Fine Achievement Day Program

Awards Made for Past Seasons Projects

The 1951 Spring Achievement Day Program was the best yet. There were 100 exhibits of clothing handcraft, electrical, tractor maintenance, good grooming and knitting articles. There were six demonstration teams vying for the privilege to represent the county at the Gaylord 4-H Camp in July.

The program this year had several new features. A handcraft contest, sponsored by the Tawas Herald, had five contestants representing the five clubs in Isosco County. The first place award, a Diston cross cut saw, was won by Harry Herriman of Grant Township Club led by Stanley Van-Sickle. The second place award, a Stanley level, went to Wayne Bischoff of Tawas Township. The third place award was won by Kenneth Anschuetz also of the Tawas Township 4-H Club. Franklin Bischoff is the leader for that group.

In the Electrical contest, Jack Burt of the Grant 4-H Club won a pair of electrician pliers. The set of screw drivers went to George Strauer of the Sherman Township Club and the circuit tester was taken by Charles Binder of the Grant 4-H Club. These awards were sponsored by Hale Hardware in Hale.

The East Tawas 4-H Club had an abundance of talent in their demonstration teams. The demonstration of Gailya Worth and Dorothy West presented "Personality Unlimited." They will be the delegate team to go to Gaylord. The team of Loraine Welch and Veronica Blust presented a demonstration on "Care of the Skin." This team was designated the 2nd place winner with "Care of the Hair."

presented by Eldene Zaharias and Elaine Mothing was third. The demonstration on ironing presented by Charlene McCall and Beverly Werth was recommended for further consideration. There being designated a team to go to Gaylord Camp.

Plainfield Pioneer Farmer Passes Away

Services for Charles D. Love Held Saturday Afternoon

Charles D. Love, pioneer Plainfield township resident, died last week Wednesday at Tolfree Hospital, West Branch, after a short illness. He had reached the age of 84 years.

He was one of Isosco County's successful farmers. During the lumbering days he was an expert river driver, and had worked on rivers in the Upper Peninsula and Wisconsin, as well as the AuSable and AuGres rivers here. While in the Upper Peninsula he was employed in the lumber camps at Seney.

Charles D. Love, youngest son of David and Emmaliza Love, was born in Tyrone township, Livingstone County, on September 6, 1866. When he was four years old his parents moved to Isosco County and took up a homestead not far from Indian Lake. The family lived at various times in the Block House at Indian Lake, The Finkle House and other houses in that vicinity. During this time he attended the Laidlaw school. In 1888 he purchased land in Plainfield township near Hale, upon which he resided at the time of his death.

He was united in marriage on November 5, 1890 to Ella May Graves. To this union two sons were born, Ellsworth M. and an infant son died shortly after the mothers passing in July 1892. In 1896 he married Bertha May Soper, who passed away in May 1924. He is survived by four children, Merlin Love of San Mateo, California, Claude Love of Mount Pleasant, George Love and Helen McAndrews of Flint and eight grandchildren. Burial was in the Evergreen cemetery at Hale with Rev. Roland Brooks officiating.

He held various township offices and was a life member of Hale Grange 1063, in which he was active until his death.

Those from out of town that attended the funeral were: Mrs. Marion Love, Elaine and Byron of Midland; Burt and Ray Parliment and Mrs. Vera Hall of West Branch; Mrs. Vera Monroe of Midland; Mr. and Mrs. Charles Westervelt of Henderson; Mr. and Mrs. William Mildebrandt of Birmingham, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Meindel of Lake Orion; Mr. and Mrs. Ted Soper and family, Mrs. Iva Soper and Fern, Mr. and Mrs. Gerry Decker, all of Saginaw; Mr. and Mrs. Mike Daley, Leo, John and Rose of Mio; Mr. and Mrs. Louis Katterman of Tawas City and Mr. and Mrs. Perry Shellenbarger of Flint.

Send in Your Red Cross Contribution

Anyone who has not been contacted by a Red Cross worker and desires to contribute please send donations to city chairman, Mrs. J. F. Mark before April 10.

The Red Cross needs your help and Tawas City would like to meet its quota as it has always done in years past.

When we realize the demand of Home Service since the Korean situation, the need is becoming as serious as World War II. So let us as American citizens endeavor to do our part to make our quota this year.

Coach Company Employees Pledge $10,000

Appreciate Necessity Of Modern Hospital In Community

Anderson Coach Company of East Tawas are pledging more than $10,000.00 to the Tawas Hospital fund. Ray Thompson, Secretary-Treasurer of the company reports that a payroll deduction plan gives every employee an opportunity to make his contribution on an installment basis.

This plan of contributing is made possible by the good cooperation of the Anderson Coach Company who always have been keenly interested in the welfare of the community and who appreciate the necessity of a modern hospital here. Charles Shalderbrand, president of the company is a member of the Board of Directors of the Tawas Hospital Association and is the Financial Secretary.

Other industries in the area have also inaugurated this payroll deduction plan or are in the process of organizing it.

Detailed plans are near completion for letting bids on the new hospital. The Hospital Board is confident that the pledges will be met satisfactorily so that work on the new building will begin within the next two months.

Expect to Build Five New Hospitals

Construction on five new community hospitals, including those at West Branch and the Tawas is expected to begin in late spring or early summer, Governor Williams announced last week.

He said plans for hospitals at Ionia, Marshall, Yale and Tawas have been completed and sent to federal officials for approval. Plans for the Tolfree Memorial Hospital at West Branch have already been approved.

Federal funds will be granted to match local contributions to pay for construction if plans are approved, he explained.

The Ionia hospital will include 50 beds, Yale 26 beds, Tawas 37 beds and Marshall 45 beds, Williams said.

World War Veterans Enjoy American Legion Supper

World War I veterans were entertained Monday evening by veterans of World War II at the Tawas City American Legion Post. More than 75 veterans and guests were in attendance.

After enjoying a beaver supper prepared by Post Cook Clyde Evril and his assistants, the men were entertained with moving pictures and a sleight of hand performance. The pictures were presented by Conservation Officer Arthur Leitz and included a conservation story and beautiful scenes in the Porcupine Mountain State Park.

Father Robert Smith then successfully demonstrated that the hand is quicker than the eye to the enjoyment of everyone present. His volunteer assistants, the three Hindu musicians and Dr. John D. LeClair, helped to highlight the evening's entertainment.

D&M Employees Guests in Final Passenger Train Run

As the last passenger train on the Detroit and Mackinac Railroad, last Saturday morning on its final run from Alpena to Bay City, made its stop at the depot in Tawas City, a group of people on a section handcar rolled up to the platform, out of the 1880's to "catch the train."

The gentlemen in top hats, derbies and frock coats, and the ladies in equal splendor, typical of the era in which the Detroit and Mackinac ran its first passenger trains, boarded the train. They were equipped with all traveling accessories, including food for the long journey to Bay City. (One top-hatted gentleman carried two long loaves of rye bread and a sack of bologna.) Prepared for any emergency, they were accompanied by "Digger O'Dell, the Friendly Undertaker."

The final run from Alpena to Bay City last Saturday brought out 300 passengers, which included employees, retired D. & M. workers and other guests. Carrying extra coaches, the train stopped at all stations for its passengers. After an enjoyable trip the whole group of 300 people were luncheon guests of the railroad company at the Wenona Masonic Temple, Bay City. This was followed by a theatre party. Buses were provided the guests for transportation in the city.

Included in the luncheon program was a talk by Charles A. Pinkerton, Jr., president of the railroad, and group singing, with N. W. Salsbery master of ceremonies, acting as song leader.

Members of the train crew on the final run were: Conductor Harvey McMurray, Engineer Henry Timreck, Fireman Amos Galbraith, Brakeman Frank Wojewski and Baggageman Frank Ludwick.

