Pioneer Iosco County Attorney Dies

Funeral Services for N. C. Hartlngh Held Yesterday Afternoon

Nicholas C. Hartingh, pioneer Iosco county attorney and abstractor, and highly esteemed resident of this city, died at his home Monday afternoon. Approaching his 92nd birthday anniversary, Mr. Hartingh was one of the oldest practicing abstractors in the state. Jp to within a few weeks ago he had been at his office making daily transfers of records in his abstract

Born October 27, 1858, at Toronto, Canada, he went to Bay City as a boy with his parents. As a youngster he worked in the sawmills in that city. He studied shorthand and entered the law office of Hatch and Cooley in Bay City. Becoming assistant circuit court stenographer he served under the late Alonzo Haynes and in other northern Michigan circuits.

In 1882 he came to Tawas City as circuit court reporter in the 23rd judicial circuit. In 1888 purchased the abstracting business from Sibley G. Taylor. One of the first lo-cations of the Iosco County Abstract office was in the present Ta-was Herald building.

In addition to practicing law, his duties as circuit court reporter and abstractor, Mr. Hartingh took an active interest in Iosco county real estate development. Keenly interested in sailing, for a number of years Mr. Hartingh owned a 50

Peace Talks Proposed by Stassen; U.N. Forces Cross 38th Parallel; High Prices Weaken Defense Plan

(EDITOR'S NOTE: When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of Western Newspaper Union's news analysts and not necessarily of this newspaper.)

Harold E. Stassen, president of University of Pennsylvania as he announced contents of a message he sent to Soviet Generalissimo Joseph Stalin proposing that they confer and urging Russia to "stop the drift to war." Stassen's message was delivered to the Soviet embassy and a copy to the state department.

STASSEN:

A Just World Peace

Harold E. Stassen, president of the University of Pennsylvania and twice an aspirant for the Republican presidential nomination, stepped in where angels fear to

The former Minnesota governor wrote a letter to Premier Stalin suggesting that they confer on steps that need be taken to achieve "a just world peace."

Stassen was quick to point out that his letter was written without consultation either with President Truman or the state department; that is, Stassen had written to Stalin in his private capacity and the let-ter had no official inspiration. Stassen declared that, if his bid was successful, he would have "four or five of this country's top citizen leaders" accompany him to

There is a possibility that Stalin might accept Stassen's proposal. In fact, some quarters believe the Russians will jump at the chance, if for nothing else, at least for the opportunity to pound out the old propaganda line that the Soviet is anxious for world peace.

There is little possibility, how-ever, that anything constructive will come of such a meeting. Whatever Stalin and Stassen's delegation might agree upon would have no official standing and in all probability would not coincide with American foreign policy.

As could be expected, Stassen's gesture produced political over-tones immediately. One Democratic the Reds were in full flight have ended the war quickly. spokesman pointed out that the initiative of any such project properly belongs with the state depart-

RISING COSTS:

Cut 750 Jet Fighters

The howl of the housewife that prices have climbed beyond any reasonable or sensible level was taken up by the air force which reported between April and September increases weakened the force's purchasing power by an equivalent of 750 F-86 jet fighter planes.

The cost increases in essential materials, John McCone, under-secretary for air, told the house armed services subcommittee would run about $315 million.

The under-secretary cited many examples. Among the increases were crude rubber, 128.9 per cent; aluminum, 2.9 per cent; copper, 23.6 per cent; tin 32.9 per cent; plus signs of accompanying wage rises as another basic factor in cost estimation.

It all boils down to the fact which the housewife has long known: prices are climbing by leaps and bounds. If the increases were hurting the armed service then perhaps something would be done to relieve the pinch on the general public.

Rep. Carl Vinson, member of the armed services committee, was blunt about the situation:

"Let's not kid ourselves. Congress has a choice of seeing these programs cut (4,428 new aircraft by 1952), or coming up with additional appropriations to meet these rising costs."

Headliners

President Truman who is becoming famous as a letter writer, wrote to his old friend Colorado State Senator Neal Bishop, "I wouldn't appoint John L. Lewis dogcatch-

"The President could ill afford to have more brains in the dog de-partment than in the department of state," replied the UMW boss with his usual bark and bite.

