The Role of Prophet

Prime Minister Stalin, in one of his rare public statements, predicted the United States and Great Britain are doomed to defeat in Korea, and the disintegration of the United

Assuming the role of a prophet thundering from his mountain, the Soviet leader attempted to intimidate the free nations of the world, to stir up discord between the North Atlantic pact nations, and brand Russia the only true champion of world peace. He succeeded only in tangling himself in a web of contradictions and lies.

There was even a minor threat of war when he said war "cannot be considered inevitable," but that it might come if the "warmongers succeed in entangling the masses of the people in lies, in deceiving

Stalin went so far as to blisteringly denounce British Prime Minister Attlee for "lying" in saying that Russia had not demobilized after World War H. For his efforts in this direction, Stalin received a sharp slap by the British government with the charge that Russian armed forces now total 175 divisions, 25,000 tanks and 20,000 planes. With tongue in cheek, the British pointed out that figures don't lie.

Some western observers, noting Stalin's assertion that the U.N. was "burying its moral prestige and dooming itself to disintegration," believed Russia may be preparing to quit the organization.

No one in his right mind could believe any of Stalin's statements and the left-handed assertion that An Open Revolt wants peace. To the contrary, Stalin's statements and the American and British replies only point up the seriousness of the present world situation.

The statement should do much to bring about a concentrated effort on the part of the west for what now seems inevitable.

KOREA:

Reds Pull Back

United Nations troops in Korea regained the offensive after breaking the back of the communist attack which saw the Chinese suffering an estimated 31,000 casualties.

Lt. Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway's troops pushed forward in limited advances, but there were indications that Ridgway would not cross the 38th parallel in the immediate future.

There remain large unlocated Chinese elements north of the old political boundary line and the Chinese could bring down masses of men from further north.

Ground gains have assumed a secondary role in the Korean fight- fered. ing. General Ridgway seems to be operating on the theory of hitting the Communists where the maximum number of casualties can be inflicted and retiring to established positions to plan the next move.

No one can foresee the end of the Korean war which has raged up and down the peninsula for eight months. And although the Chinese have suffered defects in recent weeks there is no indication that help control wildcat tactics in the they are seriously hurt.

CONTROLS:

New Curbs Likely

The protests of the nations housewives, labor and the average home towner may bring about new legis-lations soon to stabilize food prices. Eric Johnston, economic-stabilization director, hinted that legislation will be requested to "equalize and stabilize" farm prices and industrial wages.

THE TAWAS HERALD

Critics of recent enacted wageprice controls contend that the law protecting farmers' standard of living-by the parity device-is making a mockery of the government's anti-inflation program.

On the other hand, farm spokesmen have countered with a charge that an attempt is being made to smear farmers and make them the goat in any federal move to roll back prices.

Johnston is on something of a spot, with the housewives and labor lined up on one side and the farm bloc on the other. He has expressed himself as believing the farmer is entitled to his parity. But by the same token, the laboring man is entitled to his parity, too, for as the cost of food goes up, the cost of living goes up.

Plans Major Shift

What was undoubtedly the most important change in basic postal transportation policy since air mail, was announced by the post office department. The plan is to transfer short-haul mail from the railroad to highway truckers.

The postal department first planned the shift when the railroads filed a petition with the interstate commerce commission for a 95 per cent increase in mail-pay rates.

ANSWER

(This is the fourth of a series of articles on civil defense by Walter A. Shead, Western Newspaper Union's Washington correspondent.)

By WALTER A. SHEAD

WASHINGTON, D.C. - Authority in the line of command for the tremendous civil defense army needed in case of full scale war stems from the President, through Civil Defense Administrator Millard Caldwell, to the 48 state civil defense directors and down the line to the appointed officers in cities, towns and counties throughout the nation.

National defense against atomic, biological and chemical warfare biological and chemical warfare rests upon thorough training to start in a civil defense staff college to be established for top civil defense planners and administrators. The college will serve as a source of all latest information. Regional technical training centers are also planned where this information will be disseminated in the civil defense training programs in the fense training programs in the states and local communities. The technical centers will be staffed by thoroughly trained men and wom-en in all phases of the work and will provide means for standardization of the technical and special training. Standardization is a prime factor for successful mutual aid and mobile support which require a force of uniformly trained civil defense workers.

