Archers Find Silver Valley to Their Liking

In a letter to the Tawas Chamber of Commerce, K. E. Palmatier, secretary of the Michigan Archers association said:

"The national tournament is now history. And it is good history in many respects. It broke the registration record by 100 archers. About 10 new records were made. It was the first national tournament in which archers with sights and without sights shot together and it was proven that future tournaments should be handled in the same way.

"The archers found the community to their liking and there would be little trouble on your part in having another tournament there. Silver Valley has something the archers like.

"The success of any tournament depends upon the effort of the local tournament chairman. You could not have picked a better man than Charles Nash. To his credit must go the many praises the archers had for the excellent condition of the several courses. They were the best prepared courses of any national tournament."

Retired Tawas Farmer Dies

Funeral Wednesday for August W. Krumm

August W. Krumm, a resident of Tawas township, Iosco county for the past 60 years, died Sunday at the home of his son, Carl Krumm, near Tawas City, following a long illness.

Born August 26, 1865, at Posen, Germany, he came to the United States when 20 years old. On April 20, 1890, he was married to the former Augusta Damerau. She died January 1, 1920. In 1922 he married Mrs. Bertha Reinke who passed away in 1926.

He is survived by three sons, William, Emil and Carl of Tawas township; a daughter, Mrs. Alma Phillips of Flint; five grandchildren, four great grandchildren, and six step-children.

60 Sign Up for School Band

Sixty boys and girls have signed up for the Tawas City High School Bands. This total was revealed after a check-up on the recruits late this week.

With the enthusiasm still running high, and the bandmaster swamped with requests for try-outs from children and for conferences with parents, prospects are good that the tentative goal of a 70 piece band will be reached.

Not since the band was first established years ago has such real interest been demonstrated. Even seniors who have but one year in school and who are not encouraged to enter the band are asking for that opportunity. In the junior high school the major topic of conversation among all the boys and girls centers on the possibility of getting a horn and joining. The enthusiasm is amazing. It is also spontaneous. No one is told, no one persuaded that he should play in the band. Only those who expressly manifest strong interest and who seem most likely to succeed are considered.

The majority of the boys and girls will be taking advantage of the rental plan which permits try-outs on instruments at low cost. These instruments are brand new, of good quality and made especially for school bands.

State Police Ranks Open to Married Men

Training School Scheduled to Begin About October 1

For the first time in their history, the Michigan State Police have opened enlistments to married as well as single men.

Candidates are now being accepted for a training school scheduled to begin October 1 and from which will be graduated the 60 new troopers recently authorized by the legislature as part of the state's civil defense program.

"The purpose in enlisting married men as well as single men is to obtain personnel least subject to being drafted into the military services, but still meeting our physical requirements," Commissioner Donald S. Leonard said. "There are many men in this group, particularly veterans of the last war, who provide excellent material for recruitment. In addition, they now have the opportunity to join a career service which offers permanent tenure and financial security in the future."

Candidates must be between the ages of 21 and 30, in good physical health and of good character. Persons interested to write immediately to the State Civil Service Commission or Michigan State Police Headquarters in East Lansing, or to visit their nearest State Police post for full information. Action should be prompt as it is planned to begin organizing the school September 20.

During the eight weeks spent in school candidates will receive their board and lodging and pay at the rate of $100 a month, an increase of $50 over the amount formerly paid. Those who graduate will immediately go on the payroll at the regular scale of pay for troopers.

"Inasmuch as the police are a key essential in home defense, enlistment will provide a way to serve in an important capacity in the overall security effort," Leonard stated.

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS

Truman Gives 8 Points for Peace; Reds Snap Defense Wall in North; New Wage Increases Are Reported

(EDITOR'S NOTE: When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of Western Newspaper Union's news analysis and not necessarily of this newspaper.)

TRUMAN:

Statement of Policy

In an obvious attempt to erase some of the confusion that has developed around the American foreign policy since General MacArthur's statement on Formosa, President Truman made a report to the nation in which he stated eight aims of this country.

At the same time he announced plans for doubling American armed strength to nearly 3,000,000 men and asserted our productive capacity would be pushed to any degree necessary to attain a victory for freedom and the rule of law.

In his speech which was broadcast over a world-wide hookup, the President made it plain that a world war would not develop unless the Communists drove new puppets against the United Nations forces in Korea.

By this he meant, of course, Chinese Communists who have been reported as massing troops near the Korean border.

However, he made it plain that we would stay in the conflict if such a decision was made. He then attacked Russia for violating its pledges of international co-operation and preaching peace, but practicing aggression.

The eight points expounded in his speech:

1. We believe in the United Nations.
2. We believe Koreans have a right to be free.
3. We don't want the Korean fighting to expand into general war.
4. We particularly hope the Chinese people won't be misled into fighting the U.N. and the American people who still are their friends.
5. We want none of Asia, Formosa included, for ourselves.
6. We believe in freedom for all far eastern nations.
7. We do not believe in aggressive or preventive war.
8. We want peace and "we shall achieve it."

KOREA:

Stab at Taegu

North Korean forces, in the greatest advance in several weeks, broke through the northern U.N. defense wall and sent two columns of tanks and troops within a few miles of Kyangju, 12 miles south of Pohang. From there the columns could swing west and stab at Taegu from the rear, or continue to push for Pusan some 50 miles to the south. It was the most serious threat to U.N. forces in a number of weeks. Military men were wondering if the Communists had the strength to exploit their penetration.

On all other fronts U.N. forces were holding or counter-attacking. In the northwest U.S. troops continued to root out Reds dug in on a 3,000-foot ridge 12 miles north of Taegu and smashed several Red attempts to cross the Naktong river.

On the south-central front U.N. forces further compressed the Red bridgehead across the Naktong near where it joins the Nam river.

In the southwest U. N. forces were back in old positions west of Maman and Mason after breaking up new Red attacks. On this front the Communists reportedly lost 13,000 troops in four days.

In the air navy and air force planes continued to give close support to ground forces on all fronts, striking savagely with heavy explosives, rockets, napalm fire bombs and machine guns.

B-29's and B-26's continued to strike deep into Red territory.

LEWIS:

The Bear Growls

John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers, and known in some quarters as the unhappy bear in labor's ranks, has growled again. This time the victim was AFL President William Green.