"We want nothing from Korea. We want no bases there. We do not want to and will not threaten any other country through the temporary presence of American troops in Korea on a U.N. mission," Warren R. Austin, American delegate to the United Nations told the general assembly.

But the delay in giving that approval may cost the U.N. forces in manpower and material. It gave the Communists time to collect their shattered forces and prepare for another stand, whereas a continued attack by U.N. troops when the Reds were in full flight could

It was the old story of immature thinking and lack of plans on the part of the western nations. Had the situation been reversed, is there anyone who thinks the Reds would have stopped long enough to let U.N. forces regroup? They would have continued to attack and secure any necessary approval later.

But be that as it may, the general assembly finally got around to voting on the invasion of North Korea, approving it 47 to 5.

The assembly authorized:

1. That "all appropriate steps be taken to insure conditions of sta-bility throughout Korea."

2. "That U.N. forces should not remain in any part of Korea otherwise so far as necessary to achieve some other aims of the plan."

UNITED NATIONS:

New Twist for Soviet

While men died on the battlefields of Korea, power politics continued to rage in the United Nations, but with a new twist from the Soviet

The new twist developed when the United States urged the U. N. to adopt a plan by which national troops would form a U.N. force to keep world peace by the veto-free general assembly.

Instead of ripping the plan apart,
Soviet foreign minister Andrei Vishinsky said he saw some good point in it, but suggested each point of the proposal be discussed separate-

At first the western diplomats were shaken by Vishinsky's conciliatory tone and stared at each other in disbelief. But then it dawned upon them that by discussing the points separately, Russia almost certainly meant to oppose the law provision that would also the key provision that would allow the general assembly to meet in 24 hours and act against aggression if a veto paralyzed the security council.

It was the old, old story of politics between world powers.

CHICAGO:

A Case of Jitters

Senator Kefauver of Tennessee and his crime investigating committee arrived in Chicago, held a series of hearings, and departed leaving a case of jitters behind them that reached into high circles.

Said the senator as he departed: We think we have found strong evidence that the Capone syndicate is still operating . . . . There is evidence of gangsters muscling into legitimate businesses, and of political ties between gangsters and politicans of both parties."

Kefauver's committee planned hearings in New York, Philadelphia and then a jump back to Chicago. A recent hearing in Miami revealed connections between gamblers and city officials in that winter resort.

After the Chicago hearings, Kefauver said he is convinced that a Mafia is in operation in Chicago at present. The Mafia is an Italo-Sicilian-born secret society of loose organization that specializes in extortion, and deals out its own pun

At the same time Attorney General J. Howard McGrath said he was using his "discretionary" power in permitting Friedrich Gulda 20, Austrian pianist, to enter this country for his American debut at Carnegie Hall.

Gulda joined the Nazi youth movement at the age of 10 because the law forced him to. The new law bars admission to the country of anyone who ever has been a member of, or "affiliated" with, a Com-munist, Nazi, or Fascist party.

RED SNIPER AT WRONG END OF GUN . . . P.F.C. John Alliance of Ohio is taking care that this Red Korean doesn't get away. The private's prize is a North Korean sniper whom he flushed as United States forces recaptured Seoul. John tied the prisoner's hands and stuck him into the hole as he waited for a prisoner collection detail to come and get the defeated enemy soldier. Occurrences such as this were common as Americans continued mopping-up operations.

White-clad North Koreans with their hands placed atop their heads, march in orderly file under the alert guard of the United States marines following a quick but hectic fight somewhere in Korea. The photo was made from overhead, showing that a tranquil and calm terrain now spreads toward the horizon where lately lay a flaming battleground. Most of the action in South Korea, at the time this was taken, consisted of finding troop pockets.

Proper Care of Winter Clothing Gives Longer Service

By Ertta Haley

TT'S SAID THAT people attain greater cleanliness in the warm weather than the cooler weather because they bathe more frequently and most hot weather clothes are washable, while winter clothes need more attention and thus get less care.

However, since cold weather clothing is more expensive, it is reasonable that we give it more care than less expensive ones, to get full value for money spent.

