Truman, Attlee Outline Program Of 'Peace Without Appeasement'; Korean Picture Remains Serious

(EDITOR'S NOTE: When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of Western Newspaper Union's news analysts and not necessarily of this newspaper.)

The four men above have concluded a conference that may become known as the last stand of democracy. For five days, President Truman and Prime Minister Attlee (seated) conferred on the present world crisis. President Truman was advised by Secretary of State Acheson and Secretary of Defense Marshall (standing). Peace without appeasement was the theme of the conference.

ATTLEE-TRUMAN:
A Joint Statement

President Truman and Prime Minister Attlee concluded their historic five-day conference on the theme of "peace without appeasement". It was impossible, however, to evaluate the results of the meeting in the light of swiftly moving events. It suffices to say the two nations gained a clearer view of mutual problems and possible future action.

A 10-point statement was issued at the conclusion of the conference:

1. Economic and military aid to the non-Communist nations in south-east Asia will go forward despite the Communist onslaught against Korea.
2. The United States and Britain "will act together with resolution and unity to meet the challenge to peace which recent weeks have made clear to all."
3. "We are in complete agreement that there can be no thought of appeasement or of rewarding aggression, whether in the far east or elsewhere."
4. Although both Nationalist China and the Chinese Communist regime are reluctant to let the U.N. consider Formosa's future, "consideration of this question by the U.N. will contribute to peace and security."
5. The U.S. opposes and continues to oppose admission of Red China to the U.N. while Britain "considers its (the Red Chinese) representatives should occupy China's seat." But they are determined this split will not hurt their "unified effort."
6. "Every effort" must be made to end the Korean fighting by peaceful means but only "on the basis of a free and independent Korea."
7. If the Chinese Communists reject peaceful negotiation, the U. N. must "decide" what to do, with British and American support.
8. The U.S. and Britain are in "complete agreement" on the need for immediate action by the 12 North Atlantic pact nations to intensify their defense preparations.
9. The two nations must expand arms production as quickly as possible and continue to work out arrangements for sharing the defense burden.
10. A supreme commander for the combined North Atlantic armies should be appointed soon.

Appointment

Joseph H. Short, Jr., veteran Washington correspondent, was named presidential press secretary following the recent death of Charles G. Ross. Short is being congratulated by Stephen T. Early who acted as press secretary until Truman filled the post.

KOREA:

What's the Next Move?

The military picture in Korea was still serious. The U. S. eighth army withdrew successfully from North Korea and established defense positions below the 38th parallel and north of Seoul. The first marine division, British units and small groups of U.S. army troops reached Hamhung after a 50-mile retreat in sub-zero cold.

The first marines thus escaped the Communist trap sprung by six divisions, but not without heavy casualties. Although no official totals were announced, military observers estimated the marines suffered as many as 6,000 killed and wounded.

What is the next move, observers were asking themselves? Several things were possible, including a defense line at the 38th parallel and an all-out battle, a small beachhead around Inchon and Seoul which could be held with the aid of navy support, and evacuation of all U.N. troops from the peninsula.

General MacArthur was of the opinion that U.N. troops could hold off heavy Chinese attacks for the time being, but warned in effect they could not do it for long.

The general seemed to be saying the same thing that had come repeatedly from the fighting front—that the Chinese must be halted politically or the Allies strengthened in Korea before U.N. troops can hold out for any length of time.

Rumors had circulated in the United Nations that the Chinese would stop their offensive at the 38th parallel. No official statement was made by the Reds, however, and most observers did not expect them to do so.

One ugly fact could not be denied by the free nations of the world: Communist China, if it wants to spill enough blood, can probably throw the U.N. armies out of Korea and into the sea. It is a humiliating prospect.

U.S.A., 1951:

What's in Store?

With 1951 but a few days away a number of observers paused long enough to ask the question of what is life in the United States going to be like during the coming year, assuming we have still managed to avert a third world war?

The assumption that the U. S. will not be involved in war during 1951 is taking the optimistic view of world events. But if that should be the case, the future shapes up something like this:

Cost of living will be higher, perhaps by as much as six per cent, even with price and wage controls.

