Named 'AuSable Ski Bowl'

To Operate New Area As Separate Activity

The new ski area on the AuSable river will be known as the "AuSable Ski Bowl." This name was chosen last Friday evening by the new ski area committee of the Silver Valley Winter Sports group. The proposal to adopt a distinguishing name for the AuSable river ski area had been under discussion for some time and the motion was brought to a head by a move made by Scotty Catto of Escoda. The motion was seconded by John E. Franson and adopted by the Silver Valley organization. It was the opinion of a majority present that the new ski area should have separate committee in charge and be operated as an entirely separate activity. Queen committees for the winter carnival have been appointed and the Queen's dance will be held January 20. Harold Pfeiffer is chairman of the dance committee.

Williams Gains 50 Votes in Iosco Recount

Uninitialed Ballots and Entry Error Causes Count Change

Failure by the election board to initial 73 ballots in the First Ward of East Tawas and an error of 11 votes in AuSable township were the principal causes of a gain of 50 votes for G. Mennen Williams over Harry F. Kelly in the recount of Iosco County votes held here Monday and Tuesday.

The final vote as arrived at in the recount of 19 precincts was Kelly, 2294 and Williams 1150. The original count by the election boards of the cities and townships was Kelly, 2363; Williams, 1169.

The recount "breaks" went bad for Kelly here as well as in many of the other counties of the state. The percentage of loss was about the same for both candidates in this county, but as Kelly had more than twice as many votes, his loss in the recount was much greater than Williams.

The recount was made by the Board of County Canvassers, consisting of James Mielock of Reno township, chairman; Will MacGillivray of Escoda and P. N. Thornton of Tawas City. Attorney Herbert Herzert Hertzler, representing the state board of canvassers, supervised the recount. Williams was represented here by Attorney T. George Sternberg of Bay City, Richard Killmaster, of Escoda, chairman of the Iosco County Democratic Committee, and H. Eugene Hanson of East Tawas. Kelly was represented by A. Don Anderson, chairman of the Iosco County Republican Committee and George W. Myles of Tawas City.

Sgt. Donald Cobb of Tawas Post, Michigan State Police, had charge of the ballot boxes during the two-day recount. The ballots were delivered to the courthouse by the clerks, escorted by State Police or members of the sheriff's department.

Some good citizens lost their votes by using a so-called check mark instead of the required cross in voting. All of these ballots were thrown out as invalid by township and city election boards during the November election. This action was upheld by the board of county canvassers and the state board of canvassers during the present recount. The Michigan election laws definitely state that a check mark is no good in voting.

Membership Drive Put on by Farm Bureau

Volunteer Workers Started Campaign Last Monday

County volunteer workers were busy Monday, December 4, starting an all out drive for Farm Bureau membership, according to Mrs. Lloyd Newvine, membership chairman Iosco county. Some volunteers have already called in 100% renewal membership in their township groups and new memberships are coming in. The hope to make their goal of 136 family members by the end of next week. Mrs. Newvine states that this county has eleven of the 989 community farm bureau discussion groups in Michigan. The original idea of community discussion groups in the Farm Bureau grew out of a 12 family circle of members. They rotated so that each family entertained the group at least once a year for combination Farm Bureau meeting and social evening. Twelve discussion topics of far minterest are chosen for the year by a committee representing community groups, the Michigan Farm Bureau, and the Adult Department of Michigan State College. Community groups have some 20,000 Farm Bureau families enrolled in Blue Cross Hospital Service as one of their Farm Bureau projects. The hospital expense insurance covers more than 50,000 people in those families.

Both the bride's mother and the groom's mother were attired in green dresses and each wore a corsage of gardenias.

A wedding breakfast was served at the home of the groom's parents for twenty-two relatives and friends. The brides' table was very pretty with white and blue and a wedding cake topped with an angel centered her table. Her table flowers were pink and white carnations.

In the evening a reception was held at the home of the bride's uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Seafert of 3016 S. Euclid, Bay City for thirty-two guests. 14 Districts Represented at School Meet

Study Legal and Other Factors in Reorganization Plans

The meeting called Tuesday evening, December 5, by the School Reorganization Committee was well attended. Fourteen of the fifteen districts whose board members had been invited were represented. There was a total 32 board members present.

Many legal and other factors concerning the formation of a Rural Agriculture School District were discussed. One factor noticed is that the total assessed valuation of the proposed area is about 6 1/2 million, thus causing the financial backing to be favorable. It was also noted that the amount of property back of each census child now varies from $1405 in one district to $1414 in another district. One purpose of a reorganization is to cause an equalization of opportunities for all concerned. It was found, too, from data secured from Rural Agricultural Schools about the state that the board members from the rural areas in general outnumber those from the village or city within the district.

It was suggested that the representatives present from each district consider the matter with their constituents and that the present committee be enlarged by members outside of the Tawas Area. It would seem that a favorable beginning has been made in the necessary discussion in the formation of any school reorganization.

Appoints New Public Works Head

Martin Kasischke Approved by Council

The superintendent of public works job in Tawas City, which has been vacant for several months, was filled at the last meeting when Mayor George Myles appointed Martin Kasischke to fill the position. The appointment was approved by the council.

During the past 20 years, with the acquiring of a waterworks and sewage system and intensified street improvements program the job of superintendent of public works has developed to where a considerable amount of office experience is required as well as mechanical skill. Ever since the resignation of Henry Darling last summer, Mayor Myles and the council have been searching for such a man.

Elks Win First Two Games Of Season

Tawas City Plays At Harrisville Next Week

The Tawas City Elks chalked up their first two wins of the current basketball season, by besieging Visitation last Friday evening 91 to 23 and they tripped up Sterling Tuesday evening 67 to 45 in the season opener here.