Actually, it isn't too difficult to give winter wearables the attention they need and should have. There will be lots of satisfaction, too, in the dividends that such clothes care gives in better grooming and longer

It's a good idea to read and save labels which come with materials and ready-made garments because they give valuable clues to garment care. Such items as sweaters may be washed, if done carefully. Many pieces of clothing which contain around 30% or less of wool may also be washed by hand, if the label tells you it has been tested.

For garments which have to be cleaned, keep the labels and give them to the cleaner. He'll appreciate it and will be able to do a better job on the clothing which means a nicer job all the way

Keep a well closed bottle of dry cleaner in the purse, wrapped in small cleaning cloth so it can be applied promptly if you're away from home.

How Care for Clothing Pays Big Dividends

Establish weekly and daily habits of good care for clothing and you'll always have a well kept garment to wear. When the routine is firmly established, the time spent will seem very little in comparison with the big jobs that must be done when clothes are neglected.

Plan to use a medium bristle brush on all woolen and wool combination garments at least once a week. This raises the nap and gets rid of surface dust and dirt before it becomes imbedded in the clothing and dulls the finish and color. Perspiration is harmful to most fabrics be they cotton, wool, silk en the clothes on hangers, brush, or rayon. ## Ford Seeks to Undo Work of Lizzie

By H. I. PHILLIPS-

Ford Foundation, Gentlemen:

VOUR ANNOUNCEMENT that a $250,000,000 Ford Foundation will be used to promote peace, human happiness and human conduct rates everybody's appreciation. And I think it is swell to see money from the auto business used for such objectives because, making full allowances for the many wonderful benefits the auto has brought to mankind, there is no escaping the fact that it has also contributed to making man a pretty irascible, nervous, bad mannered and not too happy creature. The world was more placid when it walked now and then, drove a horse or hopped a trolley. Mankind began to get irritable and jumpy with the first traffic congestion, and has grown steadily

A fellow could relax and be thoughtful over a week end in the horse and buggy days. He knew no urge to get out on a crowded super highway and curse anybody who would not move over. You rarely saw a man lean from a "buggy with the fringe on top" and bawl out a pedestrian or a man in another vehicle. Impatience, bad manners and general irritability are as much to blame for the lack of peace in the world today as anything. Patience went out the window the first time a man had to change a tire in the mud before the days of the demountable rim. Courtesy did a fadeout with the development of the idea that the auto horn conquered all. The defective windshield wiper, the demi tasse tool kit and the squeaky rear door made folks a little more jumpy. Then the designers in all auto plants everywhere designed a body in such a way that a tire could only be changed by a contortionist with a stick of dynamite. (This was the last straw; man hasn't been even moderately happy or peaceful from that day on.)

The auto filled man with the yen to violate danger signals, cut corners and break laws. It filled millions with a sense of unearned importance. The world got "uppity." In grandpa's day one man didn't think it a social injustice if another man could afford a horse. But ever since the auto came, every man, woman and child has thought himself or herself entitled to a car. Jealousy, irritability, impatience, uneasiness, dissatisfaction, lawlessness and bad manners became universal. The auto turned a quiet, peaceful world into a planet loaded with belligerent, bad-tempered trouble-makers. And it's nice to see the auto industry deciding to put some of the money back into correcting and reforming human beings in all

Water for washing woolens should feel cool to the touch. This applies both to the water used in washing and rinsing. Hot water causes wool fibers to shrink and felt.

Mild soap which makes a rich lather is best. Detergents are excellent for hard water areas. If using soap and hard water, use water normalizer for the water first, so that the minerals in the water will not harden the garment.

Squeeze the suds through and through the garment with a gentle motion. Rubbing or soaking will cause the fibers in the clothing to knit closely together and make

Rinse thoroughly to remove all traces of soap. If left in the garment, they will make it gummy and unpleasant to the touch.

Too much heat in the drying of woolens and wool-fabric combina-tions makes the fibers brittle. Keep the clothes away from direct heat such as radiators, sunlight or stoves. Slow drying will help retain the fiber strength.

