With Our SERVICEMEN

The Herald received a letter this week from Pvt. Dale D. Landon, a Tawas City boy now in the U. S. Army.

March 25, 1951

Hello Folks, I'm spending a very peaceful Easter afternoon in the barracks and thought it would be a good time to drop you a line and tell you I am going back to Camp Atterbury this Friday so I will need my Tawas Herald sent there once more.

Friday morning we graduate from the Supply Records Specialist School, which completes our 8 weeks of schooling, and enjoin for Atterbury this afternoon. We have learned quite a lot here at school and also have had a lot of fun during our stay in Kansas but it will be nice to get back to Indiana so we will be a little closer to Michigan again. Other parts of the country may have their good points but I'll take good old Michigan anytime.

I hope you are having as nice an Easter as we are. The sun has been shining all day and the temperature is about 75 now. It couldnt have been nicer.

I also would like to tell you that I enjoy the paper very much, it is truly a weekly letter from Tawas. It's good to see the servicemens column back in the paper. I like to see where all my friends are stationed, you never know when you are going to the same place.

Well I guess this all for now, I hope to be home in a couple of weeks so will see you all then.

As ever, Dale.

My Next Address will be: Pvt. Dale D. Landon, US 55054030, 244th Ordnance Depot Co., Camp Atterbury, Indiana.

Better Get Burning Permit Before Starting Grass Fires Says Fire Chief

Are you planning on burning off that vacant lot next to your house during the next few weeks? If so you had better get a burning permit from Tawas City Fire Chief Fred Musolf. Chief Musolf warns all residents that they must have a fire permit before burning grass off any property. And while a permit is necessary you are responsible to any damage to adjacent land owners building, etc.

Last year the City of Tawas City alone spent several hundred dollars sending the local fire department out to quell grass fires that had gotten out of hand due to carelessness on the part of starting the blaze.

Watch your fire and keep it under control at all times. The best time of day for open burning is after four in the afternoon, when the wind dies down.

Spring burning may be the easiest way to get rid of last year's dry and matted vegetation and brush piles, but it also is one of the speediest way to deplete soil fertility. According to the Michigan Conservaton Department burning robs the earth of valuable organic material. Every hundred pounds of dead dry litter needed one hundred pounds of phosphorus, calcium and other elements to attain growth. These elements were drawn from the soil by the roots of the living plants.

Farmers to Study Soil Conservation District Program

Agricultural Agent Harold Clark Announces Meetings

To have or not to have a soil conservation district in Iosco county is entirely up to the farmers. Certainly we have heard that those counties which have a conservation district have made a real contribution to the prosperity of their communities. Nearly all major agricultural counties in the state have a soil conservation district and Iosco county is one of the very few counties still on the outside.

Next week every farmer will have an opportunity to learn what a soil conservatoin district is, how it is formed, who should be interested and what it can do for a community. I have set up seven meetings convenient to every community in the county. Leonard Braamse, soil conservationist of Michigan State College, will show movies that will illustrate the functions of a district. He will explain the necessary steps of its organization. He can also answer questions that may arise. A meeting will be held every afternoon and evening, Tuesday through Friday.

The schedule of the meetings are as follows: Tuesday, April 3, 2:00—p. m.—Wilber Township Hall, 8:00 p. m.—Tawas Township Hall.

Wednesday, April 4—2:00 p. m.—Grant Township Hall, 8:00 p. m.—Sherman Township Hall.

Thursday, April 5—2:00 p. m.—Whittemore Grange Hall, 8:00 p. m.—Reno Township Hall.

Friday, April 6—2:00 p. m.—Plainfield Township Hall.

Eisenhower Says He Would Employ A-Bomb Under Certain Conditions

DECISION—"To my mind the use of the atomic bomb would be on this basis.

"Does it advantage me, or does it not, when I get into a war? Now, if I felt that the material destruction that I was going to accomplish was not equal to the moral or great reaction otherwise to this act, then I would abstain.

"If I thought the net was on my side, I would use it instantly because I proceed from this basis: The United States is not going to declare war or conduct an aggressive campaign. It is merely going to defend itself, and if someone, in spite of its peaceful purpose, jumps on it, I believe in using what we have in defending ourselves."

With these words Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower told the world—friend and foe alike—just how far he would go to defend western Europe. It was the kind of clear-headed, logical reasoning that people in the home towns of the nation could understand. It reaffirmed their faith in the man chosen to fill the most important post in modern history. It is this kind of reasoning and determination that the Communist nations of the world understand. And if the world understands this reasoning, it could mean another step toward the preservation of peace.

18-YEAR-OLDS—It would be difficult to say at this point who was more surprised by the 79 to 5 senate vote that passed the bill to draft 18-year-olds, opponents or supporters of the measure.

For weeks the debate had raged in the senate over lowering the draft age from the 19-year-old limit. And although the bill must go to the house for action, it appeared that much of the pressure against the administration's defense plans has been relieved. Most observers were inclined to believe the bill will eventually reach the President's desk.

Striving desperately to make peace between labor and the administration, Eric Johnston (center), economic stabilizer, met several times with union leaders in Washington. Shown with Johnston (left to right) are: Meany, AFL; Leighty, RLEZ; Hayes, IAM; Murphy, presidential council; and Goldberg, CIO.

not understand very clearly the niceties of diplomatic language and maneuvers, the foreign ministers' deputies of the United States, France, Britain and Russia, meeting in Paris, had nothing to report.

The only statements were "no, no" issued by Russia's Andrei Gromyko to every proposal put forth by the western powers.

Gromyko first gained the attention of the home-townners of the nation as the "no" man of the United Nations.

The main point of difference between the west and east remained the subject of rearming Germany.

KOREAN BATTLE—Slowly, methodically United States troops advanced in Korea, storming the hills, digging the Communists out of foxholes with bayonets, stopping and breaking a Red attack at other points, but always pushing toward the 38th parallel.