U. N. Forces Near 38th Parallel; Johnston Wants New Parity Ruling

Spring Offensive

IF RUSSIA follows the doctrine of the famous German war strategist, Count Karl von Clausewitz, as it has in the past, it would seem likely that Moscow would order an attack on Yugoslavia some time this spring, for Clausewitz taught that the time to make war is when you are strongest and your potential enemy is weakest. The moment your enemy begins gaining strength, according to the war theory followed by the Germans and Russians for the last hundred years, then it's time to strike.

A careful, cold-blooded diagnosis of Russian strategy in the past shows rather definitely that they expected the United States to fall apart at the seams economically after V-J day in 1946. The depression which even some American economists expected after the war was banked on by Moscow to start unemployment, unrest and riots and either bring the United States into the Communist orbit without war or else make military victory easier for the Russians. Certainly the expected depression, Moscow figured, would bring communism to Europe.

And there was a time, late in 1947, when this strategy almost succeeded in Europe. This was when droughts, plus a Communist-inspired strike of Italian harvest hands, plus French railroad and shipping strikes, plus riots and general war discouragement had certain European democracies near the toppling point. It was at this crucial time that such American aid as the friendship trains, followed by a special session of congress which voted food for hungry Europeans, followed by the Marshall plan, broke the back of the Communist drive to take over Europe.

Since then the pro-American democracies in Europe have been getting stronger while the Communist movement is getting weaker. Moscow definitely missed the boat in those immediate postwar years and now is faced with the quandary of whether it may miss the boat again or whether it should cold-bloodedly precipitate a war, for the beginning in earnest of European rearmament under General Eisenhower means that the military advantage now enjoyed by Moscow soon must pass from its hands. Unpleasant as the contemplation of those facts may be, unless these facts are met face and no more carefully than the one nation which dared to thumb its nose at Moscow—Yugoslavia.

Tito Knows Russian Traits

When talking privately, the man who now bosses Yugoslavia is extremely frank about the danger of an attack on his country this spring.

Tito also expressed the view that, if the Russians attack, they will drive through the British zone of Austria, skirt one side of Trieste, and advance down the unguarded Dalmatian coast. This would cut off all Adriatic seaports and make it impossible for the United States to send military aid to him.

Simultaneously, Tito predicted, the Bulgarian army would advance from the opposite direction to cut off the rail line from Yugoslavia to Salonika (Greece). He added that, in anticipation of such an attack, he had established a series of hidden forts in the hills along the Dalmatian coast—forts that are well stocked with food and ammunition and could hold out for some time.

"I am not worried about an attack by satellite armies," Tito said. "The Hungarians, Poles and Czechs will not fight. The Bulgarians will fight better because they have been promised Macedonia. However," he added, "if the Red army itself attacks, that is something else again."

Tito also expressed the opinion that Moscow did not want the Korean war to spread and actually had tried to hold back the Chinese from taking the offensive against the U. N. forces there. He based this view on his own experiences with the Kremlin; also because the Russians had sent Yugoslav, Polish and other satellite nationals to work in China in an attempt to cement the Soviet orbit through an exchange of personnel. Some of these Yugoslavs, he said, had reported their impressions of Russo-Chinese relations back to him.

Vigorous in his denunciation of Russia, Tito said "We do not propose to become an appendage of Russia." Then to his American friend he added, with a smile, "not of America, either."

Well-Trained Troops

Perhaps the most important fact about present American aid to Yugoslavia is that, in effect, we are buying the support of 32 Yugoslav divisions. This brings up the all-important questions: are they prepared and will they last longer than the Yugoslav army in 1941?

The answers are obviously difficult. However, American military observers recently have been permitted to inspect Yugoslav troops and consider them well trained.

WHERE TO NOW?—Grim, pipe-smoking Douglas MacArthur took time out from directing a war in Korea and his duties as top man in Japan to tell newsmen U. N. forces were insufficient in numbers to hold a line at the 38th parallel. He pointed out that there are no natural defense features anywhere near its immediate proximity.

The general's statement brought to the front again the question of what happens now that the Chinese have abandoned their last great defense center below the parallel and have retreated into North Korea. Do U. N. forces advance beyond the line and continue their campaign?

The British government has insisted for weeks, as a political matter, that the parallel was far as U. N. forces should pursue the Reds. This view was backed by a number of United Nations members.

In Washington the situation was put like this: If the U. N. succeeds in smashing the next expected Communist offensive and the Reds then continue retreating, how far north should the U. N. forces go?

Prodding, hard-working Matthew Ridgway, commander in Korea, wanted a quick answer as his troops stood poised along the line. If his advance was stopped it meant a stalemate in the war and the dirty business of preparing a defense line on unfavorable terrain. If he was given the go-ahead signal it meant more of his slow but thorough tactics of "operation killer."

MEAT MAKERS—A big man in a pearl-gray ten-gallon hat stiffened, turned purple, and brought his polished boots from desk to floor with a crash: "This is the most outlandish thing those fools in Washington ever thought up," he exploded.

One of 2,500 ranchers attending a cattle raisers meeting in Dallas, he was expressing the view of fellow cattlemen who had just heard a government plan to roll back cattle prices 10 to 20 per cent.

That view of the government's attempt to hold down inflation and to regulate prices was not confined to his group. The automobile industry, labor, grain farmers, steel, and numerous others continued their screams. The cattlemen were just a little more colorful.

Cattlemen said a roll-back of prices would force curtailment of production and encourage black markets. Like farmers throughout the nation, they argued that production costs have advanced and that increased supply will regulate prices.

Said one rancher: "You can't control what the public is willing to pay for meat."

FOOD PRICES—Eric Johnston, the former fair-haired boy of the movie industry, lately turned economic stabilizer for the government, sent word to the White House he had found the way to hold down food prices.

Smiling Eric reported that the "parity extension" provision is the key to inability to keep food prices in line. So long as he and Michael DiSalle, the chubby price controller, cannot touch a food price until it gets above a "parity" that moves in a rapidly ascending spiral, they cannot control inflation.

This, Johnston said, is the heart of the problem. Unless food prices can be held and rolled back, there will be no holding wages. And if wages continue to go up, industrial prices and "parity" will keep on climbing and the economy will be torn apart.

Johnston has about as much chance of getting congress to repudiate parity as he would of getting Iowa to stop growing corn. Nevertheless, he recommended: (1) A change in the "parity exemption" provision of the present law; (2) authority to use subsidies to hold prices in line; (3) extended licensing powers; (4) adequate authority to handle labor disputes.

THE HOT SEAT—The hottest spot in the U. S. the past several weeks has been the witness chair at the senate crime investigating committee's hearing in New York. Occupying that seat has been gambling kingpin Frank Costello and handsome William O'Dwyer, former mayor of New York, now U. S. ambassador to Mexico.

The committee was trying to prove that Costello controls a gambling syndicate that reaches to the Main Streets of America. As for O'Dwyer, the committee wanted to know if there is any connection between gambling and big-time politicians in New York.

The hot seat really got hot when Senator Tobey, balding and acid-tongued member of the committee, asked O'Dwyer why such a "prominent man" as he should trot to the home of Costello to ask his advice and counsel.

O'Dwyer said he was carrying out an army assignment, adding, "They say there's a lot of it (bookmaking) in New Hampshire."

"Well, we haven't a Costello in New Hampshire," Tobey roared.

"I wonder," O'Dwyer retorted, adding that Tobey had sent to New York for campaign funds.

"It's not true," Tobey shouted. "I'm under oath," O'Dwyer bristled. "You're not."

To which Tobey roared, "I'm not a fourflusher."

All of which provided 15,000,000 television fans with a spectacular show, putting soap operas to shame. What it provided in the way of facts concerning gambling in the U. S. is anybody's guess.