If you want to hasten drying, the clothing can be wrapped carefully in an absorbent Turkish towel and kneaded gently to remove the excess moisture. Do not let it stand in the towel, however, for it may get out of shape. Pat into shape as soon as taken from the towel, smoothing out wrinkles as much as possible.

Steam Pressing Gives Good Results

THE TAWAS HERALD

A moderately hot iron is the best for wool and rayon combinations while a barely warm iron is good for all wool materials. Never press directly on the material; always use a damp cotton, lint-free cloth or a chemically treated one.

Rayon and wool blended fabrics should never be pressed when bone dry. Better results can be obtained if they are slightly damp. The garment should be slightly damp when you've finished pressing

Hang clothing promptly after pressing and smooth into shape. Then permit the garment to dry completely so that it will have its Pleats and buttonhole closings cleaned and store it in a black offer some difficulty unless care is taken or they may become mis-shaped. An excellent way to avoid this is to baste pleats and closing with long stitches. Then you don't have to worry about lining them up just right under the pressing cloth.

In pressing hems, collars, lapels, cuffs and other heavy parts of the garment, use a heavy pressing cloth to prevent shine and ridges.

New seams on home-sewed clothing should always be pressed on the wrong side with the seams opened. Go over them lightly without a press cloth, then steam

People Don't Commit Sins Now

THE UNUSUAL and painful situation into which one Percy Field, of San Antonio, Tex., has gotten himself, is described to me in an agitated letter from his mother.

She does not say that it was sin that brought about this tangle, because like most persons today she evidently doesn't believe in sin. The word has gone almost completely out of the language. People don't commit sins, nowadays, they are the victims of reactions to unfortunate early influences, traumas, inhibitions, fixations, phobias and other influences beyond their con-

Impossible Background

What Percy did was fall in love with a girl in a five-and-ten. Her years were 24 to his 20, and his mother writes that she was impossible. Her background also was impossible. Percy's mother met Al-ma, and descended promptly into that special Purgatory reserved for the mothers of impressionable only sons. Alma was beautiful, ungrammatical, uneducated, not only without culture, as old Mrs. Field then saw culture, but unaware that there was any such thing.
"Right or wrong," Percy's mother

"I prevented their marriage. My boy was willing to give this girl's child his name, but I could not-I simply couldn't agree.

Marriage then would have interrupted his college career, for I told him that if he married, he would have to work to support his wife. I told him I would not help, and sometimes I have felt since that this was pretty severe. But things you do at one time of your life look strange at some later time. Percy's sister was on the eve of a fine marriage and Percy's father had held a fine position in the Pennsylvania town where we lived then.

"The war came along and Percy went to the South Seas, earning more than one medal for bravery. On condition that she would never trouble him I sent Alma a check every month for three years. I saw Lucia, the baby, infrequently. Percy came home, married, and we moved to Texas. His business interests took him back frequently to Germantown, and I, learned much later that he saw Alma and little Lucia then. He and his wife have a daughter, now 5. Afraid of Scandal

"Now Alma, who is tubercular, has moved to a sanitarium a few miles away from where we live. I have seen her, and the beautiful child. Percy is devoted to this older daughter, and wants to adopt her. But his wife, Kathryn, objects. She says it will jeopardize the future of her own daughter, cause scandal, and that she simply will not consent to co-operate in what she calls an old disgrace. I have, of course, suggested that I take Lucia, but Kathryn will not hear of it. Our raise little girls. I have come to feel deeply sorry for Alma, who married to give Lucia a protector, and was widowed in 1948. I believe her aunt is taking her little boy.

"What I am asking you," concludes this agitated letter, "is to give me some argument to use with Kathryn. Surely she can't refuse Percy the joy of providing for his own daughter. Surely there is some way to show her how simple and harmonious such an arrangement would be. She swears that if Lucia comes to my home she will never enter it, or allow Jacqueline, her own child, to enter it."

"Isn't it inhuman for her to refuse a dying woman?"

Well, Louise, you have changed. Perhaps Kathryn will. No mother can entirely blame you for shutting off so unsuitable a marriage for a boy of 20, but you didn't show much concern for the baby. and the casual way you observe that you believe the younger child of poor wrecked Alma is to be provided for, shows that your feeling is still stronger for Lucia as your granddaughter than as a small precious human being, with rights of her own.