Food will be ample, including luxuries, at higher prices. When incomes are high, people not only eat more, but eat better.

High grade wool for clothing will be scarce and nylon goods will be in tight supply.

House furnishings quality will deteriorate, and some items will not be available.

Automobile production will be far below 1950's eight million or more.

There should be enough gasoline to go around, but the quality is likely to be somewhat lower.

There will be more jobs than job-hunters and most workers will be working longer hours.

Taxes will be a good deal higher for individuals and corporations. An excess-profits tax is almost certain.

Consumer credit controls will be tougher, meaning larger down payments even than now and shorter payment periods.

All of which means, according to the experts, a lower standard of living for the average American and an austerity program for the country generally.

HARRY GOLD:

End of Sordid Story

The end of the sordid story of Harry Gold, 40, confessed member of a Russian espionage ring, was written in a U. S. court. He was sentenced to 30 years in prison.

After the trial, Gold said in a statement that he had made a "terrible mistake" and added that he had received the "most scrupulously fair trial and treatment."

"Most certainly," he said, "that could never have happened in the Soviet Union or any of the countries dominated by it."

Gold admitted during his trial of turning over to Soviet agents vital defense secrets and data on atomic research obtained by British scientists Dr. Klaus Fuchs.

The convicted man said he was concerned over the fact that "those who mean so much to me have been the worst besmirched by my deeds—my country, my family and friends, my former classmates at Xavier University (Cincinnati) and the Jesuits there, and the people at the heart station of Philadelphia General Hospital.

BUSINESS:

Record Investment

The commerce department in a recent report said American business plans to invest $4,800,000,000 in new factories, machinery and other equipment during the first quarter of 1951, setting a record for that season.

"On the basis of preliminary returns, if plans for the year as a whole are realized, 1951 capital outlays will be higher than in any previous year," the department said.

The present full-year record, $19,230,000,000, was established in booming 1948. In 1949, a recession year, expansion outlays fell to $18,100,000,000. 1950 is expected to be about the same as last year.

The report also showed a sharp pickup in business spending for new plants and equipment since the outbreak of the Korean war last June.

If plans uncovered in the department survey are carried out, expansion outlays in the first quarter of 1951 will be 30 per cent above the first quarter of 1950. All major industries will be contributing to the increase.

Stabilizer

Michael DiSalle, mayor of Toledo, O., was named by President Truman to serve as director of price stabilization. The post assumed increasing importance with continued rumors that price-wage controls would be clamped on in the near future.

ACCIDENTS:

442,970 Killed

Automobiles slaughtered more Americans in the past 14 years than have been killed or fatally wounded in all the wars in U. S. history including latest available casualty figures from Korea, reported the Northwestern National Life Insurance company.

In the same period automobiles injured 13 times as many Americans as wounded in all United States wars.

ASK REDS HALT AT 38th PARALLEL . . . Representatives of four of the 13 nations who appealed to the Chinese Communists to halt their offensive at the 38th parallel huddle at a session of the general assembly. Seated are Lambertuse Palar, Indonesia, and SA Benegal Rau, India. Standing: General Carlos Romulo, Philippines, and Myanung Tin, Burma. General Romulo denounced Soviet claims that Chinese Reds fighting in Korea are volunteer units. He said, "All the official information that has come to us from the front confirms the presence of Communist troops and exposes the fiction of volunteer troops."

VOTES CHINESE AGGRESSION ON AGENDA . . . In an extraordinary meeting at Lake Success the U.N. assembly turned aside Soviet opposition and voted 51 to 5, with four abstentions, to include Communist China's intervention in Korea on its agenda for "urgent consideration." Delegates to the session are shown during intermission in an informal conference. Left to right in the group are Arne Sunde of Norway; Sir Gladwyn Jebb of the United Kingdom, Kenneth Younger of the United Kingdom, and Jean Chauvel of France. The man whose back is directly to the camera is Ernest Gross of the U. S. delegation.

