Queen Shirley and court enjoying the winter sports at Silver Valley Toboggan slides were going full tilt Sunday as well as the tin pan slide and skating rink. Approximately 2,500 people at area Sunday.

The Lutheran Caravan of Detroit picked Miss Ruth Rudy (2nd from left front row) as their snow queen. More than 400 young people were in the East Detroit Lutheran Caravan.

15 Bus Loads From Saginaw And Detroit

Colorful Coronation Ceremonies Held Saturday Evening

The more than 2,500 people who visited Silver Valley Sunday and participated in the winter sports program includes the 700 who arrived here from Detroit and Saginaw in 15 chartered coaches. Hundreds of cars were parked in the area from many points of Michigan. The carnival concluded Sunday afternoon proved very enjoyable. About 5,000 people visited the area during the three days.

A special feature of the three day program were the Coronation Ceremonies and ball held Saturday evening at the Community Building. Van Patrick officiated at the crowning of Queen Shirley Wellna. Attending as court of honor were Miss Arlene Lewitzke of East Tawas, Miss Arlene Dorsey of Whittemore, Miss Clarissa Dorsey of National City, Miss Mary Janson of Hale and Miss Shirley Phillips of Oscoda.

Among the guests at the ceremony and banquet, and during the week end activities were Red Jones, former American League baseball umpire, Nick Kerbaway, Detroit Lions general manager, Bob Powell of the Powell-Grant Advertising Agency and Bill Kurfender, photographer for the Pfeiffer Brewing Co., and Detroit Lions.

Beverly and Barbara Foco, little twin daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Foco, acted as flower girls, and Jimmie O'Connor, son of Mr. and Mrs. T. J. O'Connor, was crown bearer.

Music for the ball and coronation ceremonies was furnished by Dave Merkel and his Orchestra of Oscoda.

Miss Ruth Rudy was chosen Queen of the Lutheran Caravan group. This group was from Detroit and were transported here in eleven chartered coaches. More than 400 young people were in the Fourth Annual East Detroit Lutheran Caravan.

Three of the coaches were from Saginaw. The young people comprising this group were from St. Marys Cathedral, Saginaw.

Another group coming by chartered coach was from Carrollton.

Van Patrick gave his sports broadcast from the Community Building Saturday night. He allotted a portion of the broadcast to Silver Valley. Among those Van Patrick interviewed during the program were: Cecil Cabbie general chairman of the winter carnival; Harold Gould, originator of Perchville; Bert Stoll of Booth Newspapers; John Pinter of the Hotel Holland; Ken Barnes of Barnes Hotel; Chief Blue Cloud; Mark Defibaugh, Tawas City High School coach; Bob Furlong of the Michigan Tourist Council; and Queen Shirley Wellna and Harold Pfeiffer, chairman of the queen committee.

During a meeting of the Silver Valley Committee held last night (Thursday) it was revealed that the event was financially successful as well as enjoyable in that $532.00 had been taken in by the various activities during the final day. A recording of Saturday nights program was given at the meeting.

Retired Ice Dealer Dies Tuesday

Peter Gackstetter Rites Today in Ohio

Peter Gackstetter, retired ice dealer and well known resident of East Tawas, died Tuesday at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Luella Anderson.

Mr. Gackstetter came to this community about 28 years ago. In his earlier years he was a farmer. Coming to Tawas City he entered the restaurant business in the Long Building. Later he operated an ice business at East Tawas.

He was born January 9, 1871, at Graytown, Ohio. In 1901 he was married to Daisy Pearl Draper of Elmora, Ohio, who passed away in 1917. In 1923 he married Mary Suzor at Toledo. She died in 1925.

He is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Luella Anderson of East Tawas and Mrs. Louise Walz of Bay City; four sons, John and Lewis Gackstetter of Graytown, Ohio, Rollie Gackstetter of Tawas City and William Gackstetter of East Tawas; 19 grandchildren and 10 great grandchildren.

Prayer services were given Wednesday evening at the Evans Funeral Home. Rev. Paul Heyn officiated. D. A. Evans, funeral director, took the remains to Elliston where interment will be made today (Friday).

East Tawas Pioneer Dead

Funeral Held Tuesday For Richard Herman

Richard Herman passed away at the home of his son George in East Tawas last Saturday at ninety-four years of age. He had been in good health all his life, but had been failing the past year.

Richard William Herman was born in Germany July 24, 1856. He came to this country in 1879 and has been a resident of East Tawas for 70 years, living on Smith street most of that time.

He married Amelia Schroeder of Sherman township in 1881 who preceded him in death several years ago.

In the early days of East Tawas Mr. Herman worked in the lumber mills and in the old salt block. He was an employee of the Detroit and Mackinaw Railway Company for 30 years and retired in 1936.

He was a charter member of the Emanuel Lutheran Church of Tawas City where funeral services were held Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock, preceded by a service at 1:30 at the Moffatt Funeral Home. Rev. Paul Heyn officiated at the services and interment was made in the Lutheran cemetery.

Mr. Herman is survived by one son George of East Tawas, three grand children Mrs. Winifred Merschell, Dorothy and Don Herman of East Tawas. He also leaves three great grand children.

Jack Parker Manager At WSAM Saginaw

Jack Parker, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Parker of East Tawas, who is director of the Saginaw Broadcasting Company W.S.A.M. and W.L.E.W., Bad Axe, has been elected Vice President and General Manager of the corporation. He has been in radio work for 19 years.

Services for G. A. Prescott, Jr., Held Wednesday

Prominent Iosco Man Stricken Sunday Afternoon

Funeral services for George A. Prescott, Jr., highly esteemed resident of this city, long identified with Iosco county live stock industry, were held Wednesday afternoon. Mr. Prescott was stricken Sunday afternoon while at his farm. Death was due to heart attack.

A senior member of the Michigan State Fair board, Mr. Prescott was a member of a family which had pioneered the growing of fine live stock in northern Michigan industry and four generations of Prescotts have continued in the business. For many years the Prescotts were among outstanding exhibitors at the state fair. He served on the state fair board during the administrations of seven of Michigan's governors, and was at one time secretary-manager.

He took a keen interest in county, state and national politics. During World War II he served as chairman of the Iosco County Selective Service Board and was for many years president of the Tawas City Board of Education. A large portion of Mr. Prescott's life was devoted to the live stock industry, and for a number of years he had operated a dairy and live stock farm, a part of which is located in the city.

Born August 13, 1887, the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. George Allen Prescott, he had been a resident of this city all of his life. He received his education in the Tawas City Public Schools and at Bay City, also at Michigan State College. On February 14, 1911 he was united in marriage to Miss Lois Taylor.

Surviving Mr. Prescott are the wife; three sons, George A. Prescott III of Tawas township, Richard Prescott of Detroit and James Prescott, a soldier at Fort Knox; a daughter, Mrs. William Mallon of this city; a brother, Senator Charles T. Prescott of Prescott and six grandchildren.

Funeral services were held from the residence. Rev. Frank Turner of the Tawas City Baptist Church and Rev. Joshua Roberts officiated. Interment was in the Tawas City cemetery.

HOSPITAL AUXILIARY MEETS WITH MRS. CABBLE

In spite of the weather Tuesday evening 17 brave members of the Tawas Hospital Auxiliary attended their regular meeting at the home of the president, Mrs. Cecil Cabbie Chairwomen, Mrs. Lyle Mooney and Mrs. Joseph Allen announced plans for the Easter Monday card party to be held at the Holland Hotel, at 1:00 P. M., Monday, March 26. A short entertainment is planned, also door and table prizes. Mrs. Frank Wilkusi is in charge of table decorations and Mrs. Albert Foco in charge of food.

