Klenow Again Chairman of Supervisors

Advisory Ballot to Be Taken on County Clerk Appointment

Henry Klenow of East Tawas was again named chairman of the Iosco County Board of Supervisors at the annual meeting which opened here Tuesday. This is Klenow's third term as chairman of the board. Victor J. Anderson of Alabaster was re-elected chairman pro tem.

In addition to organizing the board for the year, the principal business of this session will be the equalization of the assessment rolls of the various townships and cities of the county.

Requests Advisory Ballot On Clerk Appointment

"Inasmuch as the office of county clerk is one of great importance, not only to the courts, but also to all other officials connected with county government," stated Judge Herman Dehnke to the members of the Board of Supervisors, yesterday, "it is obvious that the judgment of the members of the board supervisors and other officials of the county is entitled to expression, not necessarily controlling in itself, but to be weighed with other pertinent considerations."

This statement was made in anticipation of the appointment of a county clerk to succeed Russell H. McKenzie who will resign. It is Judge Dehnke's duty to appoint the successor.

An advisory ballot will be prepared with spaces to indicate 1st, 2nd and 3rd preferences. These will be distributed to the members of the board and county officials and secretly cast next Monday morning.

The board approved the following committee appointments made by Chairman Klenow:

Plans Made to Beautify Tawas River

Twenty-nine members of the Tawas City Businessmen Association were on hand for their weekly luncheon meeting Wednesday noon, with this weeks meeting being held at Langs Restaurant.

The main topic for discussion was a proposed Junior Canoe race to be held in early summer down the Tawas River for boys of 14 and under. The junior race idea was originated by Fred Marsh, a resident of Tawas City and was presented by Hugo Keiser, Jr., president of the organization. The plan met with unanimous approval of the members and will be sponsored by the organization. James Dillon was appointed to head a committee to arrange a program and to report their progress at the next meeting.

Conservation Officer Arthur Leitz spoke briefly on a clean-up campaign of debris in the Tawas River to make better fishing and navigation conditions in the river. An informal discussion followed with members planning in the next couple of weeks for a clean-up campaign to beautify the river.

The Tawas Softball league, which was organized last year, proved to be quite a success, despite the cold rainy weather that hampered their activities all season. The Beckett's Real Estate team, who were undefeated for most of the season, were crowned league champions and won the perpetual Herald-News trophy.

A new softball diamond was built by the city last year and plans for putting it in shape will be discussed at the April 14 meeting.

Directors of the NorthEastern Michigan Baseball League will meet at the courthouse in Standish tonight at 8:00 o'clock to reorganize the league for the 1951 season. ## Iosco Farmers Study Soil Conservation

Petitions Now Being Circulated to Form SC District

The people who attended the seven township meetings last week were very much in favor of organizing a soil conservation district in Iosco County. Leonard Braamse, soil conservationist of Michigan State College showed a movie on soil conservation and explained the advantages of a district and the required steps.

From the reactions at the meetings it seems that nearly everyone is favorable to the plan. Altogether with Marvin Davenport's and Lyle Bielby's help, the program has been explained to ten farmer's groups besides the town meetings.

Petitions are now being circulated. These will be submitted to the State Soil Conservation District Committee who will set a date for a public hearing. This will give farmers the opportunity to clear any questions they may have. Then if the petitions and the hearing indicate sufficient interest a referendum will be called. If there is a good attendance at the polls and the majority favor the district, the local board of directors who will have been elected will have the responsibility of promoting various measures that will effect the improvement and preservation of our farm lands.

The local committee which is promoting the district is composed of James Mielock, Gerald Bellen, Octave St. James, Ruben Edie, Andrew Matthews, Lyle Long and Warren Britt.

Gackstetter Elected Tawas Club Manager

Rollie Gackstetter was elected manager of the Tawas City Independents at a meeting held last Friday night at the Tawas City Hall. Other officers appointed were Fred Bublitz, Treasurer and Neil Thornton Secretary. Plans for the coming season were discussed, among those being their advertising scorecard, soft drink concession and repairing the batting cage.

The job of managing the local Independent team is nothing new to manager Gackstetter, he piloted the club in 1942 and 1943, and in 1947 and 1948. He stated this week that practice sessions will begin as soon as the water drains off the local athletic field.