The Elks proved to be more experienced on the hardwood than either the Bay City squad or Sterling, and these games didn't throw much light on how they will stack up against other teams in the area.

The Elks had their offense rolling early in both contests when they garnered 23 points to Visitation's 3 in the first quarter. They tapered off in the second with 14 points, while Bay City crew had four markers. In the third quarter the Elks hit the hoop for 33 points while Visitation came up with nine. The final stanza wound up with Tawas City 21 points and Visitation seven.

Against Sterling, the Elks hit for 21 points in the first quarter, while the Sterling aggregation countered with nine points. Tawas City added 16 points in their second quarter, while Sterling again made nine. Halftime score: Elks, 37, Sterling 18. In the third quarter the Elks garnered 17 more points while Sterling hit for 11. Sterling outscored the locals 16 to 13 in the final stanza.

McGuire and Graick collaborated to lead the Elks in the Visitation game with McGuire leading the hoops for 25 points and Graick 22. Graick along with Gingerich paced the attack against Sterling with 19 and 16 points respectively.

The Elks reserve team won both of their encounters, with a 48 to 9 score over Visitation reserves and they romped over Sterling 52 to 32.

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS

Vishinsky Names Only Conditions On Which Russia Will Make Peace; Weather Hampers Allies in Korea

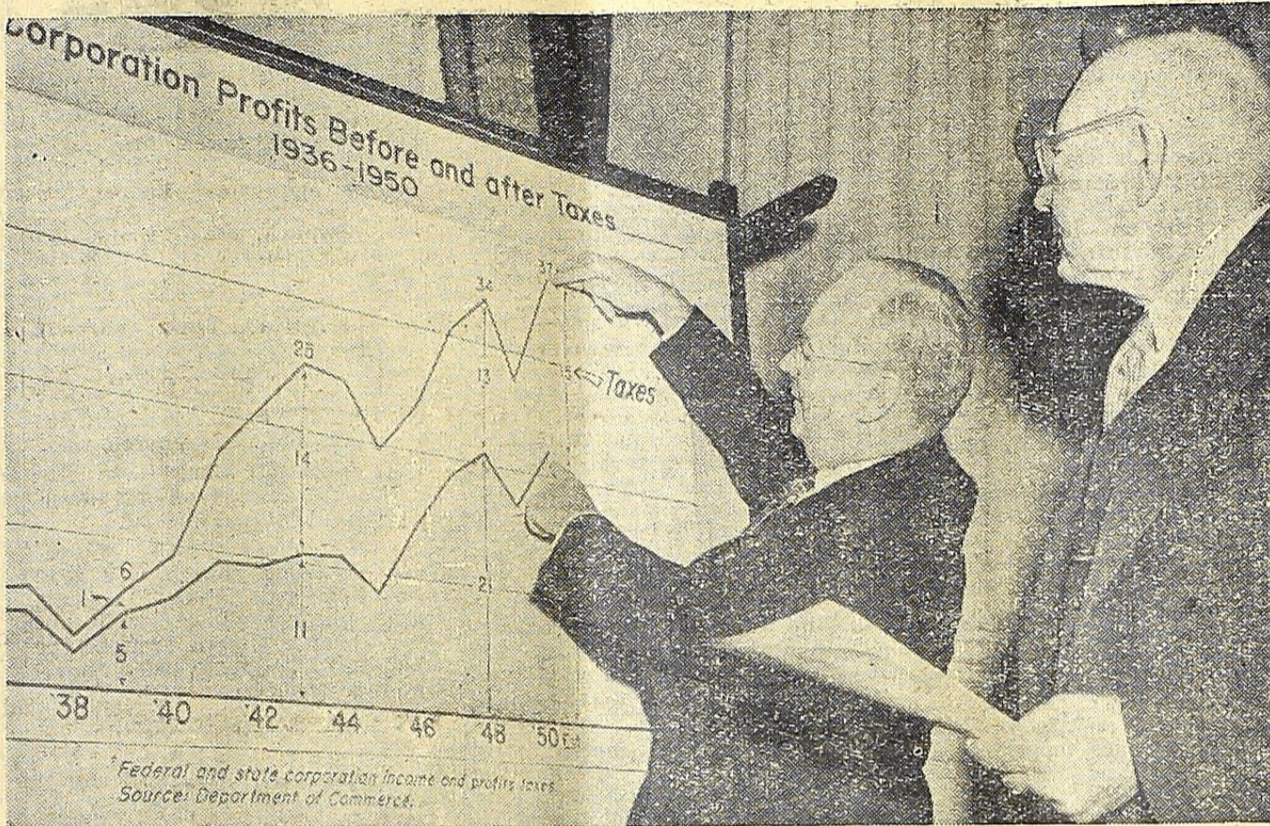

(EDITOR'S NOTE: When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of Western Newspaper Union's news analysts and not necessarily of this newspaper.)