BUFFALO HUNTER . . . He'll celebrate his 80th birthday soon, but Dale Bumstead, Peoria, Ariz., rancher still was spry enough to bag one of the largest buffalo bulls ever killed in the southwest, as Arizona's 1950 state-supervised buffalo hunt opened for more than a score of hunters. Hunters were allowed to keep one quarter of the meat and the head and hide. Bumstead's kill dressed out at more than 750 pounds and was estimated to weigh more than 1,000 pounds on the hoof.

ROYAL BRIDEGROOM . . . King Maharaajadhiraja Gyanendra of Nepal was wed recently to the granddaughter of the hereditary premier of Nepal. Here the king gives a salute. He became king when his grandfather was deposed.

PARTNERSHIP DISSOLVED . . . The partnership of French General de Latre de Tassigny (left), commander of Western Union ground forces, and Field Marshal Viscount Montgomery, chairman of the commanders in chief of Western Union forces, seems to be at an end with the appointment of General de Latre as supreme French military and civilian chief in Indo-China. It is believed this is first step to dissolution of Western Union.

NAVY HERO AND GIRL . . . Navy hero, Bob Zastrow, shows his fiancée, Miss Junette Pfeuhler, where he scored Navy's first touchdown against Army. It was his playing which enabled underdog Navy to down West Point, 14-2.

Old Time Democrats

WITH THE OPENING of the 82nd congress, we can hope for and expect a reversal of the socialistic trend that has dominated legislation since 1932. It will be a Democrat-controlled congress, but legislation enacted will be along the lines of the Jeffersonian Democracy, the brand of Grover Cleveland and Woodrow Wilson, rather than that of the New Deal or the Fair Deal.

Southern Democrats, the Dixiecrats, are the dominant element of the 82nd congress. In coalition with the Republicans, they are in a position to say what legislation shall pass. The President asked for a Democratic congress. The voters gave him one, but they did not give him a socialistic Fair Deal congress. It is a coalition of southern, Jeffersonian Democrats and Republicans that is in control in both the senate and house. A Presidential veto can prevent the repeal of any legislation now in effect, just as a Presidential veto could stop the enactment of new laws that are unsatisfactory to the executive. The strength of the Southern Democratic faction lies more in what it can prevent than in what it actually can do. It can prevent the passage of any additional socialistically inclined legislation, it can prevent any further encroachment on our free enterprise system.

Whether or not the 82nd congress is to provide the economy we have hoped for will depend largely on the Republicans. There are enough economy-minded Democrats in both senate and house who will vote for any economy measures, decreased appropriations for bureaucratic pay-rolls, and other needless expenditures, but such measures must be Republican-led and Republican supported if they are to be successful. It is purely a question of will the party leaders sanction the cutting out of jobs they expect to fill in 1952. They had a more definite opportunity in the 80th congress but did not improve it.

The 82nd will be a congress whose legislative action will be more in keeping with the ideas of Jefferson and Jackson, than with F.D.R. or Truman. From the conceptions of Democracy of the Jeffersonian Democrats the American people have never had any reason to fear. They stand for strict interpretation of constitutional government; they would uphold every right of the states; there is nothing that savors of socialism in Jeffersonian Democracy. And that is what we may expect during the two years of the 82nd congress.

So long as we can have conditions such as those we now seem to be facing it should not make any difference to the majority of the American people which party proves successful in the 1952 elections. It is probable that before the next presidential election the Jeffersonians will have recaptured the control of their party and its machinery, and the nation will be on an even keel, with the old parties in normal operation for the first time since 1932.

There are a number of the old Jeffersonian Democrats both in the house and the senate; there are others who have only been lukewarm Fair Dealers. It is from these classes that the southern Democrats will recruit the strength needed for the recapture of the party. When and if they do, it will be fully representative of Jeffersonian and Jackson Democracy, from which we would not have to fear the welfare, socialistic state that would make mendicants of our children, or the purchase of the constitutional rights of the states through federal appropriations. That, alone, will represent heavy savings in the matter of government costs.

