The fumes ignited spreading to the can which exploded.

This was her fourth year in club work and her third in Food Preparation.

Beverly Shellenbarger of Hale received a Foley Mfg. award thru her Food Preparation work. She prepared tempting dishes such as chocolate pudding, escalloped potatoes, creamed carrots and Tuna fish salad, twenty-two times to add to her 4-H Club experiences. Melba Sheffer was awarded her gift through her baking activity. Without question this young lady has done one outstanding job. WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS

A State of National Emergency Is Proclaimed by President Truman; Russia Threatens Western Europe

(EDITOR'S NOTE: When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of Western Newspaper Union's news analysts and not necessarily of this newspaper.)

Chinese Communists in the mountains of central North Korea prepared for another big sweep down the middle of Korea (broken arrow). Meanwhile, 60,000 United Nations troops were evacuated from the Hamhung-Hungnam beachhead after withdrawing from the Yalu river.

EMERGENCY: Near-War Footing

With a series of proclamations and executive orders, President Truman put the nation on a near-war footing. In a world-wide radio address the President proclaimed a national emergency and told the American people they must pay higher taxes, work longer hours, and give up many civilian goods to speed up the defense program.

"Our home, our nation, all the things we believe in, are in great danger," the President said in his address.

"The future of civilization depends on what we do—on what we do now and in the months ahead."

He announced the administration would impose some wage-price controls and bring 3,500,000 men under arms "as soon as possible."

- 1. Compulsory price ceilings "at once" on items essential to defense production and the cost of living.
2. Voluntary ceilings over rest of the economy of publishing "fair standards of prices and wages."
3. To provide the necessary materials for defense production, a "cut back on many lines of civilian production" and expanded output of steel, copper, aluminum, electric power, and agricultural commodities.
4. Workers to labor more hours.
5. Still further taxes.
6. Federal spending for non-defense purposes slashed "to the minimum" in the fiscal 1952 budget.

Within hours after the declaration of a national emergency, the President created the Office of Defense Mobilization by executive order. The new office was given unprecedented power with full authority over civilian agencies already at work building United States war strength.

The automobile industry protested the price roll-back and stopped the sale of some makes. Observers did not believe the protest would carry much weight in Washington.

Most observers believed the President had set the stage for further drastic curbs. There is no doubt but that a speed-up in rearmament—to suit the quickening tempo of the Kremlin time-table—will cause economic injuries. Some people are going to lose jobs. Some business men are going to lose money. And all Americans are going to find life a lot tougher.

Some observers believed it may be necessary to cut back civilian production as much as 30 to 50 per cent before war production can go into high gear.

WAR FUNDS

House Approves Huge Defense Measure

The house approved and sent to the senate a "first installment" defense appropriation amounting to $17,809,304,424. The Senate was expected to act on the bill within a matter of days.

The huge appropriation included $16,845,181,000 for the army, navy and air force—exactly what President Truman asked. The atomic energy commission got $840 million

Marines

The first truckloads of U. S. 1st marine division are shown above as they rolled into the area near Hamhung after their 12-day battle to free themselves from the death trap set by Chinese and North Korean Communists near the Changjin reservoir.

EUROPE: Reds Threaten

The Soviet Union did not say exactly what it would do, but in notes to Great Britain and France warned that the rearmament of Germany would not be tolerated. The threat brought a new feeling of crisis to western Europe.

The Kremlin sent notes to Britain and France which asserted:

- 1. Arming of Germans by Atlantic allies would violate the Potsdam pact of 1945.
2. Western Germany's inclusion in the Atlantic pact setup would invalidate Russia's alliance treaties with Britain and France.

A number of observers were asking if the Soviet warning wasn't the kind Red China made—and later fulfilled—as United Nations forces crossed the 38th parallel in Korea. Others, however, do not think the Communists are ready for all-out war.

The note is having its effect on western Europe and may slow down the execution of defense plans.

London described the Soviet note as a "patently tactical device" timed to coincide with the Brussels meeting.

MARSHALL: Opposes Full Mobilization

Defense Secretary Marshall is reported opposed to full mobilization now because there is still "a hope" that World War III may be averted.

Marshall's careful appraisal of the powder-keg world situation was given to a house appropriations subcommittee at a secret hearing. However, Marshall said he also believes that the United States must build up its armed forces to just-short-of-war footing as swiftly as possible because "a single word" from the Kremlin could start the holocaust at any time.

The defense secretary did not say exactly how far he believed U. S. mobilization should go. But he said the present goal of 2,771,000 men under arms by next July 1 must be increased substantially.