The organizations constitution was voted on and accepted. Hostesses for the evening were Messdames Cabbie, Dimmick and Mielock.

Mr. and Mrs. Ben Frost of Bay City visited last week end with Mr. and Mrs. Grant Shattuck.

Former Tawas Girl and Husband Die in Cleveland Auto Accident

Funeral services will be held this afternoon (Friday) for Mr. and Mrs. Verne LaFleur of Toledo, Ohio, at the Jacques Funeral Home. Mrs. LaFleur will be remembered as Miss Minnie Schanbeck, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Schanbeck of East Tawas. Burial in the Emanuel Lutheran cemetery.

The LaFleurs were killed in a head on automobile collision Sunday afternoon in Cleveland. Mr. LaFleur was killed instantly and Mrs. LaFleur dying Monday morning from injuries.

Surviving are one brother, Edward Schenbeck of East Tawas and three sisters, Mrs. Mary Krumm and Mrs. Louise Luedtke of Tawas City and Mrs. Hannah Dormire of Fenton and several nieces and nephews.

East Tawas wins from Alpena Catholic Central

Leading by 10 points going into the final quarter, the East Tawas Indians were given a scare by Alpena Catholic Central in a cage contest held Tuesday night before posting a 43-42 decision. Don Clark and John Bolen each scored 13 points for the East Tawas quintet, while Ayotte was getting a like number in a losing cause. Alpena won the preliminary battle by a 45 to 34 score.

Injured While on Way to Tawas City

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Capastraw and three children, Mark 14, Mary 12 and Patricia 8, were severely injured in an automobile collision Wednesday afternoon. They were all taken to Hurley Hospital.

The Capastraw family were on their way to Tawas City to make their home after disposing of their Ferndale property. Mr. Capastraw was entering partnership with his brother-in-law, Elmer Slaven in the Slaven Market.

The Capastraw family own a summer home in the Anderson subdivision and their children attended school here several years ago. Mrs. Slaven and Mrs. Capastraw are sisters.

The Court House will be closed Monday, February 12.

Smith-Westcott

The Zion Lutheran Church was the scene of a pretty wedding Saturday afternoon at 4:30 when Miss Ruth Westcott became the bride of Cpl. Carl A. Smith of Junction City, Kansas. Ruth is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Orville Westcott. Cpl. Smith is stationed at the Oscoda Air Base.

The bride wore a ballerina length dress of ivory brocade taffeta with matching calot and shoulder length veil. She carried a white prayer book, topped with a white orchid, ivy and satin ribbon. Her only attendant was her sister, Mrs. John Werkhaven of Cleveland who wore a similar dress except in yellow and carried a matching muff topped with a lavender orchid and ribbons.

T. Sgt. William Huggard assisted the groom and the ushers were Sgt. Robert Rogers and Cpl. Theodore Anderson.

The church altar was decorated with white carnations and yellow daffodils. Miss Betty Wendt, the bride's cousin was organist and Arthur Wendt, the bride's uncle, sang "Oh Perfect Love."

A buffet supper was served at the Westcott home following the ceremony for immediate family and a reception was held at the Zion Parish hall at seven o'clock for about 75 relatives and friends.

Former Resident Dies in California

Tawas friends were saddened last week when they heard of the death of Miss Florence Scarlett of Riverside, California on January 23 from a heart attack. Six brothers proceeded her in death.

Miss Scarlett had gone to California in 1927 to make her home with her sister, Mrs. Thomas Low. She was a member of the First Baptist Church in Riverside and has been active in the Missionary Society, Mizpah Class and the W. C. T. U.

Rev. Cyril Reid of the First Baptist Church officiated at the service.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Murray spent Sunday with their daughter, Mrs. Frank Schreck and family.

BRINGS PICTURES HERE TAKEN IN GUATAMALAN EXPEDITION

"Guatemala," a program of fascinating travel pictures on the colorful countries of South America, third in the travel series sponsored by the Tawas Kiwanis Club, will be presented by Darrell W. Elliott Thursday, February 15, at the Tawas City Auditorium.

Mr. Elliott, who led his own expedition in Central America, spent one whole year in making this film record of places seldom if ever visited by tourists.

DARRELL W. ELLIOTT

His film offers an array of interesting subjects, including a complete coverage of banana growing, old Spanish buildings, and ancient Maya city now being uncovered and partially restored, professional archeologists at work, Indian blanket making, Indians in their religious ceremonies, colorful market scenes and many others.

Mr. Elliott's story and pictures will bring to the local audience scenes and beauty that will long be remembered.

Elks Win Over Oscoda 72-42 Friday Night

Home Coming Game Tonight at Tawas City High School Gym

The Tawas City Elks galloped to a 72 to 42 win over Oscoda last Friday night, extending their seasons record to 10 wins and 2 losses. The Elks scored 22 points in the first quarter and were never headed the remainder of the game. The game that was scheduled was postponed Tuesday night because of the snowstorm, and on account of conflicting schedules will not be played. Tonight the Elks tangle with Harrisville and Tuesday night they play host to Hale.

The Elks, who invaded the hardwood camp of Oscoda Friday night put on their best passing show this season when they completely outplayed the opposition all evening. The high school snipers led by Barry McGuire with 19 points and Marv Gingerich with 17 ran up a 22 to 9 lead in a whirlwind first quarter. They bounced back with 19 in the second stanza to Oscoda's 4 to lead at halftime 41 to 13. Coach Defibaugh, who appeared on the Silver Valley broadcast Saturday evening on WJR (and interviewed by Van Patrick), ran in his second stringers in the third and kept on even terms with the opposition, Oscoda scoring 15 and Tawas 12. The Elks outscored Oscoda in the final quarter 19 to 12.

All of the local players played bang up ball in their 10 victory with Gracik cashing in on some fancy one-handers for 11 points; the two guard Wells and Myles feeding the ball into the forwards in fine shape. Wells also had control of the backboard most of the evening. Hilderbrand led the opposition with 12 points, followed up by Hofacer with 8.

The Tawas City Reserves had to overcome a 19 to 9 deficit at the half to win over the Oscoda reserves in a hard fought battle 31 to 24. The little Elks scored 23 points to Oscoda's 5 to put the game on ice.

Gary Humphrey led the scoring parade with 11 points, followed by Herriman with 7, Davis 5, H. Morley 3, Gackstetter and T. Morley 2 each and Scarlett added a charity toss. Tarr led the Oscoda quintet with 12 points.

Tonight is the Tawas City high school homecoming, and the Elks will meet Harrisville in the local auditorium. A program will be held at the half, featured by the band and the crowning of the Homecoming Queen. All alumni are urged to attend.

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS

Communists Offer Vague Proposal For Negotiations in Korean War; Army Plans 24 Divisions by July

(EDITOR'S NOTE: When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of Western Newspaper Union's news analysis and not necessarily of this newspaper.)

PEACE:

Price Is Too High

Communist China's ambiguous proposal for a truce in Korea fanned the hopes for peace among the American people and created a dangerous division among the free nations.

The Chinese proposal said, in part, if the withdrawal of foreign troops from Korea was being put into effect, Peiping would advise the Chinese volunteers to return to China. The statement did not guarantee that Chinese troops would be withdrawn, nor did it say anything about North Korean forces. The statement was too ambiguous in the opinion of most American observers.

Withdrawal of the U.S. fleet from Formosa and a seat in the United Nations for Communist China also appeared in vague terms in the proposal for a truce.

The kindest thing that could be said about the Chinese statement was that perhaps there was a desire for peace in China. But from the American view that price was too high.