It is not one car, but two, for every garage.

On the evening of Nov. 28, Secretary of State Dean Acheson used several thousand words, 30 minutes of radio time, and over-abundance of his cultivated English accent, and said nothing. He left our foreign policy as much up in the air as his past mistakes, or worse, have placed it. He made no effort to explain or apologize for his past mistakes, or worse, but intimated that the same policy would continue. The President says Acheson will continue as secretary of state.

We need such a crusade against national wasteful spending that our representatives in the congress realize their jobs are at stake if they do not stop it.

Each one of our 27 million families must pay, as an average, $2,000 each year as interest on our national debt.

While the United Nations debate, General MacArthur's hands are tied, and American soldiers die.

FARM BUREAU

Farm Bureau Speakers Rap Controls

Speakers at the American Farm Bureau Federation convention in Dallas, Tex., said the American farmer doesn't want either price controls or rationing.

Federation President Allan B. Kline said, "Price control does not control inflation. It is the handmaiden of inflation. It covers up." He suggested higher taxes as an inflation control.

E. Howard Hill, Iowa Farm Bureau president, said polls in his state show the people don't want rationing. He also said "price ceilings do not control inflation in the least."

H. H. Alp, director of the federation's poultry division, said an advisory committee "recommends that there be no price ceilings and no rationing."

Social and Economic Problems A Part of UCPA's Big Battle

This is the second of two articles on the United Cerebral Palsy Association, Inc., and the work to which the organization is dedicated.

Last week's article gave a short history of UCPA, the year-old organization that is doing everything in its power to help palsy stricken children.

The cause of cerebral palsy is unique in that it is a crippling which strikes with mathematical ruthlessness, here, then there, at the very inception of life.

Ten thousand times each year the same scene occurs, tragic because when the mother and father discover their baby is palsied there is so little in the way of help.

Since it is not a disease, we do not need to worry about a germ.

microbe or virus. But the cold statistics of cerebral palsy strike fear into the hearts of parents awaiting the birth of a child.

The disability of cerebral palsy also is found at the opposite end of the life span.

UNTIL COMPARATIVELY recent years, the human race all over the world considered itself helpless to fight this great unknown malady.

Vicious as has been the effect on the relatives, it doesn't compare with the injustice to the sufferers.

An idea of the huge economic waste may be obtained by simple multiplication. The most conservative estimate of children born with cerebral palsy in the United States is 200,000.

The actual bill is much more, because there are 10,000 new babies born with cerebral palsy each year.

But this is only part of the cost. The rest is in heartbreak and broken homes.

"Theatre Guild on the Air" will continue, this new year, to present outstanding theatrical successes as magnificently as in the past.

It Takes a Youngster to Tell Rose About Show Business

By BILLY ROSE

One of the actors I recently interviewed for my television show was a young fellow named Bill Ferguson.

"Haven't I seen you in something?" I asked. "If you didn't blink," said the youngster, "you might have noticed me in the chorus of 'South Pacific.'"

"No, I left it a few months ago to try my luck at television." "Show business is a tough racket," I oracled.

"Doesn't sound like too good a beginning." "It wasn't," said Bill, "but we figured there wasn't any point moping about it—the important thing was not to be separated. So when the show went up to New Haven to break in, I went along with it and, as luck would have it, I landed a job as waiter in Casey's Chop House.

CHANGE OF PACE

By Willard Olvan Persing

"I don't care if you have to buy a sawmill to get that lumber, just see that it gets there today!"

Mike Clanahan slammed the phone back on its cradle, mumbling to himself about young pups who quit trying as soon as they'd heard 'No' mentioned a time or two.

The slender, black-haired girl, sitting on the corner of his desk, grinned at him. "Pops, if everyone bulled their way through like you do, there'd be quite a crop of cracked heads."

As he looked up at his daughter, Mike's face softened into a smile. "Something on your mind, Cathy?"

"Yes, but I think this job is a little too delicate for your methods." She stared out the window for a moment before continuing.

"James refuses to marry me," she said. "Now, he's decided that it's better if we don't even see each other any more."