I'll tell you what I'd do. I'd forget Kathryn for the moment. I'd take Lucia, and I'd take the smaller baby too, and give both those youngsters the sort of joyous childhood that only Granny can give. Little Jacqueline will soon find her way across the garden, and if you will be patient, and tactful, and remember that the most telling ar-gument of all is silence, time will do the rest. It isn't often that so involved an affair comes out so well. Two children will be happy, an unlucky girl will die content, with so much in order.

Motorists Get Better Gasoline

2 Gallons Today Are Worth 3 of 1925 Type

DETROIT—If you take the fuel refiners' word for it, two gallons of today's gasoline are worth three 1925 gallons.

Today's motorists-many or whom had no experience with 1925 motor uel-may want to dispute this. But Ethyl corporation's research laboratories made exhaustive tests and report that today's gasoline is not only far ahead of 1925 fuel but also that its price, exclusive of taxes, is about the same as it was 25 years

Ethyl corporation does not attempt to give the oil industry all the credit for what has been accomplished in the last quarter century with motor-car fuel. It emphasizes there has been close cooperation with the automotive industry, which has greatly improved power plants since 1925. Some interesting figures came out of the research carried on by the Ethyl corporation laboratories. Checking on 50 cities throughout the country, it found that the price of regular gasoline, without taxes, in 1925, was 21.93 cents a gallon. Today the price in the same cities, also without taxes, averaged 20.17 cents a gallon.

Inclusion of taxes raises the average retail price in the same cities to 24.21 cents a gallon in 1925 and homes are joined by a lovely gar-den, an ideal place in which to gasoline.

Here's a stunt that'll give you positive protection against moths for a wool bathing suit or sweater, without sprays, flakes or repellents. Wash the garment thoroughly, get it completely dry; then roll it up tightly, put it inside a clean quart-size mason jar, and close the top tightly. No moth can penetrate as long as the cap is

The most annoying thing about aquamarine blue dye is that it's got a lot of red in it; but you don't usually find that out until you store an aquamarine dress in the closet and then take it out six months later to discover a reddish cast on the material. Exposure to perspiration and light are the two principal causes. So, before you put an aquamarine garment away for the season, have it thoroughly cloth bag.

> The theme of the lesson was "Meals Made Easy" and the idea proved to be very popular. Eighteen leaders took the lesson and are giving the lesson to the mem-bers of their respective groups. The reports show that the members are enthusiastic about the new ways of feeding the hungry horde.

The little woman is apt to get that fur coat this fall if her husband sold some feeder calves at the Northeastern Michigan Here-ford Feeder Calf sale last week. The sale reached an all time high with steer calves averaging $37.69 and heifer calves averaged $36.96. About 45 farmers consigned 700 head. In the three sales I have wit- ing. nessed, there has been a defini'e improvement in quality. The association, which is a cooperative marketing organization, has stressed the production of high quality feeders, since its beginning six years ago. Farmers have observed that the higher quality animals have always sold most favorably and consequently have improved their breeding and management program. The buyers have found that these calves are thrifty and prove to be excellent feeders giving good returns.

This is proof again that good management and cooperative mar-keting pays extra dividends. These extra dvidends mean to the farmer, Sunday clothes for the family, improvements in and around the house, education and medical care for the family, vacation trips and many extra luxuries and neces-sities which are well deserved by these hard working people.

For this continued success this smooth running organization, a large amount of the credit must go to Senator C. T. Prescott, who been its president since the be-ginning and James P. Mielock, who is secretary and sales man-

Question: We are going to have our new home plastered, and I would like to know if this integral coloring mixed in with the plaster is a good thing to have

Answer: Yes, I consider it a very good way to get color on your walls without having to do a separate painting job afterwards. To be sure of a uniform color use only the factory-mixed material. Color mixing of plaster "on the job" is not always satisfactory.

"Tell you what—let's get the car and beat it, now, before lunch. We'll drive around and get dinner somewhere and not come back till late this evening. How's that?"

"Oh, I'd like that!" Dorinda's eyes shone. "Maybe things will seem different if I get away from the house for awhile."