Lewis told Green in no uncertain terms that his union would not be bound by a no-strike pledge during the war emergency.

He charged Green of bartering the rights of labor to appease his "innate craving for orthodox respectability" and added: "Restrict your pledges to your own outfit. We can do our own no-striking."

Some believed Lewis used this means of getting back at Green for not including the miners in unity talks between the AFL and the CIO.

EMPLOYMENT:

All-Time High

Employment in the United States was the greatest in the nation's history, the department of commerce reported with more than 62 million persons at work.

The only decrease noted in the entire employment picture was that of farm workers. A drop of 280,000 during the month, to 8,160,000, was reported.

The August total was 752,000 above the record set in July, 1948.

Conference

Chairman Millard Tydings (left), senate armed services committee, and house armed services Committee Chairman Carl Vinson, (right), are shown at the White House after conferring with President Truman on a new tank program which will cost an additional $500,000,000.

LABOR:

What's in the Future?

The Ford motor company tore up an unexpired contract with the United Automobile Workers and granted an immediate 8-cent-hourly cost-of-living wage increase. Previously, the Chrysler corporation had made a "voluntary" wage adjustment of 10 cents an hour. On top of this the White House announced the long dispute between the A.F.L. switchman's union and 10 western railroads had been settled with an agreement that gives the union a 23-cent-hourly wage boost.

With these facts in mind, economists are asking what's in the future for the American people? They came up with the immediate answer that it will force the nation into direct wage and price controls much sooner than would otherwise have occurred.

The Ford company's labor relations is always a pattern for the automobile industry. Other companies will follow this trend, most observers agreed.

Current hourly pay of the average automobile worker is estimated at $1.75. Rates for skilled craftsmen, such as tool and die makers, run about $2.50.

Most economists believed the new wage increases would be reflected in the price of automobiles within the near future.

Observers reported the overall picture indicated a round of wage increases throughout the labor ranks. These increases in the past have been reflected in the cost of living in all fields.

Some economists, however, believe that as soon as the wage structure is equalized to make up for loss of purchasing power since Korea, the economy will go along on a plateau.

JOHNSON:

Refuses to Resign

Defense Secretary Louis Johnson, under fire from many quarters to resign but still backed by President Truman, flatly rejected a demand for his resignation and said he had "no apology" for his record as chief of the nation's military forces.

In his unusual statement Johnson said many of the attacks on both him and Acheson were "primarily political" and were leveled "with an eye to the November election."

He likened himself to the late Defense Secretary Forrestal who broke down after repeated attacks by critics and later jumped to his death.

He said he was sure he still enjoyed the confidence of the President and the public and that "in the long run the solid facts of what the department of defense is accomplishing will stand out above the misinformation that various individuals and various groups, for reasons of their own, see fit to spread."

Among other things, Johnson has been accused of promoting a defensive war and working against the policies of the state department. Criticism of Johnson has been forthcoming from both Democrats and Republicans.

Casualties

A total of 6,886 Korean war casualties were reported by the defense department as the conflict got well into its third month. The total, however, did not include those suffered during the latest big Communist push.

The total included 443 killed in action, 3889 wounded, and 2,436 missing in action. The summary said 60 wounded have been returned to duty.

MANPOWER:

Doctors and Fathers

Thousands of men who had looked upon the draft as something remote, a mere possibility in the dim future, suddenly found themselves face to face with the probability of being in the armed forces.

The house armed services committee announced the draft would be extended to draft-age married men with dependents. Officials estimated there are 1,000,000 married non-veterans of draft age—19 through 25—and that up to 400,000 would qualify for induction.

Meanwhile, a senate house group reached a compromise on a bill to draft doctors and dentists through age 50. The bill upon which the conferees agreed is designed to put into uniform 5,600 doctors and 3,000 dentists who were trained at government expense during World War II.

Few doctors or dentists actually are expected to be drafted. Military officials are confident the threat of a draft will swell the ranks of volunteers. An added inducement is the fact that volunteers will get $100-a-month bonus while draftees will not. Doctors could be drafted with the rank of private; volunteers, would get at least a lieutenant's commission.

Maj. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, director of national selective service, reported that nearly three out of five candidates for military service are being rejected.

The measure is unusual on the American scene in that it would force a political party to register its many fronts (organizations). It goes even further and would compel them to label their propaganda and deny them defense jobs, bar them from government employment, and deny them the right to travel abroad.

President Truman is reported to disapprove of the legislation on the grounds that it might impair traditional American liberties. From a technical viewpoint such legislation if applied to one party could be applied to another and thus restricts the individual's political and civil liberties.

According to the FBI, the legislation will hit about 550,000 Communists and fellow travelers. J. Edgar Hoover, director of the FBI, in a recent report estimated there are about 50,000 Communists and 10 times that many sympathizers in the United States.

SPY-WEARY HOUSE:

Votes Red Curbs

The house had approved by a roll-call vote of 354 to 20 a bill which subjects American Communists to heavy curbs, and the senate was expected to approve a similar bill.

The measure is unusual on the American scene in that it would force a political party to register its many fronts (organizations). DEWEY:

All-Out Attack

Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York, who was as dead as a fried mackerel — politically speaking — after his recent announcement that he was retiring, is back in the limelight. Dewey announced he would seek a third term as governor of New York.

His return to the ring would indicate the Republicans have found an issue. In his own words: "We will not survive this crisis (the Korean conflict) unless we have a strong and constructive opposition party to force correction of the errors and incompetence of the national administration and to compel it to take a larger view of our dangers and more effective action to meet them."

Political observers reported there can be no doubt now as to what campaign issues the Republicans will expound this fall. On all fronts it will be a sharp attack on President Truman's conduct of the Korean war.

Mistaken

Ex-New Dealer Lee Pressman, (above) admitted one-time Communist, in testimony before a house committee named three other government employees who were Communists in 1934 and 1935. Now Pressman says he feels he made a "mistake" by joining the Communist party and that he has cut all connections with them.

FORMOSA:

Confusion Increases

New confusion has been added to the Formosa question with President Truman's statement that it would no longer be necessary to keep the U.S. seventh fleet off Formosa once peace has been settled in the Korean war.

No one seems sure just what President Truman means. On the surface the statement would seem premature and adds to existing confusion.

