

TAWAS CITY

Elks Jump Back Into Win Column

Defeat Hale 60 to 48; Hosts to Oscoda this Friday Evening

The Tawas City Elks, after a three week vacation, jumped back in the win column Tuesday night, with a hard fought 60 to 48 win over Hale. The Elks last encounter was December 19, when Mio beat them on the Oscoda County team's home court.

The Elks came out on the hardwood Tuesday evening with a reputation being a "hot team" in the first half and then cooling off in the last half, being forced to play a defensive brand of a game. This jinx resulted in some close scoring games. In the tilt against the same trouble when they racked up 16 points in the first quarter to Hale's 10. At the half the Elks led 33 to 21, hitting the hoop for 17 points while Hale garnered 11 in the second quarter. The second half found Hale narrowing the 12 point lead, with both teams hitting for 27 points. The Elks racked up 14 points in the third and Hale 10, while in the final quarter the Hale cagers outscored Tawas City 17 to 13.

Big guns in the Tawas City line-up were Marv Gingerich with 22 points and Barry McGuire with 22. Shellenbarger led the Hale squad with 18 points and Mosseau followed up with 12.

The Elks Junior Varsity met their "Waterloo" the same evening when the Hale reserves dropped them from the undefeated ranks, 43 to 37. The reserve team was gunning for their fifth win in a row.

The Hale squad outscored the reserve team in every quarter but the final, when they hit for 11 points while Hale had eight.

Gary Humphrey and Dwayne Wright led the Tawas City team with 11 and 10 points respectively. Following them were Bob Scarlett with six, Rollie Gackstetter, five, E. Herriman three and Harry Morley two. D. Webb and Guest led the winning Hale team with 14 points each.

Tonight the Elks will play host to the Oscoda Owls at the local auditorium. Next Tuesday the Elks will tangle with Rose City here.

Ice Fishing on Tawas Bay

'Perchville' Taking Shape For Season

30 to 40 Shanties to be On Ice for Fishermen This Week End

"Perchville," the community that thrives on plenty of ice and cold weather, out on Tawas Bay, is rapidly beginning to take shape again this year, reports Harold Gould, the father of the idea of the village. It was reported yesterday that between 30 and 40 shanties will be out on the ice for down-state fishermen to use this weekend, and it is expected that there will be 50 or more shanties on the ice by next week.

The ice fishing village, sponsored by the Tawas Chamber of Commerce, proved to be a mecca for fishermen from the entire state last year. Perchville gained national recognition last winter when an article by Joe Clark, H. B. S. S., of Detroit appeared in Life magazine. In a recent letter to Neil Thornton, of the Herald, Mr. Clark stated "this is the third time that the Perchville story has appeared in a national magazine. (Life, U. S. Camera and Farm Quarterly), and the "Fishery View" has just been chosen by the U. S. Camera Annual as one of the world's great pictures of 1950. He goes on to say that "Perchville is the place to ketch good pitchers."

A two page spread of pictures by Outdoor Editor, Kedrick Kimball appeared in the Detroit News last winter. Frank M. Beck of the Ford Times will be here with a writer and photographer this weekend for an article on Perchville for the next issue of their magazine. Bob Blair, of Cleveland, will come up by plane next week end to take movies for NBC television. Blair's movies on Perchville over NBC last year were transmitted in Detroit. Several former residents of Tawas now living down-state, reported they had quite a thrill in seeing the folks back home on television.

The new Perchville "City Hall," operated by the Chamber of Commerce, was completed this week. The shanty, which measures six feet by seven feet was built by Joe Pfeiffer's crew at the Huron Rustic Lumber Co., owned by Harry Westrich. This shanty will be a general information booth, with Floyd "Shorty" Ketcherside in charge.

SUPERVISORS MEET MONDAY

The January meeting of the Iosco County Board of Supervisors convenes next Monday.

Mrs. Anna Fuerst

Anna H. Fuerst was born in Detroit January 24, 1882, and died at the home of her niece, Mrs. Ella Brevil on January 1, 1951 after a long illness.

She was united in marriage to Otto Fuerst in 1904. They resided on a farm south and west of Whittemore most of their life, until failing health they sold the farm and moved to Whittemore where she has since resided. Last April she fell at her home and suffered a fractured hip. Since then she has been confined to bed. She was taken to the home of her niece Mrs. Ella Brevil over four months ago, where she has been a patient sufferer until her death.

She was a faithful member of the Methodist church and of the Whittemore Chapter O. E. S. She was loved by all who knew her.

She is survived by her husband, Otto Fuerst, one sister, Mrs. Bertha VanMeer of Detroit, one brother, Paul Spielvogel of Mio and several nieces and nephews and a host of friends.

Funeral services were held from the Methodist church Thursday afternoon, January 4 with Rev. Roland Brooks officiating. Burial was in the Latter Day Saint Cemetery.

Outside relatives who attended were Mr. and Mrs. W. VanMeer and son, Lewis, of Detroit; Mr. and Mrs. P. Spielvogel of Mio; Mr. and Mrs. Leo VanMeer of Alma; Mr. and Mrs. Lester McLean of Flint; Mr. and Mrs. William Fogelsinger of Harrisville and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Chippis of Prescott.

287 Prisoners Were in Iosco Jail During 1950

Two hundred eighty-seven prisoners were in the Iosco county jail during 1950, according to a report issued by Sheriff Ivan O'Farrell. These represented law enforcement work of the sheriff's department and arrests made by the Michigan State Police.

The charges included: 21 Felonies, 169 misdemeanors, 67 vagrants, 19 arrested for other Department, nine mental cases and three arrested for parole violations. Out of 21 charged with Felonies, 20 were convicted. Out of 168 arrested for misdemeanors, 10 were convicted.

The sheriff's department transported two prisoners to Jackson prison and made 18 trips to mental institutions.

The department wrote 80 traffic summonses, and issued 1800 traffic warnings.

Operators and chauffeurs licenses issued during the year numbered 3950.

Other work included: 152 guns registered, 6 guns confiscated, 196 civil processes.

Youth Admits Writing Two Extortion Notes

To be Arraigned Before Judge Dehnke Saturday

David Parent of McIvor was released under $1,000.00 bond following his arraignment Monday before Justice John Bolen of East Tawas. Parent, following his arrest Friday, admitted writing extortion notes to two Iosco residents. The arrest was made by officers from the Iosco county sheriff's department and State Police. Parent is 20 years old.

The youth will appear Saturday before Judge Herman Dehnke for circuit court arraignment at which time he will make his plea.

Prosecuting Attorney R. J. Barnett was informed Wednesday by the United States District Attorney's office that they do not intend prosecuting for use of mails in this case in view of prosecution by the state under the Michigan extortion act.