Edward, Blonde Woman Are Seen by Couple

"I hate to go back." For a second think about it. Let's start on that walk."

Cleve caught her arm as she would have stepped down from the curb. "Look out for that machine," he warned as a long black sedan slid toward them.

"Silly, there's a stop sign on the corner. See, they're braking now," Dorinda scoffed, as the black car came to a stop not more than a vard away.

lamp across the road, Dorinda could see the driver's face, a dark silhouette, clear as if cut from black paper, and beyond him, catching the first impact of the light, fair hair that lifted gently in the breeze and made a misty golden halo about the head of the woman in the passenger seat.

Derinda's fingers clutched Cleve's sleeve as the car, the smooth hum of its motor almost soundless, glided on in the dark-

"Cleve!" she gasped, the words catching in her throat. "Did you see them? The man who drove - it was Uncle Edward. And there was a woman with him-a woman with yellow hair!"

"Your Uncle Edward!" Cleve repeated. "Are you certain, Do-rinda?" "I know it." There was no doubt in her mind. "What is it, Dorinda?" he asked anxiously, "You're white as a it was Fay. In this light." "And a blonde woman? Perhaps

"Her face was hidden behind his shoulder. But her hair was yellow. Not silver, I could see well enough to know I'm not mistaken about that."

They stood on the curb looking down the road in the direction the car had gone. Even the red tail-She took Cleve out to the canvas- light had disappeared now.

"Cleve, a yellow-haired woman? You remember what Poole said? At Randy's disappearance, and, after The Silver Slipper-in the road the a little hesitation, of the terror she day Anne-that day-"

"An old-fashioned wolf?" The girl's giggle was half-hysterical and Cleve put his arm about her shoulders in a reassuring pressure.

"Honey, don't go imagining things." But, lifting her eyes to his face, she caught the harassed look which lingered there. Cleve was not as certain of his ground as he would have her believe.

It was not until they were within a few miles of Thorndyke House that he spoke again.

"Dorinda," he said, almost violently. "I hate to take you back there!" After a moment, he went on more calmly, "You and I haven't talked seriously to each other very often. But I want to tell you something about myself. You know I'm going into a law firm in Los Angeles in the early summer. The firm is known as Pierce and Grayson, although Grayson's been dead for some years. Mr. Pierce was an old friend of my dad's-he's been practically another father to me since my own died. The thing is my prospects are more than good with him. In a few years, if our plans work out, I'll be junior partner in the firm.

"Now I've been thinking—you know how I feel about you. Why don't you marry me, as soon as we can manage it, and let me take you away? We won't be able to afford butlers and Cadillacs-not for a long time anyway. But somehow I don't believe you'd care. We'd have enough to be comfortable. Even have a little frosting on our cake. How about it?"

"Marry you?" A surge of joy rose in her breast. And died almost as quickly.

Cleve Warns Dorinda To Be Very Careful

"Marry you?" And now her voice was lost, forlorn. "I can't, Cleve."
She felt the jerk he gave reflected in the movement of the car. He turned his head and stared at her. The dashboard light showed his face dark, troubled by a bewildered sternness.

"You mean you won't? Then you don't love me?"

"It isn't that. Don't ask me why. Please, not tonight." She could feel tears streaking her cold cheeks, "You're crying, sweet." He sounded baffled. "All right, I don't understand but I won't say any more tonight." "Cleve, don't hate me, Cleve." "Hate you!" He laughed shortly.

'I don't think you need worry about that." He said no more until just before he left her. He had unlocked the front door with the key she gave him and gone with her into the deserted lower hall.

The hands of the grandfather clock set midway of the side wall pointed to twelve. The silvery whire of the chimes began just as they stepped inside. Edward's tan hat and light topcoat hung on the rack. He was, then, home before them. There was another hat there too. A dark blue Homburg with a tiny her face was somber. "But I won't | pheasant feather making a small splotch of color. Whose? The question hardly formed in her mind before she remembered. Grandmother's attorney-Edward had said he was to come Thursday night.