Graduates of the federal technical training centers will train other civil defense workers and trainers within the states, who, in turn, will train the local volunteers. Under the program, two kinds of training will be provided—general and spe-cialized. General training will con-sist of instruction in basic subjects to include fundamental principles of organization and operation, basic first aid and improvised rescue op-

HUMPHREY BOGART proudly boasts that some day his twoyear-old son, Stephen, will be paying enormous income taxes. Bogart has made sure of that by setting up a trust fund for Stephen, into which will go the $5,000 weekly which the tough guy of the movies will receive for starring in the Ziv Company's transcribed radio series, "Bold Venture." When reminded that Shephen will have to contribute heavily toward the upkeep of Uncle Sam, Bogart retorts that he'll be able to afford it.

their especially assigned jobs, in-cluding specialized health service courses against atomic, biological and chemical warfare. The American Red Cross, officials of the public health service and other organizations concerned with health services will conduct certain phases of specialized training such as first aid and nurses' aid training. Many medical officers of the military services, public health services, the veterans administration and other organizations have taken specialized courses in defenses against atomic warfare and these will be asked to assist in the training pro-

ALREADY, in the atomic warfare field, 148 physicians from 38 states have taken courses given by the atomic energy commission in co-operation with the national security resources board. Similar courses for nurses have been started. Other courses either federal, state or local, will be available for dentists, veterinarians and other professional and technical people working in health services. State health officials have taken courses in radiological monitoring which included many aspects of the civil defense program.

Similar training courses will be available for biological warfare against humans and animals, and chemical and biological warfare against crops. Courses in these subjects will have three prime aspects -detection, treatment of casualties, and methods of decontamination. Training will be available for nurses aids and home nurses, radiological monitors, auxiliary sanitary personnel and auxiliary laboratory

For large segments of the general public, the major type of training will be in the category of first aid—what to do first in any of the fields of civil defense. The goal is 20,000,000 trained first-aiders in a 22-hour course which will also include training in special weapons defense and in procedures for treating minor illnesses in time of emergency when physicians will be over-burdened with casualties.

Every state will operate under a uniform system of organization, equipment and procedure. Estabishment of control stations in strategic areas, of first aid stations and the implementation of all necessary ambulance, hospitalization, fire fighting equipment and a score of other defense mechanisms will be taught. It is estimated that approximately 35 per cent of surviving casualties in an atomic bomb burst would require transportation by litter to first-aid stations, hence the importance of first aid work. As an example, if there were 40,000 injured survivors, about 13,000 probably would have to be carried by litters. Another 27,000 would walk, or would be taken to first aid stations by other means. So the most important function is in first aid training, since even fire-fighters, rescue teams, police, engineering and other personnel, first to contact the injured, would be called

THE FICTION CORNER

By Richard H. Wilkinson

"IT WAS PROBABLY suicide," I said, looking around the cabin. "Why?" Capt. Rhodes asked. I nodded toward the walls. At least a half dozen photographs of Arthur Kimball hung there.

9 - Minute Fiction

"Any man," I remarked, "who was so vain as to take all those pictures of himself along to decorate his cabin on a two weeks' cruise, must have been vain about other things.' "You mean he'd probably suffered financial reverses or something, and was too proud to face the facts, so he shot himself?"

"That's about it," I nodded pleased that the captain should give so much consideration to my theory. A very dull fellow this Capt. Rhodes

The captain looked down at the lifeless body of Arthur Kimball. He had apparently been sitting at his desk, writing. There was a bullet wound in his temple. An automatic was clutched in the fingers of his

"I'm probably right, don't you think, Captain?" I said.
Captain R h o d e s grunted. "No," he said, "I don't." He turned abruptly and went out.

Well, this only confirmed my ideas about the Captain's stupidity. To me the thing was dead open and shut.

The first mate, a tall, rugged individual named Brooks, told me to go to my quarters and stay there until I was called.

Capt. Rhodes was prepared. As I sprang I landed in the arms of one of his men.

T WASN'T UNTIL evening that the mate summoned me. I followed him down the corridor to Arthur Kimball's cabin. Captain Rhodes was there and several other men in uniform, and a strange man and "That was a very logical theory you advanced," the captain said, looking at me. "But we've proven it to be dead wrong."

"Wrong?" I said.

"Mr. Kimball was murdered!" I didn't say anything. The captain was not only a dull fellow, but now he was revealing a tendency toward dramatics.

"As soon," went on the captain, "as I decided that Mr. Kimball was murdered, I began to look for someone who knew him before he sailed This wasn't an easy as it sounds. Kimball was traveling alone. Still I figured that someone had engaged passage on the same boat with the idea of murdering him. That someone, I reasoned, would have taken a cabin as near to his as possible. So we bagan inquiring into the careers of all the cabin occupants along this corridor. The only two people whom we discovered who might have known Kimball are Mr. and Mrs. John Cole, these people here." The captain glanced toward the strange

"But," he continued, "they have conclusively proven that they were in the main salon at the time the murder was committed."

importantly. 'I told them," Capt. Rhodes said.

"So I continued my hunt, and presently I discovered there was only one other person on board who knew Kimball. I discovered that this man had suffered financial losses through Kimball's activities.

this man?" "You," said Capt. Rhodes.