From the more practical viewpoint, however, the note put the United States in a bad situation politically. If it agrees to consider Peiping's renewed overtures for a negotiated peace, it is bound to incur wide criticism at home. If it shuns these overtures, the accusations of the Soviet Union may fall on more fertile ground.

The Chinese move was seen by some observers as an attempt to block the American proposal in the U.N. of branding China the aggressor in Korea. If that was its purpose, it succeeded, at least temporarily.

Other observers questioned the status of the statement. It was not addressed to the United Nations. It was little more than a postal card to India in reply to questions of policy.

ARMY:

24 Divisions

Army strength by July will be equivalent to 24 combat divisions, Gen. J. Lawton Collins, army chief of staff, reported recently.

The build-up of combat strength by July will include 18 divisions and 18 regimental combat teams with supporting units, together with numerous independent tank battalions, field-artillery battalions and similar combat units.

Collins indicated, however, he did not believe the nation's current goal of 3,463,205 men in the armed forces will be enough and the total boosted.

And while army officer and government officials talked of manpower problems on the home-front, a new Korean's casualty list was announced by the department of defense.

An additional 2,424 casualties reported by the department, bring the Korean war total to 45,137.

The department said 6,509 were killed outright, 772 had died of wounds, and 22 men originally listed as missing in action have been determined to be dead. Thus the death toll stood at 7,303.

Wounded totaled 29,951, including the 772 who later died. The missing total of 8,677 included 822 men who since have returned to American control and 108 known prisoners of war.

New Contract

A NEW TREND

Iowa Factories Outproduce Farms in '50

The trend toward expansion of manufacturing in the midwest gained national attention with a report that for the first time in 11 years Iowa factories outproduced farms.

The report is remarkable because the average acre in Iowa returns a greater farm income than in any other section of the nation. It gives so a general picture of the in-

Housing

Housing Administrator Raymond M. Foley told the senate banking committee that the federal government may soon have to help communities build waterlines, roads, schools and other facilities to meet the needs of defense workers.

PRICE FREEZE:

Needed for Long Time

By the time this appears in print, the administration should have acted on the price-wage controls so long needed to stabilize the nation's economy in its all-out mobilization effort.

During the early weeks of 1951 the need of price controls became a pressing matter as wholesale prices hit an all-time high. The cost of the average family's food was the highest in the nation's history.

Critics of the administration had demanded a price-wage freeze for some time. Government officials, however, protested any freeze would be meaningless unless adequate machinery to enforce price controls was available.

It was also apparent that there was considerable difference of opinion between Charles E. Wilson, defense - mobilization chief, Allen Valentine, economic stabilization chief, and others in charge of the administration's efforts to set up a wage-price control organization.

President Truman entered the fray by firing Valentine and appointing Eric Johnston, head of the Motion Picture Association of America, to take his place. Johnston will settle any disputes between the OPS and WSB.

Administration critics demands for price-wage controls included a roll-back of price to January 1. As for wages, a temporary freeze was the most popular demand—but only temporary until some kind of wage control formula could be worked out.

LIVING COST:

Hits an All-Time High

The cost of living in the United States hit an all-time high early in 1951, with the dollar worth less than 60 cents of its 1939 buying power.

The latest estimates placed the cost of living at 68.1 per cent higher than in January, 1939, although food alone went up almost 118 per cent in the last 11 years. The jump was even greater in some individual foods. For example, the bread and butter the average factory worker could buy in 1939 for 39 cents now cost him approximately $1.15.

An analysis of the figures revealed that a man who made $3,000 ten years ago now needs $5,440 to match his buying power. The equivalent of a $5,000-a-year income then is now $9,356.

The average factory worker earned approximately $1,390 a year in 1939 and about $3,000 last year, an increase of 115 per cent.

BONDS:

Treasury Plans Extension

The treasury plans to offer holders of Series E savings bonds an opportunity to keep their bonds another 10 years at 2.9 per cent interest and to retain the government interest rate on long-term treasury bonds at 2.5 per cent, it was reported recently.

Secretary of the Treasury Snyder said holders may cast their bonds, continue to hold the present bonds with an automatic interest-bearing extension which would amount to 2.9 per cent compounded at the end of 10 years, or exchange the bonds for current-income savings bonds of series G, which bear interest every six months.

Congress must pass the 10-year extension, however, before it will become effective.

Of the $58,000,000,000 of total outstanding savings bonds, nearly $35,000,000,000 is in the series E.

TAFT:

A Shift in Policy

Observers of American political activity always keep an eye on the party not in power as an indication of the trend of thought in the nation. For this reason, Sen. Robert Taft was back in the limelight, causing considerable speculation on his sudden shift in policy toward sending U.S. troops to Europe.

Only a week before, Taft, who is undoubtedly the most influential Republican in congress, blasted away at the administration and President Truman, in particular, for promising to send troops to Europe.

Then, one week later, he shifted his position and said he would favor sending a limited number to the continent. What does it mean, the average American wanted to know?

It would seem that Senator Taft had suddenly become impressed with the fact that our safety is tied with that of western Europe. It would also indicate that he has removed the steam from the all-out opposition in congress to send troops to Europe.

When Taft first announced his opposition to participation of U.S. troops in the defense of Europe, he found himself confronted by a difference of opinion from other influential members of his party. A number of them expressed the opinion that a decision against sending additional troops to Europe would be fatal to any program of mutual defense.

Taft's shift caused considerable comment on the American scene for two reasons. He has often been called an isolationist. And he is a man who seldom changes his policy once he has stated it publicly.

It is generally concluded that the majority of the American people do not sanction isolationism. Taft's shift could have been made because he recognized that fact. This does not mean, however, that the shift is so extreme that the senator from Ohio can be called an internationalist.

Appointment

HOUSE:

Brands China Aggressor

The house of representatives, in the opinion of many, blundered into the field of foreign affairs with a heavy step by demanding that the United Nations should immediately act and declare the Chinese Communists an aggressor in Korea.

The United States had been working for this in behind the scene maneuvers at the United Nations for some time. For a while there were reports that the majority of western nations was in favor of the action.

Shortly after the house resolution was passed, however, opposition to the move appeared, especially among the nations in the middle east. Some nations adopted the attitude that branding China the aggressor would completely cut off any chances for a negotiated peace and agitate the international crisis.

The house action can be said to reflect the growing determination of the American people against the wave of appeasement that was evident in many quarters of the nations not so many weeks ago.

Draft Director

In the hot debate in congress over the drafting of 18-year-olds, Lewis B. Hershey, draft director, testified before the senate armed services subcommittee urging extension of the selective service law indefinitely and the drafting of younger men.

RUSSIA:

Delighted With Debate

The Soviet Union expressed its delight over the current foreign affairs debate in congress by releasing every criticism of President Truman and Secretary of State Dean Acheson.

The Russian government tells the people that the debate reflects deep American dissatisfaction with present foreign policy and a growing desire for a change in what it calls the "bankrupt policy of force."

IMMIGRANT CAMP AFTER DELUGE IN ISRAEL . . . Among the farmers of Israel, a recent torrential rainfall was a big occasion for thanksgiving, for the rain saved the crops of the land from what was described by all the agricultural experts in Israel as a "major catastrophe." However, the large rain brought nothing but a large portion of hardship and misery to the tent cities that are the immigrant camps. This camp near Tel Aviv became a quagmire. About 20 per cent of the tents collapsed and almost all of them were flooded by surface water that the ditches couldn't carry away. The Israeli army rushed help to those most badly in need.

"WONJU" SIT BY MY FIRE? . . . Says one of these G.I.'s in the Wonju area of Korea to the cameraman, showing the native propensity of the American soldier to wisecrack in any situation. There isn't much to laugh about in the 25-degree-below-temperature that is driving these Americans to huddle close to their pitiful heating arrangements. It is early morning, and the temperature has dropped during the night from a rather comfortable zero. Wonju had been a contention point for Communist and U.N. forces for about two weeks.