The extortion notes which brought young Parent into trouble were written to Nathan Barkman of East Tawas demanding $10,000.00, and Harold Ulrich, a Reno township farmer, in which Ulrich was ordered to leave $5,000.00 in a fruit jar at the culvert near the intersection of the Sand Lake and Meadow roads. Ulrich was ordered to leave the money on December 21 or January 5, and not later than January 7. The Barkman note was mailed July 20 through the East Tawas postoffice. Barkman was also ordered to leave the money in a fruit jar in the culvert.

WALTER REED, WNU Correspondent

A Blow to Unity

THERE IS NOT one of you who would not see the country ruined if you could turn out Seward.

This was the wrathful answer of Abraham Lincoln to the Republicans of his day who were urging upon him the dismissal of Secretary of State William H. Seward.

And even as this cabal sought to disguise its action by inserting a clause pleading fullest cooperation with the President and the administration, there is no way to hide the blow to the nation's unity in this time of national danger.

Sen. Alexander Smith of New Jersey declared his fellow Republicans might mislead the world as to "the fundamental unity of the American people."

The facts are, these Republican members of the congress are seeking to culminate their pre-election campaign to "get Acheson."

There is little doubt but that this campaign shook the confidence of many people in the country concerning Dean Acheson for it offered the people and these GOP leaders a convenient scapegoat for fears and criticisms of our foreign policy.

Loyalty Is Strength

President Truman can either ignore, or do as President Lincoln did, tell them exactly what he thinks of them. The house does have the power to impeach for cause, and the senate tries an impeachment brought by the house.

"Because our freedom is in danger, we are united in its defense. Let our aggressor think we are divided. Our great strength is the loyalty and fellowship of a free people."

It would be helpful, however, to see some of that loyalty and fellowship exhibited right now in the congress.

Washington Silhouettes

At a recent press conference by Margaret Truman the men were supposed to be seen and not heard with the women reporters doing the questioning.

Farm Receipts Up

Cash receipts from farm marketing in November were $3.3 billion dollars, 14 per cent more than a year ago.

Also farm real estate advanced four per cent from July to November in contrast to a three per cent decline during the same period in 1949 with the east north central states showing the largest gain.

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS

Truman Rejects Hoover Demand For a New U. S. Foreign Policy; Allies Approve Army of 750,000

EDITOR'S NOTE: When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of Western Newspaper Union's news analysis and not necessarily of this newspaper.

Here is another view of a section of the city corridor through which the first marines fought their way to the Hamburg beachhead.

HOOVER:

A New Foreign Policy

Herbert Hoover demanded a new foreign policy for the United States in a major radio-television speech.

The former president's speech created a buzz of controversy in Washington. Democratic officials called it "rank isolationism"

This is how Mr. Hoover saw the situation: "It is clear continental Europe has not in three years of our aid developed a unity of purpose and that will power necessary for its own defense."

"It is clear that our British friends are flirting with appeasement of Communist China."

"It is clear that the U.N. is in a fog of debate and indecision on whether to appease or not to appease."

He then went on to outline his seven "principles and action" for American policy:

- 1. Preserve "this western hemisphere Gibraltar."
2. Hold the Atlantic and Pacific oceans, seeking the cooperation of Great Britain.
3. Arm our air and naval forces "to the teeth," free Japan and help her rearm, and stiffen the defenses of Formosa and the Philippines.
4. Reduce other expenses, balance the budget, and roll back inflation.
5. Aid other nations that show "spirit and strength" in defending themselves against the Communists.
6. No appeasement anywhere, "no more Tehrans and Yaltas."
7. Watchful waiting in Europe pending its own development of "unity and will" to resist aggression.

Much of the criticism against Mr. Hoover's proposals centered around the belief that the Pacific and Atlantic oceans can be made a defense line.

The President said the Atlantic pact nations had shown they "mean business" about setting up a common defense and asserted the protection of western Europe was vital to United States security.

"Let there be no mistake," Truman said. "The unity of the nations of western Europe and the North Atlantic area is vital to their security and ours."

He then announced that soldiers of pact nations—presumably including U. S. troops—will be training together "within the next few weeks."

CIVIL DEFENSE

House Votes Plan to Build Shelters

The house voted 247 to 1 a civil-defense plan that would cost an estimated $3,100,000. More than two thirds of the total amount would go for bomb shelters.

The plan was sent to the senate and quick approval was expected. A somewhat similar program had

EUROPE:

Army of 750,000

The 12 Atlantic pact nations pledged themselves to try to match America's partial war mobilization. They pledged themselves to build an unprecedented international peacetime army of 750,000 men to stop Communist aggression.

The council concluded its two day conference in Brussels with the issuance of a formal communique which included:

- 1. Establishment of an integrated force under centralized control and command. This force to be composed of contingents contributed by the participating governments.
2. An order to United States, Great Britain and France to start negotiations with the Germans to persuade them to agree to cooperate with the west in limited rearmament.
3. Creation of a new defense production board "charged with expanding and accelerating" rearmament; it will supersede the Atlantic powers old military production and supply board.

It will be many months however before General Eisenhower will have anything more than a token force. But observers agreed that at last the western powers have gotten down to the serious business of building a defense against communism.

CHRISTMAS:

A False Gaiety

The world—that part which still celebrates the Birth of Christ—went all-out for Christmas 1950, but it was a false gaiety. Those parts of the world where there was no strife could not forget that men still died believing in the dignity of man and the principle of freedom.

But people tried to make it a merry Christmas in many lands. In the United States department stores recorded near record sales.

Frenchmen, even while many of them feared it might be the last Christmas before World War III, sent sales records to new heights in the stores, buying for feasting and giving which would hide from their children the frayed nerves of their elders.

Britain, too, was determined to put the best face on matters and enjoy the holiday.

Brussels set the tone for Belgium. The city was gaily festooned for the holiday, the mood of worry successfully hidden and the celebration testifying to Belgium's renewed economic strength.

West Germany tried to forget that she was the object of a tug of war between Communism and non-Communism. Christmas sales hit a post-war peak.

In East Germany there was no observance. There were no displays in the stores and no decorations anywhere except for a few forlorn wreaths here and there, hung up by the less timid householders.

That was the world on Christmas day—divided into two parts, one trying to be happy with a false gaiety, the other grim and foreboding.

CHINA:

Refuses to Negotiate

If the world held any hopes that the Chinese would talk peace in Korea, they were killed when China's Foreign Minister Chou En-lai said they would not negotiate with the United Nations Korean-truce team.

Chou then went on to name his price for peace in Korea.

1. Removal of the United States seventh fleet from Formosan waters.

2. Withdrawal of "foreign troops" from Korea.

3. A seat in the United Nations for Communist China.

Thus ended any hopes that the Chinese Communists would dicker with the three-man truce committee set up by the General Assembly to try to bring about a cease-fire in Korea. Peiping did not even bother to transmit a copy of its blast to Lake Success, seemingly content to let its radio demands remain the last word.

