petals against the coming night. Dorinda was glad to see the dark facade of Thorndyke House loom up before her. After all, it was, for the time, home. As much of a home as she could have.

Carol was passing through the upper hall. "Tell Grandmother I'll bring her book in to her in a few minutes," Dorinda called.

She picked up the library book in its brown-jacket and went down the hall to Mrs. Thorndyke's room. Grandmother's face brightened as she saw her.

"How pretty you look, Dorinda." Her thin fingers touched the bright folds of the red dress. "I like colors with vitality in them." Her eyes, meeting Dorinda's, held affection and a touch of wistfulness.

"You're looking extremely elegant yourself, Grand-mere." Dorinda stepped back to admire the picture Mrs. Thorndyke, leaning back among her pillows, made. "Like a French marquise—the way they're popularly supposed to look, I mean."

"Carol dressed me up. Sometimes I think she treats me as if I were a life-sized doll."

"A woman of my years wearing lipstick!" Grandmother scoffed. "Carol bought it—a new shade, 'Ash Geranium,' she called it. Light rose with a hint of mauve."

Dorinda Asked to Show Childhood Cut Scar

"I like it," Dorinda decided. She smiled at Carol who sat sewing under a shaded lamp, the light touching her bent black head.

"In my youth, only women of a certain class used rouge and lipstick," Mrs. Thorndyke asserted. "But, old as I am, I can still accept new ideas. Especially when they become me," she added, with a twinkle. "Tell me what you've been doing with yourself, Dorinda."

So Dorinda told her of Cleve's visit the day before, of his gift of the wire-haired pup— "His name is Randy, Grandmother, and I'm bringing him in to see you as soon as he quiets down a bit." She told of her walk to Trentville that afternoon, of the acacias in bloom, of Anne at the library.

There was a light knock, followed by the opening of the door. Fay came into the room. She was dressed for dinner, poised and lovely as she always was, her cool beauty without a flaw. She smiled at Mrs. Thorndyke, a smile which curved her lips but did not reach her eyes.

"Dear Aunt Lucy," she said softly, "I didn't know you already had company. You mustn't let Dorinda tire you."

"Dorinda never tires me," the older woman said shortly. "Don't stand there, Fay. Sit down."

Dorinda sat close to the bedside. Fay moved to a chair a few feet away. She sat down and leaned against the cushioned back, her slim hands folded in her lap. She did not, Dorinda noticed, wear the diamond ring Edward had given her.

"I love this room," Fay said. "It's a perfect setting for you, Aunt Lucy." She looked about her, her gaze lingering on the papered walls, the polished furniture. Her eyes swept past Carol as if the young nurse did not exist.

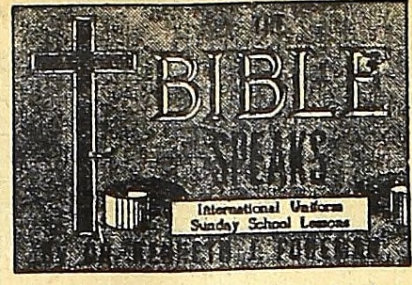

Mrs. Thorndyke was speaking again. "Dorinda and I were talking over old times," she said sweetly to Fay, and looked back at Dorinda again.

"You were a dear little girl, though naughty sometimes. Like Laura, I thought then, though you've changed since. Do you remember when I visited you and your mother in Paris? It was spring and the chestnut trees were in bloom. Paris—will it ever be the same again? At least I'll never see it."

Her face grew bright once more. "But one thing I wager you do remember, child. I hadn't thought of it myself for years. The afternoon your mother left you with me and I dozed off in my chair. When I woke you were gone and I started to search for you. I found you in your mother's room—you were standing on a chair in front of her wardrobe to reach the flask of perfume you had wanted and which she had hidden from you on a high shelf. When I came in, I startled you and you fell. I'll never forget—the room so strong of rose scent, broken glass on the carpet, blood everywhere and you screaming. I was really frightened." She shivered, living those moments again.