VISIONS OF WAR . . . German school children gape at American Pershing tank rolling out of the Grunewald station in Berlin, one of the 22 heavy tanks equipped with 90 mm guns which arrived to reinforce the American sixth infantry regiment. They were brought into the American zone through the Soviet zone aboard covered boxcars. There were no incidents in transit. With the British Comets already in Berlin, they provide the Allies with heavy armored artillery.

STAR TAKES THE SUN . . . Star of the future, sultry-eyed Mitzel Gaynor, displays some of the charms that are making her a star at one of the top ranking Hollywood studios. She is basking on a beach near Hollywood. Mitzel can be seen next in a picture about life in a sorority, "Take Care of My Little Girl." If the name isn't changed before it hits the theaters. Like many another youthful actress, Mitzel spends most of her time at the beach between jobs on pictures.

HELD IN "FIX" . . . Henry E. Poppe, former Manhattan basketball star, was one of the players held with gamblers on a charge of offering a $1,000 bribe to "fix" a basketball game between Manhattan and De Paul.

REMEMBERS NIGHTMARE . . . Rolf Cerstman arrived recently in New York with an account of his enforced job in Polish concentration camp. He says the Nazis in 1943 made him throw 600 bodies into furnaces.

Small Business Threatened

THE senate small business committee is concerned, and rightly, over the fate of the thousands of small business enterprises throughout the nation which can perform some function as a government supplier. The committee is fearful lest continual rising prices will force these small concerns to the bankruptcy wall.

As a matter of fact the Defense Production Act of 1950 has specific provisions applicable to small business concerns (those employing less than 500 people) in giving them an opportunity to bid on or accept government contracts.

In this connection this reporter is able to report that the department of defense during the last fiscal year gave 73 per cent of its orders for purchase to small business firms. In dollar value, out of the $5,355,396,000 spent for defense orders in the fiscal year ending June 30, 1950, $1,310,615,000 or 24.5 per cent went to small business. And insofar as possible, since Korea, or June 25 until today, the department of defense has sought to maintain something like this ratio. During the fiscal year the department placed a total of 1,736,882 purchase orders for supplies, of which 1,267,000 were transactions with small business concerns.

According to the department, three-quarters of all purchases were not larger than $1,000 each, most of which went to small business and on contracts of less than $5,000 each, about 71 per cent of the dollar value went to small business firms. In a breakdown of its orders the department says that such items as airframes, engines, ships and heavy ordnance accounted for about 40 per cent of all purchases, which of course, are not produced by small firms and when subtracted from the total purchases, about 40 per cent of the dollar value of all other military purchases, services and construction were made from small business. Small firms got 79 per cent of value of clothing purchases; 73 per cent of container contracts; 65 per cent of building materials and including about 82 per cent of the lumber.

Small businesses were prime suppliers of about a half of photographic goods, food, industrial and construction machinery and tools, plumbing, heating and air conditioning equipment, office supplies and other furnishings. Small business also got about a third of electrical goods and equipment, chemicals and paints and medical goods, also 15 to 30 per cent of fuels, lubricants, and communications equipment. And while small business got less than 2 per cent of such large items as ships, aircraft, engines, turbines, they contracted for 12.7 per cent of ordnance including such items as targets, ammunition, boxes, grenades and mines. Small business also profited as subcontractors in contracts for larger items.

The central military procurement information office established in the Pentagon to assist small business firms handled more than 20,000 inquiries by mail, telephone or personal interview.

What Are the Facts?

In all likelihood, Drew Pearson, well known Washington columnist, needs no defense against any charges made by Sen. Joe McCarthy of Wisconsin, but when an organization such as the American Legion through its un-American activities committee calls on the senator to tell the Legion "upon what facts you have based your conclusion that Mr. Drew Pearson is a Communist affiliate" it is as one newspaper pointed out, "like applying the point of a pin to a highly inflated balloon." For the Wisconsin solon cannot shrug off, as he has done on all other occasions, his wild charges, when an organization such as the American Legion demands an answer. McCarthy's defense will be interesting.

FRANCES LANGFORD, in the years when she was tramping about the country with Bob Hope's radio show, became known far and wide as a sultry-voiced singer. Her overseas tours to entertain our service men resulted in her widely circulated "Purple Heart Diary," based on experiences in entertaining men in veterans' hospitals. Now she has been signed to make a picture based on this background. And that resulted from her appearing in dramatic sketches on the video show titled "Star Time."

Irene Beasley, who originated her popular CBS show, "Grand Slam", hopes that other communities will follow the example of Cincinnati, O., where a reproduction of the game was played in connection with the city's drive for the Foundation of Infantile Paralysis. Irene gladly gave permission to use the program's name and format, and sent a prize for the best entry.

Producer Milton Spelling thinks the day of the tough-looking gangster is passing from the screen. For "The Enforcer", though the star is Humphrey Bogart, he chose assorted characters who looked as un-criminal as possible.

Abbott and Costello journeyed to New York to star on the NBC "Comedy Hour" telecast and picked up a star for their first film production venture. She is Shaye Cogan, featured singer on the Vaughn Monroe TV series. She will be granted a four-week leave of absence to make her film debut in their picture. She is little and blonde—and excited.

Pierre Cresson has been signed by Paramount to a long-term contract; is he being considered as a successor to Charles Boyer, now that Boyer won't wear a toupee or play romantic roles any more? He is 26, said to be the idol of French film fans, has appeared in 10 French pictures, and is one of six current favorites of the Paris press, which predicts stardom.

Jack Smith, singing star of CBS' "Jack Smith-Dinah Shore-Margaret Whiting Show," went on a diet consisting mainly of Swiss cheese, to lose 20 pounds in 22 days for his first dramatic role, in Warners' "Moonlight Bay."

Thousands of small communities throughout the United States will join in the observance of the 64th annual World Day of Prayer this Friday. The yearly observance in this country is sponsored by Protestant women of over 80 denominations.

Overseas, women of 91 countries will join in prayer for lasting peace and strengthening of the bonds of Christian unity. The theme of this year's prayer was chosen by church women in Germany from I John 4:18, "Perfect love casts out fear."

The theme is chosen each year by a different national group, according to Mrs. Welthy Honsinger Fisher, of New York city, chairman of the World Day of Prayer committee.

Commenting this year's choice, Mrs. Fisher said, "The people of the world today are fearful of each other, and their distrust can bring about the destruction that they fear. It is time all of us were reminded of One who said love can bring courage and peace."

OBSERVED on the first Friday in Lent, World Day of Prayer is marked by the ringing of church bells and the closing of many business establishments for special services in many communities. Services at hospital and in prisons, and special programs for children, are also part of the observance in many towns.

In some communities theaters project the prayer on the movie screen. Proclamations by mayors and governors and broadcasts over major networks urge support of the program.

The traditional offerings, which exceeded 255,000 last year, are divided between home and foreign missions. The home missions use the money to provide child care and other social and religious services for agricultural migrants, religious education and social services for American Indians and improvement of the Negro ministry in sharecropper areas of the south.

Funds allotted to the foreign missions are used in this country to aid foreign students and abroad to help support Christian women's colleges in the far east and India and the production and distribution of Christian literature.

This year's service asks that the offering "given out of thankful hearts . . . may bless multitudes, whom, having not seen, we love."

THE FICTION CORNER

FAITHFUL SERVANT

By Maud McCurdy Welch

TIMES WERE HARD in the little town of Centerville and Sam Meadows, the town's only druggist was finding it hard to meet his bills. The shoe factory was shut down, one of the lumber mills had moved away and the other one was running half time.