The Chinese statement contained the usual propaganda lines.

Meanwhile, a warning to China by Malcolm MacDonald, Britain's commissioner-general for southeast Asia, that they are heading for disaster caused a stir of comment throughout the east.

MacDonald said in part: ". . . Should the Chinese government stay hostile to the western nations, oppose the Asian powers who strive for eastern and western co-operation, and defy the United Nations, then we could only adapt our attitude accordingly."

Observers were quick to point out that such a statement would not have been made unless previously approved by London. It would seem a blunt warning to Peiping that Britain is getting fed up. For this reason many observers believed it was the first indication of a get-tough policy by the British.

EISENHOWER:

Concerted Effort Needed

Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, supreme commander of the Atlantic pact armies, urged Americans to settle down to a concerted effort to meet the emergency confronting this country and stop partisan squabbling over the nation's leadership.

In his first formal press conference as supreme commander, he asked for "no more business as usual, no more profits as usual, no more working hours as usual."

Observers were interested in the general's view on including German troops in the new western European army. He said he wanted his former foes included but emphasized his belief that the Germans should make their military contributions only on a "voluntary basis" to be a really effective combat organization.

"In accepting anything like that," he said, "we must be sure we are getting strength and no weakness."

Of one thing Eisenhower was positive. The nation's strength is so great that its people can do "anything in the world they set out to do."

CASUALTIES:

The Price of War

The horrible price of war was brought home to the American people with the announcement that 11,964 United States troops were listed as dead, wounded and missing from the time the Chinese Communists attacked up to December 12.

With previous defense department figures, total American casualties for the war exceeded 42,000. The report said the Chinese Reds had suffered approximately 120,000 casualties during the same period.

The defense department's last previous total of casualties, whose next of kin had been notified, numbered 36,421. These included 5,518 killed, 25,587 wounded and 5,316 missing. Of the wounded 662 died later.

Heads Agency

Charles E. Wilson, former president of General Electric company, poses for cameras as he took over his duties as head of the Defense Production Authority which has authority similar to the powers vested in the war production board in World War II.

RUSSIA:

Race of Sea Power

The Soviet Union has entered the race of sea power. Jane's Fighting Ships, the authoritative yearbook on the navies of the world, reported the Russians put into service last June a 35,000 to 37,000 ton battleship with towers for firing guided missiles.

Jane's also reported that 350 to 370 Russian submarines were believed already in service, with 120 more building.

STUDENTS RIOT OVER APPEARANCE OF ONE-TIME NAZI . . . West Berlin police are shown removing a rioter to a patrol wagon as they broke up a riot at a Berlin theater recently.

NO FORMAL REPLY FROM PEIPING . . . India's Sir Benegal Rau (seated right) tells newsmen that the Chinese Communists have replied only evasively to the appeal by 13 nations that they halt short of the 38th parallel in Korea.

A BOUNCING BELOITER . . . Bill Bartz, veteran Beloit college cager, seems to be taking his work seriously this winter. The six foot-two inch junior from Benton Harbor, Mich., is fitting into the plans of the highly-regarded Beloit team this hectic basketball season.

SHYEST GIRL . . . Posing appropriately is Christine Couture, a commercial secretary, who was chosen "Miss Timidity of 1950" at the first anniversary ball of the Timidity Club in Paris.

ENVOY COMES HOME . . . Alan C. Kirk, United States ambassador to Moscow, arrives in New York with his wife aboard the liner, S.S. Liberté. He said he is returning for consultations with the state department concerning the world war situation and possible Russian activity in the Korean dispute.

ARMY CHIEF . . . Army Secretary Frank Pace conferred recently with the senate appropriations committee on the 18 billion dollars extra the military has asked for defense. The army is going ahead with preparedness.

1,145 Farm Boys, Girls Attend 29th Annual 4-H Club Congress

Last year's 4-H Congress is history now, but it will long be remembered by 1,145 4-H boys and girls who attended the five-day affair last November in Chicago.

For the first time delegates were on hand from each of the 48 states, accompanied by 235 of their leaders. Registration lists also included boys, girls and leaders from Alaska, Hawaii, Puerto Rico, and 11 foreign countries. There were 15 visitors from Austria, 29 from Canada, Donald Sherman Brozovich, 20, of Lakewood, Colo., and Phyllis V. Bowe, 20, of Elk River, Minn., each received $300 scholarships and silver trophies from Edward Foss Wilson, right, president of Wilson Company, at the 29th National 4-H Congress in Chicago.

Star Dust STAGE-SCREEN-RADIO

JOYCE HOLDEN, Universal starlet, began her film career as a comedienne and the love interest of Jimmy Durante in "The Milkman", will be seen soon in a dramatic role in "Target Unknown". This time she plays the role of a nurse—had to spend a month mastering a German accent for the part. She traveled all around the east and mid-west in conjunction with "The Milkman", winding up the extensive tour in Chicago, where she appeared at the Harvest Moon Festival with Jose Ferrer.

Here's a chance to win a trip to Hollywood. A booth has been set up in the lobby of New York's Paramount Theatre, where Bing Crosby's "Mr. Music" is being shown, for the Christmas cards sent to him. On January 31 he will select one of the cards sent to him from all over the country, and the person who sent it will win that trip, with all expenses paid, of course.

Al Crews, production director of the Protestant Radio Commission, was formerly chief of radio for Gen. Douglas A. MacArthur in Japan. The general has agreed to let Robert Barrat impersonate him in 20th Century Fox's "An Atom of Love."

John Agar plans to make a personal appearance tour as a singer after he completes his assignment in Warners' "The Travelers". He has been taking lessons for the past year, and is hoping that some day he will sing in a picture.

Virginia Mayo and her husband, Michael O'Shea, also have plans to follow when "The Traveler" is finished. They're going to tour Arizona and New Mexico, looking for a ranch to buy, so that they can raise cattle. Maybe Greer Garson's success inspired them—her prize calf won three blue ribbons at the Albuquerque Fair, and she couldn't be happier.

John Cameron Swayze, commentator on the weeknight NBC-TV News Caravan, and well known to radio listeners, is the proud possessor of a fan letter from Bernard Baruch, who watches the show and thinks the news is presented "most intelligibly."

Yugoslavia is a Communist state—but the President has asked for $38,000,000 for food for it, on top of the $33,000,000 of emergency aid already allocated. In the March of Time's "Tito—New Ally?" we are given a clear-cut picture of life inside the country, whose 16,000,000 people share in her reputation as a homeland of fighting men, who may aid us in case of war.

Gold Tipped Cigarettes End Romance and Start Career

By BILLY ROSE

Yesterday, at one of those cocktail parties where only pedigreed olives are used in the Martinis, I met a movie actress who used to dance in one of my chorus lines back in the '30's. She was sporting a square-cut that looked like the searchlight on the old Albany night boat.