BRITISH NOW IN KOREA . . . This photo shows more British troops boarding ship in Hong Kong for the voyage to Korea to aid the United Nations forces in their struggle against North Korean Communists. In all, 2,000 British troops have left Hong Kong to reinforce the stand against the Reds. They consisted of the Argyll and the Sutherland Highlanders and the Middlesex regiments and they debarked on the aircraft carrier Unicorn and the cruiser Ceylon. The United Nations has called upon all member nations to contribute troops and has asked even Soviet Russia to send manpower. All have responded favorably to the suggestion except Russia.

DEPARTMENT OF STATE

Study of Department Procedure Leads to Recent Reorganization

This is the second of a series of six articles on the department of state and its personnel by Walter A. Shead, Western Newspaper Union's Washington correspondent.

By WALTER A. SHEAD

Washington, D. C.—Considerable fun has been poked at the department of state in by-gone years when even the secretary of state did not have full executive authority, when appointments to the department were considered plums for some deserving or undeserving politician or the ambitious and socially climbing rich.

Conditions and traditions had grown up in the department where in the foreign or career service was almost a law unto itself and this tightly knitted clique could by-pass or defy the orders of the secretary of state.

Intensive studies as to reorganization of the department have been going on for the past dozen years and in 1914 the results of these studies began to take form and culminated in new legislation in 1917, giving the secretary of state "full authority" over the direction of the department and the foreign service.

The provisions of law which had vested authority in subordinate officials were amended and such authority now is vested solely in the secretary. In addition, a complete reorganization of the entire set-up of the department has been completed which insures a direct chain of command from the top down to the operational units of the department.

When Dean Acheson was named secretary, he had been vice-chairman of the Hoover commission for reorganization of the executive branch of the government. He lost no time in putting into effect the recommendations of the Hoover commission.

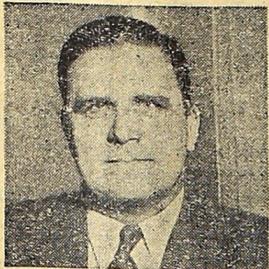

Direct appointments to the department proper are made after full investigation and screening.

The personnel of the foreign service are selected even more carefully and only after their graduation from the foreign service institute, a graduate school of high scholastic standing operated by the state department itself and about which more will be said later.

REORGANIZATION of the department had two purposes in mind: one, to set up a machine to carry out U.S. responsibilities, in the formulation and execution of foreign policy; and, two, to emphasize the department's work with congress and the public-at-large.

Immediately after the war the department of state absorbed several war agencies, among them the Office of War Information. In these agencies there were beyond doubt some friends of Russia, then our ally. There may have been some Communists or fellow travelers.

Through the history of this nation efforts have been made by other nations to penetrate the secrets of the state department. In the past, however, these spies have been largely professional spies and the department of state had counter-espionage and security methods to protect itself and the nation.

JAMES EDWIN WEBB
UNDERSECRETARY OF STATE
James Edwin Webb, born Greenville county, N. C., October 7, 1906, son of John Frederick and Sarah Gorham Webb. A. B. from University of North Carolina, 1928; student at George Washington University law school, 1933-36. Married Patry Alken Douglas, May 14, 1938. Two children, Sarah Gorham and James Edwin Webb, Jr. Appointed executive assistant to undersecretary of treasury, 1916; director of bureau of budget, 1946-1949; appointed undersecretary of state, January, 1949.

During these post-war years, however, the spread of the fanatical, atheistic communism, the professional spy is competing with the amateur Communist.

One way to solve the problem of amateur Communist espionage was set up in 1947 under Gen. George C. Marshall, as secretary of state, under a directive of the President inaugurating a loyalty program.

Under the leadership of Jack Puerifoy of South Carolina, a long-time state department official and former West Point cadet, a security staff was set up consisting of 74 investigators. In addition, the FBI, under the direction of J. Edgar Hoover, cooperates wholly and all persons in the department have gone through a thorough screening. When Secretary Acheson came into power, he continued Puerifoy in the job.

This screening process is not based on the idea that all the people it investigates are crooks or spies. It is a process based first on protecting the United States and, at the same time, protecting the individual's rights, protecting their reputations, urging and permitting them to continue to serve the United States with loyalty and enthusiasm. If anything doubtful is found it goes before the loyalty board of the department of which Gen. Conrad Snow, a New Hampshire Republican, is chairman.

Whatever recommendation this board makes, whether it is to clear the individual or not, he then goes before the President's loyalty board headed by Seth Richardson, a former assistant attorney general under President Hoover, and if the individual is not cleared he is given an opportunity to resign. If there is direct evidence of disloyalty, the evidence goes to the department of justice.

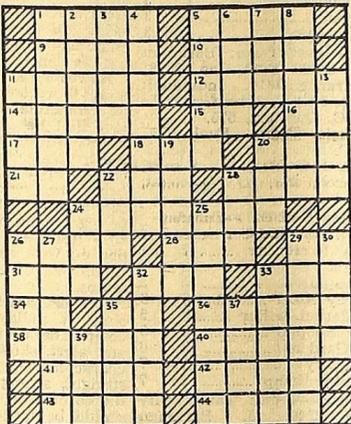

Whatever the merits of system, Secretary Acheson believes it is the correct way. "The wrong way is to smear everybody's character and reputation, to make charges which you hope will stick and in doing destroy confidence of the people in their government and its institutions."

THE FICTION CORNER

CAUSE FOR MURDER

By Richard H. Wilkinson

ANDREW RANDALL'S death was, obviously, suicide. Capt. Van Ness of the homicide squad went down to investigate, though he admitted the investigation was merely in the line of routine duty. I went with him.

"You can't make a murder out of this one," I grumbled. "Come on home. We're wasting each other's time."

"Keep your shirt on, scribe. Let's look around the joint. I've always wanted to see what a millionaire's home looked like."

"You're still wasting time. Randall was just $999,999 short of being a millionaire."

This was true. Once a prominent member of the upper brackets, Andrew Randall's fortune had depleted steadily for the past dozen years. Even the house was mortgaged.

"Who's going to inherit this bunch of debts?" I asked Van.