It was a remote possibility, and I had not believed it would occur, but nevertheless I was prepared. Capt. Rhodes was prepared too. That's why the uniformed men were present. One of them had sidled in behind me, and as I sprang I

The captain grunted. "If," he remarked dryly, "you ever have occasion to plan another murder, con-sider the details." He pointed to one of the pictures of Arthur Kimball. It was the picture in which Kimball was seated at his desk writing. "Note," said the captain, "that Mr. Kimball is holding his pen in his left hand, as he is the riding crop and polo mallet in the other pictures. He must have been left handed, yet you placed the murder gun in his right hand."

Fear Causes Forgetfulness

By Lawrence Gould

Is forgetfulness based on fear?

Very often, directly or indirectly. You may forget an appointment with the dentist because you're afraid that he will hurt you, or forget childish experiences because they are too frightening to recall. But forgetfulness may also trace back to a wider fear of which you are unconscious. If you "can't remember faces," it may be be-cause you do not dare to look at people closely enough to stamp their appearance on your memory -which in turn may be based on a childish fear of being looked at and having your secret thoughts known

Should you "make" a child take

Answer: Not if you expect him to win success as a musician, or even find pleasure in music, writes Joan Barlow. "Music is meant to be enjoyed," and long hours of compulsory practice before a child's musical sense has been developed tend to destroy any natural taste or lake care of themselves, and be useful to their neighbors. Yet until now, "The study of mental abilities in later life has been sorely neglected."

talent he may have. "The time to provide music lessons is when the child asks for them, or responds to your suggestion with pleasure." I recall that I myself practiced (though I didn't like it) because I knew that my lessons would stop if

May we be "swamped with in-competents"?

Answer: That is a probability which we must face, says Dr. Oscar J. Kaplan, California psychiatrist.
Already one-third of the patients admitted to mental hospitals are "insane" only from old age, and the proportion may be doubled within the next thirty years. The longer we learn to keep old people alive, the more vital it must become to find out how to keep them able to take care of themselves, and be use-

The Fight Against Tuberculosis

By Dr. James W. Barton

LESS THAN 50 YEARS AGO, physicians and the public generally looked upon tuberculosis of the lungs as inevitably fatal with-in months or at most a few years. Today, it is known that tuberculosis need not always be fatal, thanks to ease. to great work of the National Tu-berculosis Association, which, by research, placing patients in spe-cial hospitals with fresh air and good food and, latterly by surgical methods in which whole lobes of the affected lung or lungs are removed, has enabled many formerly doomed individuals to return to home and work.

The tremendous cost of tuberculosis in terms of lives, suffering and dollars is emphasized in the 1949-50 annual report of the National Tubercluosis Association, released by Dr. James E. Perkins, managing director, "Killing more than 40,000 persons a year, tuberculosis is responsible for more deaths than all other infectious diseases combined and leads all diseases, infections or not, in the age group from 15 to 34," his report states. Despite the apparently discouraging figures, Dr. Perkins tells us that tuberculosis, a communicable disease, is also a preventable dis-

Some of the immediate and outstanding requirements to fight tuberculosis are: (a) further medical advances in research and education of the public, particularly parents; (b) more local health units to serve the general health needs of all the people; (c) more widespread efforts to find people with tuberculosis while the disease is incipient.

While the day is expected when tuberculosis will be conquered, eternal vigilance will always be necessary. Because it has been amply proven that tuberculosis can be cured and preventive measures can successfully overcome the disease, Dr. Perkins believes that in the very near future all countries will enforce the preventive methods that will save the lives of thousands of the young and the middle-aged —our most productive people.

GRASSROOTS Publicity of Punishment Will Halt Delinquency By Wright A. Patterson

YOUTH DELINQUENCY is grow-ing and spreading rather than abating. In the cities, considerable sections are over run with youth gangs who terrorize the public by committing many depredations, up to and including murder. But youthful delinquency and the organization and operation of gangs is no longer only a city problem. It has spread to the towns and villages.

My home town is a rural community. In it, the automobile owners over a considerable period suffered the loss of auto parts, spare tires, hub caps, hood caps and other things of value that could be easily detached. Those thefts were traced to a gang of 12 high school boys, and the police of the county arrested them. Though some of them admitted the thefts, none was locked up to await trial. Instead the names and addresses of the boys were taken, and also the names of their parents. They were given instructions to appear at the juvenile court, accompanied by their parents, the following day.

The boys and their parents were present, and the police presented convincing evidence to which no rebuttal was offered. After sentencing each of the boys to one year in prison, the court listened to a plea of clemency made by the parents. The judge suspended the sentences, placing each boy under the parole of his parents for the one year mission. Of the 26 departments and brass in the armed services.

period, with the provision the boy | agencies which received that remust continue to attend school until graduation and must not be allowed outside of the home after six o'clock each evening, for the one year period, with the provision that any violation of that parole would be construed by the court as making the parents an accessory before the fact, subjecting the parents to conviction and sentence under such a charge.