U. N. commanders continued to expect a spring offensive by the Reds, scheduled for some time during the last part of March or April. Meanwhile, the Chinese suffered severe casualties as U. S. troops pushed ahead, estimated by some observers at 20,000 to 30,000 in two weeks.

There were reports that the Communists had 200,000 men in the front lines below the parallel. In addition they were reported to have 100,000 more troops in immediate reserve in North Korea and a great reservoir, perhaps more than 300,000, across the Yalu river in Manchuria.

RUSSIAN ARMS—According to Russian reports the Supreme Soviet (Parliament) has adopted a 1951 budget of 451 1/2 billion rubles, of which $6 billion would go for defense purposes.

Russia has placed a value on the ruble of four to the American dollar, but since there are so many imponderables involved, the rate does not reflect the true position of the ruble. If the rate is taken, it would indicate a total defense budget of $24 billion.

However, Soviet production, through use of forced labor and purchases from dominated countries at extremely favorable rates, is considerably cheaper than that of the United States.

A NEW JOLT—The administration's price stabilization effort which has been called nearly everything, including "fraud", received another jolt, this time in the black and white of the wholesale price index.

The bureau of labor statistics' index hit an all time peak of 17 per cent above pre-Korean war prices and 20.2 per cent over a year ago. The bureau said all major commodities advanced except building materials.

The new figures wiped out any hope that the stabilization effort had finally started taking effect and a leveling-off was about to take place. The figures also brought renewed charges from labor that it would take a law "with teeth in it" to stop the inflation spiral.

Michael V. DiSalle, price director, told worried housewives in a television speech that it would be three more months before ceiling prices on food will be posted in stores. It couldn't be done sooner, he reported, because food prices vary by localities.

LAST HOPE—The supreme court refused by a vote of 6 to 0 to review the case of Alger Hiss, convicted of giving government secrets to a Russian spy ring before World War II. It was Hiss' last hope of escaping a five year prison sentence.

The Hiss trial made headlines in the nation's press for months. A guilty verdict and prison sentence was returned after a second trial.

The slender, brilliant attorney has stubbornly denied the charges of giving away governmental secrets.

COST OF LIBERTY

1,000,000th Man to Die for Country

The cost of liberty is high for this Republic. 995,100 men have died in defense of this Republic: This total, however, is not up to date since reporting of Korean casualties is two to four weeks behind. The latest Korean total stood at 52,448. Of these, 8,853 were dead of all causes and 9,899 missing. The remainder were wounded. This amounted to 300 weekly since the war started last June.

UN TROOPS RELEASED BY CHINESE COMMUNISTS . . . A group of United Nations soldiers rests at a medical clearing station somewhere in Korea following their release from capture by Chinese Communists. They are, left to right, P.F.C. Robert Duncan, Dayton, Ohio; P.F.C. Joseph A. Collins, Selmer, North Carolina; Cpl. Lawrence Buckland, Sydney, Australia; Lieutenant Angus MacDonald, Brisbane, Australia; and First Lieutenant George E. Dowrie, Brunswick, Ga. They were held in the custody of the Chinese Communists for a total of 17 days.

ARMY PLANE CRASHES . . . Two officers of the United States air forces, one with a walkie-talkie radio set in his hand, stand by what remains of a B-29 which crashed and exploded eight miles north of Woodland, Calif., recently. Eight members of the nine-man crew parachuted to safety, but the fate of the ninth is unknown. He is known to have left the plane safely, but it is feared that he may have landed in the Sacramento river. Eyewitnesses at the scene of the disaster said the big bomber was afire before it crashed and burned in this sugar beet field. Note the long ditch dug by the wreckage which still burns.

NINA WARREN WALKS . . . Nina "Honey Bear" Warren, 17, daughter of California's Governor Earl Warren, takes her first public steps since an attack of polio several months ago. She walks between her smiling parents. She is recuperating in Arrowhead Springs, Calif. The governor also plans to take mud baths for his ailing right arm, which shows signs of arthritis. Nina has been taking a few steps daily, but this is the first time she has appeared for photographers.

HONEST NETTER IN ARMY . . . Junius Kelloug, Manhattan's center who refused a bribe and set off New York's basketball inquiry, passes through chow line at Fort Meade, Md. He's so tall the army doesn't have a suit to fit him.

NABS STEPSON AS BURGLAR . . . John Simerlein, retired policeman of New York, captured his stepson, Louis De Ford, as the latter tried to burglarize the Simerlein home. Acting on a hunch, after a series of minor robberies at the Simerlein home in Jamaica, the former policeman hid in a hall closet and nabbed the youth when he entered the house. Simerlein (left) looks on as police search the youth shortly after his arrest by his stepfather.

WINS DEBATE . . . Senator Lyndon Johnson (D., Texas), floor manager of bill to draft 18-year-olds, wipes brow after the senate passes the bill and raises the induction period to 24 months. Bill authorized U.M.T.

Seventh Annual Sunday School Week Scheduled for April 9-15

One of the most important observances for the home towns of America during the coming month will be the observance of National Non-Sectarian Sunday School Week, April 9-15. Sen. Styles Bridges of New Hampshire will serve as chairman of the 1951 observance.

The acceptance of Senator Bridges to be chairman during the week of the observance which is designed to increase by hundreds of thousands the regular attendance of children in Sunday schools of all faiths, was made public by Dr. Alfred P. Haake, chairman of the layman's national committee, a non-sectarian, non-profit organization, sponsoring the activities for the seventh year.

Senator Bridges in accepting the post of chairman said:

"Ever since its inception, the National Non-Sectarian Sunday School Week has been a growing movement. It has the single objective in mind of impressing upon every American man, woman and child his responsibility to God and country.

"America was founded upon the principle that every nation's ultimate trust must be in God.