POLITICS—The 1952 presidential campaign was again in the news with a published report that President Truman made a deal with General Eisenhower to make Ike available in 1952.

According to the story, widely published throughout the U. S., the President told Ike that one Harry Truman did not want to be accused of exiling a potential powerful contender for the honors of the White House. The general, in his usual blunt and straight-forward way, attempted to kill the story. His statement said "the President has never mentioned to me any political possibilities of 1952 whatsoever."

That should have been that, but rumors persist that Eisenhower will be available in 1952 to one of the major parties. As things stand now it would appear he could win hands down.

RENT CONTROL—A 90-day extension of the rent control law was passed by the house after heated debate. The measure already has been enacted by the senate. It was sent to the White House where the President was expected to sign it without delay. It becomes effective April 1 and expires June 30.

House members pushing the measure argued decontrol would interfere with recruiting workers for defense production and lift limits in defense and military districts.

CROP PROSPECTS

1951 Production May Set New Record

With a break in the weather, American crop production in 1951 may set a record, but whether the peak output is the answer to spiraling food prices is the big question, even for the nation's farmers.

One favorable trend is the growing number of beef cattle and hogs, sources of a major item in the country's diet. Cattle numbers are now at 84,200,000 head, compared with a low of 78,000,000 in 1948.

Stocks of wheat and corn, raw material for meat and dairy products, are ample and without acreage restrictions. Winter wheat planting is up one-sixth over last year. Indications in the midwest corn belt point toward another bumper planting this spring, officials of the department of agriculture said in a recent report.

ROUND-THE-CLOCK EVACUATION WORK IN KOREAN WAR . . . A dramatic illustration of the heroic role being played on the battlefields of Korea by the transport evacuation planes which fly over the front lines, pick up the wounded of the United Nations forces and wing their way swiftly and safely to emergency hospitals with their precious cargoes. Here, somewhere over the Korean front, one such transport is shown flying through a cloud of smoke rising from the wreckage of another plane.

President Truman, vacationing at the "little White House" at the naval base at Key West, defended his administration at a news conference. He said his staff was made up of honorable men.

RED RADIO STATION IS IN BRITISH SECTOR OF BERLIN . . . One of the many incongruities in divided Berlin is the fact that the Communist Radio Berlin, sending out anti-western propaganda, is in the heart of the British sector. The British authorities have erected the sign warning the unwary that Radio Berlin is Red. This was made necessary after reports that a number of East Germans came to West Berlin to contact a western station to give valuable information on Soviet conditions only to find they were reporting to the Soviet-controlled Radio Berlin. They were arrested by secret police and whisked away to the Soviet sector.

A HORSE AND A FIDDLE . . . Tete-a-tete with Mrs. Hans Dittsheim at the "Bal des Chapeaux" in New York is Rene Jean Teillard, sporting a horse's head as fancy lid. Her bonnet is a violin. Society turned out in a big way for the event, staged for the benefit of the student ticket endowment fund of the New York Philharmonic Society, enabling public school children to get cstrate concert tickets. The motif of the evening seems to be "Hi diddle diddle, a horse and a fiddle."

ENTERS RFC PICTURE . . . Rep. Wayne Hays (D., Ohio) charges that Republican National Chairman Guy Gabrielson (above) had obtained an 18.5 million dollar loan for his company, Carthage Hydrocol, Inc.

BLIMP HAS BAD TIME . . . This U. S. navy patrol blimp crashed into the Pasquotank river near Camden, N. C., hurling Pilot Lt. John Vaughn into the water. He swam ashore. The craft rose with the rest of the crew and crashed a second time. Crash crew tried to take the blimp in tow, but it broke away. It finally came to rest in a corn field after drifting helplessly for two hours. After temporary repairs, the blimp was re-inflated and flown back to its base at Weeksville, N. C.

LOOKS FOR LOOT . . . Sylvia Shepherd will be only woman in 12-man crew that will sail from England soon in search of Captain Kidd's treasure. She holds a couple of Kidd's silver buttons. Her husband will lead expedition.

Inflation Battle

THE QUESTION of whether we are winning the inflation fight, which is an integral factor in the fight against communism, is probably the most discussed topic in the nation today, especially here in Washington.

From the political angle, it depends on which side of the fence you are standing; from the economic angle it depends on whether you are looking at the picture from an immediate dollars and cents angle or from the perspective of the long pull.

The most important question however, is whether the American people are really trying to win this fight, whether they are back of the program now in effect wholeheartedly, or whether they are standing aside and watching the men placed in control of the controls agencies but their heads ineffectually against a stone wall.

Allan Kline, president of the AFBF, says, "We are opposed to price, wage and ration controls." Price and wage controls are in effect. He further says the real cure lies in increased production, strict government economy, pay-as-we-go taxation, effective credit controls, and sound management of the public debt. We have increased production. We have credit controls and a pay-as-we-go tax has been asked for by the President. Whether we have strict government economy or sound management of the public debt, is another moot question.

Labor leaders have walked out of the controls picture. They call it a "lockout." Walter Reuther, UAW-CIO president, says the "so-called price control order is a fraud on the American people." Thus we have leaders of the two largest segments of the people opposed to efforts now being made to halt price rises and inflation. Certainly there is no spirit of cooperation manifest there.

Now comes Eric Johnston, the director of economic stabilization, who says both labor and farmers are wrong. Johnston admits in the seven weeks he has been boss of the stabilization program nothing spectacular has happened, that cost and wage increases have not stopped. But, he says the rate in increase has been stopped and "that's the first victory in battling inflation."

Admits Mistakes

Johnston admits he has made mistakes, that he will make more, that he has much to learn, that he has stepped on toes, but that his choice has been between making painful progress forward, step by step, or being frightened to a standstill by people who yell "ouch." Johnston says he believes the farmer wants fair treatment and equal consideration, that industry wants the same thing, that labor wants that too, that all farmers, labor and industry are equally determined to do what is necessary to preserve a free America. But what they seek is only what THEY consider fair treatment for themselves. So what is fair treatment, he asks? No group is going to agree exactly with the others, or with him. But there must be an umpire. So umpiring will be his job and he's going to "call 'em like I see 'em."

Washington Silhouettes

One of the most venerable figures around Washington and the national press club is an old-timer — tall, lean, white-thatched Earl Venable, who came down here as a young newspaper man as secretary to Senator Borah back in 1908. For the past twelve years he has been secretary to the national Republican congressional committee. Before coming to Washington he was editor of the Idaho Statesman at Boise, and his father, Bert Venable, was a printer and publisher of the weekly Payette Independent, where Earl cut his newspaper teeth. Only recently Earl was retired as active secretary of the committee, although he is retained in a consultative capacity. . . . Senator Malone of Nevada has introduced a weed control bill. . . . While the senate crime investigating committee is investigating gambling and horseracing, some members of congress almost daily visit the race tracks near Washington — these include Laurel, Bowie, Charlestown and Pimlico.

More Agents Needed

FBI boss J. Edgar Hoover has asked congress for an additional $26,000,000 to hire more agents. Hoover says Communists are "underground to a greater degree than ever before but that the FBI knows pretty much what they are doing."

Victory Gardens

Apologizing for rising food prices, the senate agriculture committee says that more food can be purchased with the pay of an hour of factory labor today than in either 1947-48 or in pre-war years. And remember the victory gardens during the war? The department of agriculture is fostering the planting of thousands of home gardens to grow more food during the defense mobilization emergency.

CHILDREN AT WORSHIP Children Learn Responsibility By Holding Own Church Services

The town of Milton, Mass., is the site of America's only children's church, run by and for children. Each Sunday morning the bell of the little colonial building calls eighty young members of the Children's Church of the First Parish Unitarian church to services.