The liberal publicizing of that case, including names and addresses of the 12 boys, and the sentence of the court caused both the boys and their parents to be ostracized in school and in the community, but failure to attend school meant going to prison. That was a wise decision on the part of that judge. It not only put the fear of the law into those 12 boys and their parents, but it had a similar effect on other boys with criminal and gang tendencies and on their parents. The one lesson has gone a long ways toward curing youth delinquency in my home town. It would not have been effective without the publicity given by the newspapers.

A committee of the senate that keeps its eye on the expenditures of the operations of the federal gov-ernment, asked the 26 departments and agencies for the effect of the

Each of the 25 reported increased efficiency, better service for the people, and, in practically all cases. a reduced cost of operation, ranging from a few thousands into the millions.

The one not reporting was that of defense, General Marshall merely acknowledging receipt of the request from Senator John L. McClelland, chairman of the committee. But he gave no estimate of actual or expected savings, though it was expected the legislation would reduce the cost of operation in his department by from three to four billion dollars a year.

The committee is instituting an investigation of the department of defense to determine for itself what result has been accomplished. It has full authority to make such an investigation. General Marshall has seemingly mented any interference on the part of congress with the operations of his department and has shown no interest in a reduction in

He has on his department payrolls a larger army of employees than the number of men fighting in Korea. The Senate investigation may cost his department an appropriation to pay that army of civilians. ALTHOUGH FARMERS are in constant danger of getting brucellosis from cattle and swine, weterinarians and packinghouse workers run an even greater risk, according to a report in the Jourmal of the American veterinary medical association.

The report, made after a joint survey by the U.S. public health service and the Indiana state board of health, declared that brucellosis can be regarded as an "occupational hazard' of persons whose work brings them into contact with infected animals.

Through use of a blood test, it can be determined if a person has been exposed to brucellosis.

Tests showed that as many as 25 per cent of one group of veterinarians either had had the disease or had been exposed to it. The tests were made during a three-year period on more than 600 veterinarians.

Considerable numbers of packinghouse employees also showed exposure to the disease. Numbers of reactors to the test were highest on jobs requiring frequent contact with infected animalswith group percentages running as high as 33 per cent.

THE STORY SO FAR! Dan Frazer is a government agent in vestigation, was shot and killed just as he was going to tell Frazer where the the border town of Mesa Verde, on assignment to locate a hidden store of munitions were. It is night, and Frazer over to the Bartell store and finds it arms and munitions. Factions in town catches Sally Chew when, thinking he closed. He speaks to the old prospector also are trying to do the same. Archie is out, she enters his room to search sent her to find some proof of Frazer's real identity. Next morning Frazer goes

CHAPTER XI

Frazer gave him a nod of appreciation and remarked, "Looks like you're going somewhere. Is that Bartell's rig?"

The old man frowned. "Seems like there's some argyment as to who's goin' where. The old boy's tryin' to send the gal away to some place they got out in the hills. She says she ain't goin', but he's kinda stubborn. Asked me to come down and harness up fer him."

"Going where?" Frazer asked quickly.

"I dunno, I reckon I'll drive fer em, but they ain't agreein' none too good on who's goin' or when." Frazer studied the old fellow for moment, then asked cautiously, 'Did you hire out to Bartell?" "You might say as how I did. He When groups of farm workers asked me to take on this chore, were tested, slightly less than four and I couldn't very well turn him

> There was honest astonishment on the weathered features, and Frazer knew that he had made a mistake in broaching the subject. "Sonora?" the old man repeated wonderingly. "What in ternation fire are yo' talkin' about?"

> "Too much of it to explain," Fra-zer said shortly. "Bartell's backing a scheme that's due to turn this border country into a shambles. The men you were with in the saloon last night were trying to pump you for information about a ship-ment of guns that's supposed to be hidden near here."

Bartell Tries to Send Helen to the Mountains

"Whew! Sounds right excitin' Well, they didn't git nothin' outa me. I'd swear there wasn't anything cached up there in them canyons. I been all through 'em and I didn't see no sign of anybody havin' been in there.'

"Maybe that's what they wanted to know," Frazer told him dryly. "Now they won't have to search that part of the country. Anyway, it looks to me like Bartell's trying to get his daughter out of the country before the storm breaks. See that you take good care of herand keep your eyes skinned for a little southpaw gunman. He might take a notion to heave some lead at her. If he turns up you better shoot first and ask questions after-

Ignoring the old prospector's amazed question he turned toward a back door and climbed a stairway which he had not seen on his with a shout of greeting as he was night—and very close to me for a halfway to the upper floor.

Derek Bartell met him in what appeared to be a sort of pantry, the man's dark face bleak and angry. Obviously he had been quarreling with his daughter, but there was more than mere anger in those fanatical eyes. The man was showing some of the fear which must have been growing upon him during the past twelve hours. For the first time he seemed to be recognizing the dread implications of the storm he had stirred up. "Morning," Frazer greeted ab-ruptly. "Sorry to intrude at such an hour, but I would like to speak to your daughter."

Bartell faltered, then spoke with an obvious effort at heartiness. "Come right along in. We never finished that talk we were having last evening."