"As far as I can figure there's only one living relative. A youngster named Barry Roister. A nephew by marriage. He lives in Michigan. Van grinned again. The drawing room of the old house contained three fairly good oil paintings. There were some silver and a few antique pieces and a car in the garage. Otherwise, young Mr. Barry Roister of Michigan was going to find it hardly worth his while to make the trip to New York

I stared blankly. "That wasn't a murder. It was a suicide. What do you mean you've got the killer?"

Outside, Van sighed deeply. "What a pity! There was a chance for a swell murder case and it turns out to be nothing but an ordinary suicide."

"Lord, it's getting so a man can't honestly kill himself these days without some inquisitive copper trying to dramatize it."

I was sent up to Provincetown and then down to Miami to cover the air races. So it was more than two weeks before I returned to New York. The day after my arrival I dropped in on Van.

He looked brighter and satisfied. "About the Randall murder," he said. "We've got the killer!"

I stared blankly. Then suddenly I remembered. "That wasn't a murder. It was a suicide. What do you mean you've got the killer?"

"Barry Roister from Michigan. Remember? The nephew by marriage. He did it."

"Now look, Van," I said. "Stop talking in bunches. Why would Barry Roister want to kill penniless old Andy Randall?"

"Because of the paintings. You remember those three paintings we saw in the drawing room?"

"I remember that they weren't anything to kill an old man over."

"Ha!" said Van. "You newspaper men! Never get behind the news. Too superficial. I suppose you never heard of Caleb Trask?"

"No, I never heard of Caleb Trask."

"Well, he's an artist. Pretty good too. He painted those oils. They sold for about $50 each. Then Caleb died. So what always happens when a fairly good artist dies? The price of his paintings hits the sky. So Caleb Trask lived in Michigan and Roister, being an art connoisseur and knowing that his distant uncle owned the paintings, began to think.

"Ah!"

"Ah! is right. To Roister it looked like a set-up. Uncle Andy had every reason to commit suicide and who would ever suspect a distant nephew living in Michigan who would only inherit a bunch of debts?"

"So Roister made a quick and murderous trip to Uncle Andy's and then returned to Michigan. And when he was advised he had inherited a lot of debts he came back and gave his uncle a decent burial and took the paintings and left everything else for the debts. And a week and a half later I read in the papers where the Trask oils had sold for $50,000 each." Van sighed and grinned. "What a pity you newspaper men don't try to get behind the news."

White Horsemen of World War I Still Unexplained

By BILLY ROSE

As I've mentioned before, whenever I come down with a case of brain-blank I smash the crystal on a cheap wrist watch and mosey down to see an old watchmaker on West 11th Street. While he's tinkering with the timepiece, I gab with him about this and that, and by the time I leave my watch has a new crystal and I generally have the material for a column.

The other afternoon I noticed an unusual looking clock on his repair bench—one with symbols on the dial instead of numerals.

"It's a Bavarian miracle clock," said the watchmaker, "and each symbol stands for a different miracle. For instance the little fish represents the miracle of the loaves and fishes."

"Do you believe in that sort of thing?" I asked.

"Whether you think so or not," smiled the old man, "miracles happen all the time. For instance, take the fire in Canada a couple of months ago—the one that wiped out almost the entire town but didn't touch the church."

"It could have been air currents," I said.

"Maybe," said the watchmaker, "but how would you explain away the cross in the sky that two thousand Englishmen swore they saw during an air raid in 1944? Or would you rationalize the white horsemen who are accredited with winning two battles in the first World War?"

"TAKE YOUR TIME with the watch and details," I said.

"Well," said the old gent, "the first time the horsemen appeared was in August, 1914, when the Germans were advancing through a big hole in the Allied lines at Mons. One night when it looked as if there was no stopping them, the sky suddenly turned yellow and across it—heading straight for the Jerries—rode three white figures mounted on white horses, the center rider waving a gold-tipped sword. The enemy took one look, and that was the end of the advance."

"Sounds like somebody was seeing things," I said. "Thousands of people were seeing things—and they ranged from privates to generals. And later that night when several hundred of the Germans were captured, to a man they reported having seen the figures, too."

"The white horsemen didn't show up again until four years later," the watchmaker went on, "and this time they brought along a lot of friends. It was during the last German push along the Bethune line, and when a Portuguese regiment cracked up under the artillery fire a handful of British machine-gunners were rushed in to plug the hole. The gunners knew they didn't have a chance of getting out alive—all they could hope for was to keep the enemy busy until reinforcements arrived."

THEN CAME the miracle. Suddenly the German guns switched their range and direction, and be-

New Vegetable May Edge Out Spinach

Faithful, old spinach the nutritious vegetable whose edibility has been challenged by generations of children and many of their parents, may be pushed off the American dinner table.

A new green vegetable from Java which tastes better than regular spinach will be marketed in a limited way for the first time this year, frozen or canned.

The contender is called Florida spinach, but will grow over most of the United States in spite of its name. It is low in fiber, high in vitamins and has no oxalic acid, the chemical which makes spinach and beet greens hard to digest for some people.

Packing Peaches

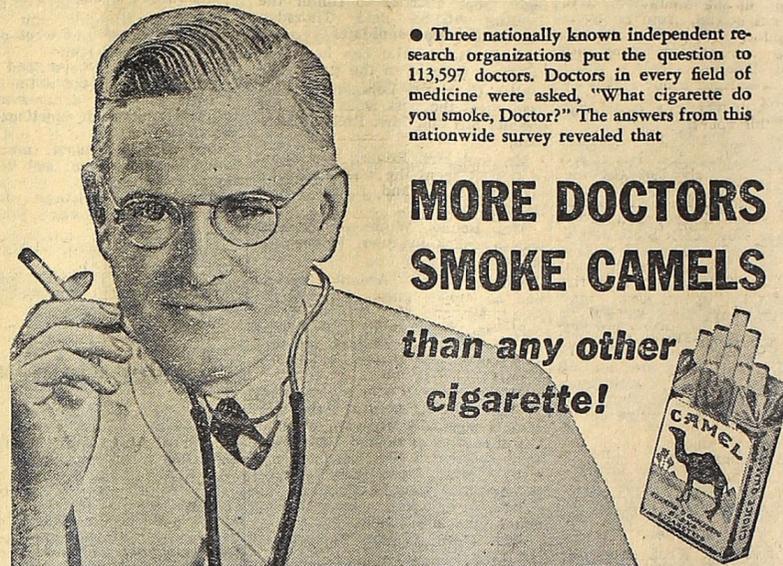

Peaches or pears that must stand between peeling and packing should be placed in cold salt water to prevent discoloration. Add two teaspoons of salt to each quart of water. Rinse in clear, cold water before packing. Or use a Vitamin C tablet or special ascorbic acid preparation now available.