"Refuses to marry you!" The windows rattled as Mike came up out of his chair. "Why I'll—"

Cathy's frown put Mike back into his chair. "That's what I mean about your methods. I'd like to have enough of him left to carry me over the threshold."

"Why won't he marry you?" "Rich girl, poor boy. He says he won't have it appear that he married me for my money."

Mike stared thoughtfully at her. "You really love him, don't you?" Cathy nodded her head.

"All you need," Mike said as he leaned back and stared at the ceiling, "is just a diamond-studded, fourteen-carat miracle."

"That's a thought to cheer a girl's heart," Cathy gave her father a wry glance. "That is, if you have an extra miracle you won't be needing for a few days."

"Pops, please don't try anything," Cathy said. "Your tactics are about as subtle as those of an old billy goat."

MIKE CLOSED HIS eyes and studied a moment. "I could arrange for a high-salaried job to fall his way."

"Pops, please don't try anything like that. If he found that we had a hand in it, he would probably leave town. Your tactics are about as subtle as those of an old billy goat."

"All right, so I'm not in the habit of pussy-footing around," growled Mike. "What are you going to do?" "Same as I have been doing. Argue some more and try to wear him down."

"That settles that," Mike stood up and absently walked over to get his hat and coat. "You want me to drop you off at home? I've got to run over to the hospital."

"Yes, Zeke, the fellow who owns the newsstand down on the corner, thinks he's going to die, and I thought some company might cheer him up."

Cathy frowned. "He must be the one who has been giving me some competition. James spends two or three nights a week, playing chess and arguing politics with some old fellow named Zeke."

Mike stopped and stared at Cathy. "Come on," he said hurriedly, "if I don't get a move on, visiting hours will be over before I get there."

The windows were still rattling from Mike's conversation when he slammed the phone back into its cradle and glanced up at the young woman who was struggling to keep the exasperated expression on her face.

"Mike Clanahan, I thought you were asked to keep your strong-arm tactics out of my love affair." Mike grinned up at her. "What do you mean?"

"You know very well what I mean." Cathy's stern expression broke into a happy laugh. She came around the desk and kissed him on the forehead.

"But I still don't know—" "Don't play innocent with me. Having Zeke leave everything to James was a stroke of genius. But what I want to know is how you managed to get forty-seven thousand dollars in old bills hidden in Zeke's room."

"Did it work?" Cathy held her left hand up in front of Mike's face. A diamond on the third finger twinkled merrily at him.

Center of Life

Lesson for December 31, 1950

SCRIPTURE: John 15:1-10; Galatians 2:20; Philippians 3:18-19. DEVOTIONAL READING: John 15:1-12.

HOW does a Christian grow? During the past three months this has been our underlying question. Now at the year's end we come back to the point where we began: to Jesus Christ.

"I Have Been Captured" In your hymnal you may find a hymn by the author of the better-known "O Love that will not let me go." It begins with these lines:

"Make me a captive, Lord, And then I shall be free..." That sounds upside-down. Captive and free are opposites, aren't they? Not when God is the captor!

People who have gone far in music would understand this. Take two young people, both of whom know something about music, maybe both of them in the same music school.

MIKE CLOSED HIS eyes and studied a moment. "I could arrange for a high-salaried job to fall his way."

"Christ Lives in Me" HERE is a more intimate way of putting this. It is true, the Christian has been "captured" by Christ. But this would still leave him on the outside.

Christ in the Christian means that in every situation, in every condition, at every turn of the road, in the everyday choices and conversations, the Christian will be as much like Christ as he possibly can.

"Abide" "ABIDE in me and I in you," said Jesus. That is a command and a promise. But the command comes first.

Christ never yet battered his way into any one's life. To know him as an occasional visitor is doubtless better than never knowing him at all.

HOGMANAY

St. Andrews' Day Touches off Scots' New Year Doings

The celebration of St. Andrew's Day touches off a series of Scottish celebrations that reach their peak at New Year (Hogmanay) and continue with little respite to Burns' Day on the 25th of January.