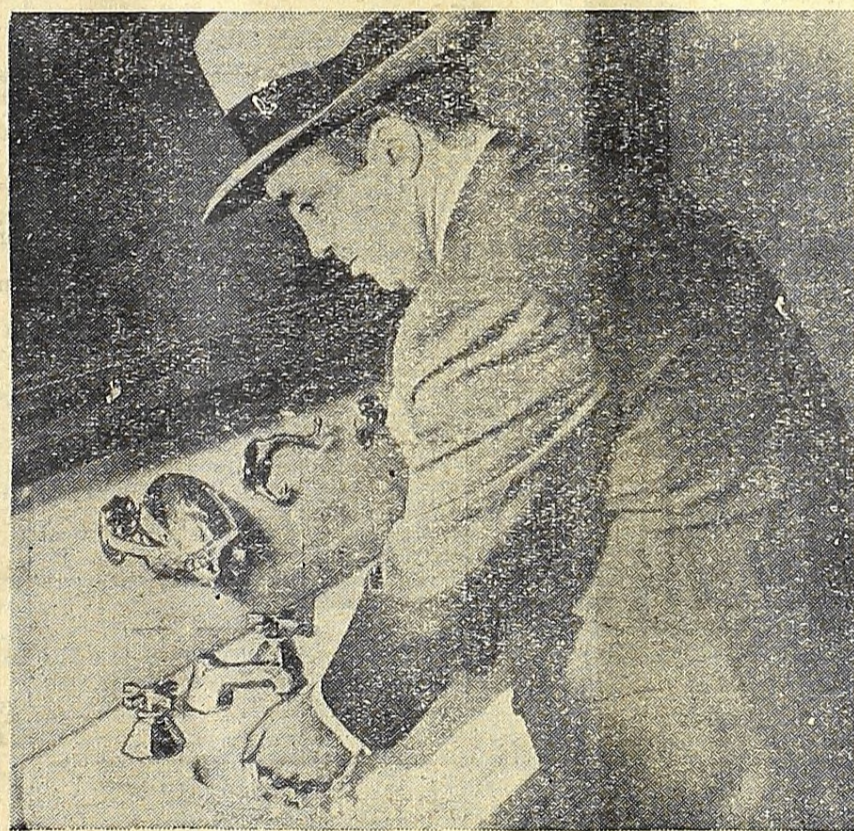

Asia is the danger spot of the world today, most observers believe. The above map shows point of Communist aggression and countries being aided by the United States. China Reds now dominate Tibet, and observers theorized Nepal may be next.

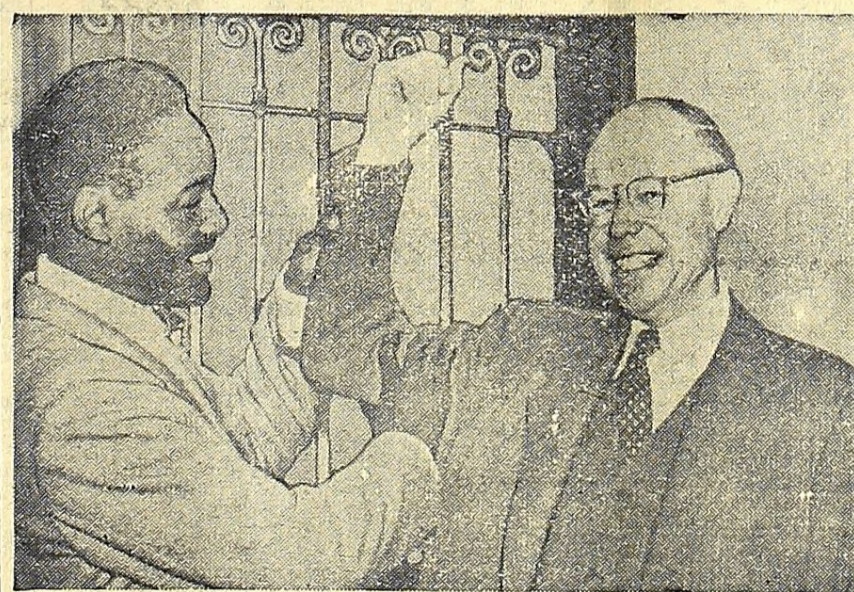

PHONE PICKETS BATTLE POLICE . . . Striking telephone equipment workers tangled with police in West Philadelphia recently for about 45 minutes in an attempt to bar Bell telephone operators from the West Philadelphia Trinity exchange. This scene shows burly policemen taking two protesting pickets in tow for removal by police wagon following the general melee. A total of 11 strikers were placed under arrest during the disorders which threatened to disrupt telephone service in the Philadelphia area. The demonstration was the first attempt by striking Western Electric workers to prevent operators from going to work. Strike was settled when W.E. workers were given a wage raise.

SNYDER ASKS 75 PER CENT TAX ON WAR PROFITS . . . Treasury secretary John Snyder (left), shown with Chairman Robert L. Doughton (D., N.C.) of the house ways and means committee, proposed to congress recently that the war profits of corporations be taxed 75 per cent to bring in the additional $4,000,000 annually asked by President Truman. The philosophy behind the request is that as long as wars are exceedingly profitable to a large number of business concerns, here and abroad, fighting will continue to occur. Snyder was the first witness before the ways and means committee.

WASHES HIS HANDS OF WHOLE THING . . . Gambling boss Mickey Cohen stands in the wings waiting to become the chief witness at a session of Senator Estes Kefauver's crime investigating committee. The committee held a two-day hearing in Los Angeles. Cohen appeared in answer to a subpoena and was asked to explain how his expenses were so high and his reported income so low.

CHAMP MEETS CHAMP . . . Cincinnati heavyweight boxing champion, Ezzard Charles, called upon Senator Robert A. Taft recently in Cincinnati. Charles congratulated Taft upon his kayo of Joe Ferguson in Ohio's senatorial race recently. Taft, in turn, wished Charles well in his next fight. Taft here is assuming the role of the "new" Taft, the warm, personable "regular fellow" in contrast with his former portrayal of the cool, calculating political brain and aloof statesman.

SEEKS HAVEN . . . Grandson of king of Nepal arrives at New Delhi airport. The king was exiled by the prime minister, whose daughter, it is reported, will marry another small grandson of the exiled king.

STILL CONFIDENT . . . President Truman wears his usual grin as he leaves his yacht "Williamsburg" after cruise on the Potomac. The chief executive gives no manifestation of disappointment over the outcome of the recent elections.

UNITED NATIONS:

Formula for Peace

Russia's Andrie Y. Vishinsky in a slashing, abusing speech in the United Nations general assembly outlined a series of conditions which he said must be accepted before there could be world peace. He made it plain that there was no other possible ground for the settlement of east-west differences.