UNITED NATIONS: Political Stalemate

Although there was much less tension in the capitals of the world diplomats at the United Nations continued to work feverishly in an attempt to head off a world-wide conflict. No workable solution for stopping the Korean war had been found, however, and the organization seemed locked in a political stalemate.

Russia declared that all foreign troops, including Chinese Communists "volunteers," should be withdrawn from Korea, but voted against a cease-fire proposal which the United Nations political committee approved by a vote of 51 to 5.

Russia's delegates harked again and again to the argument that the cease-fire formula was aimed at "saving the skins" of western troops—at providing a "breathing spell" during which Gen. Douglas MacArthur's forces could "reform their ranks" in preparation for a new attack.

The general assembly went ahead with its cease-fire plan by naming a three-man committee to seek the truce. Most observers believed they would not succeed.

ACHESON: Ouster Demanded

Secretary of State Dean Acheson flew to Brussels for a meeting with representatives of the Atlantic pact nations amid renewed pressure on the home front that he be fired from the state department.

The latest move for his ouster was made by senate and house Republicans. There was no White House comment on the Republican resolution.

Administration officials, however, reported President Truman was "absolutely determined" to stand by Acheson for the reason that he has served him exceptionally well. Some quarters reported the President considered the attack on Acheson to be an attack on the administration's foreign policy.

Acheson was reported to have said he would not resign and that he was making the Brussels trip because he felt the European peoples needed to be reassured that the United States is determined to help build up their defenses.

Some political observers expressed the opinion that the Republican demand for Acheson's ouster was timed badly. It was pointed out that lack of unified political support for Acheson in congress might embarrass him in relations with Atlantic pact foreign ministers.

RAIL TIE-UP: Walkout Called Off

Under pressure from President Truman, the federal courts and their own union officials, more than 10,000 striking rail yard workers ended their crippling three-day strike that caused one of the greatest freight stackups in the nation's history.

The strike ended without any wage settlement, although representatives of the railroads and four rail unions got together for joint bargaining talks at the White House.

The strike had caused mountainous stacks of Christmas packages to be bottled up in post offices and stranded in freight cars. War shipments had been halted in transit. Some railroads had curtailed passenger train schedules.

The union had demanded a 40-hour week at pay they received for 48 hours—the same benefits which were awarded previously to one million nonoperating workers.

A presidential fact-finding board recommended a 40-hour week, but at pay boost of only 18 cents. The union's demands amounted to 31 cents.

Contest

The Pillsbury baking contest was held at the Waldorf Astoria with housewives from throughout the nation competing for thousands of dollars in prizes. Mrs. William E. Brebner of Des Moines, Iowa, (left) is showing the Duke and Duchess of Windsor a little thing she whipped up and called "The Thing," after the current whacky song.

CHURCHILL: No Foolish Promises

Former Prime Minister Winston Churchill warned the western powers against the argument "that we must never use the atomic bomb until and unless it is used against us first."

"The argument is now put forward that we must never use the atomic bomb until and unless it is used against us first," Churchill said. "In other words, you must never fire until you are shot dead."

PRAY TO HALT FLOW OF LAVA . . . Praying reverently before a statue of the Madonna in order to save their homes and possessions from a heavy flow of lava erupting from Mount Etna are residents of Milo, Italy. The city is built on the slopes of the volcano. The statue was carried by the townspeople from the village church right up to the edge of the advancing lava (background). Hearts became lighter and hopes rose when the seemingly inexorable flow finally changed its course and lessened the threat to the people's homes. Their prayers appeared to have been answered.

TRAFFIC HINDERS UNITED NATIONS' RETREAT . . . Southbound traffic of the United Nations' retreat from Pyongyang under heavy communist attack proved too much for this narrow Korean road with the confusing result pictured here. Army trucks of the U.N. forces and other military vehicles are jammed together, bumper to bumper, in a traffic jam which extended for miles. The tieup blocked the escape route of U.N. men and materials southward for many hours and much of the equipment had to be pulled over to the side of the road and abandoned. In other sections, the retreat was carried out with clocklike smoothness.

CAUGHT WITH PANTS DOWN . . . This Korean youngster is resuming his pants after he put the Taedong river between himself and the Communists when thousands of civilians fled from Pyongyang. These North Koreans, who had lived in the North Korean capital when the Reds were in power, fled the city when U.N. troops withdrew. They had seen communism in operation and preferred the icy trip over the Taedong to living under the Red masters.