Few national festivals occasion more uninhibited gusto over more of the world's face. From Houston to Hong Kong, Scots of all vintages dream of haggis, heather, highlands and the skirl of bagpipes.

One of the most engaging customs of Hogmanay is the ancient rite of "first-shooting" in the "wee sma' hours" of New Year's morning.

Assuming that the "handsel" is in liquid form, the head of the house takes the first drink and then passes the bottle round the family.

What happens after this is your own responsibility, but the Scots themselves ward off indigestion with music and dancing (with a capital D).

Those "not to the tartan born" may wonder why the Scots lay such stress on the New Year, rather than Christmas.

New Year, 452 B.C. Celebration of New Year's Day on January 1 began in Rome in 452 B.C. and therefore, contrary to logical reasoning, had nothing whatsoever to do with the birth of Christ.

New Year Evokes Many Superstitions There are a number of old superstitions and customs that have been observed for centuries and have come down almost to this day.

Robert Burns' Auld Lang Syne New Year Boon

"Auld Lang Syne" has become such an integral part of our modern New Year's eve that no celebration, however gay, would be complete without it.

The music sheets for those nostalgic strains simply say "Robert Burns—Scotch Air," and Robert Burns generally is supposed to have written it after he had settled down on a farm and taken himself a wife, following the sweeping success in 1778 of the second edition of his "Poems."

In a letter to George Thomson, a publisher, Burns explained: "It is an old song of olden times, which has never been in print. I took it down from an old man's singing."

Modern scholarship has discovered that Burns was wrong when he told Thomson "Auld Lang Syne" never had been in print.

Further, the original song often has been credited to Sir Robert Aytoun (1570-1638). Aytoun was one of the earliest Scots to use the Lowland dialect as a literary medium.

Regardless of its original author or origin, it was Burns who gave "Auld Lang Syne" its immortality. And though the bells now welcome the New Year with joyous peals symbolizing mankind's hope for a bright future, the nostalgia of "Auld Lang Syne" summarizes an inherent reluctance to leave the security and friendship of the past and embark upon a future which, however promising, may not be more pleasant.

"Drink a cup of kindness yet For Auld Lang Syne."

GREETINGS... Some people sit around in night shirts, house slippers, and with their hair up in curlers waiting for the New Year. This picture is submitted as evidence to prove that other persons take a different view of the matter. Well, everyone to his own taste.

Tokyo Is Converted Into Green Forest Six Days Every Year

For the first six days of every year it has been the custom of the Japanese to convert Tokyo into a green forest.

On each side of the gate of every household that can afford it will be pine trees and bamboo, while ropes of rice straw and other decorations will grace the lintel.

The third of this trio, the plum blossom, signifying womanly virtue, is not used in the out-of-doors decorations, but is within the house.

There are a number of old superstitions and customs that have been observed for centuries and have come down almost to this day.

In some parts of England and Scotland it is supposed to be unlucky to leave a house until some outsider has first entered it.

Astonishing Results Produced by New Arthritis Treatment

NEW YORK, N. Y.—A new blood plasma treatment for arthritis victims is reported to be producing astonishing results.

A group of patients crippled with rheumatoid arthritis for several years have been restored to normal buoyant life following the administration of plasma taken from mothers 48 hours after childbirth, it was reported.

The group, seven women and one man, told a tale of suffering for years, many of them spent in wheel chairs or lying helpless in bed. Then they demonstrated their recovery by a series of calisthenics, including rope jumping.

The plasma method, which in many respects yields results even more striking than those obtained by cortisone and ACTH, was originated by Dr. Louis W. Granirer, associate physician in charge of the arthritis clinic at the Queens general hospital, Jamaica, N. Y.

The most remarkable effect of the plasma, Dr. Granirer reported, is its apparent long lasting effect. Whereas the effect of cortisone and ACTH wears off generally in a few days or weeks, the effect of plasma has so far appeared to last for as long as 24 months without recurrence of the disease.