The main condition of Vishinsky's speech was the demand that the Chinese Communists be allowed a seat in the United Nations. Russia has long battled for admission of China in the U.N., but the tone of Vishinsky's speech was much stronger than it had been on other occasions.

The main points of Vishinsky's demands:

1. A pledge not to try to get around the veto.
2. Unconditional prohibition of the atomic bomb.
3. Armed forces under exclusive control of the security council.
4. Aid to backward countries under international control.
5. Development of international trade without discrimination.

These were the demands reportedly given to Secretary-General Trygve Lie when he visited Prime Minister Stalin during his trip to Moscow in May. Lie's refusal to accept them is believed the reason the Russians opposed his re-election as secretary-general.

Many observers saw a threat in a part of Vishinsky's speech. He said if these demands were ignored it would be idle to think of peace being achieved through the U. N.

KOREA:

In Ice and Snow

In ice and snow, with the mercury often below zero, United Nations forces in Korea continued a slow advance against Communist troops.

Snow and ice made operations slow and dangerous. Supply routes far to the rear were blocked making it necessary to depend on air drops.

Military leaders reported approximately 100,000 Chinese and Korean Communists were established in a 60-mile line below the great hydro-electric plants on the Yalu river border between Korea and Manchuria. An all-out battle in the area was expected.

The advance has been carried out behind devastating air attacks by the U.S. air force.

American officers said the advance was progressing "well," but just how fast they go depends a great deal upon the weather. In many of the mountain passes wind had piled snow 10 to 12 feet deep.

Meanwhile, the Russians are making new threats concerning the Korean Conflict. Among other things, they charge that Japanese soldiers are now being used in Korea.

According to the Soviet, a Chinese-Russian treaty calls for their intervention whenever Japanese troops are used against the Chinese.

Some sources believed this could be another step in the Russian plan for justification of her throwing men and planes into the conflict. Others believe, however, that Russia would not take such a step.

NPA Chief

William H. Harrison, standing, national production administrator, ordered a 35 per cent reduction in civilian aluminum supplies and warned that the action will result in some unemployment and higher prices for aluminum products next year. The order is effective January 1, 1951.

DEFENSE:

Nerve Center Moved

The air force announced that headquarters for the nation's defense against air attack will be moved from New York to Colorado Springs, Colo. The move takes the nerve center of air defense of the U. S. 1,650 miles from the Atlantic ocean, deep into the interior for safety reasons.

The move emphasized the fact that the oceans surrounding the country are no longer a barrier against attack. The swing to the west also lent emphasis to the strategic concept that if present tension with Russia should erupt into World War III, the gravest danger of aerial blows against the United States would focus on the northwest "gateway."

Observers pointed out that guided missiles, conceivably with atomic warheads, could be fired from submarines lying a few miles off the present headquarters at Mitchell Field, N. Y., thus destroying the defense center with one blow.

The center now controls both the east and west air-defense forces. Some 800 military and civilian personnel will be assigned to the new center. Lt. Gen. Ennis C. Whitehead will be in command.

EUROPE:

Prewar Production

Western Europe, with American aid, increased exports and industrial output above prewar levels, the economic co-operation administration announced.

The report was an encouraging trend in the west's battle against communism. The gains must be increased, however, to support the load of arming for defense against communism.

The E.C.A. said: "The urgency to rearm has emphasized the importance . . . for western Europe of continuing its progress toward the economic goals of the recovery program. The required expansion in military production cannot be achieved unless Europe's economic base is further strengthened."

WHOLESALE PRICES

Wholesale Index at All-Time High

The bureau of labor statistics reported wholesale prices hit an all-time high during the second week of November. The new index was an advance of .6 of a per cent in one week and was 8.7 per cent above the June 20 level, before the Korean fighting.

All commodities other than farm products and foods again advanced to another peak, 9.3 per cent above pre-Korean war levels. Hogs and steers continued to move in opposite directions. Hogs dropped while steers advanced to the highest point in 1950.

Steel-scrap prices which had not changed for two months advanced 50 cents a ton. Rubber prices, reacting to the war news, also advanced. Tin prices also fluctuated violently.

DECEMBER MOST DEADLY TRAFFIC MONTH IN YEAR

December, the gayest month of all, is also the deadliest.

This is the warning given by Sgt. Donald Cobb, commander of the East Tawas post of the Michigan State Police, in plea to pedestrians and drivers to be especially careful during the holiday season.

Pointing out that police agencies throughout the state are now carrying on a holiday traffic safety campaign, Sergeant Cobb said:

"Traffic records show that the death toll in December is the heaviest of the year. Since 1945 more than 750 persons have been killed in December traffic accidents on Michigan streets and highways, and of these nearly 300 were pedestrians.

"Christmas shopping and other holiday activities bring more people out-of-doors. Added to this are longer periods of darkness, unfavorable weather conditions and an added tendency towards carelessness because we're thinking of other things.

"Don't spoil your Christmas and bring sorrow into your home because of a traffic accident. This season is supposed to be the happiest of the year. Keep it that way by walking and driving safely."

ORDER EASTERN STAR

Fifty members and guests witnessed the impressive installation ceremony of Tawas City Chapter, No. 303, on Tuesday, November 23 at the Baptist Church basement.

The installing officers, Mrs. Grace DeGrow, Mrs. Sarah Everett, and Mrs. Capitola McCormick were presented with beautiful corsages, from the chapter and J. F. Mark, organist, was presented a boutonniere. The retiring Worthy Matron, Mrs. Lulu Colby and the incoming Worthy Matron, Mrs. Elizabeth Tuttle wore corsages, gifts from their secret sisters.