Sam was a widower and lived economically in two rooms in the back of his store. He'd cut down on a few other things, but things kept getting worse.

Bill Bowen, one of Sam's good friends, came in one day to talk the situation over. "The trouble with you," he told Sam, "is that you're not business-like. How can you expect to run a business successfully if you don't collect?"

"When people are sick, they have to have medicine whether they can pay for it or not," Sam said reasonably.

"But, Sam, you can't carry the whole town on your shoulders. If you go on extending credit, you'll probably find yourself in a bad spot."

Bill went to the door, turned back with a word of warning. "Better think it over, Sam."

Sam sighed. He looked up at the small neon sign over the entrance doors of which he'd always been so proud.

"Meadows Drug Store Twenty-five years of service." Bill Bowen was right. After all a druggist has to take a stand somewhere. He has to protect himself. Sam's next customer was Mary

"The trouble with you," Bill told Sam, "is that you're not business-like. How can you expect to run a business successfully if you don't collect?"

Neely, a tired looking little woman. Sam knew what she wanted, a prescription re-filled for her brother's neuritis. "It's botherin' him awful today," she said.

Mary's husband had had a good job in the shoe factory, but it had been some time since he'd had a steady job.

But Sam had made up his mind. He drew a painful breath. "Mary, you already owe me thirty-five dollars. If you could pay for this prescription maybe . . ." but Sam's voice trailed off unhappily.

Mary's eyes were dazed with surprise. "I haven't any money, but . . ." she broke off. "You mean you . . . you won't let me have the medicine?"

Sam walked to the back of the store, unable to answer. Then suddenly he whirled around. Mary was gone. He hurried after her.

BILL WAS wrong. A man had to have faith. A man has to accept his responsibilities. The health of the people in this town had been entrusted to him. He couldn't fail them, whether they could pay or not.

Sam overtook Mary and said, "Come back. I'll fill the prescription. I'll also put up some Vitamin B for your brother."

"You're a good man, Sam," Mary said tearfully.

After that when people needed credit, they got it. Sam was as usual on call day or night.

Bill Bowen came to see him again. This time Sam told him that a druggist's responsibilities to his customers was as great as that of a doctor to his patients. Bill tried to argue with him, but Sam shook his head with a smile.

Bill went out and almost collided with Tom Shaver, the young cashier in the bank. Sam was filling a prescription for a shabby young man in overalls. He charged it and as the young man started to leave, Sam gave him a doll for his little girl.

Then Sam said, "Well, Tom, what's on your mind?"

Tom Shaver grinned. "Just wanted you to know the old town's waking up. Shoe factory opens next week, a furniture factory coming in, and the mill's going to run full time. There'll be jobs for everybody and the people won't forget you, Sam." Tom went to the door, stopped under the neon sign. "I think I'm going to change that to read, 'Twenty-five years of Faithful service.'"

Sam smiled at him. He was remembering a favorite Bible text: "For we walk by faith, not by sight."

Dumb People Are Better Drivers, Teacher Reports

WASHINGTON — Richard Talbott, who operates a concern called the University Driving Laboratory in nearby Hyattsville, Md., says generally speaking, people with so-so intelligence make better automobile drivers than the smart folks.

That's a controversial statement, but he should know. Talbott teaches all kinds, from the very dumb to the awful smart, how to drive an automobile.

During the war he instructed other soldiers in the art of piloting a jeep. Since then, operating his own business, he has taught hundreds of civilians how to drive. So far as he knows, only one customer has had a serious accident.

"He was a physicist working with an atomic project. I predicted he would crash and he did. A dumb person is concerned only with getting where he is going—and concentrates on that alone. An intellectual is up in the clouds. This particular person was perhaps dreaming of test tubes, Bunsen Burners, and Geiger counters. He made a wrong turn."

Learned to Drive Young Talbott, who calls himself a "paid back seat driver," learned to drive at eight years old in an Essex that was too old to move, and took to the road on a test run when he was 10. He had a driver's license when he was fourteen.

The first thing he tells his students—most of them women of middle age—is that the automobile was invented because people are too lazy to walk, "so take it easy."

And Talbott has a kind word for women. "They learn what they are doing faster, but I had better qualify that a little. They are not as skillful as men after they have learned the fundamentals.

Sometimes he runs into problems. Like the woman he was instructing how to signal that she was getting ready to stop.

"Bend your arm down," he commanded.

"But," the women protested, "my arm won't bend down."

He showed her how to bend an arm down.

There are others who are interested only in learning enough to pass a driver's test.

Simple Road Rules

The expert has a few simple rules which he hopes will rub off on the public, as well as the people who pay him to learn how to drive:

- 1. Look at the road, not at the guy coming to you or the one you see is about to pass you. 2. Drive your car, not the other fellow's. Don't try to anticipate what he's going to do. 3. Don't switch lanes unless you are positive you can make it. And don't forget that in no car yet built do you have perfect vision fore and aft. 4. Be courteous. Give the other fellow a break.

Boy's Atomic Torpedo Idea 'Interesting,' Navy Says

WASHINGTON, D. C. — Tommy Pearce, 10, a fifth grade pupil in Arlington, Va., called on Rear Adm. A. C. Nobel, chief of the navy's ordnance bureau, recently to explain an idea for attacking the Communists with an atomic torpedo.

The lad took a detailed chart showing how a "button" in the nose of the torpedo would set off an atomic explosion.

"I think that when you find a way of setting off a bomb by inducing electricity into it, that you should make an atomic torpedo," the young designer wrote. "You could use it in attacking enemy shore batteries. I hope you can use this plan."

The admiral told Tommy that his plan was "very interesting" and that he had sent them to navy engineers working on torpedoes and bombs.

"It is quite possible that some of your ideas may already be in use or may be included in new designs," the admiral told Tommy.

Iodized Salt Is Blamed For Slowdown in Midwest

CHICAGO, Ill.—Dr. Charles Sellers of Chicago says the iodine put in salt to prevent goiter may now have swung the pendulum the other way in the Great Lakes region.

For those with goiter, iodized salt has been a boon, he points out. But for those who have had normal thyroid glands, it has been harmful. The extra iodine has caused their thyroids to become sluggish and their body chemical activity to slow down.

Symptoms are sleepiness, increase in weight, awkwardness and an inability to take cold weather.

Goiter was once a major problem in Great Lakes cities because of the low iodine content in the drinking water. The region was known as the "goiter belt."

In the mid-1940's iodine was added to salt and the cases of goiter diminished over the years. But the iodine apparently works on all thyroids, normal and abnormal.

Dr. Sellers recommends patients with hypothyroidism should use a noniodized salt.

Jesus Meets Need

Lesson for February 11, 1951

WHAT PEOPLE want would fill many books. What people need is a simpler story. Whatever success Christianity has had, is due to its success in meeting human needs. If Christianity were only an argument, or a system of ideas, it would never have gone as far as it has, nor won so many friends.

Ignorance The Church at its best has simply followed in the paths on which Jesus was a pioneer. The gospel stories of Jesus show him as one who "went about doing good" as Peter put it. Seeing a need, he bent himself to meet that need; this has been the ideal for Christians and the church ever since.

One of the first needs of man is to be saved from his ignorance. Jesus saw the human race not as a pack of wolves or a mass of snakes, but as sheep without a shepherd.

So Jesus then, and the church now, set out to teach. A church that does not teach is a poor church. "The church must teach or die," it is true; it is also true that the church must teach or others will die.

Sickness IT IS not on record that Jesus ever walked by a sick person without making him well. Jesus did not think that sickness and pain are good things in themselves.