"You left rather suddenly," Frazer reminded him.

"Sorry about that. Something important came up and I had to attend to it." He broke off shortly, still showing signs of uneasiness. It seemed clear that he did not intend to renew his earlier offer to employment, and Frazer wondered what had brought about the change. Had Chew or Kranz told him something to make him suspect this stranger in town.

Helen came into the room then, her appearance bringing evident relief to her father. Frazer saw that she had been angry, but it brought a sense of quick satisfaction that she should smile at sight of him. There did not seem to be any doubt that she was glad to see him-and he did not think the emotion was based purely on the reason she gave.

"You're just in time to be an ally," she greeted. "Father has been trying to pack me off into the mountains, and I don't propose

"But Mesa Verde Is dangerous," Bartell said testily.

"I think your father is right," Frazer said quietly.

He mentally cursed the obligation which bound him to Mesa Verde. Offhand he could think of trip to some remote mountain retreat with Helen Bartell. He tried to tell her so with his eyes and she came across the room toward him, her smile hinting that she had received the message and was well pleased by it.

Then she halted as though someone had struck her in the face. A disgusted frown supplanted the smile and she wrinkled her nose suggestively. "Please excuse my bothering you with such a personal pect to learn from it?" matter," she said with something like cold fury in her tones. "I'm sure your interests elsewhere must be so great that you're being bored by all this."

Before the astonished Frazer could reply she was out of the room. He turned to face Derek Bartell's wry smile. "Now what was the meaning of that?" he won-

"I think your father is right," Frazer said. "After last night you can't doubt that someone believes it necessary to get rid of you."

Bartell seemed happy to be able to smile at the woes of someone else. "My daughter has a strong aversion to the perfume affected by a certain barmaid," he pronounced slowly. "I presume it reminds her that a very good friend of hers appeared here with the same distinct odor on him. At any rate you seem to have the same aroma about you."

"I should," Frazer said savage-

Frazer Asks Return Of Scott's Revolver

Bartell frowned. "You admit it?" "Sure. The huzzy tried to steal a gun from me and I caught her in the act. It seems your friend Chew was mighty anxious to find out who I was. Then Ed Delaplane wanted the gun I picked up in the alley last night. You wouldn't know anything about that, I suppose?"

Either the man was a very good actor-which Frazer doubted-or his surprise and perplexity were entirely genuine. "Of course I know nothing about it. Why should

"Because somebody is mighty anxious about a gun. I don't think it's one of the guns I had. I think it must be the gun I gave to your daughter last night. That's what I came for this morning. Do you suppose I might stay here long enough to get it-if I stay out where the wind can blow on me?"

Bartell relaxed enough to smile at the final phrase. "I'll see what I can do. You'd better wait here."

He was smiling broadly when he came back into the room, and Frazer realized that he was a pleasantly attractive man when the fanaticism and fear were both absent from his eyes. "She's going," he said abruptly. "I don't know whether to thank you or that rank scent, but something altered her stubborn attitude." He studied Frazer narrowly as though suddenly interested in this tall young fellow who had affected his daughter so strangely. "I'm not quite sure I understand her motives in the matter, but I won't argue. The important thing is that she's getting out of town.

"It must be the perfume," Frazer murmured, trying to keep his face from getting red. "I hope you'll put in a word of explana-tion for me. I don't want her to keep those wrong ideas."

Bartell's smile remained quizzical. "I will tell her about it-some time. But not until she's out of no prospect more pleasing than a Mesa Verde. If it's the perfume business that was responsible for her agreeing to go I'm not going to risk another change of mind. She's a real woman in that respect-and stubborn, too.'

Frazer grinned at the other's tone. "Is that the gun you're carrying?"

Bartell started. "I completely forgot I had it. Here." He handed it over, his glance becoming a little more keen. "What do you ex-

"I don't rightly know," Frazer told him. "It's just that somebody was mighty anxious to get hold of a gun from me last night. The ones I had didn't seem unusual in any way, so I figured it must be this one they wanted."

"I didn't see anything unusual about that one, either," Bartell commented.

Frazer studied the weapon briefy and knew the same sort of bafflement as had come to him on the inspection of the two other guns. Apparently Mesa Verde did not have much originality in its sixgun styles. This was one of those plain, cedar-butted Peacemakers. just like the other two.

"Maybe I guessed wrong," he said with a frown. "If I did I've pulled a real boner." I left those other two Colts where the first snooper could pick them up."

He started for the stairway, pausing only long enough to throw a parting remark at the stout man. 'Don't forget to put in a good word for me.'

"Later," Bartell said briefly. Then he nodded significantly, "You'd better try to see me some time today. I'd be interested to know how you make out with your gun puzzle." The last sentence was obviously an afterthought.

All Shells Removed From Mystery Guns

It was something of a surprise to find the six-guns still on the washstand. If Dan had not placed them so carefully he might have believed that no one had been near them during the interval since he had gone to breakfast. However, he had marked their positions carefully and he saw that both had been moved. Someone had been prompt in making a raid-but why had the guns been left?