PROTEST REDS AT U. N. . . . Members of the Chinese Consolidated Benevolent Assn. picket the U.N. general assembly at Flushing Meadow, N. Y. In protest to the presence of the Chinese Communist delegation to the United Nations on the grounds that the Red China delegate, General Wu Hsiu-Chuan, and his committee are not acting in the interest of the Chinese nation and have no right to speak in the name of the Chinese people.

TEMPORARILY UNEMPLOYED . . . Capital punishment has been abolished in Western Germany, so this guillotine is now rusting in a West Berlin jail basement. It has lopped off many heads and its only service now is as a museum piece.

WON'T COOPERATE . . . Gambler Joe Adonis refused to answer pertinent questions in Washington's senate crime committee inquiry and his citation for contempt of congress was recommended. He displayed "lack of cooperation."

THE HOME TOWN REPORTER IN WASHINGTON. WALTER SHEAD, WNU Correspondent.

Veto Is Not Legal

THERE IS A tremendous hue and cry in congress and from other sources based on a fallacious premise that our nation, through our delegation to the United Nations, should veto seating of the delegation from Communist China in the security council or even in the general assembly of that body.

There is little doubt but that if this were possible that is just what the United States would do. But as a matter of fact, under the rules of the United Nations, the veto of a delegation from a nation already a member of the United Nations is not permissible. We can use our veto against them, and will, no doubt do so. But the seating of a delegation from a nation already a member is merely a procedural process and not vetoable under U.N. rules.

For instance, in the case of Spain, or any other nation, not yet a member of the UN, this country, or any other country could use the veto to prevent membership. But China is not only a member of the U.N., but also is a member of the security council, hence under U.N. rules the seating of the delegation representing China is a matter of votes for or against. So no matter how we detest Communist China or any other Communist nation, although we refuse to recognize the government of Communist China, we have only one vote, and not a veto in the matter of seating the Chinese delegation. This rule of procedure was set up in the UN in 1946, the member nations recognizing the fact that if the veto applied to delegations of nations which already were members, any change of administration, for instance in this country, could bring about an ouster of the American delegation, or any other delegation; or following the rule to absurdity, a delegate from any nation by use of the veto could keep himself perpetually in office.

Secretary of State Dean Acheson explained this rule of the UN to a congressional committee recently, but still it did not stop the charge against him of softness toward Communists by some who insist on making Acheson a whipping boy. And further, his explanations got little publicity so that the people of this country could understand the situation.

Food and Drug Laws

The Cooperative League is conducting a very worthwhile campaign to amend the food and drug laws to require the labeling of chemical and other contents in food, insecticides and fertilizer. It is making its campaign mainly on bread and fertilizer, which cooperatives produce and label. But under present law the triple rich white bread manufactured by coops may be banned because it contains more food value than required by the food and drug act. For instance, this coop bread contains, and is so labeled, 2 per cent wheat germ, 8 per cent milk solids and 6 per cent high-protein soy flour. The bureau of agricultural research reports that the average white bread on the market contains only 1 1/2 per cent milk solids, whereas the National Research Council urges at least 6 per cent and the coop bread contains 8 per cent. The league wants all bread labeled as to its contents. But if projected standards go into effect the triple rich bread is too good to be sold in interstate commerce when the food and drug administration says the top limit is 3 per cent soy and 1 1/2 per cent wheat germ.

Washington Silhouettes

Washington Silhouettes — The White House looks barren and deserted . . . windows boarded up . . . scaffolds and workmen's shanties adjacent . . . trees protected by barricades . . . it is in process of a $5,000,000 modernization program. The Washington National Guard armory is probably the largest such building in the world . . . a regulation football field could be laid out in its auditorium without touching a post or pillar . . . the Cafritz building on Eye street, just completed, office building and garage. A business man could drive to his floor and park within ten feet of his office door. The Pentagon building has parking space for 30,000 cars . . . If you, by any chance, think prices have not risen, the department of commerce says that business inventories at the end of October amounted to 58.8 billion dollars, an increase of 3.8 billion dollars since September 1.

At the same time the census bureau says that government debt, federal state and local, has risen from 273.6 billion dollars a year ago to 281 billion today. Federal debt is up 4.6 billion dollars and state and local 2.8 billion. State and local debt amounts to 23.6 billion. So you owe $1,865 in government debt—$1,708 per capita in federal; $122 of local government and $35 for state obligations. While we are on this subject prepare for stiffer individual income taxes on all income levels. The 82nd congress will do it.