Cleve, his hands on her shoulders, pulled her to him for a moment. "I don't understand you, Do-rinda," he said, as he had said once before. "You're not the type to be associated with mystery and there is some mystery connected Against the glow of the street with you. I believe now that if Anne's death wasn't an accidentalthough, mind you, I'm not convinced it wasn't - she wasn't intended to be the victim. I spent most of yesterday in Trentvillethat's why you didn't see me here -talking to people who knew her. I'll swear she didn't have an enemy in the world. I wouldn't have thought you had but I can't be certain of that without knowing all about you."

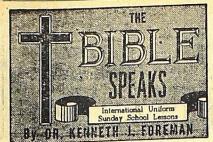

He bent his head and kissed her lightly on one cheek. "No," he went on as he met her protesting look, "I'm not going to ask you questions, not tonight. Though sometime"—his jaw set firmly,— "sometime you're going to tell me. And in the meantime, for God's sake, be careful, Lock your door when you go to your room. Promise me you'll do that."

"I always do," she told him. Tears stung her eyes again as the door closed behind him and she was left alone in the empty hall. She ran upstairs, eager for the warmth and light of her own room with danger locked out.

Beyond the threshold, the room was dark. The faint light from the hall penetrated for a little way and showed her the gray carpet and the shadowy outline of a chintzcovered chair, then merged into obscurity.

Her finger fumbled for the light switch and pressed it down. But no revealing radiance followed the click of the switch.

DEVOTIONAL READING: Psalm 19.

What's Your Intake?

Lesson for October 29, 1950

FEW PEOPLE would care for a diet of sawdust, mixed with old bacon rinds and with carbolic acid for a drink. Yet some people who are very careful of what goes into their stomachs are astonishingly careless about the intake of their minds. What goes into your mind counts for more, and lasts longer, than what goes into your mouth. What you eat can kill you - your body, that is; Dr. Foreman but what you think, what you read, what you hear, can kill your mind. It can even kill your soul. You can afford to be particular. Down at the Cracked Cup Cafe they give you no choice. If you don't like the 50c dinner you can walk out; and if you are at all par-ticular you will walk out. But at the best restaurants you are offered a wide choice, and the experienced diner-out will read the menu carefully before ordering.

Are you a Christian? Then don't feed your mind at the mental equivalent of the Cracked Cup Cafe. Go to a better spot. The beauty of food for the mind is that the best costs no more. The best foods for the table are rather expensive; the best mind-foods, soul-foods, are not.

Ear-Gate

TS WHAT you listen to, good for your mind? What's your intake, by ear? A woman who had roomed in another woman's house for some time was looking for a new place. Her old room was inexpensive, sunny, convenient, clean; there was nothing wrong with the room. But she had to listen to the landlady every day, and from her she never heard good of any one.

"If I stay there any longer I shall go crazy," the roomer confided to a friend. "She'll get me to thinking the way she does, and she thinks everybody's a crook."

In Tennyson's "Idyls of the King" is that fine rule of the Round Table: "To speak no slander — no, nor listen to it . . ." Listening to slander, trash, mean and malicious gossip, day after day, is bound to have a serious effect on any one's mind.

Eye-Gate

THE STRANGE thing is that Christians can be seen taking the greatest of pains picking out the right food for their dogs and cats, and yet never exercising the least choice in what comes into their minds by ear or eye. They will let the radio run on hour after hour, they look at whatever the television puts on the screen,-the dirty with the clean, the trash with the jewels (if any). They read the newspapers from front to back, or vice versa, they read all the comics whether they are amusing or not. But when it comes to picking out something good for their minds, really going to the trouble of selection, and paying out folding money for it, how many, even Christian people, will do it?

It would be interesting to compare what most people spend on quite unnecessary stuff like soft drinks and cigarettes, with what they spend for books in a year's time. Would you like to sit down with a great and good man or woman and let him talk to you by the hour, to give you the hest of his mind and heart? It can always be done - with a good book. Not, usually, the best sell-

An intelligent Christian woman recently had to move almost a thousand miles; when you move that far and have to pay by the pound for what you take, you screen your stuff pretty carefully. "I am throwing away all my best sellers," she said. "There's not a one worth wasting freight on." She was right about most best-sellers. But the oldtime, long-time, all-time best seller of them all is the Christian Bible.