The Worthy Matron was escorted to the East under an arch of white chrysanthemums, which were presented to her. An honor line of Masonic brothers formed the escort for the Worthy Patron, Archie Colby.

The Styleline De Luxe four-door sedan is one of 14 models introduced by Chevrolet as its passenger car line for 1951. Notable in this picture are the design improvements which accentuate a longer, lower appearance. Radiator grilles have been simplified, the decorative body moulding lowered and rear fender crowns raised. Models also offer added safety.

4-H CLUB NOTES

By A. Marvin Davenport, District 4-H Club Agent

Next year at this time, I hope to see one our Lo-co County demonstration teams taking part in the National Junior Vegetable Growers Association Convention somewhere in the west. Work hard on those vegetable Gardens and demonstrations, young folks--that is a trip for once in a life time. Every garden member can compete for the trip. The rules and regulations can be had from the Extension Service office in the Federal Building, East Tawas.

This year the convention is in New Orleans. Jean Troyer from Fairview in Oscoda county will be making the trip from northern Michigan.

Last week, Community Leader, Mrs. Fred Pfahl and 4-H Reporter, Doris Herriman of the Grant 4-H Club sat down with Mr. Davenport and planned the 4-H Club program for the year of 1951. The program will be presented to the 4-H club Thursday, January 11, 1951 at the Grant Town Hall. There are a lot of surprises in store for the members--tours, camps and picnics, as well as demonstrating members. We hope you parents and neighbors will come to the meetings to see what we are doing.

Vegetable Omelet

A vegetable omelet makes a tasty dish for home supper. Either fresh or home-canned peas, corn, spinach and beans are delicious. They may also be used in combination, an excellent means of using up leftover vegetables.

FARM FACTS
from your County
Agricultural Agent

by Harold R. Clark, County Agt.
I stopped to see Joe Barnes the other day to ask if he would serve on the Soil Conservation District committee. Joe is an active member of the local Farm Bureau and participates in many other local activities. He says, "I am mighty busy but am sold on the soil conservation program and will be glad to serve."

Naturally we talked about the dairy business. Joe has a fine herd of Holstein cows, was a member of the DHIA and is a member of the artificial breeders association. He is as proud of his share in the ownership of the ABA bulls as if they were on his farm, and rightly so, because he is getting the same results as if he had invested one thousand dollars or more. He has pictures of a group of the bulls right out in the dairy barn. Captain Bold was displayed on a card sized picture.

Apparently Joe recognizes the danger of cows lying on the cement floor, because he had them well bedded down. When I see a clean barn like Joe's and a barn full of clean cattle I just can't help believing that Joe loves his cows and too he must be producing good clean milk.

Joe is concerned about a good market for his surplus livestock. Why shouldn't there be an excellent market for fall freshening cattle? In the metropolitan areas buyers are ever eager for fall springer maure cows. If enough Isosco county dairymen would use artificial breeding and test their herds in DHIA to make a sizeable number of high quality surplus cows for sale, I am sure such a program would provide a substantial supplementary income. I know buyers will go long distances if they have the prospect of securing a few truck loads with little travel.

The Whittemore Women's Extension Group always do the wonderful thing at Christmas time. They gather up quantities of clothing, toys, dolls, teddy bears and other useful things for children and distribute them among poor families in their community. They remodel the clothes and repair the toys. The Senior and Junior Women's clubs furnish the candy and nuts. They have some trouble getting boxes large enough to hold the gifts.

Certainly in this instance it is proven that it is more blessed to give than to receive. These women beam in their joy in preparing the boxes and are thrilled with the emotions of the children and women who are receiving the boxes. This is their community project and one truly worth while.

FARMERS URGED TO VOTE NOW—SAYS PARLTO

All farmers in Isosco county are urged to mark and return the ballots they have received through the mail for participation in the annual PMA Committee elections before the voting deadline of December 21 and before they misplace their ballots.

Earl M. Partlo, Chairman of the Isosco County PMA Committee said that the ballots contain not only the names of candidates for township PMA Committees but also the candidates for the position of delegate and alternate delegate to the county PMA convention to be held on December 29. At this annual convention, the delegates from all the communities in the county will nominate and elect the county PMA committee to serve during 1951.

The committees elected, both community and county, will be charged with the local administration of the various federal programs such as commodity loans, price support, the Agricultural Conservation Program, various acreage allotment programs, and the sugar and crop insurance programs. "In addition," said Mr. Partlo, "the present war outlook brings closer the reality defense problems in connection with obtaining fertilizers, seed, construction materials, transportation etc., and it is the responsibility of every Isosco county farmer to help elect the persons who will help to make the local decisions in these matters."

In addition to the chairman named above, the following farmers are serving on the 1950 Isosco County PMA Committee: James P. Mielock, vice chairman; Robert A. Oates, member; Will Waters, first alternate.

Election ballots were mailed to all known eligible voters in this county, Mr. Partlo said. Farmers who did not receive a ballot and who believe they may be eligible to vote are urged to contact the county PMA office.

Tight Rope
By Allison L. Burks

Sheriff Poole interrogates Stella Moore about events which led to her fleeing from the Thorndyke house where, at the request of Edward Thorndyke, she was masquerading as Dorinda LaCroix, to save Edward's mother and Dorinda's grandmother from what might be a fatal shock if she learned the real Dorinda had died. Mrs. Thorndyke does learn, however, and she, a salesman who recognized Stella on the street and Stella's friend, Anne Delahay, have mysteriously lost their lives. Edward tells the real story of the motive leading up to his decision to deceive his mother about Dorinda. Stella finds that money was the eventual motive for the strange deception.

CHAPTER XIX

"I would," he acknowledged miserably. "As Dorinda's nearest relative, I would never have hurt you, child, not for anything in the world. You do believe that, don't you?"