When you think of all the loss of time, money and happiness that one miserable little cold can cause, and multiply that by the number of colds in North America alone; when you think of the pain and danger and after-effects of one attack of malaria, and then think of all the cases of malaria in all the warm regions of the world; and when you go on adding up all the diseases there are, you really wonder how the human race manages to stagger along.

Now the Christian church has always been doing something about this. Today, in many backward countries, Christian doctors and hospitals have pioneered in health, and indeed are the only effective disease-fighters in the whole region.

Hunger

WHATEVER else can be said of the feeding of the five thousand, one thing is plain: Jesus did not think it was a good thing for people to starve.

So the church, following his example, has fed the hungry wherever it can. The church protests, and will continue to protest, against any society or institution that leaves people hungry. It is an empty stomachs that things like Communism rise.

So when a missionary like Sam Higginbottom in India teaches better ways of farming, or when the Salvation Army adopts the slogan "Soap, soup and salvation," or when heifers are rounded up and sent abroad as a gesture of Christian friendship, when CROP interests the Christian farmers of America in rural reconstruction in war-torn areas of Europe, the church is just following the lead of Jesus.

Slavery

ONE of man's deepest needs is freedom. Jesus did not set free any slaves in his time, it is said; but is this true? There are other kinds of slavery besides that from which Abraham Lincoln freed the Negroes in 1863. Of these other kinds, one of the worst is slavery of the mind. We see Jesus setting his contemporaries free from the heavy chains of taboos and false traditions which the Pharisees had piled on them.

So when the first Christians broke away from the burdens of the old ceremonial laws, or when a Christian missionary in Africa or China or Greenland set men free from the darkness of pagan superstitions, or when the Protestant Reformation came, a great Declaration of Independence in the name of Christ from the traditions and superstitions which had long obscured the truth and burdened the minds even of Christians, the church is only following the example of Christ.

When we stand for a free church in a free land and a government of free men, we stand as Christians ought to stand, enemies of tyrannies in every form.

Demonstration of U. S. Air Power Will Ease Unrest

By Wright A. Patterson

COULD ALL THE PEOPLE of this country have the privilege I had, that of seeing one of the nation's great air fields on which are based America's mighty bombing planes and of meeting many of the personnel of that field, it would remove from their minds, as it did from mine, much of the fear of the Red army.

Not only was it my privilege to see the number and size of the nation's great war birds, but I also had the opportunity of meeting and knowing, in an intimate way, many of the young men who composed their crews, the personnel that can and will provide protection for the American people from any attack a Red enemy may make.

It was the personnel of those crews that constituted the basis of my confidence in our safety, that removed the fear of any attack on the part of Stalin and his Red forces. What that acquaintance did for me it would do for the vast majority of the American people, could they have the same opportunity I had. It was an inspiring experience.

It was not that I was told in facts and figures of the ability and competence of those young pilots, co-pilots, navigators, bombardiers, radar and radio officers, and gunners, for they told me nothing of that. There was in their conversations nothing of brag.

My guess would be that any tendency to brag on the part of any one of them would have meant a quick drop from the rolls of the strategic air command. Nor did their conversations provide me with any "forbidden" information as to what they were doing or as to where they had been through the day or night. I knew nothing of such details, or was told nothing. Of such things they're supposed not to talk, and no member of any crew with whom I was in contact did talk. It was only the "big brass," of whom I saw none, who are permitted to talk.

In fact it was the silence on the part of these young officers, on whom we depend for our safety, that added materially to the confidence I acquired in the ability to protect all America from any onslaughts of the Red forces. Today I am confident of their ability to do that job. Such are the men the "big brass" are depending upon for results, and their silence, on subjects on which silence were commanded, gave me added confidence in their ability to protect me, and all America.

The personnel of those crews were careful, thoughtful young men. I saw none I would consider a dare devil who would take chances of an air stunter at a county fair, or attempt a speed needed to win a hotly contested air race. Their job is to get the utmost from the mammoth machines they man, to make every gallon of gasoline count on the long flights called for to reach a target, to force their great and expensive machines—costing more than a million dollars each—to the highest possible altitude from which to drop their death laden bombs, out of reach of the fighter planes of the enemy.

Those things and the pin point dropping of their bombs on enemy targets are what they are taught, but the how of such teachings are forbidden subjects of which they did not talk, but I imbibed from mixing with them the strong impression that they had mastered their lessons, and had to do so if they were to hold their coveted places on the roster of the air command.

When the day comes the greater number of them will reach the targets to which they are assigned, and most of those who go will come back again, after dropping their bombs on that Red enemy. They are not just trained to fly, but to fly for a definite purpose, and I am confident of their ability to achieve that purpose.

The young men I met, and knew, at that one great air base, and the many hundreds of others like them stationed at the many bases of the strategic air command, represents the force that lies between the American people and that Red enemy they have so greatly feared. It is a force that is fully worthy of our confidence. We can confidently count upon the protection we so ardently seek. As I met and mixed with them, my fears disappeared, as would yours could you have the same privilege.

TIME TURNED BACK

Father Time turned back the years for 28 members and friends of the Dr. Kelker Bible Class at their "Sweet Sixteen" party on Monday evening.

Everyone had a good time. Delicious refreshments were served by the hostesses Fern Streeter and Mrs. Humphrey. Capt. Shellenbarger and Mr. Van Houten provided the music for the program.

Virginia Webb and Onylea Atkinson are home on vacation from Mt. Pleasant.

Mr. and Mrs. Julius Spencer of Detroit visited his parents, last week end.

Mrs. Elmer Graves is visiting relatives in Saginaw.

The rummage sale sponsored by the Fair Board on Saturday was a success.

Guests of the Roy Redmonds on Sunday were his brother, Bill, and family of Curtisville.

Elaine Bowers of Bay City spent last week end at home.

Ruth Webb and Mary Etta Bills, who have employment in Detroit, were home last week end.

Eight boys, members of his Sunday school class, helped Paul Redmond celebrate his tenth birthday on Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. Capt. Shellenbarger and Mr. and Mrs. Van Houten were guests at the Zillox home Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Pat Van Wormer and children visited Hale relatives last week end.

Norene Huber and Eddie Robinson were chosen to attend the 4-H Junior Leaders' Training Camp at Higgins Lake the fore part of this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Mike Kurchak and little son visited her parents, the John Webb's recently.

Rev. Kerr and family were Sunday dinner guests in the Robert Buck home.

Mrs. Ethel Mayer visited in Flint a few days this week.

Mesdames Doris Thayer, Pearl Huber, Stella Hudinski, Anedra Salisbury and Agnes Johnson went to Ann Arbor Friday and gave blood for the Isoco County Blood Bank.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Brandall of Great Lakes, Mr. and Mrs. Junior Lehman of Saginaw visited the James Brandel family.

Someone with a perverted sense of humor sounded the fire alarm at 1:15 a. m. Monday. No one thought it funny. However, we were glad there was no fire.

Pancake suppers are popular right now. The Junior Class sponsored one last Wednesday. Next Monday night the Grange is sponsoring one in the Dorcas rooms.

Due to conditions of the side roads there was no school Wednesday.

Farmers and families to be entertained by local John Deere Dealer February 13

...A full length, feature picture, "One Happy Family," starring Don DeFore and Marjorie Reynolds, will highlight the parade of entertainment to be staged for farmers and their families who attend the annual John Deere Day show as guests of Hale Hardware & Implements on February 13 at the Community Building.