FIRE LOSSES

Ten incubators with a capacity of 32,000 each) were destroyed by fire at a Delaware poultry farm. Originating in the incubator room, the fire was started from an overheated motor. Volunteer firemen from five community companies responded, but the only water available was from a one-foot ditch and booster tanks. One tractor and trailer combination had to make three trips to the burning building hauling two 500 gallon wooden water tanks each time. The fire cost this poultry man $70,000.

Twenty riding horses were killed in a fire which destroyed a three-story frame New York State stable. Firemen were handicapped due to the fact that the nearest hydrant was one-half mile away. This fire was caused by spontaneous ignition of new hay. Loss, $50,000.

These are just typical examples of farm fires that break out every day of the year. They are an all too familiar story. Carelessness with gasoline, misuse of electricity, by the average farm vulnerability to fire.

It doesn't take much time or money to see that your farm is fire safe. Get together with your neighbors to see that your section has a good fire department and adequate water supplies.

Fire Prevention Week is a psychological time to look over your own fire defenses and your community fire defenses.

RAM TRUCK IN AREA WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 4.

Prospects for continued good lamb and wool prices in 1951 makes the selections of a ram this fall perhaps even more important than in other years.

With the price of market lambs what it is, it's not at all difficult for a good purebred ram to be worth from $25 to $150 more than a grade or a purely selected purebred. There are many instances where a good purebred ram has increased the market weight of lambs from two to 10 pounds per head over a grade or poorly selected. When such a ram is used on 40 ewes and at least 50 lambs are raised, it's easy to see that an extra $20 to $30 spent for an outstanding purebred ram, will pay big dividends.

However, a ram should have more to recommend him as a sire of commercial lambs than the mere fact that he is from ancestors which are registered in one of the record associations. Good rams have deep, wide chests, broad backs, long wide hindquarters, are full at the dock with a deep twist or leg of mutton, and have natural firm flesh. All these points are important in market lambs and should be present in the sire of the lambs.

A short, thick neck is desirable since it indicates masculine character. The ram should be active and alert, showing a bold vigorous character. The legs should be straight, strong and well-placed at the corners of the body. The mouth should be free from deformities such as being "over-shot" or "under-shot."

Many flock owners will want to save ewe lambs from their next lamb crop for replacements in their flock. This makes it extremely important to consider the fleece of the ram, with the recent increases in wool prices. The ram's fleece should be dense, and of good length and quality.

Hardly any discussion on the selection of a ram can be complete without using the old saying, "A food ram is half the flock while a poor ram is all the flock." The ram has an influence on every lamb raised in the flock, while one ewe influences only one or two lambs.

In general, the breed of the ram is probably less important than the fact that he should be a good individual of the breed. Desirable rams of any mutton or medium woolled breeds should give good market lambs when mated to our common native ewes. Some flock owners may wish to use rams of the fine wool or long wool breeds in order to bring about increased wool weights in their ewe lambs saved for flock replacements.

To make it convenient for sheep raisers in northern Michigan to get a good ram, the Ram Truck will again visit this part of the state.

The Ram Truck stops, serving Isosco county, will be at the Feeder Cattle Yards, West Branch, on afternoon of Wednesday, October 4.

I wish to take this opportunity to sincerely thank the people of Isosco County for re-nominating me, without opposition, in the primary election held Tuesday, September 12, 1950.

School NOTES

P-TA
The first P-TA meeting of the year was held on Tuesday evening with Mrs. Dornace Bellville presiding.
After a short business meeting at which committees for the year were appointed, Supt. Van Petten introduced the teachers to the group before the program.
A song, "Let's Take an Old Fashioned Walk," was sung by Audrey Blust who graciously responded with an encore, "My Happiness." She was accompanied by Donna Nyswanner.
A group from the Young Women's Club, including Mrs. Ray Dorcel, Mrs. Wasleski, Mrs. Ardath Hall, Mrs. Gladys Freel, Mrs. Verna Snyder and Mrs. Elizabeth Partlo gave a very amusing skit "A Musical Roman."
Janet Smith, a former student of the school gave two beautiful numbers on her accordion.
The women of the faculty were presented with lovely corsages and the men with boutonnieres by the P-TA.
A delicious lunch was served. The teachers were seated at an attractively decorated table.
Junior High Elections
The seventh grade officers have been chosen by the class. They are president, Elaine Keeler, vice president, Graham Freel, Francis Padgel, secretary and Delores Runyan, treasurer. The class advisor is Miss Matty and the group have already established themselves financially by conducting a very successful candy sale.
The eighth grade, with Mr. Clegg for sponsor, elected Richard Wendt, president, Harry Keel, vice president, Catherin Lawera, secretary and Lowell Provoast treasurer. Bill Kerr is student council member.
Senior Activities
Plans for "Skip Day" are under advisement, but time and place, to date are a deep secret.
The Speech class with a membership of 14 have been having the interesting experience of recording their voices and listening to themselves as others hear them. From the criticisms each member has decided what improvements he wishes to make, and that will be his particular objective for the course.

Westminster Hall

Westminster hall in London, built in 1097, adjoins the new palace yard—"new" in 1094. Westminster hall saw the gathering of the noted parliament of 1265. The trial of Charles I, later beheaded, was held there. So was the trial of Guy Fawkes, who in 1605 planted gunpowder in the cellar to blow up parliament. His unsuccessful exploit long has been commemorated by a traditional search of the cellars before each parliamentary session.

4-H CLUB NOTES

4-H Club Reporters Say—

The 4-H Council Association meeting at Grant Township Hall last Monday evening received the Awards and Achievement committees report on 4-H candidates for county and state medals. There are nearly 20 such candidates from Iosco county. These names will be sent in to the State 4-H Club office for consideration in the various contests.