"It was a bad cut, Dorinda. I thought it would never stop bleeding. And it left a bad scar on your wrist." She laid her hand over Dorinda's. "Is that why you wear this heavy bracelet, my dear?" Her fingers fumbled at the clasp. "Let me see, Dorinda. Proof of your grandmother's negligence."

Man of Power

Lesson for September 3, 1950

"I KNEW him when—" can be a deadly weapon. It has knocked down many a good man. Some one is being considered for a job, and he is just about to be accepted, when somebody sounds off with "I knew him when—"

"I knew him when he was a boy and he was a neighborhood nuisance. I knew him when he used to live here, and his family were no-account. I knew him when he was in school and he never had high grades. I knew him before he amounted to anything, so he can't amount to anything now."

A Case Against Peter

IT IS A GOOD thing the Christian church never took that attitude about the Apostles, and a very good thing they didn't take that line with Peter. It is true that he did not come out of the top drawer. It is quite true that when he was young he was no prize specimen. In fact, it would not be hard to make almost as strong a case against him as against Judas, if you take Simon Peter at his low point.

"Shall we keep Peter on our list?" Suppose you had been one of the other apostles and had been asked that question the night after the crucifixion. If you had not had a rather generous heart, you could easily have turned in an unfavorable report.

"Well," you might have said, "he has some good points. He is sometimes on the alert, never fails for something to say. But he doesn't always come through in a pinch. I understand the Lord took him up to the top of the mountain when he was transfigured, and what did that man do but go to sleep? Any of us would have given our right eye to have been there. But we never did get much of a story out of poor old Simon Peter. He was asleep most of the time."

"And do you remember that dinner when Mary poured all that ointment over Jesus' head? It was a beautiful thing for her to do. I mean her motive was beautiful. But Peter complained about it."

"Then there was the night—only last night, but it seems a year away—when Jesus took Simon Peter and those two others into the garden with him. All the Master wanted was company. But old Peter was asleep again in no time."

"But that's not the worst. Last night at the supper table Peter bragged about how brave he was—got out a couple of swords in fact—and he swore that even if every one else denied the Master, he wouldn't. But just before cock-crow he showed himself up for a liar and a coward. Some girls, just a girl, mind you, somebody out of the kitchen, said she knew he was a friend of Jesus. And this Peter starts swearing in the ugliest kind of language that he never knew Jesus, his very best friend."

"Well, Judas hanged himself, and Peter might as well. I don't see how he can possibly hold his head up again after last night."

Man of Power

NEVERTHELESS, Peter became a hero, a man of power. Look at his story in Acts 2-5. A recognized leader of the Christians, defying the very men of whom he had once been so afraid; honest, rock-ribbed, standing up for the Master when it meant risking his life to do so.

Even if you could not believe the miracle-stories which are told about him in Acts, you would have to admit that it is not every man who has miracle-stories told about him.

It is no weakling who has the reputation of being able to raise men from the dead and to kill liars with a glance of the eye.

Transforming Secret

WHAT WAS the secret of Peter's transformation from the half-braggart, half-coward he used to be, to the stalwart fearless man of power he became? The answer is in those stories in our Scripture readings from Matthew and John.

The first tells of Jesus' faith in Simon Peter. The second tells of that again, and also of Peter's response to Jesus' faith in him. It is the secret of any Christian's success in being all that God knows he can be.

MIRROR Of Your MIND

Can Sisters Be Mutual Friends?
By Lawrence Gould

Are two sisters often real friends?

Answer: Not if they are of nearly the same age. If they are far enough apart so that the older can take a maternal attitude toward the younger, deep affection may grow up between them. But if they are close together, they will usually be so jealous of each other that their mutual feelings are unconsciously or openly hostile. The same principle applies to brothers except that because they're more apt to have friends and interests away from home, they are thrown into less active competition for prestige or their parents' favor.