"Yes, I believe that." She was trembling but her voice did not waver. "But there's someone else—the woman you're to marry—"

The screen door was pushed open. Cleve came out on the porch. Dorinda's brief surprise that he had not gone away was forgotten when he blurted, "Mr. Thorndyke, the sheriff's back at Thorndyke House and he just phoned. I know this will be a shock but I have to tell you. Fay—your cousin Fay has committed suicide."

Edward rose slowly to his feet. His heavy shoulders sagged, his black eyes looked stupid as if he were unable to grasp the meaning of Cleve's words.

"You said—you said—" he stammered.

"I say Fay Thorndyke has committed suicide," Cleve told him patiently.

"But . . . she wouldn't. Not Fay. She wouldn't do that."

"She left a note, Mr. Thorndyke. A suicide note. Poole read it to me over the telephone."

"A note?" Edward's words were barely understandable. "Did she say why—why she did it?"

"Well, I can't remember exactly how the note was worded. There was something about feeling you had ceased to care for her; that all she had done for your sake had been useless and she couldn't go on."

"All she has done for my sake? Did she say what she meant?"

"Yes," Cleve said bluntly. "She meant she had tried to kill Dorinda so that your mother's money would come to you. She didn't go in to details, simply said she had mistaken Anne for her the day she pushed the boulder over the bluff. And that the other time—last night—Dorinda escaped somehow."

Edward Confesses That He Never 'Knew' Fay

Edward's sombre stare rested upon them for a moment, then he walked over to the porch steps and stood there with his back toward them. Dorinda sensed that he was thinking desperately. Minutes passed before he turned. He passed his hand across his forehead.

"I feel—confused," he admitted. "Perhaps in the last analysis all that happened has been my fault. Fay may have some ground for her belief. I did not care for her but after all, a man can't keep love burning at white heat year after year. Romance becomes a little tarnished in time."

His broad chest lifted in a troubled breath. "As to the other thing, I must own suspicion touched me once or twice. But I couldn't believe it, I didn't want to believe it. I preferred to think Miss Delahay's death was an accident."

Dorinda broke in suddenly. "But Fay couldn't have been there the day Anne was killed. Don't you remember, you'd gone to Monterey. She was with you that afternoon. You told the sheriff you were together all the time."

"I know I did. But it wasn't strictly true. Fay left me almost as soon as we arrived in Monterey. She wanted to do some shopping, she said, and told me to meet her at five. I remember she was late for the appointment—it was nearer six than five when she came. She wouldn't have had any time to spare but she could have made it to Thorndyke House and back. I didn't think it necessary to tell Poole we'd separated. I hadn't a shadow of suspicion of her then and I thought a mutual alibi would avoid awkwardness."

He hesitated. "I hate to go back. But I suppose I must. Poole will want to know the things I've just told you." He pulled his lips into a grotesque attempt at a smile and went down the porch steps.

Cleve watched the black sedan as it drove away. "After the first shock, the gentleman regained what he would probably call his equanimity rather quickly, don't you think? I don't believe his was a deathless passion."

"I can't imagine her driven to desperation though. She just didn't seem the type," Cleve said doubtfully.

"I don't think anyone really knew her. I do think she loved Edward. But she didn't like me. Sometimes I thought she hated me. Maybe that made it easier—"

"You're not to think about that part of it any more, honey. That reminds me, Poole said to tell you the inquest had been postponed. It was set for this morning, you remember."

"It seems to me you and the sheriff are getting quite chummy. You almost quarreled that first day, but now—"

Cleve said, "Mr. Thorndyke, I know this will be a shock."

"Oh, we've formed a sort of a mutual alliance," Cleve interrupted. "I help him; he helps me by looking after my girl. Though he was off in his calculations last night. As soon as he got over being suspicious of you and me, Poole was all right." He laughed shortly. "Don't think Poole is telling everything he knows or suspects though. I'm anxious to see him again. Maybe now that the case is washed up he'll divulge all. There are lots of things which need explaining but he'll work it out. Poole's a darn smart guy if you ask me."

Story of Yellow Wig Explains Many Things

"Maybe, but he had to wait for a confession before he knew what it was all about. Tell me, Cleve—" Distaste struggled with curiosity for a moment. Curiosity won. "How did Fay, I mean, how did it happen?"

"How? Well, the supposition is that she took an overdose of sleeping tablets. It seems she was in the habit of taking them. But they won't know definitely until after the autopsy. She didn't come down for breakfast, nothing unusual about that. Edward wouldn't let them disturb her even when Lana's absence was discovered and Poole didn't insist on it as he intended going back to the house later. But just before Edward came over here, he told Carrie she'd better take her up some coffee. She was dead when Carrie went to her room."

"She didn't say anything about Taylor and The Silver Slipper in her note, did she? But that couldn't have been Fay with him—that girl had yellow hair."

"She didn't mention Taylor. But here's something I didn't tell you Dorinda. In that note, Fay said she wore a yellow wig the day she came back from Monterey. She was afraid someone might see her and recognize her. She must have left the car hidden along some side road and walked to the house. She said we'd find the wig hidden in an old trunk up in the attic."

"A yellow wig!" Dorinda shivered. "Cleve, she must have loved me that day I went up there. If I'd tried to open the trunk—"

"She'd have stopped you some way, I expect." Cleve's voice was determinedly matter-of-fact. "Your intuition was certainly hitting on all six cylinders that time."

Cleve's wish to talk to Poole was soon gratified. The sheriff telephoned soon after lunch.

"He wants to have a sort of informal session tonight with everybody concerned over at Thorndyke House at eight o'clock," Cleve told Dorinda. "It has to be there because it seems he wants that attorney, Morrow, present and he isn't well enough to go out just yet."