"Glad you're doing so well," I said. "You've really gone places since the days when you made a fast forty a week."

"Have I changed much?" she asked, lighting a gold-tipped cigarette.

"Well, for one thing," I said, "you never used to smoke buck-a-pack ciggies."

"You mean these Sobranies?" said the actress. "Matter of fact, I started smoking them while I was working at your club. One of your customers introduced me to them."

"Boy friend?"

"Yes, if a man in his 50's can be called a boy. Remember Big Joel?"

"The oil fella?"

"That's the one," said the star.

"Know something? I probably would be married to him today if not for these Sobranies."

"Tell me about it," I prodded.

"WELL, IT'S not much of a story," said the actress. "One night Big Joel threw a party at the Central Park Casino for a bunch of his pals—Jimmy Walker, Billy Seeman,

THE FICTION CORNER

LITTLE BOY NEXT DOOR

By Papinta J. Knowles

NEW PEOPLE were moving in the old house across the fence, and Molly went about her sewing near the window complacent with the certainty that the couple with the ten-year-old boy with whom she'd talked just the other day were not the folks moving in today.

Molly Turner had never liked children, and through all these twenty-five years she had been fortunate that none had moved next door. She felt in a way that telling prospective tenants with children the bad features about the old house had spared her an association she couldn't have endured. There hadn't been anything wrong in speaking the truth.

Molly put her sewing on a table, got up from her chair with difficulty and hobbled over to the coal stove to shake it down and put in a scuttle of coal. She had told the woman the truth about the house being drafty and needing repair, and about Frank Overton being so tight he'd never do anything about it.

She straightened and turned toward the window, and that was when she saw him: Ronnie, the ten-year-old boy belonging to the woman she'd talked to the other day. He was standing against the fence looking toward her house. Planning up his conquests of deviltry, she thought, and she groaned in sick disappointment.

She hobbled back to her chair. So they had taken the house after all! Well—some way she had to keep the brat out of her yard. There were her flowers in the spring and summer. He'd rummage in her sheds and break up things.

She glanced out of the window and saw Ronnie climbing the fence. She pulled herself out of the chair and waddled hastily to the door. "Here, here," she called to the child. "Get back in your own yard." Ronnie looked at her a second then climbed back over the fence.

Molly thought she had Ronnie settled, but the next afternoon there he was at her door.

MOLLY THOUGHT she had Ronnie settled, but the next afternoon when she went out to the shed for a bucket of coal, he came to the door.

"I'll get your coal in," he said. "Molly wouldn't look at him. 'I don't need you to get my coal in,' she said. 'Get back in your own yard. Go on, now!'"

It was the way Molly looked that caused the kid to scamper down the walk and climb over the fence as if she had actually shot at his feet.

The unpleasant incident didn't keep Ronnie away. Every day Molly had to chase him out of her yard. Every day she vowed she'd skin him alive. What kind of mother did Ronnie have that she allowed him to pester a crippled old woman like her!

But one night a blizzard came, and the town of Hanover was covered with ice. Molly just had one bucket of coal by her stove, and she dared not venture out on the ice to get more. She used the coal sparingly, and when she got down to the last shovelful, a lost, desperate kind of feeling went over her. What would she do?

Late that afternoon a knock sounded on her door, and when she opened it, Ronnie smiling up at her uncertainly.

"I'll get your coal in, Miss Turner," he said. "It's slick, 'n you might fall..."

Molly couldn't speak for a moment. She felt almost humble with shame and gratitude that he had come. "Well, I—well, that would be sweet of you," she said finally, and for the first time in all these twenty-five years of not wanting children next door, she saw the injustice of her prejudice toward them. What queer quirk in her mind had blinded her to the happiness a child could bring her?

Maybe it was because she had never looked at one—not as she was looking now at Ronnie and seeing the clear innocence of his eyes.

A smile broke across her old face. "Thank you, Ronnie," she said.

Strange, how good she felt saying it. The feeling was beautiful—one that she had waited much too long to experience.

HOUSEHOLD MEMOS... by Lynn Chambers

Barbecue the Lamb, Parsley the Spaghetti (See Recipes Below)

Economical Main Dishes

WHEN THE BUDGETS' sorely pressed, food, like every other item, will come in for its share of economy.

In expensive meat cuts, extended wisely with nourishing and filling foods like potatoes, lentils and vegetable substitutes for roasts, chops and steak.

You can add interest to meats by varying the carbohydrate (starchy) food with them, like parsleyed spaghetti and savory noodles.

Parsleyed Spaghetti with Barbecued Lamb

(Serves 4-6)

- 1 chopped medium onion
- 2 tablespoons butter
- ¼ cup cider vinegar
- 2 teaspoons brown sugar
- 1 can tomato paste
- 1½ cups water
- 1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
- Few drops tabasco sauce
- 2 cups cooked lamb, cubed
- 1 tablespoon salt
- 3 quarts boiling water
- 8 ounces thin spaghetti
- 2 tablespoons butter, melted
- ¼ cup finely chopped parsley

Saute onion in butter until tender. Add vinegar, sugar, tomato paste, water, Worcestershire sauce and tabasco sauce. Cover and simmer 15 minutes. Add lamb; simmer until heated. Meanwhile, add salt to rapidly boiling water. Gradually add spaghetti so that water continues to boil. Cook uncovered, stirring occasionally, until tender. Drain in colander. Toss with melted butter and finely chopped parsley. Serve with barbecued lamb.

Skillet Noodles and Beef

(Serves 4-6)

- 3 tablespoons butter
- 1 cup thinly sliced onions
- 1 cup chopped celery
- 1 pound ground beef
- 2 cups diced raw carrots
- 1 No. 2½ can tomatoes
- 1 cup water
- 1 tablespoon salt
- ½ teaspoon chili powder
- 1 tablespoon Worcestershire sauce
- 8 ounces egg noodles

Melt butter in large heavy skillet over low heat. Add onions and celery; saute 5 minutes. Add ground beef, stirring occasionally, until meat is brown. Add 2 remaining ingredients, including the uncooked noodles; mix thoroughly. Cover skillet; simmer 40 minutes, stirring occasionally.

Baked Sauerkraut and Frankfurters

(Serves 4-6)

- 1 No. 2½ can sauerkraut
- 2 teaspoons sugar
- ½ teaspoon caraway seeds
- 2 medium cooking apples
- ½ cup thin onion slices
- ¼ cup melted butter
- 6 frankfurters

In a mixing bowl, combine sauerkraut, sugar and caraway seeds. Place half of sauerkraut mixture in bottom of a 2-quart baking dish. Core apples and cut into ¼-inch

LYNN SAYS: Check on Food Storage To Save Money

Do not plan to keep sweet syrup on hand for long periods, as flavor deteriorates rapidly. For the time you must keep them, store in a cool dark place.