The plasma also appears to have other important advantages over cortisone and ACTH. One is the availability of the plasma in large amounts as compared with the two hormones, which are still relatively scarce—and therefore expensive. The other advantage lies in the fact that the patient does not have to be hospitalized.

Another advantage, is the complete absence of any kind of side effects, such as sometimes result from the prolonged use of cortisone and ACTH.

One-Man Strike Leaves Town in Timeless State

ROME, Italy—The town of San Vito al Torre in northeastern Italy doesn't know what time it is—all because of one man.

He is Ferdinando Miani, 70, sexton and church clock winder, who went on strike for a pay increase.

The town's clock on top of the belfry is stuck at 2:45. Laborers sleep late in the morning, husbands arrive home late for dinner. All this for Ferdinando's strike. Explaining why he asks a pay increase, Ferdinando said:

"How can the mayor expect that a man of my age and skill should climb 250 steps daily for $1.10 a year?"

Dead Python Vindicates Worker Who 'Saw Snakes'

SOUTH SAN FRANCISCO, Calif.—A number of San Francisco street cleaners still have the shakes.

Recently a couple of cleaners tipped over a big, fat, twenty-foot python at the city dump. It was dead, sears and blisters indicating it had perished from burns received in a recent grass fire near the dump.

Where the reptile had come from was not established. But after its surprised finders, Joe Diaz and Adolph Soldani, had turned it over to the fire department, they got the shakes. They realized it had been in the vicinity for at least two months and perhaps longer.

About two months before Joe Mortensini, working at the dump, came staggering up to fellow employees to gasp:

"A snake, a big green snake, bigger than any I ever seen, he chased me and I threw rocks at him and he kept chasing me."

Mortensini and Soldani and other workers remembered that Mortensini quit his job after being kidded by other workers. That gave the workers the shivers and made them nervous.

All employees recalled also that about a dozen dogs had disappeared mysteriously near the dump. This might be the sleek appearance of the python.

Electronic Brain to Help Develop Guided A-Missiles

PRINCETON, N. J.—A $1,400,000 electronic brain designed to help develop guided missiles such as a rocket-borne atom bomb has been unveiled by the navy.

It is the largest and most accurate electronic computer ever built to evaluate the performance of guided missiles and to aid in the air production of American cities.

Officials at the R.C.A. laboratories, who built the computer for the navy, said it is expected to "save many millions of dollars in the design of guided missiles and also solve many riddles encountered in the air defense of our cities."

$1,500 Venice Lace Cover Adorns a Holiday Table

NEW YORK—What was likely the most elaborate of the many table settings exhibited in New York stores during the Thanksgiving season was in Lord & Taylor's linen shop.

The cloth, ten feet long and fashioned of point de Venice lace, was on a table set for thirty-six diners. Originally made for the United States Embassy in China, the cover, with four dozen matching napkins, was offered for sale at $1,500.

Good Coffee

During one of Senator Vest's campaign tours in the early nineties, it was necessary for him to sojourn overnight in the town of St. Charles, Missouri. The best hostelry the place afforded was poor enough, and at breakfast Vest was especially put out by the stuff that was placed before him for coffee.

After having sampled the beverage, Vest with a frown called for the proprietor. When that individual had appeared, the senator asked, with a wave of his hand toward the offending liquid smoking innocently before him: "Sir, what is this stuff?"

"Coffee," meekly replied the proprietor, somewhat taken aback. "Coffee!" repeated Vest, in fine scorn: "my friend, I could insert a coffee bean in my mouth, dive into the Missouri river, swim to the town of Alton, Illinois, and I'll guarantee that one could bail up much better coffee than this, sir, over the entire route!"

Majority Rules

Stepping out between the acts at the first production of one of his plays, Bernard Shaw said to the audience:

"What do you think of it?" This startled everybody for the time being, but presently a man in the pit assembled his scattered wits and cried: "Rotten!"

Shaw made a curtsy and melted the house with one of his Irish smiles.

"My friend," he said, shrugging his shoulders and indicating the crowd in front, "I quite agree with you, but what are we two against so many?"