Lonely Isles

The remote British islands of Tristan da Cunha, in the far South Atlantic, are known as the "lonely isles." World War I was nearly over before news of its outbreak reached inhabitants of these islands. Years passed before the islanders heard of the armistice. By contrast it was through World War II that Tristan da Cunha began losing its isolation. In 1942, a secret meteorological and radio station was set up there by the British royal navy and the South African air force.

FARM FACTS
from your County
Agricultural Agent

By Harold R. Clark, County Agent

Iosco County's first Farmer's Day is just two weeks off. It is to be held at the Whittemore Community Building, Tuesday, January 16. It will be something like the old Farmer's Institute that the old timers tell me about when specialists from the college would come up and gave a series of lectures on better farming methods. Sometimes local farmers would give a talk on a subject they were considered an authority on. I remember when I was a youngster down in Isabella county had an institute which was held in the Methodist Church. A local German farmer, who had been rather successful in raising hogs was one of the speakers. He said in broken English "Ven der hair shines, you know dey are all right." It seemed that everyone went to the institute—at least the church was packed. In those days in this county, William Latter used to be the chairman of the institute. He has mentioned it to me several times wishing that we would again have the institute.

Most of the arrangements for this Farmer's Day are just about completed. The topics to be discussed by the specialists are soils, farm crops, and agricultural economics. For the ladies, and men too, we will have a cooking and ironing demonstration. E. D. Longnecker and D. L. Clanahan will discuss soils and far crops while D. B. Varner will discuss the farm business and its outlook. Miss Mary Bodwell will point out some of the factors in buying chicken and give demonstrations in preparing for the pan, roaster or oven. The ironing demonstration will be given by an appliance representative.

The day's program will start out with a movie, "Waves of Green," at 9:30 a. m. Special arrangements have been made with local organizations to serve quick inexpensive meals during the noon hour. At one o'clock the Whittemore High School band will give a short concert. Drawings for door prizes will be made at the close of the program. Merchants are offering the prizes, and they are good ones too. Exhibits in house hold appliances, feeds, dairy and poultry equipment, milking machines and other new gadgets will be set up by merchants of the county. The US DA Council will have educational exhibits.

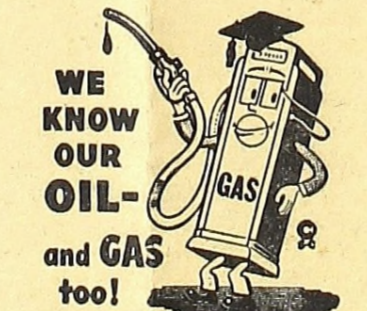

The Whittemore community building is an excellent place to hold such an event. It has a capacity for 500 to 600 people and affords adequate parking facilities. You will hear more about Farmer's Day next week.

Use of Kerosene
Misuse of kerosene, or coal oil, particularly in rural areas, causes hundreds of deaths each year. One common and dangerous practice is the use of kerosene to speed up a slow fire. Kerosene vaporizes when poured into a warm stove, and this vapor may explode, igniting clothing and furniture in the room. Kerosene should never be used to start fires.

CONSUMERS POWER FEATURED IN CORONET

The current issue of Cornet Magazine features an article about Consumers Power Company, which serves this community and hundreds of others in outstate Michigan.

Called "Courtesy by the Kilowatt," the article relates a good deal of the story of the growth and acceptance of electric power in rural Michigan, and says that the Company serves most of the Lower Peninsula of Michigan on "the principle that each of its more than 900,000 customers is also a friend."

"No service to its consumers is too big, or too small, to warrant the attention of this multi-million dollar power company," Coronet adds.

Kent Sagendorph, author of numerous magazine articles and books, including a history of the University of Michigan a biography of Stevens Mason, Michigan's first governor is the author of the story. Sagendorph details instances of services bordering on the heroic have been rendered by Consumers employees in emergencies throughout the state.

The Company's program for rural electrification is also outlined and Coronet tells how Consumers worked with Michigan State College in the 'twenties to demonstrate the economic soundness of electricity on the farm. Today the Company serves 99 per cent of all farms in its service area.

Mrs. Arnold Pomerantz is spending a week in Saginaw with relatives.

KEEP FARM RECORDS URGES H. R. CLARK

If you are not keeping records in your farm business, Harold R. Clark, county agricultural agent, suggests you start on January 1. Each year more farmers in Iosco county are discovering that a good record book is one of their best paying investments, the farm advisor reports.