"Today, in face of the world situation, I am more convinced than ever that that faith which was so much a part of the lives of the founding fathers of our country, must find a rebirth. In the minds of those who are trying to build a sane and peaceful world our nation and the other free nations of the world today are committed to a life and death struggle with atheistic communism. This battle can never be won alone by force of arms or diplomacy. The ultimate strength which America brings to this struggle must come from a people consecrated to the principle that spirituality is the final reality.

"I believe, without hesitation, that the layman's national committee, through the National Non-Sectarian Sunday School Week, can make a much needed contribution to the strengthening of the spiritual life of our nation.

"I have agreed to serve as chairman of this very important movement. Our task this year is to form a 'committee of 100,' consisting of 100 outstanding executives, representative of 100 different industries to serve as honorary vice chairmen."

People in all walks of life, in the home towns and cross roads of the nation, will be encouraged by proclamations and statements of their governors and mayors to make this week a major one in their communities. Veteran groups, industrial organizations, labor unions, civic and fraternal organizations, women's clubs, youth movements, chambers of commerce, and other organizations have been asked for personal participation.

Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, in a statement read at the recent convention of the American association of school administrators, expressed one of the purposes of the observance when he declared the development of integrity and civic responsibility in all American youths is an essential element in the defense of the American system of government and democratic life.

This is the official poster to be used during the seventh annual observance of National Non-Sectarian Sunday School Week, April 9-15, 1951. It has already been posted throughout the nation.

RURAL ELECTRIFICATION

Efficient Use of Electricity Is Vital in Time of National Crisis

BY CLAUDE R. WICKARD

Rural Electrification Administrator

Adequate supply and efficient use of electricity on the farm in time of national crisis can well spell the difference between ample production for wartime needs and serious shortages.

In the last decade and a half, electricity has proved itself an effective tool in producing more food with less human labor. The nation consequently has much to be thankful for because there are 3,000,000 more farms now than at the time of Pearl Harbor wired and ready to use the power of electricity.

An increasing number of farmers know what electricity can do for them. This is shown by how quickly they put this new power to more and more farm tasks once service is available.

Farm labor already is hard to find, and many materials important to the farmer will increase in scarcity. Electricity provides a means of offsetting these shortages because it enables the farmer to do more with less.

With nine out of ten farms already connected to the high-lines, and construction being speeded to reach most of the others, farmers are in a better position than ever before to meet the nation's emergency needs. They have an opportunity to use electricity for their benefit. They have a responsibility to use it for the nation's benefit.

We know that in many tasks a one-horsepower electric motor, using a few pennies worth of power, can do as much work in an hour as a man can do in a day. We know that poultry and egg production, for instance, show 10 to 40 per cent increases with the use of electricity. A simple homemade pig brooder, made largely of a light bulb and some odds-and-ends of lumber, will cut losses at farrowing time by 30 per cent.

Electricity works through machines and appliances. Now there is a good possibility the farmer's electrical equipment will not be as easy to replace as has been the case. Repair parts may even be difficult to get if the emergency lasts any length of time.

This makes it highly important that farmers do everything possible to keep their power equipment in good running order. We strongly urge farmers to check over every piece of electrical equipment on their farms—clean it up, oil it as required, replace worn cords and broken plugs.

The county extension agent and other workers in the extension service either at the county or the state office will have information in this field of farm operation.

Iowa Testing Landing Fields for Small Towns

OSCEOLA, Iowa—Four Iowa cities are leading the way toward an airport program nearly every small town and city can afford.

Osceola, Hampton, Ida Grove and Guttenburg now have single-strip airports, adequate for farmers' and businessmen's private planes.

Each of the airports was built at a total cost of well under $1,000. They adjoin a main highway and are only a mile or so from town.

Dirt-Free Home for the Average American Rapidly Approaching

The dawn of the dirt-free, dust-free home for the home owners of the nation, which will relieve the average housewife of endless hours of drudgery, is rapidly approaching.

The building industry reports that home builders in all parts of the country are not only installing air purifying devices to remove dust particles, but also are concealing the heating pipes and radiators in walls, ceilings and floors.

It's a far cry from the days of the 1870's when great-grandfather first installed a central heating system and gave up his attempt to heat his home with fireplaces.

Today the American home builder is taking cognizance of old Roman methods and is using hot water to heat his house and is burying the pipes out of sight and sound.

The Greeks may have had a word for it, but the Romans were the ones who pioneered heating practice. Their fabulous baths at Pompeii and Caracalla contained steam rooms, "hot rooms," and "cold rooms," all of which precluded a knowledge of the three basic heating means known today—hot water, steam and warm air—and, of course, a smattering of air conditioning.

What is it for which heating experts have been searching all this time since the fall of Rome? To tell the truth, nobody was doing much searching at all in the thousand years immediately after Rome's eclipse. The fireplace served quite well, with all the functions of the home being done in, over or in front of it until the middle of the 18th century when Benjamin Franklin invented his stove.

This stove, a very neat invention at the time, was the forerunner of the modern warm air plant. It also was the grand-daddy of all dust dispensers and dehumidifiers. It used a large amount of fuel and gave off a minimum amount of heat.

DURING THIS TIME, the use of steam as a heating means also was evolved, first in England then in the United States. It's use followed, naturally enough, the development of the boiler and the radiator.

Hot water heating had its start in the chicken coop of one M. Bonnemain in the France of 1777. Mr. Bonnemain used a crude hot water loop to spur the incubation of chicks. Hot water, off to such a promising start, did not do well in competition with steam, however, until about 1920.

Today's homes are no longer uncertain compromises between heat and dirt, heat and health, and heat and cold. With radiant panels, or with radiators recessed or concealed in walls or baseboards, the full use of the space of the room is available. The air remains cool and sensibly moist, whatever the room temperature desired.