"One Happy Family" tells the story of the Lynns, who compose a typical, happy, small-town household until they are awarded the title of "Family of the Year" in a contest conducted by a national magazine. The new title and the $10,000 in prize money they win contrive to toss all the Lynns into a whirlpool of comedy and excitement, and Mr. DeFore and Miss Reynolds, as representatives of the magazine, go along for a swim. As entertainment, the picture rates a blue ribbon and will provide the guests with a rollicking time.

Five other new pictures are included in the fast-moving program. One of the films, "His Father's Choice," features the likeable Tom Gordon, head of the memorable Gordon clan who taught valuable lessons trimmed with humor in previous John Deere pictures. Another of the films, "Oddities in Farming," offers something new and different in its presentation of unusual machines performing unusual farming operations. "What's New for 1951," will acquaint those in attendance with new John Deere implements, and is sure to prove of interest to every farmer and his family. "Mike on the Move" and "The All-American Team," the two movies that complete the program, deal with subjects close to the heart of every farmer.

Admission will be by ticket and farmers who have not yet received theirs may obtain them by calling in person at the Hale Hardware & Implement Co., Hale Mich. The show starts at 11 A. M.

New in Style—New in Structure—New in Power—New in Thrift—Potent in Price Appeal—It's the 1951 BUICK SPECIAL!

HERE is good news for folks with a shrewd eye for what their dollars will buy.

Here is a tidy traveler that defies the upward trend of costs—proudly wears a 1951 price tag like that which zoomed last year's SPECIAL into popularity so great that it put a crimp in "the low-priced three."

Take our word for it, this is every inch and ounce a Buick—Buick-featured, Buick-designed, Buick-built from the ground up—but literally the newest thing on wheels.

The sturdy and ample body is new. The high-strength frame is new. The power is new to the SPECIAL, which now has the

Miss Margaret Kennedy (left, above) of Livonia, Michigan, was so impressed by the efficiency and courtesy of Charles Bridges (right), Michigan Bell telephone installer, of Farmington, that she wrote the following letter to Michigan Bell:

"Mr. Bridges was at our home on an installation job and more recently on a service call. We found him to be a very efficient worker, courteous and altogether a person who represented his employer in a most satisfactory and creditable manner. He is an employee of whom Michigan Bell can rightly be proud."

Rest Is Important, Says Housewife

It has been said that there are lots and lots of ways for people to try to get some sleep at night. Some folks paint their windows black, others use ear plugs to shut out noises, while others count sheep. All of these are good and they do help some folks get their rest, but Mrs. Frank Jones, 1220 Bell, Montgomery, Alabama, has the best way to get a fine night's rest. Mrs. Jones, who didn't rest well at night before she took HADACOL, is able to say, after taking HADACOL, "I rest wonderfully now!" Mrs. Jones found that HADACOL supplied Vitamins B₁, B₂, Niacin and Iron in which her system was deficient.

Here is Mrs. Jones' own statement: "For a long time I had been bothered with indigestion and sour stomach. Food didn't seem to agree with me. I always had that uneasy fullness after I ate. I got to where I didn't want to eat. I had no energy. But like I couldn't make it during the day. I also was very nervous. I didn't rest well at night. A friend of mine told me about HADACOL. After the fourth bottle I felt wonderful. My food agreed with me—no more indigestion or sour stomach. My appetite is terrific. I now have lots of energy and my nervousness has gone. I rest wonderfully now. In fact, I feel good all the way 'round. I recommend HADACOL to everybody—It's wonderful!"

If your druggist does not have HADACOL, order direct from The LeBlanc Corporation, Lafayette, Louisiana. Send no money. Just your name and address on a penny post card. Pay postman. State whether you want the $3.50 hospital economy size or $1.25 trial size. Remember, money cheerfully refunded unless you are 100% satisfied.—Adv.

OUTLAW GUNS BY E. E. HALLERAN

THE STORY SO FAR: The border town of Mesa Verde seething with plots and counter-plots, all hinging on the location of a store of munitions hidden by Derek Bartell. Archie Scott, a government agent who is supposed to meet Dan Frazer, also an agent, and tell him the location of the cache, is fatally shot just as the two are about to get together. Scott whistles two words: "The bullet." Frazer picks up Scott's gun and goes out into the street. In his search for the murderer, Frazer approaches Bartell's store. He sees a man outside aiming a gun through the window. Frazer shoots first and kills the man, Vince Gale, who was attempting to murder Helen Bartell.

CHAPTER VII

"If it happened," the deputy snapped. "How do we know you ain't makin' up the whole yarn? How do we know it didn't happen the other way around? Maybe you was the bushwhacker and it was Gale who busted in on the game. Maybe you killed him when he caught you at it."

Helen Bartell uttered a little cry of disbelief, but it was smothered by the ominous murmur from the cramped men in the alley. Frazer forced a laugh. "You're letting your imagination run away with you, brother," he scoffed. "Just take a peek at what happened? How many shots were fired?"

"Two," somebody said. "I heard 'em plain."

"Good," Frazer approved. "How far apart did they come?"

"Right together," the man replied swiftly. "If they'd been any closer it woulda sounded like one."

Frazer Believes Gale Feared Recognition

"We could fight open enemies," the older man said, rather petulantly, "but we can't fight the sort of treachery which I fear is a part of our property, so we have taken steps to defend ourselves. We are ready."

He managed to get some of the ardor of the patriotic orator into his words, but his enthusiasm lagged quickly as he went on. "The trouble is that other interests have learned of our plans, interests which will hesitate at nothing to turn matters into unscrupulous channels. I feel confident that it is these villains who were responsible for the murders today—and for the attempt on my daughter's life."

Frazer was willing to agree solidly on that point, so he nodded his acceptance of the statement and waited for Bartell to continue.

Bartell Asks Frazer Inside for a Talk

"Just two shots," he repeated. "And one of them killed this hombre. He was shot through from the left side under the arm. So it wasn't his own bullet that killed him. Which means he..."

"Not so fast," Delaplane snapped. "You ain't provin' you didn't fire the other slug too."

"Oh, yes I am. I showed you where my bullet went and witnesses have said that the two shots came right together, too close together to have been fired from the same gun. So I didn't fire the other one. Now take a look at Gale's gun."

He stooped to pick up the six-gun which still lay in the alley. Flicking open the cylinder he held it up to the light of the window. "One shot fired, see? Could that slug have gone anywhere except into the Bartell store?"

Both Emery and Bartell appeared just as the men filed out of the alley with their lifeless burden. Once more the story had to be told, and this time there was light enough for Frazer to watch its effect on the faces of some of the listeners. The most startling expression was that of Derek Bartell. The gleam of fanaticism had been in the man's black eyes when he arrived, but as he heard the story of his daughter's narrow escape the gleam changed to one of fear. Twice he asked to have parts of the yarn repeated, as though he had trouble in accepting the testimony. Finally, however, he seemed convinced of Vince Gale's guilt.

"Thanks, young man," he said briefly. "Won't you come in a few minutes? I'd like to talk to you alone."

When the store was closed, Bartell led the way to comfortable living quarters on the upper floor. The girl had preceded them and was setting out drinks and cigars when the two men arrived. Frazer had been wondering whether her father intended to include her in the proposed talk, and he quickly understood that such was the case. Evidently she expected to be treated as one of the firm. Which brought up another thought. Was Helen Bartell a party to the filibustering plans?

Finally it was the girl who jogged him bluntly. "Come, father," she said, her voice quite firm. "It's fairly evident that you asked Mr. Frazer up here for some purpose. Stop beating around the bush and tell him what's on your mind."

He braced himself visibly and turned directly to Frazer. "Do I understand that you have come to Mesa Verde in search of a job?"

Frazer nodded. "You might call it that," he admitted.