Dorinda sighed. "I hate to go back there. But it would be silly to be frightened now. And you'll be with me."

but I'll be back in plenty of time for dinner and to take you over to the session. You and Mother can get better acquainted while I'm gone."

At six o'clock Carol telephoned. "Oh, Dorinda, it's good to hear your voice. Like a breath of fresh air." Carol sounded as if she had been crying. "This has been such a horrible day. First, Lana Thorndyke disappearing and then Miss Thorndyke—I still can't make myself believe she killed herself. It doesn't seem—possible."

"I know, Carol. The whole thing's like a bad dream."

"They told you about the note she left, of course. I keep telling myself that it's better this way. I mean, for her to go as she did. At least, Dorinda, you're safe now." The sound of her sighing breath came over the wire. "I can't be thankful enough about last night."

"I know, Carol," Dorinda said again. "I'm terribly grateful for what you did for me. If you hadn't taken me away—" She stopped, unable to go on.

"I hate thinking about it," Carol declared. "Let's try to forget it." She forced a note of cheerfulness into her voice. "Listen, dear, this is what I telephoned about. You know about the get-together tonight to clean up the odds and ends. I was wondering if you wouldn't come early and we'd have a talk. Edward's gone, Morrow's still sticking to his room, so there won't be any formal dinner. Your Aunt Harriet's there, of course, but I imagine she'll have something in her room. You and I could fix us up a couple of trays and sort of hash things over together. I'll come over after you."

"Oh, Carol, I hate coming over there—"

"Why, you'll be coming here anyway," she sounded surprised. "But it's all right, of course, if you don't want to. I only thought—I'm so darned lonesome. But I'll see you later when they all come."

Carol Builds Up Fay's Potential Complicity

"I'm sorry, of course I'll come," she promised impetuously. "I do want to see you. It's just that I hoped I'd never have to go back to that house again. But, as you say, I'm coming there anyway a little later. And being with you, I'll forget about the house."

When she told Cleve's mother of her plan, Mrs. Adams looked troubled. "I don't like your going away, child. Of course, it's all right for you to have dinner with your friend but I wish you'd asked her to come here instead."

"I imagine she wouldn't want to leave Mr. Morrow too long," Dorinda explained. "But it's all right, Mrs. Adams. I don't know how much Cleve has told you but the danger's over now. There's no reason why I shouldn't go."

Carol drove in promptly at six-thirty. She was hatless and the wind had ruffled her black hair into little curls about her forehead. She looked extremely pretty, Dorinda thought, her soft olive face flushed, her dark eyes bright as diamonds.

The last streaks of rose were fading above the distant blue of the hills. Dusk was beginning to gather as Dorinda climbed into the black roadster.

"Oh, Dorinda, I'm so glad to see you. You don't know what it's been like over here. Greer quit this morning—he lives in Trentville so the sheriff made no objection to his leaving. Carrie goes around looking like a ghost, and your Aunt Harriet, honestly, she gives me the jitters. She creeps around. This morning when she found her daughter was gone, she made a terrific fuss but after she talked to the sheriff she quieted down. She's been all over the place this afternoon. You think she's nowhere near and you look up and there she is. She's positively uncanny. Really, Dorinda, I felt like I'd scream if I couldn't talk to someone."

Dorinda laid her hand over Carol's on the wheel. "I can imagine. It must be ghastly."

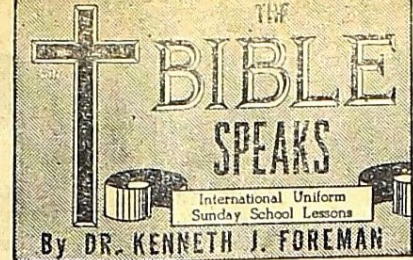

"Ghastly is the word." Carol's shiver reflected itself in the movement of the car. "I've been wondering all day—do you suppose that was Fay and Lana Thorndyke whispering in the hall last night? Of course, it must have been."

She brooded silently for a moment, then went on. "They've taken her away, of course, but it seems as if she were still in the house. I keep expecting to hear her voice every time I turn around. I didn't like Miss Thorndyke. Sometimes I wonder if anyone did. But I wouldn't have wished her dead."

"I can picture her at the typewriter, typing out that last note. I bet she was as calm and perfect as she always was. She'd get up, take—whatever she took—get into bed and close her eyes without even an accelerated heart beat."

"Don't, Carol," Dorinda begged faintly.

Sharing Our Faith
Lesson for December 10, 1950

SCRIPTURE: Acts 8:1-13; 18:1-7; I Corinthians 9:16-17; II Corinthians 5:17-20; Philippians 1:12-13; 2:12-18.
DEVOTIONAL READING: Romans 1:8-17.

A COMMON sight in cities of ancient times was the "libation." Statues of gods or goddesses stood at every prominent corner, in every yard; they were as numerous as billboards today. Before one of these statues some one would be pouring out wine from a cup or goblet, an offering of thanksgiving or dedication. Saint Paul even used the libation as a figure of speech to describe himself. My life, he said to his friend Timothy, is being poured out—there was not much left of it, but all of it, every drop, would be poured out as an offering to God.

Miser of Life or Spender?
PAUL was no miser of life. If life was a full cup, it was not a cup with a tight lid, not like one of your grandmothers' jars of very special preserves to be saved and saved but never used. Paul was a spender of life. Whatever God had given him was to be poured out, not to be saved.

There is something in every one's cup of life; something that spoils if kept too long, something fragrant and beautiful when poured out in service. The miser of life finds that life at last turns sour on him. The spender of life finds that as he has given, in the same measure it will be given him.

Faith Can't Be Hoarded

ONE very important part of the Christian's life is highlighted for us in this week's Scripture: his faith. Indeed, faith ought not to be a part of life for the Christian. Faith is no more a "part" of life than sunshine is a part of the outdoors. Without the sunshine there might as well not be any outdoors. So without faith the Christian's life would be mere existence.