Proof of the economy and performance of modern hot water heating is its exclusive use in large developments like Levittown on Long Island, perhaps the largest heating installation in the world. Here, forced hot water systems supply heat to the radiant panel floors, and serve year round by furnishing the domestic hot water for baths, kitchens and laundries from the same boilers that heat the homes.

The perfection of radiant heating to the installations in general use today, leaves only one uncertainty—what now in heating? Where to go, short of atom heat? Home builders will have to wait and see, but whatever it is it will be good.

Chinese Reds Laughed at MacArthur Across River

By Wright A. Patterson

HOW UTTERLY FUTILE would be any United Nations armed force in preventing the suppressing acts of aggression was amply demonstrated by the Korean debacle. It was not any lack of ability on the part of MacArthur that caused that result; it was not any lack of valor on the part of United Nations' armed forces—it was the delay and lack of decision on the part of an international debating society. It was a case of "too many cooks spoiling the broth." It could not change its instructions to its field commander without debate.

The first instance of the inability to decide came when the United Nations forces reach the 38th parallel. MacArthur had instructions not to go beyond that line. It took better than a week to get those instructions changed. That more than a week of delay gave the North Koreans time to reorganize their shattered divisions; to get new arms and munitions from the Red Chinese army on the Manchurian border.

It prevented the total destruction of the North Korean army in North Korea. The job had to be done all over again, and before the Manchurian border was reached. The next stopping point was the Yalu river.

Just north of the Yalu river in Manchuria, a vast army of Red Chinese was being assembled. Into its camp was being poured vast numbers of transport vehicles and tanks. Great munition dumps were being erected. There was no slightest question as to the purpose of it all.

The United Nations had an adequate supply of airplanes and bombs. Those planes and bombs could have destroyed the transport vehicles and tanks. They could have blown up the ammunition dumps and scattered the million men the camps contained. But MacArthur's instructions would not permit the firing of so much as a rifle across that river.

The planes at his command could neither fly beyond the south bank of the Yalu or drop so much as a fire cracker on the amounts of military supplies. But the North Koreans and the Red Chinese could stand on the north bank of that dividing stream and thumb their noses at the impatient United Nations troops on the south bank. Nothing could be done about that situation unless and until MacArthur received new instructions.

He waited, as he was ordered to do, while the discussion went on and on, and then came the attack. That Red army, with its transport vehicles, its tanks, its munitions crossed the Yalu, the debating society had talked too long, and the United Nations' forces in Korea paid the penalty for that delay.

What happened in Korea would be the inevitable result in any case where the activities of a United Nations force came under the orders and di-

THE FICTION CORNER

COMPLETE WITH GADGETS

By Richard H. Wilkinson

DANA BRIDGES is a printer by trade, but every one says he should be a salesman. He has a very competent and confident manner. His choice of words is vivid, his gestures impressive, his delivery powerful. Back in 1934 Dana bought a Northland Special Six. As every one knows the Northland is one of the most expensive cars on the market. Dana's income was not large, but he is the type of man who likes the best or nothing.

"In the long run a Northland is the best buy," he told his wife. "It will outlive three smaller and cheaper cars."

Rachael, Dana's wife, knew by experience that Dana usually knew what he was talking about.

So when Dana stated they ought to own a Northland she nodded and smiled and felt confident that everything would be all right. She didn't, however, anticipate owning and driving the same car for 16 years. Not that she minded too much. The Northland, as the world knows, is expensive enough so that the manufacturers don't have to change the design too radically each year. Fundamentally the 1934 Northland had the same lines that the new 1950 Super Special possessed.

Moreover, Dana being a painstaking type of person, kept the machine in perfect order.

Nevertheless, it was an ancient hack and the neighbors used to grin when the Bridges' drove by, and Rachael felt embarrassed and wished that they could have a new car.

Dana was painstaking type person and kept the machine in perfect order. The paint looked like new.

"Why," Dana demanded when she hinted at such an idea. "The old hack's doing all right. No engine trouble. Looks good. Why swap her in?"

After the Bridges' had owned their Northland seven years a salesman tried hard to sell Dana a new car. Dana listened to his talk and then asked what he'd offer for the 1934 model. The salesman named a figure so low that Dana got mad and kicked him off the place. And Rachael decided, with a sigh, that now their chances of buying a new automobile was remote indeed.

She was right. For 16 years the Bridges' kept their Northland Special Six, and after awhile the neighbors stopped laughing and some of them began to think that maybe Dana was pretty smart.

IN THE SPRING of 1950 Dana drove his Northland Special down to the Northland showroom and told the floorman he wanted to buy a new Super Special Eight, complete with radio, heater, clock and any other gadgets they had.

"Have you a car to trade in?" the salesman asked.

"Sure," Dana said. "It's a pip, too. A 1934 model."

"You mean, of course, a 1944 model," the salesman said politely. "No," said Dana, "I mean 1934." The salesman coughed. "I'm afraid we can't allow you very much on a car as old as that."

Dana waved an airy hand. "Take me to the president of this outfit. I can't be bothered with underlings." He glared at the salesman.

So a few minutes later Dana was ushered into the president's office. "Commere," he said to the president, beckoning him to the window. "See that shiny, good looking car out there? It's a Northland 1934 model. It's been driven over 200,000 miles. It runs as good as new. Looks as good as new, doesn't it? Now, look, Mr. President, would it or would it not be a good advertisement for you if you stuck that car in your show window and put a sign on it, saying it was 16 years old and has gone 200,000 miles and doesn't prove that a Northland can take the gaff?"

The president got his hat and went out and looked at Dana's car. He drove it around the block. "What kind of trade do you want?" he asked Dana.

"I'll swap you even," said Dana, "for a 1950 Super Special, complete with gadgets."

The president smiled, then sobered, then figured on the back of an envelope, then looked at Dana's car again, then nodded. "It's a deal," he said.