Use chicken within a day or two after purchasing, if it's fresh. Wrap loosely in waxed paper for refrigerating.

Both tea and coffee will lose flavor if they are not kept tightly covered. A cool, dry place is best for them.

slices. Place half of onion and apple slices on sauerkraut mixture; dot with butter. Cover with remaining sauerkraut mixture. Add remaining onion and apple slices. Arrange frankfurters on top. Cover and bake in moderate oven (350°) 45 minutes. Serve immediately.

Lamb Paprika

(Serves 4)

- 4 slices bacon
 - 1 tablespoon butter
 - 1 medium onion, sliced
 - 1 pound shoulder lamb or mutton, cut in small pieces
- Flour
- Pinch of rosemary
 - 1 teaspoon salt
 - 1 to 1½ teaspoons paprika, to taste
 - ¼ teaspoon pepper
 - ¼ cup canned tomato
 - ¼ cup beef bouillon
 - ½ teaspoon caraway seeds
 - 3 medium potatoes, sliced

Fry bacon and remove from pan. Add butter. Fry onion and meat, dredged lightly with flour, until golden brown. Blend seasonings except caraway seeds, with tomatoes and bouillon. Pour over meat. Place bacon slices on top of meat. Cover and bake in moderate oven (350°) for 30 minutes.

Arrange potatoes on top of meat and baste with sauce in pan. Cover and bake another 30 minutes. The caraway seeds in muslin bag and drop in center of pan before baking. Remove when serving.

*Tamale Pie

- 1 cup corn meal
- ¾ cup water
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 2 tablespoons olive oil
- 1 tablespoon chili powder
- 1 green pepper
- 2 teaspoons onion flakes
- ¼ cup hot water
- ¾ pound ground beef
- ½ teaspoon pepper
- 2 teaspoons chili powder
- 1 No. 2 can tomatoes
- ¾ cup chopped ripe olives
- ½ cup shredded cheese

Make mush of corn meal and boiling salted water. Add olive oil and chili powder. Line casserole with ½ of the mush. Fry green pepper and onions (soaked in ¼ cup water) in oil until clear. Add meat, salt, pepper, chili powder. Stir until meat changes color. Add tomatoes. Simmer till thickened. Add olives. Turn into casserole. Sprinkle with cheese. Top with remaining mush. Bake in moderate oven (350°) 30 to 40 minutes.

Apple butter spoils readily because it does not have a high sugar content. Place in refrigerator after opening.

Buy spices once a year in small quantity, as they lose flavor on standing, even though not opened. Highly seasoned sauces with many spices and high vinegar content keep well for months. Store in cool place without light.

Honey should not be discarded when it crystallizes. Liquefy by placing in water that is not over 140°. Higher temperature may injure flavor as well as color.

Always purchase your fish last, but store it first when you get home. The coldest place in the refrigerator, right under the freezing unit, is best for it.

All fats require a cool, dry, dark place for storage. They should be tightly covered at all times to avoid contact with strong odors which fats readily absorb.

We are sorry to hear that Mrs. Nono Schneider is ill and in Mercy Hospital, Bay City. We wish her a speedy recovery.

Evelyn Smith of Bay City spent Saturday and Sunday at her home here.

A truck was around our vicinity Monday collecting cats which are to be used by the University for medical purposes.

Mr. and Mrs. Dewey Ross were in West Branch Tuesday where they called at Dr. Hasty's office for medical treatment.

Congratulations to George Blust and Peggy Pipesh who were married on December 30.

Don Schneider is spending a couple of weeks in Bay City at the home of his brother, Glen because of the illness of his mother.

Frank Smith and son Harvey were in West Branch Tuesday where the former had another cast put on his foot by Dr. Schieberger.

Mr. and Mrs. Victor St. James spent Sunday at the William Bamberger home.

Mrs. Josephine Brigham spent Thursday at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Ellis Partlo in Whittemore. Her granddaughter, Dianne returned with her and spent the night.

Teddy Lachota of Detroit spent a couple of weeks with his mother and sister while the Plymouth factories were changing models.

4-H CLUB NOTES

We hope our 4-H winter projects are well on their way. Achievement day is March 29 and 30 and it will be here before you know it.

I was really interested in some local 4-H Club leader remarks regarding a recent panel discussion on "How Can Extension Agents best help take Local 4-H Leader?" Here are their suggestions.

1. Give the local leader a break by getting records out earlier. (Anyone in Iosco county in need of records?)

2. Work for earlier enrollments. (Maybe better before deer season?)

3. Have more leader training meetings. (The number and kind should be decided by the 4-H Council Association.)

a. Send copies of members letters to 4-H leaders.

b. Send county meeting notices to everyone. Don't expect leaders to send them out.

c. Send a letter listing extra projects available in addition to regular 4-H work.

d. Encourage officers by letters.

e. Keep former leaders on mailing list.

5. Attend at least one or more 4-H meetings in order to help create and maintain interest.

6. Know 4-H parents and inquire about member's projects.

7. Send "National 4-H News" to more leaders.

8. Send more local 4-H Club leaders to the National 4-H Club Congress.

This panel discussion, as you can agree, was most revealing. I'll bet our Iosco leaders can add to this list of comments. Let's hear what you have to say about the 4-H club program. We can use your news and views in our news column.

FISH SHANTIES MUST BE MARKED

The Conservation department today reminded ice fishermen that their shanties must be marked on the outside with the owner's name and address in two inch letters.

The law requires that the shanty must be removed from the ice any time conditions become unsafe.

If it is not removed, the Conservation department may do so and charge the owner for the service. The owner is also liable for a fine.

THE STORY SO FAR: En route by stagecoach to the border mining town of Mesa Verde are Dan Frazer and his two fellow-passengers, beautiful Helen Bartell and a dapper little stranger. Masked men halt the

CHAPTER III

More important than the physical aspect of the place, however, was the air of tension which somehow seemed to pervade the town. Even from the top of a stagecoach it was possible to sense the tight feeling of dread which seemed to be shared by the town's citizens.

A dozen idlers were on hand at the hotel to shout questions at the bristling Petey, but the little driver ignored them, addressing himself with some dignity to a young fellow who appeared at the door of the establishment.

"Better git Carson, Ed," he greeted. "We was held up. Got a dead man inside."

The announcement created a stir, of course, but Frazer was particularly interested in the reaction of the man in the doorway. He was a reasonably handsome fellow in his middle twenties, sandy haired and smooth shaven.

He had jumped guiltily as he glanced up at the coach, and now his face was fiery. He swallowed hard, tipped his hat to Miss Bartell, and swung away almost at a run.

Petey Informs Crowd Of Robbery and Killing

The marshal was not the first one to interrupt the excited murmur of the crowd. A burly man forced his way toward the coach, something about him demanding consideration from the curiosity seekers.

His words were addressed to Helen Bartell. "What are you doin' back so soon?" There was almost a snarl in the question and it was abundantly clear that he was not pleased to see her.