"Good. I'm going to offer you one. Before I do, though, I'll have to swear you to secrecy. Do I have your promise that anything I tell you is to be kept in strict confidence?"

He was working up to a pitch of nervous excitement now and waited for Frazer to reply. Certainly he did not seem to note that his guest's answer was no real promise. All Frazer said was, "Anything that's a private matter with you is safe with me."

"Then here it is," Bartell seemed relieved that he had taken the plunge. "Any hour now fighting may break out below the border. For years there has been trouble with the organized bandit gangs which infest the territory, and that trouble has been increased by the restless Yaquis. Some of us have foreseen this day and have planned against it, preparing for the moment when something will have to be done as a matter of self-protection. Neither the Mexican government nor our own will make any real effort to protect our lives or our property, so we have taken steps to defend ourselves. We are ready."

He managed to get some of the ardor of the patriotic orator into his words, but his enthusiasm lagged quickly as he went on. "The trouble is that other interests have learned of our plans, interests which will hesitate at nothing to turn matters into unscrupulous channels. I feel confident that it is these villains who were responsible for the murders today—and for the attempt on my daughter's life."

Frazer was willing to agree solidly on that point, so he nodded his acceptance of the statement and waited for Bartell to continue.

Frazer was willing to agree solidly on that point, so he nodded his acceptance of the statement and waited for Bartell to continue.

Bartell and Frazer Continue Their Talk

There was something like fright in those intense dark eyes of the stout man. "Where did you pick up these fantastic yarns?" he demanded, trying to hide his uneasiness under a show of brisk unbelief.

Frazer shrugged. "A man only has to use his ears. I was curious about that murder this afternoon and it all seemed to tie up. So I listened."

"What? Where does the murder fit into this business?"

Frazer settled himself a little more comfortably in the big chair he had appropriated, aware that Helen Bartell was watching tensely. Apparently the girl was learning something she had not even suspected before. The knowledge pleased him and he selected his words carefully, trying to make a double impression. "The talk is that the government has sent out a man to stop this whole show. Somebody got the government man before he could get to Mesa Verde and find just what was happening here."

For a moment Frazer was afraid Bartell was going to explode. His face grew redder as the fear grew in his eyes. He was beginning to understand the enormity of the thing which had grown out of his planning, but the stubborn streak in him was keeping him from recognizing his own responsibility. He sputtered a couple of times, but whatever he might have said was prevented by a hail from the street below. A fist thundered on the door of the store and a man's deep voice yelled, "Hey, Bartell! Better get down here pronto. There's hell to pay. Shake it up!"

The effect on the storekeeper was startling. He jumped out of his chair and grabbed his hat as he leaped for the stairway. Frazer tried to halt him with a question, but the stout man did not even turn to reply. There was only the clatter of boot heels on the stairs and the sound of a door slamming.

Frazer turned to find the girl's dark eyes upon him, the trouble in them frank and unhidden. "How much of that did you make up?" she asked bluntly.

"None of it," he replied. "I'm afraid I didn't even get around to some of the worst features."

Frazer was halfway down to the raked store when he heard the quick patter of footsteps behind him. "Wait," Helen Bartell called, a little breathlessly. "You'll stumble down there in the dark. Let me show you."

He obeyed, a trifle impatiently. It was beginning to dawn upon him that he had fumbled a golden opportunity. Instead of pumping Derek Bartell while the man was emotionally upset he had outsmarted himself, doing all the talking and learning practically nothing in return. Now there had been a break of some sort. It might mean that Bartell would be more careful in the future and would refuse to talk.

"Do you think my father is in danger?" she asked.

"No more than you," he retorted dryly. "He's dealing with some pretty slippery crooks, but there has been no indication that anyone plans to kill him. Which is more than I can say in your case."

KEEPING HEALTHY

How to Care for Chronic Illness

By Dr. James W. Barton

NURSING HOMES, those which are carefully inspected by community health departments, fill a need in the lives of our elderly men and women and certainly relieve our general hospitals from some of the overcrowding that exists.

The fact that a graduate nurse resides in or is in charge of these nursing homes, and a physician visits them regularly, likewise takes some of the strain off general hospitals and insures reasonable care for the elderly and those chronically ill.

That nursing homes are of great help to the chronically ill, those that are never well yet have none of the specific diseases that require skilled and constant attention, is now admitted and home care under the supervision of a nearby general hospital physician gives a service that is equal or nearly equal to actual care in hospital.

What is chronic illness?

An editorial in the Journal of the American Medical Association defines it as any deviation or departure from health that affects a person's total life pattern in a significant way, because of the length of the illness and its effects, which may last for a long time after the illness proper has passed.

We can readily see that prolonged illness not only requires the medical knowledge and skill of the practicing physician but also his help in the patient's reestablishment of himself in everyday life.

For a long time practitioners have met difficulties in finding proper hospital facilities for their chronically ill patients and have observed the lack of adequate visiting nurses, housekeeping and other services by which patients might be cared for, and the inadequacy of many nursing homes.

This need is being met to some extent by the Commission of Chronic Illness, founded in 1949 by the American Medical Association, American Hospital Association, American Public Health Association, and the American Public Welfare Association.

MIRROR Of Your MIND An Open Mind Is Necessary By Lawrence Gould

Does travel "broaden the mind"?

Answer: That depends on two things: the extent to which your mind is "open," and whether you travel of your own choice or because you have to. If you're willing to admit that your ideas and ways of doing things are not the only "right" ones, visiting foreign countries may be a liberal education, but if the very word "foreign" means inferior or barbarous to you, you might as well stay at home. And of course, if you are torn away from home against your will, you'll tend to see only the worst side of the country you are sent to.

Can high-pitched sounds harm your ears?

Answer: Apparently not, say a group of ear specialists in the Annals of Otolaryngology, St. Louis. The idea that sounds too high-pitched to be heard—for instance, those of the inaudible whistle sometimes used for calling dogs, whose ears are more acute than those of humans—may be dangerous to human hearing seems unfounded. As long as supersonic vibrations are airborne, with no physical contact, they have no specific effect on the sense-organs or the nervous system. It is sounds that are too loud, whatever their pitch, that do damage.

Is psychotherapy a science?

Answer: Not yet, anyhow, writes Dr. I. Atkin in the American Journal of Psychotherapy. While based upon scientific research, the practice of helping people overcome emotional disturbances through an exclusive mental approach (i.e., by listening and talking to them) is still an art in which no system of fixed rules can be consistently followed, and in which the therapist's personality is as important as his training. It is this "intangible quality" that makes psychotherapy hard for "pure scientists" to accept.

Without Painful Backache

As we get older, stress and strain, over-exertion, excessive smoking or exposure to cold sometimes slows down kidney function. This may lead many folks to complaints of nagging backache, loss of pep and energy, headaches and dizziness. Getting up nights or frequent passages may result from minor bladder irritations due to cold, dampness or dietary indiscretions.

If your discomforts are due to these causes, don't wait, try Doan's Pills, a mild diuretic. Used successfully by millions for over 50 years. While these symptoms may often otherwise occur, it's amazing how many times Doan's gives happy relief—helps the 16 miles of kidney tubes and filters flush out waste. Get Doan's Pills today!

When you can't sleep—feel just awful because you need a laxative—do as millions do—chew FEEN-A-MINT. Doctors say many other laxatives, taken in large doses, start their "flushing" action too soon... right in the stomach where they often flush away nourishing food you need for pep and energy! You feel weak, tired.
But gentle FEEN-A-MINT is different! Taken as recommended, it works chiefly in the lower bowel—removes only waste, not good food! You avoid that weak feeling—you feel fine, full of life! Get FEEN-A-MINT, 25¢, 50¢, or only 10¢!