The question is: What do we do with our faith? Do we keep it for ourselves alone or do we pass it on?

Last summer a man tried to get a grocery store to take back 100 pounds of sugar which he had laid up during World War II. He had hoarded it till it was hard as rock and he could not use a pound of it. (The grocery would not take it back, and it served him right.) Faith is like that. It is sweet and good—but only if we use it and share it, not if we keep it to ourselves.

What Is Sharing Faith?

SHARING your faith means helping others to have a faith at least as strong as your own. All around us there are persons who have no faith at all. They are discouraged, blue, bewildered, at loose ends—in the sad old phrase, they are lost. Sharing your faith means sharing it with just such people. With some things, the more you give away the less you have left; but the arithmetic of religion is different. The more you give away, the more you have. Shared faith is living faith; shared faith is growing faith.

There are more ways than one of sharing our faith. One way is to talk about it. A person can "give a testimony" in a prayermeeting, and share faith that way; but this is not the only way. A person who merely talks about faith is a little like a gardener who is proud of his own garden and brags on it, but never helps his neighbors with theirs.

How Can We Do It Every Day?

REMEMBER, what we are really trying to share when we "share the gospel" or "share Christ" is not an argument, a set of propositions. The big thing is not arguing other people into becoming Christians.

Very few persons have ever become Christians because someone talked them into it. Talk has its place, and every Christian should be eager to say a good word for Jesus Christ at every chance. But good words for Jesus have their best effect when they come from a life that is really His.

A Christian whose faith is something put on on Sundays with the "church clothes" is not going to have any great success as a soul-winner. We can't share faith we don't have; we can't share second-hand or imitation faith. A former Mohammedan, being asked what was the great argument that won him to Christianity, replied, "It wasn't any argument, it was the lives of some missionaries."

Mr. Dan Goldsmith, 3024 Curron Road, Louisville, Ky., owner of Coogla Cut Rate Store at 935 West Broadway, says there just aren't enough words in the English language to praise HADACOL correctly. He says he knows most folks don't realize what a change HADACOL can make in their life if their systems are deficient in Vitamins B, B, Iron and Niacin.

Here is Mr. Goldsmith's statement: "Before I started taking HADACOL I was run down and nervous—and had a hard time sleeping nights. With my work in the store I have to spend sometimes 14 hours a day on my feet. Since I am in the retail business I saw how many folks were asking for HADACOL so I decided to try it myself. After the first couple of bottles I could tell a definite improvement. Now I have all the pep and energy in the world, my nerves are steady as ever and I really do get a good night's rest. HADACOL is wonderful—I not only take it, but recommend it to all my customers. I praise the day Senator Dudley J. LeBlanc put HADACOL on the market." HADACOL is So Different Thousands are benefiting from HADACOL... whose systems lack Vitamins B, B, Iron and Niacin. HADACOL is so wonderful because HADACOL helps build up the hemoglobin content of your blood (when Iron is needed) to carry these great Vitamins and Minerals to every body organ—to every part of the body. Give remarkable HADACOL a chance and if you don't feel better with the first few bottles you take—you get your money back. Only $1.25 for Trial Size; Large Family or Hospital Size, $3.50. If your druggist does not have HADACOL, order direct from The LeBlanc Corporation, Lafayette, Louisiana. Send no money. Just your name and address on a penny post card. Pay postman. State whether you want the $3.50 hospital economy size or $1.25 trial size. Remember, money cheerfully refunded unless you are 100% satisfied.—Adv. © 1950, The LeBlanc Corporation.

Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Lomas spent Sunday in Bay City.
The American Legion Auxiliary, Audie Johnson Unit held their annual Christmas party at the Legion Hall on Wednesday of this week. The ladies made candy and packed fourteen boxes for East Tawas men in the service, after which gifts were exchanged among the members. On Monday evening at the regular meeting, plans were made for Christmas work. A lunch was served after the meeting by the following committee: Mrs. Marie Anderson, Mrs. Grace DeGrow and Mrs. Elvera Johnson. Table decorations were tinsel and a Christmas tree centerpiece.

Whittemore Home Destroyed by Fire

Fire again struck Whittemore Tuesday evening about nine o'clock, when the home of Basil Goupil caught fire. The Whittemore Fire Department and all residents fought the fire for some time and then called for help from Turner and Hale fire departments, who were on scene in no time and all three departments fought the fire until eleven o'clock before getting it under control.
Just the structure of the home was left with all inside damaged from water and smoke. The roof was badly damaged. All contents were removed. Many homes near by would have been hard to save had this home burned. It is thought the fire started from defective wiring. It was partially covered by insurance.

LADIES LITERARY CLUB

The Ladies Literary Club met at their club rooms Wednesday afternoon. At the regular business meeting, presided over by Mrs. Arthur Johnson, plans were made to purchase an electric coffee urn. The program for the afternoon was in charge of Mrs. H. E. Hanson. Readings appropriate to the Christmas season were given by Miss Helen Applin and Mrs. Herbert Hertzler. Piano elections were given by Kay Evans and Christine Moehring.
Refreshments were served from a lace covered table decorated with a silver Christmas tree with colorful ornaments and white candies in silver candelabra. The hostesses were Mrs. R. G. Schreck, Mrs. Roual LaBerge, Mrs. Victor Marzinski and Mrs. Henry Klenow.

Tawas Hospital Association

The December meeting of the Tawas Hospital Association was held Tuesday evening at the home of Mrs. J. D. LeClair.

"The recount emphasized the necessity of members of election boards attending a school of instruction held at the county seat immediately prior to each election," states County Clerk Russell McKenzie.