She tried to laugh it off. "Why, Father! You don't sound very glad to see me."

Frazer saw the marshal coming then, a gray little man whose carefully trimmed mustache seemed to set a standard for his entire personality.

Petey was talking excitedly, telling the story of the hold-up in all its gory details. Marshal Emery pushed his light gray Stetson to the back of his head, displaying a pink bald spot that was more noticeable than it had been when Frazer had last seen him.

"I dunno," Petey replied. This was one conversation in which he was at no disadvantage. A man would have to be pretty deaf to miss anything Carson Emery said.

"He was a shore enough stranger to me. Kinda seemed like an important cuss, though."

"Anybody else on board?" "Yep. Helen Bartell and a young feller what looked like a cowhand to me. They're both right around here somewhere."

"Had passengers today, eh? Did either of the others get hurt?" "Nope. That was the queer part about the whole danged show. Fern highwaymen wasn't interested in nothin' except puttin' a slug into this poor critter in the coach."

"Himm. You think the robbery was a blind to cover the killin', is that it?" Petey nodded importantly.

"That's right." "Where's the other passengers?" The driver pointed a grubby forefinger at Miss Bartell, but before he could locate Frazer that young man had caught Marshal Emery's eye. The lawman's lips parted in something that could have turned into a smile, but then he caught Frazer's short nod. The budding smile died away and Emery let Petey show him his extra passenger. This time when the two men locked glances there was nothing to indicate that either had ever seen the other before.

Emery's voice boomed politely enough as he nodded first toward Miss Bartell and then toward Frazer. "You folks stick around a bit, will you?" he asked. "I'll want to ask you a couple o' questions as soon as I look inside here."

His glance at the dead man took only a scant minute. Then he backed out into the street again, his crisp order directed at Deputy Ed Delaplaine. "Find Doc McCue, Ed," he ordered. "Tell him to come get this feller."

Emery came over toward Frazer. "You the gent was on the stage today?" he asked, his face betraying nothing.

"I'm the one. Is that the way you people always welcome strangers in this part of the country?" The drawl was back in Frazer's voice now, so prominently that he did not dare look toward Helen Bartell. It wasn't proving too easy to play such a role with one person in the audience so skeptical.

Marshal Emery Calls Conference in Office

Emery did not reply to the question. He simply nodded curtly toward the adobe building which housed his office and the town jail. "Better come along and tell me about it," he suggested in the confidential bellow which seemed to be his lowest tone. "Sooner we get it straight, the better."

His words were addressed to Helen Bartell. "What are you doin' back so soon?" There was almost a snarl in the question.

A man came down the street toward them and Frazer snapped to quick alertness. He managed to stumble into Emery just long enough to whisper, "Look at the fellow coming down the street from the east. Don't say anything; just spot him so you'll remember who he is."

Miss Bartell was too far away to be warned and Frazer could not catch her eye. Nor did he want to say anything aloud. That fellow might actually be the man who had originally led the bandit attack—and then again he might not be. Better to know a little more before jumping at conclusions.

There were plenty of sandy-haired, stocky men in the country—even though relatively few of them would be wearing dusty levis and equally dusty boots.

By the time they turned in at the marshal's office the man was no longer to be seen on the street. Instead, young Delaplaine was hastening back from the coroner's office, and he came across eagerly, trying to get Miss Bartell's eye. The marshal gave him scant opportunity to promote himself there. "Take over the door, Ed," he ordered briskly. "I don't want nobody inside but witnesses. Keep these other vultures at a distance unless we need some of 'em."

Delaplaine glanced at the crowd which followed the marshal and his witnesses, then he nodded glumly and took up his station by the door of the little adobe building.

It was curious the way Emery dropped his booming air of self-sufficiency when he left the street. There was something doubtful, almost apologetic in his lowered tones, and his first statement seemed to explain the fact. "This here's new business to me, folks," he growled. "I ain't never been much of a hand at fancy mystery business. I reckon I'm just a peace officer, not a detective, but let's have the yarn."

Derek Bartell had been permitted in the little room and his prompt nod was not complimentary. Emery seemed to realize his mistake in having said so much before the stout man, for he added quickly, "Anyway, I'll handle the case as well as the next one, I reckon."

Frazer wondered what sort of undercurrent of rivalry existed between these two men. Evidently there was something there, and at the moment Emery was angry at himself for having lowered his guard.

"Go ahead, Petey," the marshal snapped. "Tell us."

Frazer slipped away then, but his sense of victory was short-lived. Even as he headed for the large, box-like hotel he knew that two men had come out of the crowd to follow him. He had sold himself to the mob as a harmless bystander, but at least two people wanted to know more about him. The big test was still to come.

He let them overtake him, turning a broad, meaningless grin on them as they came up. It generally put the other fellow off guard and it served as a cover for one of those swift inspections which Frazer could do so efficiently. This time it covered an oddly assorted pair of men. The big one was huge, a heavy blond giant whose height matched Frazer's while his weight must have gone close to the two-fifty mark. He had a smooth, baby complexion and round China-blue eyes.

Two Men Accost Frazer, Ask Him About Shooting

His companion was a Mexican, a little man of less than medium height whose skinny body made an almost comical contrast to the corpulence of the blond man. He was roughly dressed and he needed a shave, but Frazer had a notion that he might be the more dangerous man of the two.

It was the big man who opened the conversation. "A little egotism in Mesa Verde, no?" he remarked, his carefully pronounced words bearing just enough accent to identify the speaker as one who had learned the language out of a book. "Does the marshal expect to catch the murderer?"

Frazer let his drawl have full sway. "Hard to tell what a lawman will figure on, pardner, but I don't figure the chances are none too good."

The little Mexican took it from there. "The man who ees keeled. You reckon not when I first seen him git off'n the steam cars I kind a had a notion I'd laid eyes on him somewhere before, but I couldn't be sure. He kinda reminded me of a lawman I run into once up in Wyomin'. Federal man, I seem to recollect. This hombre mighta been the same jasper."

The remark was strictly a spur-of-the-moment inspiration, but its effect was noteworthy. The Mexican nudged his big companion and the blond man replied with a guttural, "Aah! Then maybe it was nort robbery, but murder, no?"

Frazer shrugged, content with the show of result. "You couldn't prove it by me, mister. Maybe I ain't even right in taggin' this hombre as a lawman. I only had a hunch I'd seen him somewhere before."

"Sure. But what good could that do? The ranny had a mask over his face all the time. I couldn't recognize him again if I fell down over him."

"Maybe you are lucky again," the wiry little Mexican said softly. "It is not good to know too much."

When the odd pair left him Frazer had a new thought to occupy his mind. He felt sure that neither of these men had participated in the hold-up. Still, they were anxious about it. They wanted to know more about the details.