Leitz Forecasts Smelt Run Next Week

Conservation Officer Arthur Leitz predicted Wednesday that the smelt will begin their annual run up the Tawas River no sooner than the middle of next week. He stated that, despite the very warm water in the river due to spring rains (47° at the latest check) the smelt are holding back in the lake because of the very cold water near shore.

Last year the smelt run hit the peak about April 26, and at that time the water temperature was about 42° in the river. Several commercial fishermen in Tawas report that the bay is filled with the silvery fish and that the next few days should see the run begin in full force.

Cancer Fund Drive Starts Monday

The American Cancer Society's 1951 Cancer Crusade will open here April 16, it was announced today by Mrs. C. Kate Evans, Commander for Iosco County.

Nathan Barkman, who has been appointed campaign manager, made the following remarks:

"With the opening of the 1951 campaign, your task is two-fold: one, the solicitation of funds to carry on the fight toward cancer control, and two, the promotion of an educational program that may well save the lives of some of your friends and neighbors. All across the nation the attack on cancer will be launched during April. The first objective is $14,565,000 to continue the programs of research, education and service to cancer patients. The second and immediate objective is the saving of as many as 70,000 persons who die of cancer needlessly every year."

"Our quota for Iosco County is $950. We are going to need a lot of help in reaching our goal."

Labor Adopts Grass Roots Program; Revision of Farm Parity Suggested

GRASS ROOTS MANIFESTO—Seven hundred small town unionists met in Washington recently, adopted a seven point manifesto, and departed for the Main Streets of America determined to marshal the support of consumer groups, including ladies' clubs, service clubs and farm organizations behind their program.

The home town unionists based their manifesto on the thesis of "equality of sacrifice for all groups." In a statement issued at the close of their meeting the group stated: "We are shocked by the cruel disregard being shown for the interests of everyday American families. We are shocked by the privilege and favoritism bestowed on a single group—big business."

One of the major points of the "grass roots" labor program: "Labor, the farmers, small business and independent consumer groups must be given full representation on all mobilization and stabilization agencies at the policy-making and administrative levels. By so doing, the government can inspire renewed public confidence and public support of controls which otherwise will be hard to take."

MAIN STREET ECONOMY—Although the situation is not too clear at the moment, there seems to be shaping up in congress a battle over the administration's budget that will strike at the Main Street level of the nation before it touches many other segments.

The Big Show

Sen. Estes Kefauver, (above), encee of the senate crime investigating committee hearings in New York, provided the nation with its greatest show during recent weeks when his committee played to 15,000,000 television fans, and starring such underworld-gambling bigshots as . . . .

Jake "Greasy Thumb" Guzik, who refused to talk.

Frank Costello, who keeps $40,000 in cash in his home.

James J. Carroll, who told unsympathetic senators that television cameras scared him. The public liked the show so much it objected when a few stations switched to a brief Easter religious service.

The joint congressional committee, which reported on the nation's economy and the proposed budget, recommended a new study of farm-price supports and reduction of federal grants to states.

Specifically, the report cited next year's budget estimate of $2,883,000,000 in federal grants to states for highways, public welfare, health, school lunches, agricultural-extension services and agricultural experiment stations, vocational rehabilitation, airports, and other services. All of these services are on the Main Street level and a cut will be felt immediately in the home towns of the nation.

Of all the questions considered in the report, farm parity was the most explosive. The report declared that legislative remedies must be sought to correct a condition which now exists by which prices increasing the cost of living and the cost of defense are geared to the industrial practices which have for many years driven up prices of industrial commodities.

Farm parity, invented at the depths of the depression, is geared to the price of industrial commodities. Revision and modernization of the law will undoubtedly be one of the big questions facing the congress.

HIGHER STILL—Every time the bureau of labor statistics announces its index figures on the cost of living they are always higher, even as administration officials repeat the old refrain that leveling off is "just around the corner."

The bureau's newest figures reported the cost of living up 1.3 per cent, setting another record. The figure was pegged at 183.8 per cent of the 1935-39 base period. This was 8 per cent higher than the level of June, 1950, before the Korean fighting began, and 9.5 per cent above a year ago.

Meanwhile, there were indications that the people in the home towns may be developing some consumer resistance to high prices. The commerce department reported a 3 per cent decline in retail sales. Department store sales were reported down 4 per cent.