The obvious answer was that neither of these weapons was the one in which someone had such a strong interest. That put the pressure squarely back upon the Colt which he had brought from Bartell's. It must be Archie Scott's gun that the searchers wanted.

A close inspection of the gun told previous visit. It was no time for ceremony, so he contented himself with a shout of greeting as he was a right and vow also and vow also below the said savage-him nothing. Evidently it was a weapon which Scott had procured locally and although the said savage-him nothing. locally and, although it was not and oiled. So recently that Frazer knew the job must have been done by Helen Bartell. It threw an interesting sidelight on the girl's character. Not many girls would have thought to clean a fouled gun, particularly under such circumstances as had obtained during the previous evening.

He seemed to be up against a blank wall, but he knew that there must be an answer here. Having eliminated all possibilities but one, he suddenly found himself toying with an idea that seemed like a real hunch. He turned back to the other two Colts and opened them. There was not a single shell in either one.

That seemed to clinch the matter. He left all three weapons on the washstand and went out quickly, speaking to no one as he left the hotel, and strode grimly up the street toward Carson Emery's little box of an office.

Delaplane was there, talking to the marshal, and Frazer favored him with a dry grin. "Morning, gents," he greeted. "I want to lodge a complaint about somebody bustin' into my room at the hotel last night."

He sounded so aggrieved that Emery chuckled and Delaplane laughed aloud. Frazer looked pained and went on to explain his troubles, deliberately impersonating the rankest sort of tenderfoot. Emery heard him through in silence and rose to the occasion, sending Delaplane out to search for the man described by Frazer. The deputy went out, openly derisive.

As soon as the younger man was out of earshot the little marshal dropped his patient air. Squinting thoughtfully at his visitor he demanded, "What the hell's it all about? You don't have to act that

Frazer chuckled. "I hope I didn't overdo it. I wanted Delaplane to be convinced. The man who was in my room was the fellow who shot The Duke, I'm pretty certain. Not only that, but I'll know him for sure the next time I see him." "Why didn't you say so?"

A typical ration in Korea, opera- means more than tional B, contains a variety of 96 "orders." It means items, as against 118 in the B of the final judge, the World War II. But the new ration court of last apespecially is designed to provide peal. additional heat and energy to the fighting man. The dietetic and other Neither You nor the Crowd improvements over World War II's B are many.

New Ration Light

Operational B practically has to recognize. Such a person has an eliminated canned chopped meat authority, all the same: himself. For him, "what I want" and "what stew meat and vegetable. These components have been replaced by canned solid meats to allow more variety in preparation and more palatability. Elimination of fluids through this process also has saved a quarter pound in weight per ration.

This ration provides 4,200 calories per man per day, in contrast to the minimum standard of 3,600 prescribed for an active soldier by the army surgeon general. Its 96 items allow for almost 15 days of variety in choice of foods by the soldier.

Here is a typical day's menu made from foods in operational B: Breakfast - Tomato juice, hash brown potatoes, bacon, jam, scrambled eggs, bread, butter, coffee. Dinner-Pork sausage links with apple sauce, scalloped potatoes, green lima beans, corn bread, bread, butter, pears, hot cocoa beverage.

Supper-Hamburgers with fried onions, macaroni au gratin, stewed tomatoes, bread, jelly, ice cream,

Years of Experimentations All this climaxes the long years of experimentation since the eight components of the Revolutionary war ration. Between the Civil and Spanish-American wars there were few changes. But by the first World war the ration components had increased to 17 items. By 1925 there were 23 items, and by 1927 there were 31 components. At this time there were four types of rationfield, reserve, travel and garrison. Development still is continuing,

An airlift was ordered by the commanding officer and the helicopter went to the rescue.

Parents Are Urged to Let Children See Dentist Alone

ATLANTA, Ga. — Two Atlanta dentists wish parents would leave their children alone when they have teeth worked on. They believe it would be better for all concerned if parents do not accompany their children into the dentist's operating room while the children are receiving treatment.

Says Drs. Frank L. Lamons and

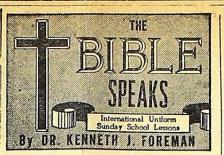

Mary L. Morgan:
"Departure of the parent from the scene brings miraculous results in every instance of behavior difficulty." And even though there's no apparent trouble brewing, dentist's relationship with the child and the parent will be a happier

Utah Board Says Probation Is Better Than Parole Use

SALT LAKE CITY - The Utah adult probation and parole department reports that 88 per cent of Utah prisoners placed on probation during the last two years were rehabilitated to take useful places in society.

Those paroled and returned to society with the stigma of a prison record did not have as much success. The report for rehabilitation of parolees was 74 per cent.

Cost of supervision of men on parole and probation is $77 a year, compared with an approximate cost of $700 to keep a man in prison.