Why keep farm records; Michigan State College agricultural economists say up-to-date farmers need them to:

1. File the income tax return.
  2. Find strong and weak spots in the farm business.
  3. Determine whether the farm business is making a profit or loss.
  4. Make wise adjustments in the farm business.
  5. Aid in obtaining credit.
  6. Make periodic settlements between landlord and tenant.
  7. Settle insurance claims in case of wind or fire.
  8. Keep adequate records to comply with Social Security Law.
  9. Determine net worth from year to year.
  10. Maintain a permanent record of farm operations.
- Account books suited to Michigan farms may be obtained from your local county agricultural agent, or by writing directly to the Agricultural Economics Department, Michigan State College, East Lansing.

Presenting the New 1951

Cadillac

Far More Beautiful... Gorgeous New Interiors... and an Even Finer High-Compression Engine!

TODAY, we are privileged to present the new Cadillac for 1951—finer and more wonderful from every conceivable standpoint. . . . Numerous refinements in exterior design have made it more lovely to behold—while wholly new interiors, so rich in fabric and tailoring that they defy description, impart a sense of luxury that is simply beyond compare. . . . And, oh, the things that have been done to make it more gentle to handle—and more comfortable to ride in! The changes in this regard are manifold—and the results are a revelation. The car's quietness is now akin to silence; driving is all but a response to your wish; comfort leaves literally nothing to be desired. To ride or drive is to relax—and to rest. . . . The great master engine has also been refined—down to the smallest details. Its voice is closer to a whisper; its power application is faster; and it's even smoother in operation. . . . And there is an even finer Hydra-Matic Drive—with a new reverse for easier shifting, and for "rocking" the car in sand or snow. . . . There is new steadiness on the road—better balance on turns and curves—easier and softer braking. And throughout the chassis are vital improvements which add to endurance and dependability. . . . All in all, here is new lustre for the Cadillac name—and a far higher standard for the automotive world. . . . There are ten distinctive body types and four individual series—the "Sixty-One," the "Sixty-Two," the "Sixty Special," and the incomparable "Seventy-Five". . . . Why not come in and see them today? We'd be most happy to see you—and we are certain you'd find it an interesting and enlightening experience.

OUTLAW GUNS

BY E. E. HALLERAN

THE STORY SO FAR:
Dan Frazer, arriving by train at Caliente Junction on his way to Mesa Verde, boards a stagecoach for the last phase of his journey. With him on the stage are two other passengers, a dapper, pompous little man and a lovely young girl whom the stage driver calls "Miss Helen." They too, are going to Mesa Verde, a little copper-mining town close to the Mexican border. Five miles from Mesa Verde, a shot rings out and brings the stage to a halt. Masked men appear, guns in hand, and force the passengers to alight from the stage. One of the men proceeds to take their money and valuables. The bandits, however, seem strangely disinterested in the loot.

She considered this silently and once more there was a break in the conversation while the stagecoach crawled across the mesquite flat and threaded a narrow valley where some very pretty cedar brakes provided a welcome relief to the eyes after so much barren rock. Finally she half turned to face Frazer, her glance enigmatic as she remarked, "I suppose we ought to know each other. We'll probably be called on for evidence, you know. I'm Helen Bartell and I live in Mesa Verde. My father runs the general store there and has some other interests, mostly in mines along the border."

CHAPTER II

A new voice broke into the proceedings at that point. From somewhere high on the rock ledge above the trail a man yelled, "Git that mail sack down—and shake it up! Git the chore done!"

The smaller bandit stirred restlessly but did not take his attention away from the three people in front of him. He even contrived a mocking little bow as he addressed the girl. "Sorry to bother ye like this, ma'am. I reckon ye kin git back into the wagon."

He waved his gun airily as he spoke and turned his attention to the stage driver, ordering the little man to toss the mail bag to the ground. The bag came down, accompanied by the bristling comments of the outraged older, and once more the two bandits went into whispered conference. Oddly enough they seemed most interested in the contents of the wallet which had been taken from the older passenger. Even more odd was the way they ignored the sheaf of yellow-backed bills and studied the cards and papers which were there.

Bandits Wantonly Shoot 'Neat Little Stranger'

The voice on the high rocks came again, stridently urging. "Use yer eyes, ye loco numbskulls. The fancy one. Git him!"

Suddenly the pair by the trail started back toward the coach, the larger bandit lagging back a little and keeping his gun aimed in the general direction of the driver. The smaller gunman was within two paces of the standing trio when he barked, "Don't pull that gun!" The words faded under the blast of his six-shooter, two quick shots booming in rapid succession. The girl screamed once, but choked it off quickly as the bandit turned his bronc and galloped for the shelter of the ledges.