Should adopted children have "ready-made answers"?

Answer: Yes, says Dr. Arthur L. Rautman of Carleton College, Minnesota. Obsolete but still surviving prejudices will expose such children—and their foster parents—to rude questions from people who know no better, and the parents should not only anticipate this but prepare the

Medical Treatment of Severe Goiter

By Dr. James W. Barton

I HAVE WRITTEN before of a physician friend who walked from his home to my office, a distance of four blocks, sat down for a couple of minutes, then asked me to take his pulse rate. The pulse rate was 72 which is normal. He then informed me that he had undergone surgical removal of the serious type of goiter, exophthalmic goiter, just three weeks before. His pulse rate before operation was 110 and his basal metabolism rate 25 above normal.

It is because of this rapid recovery after surgical removal of the thyroid gland that operation is the favorite treatment for serious goiter (rapid heart beat, trembling, bulging eyes).

However, there are cases in which surgical operation is not advisable and so other methods of treating exophthalmic goiter must be considered. For this reason some cases are treated by X-ray or radium and others by medical treatment.

In Annals of Clinical Medicine, Buenos Aires, Dr. E. S. Mazzei

Household Hints

Waxed cardboard milk containers, washed and thoroughly dried, make handy receptacles for bread crumbs. Especially if you give the outside of the carton a coat of paint to make it last longer and look better.

If you have trouble getting the shell to separate from hard-boiled eggs, run cold water over the eggs as soon as you take them out of the boiling water.

Light, high, fluffy omelettes can be managed if you beat the whites and the yolks separately. Mix them together just before you put the eggs in the skillet, and the large amount of air in the mixture will bring about the desired result.

When you want bread crumbs to use for frying, put stale slices of bread through the meat grinder and mix the crumbs with equal parts of flour. In grinding the bread crumbs, you can avoid a lot of mess if, instead of catching them in a bowl as they come out, you tie a paper bag securely over the end of the grinder.

Without Painful Backache

As we get older, stress and strain, over-exertion, excessive smoking or exposure to cold sometimes slow down kidney function. This may lead many folks to complain of nagging backache, loss of pep and energy, headaches and dizziness. Getting up nights or frequent passages may result from minor bladder irritations due to cold, dampness or dietary indiscretions.

If your discomforts are due to these causes, don't wait, try Doan's Pills, a mild diuretic. Used successfully by millions for over 50 years. While these symptoms may often otherwise occur, it's amazing how many times Doan's give happy relief—help the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters flush out waste. Get Doan's Pills today!

WHEN SLEEP WON'T COME AND YOU FEEL GLUM

Use Chewing-Gum Laxative—REMOVES WASTE...NOT GOOD FOOD

When you can't sleep—feel just awful because you need a laxative—do as millions do—chew FEEN-A-MINT.

FEEN-A-MINT is wonderfully different! Doctors say many other laxatives start their "flushing" action too soon...right in the stomach. Large doses of such laxatives upset digestion, flush away nourishing food you need for health and energy...you feel weak, worn out.

But gentle FEEN-A-MINT, taken as recommended, works chiefly in the lower bowel where it removes only waste, not good food! You avoid that weak, tired feeling. Use FEEN-A-MINT and feel fine, full of life! 25¢, 50¢, or only 10¢

BUSINESS DEMANDS GOOD HEALTH

R. G. Monaghan, 807 Limestone, Mart, Texas, famous cattleman, says that a man's success in business depends on his good health. His key to health is Crazy Water Crystals.

Mr. Monaghan says: "It has been 20 years since I started taking Crazy Water Crystals. Before taking this wonderful aid to nature, I was troubled with constipation, stomach bloating and backaches. All these troubles have long since left me as a result of my using Crazy Water Crystals. I couldn't be in better health."