A tiny, blond child, with a solemn gaze toddles up to a miniature altar, clutching a taper in both hands. Teetering back and forth on her thin legs, she lights the altar candles. One of the "elders" of the church, a 15-year-old girl, quietly walks to the organ and stretches her fingers over the keys as a cue for the choir to start assembling

The doll-house-size "Children's Church" at Milton, Mass., is the first church in the country founded exclusively for children. They sing their hymns, read the scripture and conduct their own prayers. Above the youthful choir files out of its own church, headed for its parent church where the young people sometimes sing for special services.

its dignity. There may not be much technical perfection to the 15-voice choir with its wavering childish trebles and uncertain adolescent altos but there is immense dignity.

There is the same dignity about the congregation seated in the small pews. As the majestic tones of their own Hammond organ swell up, Alice-in-Wonderland-like girls sit quietly in their pews with none of the fidgeting and giggling that often characterizes youngsters attending religious services. Solemn-faced boys pay determined attention to what is going on before them, mindful that they are present in their own church instead of that of their elders. Even the five-year olds are conscious of the dignity of their position in this, their own religious world.

Children from 5 to 15 years old lead the hymns, read the scripture and conduct their own prayers. The only adult taking part is Mrs. Edyth Stonestreet, minister of this miniature congregation for the past nine years.

THE CHILDREN'S CHURCH was the idea of the late wife of the Rev. Vivian Pomeroy, who is pastor of the First Parish Unitarian church attended by the children's parents. Mrs. Pomeroy believed children should have a service they could understand and enjoy, one that would be their very own. She was instrumental in having an abandoned schoolhouse moved to the church grounds adjoining the adult church in 1937.

An entry way, steeple, window shutters and paint were added to transform it into the diminutive house of worship. Everything about it is scaled to children's size.

The children begin their service in the larger church next door where the Rev. Pomeroy delivers a children's sermon but that is the end of their time in the adult religious world. Immediately after the sermon, they file quietly out to their own small church where they take over. It's not a game with them. It is a very serious matter and each of the 80 members reflects his satisfaction with the arrangement in his feeling of responsibility about the conduct of his church.

Star Dust STAGE-SCREEN-RADIO

By INEZ GERHARD

SUSAN PETERS must be very tired of hearing that the way she has carried on since she was crippled in that hunting accident is wonderful; any actress could be proud of her career. Not content with success on the screen, she has made numerous radio appearances, toured the country in two plays, and now has added a television serial, "Miss Susan", to her schedule, (on NBT-TV weekday afternoons). That involves lengthy rehearsals as well as the actual performances. Miss Peters plays a young lawyer, and is supported by an excellent cast, headed by Mark Roberts, Helen Ray, Katharyn Grill, Joseph Foley and Robert Pike.

Eddie Cantor is indulging again in his favorite occupation—raising money for a worthy cause. He has been knighted as the first "Cancer Crusader", heading the American Cancer Society's annual campaign, in April. Called the world's greatest fund raiser (he sold $43,000,000 worth of war bonds), he has also originated many slogans, including the March of Dimes

Evelyn Varden, radio mother of "Young Dr. Malone", who was acclaimed for her performance as the southern aristocrat in "Pinky", is featured as the nurse in the production of "Romeo and Juliet" starring Olivia de Havilland. When it opened recently in New York dramatic critics agreed that Miss de Havilland looked very beautiful, were less enthusiastic about her talents.

"Behave Yourself" can hardly escape being a good picture. William Demarest and Lon Chaney have been added to the cast supporting Shelley Winters and Farley Granger, and the famous James Wong Howe is the cameraman.

GRASSROOTS

Our Posterity May Have To Repudiate Huge Debts

By Wright A. Patterson

THE PRESENT DECADE is destined to go down as the most profligate in our history. In Washington, the halls of congress and in the executive departments, there is talk only of economies, but it is all talk and no action. The President talks an excellent line of economy. He tells congress to spend less on home projects, and then recommends new ways and places for appropriations. Congress talks much about the need for economies, and then votes all and more than the President has asked. It results in a merry-go-round of tax, and tax, and tax, and spend, and spend. In the end, we are destined not to pay as we go, but to build up more national indebtedness for our children, through several generations to pay, or possibly, to repudiate. We are traveling the road to national bankruptcy, with no one willing to apply the brakes.

Congress insists it will cut the President's budget by as much as seven billions, the President dares congress to cut it by as much as one dollar. And the chances are that instead of cutting, congress will, by the end of the session, through the needless items provided for in the usual "pork" bill, add more millions or billions. For many years, through "pork" appropriations we have attempted what we have termed flood control without any perceptible approach to actual accomplishment, and we will have similar appropriations at the end of this session. The result will be increased, rather than less spending.

But the people do not seem to awaken to the fact that congress and the President are spending their money, that each new billion of appropriations calls for more taxes which the people must pay, more ways through which to collect. Now, in Washington, they are talking about a manufacturers' excise tax, which would mean a new tax to be added to the price of the commodities the people buy. It is not that such a tax is not equitable. It is but another way of taking money out of the pockets of the people to pay for things we could get along without.

We tax the people on the food they eat, in order that congress may provide higher prices for farm products, and so cater to the farm vote without a thought of the retaliation that may come from the five urban votes to each one on the farms. That is a place where the urban vote will, in time, demand a decrease in expenditures. When that urban revolt comes, as it will, it will make a difference of a billion or more in government spending. One place where economy could be practiced, rather than only talked, is in the federal payrolls. With the bureaucratic departments now employing well over two million civilians and increasing at the rate of better than one thousand a day, that "army" represents a

THE FICTION CORNER DIFFERENT LANGUAGE

By Richard H. Wilkinson

SHORTLY BEFORE noon on the day the Garrisons left Laredo for Mexico City, their motor went dead. Mrs. Garrison was greatly disturbed. "Of all places!" she said, "to have this happen. I declare, you should have had the car looked at in Laredo."

"I did," said Mr. Garrison. His voice was muffled because his head was beneath the hood. But Mrs. Garrison was paying no attention anyhow. She was gazing at the wild, rugged, treeless country in which they had stopped, as if expecting Pancho Villa and a horde of vicious looking henchmen to rise up from behind a rock. Five horsemen suddenly appeared outlined against the sky on the crest of a nearby hill.

Mrs. Garrison let out a squeak of fright. Into her mind there flashed stories of the roving bands of outlaws that inhabited the hills of Mexico.

Mr. Garrison lifted a grease-smear face and stared at the horsemen. Then he looked at his wife and saw that her cheeks were white. "Rubbish!" he said. "No need to be scared."

The horsemen were coming down the hill. Mrs. Garrison had a wild impulse to flee. She could see the leader of the quintet and his appearance confirmed her fears. Just as the stories had said, he was dark and handsome and oily.

The leader of the group doffed his hat and said something in Spanish that neither of the Garrisons understood. They regarded each other with frightened looks. One of the henchmen dismounted and proceeded to examine the car. "They're wondering if it's worth anything," Mrs. Garrison said. "It isn't," Mr. Garrison told her. There followed a rapid jargon of speech between the riders. Presently two of them uncoiled ropes and attached the ends to the automobile's bumper. It was quite evident that they planned to tow the thing away, and the Garrisons were congratulating themselves on escaping with their lives, when the leader signed to them to enter the vehicle. Mrs. Garrison shrieked and clung to her husband. "They're going to kidnap us. Oh, Lord, have mercy!" Mr. Garrison was more practical. "I doubt if they harm us if we do what they say. If we don't—they might cut off our ears."

Thus having set his wife's mind at rest, he preceded her into the car and sat behind the wheel. AN HOUR LATER they turned into a side road and presently the car stopped before a great rambling ranch house. The prisoners were ordered to alight. A wizened, copper-colored Mexican unloaded their handbags and led them inside and to a bedroom.