The fall Leader's Training meeting was tentatively planned for October 23 at Hale. It will be conducted by State leaders and will include ways and means of doing the various project activities.

Monday is the last day for 4-H Club Reports. These reports are necessary for the club members to complete their projects and receive their certificates and pins. Fair premium checks will be sent to only those exhibitors completing these reports.

Last week was Conservation Training School at Higgins Lake for Jack Ward of Whittemore. The rain didn't interrupt the program that included a study of fish and wildlife habitats, care of fire arms and a better knowledge of Conservation Law. The deer drive conducted by the more than 70 boys participating netted 86 deer out of a one mile square area.

This program was made possible through the Federal Cartridge Company of Minneapolis, Minnesota.

May we again remind our 4-H friends that September and October are organizational months for 4-H Clubs in Iosco county. If there are five or more young folks between the ages of 10 and 20 years in your community that are interested in organizing a 4-H Club, call or write Marvin Davenport, District 4-H Club Agent, Federal Building, East Tawas. This is the usual procedure:

1. A meeting of parents of potential club members is called to discuss 4-H club work and its place in the community. A full understanding by parents of club work writes success or failure of any 4-H club.

2. A second meeting with parents and club members will be arranged to discuss project meetings and community club meetings. The community club meetings are normally held once a month.

Don't forget—our young folks are the most precious thing we have in this world. They are our investment into the future. Let us as parents and adults offer them every opportunity we can to make them better citizens.

the country to do everything that he and his family can do during Fire Prevention Week this year to make his farm safe from needless fire. President Truman has proclaimed the week of October 8-14 as Fire Prevention Week.

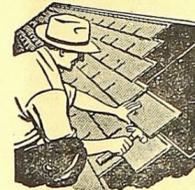

Just to take a few scattered cases from the files of the National Fire Protection Association, non-profit group, sponsoring Fire Prevention Week, here are actual cases, selected at random, of how fire burned up in a few minutes the savings and work of a lifetime.

An employee of a dairy farm in Massachusetts headed to the barn to start milking, discovered a fire in the hayloft. The farm was five miles from town and he had to go almost half a mile to telephone the alarm. By the time the local fire department responded, the dairy farm suffered a loss of $20,000.

Another farm in Colorado was totally destroyed by fire caused by an overheated stove. Although the water supplies in this fire were ample, low temperatures and high winds severely handicapped operations, and this farmer suffered a $50,000 loss.

Just sharpen your pencil— and there you are!

ACROSS this broad land there are thousands of people who have been doing themselves a disfavor.

Seems they "just naturally assume" a Buick is beyond their reach—and so pass up the car they're really itching to own.

Now why "assume" anything as important to your happiness as a new car?

Why not see for yourself how delivered prices run—how close Buick matches your own budget—how frequently it is priced under some cars you may be considering?

Then—if there is a particular car in mind—sharpen up your pencil a little.

Is it a six—or an eight, like Buick? If an eight, is it a valve-in-head eight? That adds a plus in efficiency, you know, even without the extra edge of Buick's Fireball power.

Will you ride on four soft coil springs, as in Buick—or on only two? Will the drive be through a sealed torque-tube that keeps the rear wheel assembly firmly aligned? It is in a Buick.

Do you get soft, low-pressure tires as part of the price—or as extras? Will you have bumper guards built as part of the bumper, or a one-piece cast metal grille that can be costly to repair or replace?

Does the price include air cleaner, oil filter, dual horns, windshield wipers and sun visors; an automatic dome light; self-locking luggage lid; a single key for all locks?

And is there an automatic drive*, or one in which gears still shift in normal driving?

Yes, sharpen your pencil—and there you will be, in a Buick.

Whether it's a SPECIAL, a SUPER or a lordly ROADMASTER, you'll be driving the big buy of its price class, and getting a rich bonus of driving comfort, driving thrill and "fashion-first" styling.

But you have to make the first move. You are the one who has to find out. How about starting now—with a call on your Buick dealer?

*Dynaflow Drive is standard on ROADMASTER, optional at extra cost on SUPER and SPECIAL models.

Middle of the Road

VIENNA, ILL.—For happiness, try a "middle of the road" marriage.

This is the advice of Mr. and Mrs. John W. Carlton.

Learning that funeral services were being held in the church where their marriage was scheduled 50 years ago, the couple waited for the minister to come outside.

He married them in a horse-drawn buggy in the middle of the road. Some 100 persons who attended the funeral stayed for the marriage ceremony.

Tight Rope
By Allison L. Burks

Nurse Carol fears she will be blamed for napping when Grandmother Thornadyke dies of what is believed to have been a heart attack. The attack was precipitated by the old woman's learning that the girl whom she had believed to be her granddaughter, Dorinda Thornadyke, was an imposter. Dorinda is being played by Stella Moore, a secretary, who was hired by Mrs. Thornadyke's son, Edward, to perform the maneuvers for the sake of Mrs. Thornadyke. As the maid, Carrie, begins stripping the coverings from Mrs. Thornadyke's bed, Dorinda notices lipstick stain on the pillow case—lipstick stain the same color as that Mrs. Thornadyke had worn the night of her death.

CHAPTER IX

"Mean?" Lana's face was all innocence again. "Why, nothing. What could I mean? It's only that Edward is a sucker for feminine influence." She bent over and picked up her magazine.

A few minutes later, Dorinda heard the sound of a car in front of the house, then the opening of the door and Edward's voice in the hall. She sprang to her feet and he and Fay came into the living room. She must speak to him now before she was completely drained of courage.

"Uncle Edward," she said quickly. "I want to talk to you. It—it's important."

Fay stood beside Edward, her hand on his arm. Her beautiful face was serious as befitted the occasion but there was an expression almost of satisfaction in her shining eyes. She raised her brows questioningly.

"Is it necessary, Dorinda? I'm sure Edward doesn't feel like having a discussion about your difficulties just now."

"Please, Fay," Edward murmured. He looked hot and exhausted, his square-jawed face set in grayish pallor. "Can't it wait until after lunch, Dorinda? It's been a trying morning."

Dorinda hesitated. She thought of Carrie upstairs finishing her work, bundling up the used linen for the laundry.

"I won't keep you but a little while," she pleaded.

"Very well then," Edward inclined his head. He led the way across the hall to his study.