Is Your Mind a Vacant Lot?

IT IS MORE than a question of what you read and see and hear. An even more serious question is: What do you think about? Good reading, even the Bible, was never meant to be a substitute for thought. One of the great books of ancient times was "Consolations of Philosophy," written by a man in jail without a book in his cell. But the fine books he had read were in his head and heart, and when he became a political prisoner, alone and poor and friendless, his mind was still a garden. What is your mind—a garden, or a desert, or only a va-cant lot littered with junk?

Merchandise Mart Exhibits Newest Gadgets

CHICAGO, Ill.—Ever heard of a spherical "cube?" Or a magnetic soap holder?

There are such things. And they're practical too.

In Chicago, there is a permanent, constantly expanding exhibit known as "Good Design." Twice yearly, a jury chairmanned by a consultant to the Museum of Modern Art in New York selects home furnishings designed for present-day life, in general regard to usefulness, to production methods and materials and to the progressive taste of the

The exhibit, which is sponsored by the world's largest market place, the Merchandise Mart, includes not only new gadgets like the soap holder which suspends the soap in the air for drying, and a tray which freezes round ice-cubes, but hundreds of other items to add harmony and color and conserve time for Mr. and Mrs. America.

Unusual Applicances

There is a rotary egg-beater which makes manual mixing of liquids practically effortless; there is green and crystal glassware of enviable clarity and design which can be purchased for only fifteen cents a glass; and a dining table that folds in and becomes its own carrying

The idea behind the exhibit was germinated during the latter part! of 1949 when a group of retailers and wholesalers met informally to discuss methods for creating a better liasion between the drafting boards of America's talented designers and the production lines of the nations's manufacturers. It was felt that, while excellent furnishings are available on the market, opportunities for viewing them were limited because of a lack of concentration among the various lines. It was believed that many new and practical ideas in the field could be introduced by bridging an unnecessary gulf between those who created designs and those who produced the finished products.

Thousands See Exhibit

Subsequently, the Merchandise Mart, which annually attracts thousands of the nation's top manufacturers, launched a program in cooperation with the Museum of Modern Art, to show the best new designs available on the American home furnishings market.

As a result of their efforts, the public as well as manufacturers may now view items which are adjustable, portable, demountable, versatile and space-conserving for the modern home. There are folding chairs, nests of tables, a telescope coffee table, and a lamp so adaptable that only one is necessary to light an entire room. In most items, strength is obtained not through massiveness but through the use of modern materials and techniques -molded plywood, for example.

The items which are on display in the Good Design exhibit are not for sale at the Merchandise Mart. In actual commercial production, they are on display as a link between art and the home furnishings industry and as an exhibit of advances which have been made to lighten the housewife's burden. The near future will see these items in retail stores across the nation.

As one writer observed, the world and the wife who are waiting to beat a path to a "better mousetrap" will have a busy 1950!

Youth Asks Police to Keep Him From Committing Crime

MILWAUKEE, Wis,-The detective bureau was startled when an 18-year-old youth walked in and told detective Sgt. Charles Heupper, "I'm afraid I'm going to hold someone up.'

"Have you got a gun?" the detective asked.

"Yes," the youth replied - and reached under his left arm.

"Wait a minute," said Heupper. "I'll get it." He reached under the youth's arm and pulled out a loaded .22 caliber pistol. He also found 84 cartridges in a sock in the boy's pocket.

The youth told police he had been discharged from a mental institution at Buffalo, N. Y., four months ago and had been living with an aunt. He said he conceived the holdup idea because he owed $180 for repairs to an automobile.

Because of a change in determining the classification of a school, Tawas City High will this year be Class D instead of Class C as it has been for the past two years. The class is determined by the high school enrollment. Class A—825 and over; Class B—325-824; Class C—150-324; Class D—under 150. Tawas City High has 143 students in high school. This in no way effects scholastic standing of the school, but is used only in pairing teams off in tournaments. Prior to this year only 125 students in high school are considered over by Mrs. Grace Miller, president of the club. Plans were made for Past Matrons part in in-