"Not bad for a kidnapers' hide-out," Mr. Garrison commented. "It will probably take every cent we have to pay the ransom. They think we're rich."

Some one knocked at their door and they both started. But it was the same wizened servant. He beckoned to them and they followed him out and along the corridor and into a dining room. The leader of the kidnapers was waiting for them. The Garrisons were hungry and so they ate. By the time the meal was finished all hands felt pretty gay. Footsteps sounded on the porch, and a young girl entered. At sight of the Garrisons, she hesitated, but their host greeted her warmly, and beckoned her to him. There followed a jargon of speech between the man and girl. The girl's face suddenly lighted and she looked at the Garrisons. "My father," she said in perfect English, "regrets that he does not speak your language. But he trusts you have been made comfortable and will stay with him a few days. He has many American friends and whenever the chance offers he likes to extend them the hospitality of his home. He tells me that your car has been repaired and is waiting."

Mr. and Mrs. Garrison looked at each other. Mrs. Garrison said: "Oh, my! Just imagine! Do let's stay, Henry." And Henry said: "O.K." And for no accountable reason he grinned and felt tenderly of his ears.

"My father," she said in perfect English, "regrets that he does not speak your language."

Facts Given on School Reorganization

"Religion, morality and knowledge being necessary to good government and the happiness of mankind, schools and means of education shall forever be encouraged."

These meaningful words appear in the original constitution of the State of Michigan, and in the present constitution.

Abraham Lincoln said, "Education is the most important business in the world."

A realization of the importance of education to young people right here in the Tawas area led to the formation two years ago of the Tawas Area School Study Committee, its consequent recommendation that a reorganization of 15 districts including Tawas City and East Tawas, and the surrounding districts.

The Study Committee recommendation was for the formation of a Rural Agricultural school district. The State Department of Public Instruction in a recent bulletin regarding this type of district said, "The Rural Agricultural School Act, while not perfect, is the more acceptable method of school district reorganizing at the present time."

Regulations state that a Rural Agricultural district may be formed by the consolidation of two or more districts (for this purpose, both Tawas City and East Tawas are classed as such). The reorganized district must have a valuation of at least $1,000,000, or an area of at least 18 sections.

From the standpoint of valuation and area, the 15 districts meet every requirement. With East Tawas assessed at $1,333,300, Tawas City at $1,102,500, and Alabaster at $994,390, there is more than $3,000,000, and with other 12 districts have another $3,000,000, for a total of more than $6,000,000 based on 1950 valuation figures.

It is pointed out that the Tawas area, the largest and wealthiest in the county, is the only area not already included in a rural agricultural school district. Two districts in Reno township this year were all that re-mained independent schools, and next year it is reported that one of them will join Hale and the other Whittemore.

Oscoda, Whittemore and Hale have proved the benefits of reorganization and, formation of a Rural Agricultural School district. During the next three weeks facts pertaining reorganization, furnished by the committee, will appear in this newspaper.

MERCURY WINS AGAIN IN MOBILGAS ECONOMY RUN!

1951 MERCURY WITH OVERDRIVE IS DECLARED "ECONOMY CAR OF ITS CLASS"

New 1951
MERCURY

Nothing like it on the road!

MERCURY with Touch-O-Matic Overdrive* again takes first prize in Class "C" in the Mobilgas Economy Run! Proving its pound-for-pound gasoline economy, this stock Mercury scored amazing 59.863 ton-mile performance over a grueling 840-mile course staked out by the American Automobile Association. Virtually every kind of weather and road condition—7,000-foot ice-ridden mountain passes... sweltering, sand-swept roads of Death Valley—put the car to the test. But still, the new 1951 Mercury delivered the best ton-mile gasoline economy of any car in its class. That's something to think about when you buy a 1951 car. It's good to know that the new 1951 Mercury can save you money for years to come, no matter where you drive! As if this amazing economy weren't enough, Mercury also offers new styling that's more than just skin deep. New riding comfort that's designed to give you a smoother ride longer. New value that can't be surpassed by any car on the road today!

Once again the facts have proved it—the new 1951 Mercury is "the buy of your life!" See it today in our showroom.

*For "the drive of your life," Mercury offers you a triple choice in transmissions. Merc-O-Matic Drive, the new, simpler, smoother, more efficient automatic transmission—or thrifty Touch-O-Matic Overdrive are optional at extra cost. There's also silent-easy synchronized standard transmission.

4-H CLUB NOTES

4-H Reporters Say That:
 Just because our Achievement Day Program is over doesn't mean our 4-H Club activities have stopped! Look what is in store for our summer program.
 April 21—Fun night at the Hale Community Building. Sponsored by the 4-H Club Council.
 May 5 and 6—4-H Club floats for perch festival in Tawas.
 June 13—Three county livestock tours with Vern Freeman from Michigan State College conducting tour.
 June 20-23—County 4-H Club Camp at Hardwood Lake. Only members completing winter work and those enrolled for summer projects are eligible to attend.
 June 27—4-H Club Meeting. Eliminations for our district at Hardwood Lake.
 July 26—Home Ec Judging School.
 Besides our 4-H Club tours, our own County Fair and the State 4-H

Club Show, it seems to me there is plenty to keep us busy.
 Such a 4-H program isn't possible without our 4-H Club leaders. Those leaders need parents to cooperate with them. Let's organize our summer 4-H Clubs during April and set up our program so we will know what we are going to do and how we are going to do it. If you want to know how to organize a 4-H Club or just what there is to the program, why don't you stop in and see Marvin Davenport, District 4-H Club Agent in the Federal Building East Tawas. If that is convenient, reach for the phone or postcard. Anyone of these mediums will bring results.
 June Flynn tells us the St. Joseph 4-H Sewing Club under the leadership of Mrs. Elmer Slaven is getting ready for Achievement Day. Vera Flynn was elected vice-president. June Flynn, Reporter.
 The McVior 4-H Club met at the home of Mrs. Johnson. The meeting was called to order. The minutes of the last meeting were read and roll call was taken. As there was nothing to discuss, we closed the meeting went directly to work. Our last meeting is March 26. Doreen Strauer, Reporter.
 The "Lazy Daisies" 4-H Club held a meeting March 19 at the home of their leader, Mrs. DeWayne Hall. A late start has really made us hurry. A few of us are still very busy finishing up. Some were busy sewing on machines, others sewing by hand. Some were busy ripping out some unsatisfactory work. We had no time for games. We all did enjoy a piece of pie though. Our leader and all of us appreciated Mrs. Bielby's presence. Barbara Wisniewski, reporter.

 Busy Beavers had a meeting on March 20 at St. Joseph school, Tawas City. We discussed about our sewing and asked questions about Achievement Day. Judy Lixey, Reporter.
 Leader Mrs. Townsend and her members of the Hale Know How Club met March 17 for their sewing class at Hale School.
 We plan on finishing our garments at our next meeting. It certainly seems nice to get our garments about finished.
 Lunch was served at noon. Our club plans to meet again March 24 to sew on garments. Patricia Williams, Reporter.
 FOR SALE—5 room house, bath, furnace. Call 364 for information.

County Agent Says—
FOR MEN ONLY—I know a lot of men who are garden enthusiasts. They would rather tinker around in their garden than do anything else. They come to me bragging about their early peas and tomatoes, their big heads of cabbage and mammoth squashes, and pumpkins I have held vegetables and flower meetings and have invited the men, but only two or three brave souls will venture to attend what they must think is a woman's deal. So now I am setting up a vegetable garden meeting for men only. That meeting will be April 25 at 8 p. m. in the Federal Building. Art Isbit, a specialist in vegetable gardening will meet with us. Of course he will talk to us about the soil, fertilizers, hormones, seed bed preparation, newest hybrids, etc. You male gardeners should put a circle around that date on your calendar.