By What Authority?

Lesson for March 11, 1951 fair question always. But there another question to go with it. Who is to say whether it ly? "Authority" "orders." It means

SOME SAY: Nobody can tell me what to do; I do as I please. There is no authority I am bound I like" are the only reasons for anything and all the reasons he wants.

Now aside from the fact that such people are a nuisance to all concerned, and the fact that they can't even pretend to be Christians, this point of view don't work. The person who acts as his own authority runs into others who take themselves as their authority, and the result is the awful mess called anarchy. So all sensible people do recognize some authority outside themselves. They want approval from outside, from above.

But whose approval do they want? Under whose jurisdiction, as lawyers would say, do they live? Some recognize only that vast and vague authority known as "Everybody." If everybody does it, it must be right. If nobody does it, it's bound to be wrong.

Well, this is not necessarily so. Fifty million Frenchmen can be wrong, or 150 million Americans for that matter. You can't take a vote and decide what's right and what's wrong by a simple count of Ayes and Noes. Neither you alone, nor a crowd no matter how big, can be the final Authority on life.

Calendar, Code, Conscience

A NOTHER proposed authority, be-lieve it or not, is the calendar. Some people will not read a book or see a show or wear a dress or listen to music that isn't up to the minute. If it's "dated" it's dead, unless the date is today.

That is silly, on the face of it. But there are other more respectable authorities which are still not THE Authority. One of these is the Law. If it's legal it's right, say some people, and it can't be right unless it's legal.

There is something true in this, of course. We should by all means obey the laws, and also see that good laws are made and bad ones repealed. But law is not the final authority on right and wrong. Lawmakers can make mistakes. What is a good law at one time may be a bad law under other circumstances.

The best laws can never catch up with the morals of the best people. Still other people take as their authority conscience, meaning their own conscience. This is not quite the same as taking your own wishes or pleasure for your guide. Your conscience may lay unwelcome burdens on you. But while every one should of course follow his conscience, still anybody's conscience can be asleep or mis-

Some of the worst crimes in history have been committed by some of the most conscientious people.

God's Last Word

WHAT, THEN, is the highest authority for the Christian? Nothing and no one less than Jesus Christ himself. As we were thinking a few weeks ago, the very werd "Christ" is a symbol of authority at the highest level.

In Jesus' day there were two supreme smybols of God: the Law and the Temple. Jesus not only assumed superiority to the Law, but (as our Lesson reminds us) of the Temple itself, though he was no priest and had no ecclesiastical position whatever. If there is a difference between Christian and non-Christtian today, it is not that Jesus is the authority for one and not for the other; rather it is that the non-Christian refuses to recognize what is the fact: that for us and for all men, Jesus Christ is God's "last word" to mankind.

And if some say that the law of love is the supreme authority, is there any real difference between the spirit of Jesus and the law of love? For he is God's love incarnate.

Economical Cough Relief! Try This Home Mixture

No Cooking. Makes Big Saving.
To get quick and satisfying relief from coughs due to colds, mix this recipe in your kitchen.

First, make a syrup with 2 cups granulated sugar and one cup of water. No cooking needed. Or you can use corn syrup or liquid honey, instead of sugar syrup.

Then get 2½ ounces of Pinex from any druggist. This is a special compound of proven ingredients, in concentrated form, well-known for its quick action on throat and bronchial irritations.

and bronchial irritations.

Put Pinex into a pint bottle, and fill up with your syrup. Thus you make a full pint of splendid medicine—about four times as much for your money. It never spoils, and tastes fine. And for quick, blessed relief, it is surprising. You can feel it take hold in a way that means business. It loosens phlegm, soothes irritated membranes, eases soreness. Makes breathing easy, and lets you get restful sleep. Just try it, and if not pleased, your money will be refunded.

Don't Talk About Troubles; Correct Them Says Mother

When many folks get to feeling badly they just don't know what to do. They fret and stew around, tell their neighbors, their friends and their family how badly they feel —and they usually do feel miserable. But they don't help matters any by telling other folks how badly they feel all the time, because most folks don't want to be around them when they act that way. Now, for ex-ample, take Mrs. Zina Lee

Bowman, Route 6, Clees Ferry Road, Nasnville, Tennessee. When she got to feeling badly, she began taking HADACOL and found that by taking HADACOL she gave her system Vitamins B<sup>1</sup>, B<sup>2</sup>, Niacin and Iron in which she was deficient. Here is Mrs. Bowman's own statement: "I was so weak I could hardly do my housework. I am 30 years old. I am the mother of 9 children. I was so nervous I hardly wanted the children to speak. I had to rest after I got breakfast and before I cleaned my house. I have taken almost 4 bottles of HADACOL, and I feel fine. The children can make all the noise they wish, and it doesn't bother me. In fact, I join them in their ball games and other games. We are a happy family, thanks to HADACOL."