Crazy Water Crystals have been found beneficial in the treatment of many ailments that folks suffer—upset stomach, biliousness, headaches, backaches, nervousness, run-down condition, loss of sleep and appetite, lack of energy, nervous indigestion—when constipation and gastric acidity are contributing factors of such disorders. Don't endure these hardships any longer. Crazy Water Crystals have brought pleasant relief to millions of folks for over 70 years.

Sold wherever drugs are sold in three convenient forms, crystals, powder and concentrated liquid. Satisfaction guaranteed by Crazy Water Co., Inc., Mineral Wells, Texas—Adv.

GRASSROOTS

by WRIGHT A. PATTERSON

Chase the Bureaucrats!

IN BOTH his radio addresses to the nation and in his message to congress, President Truman warned the American people that if there was evidence of profiteering or hoarding, he would ask congress to re-enact war-time controls, including price regulations and rationing. At the same time, we were assured there was no danger of a food shortage, no reason for buying more than our day-to-day needs, and so provide an excuse for raising food prices.

In other words, the President threatened to impose upon all of us the hardships and inconveniences of a price control and rationing system, not only on those who were guilty of hoarding, or the merchants who were profiteering. The innocent must pay the penalty for the sins of the guilty. All must again stand in line to secure ration books, then await their turn to buy their allotment of sugar, coffee, bacon, and other food and household supplies to which the government says they are entitled, and at a price the merchant is told he can charge.

Now, because of the hoardings of a small minority who were unwilling to take their chances on being able to eat, and by hoarding called the President's threat, all of us must again, for no one can say how long, suffer the penalties that go with hoarding and profiteering. All of us must pay the penalty brought upon us by the hoarders and the profiteers.

We can get back at those profiteers who raised prices, and by so doing forced the President's hand, by trading elsewhere, but there is not much opportunity to pay the hoarders for what they did to us. It is small satisfaction to those of that vast majority who did not practice hoarding to know that those who did, and by so doing again brought rationing upon us, must suffer the same penalties as the rest of us, when their hoarded supplies are exhausted.

It was nearly four years after the fighting in World War II was over before we were relieved of that obnoxious rationing nuisance. The President made a persistent effort to continue it, aided and abetted by the bureaucracy that manned OPA. If he is still in office when this emergency is over, it is safe to expect that an even stronger effort will be made to keep rationing in effect as a part of the planned economy that is being fostered.

Relying on the assurances of our air experts that should Russia start a World War III, we would defeat Russia almost overnight, by atomic bombs carried by air and dropped on the Kremlin, we are living in a fool's paradise. Russia is a mighty nation with a tremendous war potential, far greater than is represented by little North Korea. And we were not able to stop that small army over many days and nights.

We can hope our air experts know, but it would be well that we be prepared to fight a long war on land, sea and air. We should spend our money for national defense, rather than for too much welfare and for those national projects we can get along without while war threatens. Such projects include those grandiose plans for irrigation, for flood control, for inland navigation and for power development.

All such things can await the decision with Russia, and in the meantime we should disband that army of bureaucrats. It is in no way helps in the defense of the nation.