Fireball Powered
Call to Action

HAVE you ever wondered how it would feel to go the limit on power and comfort and quality in an automobile?
 Or how it would feel to be lord and master of a car that can take its place with the finest in the "fine-car field"?
 Then, sir, this is a call to action.
 The first action is yours—the simple action of getting in touch with a Buick dealer and planting yourself behind the wheel of a ROADMASTER.
 Then let this great-powered and dazzling performer take over.
 There's action in every one of the 152 horsepower in its Fireball engine—more action than most proud owners of this eager beauty will ever use.
 There's counter-action in its gentle and sure-gripping brakes, the finest that Buick has ever engineered.
 But there's also luxury—the luxury of double-depth Foamtex cushions and custom upholstery—and of ample roadweight magnificently poised on coil springs which individually cushion every wheel.

 There's a spacious feeling of room, above and around you—room that is unsurpassed anywhere in the fine-car field.
 And to make every mile effortless and relaxed, there's the very exclusive advantage of Dynaflo Drive—not as an "extra," but as a standard ROADMASTER feature.
 So why not drop in and satisfy yourself, as our guest, that here indeed is a fine car that goes the limit—in everything but price!
 Check for yourself what others ask—and what others offer—and you'll discover ROADMASTER prices a call to action that a wise man can't ignore.
Equipment, accessories, trim and models are subject to change without notice.
 Tune in HENRY J. TAYLOR, ABC Network, every Monday evening.

OUTLAW GUNS BY E. E. HALLERAN

THE STORY SO FAR:
 Attempting to find meaning in Archie Scott's cryptic message, "The Little Bear," which is supposed to indicate the location of a vital store of illegal arms and ammunition, Dan Frazer goes to talk with Marshal Emery. He asks Emery about the physical layout of the country surrounding the copper mining town of Mesa Verde. Emery describes trails and casually happens to mention The Little Bear mine. Frazer knows then that this, at last, is the hiding place of the munitions. Delaplane enters to announce that Franz and his band have left town. Frazer sets out in the direction of the Bartells' house in the country where Helen had gone.

CHAPTER XV

"Nobody."
 "See?" the prospector grunted. "He's lying. I know I seen a couple more riders down there." Again he raised his dry old voice to warn the restless intruder. "Just keep on ye way, brother. This is one time ye ain't sneakin' in to shoot nobody. Take your pard and git goin'." My finger's awful itchy." At his side Helen Bartell took a quick breath. "I believe you're right," she whispered excitedly. "That's the man who killed the stagecoach passenger."
 "Not me," Wenslow disclaimed, sighting steadily over the Winchester's sights. "I ain't the one what's right; it's that big galoot who was up to your place this mornin'. He's the one said to watch out fer these hombies."

A rifle cracked from the distant trees, its slug imbedding itself in the timbers of the house just an instant before the pair on the porch could hear the report. Wenslow replied with a quick shot directed at the spot where the two riders had disappeared into the brush, then he broke for the door, pulling the girl along with him.

Helen and Wenslow Begin Their Defense

Still there did not seem to be any sign of an enemy on the slope. The rattle of shots still sounded from the south side and once there was a quick clamor of voices. Someone had yelled in pain or alarm and the deep-voiced man had shouted an order. After that the shooting picked up in tempo, but still nothing developed on the north side.

Then Helen Bartell came in, visibly excited. "There's somebody else down there," she blurted. "They're still shooting—but no bullets are striking the house. Either they're fighting among themselves or they've been attacked by a third party."

When Dan Frazer left his horse and plunged toward the sound of the firing he was fully aware of the risks he ran. Those gunmen ahead of him were working on the supposition that Helen Bartell had in her possession a gun containing a dummy shell. It would make no difference to them whether they took the gun from a living person or a dead one. There would be no parleys or surrenders in this war. It was going to be a case of kill or be killed.

A man yelled an order then, and Frazer knew that this was quite a gathering of thugs ahead of him. That voice was the same voice he had heard when the stage was held up. The leader here was the man who had directed that first murder from his point of vantage on the rocks.

He could not hear the words, but it seemed clear that the man was issuing orders for the next stage of the siege. Accordingly Frazer moved forward a little more rapidly, trying to close in while the outlaws were interested in what their leader was telling them. The haste nearly proved fatal. He ducked through a cover of overhanging pine and almost ran into a man who was running toward him.

There was a split second of amazed recognition, and then the other man threw up his gun which he had been carrying in his one good hand. Frazer's weapon was just as prompt, but he retained his coolness long enough to make sure of his shot. The man ahead of him was the fellow he had wounded last night, the murderer of Archie Scott. That was enough to make him grim and deadly. He heard the outlaw's gun explode, but he never knew whether the bullet went close to him or not. He was intent only on squeezing the trigger of his Colt while its sights were lined steadily on the killer's chest.

Then the man was down and Frazer was leaping for cover, aware of the uproar which the two shots had caused. For the split second of the actual shooting he had moved in something like a dream, but the savage anger passed and he became the cautious stalker once more. Squaring accounts with one dirty murderer was not going to end this deal. There were four more of them just ahead, and their yells indicated that they knew something had happened to their companion.

Again he shifted position, waiting for some sound that would locate the enemy, but the only telltale noise was a crashing of brush farther up the hillside. Instantly he knew that he was going to be up against some smart strategy. His adversaries were already trying to surround him.

Dan turned to slip back toward the spot where he had left his bronco, but a pair of quick shots forced him to stand and give battle. So that was the plan! Two of the outlaws were stalking him closely, ready to fire at any indication of movement, while the other two circled to cut him off.

It didn't leave him very much choice, so he took the gamble which seemed to offer the best chance of success. It was time to attack while the enemy was divided. He slid forward again, picking his cover as he moved toward the ranch house. Almost immediately a bullet barked a tree just above his head and he took a fast shot at something which moved among the pines. This time his shot brought a cry of pain and he went in more savagely, aware that his only chance was to dispose of the pair before the flankers could close in on him.

He raced toward the sound of the guns, almost immediately sighting the diminutive form of Jack Snagg.

A bullet ripped a furrow in the slack of his shirt, but running footsteps told him that the gunman had retreated. It was the heavy voice against that yelled, "Back this way, Snagg! Here he is!"

Even as he recognized the plan that his unconscious mind was formulating he saw that it wasn't going to work. He had maneuvered back to the edge of the clearing and there was just a glimpse of a big man diving into cover among the trees. A quick shot from the outlaw told Frazer what he had to face now. That hidden renegade could cover the open ground and hold him here until the flankers came up. Dan was in a pretty nasty sort of trap.

Frazer Is Wounded In Duel With Snagg

There was a shout from the man ahead and then Frazer was charging toward him at a dead run. Instantly the forest clattered under the din of gunfire, guns, hammering from several directions. He knew that a slug grazed his thigh, but he did not falter. There was no time to look around; his sole objective at the moment was the burly outlaw behind the tree just in front of him.

Dan's wild charge seemed to disconcert the man, who sprang to his feet. Instantly Frazer slid to a halt, lining his sights carefully. In the moment of stopping, again he stole himself to shoot deliberately, making his aim perfect instead of wasting the lead through haste. As with Scott's killer, the grim strategy paid off. He saw his man go sprawling to the ground, but even as he swung to face his other enemies he knew they were having troubles of their own. That firing from the rear had not been directed at him. Not since the first shot while he was on the ground had he been conscious of a bullet coming near him. Someone had entered the fight and was taking the attention of the surviving outlaws.