Frazer made two quick moves when he realized that the bandit was going to shoot. His violent shove sent the girl staggering away from the center of action just as the gun roared, then he sprang forward grimly, intending to make one desperate effort to pull the gunman from the saddle. The plan miscarried when the outlaw whirled and retreated so hastily.

Frowning perplexedly he turned to look down at the man who had been the target for those two unprovoked bullets. The neat little traveler had collapsed in a heap against one of the coach's rear wheels, his body almost in a sitting position. The sag of the head and the bloody shirt front told the story, however. The man was dead, two bullets having driven squarely into his heart.

There was nothing to be done for him, so Frazer swung to face the girl. She had gone down as a result of his shove but was up again now, limping a little but interested only in the fate of the unfortunate man against the wheel.

He knelt beside the body and went gingerly through the pockets of the now dusty pepper-and-salt-suit. The search disclosed nothing but a new deck of cards, some loose coins and a small black notebook. The book contained no names, nothing but a series of figures which seemed to be an expense account. So he put everything back where he had found it, standing up to find the girl's dark eyes intent upon him.

He knew he should keep his own role as inconspicuous as possible, but he could not forbear asking a question. "Are you sure you don't know who this man was?"

She shook her head. "Of course not. Couldn't you tell by the questions he was asking that he was a stranger?"

"He sounded like it—but I can't understand why he was killed if he was not known in this country. I'd say that the whole job was staged for the purpose of killing him."

"I agree. But I'm sure he was a stranger. It must be that the murderers were also strangers to the region."

"But they knew about Petey's deafness," he pointed out. "And I'd bet that the big one is someone you would recognize."

"How do you make that out?" she flashed, her resentment almost as quick as the driver's had been.

Frazer smiled faintly. "Think back. The big man was noisy enough at the start. He was giving the orders. Then he discovered that you were in the coach. So he shut up in a hurry and turned the job over to his partner. He wasn't afraid of my recognizing him—and he certainly wasn't concerned over being recognized by the man he certainly proposed to murder. It was you who bothered him. Can you recall how his voice sounded before he took precautions to disguise it?"

He turned briskly to face the driver who had replaced the mail pouch in its proper place. This time he remembered his drawl as he raised his voice. "I reckon we better load this poor fellow into the coach, Petey. We can all ride on the seat, can't we?"

The driver nodded glumly, letting his glance rest momentarily on the dead man. "Dam' funny hold-up," he commented. "Them bandits didn't pay no attention at all to this hombre's money. All they was lookin' at in his wallet was his papers. Do ye reckon the whole shebang was framed to git him?"

Frazer, Helen Speculate On Reason for Attack

"We think so," Frazer told him briefly. "We'll help the lady up to the seat and then we'll load this poor critter into the coach. No use havin' her stand around to watch the job. It ain't purty."

"Thanks for your considera-

The smaller gunman was within two paces of the standing trio when he barked, "Don't pull that gun!"

"And don't bother to put on that dialect for my benefit. I noticed that you didn't talk that way when you were excited."

He wanted to kick himself for his lapse, but instead he simply tossed her a quick, mirthless smile. "Brains as well as beauty," he commented. "And discretion as well, I hope."

"I accept the hint," she retorted. "At least until such time as I understand more."

He helped her to the driver's seat and returned to lift the victim to the coach. Then the two men climbed to the wide seat and the coach rolled on down the rocky grade toward the mesquite flats which spread before them.

It was the girl who broke the troubled silence, her words indicative of the clarity of her thinking. "Do you still think this hold-up was engineered in order to give those men a chance to do murder?"

Frazer nodded. "Looks like it to me."

"Then how do you account for the fact that the killers did not recognize their proposed victim?"

"The question had been bothering him, but he did not tell her so. 'Didn't they know him?' he countered."

"Of course they didn't. They were puzzled right from the start, uncertain even after they examined the papers in his wallet. It was only when that third man shouted at them that they seemed to make up their minds."

"Then you think the third man knew him?"

"No. He'd have spoken sooner if he had not been in doubt. I think it happened this way. The plan was to murder a man who was scheduled to be on the coach today. Usually this stage doesn't have passengers. The outlaws were surprised to find three people on the stage, two of them men, and they did not know which man was the intended victim."

"You really figure things out, don't you?" Frazer smiled. "Have you decided why the third bandit didn't show himself?"

"I think so. He must be someone whose physical description is outstanding enough so that he would have been recognized by Petey even though he wore a mask. So he stayed out of sight."

"Sounds reasonable," Frazer agreed. "The man carried a notebook which had a lot of figures in it. I'd guess he was a man who had an expense account to keep. A traveling salesman or an agent of some kind."