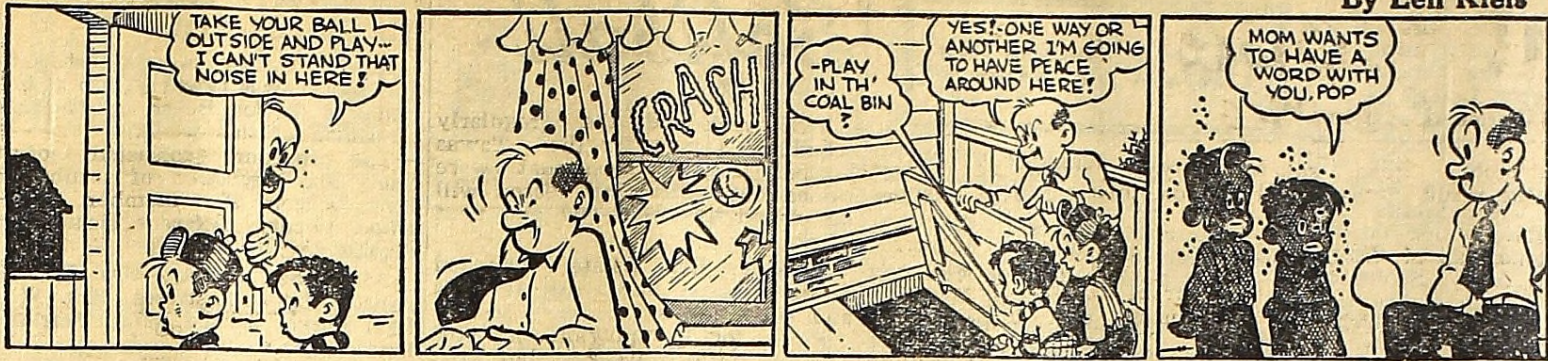

There is all too much partisan political wrangling in Washington. In congress each party gives first consideration to the securing of party advantage, rather than consideration for the interests of the nation, while the free world burns. While congress continues to fiddle, the Commies may overpower us—and wipe out all of our institutions, including congress which will be replaced by a totalitarian politburo, and government by congress be gone forever. That is not an impossibility.

The small business interest of the nation have emphatically rejected President Truman's program for their benefit. Each of the five points of the program were rejected by from 72 to 97 percent of those queried. They do not want government loans or handouts, or government advice as to how to run their business. What they do want is relief from collecting government taxes from their employees.

Seven million veterans have improved the opportunity offered by the GI bill of rights to complete their years of schooling. There are eight million others who did not, and the time was up on July 25, unless congress should extend the date.

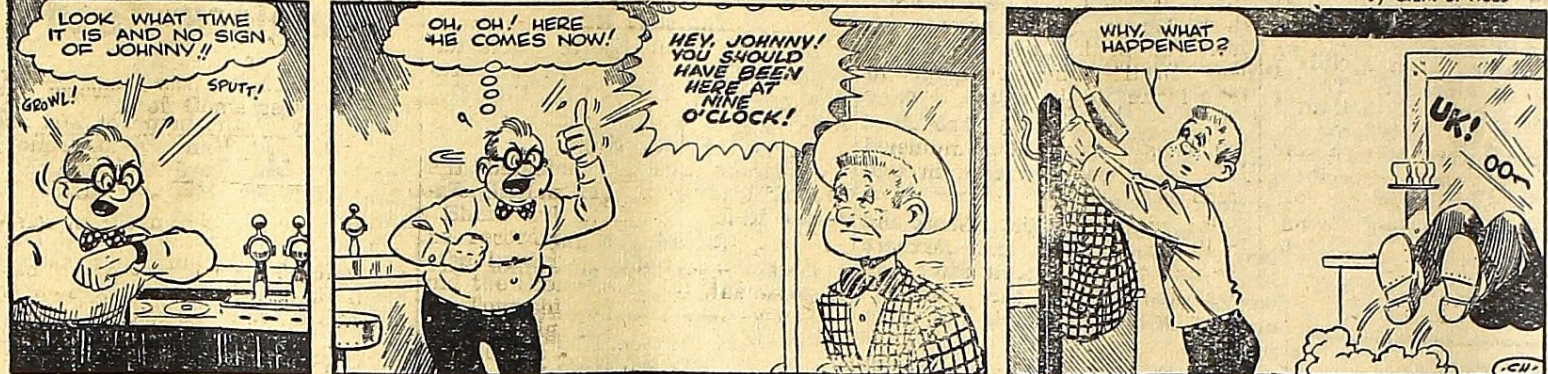

The Korean story will be different when fully equipped marines reach the battle front. The "devil dogs" will give the Russian equipped North Koreans something to remember.