And now poor Rachael is wondering if she will have to wait another 16 years before she gets a new car.

MIRROR OF YOUR MIND

Dreams Occur Universally

By Lawrence Gould

Are there people who never dream?

Answer: There are people who say that they do not—I've been told that the late Dr. Alfred Adler was one of them—and there's no way to disprove their statements. But it seems more probable that no one ever is entirely unconscious, and that dreaming goes on all the time we are asleep, however little we recall our dreams after we wake up. Dreams may be forgotten because they are too vague and fantastic to fit into the framework of our normal, conscious thinking, or—some times—because they are too "shameful" to remember.

cess. This column has been accused of "siding" with or against one sex just about as often as the other, which I hope means it has been impartial. But a man-hater or woman-hater who is on the watch for ammunition will find it in almost any statement that could be made.

Is the "average intelligence" changing?

Answer: It would not appear so, says the noted Scottish psychometrist, Godfrey Thomson. Group tests given to 70,200 eleven-year-olds and individual tests of 1,200 of them show no decline between 1832 and 1947, and the relative standing of various types of children also remained constant. In general, children of large families are less intelligent than those of small ones, and those of poor parents less than those of well-to-do ones. Older mothers have "brighter" children young ones, and twins are consistently below average.

Do psychologists "side against" women?

Answer: A psychologist who is a man was male before he became a psychologist, and being human, may not wholly have outgrown the fears and prejudices he acquired as a child. The most he can do is to try to allow for them, and he may "lean over backward" in the pro-

KEEPING HEALTHY

Physician's Responsibility To Deaf

By Dr. James W. Barton

THERE IS NO OTHER one subject on which I write that seems to interest so many readers as loss of hearing. It is unfortunately true that many physicians, because they do not wish to arouse hope in what they honestly believe are hopeless cases, fail to keep up with all that is now being done to help those with loss of hearing.

In the Illinois Medical Journal some months ago, Drs. Francis L. Lederer, Richard E. Marcus and Arnold A. Grossman, Chicago, stated: "Because of widespread publicity, most of which is true or authentic, many hard-of-hearing and deafened patients are looking to their physician for relief of their symptoms. The physician, in many instances, is not aware of the significant advances in the treatment of hearing loss and therefore stifles the feeling of hope in the patients by saying that 'nothing can be done.'"

All physicians should know that much can be done for the hard-of-hearing patient. In some instances, hearing can be improved by medical or surgical means.

Once it is known that neither medicine nor surgery can help, it would seem that no further treatment could be of help, but these physicians state that there is now available a rehabilitation program in which various specialists work together to repair or make up for the hearing loss of the individual, after they have learned the entire history of the patient's case.

The various specialists who combine their efforts include ear specialists, specialists in acoustics (sounds), specialists in speech defects, and education of the deaf, specialists in psychiatry, and specialists in electronics.

This pooling of efforts to help the hard-of-hearing is an out-growth of wartime experience with large numbers of servicemen whose hearing was damaged. The specialists work on the basis that hearing loss is an emotional and social problem and they provide the means to restore the patient to personal and social balance.

IN MEMORIAM

IN MEMORIAM
 In memory of Calvin Billings who passed away 6 years ago April 3rd.

Memories are treasures no one can steal.
 Death is a heartache nothing can heal.
 Some may forget you now that you are gone.
 But we will remember you no matter how long.
 Sadly missed by his wife, daughter and grandson.

IN MEMORIAM

In loving memory of our dear mother and grandmother who passed away one year ago today March 30, 1950.

Gone is the face we loved so dear,
 Silent is the voice we loved to hear,
 Sincere and true in heart and mind,
 What a beautiful memory she left behind.
 No one knows the bitter pain,
 We have suffered since we last saw you.
 Life will never be the same.
 Aft and oft do we wander
 To your grave not far away,
 Where they gently laid your body
 Just a year ago today.
 Sadly missed by your daughters Marge, Betty, Elaine,
 Granddaughters Mary Jo and Kay Ann.

OUTLAW GUNS BY E. E. HALLERAN

THE STORY SO FAR: Archie Scott's message, supposed to be a clue to the location of a hidden arms cache...

CHAPTER XIV

"The Little Bear!" he repeated, keeping his voice low but intense. "Just remember that if anything happens to me..."

"Fair enough," Frazer approved. "I was a long time figuring it out, but that's how it was..."

When it became apparent that Delaplaine was not going to say anything else Frazer asked abruptly, "How about checking me on this now?"

"That's it. Remember, though that I wasn't interested in Vasquez. I just thought Bartell and his outfit ought to be stopped."

Emery Describes Country Around Mesa Verde

Delaplaine stood up suddenly. "I just wanted you to know," he said awkwardly. "I was ready to worry it out by myself..."

There was no one on the lower floor of the hotel when Frazer went out, but the street was still full of people. Men were gathered everywhere...

He found Carson Emery alone and went straight to the point. "It looks like the storm is ready to break, Car. Can you clear me up on a little geography?"

"Plenty of 'em. That was the section where the first silver strikes were made, before anybody discovered that the copper business was going to be the real thing..."

"No. That's about due north of here. Maybe seven or eight miles." "Any other ranches near there?"

"Two reasons. I'm trying to get an idea about how Miss Bartell is situated at the ranch, and I'm trying to narrow the field a little in locating Bartell's munitions." "Emery stared. 'I don't...' "

"In a minute. Now what about the country east of town? Any mines in that direction? Or trails?" "Nothin' but rocks. Old lava beds. The mine strikes have been west and south. But what's... ?"

"I figure it this way. There's one lead that makes it look as though the guns were hidden somewhere to the west. Naturally Bartell had to hide his stuff where it would be accessible and yet safe from detection..."