Russians Claim Discovery May Be Key to Life

NEW YORK—Russian scientists now claim a discovery which they say may even help science create life from nonliving matter.

The purported discovery is in how living cells—of plants or animals—are formed. It has been given official Soviet blessing.

However, Robert C. Cook, editor of the Journal of Heredity, published by the American genetic association, says the theory is "complete nonsense and a 'part of a gallop back into the middle ages or before' by Soviet party line science."

Russians Add Link
The Russians say, yes, this happens, but that they have found something new in addition. The new thing, they claim, is that some living cells come from tiny living particles which are not cells. The cells generated by these particles are different from ordinary cells and form a vital part of the new plant or animal.

These particles may be "a connecting link" between living and nonliving matter, claim articles in Soviet newspapers.

Soviet biology is approaching the solution of the great problem of the processes of qualitative changes in nature and the transformation of nonliving matter in living. This problem can be solved by the Marxist-Leninist philosophy and used the methods of materialists dialectics, the articles declare.

Credited to Woman

The theory also offers support to Soviet claims that wheat has been changed into rye by grafting plants together. The strange particles supposedly figure in bringing this about.

Prof. O. B. Lepeshinskaya is credited with the discovery. The Articles say Prof. Lepeshinskaya has found "proof" that the tiny mysterious particles can become cells, under the right conditions. She is said to have photographed tiny grains of white matter in the yolk of birds' eggs, tracing their development into cells.

Prof. Lepeshinskaya first published her findings in 1945. But in 1948 leading Soviet scientists, who believed in cell division, tried to suppress her views, the article said.

The articles do not say what happened to these men, but says they "held" leading posts at the time, and "were" the leaders of the Histologists' scientific society.

The articles bitterly attacked "American imperialism" and one hailed Stalin as the "great coryphaeus (chorus leader) of science."

'Never Say Die,' Is Motto Of Dog 'Dead' and Buried

CHICAGO, Ill.—Brownie, a five month old dog, strayed into the home of Albert Herman in suburban Calumet City and was adopted by Herman's four young children.

Then one day the dog was hit by an automobile and seriously injured. Mrs. Herman rushed him to a veterinarian but he was out of his office. She decided to put the dog out of its misery.

A neighbor took Brownie to a wooded area and fired one shot at the animal's head. Then he placed the dog in a shallow grave and covered the body with sand.

The next day, Mrs. Herman said, Brownie showed up at her back door—whining. She again rushed him to a veterinarian who soon had him patched up.

Splints were removed from the dog's fractured left hind leg recently. He's frisky and playful—with only a slight limp. The vet said that the bullet fired by the neighbor had ricocheted off Brownie's skull without inflicting serious injury.

Jesus' New Year Lesson for January 7, 1951

SCRIPTURE: Mark 1:1-20. DEVOTIONAL READING: Isaiah 42:1-9.

THERE is no room in this one thin column for a commentary on the whole Sunday school lesson each week. If the reader is interested, as it is hoped he will be, he will first study the Bible passages themselves, with whatever aids his own denomination furnishes him. The Sunday school teacher or Bible student who wishes to do really thorough work will need a Bible Dictionary and at least a one-volume commentary on the entire Bible. (Dummelow's [Macmillan Co.] and the Abingdon Commentary [Abingdon Press] are among the best of these.) As a background for the studies of the next three months, the student should read one or more good "Lives" of Christ. Write to your own church bookstore for suggestions.

When Is New Year's Day?

EVERY day is a New Year's Day for somebody. The legal holiday that goes by that name seldom comes at a real turning-point in any one's life.

The real occasion is when some momentous change occurs, so that after that day life never flows in its old channels. In this sense, a very important New Year's Day for Jesus was the day when he was baptized in the Jordan river.

Before that day he lived as a carpenter in one village; after that day, as a public man, indeed THE public Man of all times. The pattern of his life completely changed.

Decisions
NEW YEAR'S is a good time to review three things: your decisions, your life's work, and your friendships.

Have you put off a decision for a long time? Now is the time to face it. Have you been making "unfortunate" decisions, choices you regret? Now is a good time to look into these and see why you have been taking the wrong road too often. Have you any bed-rock principle on which you base all your decisions? — Jesus' New Year was marked by certain decisions made once and for all.

To begin with, there was his baptism. One thing it surely meant: Jesus that day decided deliberately to be counted among those who need repentance rather than among those who think they don't. Not everybody came down to the Jordan to be baptized. Some came only to criticize. Jesus sided with the sinners, not the critics. It was a life-long decision. He became known as the "Friend of sinners."