Edward lowered himself into a large armchair, his face away from the light. But before Dorinda could speak, a light tap sounded, the door was pushed open and Fay came in carrying a silver tray set with cut-glass decanter and glasses.

Dorinda Tells Edward Of Certain Suspicions

As she gave Edward his glass, she laid her hand upon his shoulder in a caressing gesture.

"Thank you, Fay," he said gratefully. He put his own hand over hers in a fleeting response.

Fay set down her glass, half emptied. "If you must talk to Edward, Dorinda, go ahead. I'll be down for lunch in half an hour." The quiet closing of the door announced her departure.

Alone with Edward, Dorinda was at a loss how to begin. He did not help her but sat staring down into the golden sherry, his lids drooped over his black eyes. The fringe of his lashes was as long and thick as a girl's, she noticed, watching him.

He raised his head at her timid, "Uncle Edward," and she could see the almost physical effort he made to pull himself from the dark depths where his mind had wandered, and focus his attention upon her.

"Just a moment," he murmured. He took a cigarette from a box on the desk.

She waited until he had extinguished his match before she spoke. Afterward, she could not remember what words she had used. She only knew that she had to tell him and she did, stumbling, incoherent, but in the end, making her monstrous suspicions clear. "If someone held the pillow over her face... the effect on her heart..."

"Dorinda," he said, his voice curiously gentle. "We've gone through a bad time, all of you. You've been placed in a peculiar position. I haven't been blind to your doubts, your fears. I can understand that your suspicions might be easily aroused."

"This thing you've suggested—this monstrous thing—I can't tell you how you've hurt me. And your accusation, for it is practically an accusation, has no more foundation than a smear of lipstick."

"Don't say that, Uncle Edward," Dorinda protested. "I never meant to accuse anyone of anything. It's because I knew you loved your mother I felt you had to know. I couldn't keep a thing like that to myself. I wouldn't dare."

He leaned toward her and laid his hand upon her knee. "But, don't you see, Dorinda, that you're accusing someone—someone in this house? For no outsider could have entered in the night."

"The servants? Carol? What motive could any of them have? I believe I did mention to Carol that my mother might have remembered her in her will. But, at the best, it will be only a comparatively small amount and only a possibility at that. It's an absurd supposition."

"Harriet or Lana? For what reason? They would only be ousting themselves out of the home they've insinuated themselves into. For I think they both realize I'll never tolerate their staying here indefinitely.

"Fay? I don't need to tell you that Fay's interests coincide with mine. And, mark this, child, so far as finances are concerned, I was infinitely better off financially with my mother living than I will be now. You look surprised but I can assure you I am telling you the truth."

"I know," Dorinda swallowed. "I'm sorry if I've distressed you. I suppose I have been silly. But if—if anything had been wrong, I couldn't keep it to myself."

"Don't think I misunderstand, my dear. And now let's try to forget it, shall we? Please don't say to anyone else what you've said to me."

She took Randy down to the sand that afternoon. Cleve did not come but at least she was away from the house and in the impersonal company of the sea and wind.

Carrie had just finished washing the luncheon dishes.

That night, in the unguarded moments before sleep, the whole troubled week seemed to pass before her in review, a motion-picture fantasy cast upon the screen of her consciousness.

Morning came. Saturday and Sunday dragged by. Mrs. Thornadyke's funeral was on the Monday following her death. Dorinda had only one black dress, a simply cut black linen from which she removed the leaf-green buttons and belt. At two o'clock she joined the family in the big black sedan which waited before the house and they drove to Trentville.

Dorinda Plans Lazy Afternoon on Beach

The small funeral chapel was crowded with people. Practically everyone who lived in or near the little town was present. The odor of flowers was almost overpowering.

Cleve had sent a blanket of white roses. He had brought his mother to call at Thornadyke House the day before. Dorinda had liked Mrs. Adams on sight. She was a feminine replica of Cleve, older, but with eyes just as blue, her lustrous black hair untouched by white.

The sun was sucking up the mist which had lingered till past midday when they came to their journey's end. The piled-up flowers about the open grave made a mosaic of brilliant color.

"Ashes to ashes. Dust to dust." It was over. They were turning home again, leaving Grandmother alone in the warm and kindly earth.

The car drew up in front of Thornadyke House again and the four women got out, leaving Edward to take the car on around to the garage. There was no chauffeur employed in this household. Edward had an affection for his expensive cars, as he had for all his possessions, and preferred to pilot them himself.

Inside, Dorinda ran up the stairs, heading for the sanctuary of her room. Fay followed her and, just as Dorinda reached her door, stopped her with a hand upon her arm.

"I'm glad you're not crying, Dorinda." The girl caught the note of approval, unusual in Fay's voice. "There's no use in trying to grieve for someone who meant nothing to you. As for me, I'm no hypocrite. I don't pretend to be sorry. Now," and for the first time since Dorinda had known her, Fay gave the girl a smile which contained real warmth, "as soon as the conventions permit, Edward and I will be married. There's no obstacle in our way now!"

On Tuesday morning, the day after the funeral, Fay remarked at the breakfast table that she would like to go away for the day.

"Of course, we can't attend the theater or anything of that sort, Edward, but suppose you and I drive up to Monterey for dinner. It will do us both good to be away from the house. We've been cooped up here for so long."

"I know I'm not going to stick around." Lana poured a liberal amount of cream over her cereal. "And I'm going to take Mother down to the Red Cross workrooms. She might as well be rolling bandages, or whatever they do there, for the British, as stewing about the house."

"Oh, Lana, I don't believe—" Harriet's face puckered in protest. "Now, Mother, I'm sick of hearing you say how lonesome you are whenever I'm away. The same song day after day. You're going if I have to tie you up and deliver you at the door. You can't tell, maybe you'll like it."

Edward folded his newspaper carefully and laid it down. "That isn't a bad idea, Fay. I think perhaps I would feel better for a change of scene." He stirred sugar into the fresh coffee Fay had just poured for him. "Have you and Dorinda decided just when you want to go?"

Two small perpendicular creases marred the smoothness of Fay's forehead and Dorinda said quickly, "Oh, I'm not going, Uncle Edward. I'm planning to take Randy and spend the afternoon down on the beach."