If your druggist does not have HADACOL, order direct from The LeBlanc Corporation, Lafayette, Louisiana. Send no money. Just your name and address on a penny post card. Pay postman. State whether you want the $3.50 hospital economy size or $1.25 trial size. Remember, money cheerfully refunded unless you are 100% satis-

man my age (73) to be regular. Thanks to ALL-BRAN I am." Wm. H. Templin, Sr., 124 Brown St., Watseka, Ill. One of many unsolicited letters from ALL-BRAN users. If you, too, suffer from constipation due to lack of dietary bulk, eat an ounce (about ½ cup) of crispy Kellogg's ALL-BRAN daily, and drink plenty of water! If not satisfied after 10 days, send empty carton to Kellogg's, Battle Creek, Mich. Get DOUBLE YOUR MONEY BACK!

Kidney Slow-Down May Bring Restless Nights

When kidney function slows down, many folks complain of nagging backache, head aches, dizziness and loss of pep and energy. Don't suffer restless nights with these discomforts if reduced kidney function is getting you down—due to such common causes as stress and strain, over-exertion or exposure to cold. Minor bladder irritations due to cold, dampness or wrong diet may cause getting up nights or frequent passages. Don't neglect your kidneys if these conditions bother you. Try Doan's Pills—a mild diuretic. Used successfully by millions for over 50 years. While often otherwise caused, it's amazing how many times Doan's give happy relief from these discomforts—help the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters flush out waste. Get Doan's Pills today!

Venerable Bird

The grouse has been an inhabitant of this continent for a mighty long time. Bones have been found in caves on both the Atlantic and Pacific coasts that date back to the Pleistocene period, some 25,000 years ago. Old campfires reveal that the grouse was an Indian delicacy. And even far back of that, King Henry VIII in 1531 put out a royal order concerning the "grows" and the grouse tail was once popular in France as a fan. In fact, the word grouse, itself, comes from the French and means "spotted bird."

While the bird is most plentiful in East Tennessee, it is now moving westward. Quite a few birds were noted last year in several different areas of the Cumberland mountains. The species once blanketed Tennessee and Audubon in 1831 reported birds almost as far south as Natches, Miss.

Like its smaller cousin, the bobwhite quail, the grouse wasn't overly-plentiful before the coming of the white man. The "brown bombshell" scorns dense under-growths and thrives only in areas near open clearings. The white man, of course, broke up the timberland into ideal grouse cover and the bird became plentiful.

The grouse prefers second-growth timberland areas that include some conifers, used for protection against the elements. Oddly enough, the bird was once barred from markets in Philadelphia because, among its items of diet was the among its items of diet, was the poisonous laurel. Too, it can eat poison ivy berries without suffering any ill effects.

ΔΔΔ It's A Tonic

The question that never fails to be shocking is, "Why go fishing, when I can buy my fish at the market?"

To dyed-in-the-wool fishermen this question may seem foolish; however, the psychology underlying the urge to go fishing makes this indeed an important question.

We moderns, here in America anyway, are reasonably sure there will be a next meal-that there will be meat on the table. Yet fishing is more important now than it was in pioneer days. The urgency still has to do with bodily well-being, but the organ affected is no longer the stomach; it's the mind.

Doctors tell us that mental disturbances, heart ailments and gastric disorders are on the increase. Our bodies seem ill-equipped for the modern tempo of living. And with the current world unrest and our entry into the atomic age we cannot expect that life will be more simple or more secure in the near future. Relaxation is extremely important today-it may become more significant as time goes on.

The man . . . waiting for that 3pound crappie to bite has for the time forgotten his business worries. He is not like the man who follows the small white ball around swinging frantically at it with a special bent steel rod. He does not pull out a card and write down the number of casts it took to snag the bass he has just landed, then cuss . . .

ΔΔΔ Return Those Cards!

After the past season, many duck hunters received franked return postcards from the regional offices of the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service. This marks a new experiment to obtain more accurate information on the waterfowl harvest in which the individual sportsman holds the key, according to the Wildlife Management Institute.

The card simply asks for the number of days the hunter was afield, the number of ducks, geese, and coots bagged, and the state in which hunting was done. Far better returns are expected from this method than from the report cards published in the magazines and newspapers in past years. Each of the present card recipients has been contacted in the field by a federal game management agent, and the new procedure requires even less effort. It is, however, a simple and human matter to delay filling out a report of this kind and then to forget it completely. Simple though the information may seem, the data compiled from the returns is extremely important to those entrusted with the management of the waterfowl.

If you received a card, take the few seconds needed to fill in the blanks and mail it. You will help yourself to better hunting if you do.

ΔΔΔ Keeping Records

Keeping records of your fishing trips—something few fishermen do -will provide much valuable information for the future. Any sort of notebook will serve the purpose, and it would be better if it is small enough to go in your tackle box. With it there, you'll probably take the time to note important data which you might not do after getting home and storing your gear away. It is well to record weather, direction of the wind.