Emery rubbed his chin thoughtfully. "Well, there's only one main trail outa town, but it branches into a regular tangle after you hit the first hills. There's a regular road across to the Blue Bell workin'..."

"Snagg and Jess Ames are headin' outa town. They must have saddled up while I was talkin' to you. Kranz won't open his trap about it, but that's a giveaway in itself. He knows I'm kinda soft on Helen Bartell, and he don't figure to let me know that he's sendin' anybody out after her."

"Hey! What's all this?" Emery wanted to know. "Tell him, Ed," Frazer chimed in.

"Look like we got callers, Miss Helen," he greeted. "I don't like the looks o' things too much. Any guns on hand?"

manded, heading for the door. "I'm on my way."

Frazer Follows Trail To the Bartell Place

The trail wound into wooded, mountain country where there was wasteland so characteristic of the border lands. He had time to recognize the fact that Bartell had chosen well in picking his location for a summer home...

Then he came upon something which first puzzled him and then brought added fears to the weight of worry he was carrying. The two riders who had preceded him had left the trail of the buckboard, only to return again with reinforcements.

He hesitated momentarily, then sent his mount into the side trail which must lead to the outlaw camp. Even at the expense of a few minutes' delay it might be worth while to have the extra information. Certainly he did not want to go forward without knowing that his rear was clear of enemies.

Less than a hundred feet from the trail he found the camp site. A fire still smoked, even though it had been recently wet down and everything pointed to a hasty departure. He was already turning his mount when he saw something which caught his attention. Lying beneath a tree was a length of material which showed dark stains. A wounded man had been there, and he had recently had a change of bandages.

The trail rounded a bend of the valley and he could see that it was not far to where the lowland narrowed into a canyon. He halted to survey the scene carefully, and as he did so his alert ear caught the flat bang of a gunshot. It seemed to come from somewhere above the canyon he was inspecting, and he estimated it to be not more than a quarter mile distant.

He put spurs to his bronc and drove headlong into the lower valley, the sound of clattering hoofs under him almost covering the sound of a second gunshot. Black fear rolled into his mind as he contemplated the meaning of those two shots. No one was putting up much of a defense with no more shooting than that. The prospect was more ominous than he liked to think about.

The thought did not distract him from the knowledge that he proposed to finish the job. The shooting was not far ahead now, and once he caught a glimpse of a long, rambling log house on the mountainside. Accordingly he dismounted, Bartell himself had collected and hidden. The supposition is that if Candine and his bandits had the powder and guns they would start carrying out large-scale depredations on both sides of the border.

Helen Bartell did not utter a word for a full half hour after leaving Mesa Verde. She was angry at her father, angry at herself and at a little more than angry at Dan Frazer. It hurt her pride to realize that she had acted from jealous impulse...

"Who's started what?" Frazer snapped as Emery came out of his chair with a leap. "Snagg and Jess Ames are headin' outa town. They must have saddled up while I was talkin' to you..."

Helen Realizes She Has Acted Jealously

Then she threw off the mood, on the surface, at least, and began to talk. "Don't mind if I'm pretty quiet, mister," she announced. "I'm just not too happy about coming out here. I suppose it's for the best but... By the way, what's your name? In all the excitement I didn't think to ask you last night."

The prospector twisted his brown wrinkles into genial grin. "Wenslow," he replied cautiously. "Buttermilk Wenslow."

"That's an odd one. Is Buttermilk your real name or is it just one of those things that happen to people out here?"

He grinned again. "Just a handle. They hung that on me because o' my drinkin' habits, it's about the only thing I ain't been knowed to swallow."

He seemed to realize that she was blowing off her anger in conversational steam, and they went on up the trail with the girl doing most of the talking. Buttermilk Wenslow was actually beginning to enjoy himself by the time they had climbed the grade and swung into the narrow level space behind the log house...

It was then that he saw the flicker of movement down the valley. There were riders on the back trail. For a moment he wondered if that tall young fellow had decided to follow Helen Bartell, but then he knew that no swain would come on such errand with so much company. There must have been three or four men down the valley.

Showing surprising agility for a man of his years he dashed into the ranch house, keeping his voice surprisingly calm. "Looks like we got callers, Miss Helen," he greeted. "I don't like the looks o' things too much. Any guns on hand?"

She stared in some surprise. "What do you mean?" "Jest what I said. I spotted three-four men down the valley and headin' this way. Any rifles around?"

"But what makes you think they would be dangerous?" "Everybody's dangerous around these parts. Anyhow that big fellow told me to take good care o' you. Where's a gun that'll amount to somethin'? I never could hit nothin' with one o' these here hawlgles."

The two strangers were within a hundred feet of the house when the smaller man made a quick gesture to his wounded companion. Instantly Wenslow raised his rifle and yelled, "Pull up right there, compadres. There's a slug fer any waddy that gits too close."

Out of the corner of his tense mouth he muttered to Helen Bartell, "It's the little left-handed jasper. I reckon you know him, don't you?" The girl stared in some surprise. "I don't know him at all," she denied. "Why did you stop them? That man is wounded and needs help."

Wenslow had no opportunity to explain. Already the little man was shouting a complaint. "Yo' hadn't ought hold us up like this, mister. My pardner's been shot. Ain't yo' goin' to give us a bit o' help?"

"We'll help them," Helen Bartell said swiftly. "We ain't doin' nothin' o' the kind," Wenslow retorted grimly. "That big jigger told me to look out sharp for a little left-handed critter. And I'm lookin' out."

THE BIBLE SPEAKS International Uniform Sunday School Lessons BY DR. KENNETH J. FOREMAN

SCRIPTURE: Genesis 1-2; Psalm 104; John 1:1-3. DEVOTIONAL READING: Psalm 19: 1-6.