"I don't think I want to leave you here alone, Dorinda."

"Why, I won't be alone. Greer and Carrie will both be here. And Carol."

Carrie Fixes Lunch For Dorinda, Randy

"Carol is planning on going to Los Angeles today and staying overnight." Fay brushed her lips lightly with her napkin and pushed back her chair. "She spoke to me about it just before I came downstairs this morning and I told her we would take her to the train if we decided to go out ourselves. But, as you say, Greer and Carrie will both be here. You won't be left alone."

Shortly after eleven o'clock, Edward and Fay in the big black sedan, with Carol in the back seat, drove away. Dorinda felt a little disappointed at Carol's departure.

Lana and her mother departed immediately after an early lunch. Well, she wouldn't be lonely, Dorinda thought. She'd take a book with her down to her favorite nook and she'd have Randy. But Lana's car had hardly disappeared down the driveway when Greer called Dorinda to the telephone.

"Hello, Rinda!" Cleve's voice came to her over the wire. "How are you planning to spend the afternoon?"

"Cleve!" She did not attempt to hide her delight. "I'm all alone here. And I was planning to take Randy down to the beach and soak in a little sunshine."

"Good. We seem to be thinking along similar lines. It's warm out, the warmest day we've had this year. How about putting on our bathing suits and trying out the Pacific Ocean?"

"I think it would be grand. Why, I've never been in—it didn't occur to me it would be warm enough. Oh, Cleve, it'll be fun!"

"Okay. Then I'll meet you down on your beach in half an hour. Have your suit on and we'll see what kind of a water baby you are."

She pushed open the swinging door at the end of the hall and went out into the kitchen.

Carrie, spotless in blue house dress and print apron, had just finished washing the luncheon dishes. She set two polished glasses on a high shelf and shut the cupboard door before she turned to face Dorinda.

Dorinda felt a tremor of discomfort. But she tried to make her voice natural as she said, "Carrie, I'm going down to the beach for the rest of the afternoon. If you'll fix some sandwiches and cookies—or, whatever you have—and a thermos of coffee, I won't need any dinner tonight. Cleve Adams is meeting me and we'll picnic on the sand."

"There's cold fried chicken in the icebox," suggested Carrie, "and some chocolate cake left."

"Swell. If you'll get it ready, Carrie, I'll take it down with me after I've changed into my bathing suit."

"Mr. Greer can bring it down. Or I could myself." Carrie pulled open a drawer, took out paper napkins. "I'll fix you a nice lunch, Miss." She opened the door of the icebox. "I'm glad you ain't going to be down there by yourself."

"I am, too. But even if I were alone, there'd be nothing to be afraid of."

"Maybe not. But kind'a funny things happen sometimes. Carrie still stood in front of the opened icebox, her back to Dorinda. "It was a nice funeral, wasn't it, Miss?"

"Yes—yes, Carrie. It was a nice funeral." Dorinda went out of the kitchen with a queer sense of shortness of breath.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

International Uniform Sunday School Lessons

By DR. KENNETH J. FOREMAN

SCRIPTURE: Acts 16:9-15; 17:22-31; 28; II Corinthians 11:22-12:10.

World Evangelist

Lesson for September 24, 1950

IT IS not only the ignorant and the prejudiced who claim that Protestant Christianity did not start till the 17th Century. Even Protestants can make this mistake. The real founder of Protestantism is Saint Paul. What the Reformers of the 17th Century did was to re-discover Paul. The doctrines of Protestantism are not some peculiar invention of Luther, nor a quirky, still less a heresy; they are simply Christianity according to Saint Paul. If for no other reason, Paul is one of the most important figures in Christian history, perhaps in all history.

Dr. Foreman

The World is My Parish

THERE is another reason why Paul is important. It is not too much to say that if it had not been for him, there never would have been any Christianity, as a world-religion. It would have died as a Jewish sect.

What the history of the world would have been in that case, God only knows. But although our so-called Christian era is still not exactly Christian, it is vastly different from what it would have been if Christianity had been no more (say) than Essenism, a word you would have to look up in the encyclopedia, an antique and forgotten sect.

To many unnamed Christians, but to Paul more than any other person, we owe the fact that ours is a religion with a world-outlook.

First Great Missionary

PAUL was not a typical Christian any more than George Washington was a typical American. To this day, missionaries can hardly be called typical Christians. They are far too few, and their quality is far too high, to stand for the "average" Christian—who in fact does not even understand missionaries, as a rule. Nevertheless, the missionary now as in Paul's time is the burning-point of Christianity, the front-line patrol, the cutting edge... What made Paul a missionary makes missionaries today.

One thing was his vital experience of Christ. Jesus, for Paul, was not somebody he had read about in a book, he was not a statue on an altar or a picture in a museum, he was not a definition in a catechism. Jesus was Some One he had met on the Damascus Road.

Second, Paul loved people, all kinds of people. (After his conversion, not before!) He could see in the most pitiful little moron of a slave-girl, the meanest jailer, a sister or brother for whom Christ died, as he put it. Nowadays you sometimes hear church people saying about others outside the church, "They're not our kind. They wouldn't make good Presbyterians (or Baptists or what ever the speaker's church may be)." It never occurred to Paul that anybody would not make a good Christian, if only Jesus Christ got hold of him.

Furthermore, Paul had a world-horizon. There are hole-and-corner Christians and there are world-Christians. Paul was a world-Christian. He "thought big." To this day, the wide-horizon, big-thinking Christians are either out there on the mission field, somewhere, or they are supporting missions with all their might.

Bibles Across the Sea

THERE is one thing which you, reader of these lines, can do right now, if you have some of this world-vision. This week, today, you can help in a great missionary enterprise which is not confined to any denomination.

Over in Japan, General MacArthur says, Christianity and the Bible are the dykes holding up the flood of Communism. Dr. Shiro Murata, a Japanese Christian, also says: "The eyes of Japan are fixed on two books. One is Das Kapital by Karl Marx. The other is the Holy Bible. Japan is at the crossroads."

A campaign is being conducted this year to send to Japan five million Bibles and Testaments. The Japanese can read; they have the largest non-Christian population in the world reading one language. Through your local church, or even by yourself, you can contribute to this great undertaking to bring the Bible to people sorely needing it.