He went over to the deserted coach to get his war bag and saddle, and it occurred to him that maybe they had not been seeking information after all. Perhaps they already knew more than they were telling and were simply concerned about how much other people knew. One way or another, he was glad he had fed them that hint about the dead man having been an officer.

The Mesa Verde hotel boasted a tiny lobby between its dingy dining room and its rather more ornate saloon. The cubicle was unoccupied when Frazer entered, so he tapped sharply on a nickel-plated bell which stood beside a battered ledger on the desk. The summons brought a response in the person of a red-haired girl whose appearance presented a new problem. She wore earrings, make-up and a gingham apron. That didn't make sense to Frazer. The apron was the frontier's universal symbol of feminine respectability, whereas earrings and rouge were almost certain sign-boards pointing in the opposite direction.

The girl gave him a quick little smile that was as contradictory as her garb, then became almost stern.

THEY say that in four regions of the United States there are four different questions which are asked of newcomers. In the New England states they ask a stranger "How much do you know?" In the wealthy northern states they ask, "How much have you got?" In the South where pedigrees are so much treasured, they ask: "Who was your grandfather?" But out in the wide-open West they have only one question: "What can you do?"

Action in Religion

IT is a fair question. If the answer is "Nothing," then it does not make any difference at all what a man can answer to the other three questions.

To be sure, they look at this differently in the Orient. According to the ancient philosophy of the East, it is only the inferior man who rushes around doing things. The superior man sits and thinks. The West's admiration for action, and the Orient's admiration for contemplation, enter into religion itself. The typical Oriental "saint" may be a man who never turned his hand to a piece of work in all his life. The typical western "saint" is likely to be a very busy and active sort of person.

It is all the more interesting that Jesus combined both the western and the eastern ideas of religion. He was a man of strenuous life too.

Life of Action

THE Gospel by Mark, reliable tradition claims, actually comes from Simon Peter. During Peter's missionary travels he used to speak often about the life and work of Jesus, and young John Mark would take down notes of what he said. Then later Mark worked up into a connected "gospel" many of those story-sermons. It is easy to believe the tradition, because this gospel sounds so much like what would appeal to Peter, a man of action.

At any rate, in Mark we have very little said about Jesus' teaching, a great deal said about what he did. Jesus does not have a spare minute, not a day off.

What about the rest of us? Suppose some biographer were to write up you who read these lines. Suppose he could use in his story only your actions, not your words or ideas. Would there be enough material for him to write a book?

Words of Power

WHILE Mark almost never tells us what Jesus taught, he does tell us that Jesus was a teacher. In describing the synagogue-service in Capernaum Mark tells us the people were astonished, and even two demon-ridden men were struck down with terror.

What Jesus said that astonished the people and alarmed the demons we do not know. Possibly Peter, who was there, may have been too busy watching people's faces to hear what Jesus was saying. However that may be, Jesus is here introduced to us not only as a doer but as a thinker and teacher.

Life is not all action; it is also thought. Jesus' acts were full of power; so and not less so were his ideas, words, teachings. Look at the rest of us again: We may be full of talk, but how much power is there in our ideas?

Straightway

ONE word is found many times in Mark's stories of Jesus: "Straightway" as the older versions have it,—that is, immediately. It is not just Mark's style. It is his way of bringing out something important about Jesus' life and habits.

There were no blank spaces, no pages unwritten, no empty gaps, no waiting-around, in Jesus' life. In his life one activity followed on the heels of another. He had no time to waste, and he wasted none.

Let the honest reader try to make a realistic budget of his time. At the beginning of a week let him draw up a kind of chart showing how he expects to spend his 16 waking hours each day.—so much for work, recreation, study and so forth. Then at the end of the week let him ask himself: Where did my time go? He will often have to admit that he did not really live the whole day, any day,—only parts of it. Living as a Christian means living one's full time, living one of those 16 hours a day.

Let Children Have War Toys, Advises Guidance Authority

NEW YORK—Parents have long been worried about the problem of letting junior have guns and war toys, afraid such items will make him warlike.

Dr. Grace Langdon, a child guidance authority, now comes up with the theory that if junior wants a toy flame-thrower, let him have it. It won't make him any less war-minded by depriving him of toy war weapons, she says.

Dr. Langdon debunked an idea which came up at the recent inter-parliamentary union meeting in Dublin. A resolution was offered to outlaw all toys dealing with war to prevent children from being war-minded. The resolution was killed, however.

"You don't take children's minds off war by depriving them of war toys," she said. "The desire is still there."

The quickest way to stop children from wanting war toys is to stop war."

Author of several books and articles on child behavior, Dr. Langdon contends children naturally are imitators. So long as the father is a soldier, both son and daughter are going to play at being the same thing.

Much of the appeal of war toys is their noise-making ability, she said.

"The same appeal is found in cowboy toys. Children don't care whether the toy gun is for soldier or cowboy. He will play with it so long as it makes a bang."

Her only rule for buying toys is this: "Provide the child with plenty of toys and a variety of them. If he demands war toys, give them to him. But also take care of his other interests, whether it be in cowboys or construction sets.

Household Hints

To make a homemade glue, soak some tapioca in water. This is particularly good to give children when they want to paste in scrapbooks.

To clean pearls and amber beads, rub olive oil on them with a piece of flannel or chamois. Go easy on the amount of oil and the pressure of your rubbing.

Nearly any kind of ring is best cleaned with a toothbrush. Soap and water will do the job, unless the ring is badly tarnished, in which case try using bicarbonate of soda. Just dip the damp brush in the bicarb and scrub the ring; then rinse the ring when you're finished.

Ivy growing in water will be helped considerably if you keep a small chunk of charcoal in the water.

Rub a little castor oil or mineral oil lightly over the leaves of house plants to keep them looking green and to stimulate growth by cleaning the pores through which the plant breathes.

If a candle is a little too small for a holder, you can make it firm by dipping the holder—provided it's metal—into piping hot water for a few minutes to get it hot before inserting the candle.

Americans Spent Over 50 Million on Christmas Trees

WASHINGTON, D. C.—The agriculture department reported that Americans spent more than $50,000,000 for Christmas trees during the past season. This represented the sale of 28,500,000 trees.

The department said about 21,500,000 trees were cut in this country and about 7,000,000 imported from Canada. Montana is the leading tree producing state, providing about a seventh of the country's cut.

The department said the 1950 supply about equaled the 1949 total and that prices were about the same throughout the country.

Doctors in Distant Cities Analyze X-Rays Over TV

BALTIMORE, Md.—Television viewers in five network cities—Chicago, New York, Washington, Columbus and Baltimore—recently watched X-ray analysis of patients by doctors in cities miles apart participating.

Four persons were examined under a special X-ray machine which fed the image directly to a television transmitting tube.

The technique may in time eliminate the need for a patient or a group of specialists to travel if diagnosis depends on the analysis of X-rays.