God Invented Us

"GOD INVENTED it," says C. S. Lewis about the universe. It is a 20th-century way of saying what the Bible says about God and the world. There have been whole religious based on the idea that God is good and spirit is good, but anything which is not God or not spirit is bad...

Dr. Foreman

This is not the truth the Bible tells. The story of Creation in Genesis tells us that when God had finished with making the world he saw that it was good, very good. He invented the world, he invented spirit and matter both, he invented us body and soul. Whatever evil is now in the world and in man did not come from God, it is not a mistake of God's. The world, as God invented it and intends it, is good.

The World Did not Happen

THE Christian church has changed some of its ideas about creation, but it has never ceased to believe in creation. Very few churches, if any, now affirm that the world was created in precisely six 24-hour days, and still fewer would be willing to name the dates on which creation took place.

Nevertheless the Christian church has not given up, and will not give up, her belief that God created all things. The doctrine of creation means, first of all, that the one God willed the universe and what is in it.

The universe did not happen, it did not make itself. It was not made by different gods working against one another. Zoroastrianism, for instance, teaches that the world was made by two gods, one of light and one of darkness. Whatever the god of light created, the god of darkness would make something exactly opposite. No, Jews and Christians alike say, there is only one Creator, the infinitely wise and good God.

Nature's Laws

NON-RELIGIOUS philosophers have sometimes said that the world explains itself. But Christian philosophers, not to mention Jewish ones as well, have seen that the world does not explain itself. There is too much evidence of purpose and design running through the patterns of the universe. Definite laws can be discovered and to some degree understood.

The same laws which govern matter on this planet, and indeed the very same elements, the "building-blocks of the universe," are to be discovered in the remotest stars. If the universe were an accident it would not be tied together as it is.

It would not be a universe of law but one in which nothing could be counted on, nothing expected. It would be no universe but a multi-universe, a mad world, indeed no world at all but an infinite confusion.

Why Are We Here?

BUT CREATION means something more personal. It means that we ourselves have been called into existence by the Almighty,—not by a god of mere sheer power, but by the one God of infinite and all-powerful Love. Man is not here on this planet by some trick of blind fate, mankind is not a mere fleck of foam tossed up by the restless ocean of the Infinite soon to be washed away in the ebbing tides. Man—that means also, we ourselves—are God's invention.

We are not now as he intended us, to be sure; sin has changed the picture sadly, as we shall be thinking next week. Why are we here? We are here because God put us here. This means that life has a meaning; but also that we cannot find that meaning without knowing the will of God. His will is for our welfare; only the Creator knows what is best for his creatures. God intended this world to be used by us, not abused.

When any man or group of men get the notion that this world belongs to them alone; or when one generation misuses the resources of the lands and the waters, leaving to their descendants a wasted earth, then God's will in creation is being defied. But when we take his will as life's guide, we are on the way to fulfilling his purpose in Creation.

Little Iron Curtain

FOR MOST of one day I have driven along what is sometimes called "the little iron curtain"—the border where Yugoslavia and Albania meet, for Yugoslavia enjoys the unenviable distinction of being squeezed between two sections of the iron curtain with Bulgaria and Hungary on one side and Albania on the other.

How tiny, primitive Albania—chiefly a Mohammedan country—happened to fall for Russian communism has always been a mystery to me, I lived on the Albanian border for two years after the first World War, once crossed it on horseback, and its people at that time were rugged individualists who hated all governments, including their own, with the passion of Pennsylvania's high-tariff Joe Grundy.

At any rate, the border between Russianized Albania and anti-Russian Yugoslavia now is studded with armed guards, and strangers are not permitted within 20 kilometers (about 12½ miles). I managed to remember enough of the local language to talk my way past the first guard in the restricted zone and thereafter managed to talk my way past guards who stopped our jeep every half hour until we had passed through the old Turkish Albanian city of Prizerend, the border town of Jakovizta, and Deceny monastery—one of the oldest in Serbia, but it now bristles with armament.

Denounce Russians

My purpose in visiting this isolated, desolate part of the Balkans was partly sentimental, partly to see whether the United States is getting credit for its good program, partly to gauge Yugoslav sentiment toward Russia and the United States in an area far from the official blarney handed out by the diplomats in Belgrade.

Regarding the food program, the United States has given the Yugoslav government $60,000,000 worth of flour with the understanding that they sell it through their regular ration system but making it clear that the flour comes from us. Its distribution was organized under Richard Allen of Carmel, Calif., a former Hoover food man who has also arranged for American inspectors to travel through the country. I traveled part of the time with one of these inspectors—efficient George Trett—as he interviewed local officials and local farmers and it appears the United States is getting credit.

Thirty years ago I had charge of 100 Bulgar prisoners in a diminutive Serbian village called Debro Do, which means good valley—but the valley wasn't good, because it had been burned out by the Bulgarian army and my job was to rebuild the homes of Serbian widows, using Bulgarian prisoners for labor. We also had a transport company of 100 mules and 100 conscripted Albanian mule drivers who every night sat around campfires—the Albanians, the Bulgar prisoners and their Serbian guards discussing war and what caused war.

That was in 1919 and they recalled that in 1912 Serbia and Greece had fought Turkey, then in 1913 Bulgaria had fought Serbia and Greece, and in 1914 the World War started. Thus for six long years the Balkans were plunged in war—war which neither the Serbian guards nor their Bulgarian prisoners nor the Albanian conscripts wanted. Their hope, they said, was Woodrow Wilson—he was going to proclaim a new world in which there would be eternal peace.

Lesson for U. S.

Well, the years have come and gone since then. Woodrow Wilson tried and failed, and Dobro Do since then once again was ravished—this time by the Germans, later by the Italians—and then liberated by the Russians who, at times, acted more like conquerors than liberators.

This is the history of a typical Balkan village and when you look round at the poverty which always follows in the wake of war you understand why there is communism in the Balkans, for people who are poor, who are bred white, who have nothing to lose, turn in their desperation to desperate remedies.