He raced back toward the sound of the guns, almost immediately sighting the diminutive form of Jack Snagg behind an outcropping of rock. The little gunman recognized Frazer at the same moment and there was another one of those split second duels. For the third time Frazer gambled on giving the enemy the first shot, sighting grimly instead of letting the urgency of the moment drive him into undue haste. This time he paid a heavier cost. Snagg's bullet seared along his ribs, bringing pain that was almost unbearable.

He fought off the shock of it and held steadily on his target as he pulled the trigger. There was a moment in which he could not be sure just what was happening in front of him. His eyes did not seem to focus properly any more and he fired again, blindly this time even though something in his mind told him that Snagg was down. After that he lost control of the few clear ideas which had remained to him, and he realized that he was sinking to his knees.

When Dan's head cleared he was down on all fours, his gun still clenched in his fist. Numbing pain still clawed at his left side, but he knew what he was doing. He had to get up and reload. Somewhere here in this woodland was another enemy.

A twig snapped on the upper hillside and as he shifted painfully to face the threat he heard a thin voice that sounded vaguely familiar.

"Don't bang away, pard. I'm comin' in."

It was then that another voice broke in, this time from another quarter. "The fight is over," came the announcement. "Two more I have shot. If that is all we do not have any fear now."

"Hey! What's all this?" Frazer grunted. "I thought I was shootin' this alone. Who busted in on the scrap?"

Wenslow was staring suspiciously toward the unseen voice. "I didn't get into it," he growled. "Musta been this other gent. Hello! Come out and let's take a look at ye."

Gonzales Reveals Self As Third Man in Fight

The pine boughs parted and a slight figure stepped into view. Frazer let out a grunt of pain and surprise. "Gonzales! What are you doing here?"

The little Mexican smiled quietly. "I am the suspicious one," he confessed. "This morning I hear about a bullet which is important to many people. I know you have visited Senor Bartell and I think you have it. Then the men who claim to be my friends think different. When my back is turned they send some of their number out here in a hurry. I think I should come and see what happens. I do not like my friends to deceive me."

Frazer knitted his brows perplexedly. "So what's your pitch, Gonzales? Did you shoot that lanky jasper?"

Frazer swayed dizzily, fighting off the blackness as the two men helped him to his feet. Then he took a fresh lease on life and stepped out a little more steadily. "Let me walk," he insisted. "We'll do better that way, I'm not so bad off."

"It's a nasty wound," Wenslow reminded him. "We'll give you an arm anyway."

It was only when immediate needs were attended to that anyone brought up the subject of the battle. Then it was Helen Bartell who asked the question. "Who were those men, and what did they mean by attacking us?"

Frazer started to reply, but the little Mexican interrupted smoothly. "You must rest, my friend," he said with the utmost politeness—and a notable lack of the accent which had marked his speech last evening. "It is better that I tell. The lady knows the plans of her father?" Frazer decided that Gonzales turned his accent off and on at will. The man actually spoke excellent English.

Helen nodded. "I know. But what does this have to do with my father?"

The little man's eyes twinkled briefly as he stole a glance at Frazer. "Perhaps you do not know that two governments are interested in those plans your own government sent two men to investigate. One of them learned something of importance, but was killed before he could report. The other one is our wounded comrade here."

She turned to stare at Frazer. "Then you're really a government agent?"

He shook his head slightly. "I'm not telling the yarn. This is the Gonzales version you're hearing."

"Very well. We know then that Senor Bartell's plan was under scrutiny by two governments. Also it became the center of what you call the great doublecross. One Vasquez, pretending to work with the Bartell people, secretly planned to betray them and take everything for himself. Still another Mexican, one Candino, planned an even more complicated betrayal. Both men found it easy to place their agents in Mesa Verde where they could become familiar with the plans of Senor Bartell."

"I notice you're not advertising your own connection," Frazer said significantly.

"Have you done so? No. Then I keep my own counsel for the present."

How Sin Begins
 Lesson for April 8, 1951

NO ONE can believe in sin who does not believe in God. That is, no one can believe that sin is real unless he believes that God is real. For the meaning of sin is religious; it cannot be understood at all, apart from God.

For sin means going contrary to the will of God. Sin may not consist of "doing" anything, of course; it may be only wishing or thinking against God; or it may be refusing to do, or neglecting to do, what God wants done.

A thing is not right just because God wills it; he could not, by a mere proclamation, make murder good and mother-love wicked. But God never wills a thing unless it is right, or forbids it unless it is wrong; one reason for this is that he is creator of all, and so knows what is best for every creature. To go against his will is to go against one's own best interest.

Dr. Foreman

Sin on the Outside

HOW does sin begin? The Bible says sin has been on this earth as long as people have lived there. But the story of the temptation in the Garden of Eden is also a parable of how sin always begins. As Dr. Brunner says, Adam's other name is Everyman.

Now we can see in this story that sin came into the world because there came a suggestion from the outside. Not everything in this universe is now good; there is anti-God at work, as well as pro-God. There are forces at work that do not wish God's plans to succeed.

If this seems hard to take, at least it cannot be denied that a great many sins would never have been committed without some pull from the outside. A child who goes to school for the first time will pick up, in a few days, habits and language and attitudes that shock the parents. They wonder what's got into the child. Her playmates' meanness has got into her, that's the nub of it.

Sin on the Inside

BUT the fact is, we can't blame the situation as if the situation were the sinner. Not every one who passes a bar-room door feels an urge to go inside. Once in a while a bank clerk skips out with a suitcase full of the bank's money. But the money was there all the time, and no other clerk became a thief.

If it were simply the situation that makes the sin, then every bank clerk would be as dishonest as the worst, and every man who passes a bar would not pass it but go inside and get drunk just like the bums who can't pass a bar-room door.

No, there is something on the inside of us that pushes toward sin. What is it? The story in Genesis may offer a good clue. One of the New Testament writers put it this way: "A man's temptation is due to the pull of his own inward desires, which can be enormously attractive." (James 1:14, J. B. Phillips translation.)

Sin Beforehand

THERE is another sad feature of sin that stands out in the Genesis story and in the story of Everyman. That is, sin almost never looks the same afterwards as it did before.

Before the sin, Eve sees the forbidden fruit as beautiful and desirable; afterwards in shame she hides away from God. Living with herself, with her husband, with God, is no longer the pleasure it had been. However sad or horrible sin may look when we see it in the cold light of Afterwards, when we see it beforehand it always looks attractive.

In the last stages of sin, to be sure, it may be quite different; a man may be caught in the grip of a habit he hates, and no one can call him worse names than he calls himself. But in the beginnings of sin, few if any persons see anything repulsive or bad in what they are about to do.

That is why "I do as I please" is a fatally bad rule for living. If you do as you please, sooner or later you will please wrong, and down you will go. Adam and Eve did exactly as they pleased, and lost their Paradise. But if we take as our rule of life what God pleases, even if we never reach perfection we shall always be pointing in the right direction.

Space Travel Expert Maps Two-Way Trip To Moon by Rockets

POINT MUGU, Calif.—Arthur V. St. Germain, an authority on rockets, missiles and jet engines, and senior test engineer for the Fairchild guided missiles division at the navy's secret missile test center, says space travel is much closer than most people realize.

As proof of his statement, St. Germain offered detailed plans for a five stage rocket which he said could carry two men to the moon, land there and return. He said that his design, while not in production, was practical with "the application of techniques already at our disposal. This is probably the first time in history that people have known so much about an invention yet to be made."

The space ship would tower 325 feet into the air above the launching site, weigh 360,000 pounds and attain a speed of 25,000 miles an hour. Power would be provided by four rockets, one telescoped inside the other, which would drop off one by one as the ship roared upward through the earth's gravitational sphere.

The fifth rocket, carrying the crew, would coast to the moon once it reached outer space. The return journey would require far less fuel because the moon, being smaller than the earth, has little gravitational pull.