There were also the further decisions in the wild country where he went through his temptations. Each temptation faced Jesus with a choice; each time his choice was on God's side.

Life's Work
THERE is a great thrill in setting out on the work one is going to do for the rest of one's natural life. Out of the harbor traffic on to the open sea! Jesus now becomes a preacher, and this was his work for the rest of his life. His carpentry has long since moldered to dust; his preaching and teaching are immortal.

But suppose Jesus had been a slipshod, inefficient, careless carpenter? Would he have ever become a great teacher and preacher? It is quite true, the products of his shop have vanished, but there was something taking shape in that shop which did not vanish: his character.

Your choice about your future and final life's work may still be in the future; your best work may not yet have been begun. But the way you do what you have to do, today, will help set the pattern for every choice and every work in your life.

Friendships
NEXT after Jesus' life-work came his choice of friends. No doubt he had known Simon and the others before, and Mark simply records in his abrupt way the climax of a long story, in telling how Jesus "called" them.

We cannot imagine Jesus without his disciples. It is not exaggeration to say that even the Son of God would have been a failure, as a man, had he won no friends. There would have been no Christian religion if Jesus had had no friends.

Around New Year's time it is well to ask oneself the question: Am I as careful in selecting my friends as Jesus was in selecting his?

Home Spending

TO BE SURE, THE TAXES we pay to the federal government are our greatest tax expense, but in many states, the state, county, school district and municipality run the federal government a close second. In California, for example, the average amount paid in taxes for each resident of the state, men, women and children, is $423.00 per year. That was the figure for 1949. In California, it has reached a point where owning a home is considered a liability, and it has seriously affected real estate sales.

In Los Angeles a home building concern is offering two-bedroom homes in a new subdivision on a monthly payment plan, with— for veterans—no down payment. The homes are new, each are equipped with all late conveniences, landscaped, all water, gas, electricity and sewer connections, streets all paved, sidewalks laid. Such homes sell for as low as $40 per month, plus only the item of taxes. Despite it all sales are not easy.

That item of taxes is the sticking point. Each year they increase, and no one can say where they will stop. Despite the need for housing, people are afraid to buy. Ten years ago the taxes paid for each individual—each man, woman and child, averaged only $138.00 in California.

In many counties of the state the boards of supervisors and the city councils are doing proportionately as much, or even more, wild and reckless spending than congress. They spend for anything that is desired, with no thought given as to what is needed, or what could be done without in these exceptional times. And the people go right along electing and re-electing the same group of spenders, those who are spending the people's money and making necessary the raising of the people's taxes.

Some day the public may awaken, call for a reckoning, and install some new faces, who, at least, could not do a worse job. A house-cleaning time in our local government is in order, quite as much as in congress. We are in need of savers, not spenders.

The enactment into law of the remaining recommendations of the Hoover commission for the reorganization of the executive departments will produce a far-more simplified form of government, much easier for citizens to deal with, at a saving in cost running into many millions of dollars, without loss of efficiency. The 80th and the 81st sessions of congress enacted the needed legislation covering some 50 per cent of the recommendations, and the other 50 per cent is a job for the 82nd congress.

It is a subject that needs leadership, a leadership the Republicans can well afford to provide, and for which they would receive support from both the southern faction of the Democrats and those of the New Deal and Fair Deal faction. The enactment of the needed legislation is in no way considered a partisan issue, but the party that can claim credit for its accomplishment will be paid off by the voters in the 1952 elections. Such legislation will be almost universally popular with the voters of the nation.

It provides a painless method to some considerable extent of reducing government spending without any loss in efficiency. The best evidence that it will receive presidential approval, regardless of who promotes the legislation, is that President Truman asked for such legislation of both the 80th and 81st sessions of congress. The way each citizen can help in securing that remaining 50 per cent of the Hoover commission recommendations is for each one to tell his senators and his representative that he wants and expects their votes for it. It is a thing for which each voter can make a demand without, in any way, becoming involved in a partisan squabble. And right now—to say—is the time to do that.

The farmers, the workers, the small retail merchants, not the cocktail party giving residents of the expensive apartments and the mansions of the big cities, are the representative Americans, and Secretary of State Dean Acheson with his carefully tailored clothes isn't.

The later years of a long and busy lifetime are the shortest. They speed by like a Diesel powered streamliner, too fast to count the telegraph poles.

It would be well for congress to ascertain what the nations of Europe do with the money this country provides.

If the people would stand for it, the Fair Deal would make mendicants of our children as the price of votes.