Rental Racket

A new racket has sprung up in crowded west coast cities, such as San Diego and Los Angeles. Rental agents are trying to cash in on the housing shortage by selling leads to apartment hunters. A fee of five or ten dollars is charged for rental leads, which usually turn out to be apartments already rented.

This practice may not be illegal. However, in San Diego, the better business bureau has privately warned some rental agents.

IF YOU DON'T FEEL GOOD

Don't Put Off Finding Relief

HADACOL May Bring the Relief You Are Seeking If Your Condition Is Due to Lack of Vitamins B1, B2, Niacin and Iron.

If more folks would remember the old saying, "Don't put off until tomorrow what you can do today," there's no telling how much better off they'd all be. And the worst thing about it all is that folks usually put off the most important things until a later date. For instance, there are a lot of folks who don't feel like they should you put off doing something about it. Luther Harris, 516 Chestnut St., Bowling Green, Kentucky, didn't feel good for a time, but he acted when he heard how HADACOL was helping people suffering from nervousness, aches and pains and run down condition caused by deficiencies of Vitamins B1, B2, Iron and Niacin. Yes, Mr. Harris started taking HADACOL and now he says he feels good.

Here is what he says: "For quite some time I was nervous and run-down, and I suffered from aches and pains. I was weak, and I could hardly do a day's work. I started taking HADACOL and from my first bottle I felt better. Now I feel good, and I can do a good day's work. I am still taking HADACOL and I wouldn't do without it. I praise HADACOL very highly."

HADACOL Attacks Real Cause Remember, HADACOL is not a quick-acting product that only attacks the symptoms of your ailments, but actually relieves the real cause of these disturbances when due to such deficiencies. If your druggist does not have HADACOL, order direct from The LeBlanc Co., Inc., Lafayette, Louisiana. Send no money. Just your name and address on a penny post card. Pay postman. State whether you want the $3.50 family economy size or $1.25 trial size. Remember, money cheerfully refunded unless you are 100% satisfied. Adv.

SPORTSMAN'S HORIZON

By JIM RHODY

Popular Guy

"Inch for inch and pound for pound, the game fish that swims." That's the tribute paid many years ago to the black bass by Dr. Walter Henshall, a tribute famous in the lore of bass angling. But it remained for James Heddon's Sons, Dowagiac, Mich., to come up with the most complete dossier ever assembled on his majesty, the largemouth black bass. The Heddon people declare: An unpredictable, but loveable scoundrel, the largemouth black bass is appropriately called the king of American game fish. Its many and mixed traits make it the most sought-after game fish in the world. Tossed together in its makeup are courage, stamina, viciousness, cunning, versatility, stubbornness, fight and—just pure cussedness.

At times it will turn from the most attractive artificial bait to gobble up a worm or minnow. Again, it will pass up the most luscious-looking gob of worms to smash viciously at the homeliest of plugs... Due to extensive transplanting, the largemouth is now found in nearly every state of the union, Canada and Mexico. Also it has been introduced successfully into France, Germany and South Africa... Look for the largemouth in fresh-water lakes, ponds, rivers, creeks and canals. Around lily pads, rushes, reeds, weeds, logs, sunken tree trunks, eroded pockets or deep holes... The world's record largemouth, caught on rod and reel, was taken by George W. Perry in Montgomery Lake, Georgie, on June 2, 1932. It weighed 22 pounds and four ounces. The average size, taking the country as a whole, would be from one to two pounds, but in the south the average is higher... No snooty aristocrat, the largemouth will please the live-bait angler by killing anything resembling worms, insects, frogs, crawfish, minnows, field mice, small birds, snakes and even young muskrats. On the prowl, the largemouth will smash with equal vigor at wet or dry flies, surface or underwater plugs, spoons, bucktails or spinner-and-fly combinations to the delight of the artificial bait man.

Lightest Spool

Of particular interest to the light-tackle devotee is the new, light-weight spool being featured in several of Bronson's 1951 line of light-weight reels. Claiming it to be the lightest spool on the market, the company points out that the new spool is machined all over, including the inside and is perfectly balanced. It weighs only 33/64 of an ounce, yet is rugged and durable. This spool is going into all the Coxie cross-bolt reels and is a feature of the model 30-C. shown here. This spool will give the caster unparalleled control of his lure, however light, and make for easier and far more enjoyable plug-casting.

Visual Checkup Need

According to a recent release by the Remington Arms company, accidents in the hunting field are not always caused by trigger-happy guys at the butt-ends of deadly weapons. The release cites the possibility that many hunting-field accidents may have been caused by color blindness.

For many years authorities on hunting have recommended that gunners who barge forth in the deep woods should wear some RED apparel, such as cap, coat or neckerchief. This practice undoubtedly has saved a number of lives.

The reason, according to Dr. Elmer M. Soles, director of the American Optometric association's department of public information, may be because of the physical defect of color blindness in so many persons.

"Contrary to general belief, a bright color is not the best safeguard against hunting accidents," says Dr. Soles. "because about 140,000 licensed hunters are color blind. 'To be sure you are seen by fellow hunters, wear a cap or jacket in a bold pattern of black and white. Some part of a hunter's costume should contrast with scenery.'"

Far Afield

The black duck, well-known eastern rival of the mallard in the favor of sportsmen of that area, is wandering far afield these days.

Several specimens, identified as black ducks, were shot on the west coast in Oregon and California during the season recently closed.

While it is not known if this is the first appearance of the species in the Pacific flyway, it is rare, and the hunters had some difficulty in establishing proper identification.

To keep drawer knobs tight, cut a small round washer from sandpaper about one and one-half inches in diameter and slip it over the screw on the inside of the drawer between the nut and the wood. Then when the screw is tightened the abrasive surface of the sandpaper will hold the knob securely.