St. Germain said liquid hydrogen and oxygen would be the best fuels, pending development of an atomic engine. He added that the landing on the moon would be made tail first, with jets and rockets acting as brakes.

The engineer's space ship is one of the latest concepts for travel to the moon and back. But the fact that he could talk about it for publication indicates that the craft is not an immediate project.

Point Mugu is the site from which the navy launches top secret weapons which travel hundreds of miles out to sea.

For a QUICK and TASTY MEAL

Many of the bills find their way back to the treasury with their four corners turned over or cut off. This has been done by superstitious holders—to destroy the "hex."

The superstition is believed to stem from the language of gamblers in the early history of the U.S. when the number "2" was called the "deuce," and there was derived the expression, "the deuce you do" for "the devil you do."

Mrs. Clark says the superstition must persist widely and in strength today because great numbers of $2 bills are mutilated and have to be withdrawn and new ones substituted. The life of a $1 bill is from 6 to 9 months, Mrs. Clark reports.

SPORTSMAN'S HORIZON

By JIM RHODY

Duck Needs Home

The wood duck, most colorful of American waterfowl, is facing a housing shortage. This species prefers to nest in hollow trees, but in many locations is prevented from doing so because of a shortage of natural cavities in trees, or because those that do exist have already been taken by squirrels or 'coons. And, even if the wood duck gets there first, in many cases the nest is sooner or later discovered and broken up by squirrels or 'coons.

A highly satisfactory solution—both to the wood ducks and to people who like to have them around—is the man-made wood duck nest box.

Nest boxes should be made of rough, unplanned lumber about an inch in thickness. Galvanized nails should be used to resist rusting and should be driven into the boards at an angle to prevent warping. The covers should be tight to prevent rain seepage and fastened in such a way that the box can be easily opened for cleaning. The box should have no finish or creosote or stain, but should be allowed to weather. It will last 5 to 7 years. In the box, when finished, should be placed several inches of clean pine shavings for nesting material.

Cedar poles from four to six inches in diameter are preferable for mounting the box and should be driven firmly into the marsh bottom. This can be done very handily after ice forms by chopping a hole (see photo) and driving it from the ice. The poles should be located well out into the open water area so they will not be readily accessible to a raiding raccoon or cat.

The nest box should be placed on the pole five or six feet above the normal water level and secured with heavy spikes or wire so that it will not turn or sway in the wind. For the best results, the boxes should be erected well before the nesting season (April to July) and not disturbed during that season.

Cost Uncounted

In comparison with other items, the expense figures that get the least attention from the spender are those in connection with the sports of hunting and fishing.

"The outdoor sportsman may be fussy about his household budget, might meticulously turn off every unnecessary light bulb or insist that the thermostat on his heater is set at the minimum," says Gail Evans, advertising and shooting promotion manager, Remington Arms Company, Inc., "but when somebody mentions the cost of hunting and fishing, he's generally looking out the window. There is, of course, a definite reason for this. To the hunter or angler, his sport is Big Medicine, to be taken in big or little sips and as often as possible. It is balm to the soul, nourishment to a tired body and sedative to jangled nerves.

Luxury? Don't be foolish! To hear the sing of a reel, to smell the smoke of gunpowder, to watch the dawning on an ice-fringed marsh or see the moon rise over a wooded lake—these are all events of much importance to the physical and mental well-being of the average sportsman and to count their costs in drab terms of dollars and cents is considered bordering on blasphemy. There are, however, always some sportsmen who do keep careful records of their expenditures. Hunting and fishing success is not usually determined by the amount of money a sportsman spends on any given trip, so maybe this record-keeping business is a mild form of sadism. It is not recommended for the guy with a one-way pocket."

Sportsmen's expenditure figures, however, are of more importance than the average sportsman realizes.

Films Released

Two colorful films have been recently released by the U.S. fish and wildlife service.

They are "Conservation in Action," and "Hunting The Puma." Announcement of the films' release was made by Oscar L. Chapman, secretary of the interior.

"Conservation in Action" briefly tells the habitat needs of salmon, waterfowl, buffalo, mountain goats, moose and many other creatures, and depicts the activities of the fish and wildlife service in meeting these needs and managing the renewable resources in our waters and on our lands.

"Hunting The Puma" as the name indicates is an action-packed account of a mountain lion hunt.

Hand Lines

Hand line fishing still is more widespread than the average angler might expect. Many fishermen still use hand lines fishing from piers, bridges and breakwaters. Salt water hand lines usually are heavy, tarred lines capable of handling big fish which may be hooked. In hand line fishing, the angler should use more than one hook. The advantage in this is that with hooks spread at different levels, the angler can soon determine at what depth fish bite.

The team of Bill Seaver and Robert Robinson have been slated for future consideration to the Gaylord Camp. The development of their demonstrations and presentation at another eliminations contest in June or early July will take place. All demonstrations were judged by Assistant State 4-H Club leaders, Vasold and Ousterhout.

The dress revue had nearly sixty participants. The dress revue group named by Assistant State Leader Vasold included: Joan Cheney of the Hale 4-H Club for 1st year clothing work, Vida Burt of the Grant 4-H Club with her 2nd year clothing project, Mary Ausbury of the East Tawas 4-H Club for 4th year work, Leaberta Townsend of Hale for 4th year work and Donna Lee McCormick of the Alabaster 4-H Club with her 6th year complete costume work. Donna Lee, was named dress revue delegate for the Gaylord Camp in July with Letberta Townsend as alternate.

By written invitation from the State 4-H Club office, these young ladies will be exhibiting at the State 4-H Club show at East Lansing in August; Sharon Lee Rose of Tawas City, Carol Buck of Hale and Sandra Grieve of Hale. Miss Norma Jean Pringle of McIvor will receive a letter of invitation from the State 4-H Club office to exhibit her suit at the State Fair in Detroit next September.

Other possible State 4-H Club Show exhibits may include Handicraft articles made by William DeLosh of the St. Joseph School and Jack Burt of the Grant Club. In electrical work, articles made by Robert Binder and Jack Burt were listed for possible exhibit at the State 4-H Club Show.

The Electrical exhibits caught the eye of many people. They were most unusual and of an excellent quality of workmanship. Table lamps from various sizes of ash trays and vases were unique in their construction. Leslie had used a series of ash trays painstakingly aligned and held together by a small pipe. Many of these lamps will be put on display at the Art Exhibit in East Tawas in the very near future.

James Harkinson and Mr. Braun of the Consumers Power Co, Bay City Division were the judges.

The 4-H Club Council under the supervision of Mrs. Ed Robinson, served a hot lunch for the nearly 300 folks attending Achievement Day. Many thanks can be given to the 4-H Club leaders for their untiring efforts in bringing the nearly 150 members through with success. The entire exhibits had over 95% blue and red sticker awards. It was through the voluntary local leaders that this whole program was possible.

Prosecutor Points

Out a Traffic Danger

A considerable number of complaints have been received by the Prosecutor's office, Sheriff's office and State Police in connection with dangerous practice of many motor vehicle operators in disregarding the law pertaining to school buses operating on the roads of Isoco County. The law provides that the operator of a school bus shall bring the bus to a full stop on the traveled portion of the highway and remain stopped until the children have alighted and crossed the highway in front of the bus. It should be obvious to all that this presents a dangerous situation if traffic approaching behind does not stop.

Section 256.324a of the 1948 Compiled Laws of the State of Michigan provides as follows:

The driver of a vehicle shall not overtake and pass any school bus proceeding the same direction, which bus has stopped for the purpose of receiving or discharging passengers. All school buses shall contain such signs on the back and front thereof, with respect thereto, as shall be approved by the State Highway Commissioner.

Any person who shall violate the provisions of this section shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction therefor shall be punished as provided by the laws of this state.