Dr. David M. Gould, assistant professor of radiology at Johns Hopkins medical school, conducted an examination of a man described as a patient whose back had been pierced by pieces of iron in an industrial accident.

After a five minute consultation with doctors in other cities over a three way telephone hookup, the radiologists declared that the iron had not affected the man's lung and that minor surgery was all that was needed.

Mate Forced Her to Wear Jeans, Woman Complains

ST. LOUIS, Mo.—Americans secure divorces on many grounds, but the latest is the woman who said her husband forced her to wear jeans to parties.

Mrs. Frances Valle Reyburn Nelson, 32, charged her wealthy husband insisted she wear blue jeans at social functions and made her use old newspapers instead of towels in the kitchen.

She also said her husband of less than a year made her save the breakfast dishwasher so the lunch and dinner dishes could be washed in it.

The husband, James Martin Nelson III, was formerly secretary-treasurer of the Exchange Investment Co. In 1946 he received a one-third share of his father's $700,000 estate.

Polio Cases Reach a New Seasonal High, Report

NEW YORK—The National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis reported recently the increase in the number of polio cases throughout the nation probably is the greatest in history for the winter months.

It announced that 569 new polio cases were reported during the last week of November and called it "the highest incidence recorded for that time of year in the past five years and probably the highest in history." It has reported 31,360 polio cases since January 1.

Take a Letter!

A GAIN PRESIDENT TRUMAN has done himself an injury by writing a characteristically impetuous letter that will cost him votes should he again be a candidate for the Presidency. In billingsgate such as a marine might use in expressing his opinion of the Chinese Reds, he upbraids a music critic on the Washington Post for a criticism of daughter Margaret's voice. The critic said it was flat. It was the President, not Margaret, who objected to the statement. He might have disagreed without injury, but he will not be excused for the language he used in telling the music critic how and where he will beat up that critic should they ever meet.

It was language that he should not have used while holding the job as President of a great, cultured and Christian nation. It is language that will be recalled, and remembered by many thousands should the President again ask for their support in 1952. Harry S. Truman should establish for himself a censor to pass on all of his unofficial correspondence who would check his impetuous outbursts.

The joint statement issued at the close of five days of conversations failed to disclose any real purpose for the British prime minister's visit to Washington. All that was accomplished, if anything, might have been done in a 15-minute telephone conversation. Of course, Prime Minister Attlee may have needed a vacation, or he may have wanted a few unrationed meals, with bacon and real eggs, not the powdered kind, for breakfast. Such things are hard to come by in socialistic England.

As far as the President was concerned, the one thing he asked for, but did not get, was for England to stop the supplies it is selling to Red China, direct or through Hong Kong. That would touch the British pocket-book, and Attlee turned thumbs down on such a proposition. Any way it was a nice call, and went off with every evidence of friendliness. What purpose there may have been back of it we may find out later, and then we may not.

The increase of 16 cents an hour in the wages of U. S. steel workers is but the beginning of another round of wage increases, to be followed by another round of commodity price increases, that is more inflation. For the next two or more years the largest purchaser of commodities will be the United States government, either for rearming ourselves or for the rearming of western European nations, for which we are obligated to do the paying. U. S. Steel has already announced a 5 1/2 per cent increase.

According to the figures of Raymond Moley, a 16 cent an hour wage increase for only 6,000,000 workers means a total increase of more than $6,000,000, all of which will be passed on to the purchaser. It is $6,000,000 the American tax payer must dig up.

Congress gave the President authority to freeze both wages and prices, but it did not fix the time. Fortunately he cannot freeze price increases without also wage increases. While he waits, the dollar continues to devalue, inflation continues to grow. We not only pay more for the commodities we buy for our personal use, but we pay billions more for what the government buys for rearmament at home and abroad.

Inflation is not "just around the corner"; it is here and is growing. The President tells us to quit buying things we do not need, things we can get along without, but his government does not practice what he preaches. The one big spender for things we could get along without is the government.

I wonder why the President in making appointments, finds it expedient, in so many cases to pick those with questionable backgrounds—those who made the wrong guesses in our Chinese policy, causing us to favor the Chinese Reds. Certainly there are enough members of the Democratic party, whose associations are not questionable, who cannot be charged with Communist leanings, to fill the jobs and whom the senate would confirm without question.

It may be good politics to insist on keeping Secretary Acheson on the payroll, but the flood of protests pouring into the President does not indicate such a condition for a man who may again be a candidate for the presidency.

Two mysteries for which we may never be given a solution; one, the President's real reason for the trip to see MacArthur. Two, the real purpose of Prime Minister Attlee's trip to Washington.

TAWAS CITY GARDEN CLUB

The Tawas City Garden Club met Tuesday afternoon at the Library rooms in the Case building with 22 present. The business meeting was followed with the study of house plants.

Mrs. Otto Kasischke very ably discussed the Poinsetta. President Mrs. Ross chose the Fern. Mrs. Lempi presented three lovely specimens as gifts and Mrs. Florence Moeller discussed the care of specimen plants shown from her collection, namely the popular variegated "Hoya Carnosa Vine, Philendron and Pothos, Cyclamen and the new 1950 introductions of African Violets.

The February meeting will be the care of roses.

In the glare of magnesium light from a parachute flare, the answer came Friday night to the case which had been puzzling law enforcement officers for the past six months. The white light disclosed Parent reaching for the jar which had been placed as directed by the note received by Ulrich of which the young man later admitted he was author.

Under the direction of Detective Sergeant Harry Biggs of Bay City district State Police, Sergeant Donald Cobb of the East Tawas State Police Post and Sheriff Ivan O'Farrell the plans formulated for the solving of the case and the capture were brought to a successful conclusion.

On December 21 the jar was placed in the culvert and officers stationed to watch it, but it was not picked up. Friday night the jar was again placed in the culvert. State Troopers Charles Countryman and Lawrence Hoffman were stationed in the field about 70 feet from the culvert, and under Sheriff Leon Putnam and State Troopers Frank Harris and F. J. Busson were located in a small shack located near the road intersection. At about 10:30 p. m. a truck stopped at the intersection. The driver got out and went to the culvert. The flare was set off by the watching officers and Parent discovered he was surrounded by officers. He made no resistance when arrested.

At first Parent claimed that he had written the notes by direction and under threats of a "gang." That he was to place the money received through the Ulrich note in an envelope and leave under a certain clump of shrubbery in Wagonah Beach, Bay City. That he had been approached several times by these men during the past six months. At the conclusions of a lie test Saturday at Lansing, Parent admitted that he alone had written the notes.

When officers planted the jar in the culvert last summer, only one man was stationed to watch. At a time when such a move could least be expected, and the watcher less apt to be on the alert—during broad daylight—Parent said he stopped his truck and picked up the jar. It contained $50.00, not the $10,000.00 demanded.