Unofficial reports told of a slackening of consumer buying, possibly because many persons had stocked up heavily last year and possibly because of price climbs.

THE BORROWER—Russia flatly refused recently to return 670 American naval and cargo ships she "borrowed" under the World War II lend-lease program. The Soviet went so far as to state that the United States really does not need the ships.

Reduced to a common denominator, it is like a home town neighbor borrowing your lawn mower and refusing to return it after he has clipped his lawn, and having the nerve to tell you you don't need it anyway, because your lawn doesn't need cutting.

The ships are only one of the lend-lease problems with Russia. The Soviet still has an over-all $11 billion unsettled lease-account with this nation.

MACARTHUR UNDER FIRE—General Douglas MacArthur, who seems to have a knack of making controversial statements, again threw the state department and the United Nations into an uproar when he asserted he stood ready at any time to confer in the field with the commander in chief of the Chinese and North Korean forces to end the war and "find any military means whereby the realization of the United Nations in Korea, to which no nation may justly take exceptions, might be accomplished without further bloodshed."

The state department immediately asked the defense department and the White House to curb the general's authority to issue diplomatic overtures. The controversy was taken up in the U.N. and MacArthur was criticized by British and French newspapers.

Strong-willed MacArthur, who does not believe in hiding his genius under a blanket, had nothing to say about the criticism of his latest statement. If the state department and the United Nations persist in their demands that MacArthur be silenced permanently, it might mean that pipe-smoking Doug will have his wings clipped for the first time in his long career.

DRAFT CALL CUT—Home town draft boards were notified that their April quotas had been cut in half. The army ordered a quota of 40,000 for the month instead of the previously announced 80,000. Enlistments, running higher than were anticipated, and fewer casualties in Korea than had been feared were given as reasons for the change in the induction rate.

The army at latest reports was only about 100,000 men short of its present goal of 1,500,000 men.

Meanwhile, a congressional spokesman said the army should be able to halt the draft within 18 months and set up its universal-military-training program.

THE AMERICAN FARMER

Farm Plant Value Pegged at 91 Million

American farmers now own 91 billion dollars worth of land, buildings, live stock and equipment. This gigantic food "factory" turned out approximately 30 billion dollars worth of produce in 1950, or a third of the value of the "plant" itself. In 1900 and even in 1910, American agriculture produced only a sixth of its own physical value in a year. Even in prosperous 1929 it produced a little less than one-fourth of its "plant value," a recent survey revealed.

The farmer has accomplished these gains through a 900 per cent increase in his investment in tools and machinery since 1900, and by use of better methods, better seed, better livestock, and more fertilizer, the report stated.

NINE SETS OF TWINS AT ONE ARMY BASE . . . Nine sets of twins, eight identical, assigned to Battery D, 746 AAA gun Bn. are (left to right): Byerl and Earl Welsh, Charleston, W. Va.; Troy and Fred Byrd, Campton, Ky.; Jesse and Cecil Culver, Exeter, Ky.; Ralph and Raymond Ferrell, Lesage, W. Va.; Roland and Russell Huber, Brenon, Ohio; Albert and Angelo Notarianni, Ashtabula, Ohio; Lester and Chester Simmons, Independence, Ky.; John and Joseph Turco, Hamilton, Ohio; Kloral and Klomer Vowels, Valley Station, Ky. They will be double trouble for the sergeant.

BEGINNING AND END OF LOTUS . . . Beauty is in the eye of the beholder, so it is a matter of individual taste whether the front or back end of Lotus, circus hippo in New York, is the most attractive. Frankly, the front has a facade that only a dotting mother could love—especially when Lotus is yawning an impersonation of the Grand Canyon. Between the front and back are three-and-a-half tons of hippo. Incidentally, if you've never seen a hippo before, we ought to tell you that the front end of Lotus is at the left. Oh, you're welcome!

NO HARD FEELINGS, CHUM . . . Sir Gladwyn Jebb (left) of Great Britain shakes hands with Russia's Jacob Malik at a meeting of the U.N. peace observation commission. The commission defeated a Russian proposal to expel the Chinese Nationalist delegate and seat a representative of Red China. The group approved an American motion to postpone discussion of the Soviet resolution until the question is decided by the General Assembly.

SHAH DIVIDES ROYAL ESTATE AMONG SUBJECTS . . . Shah Reza Pahlavi of Iran (left) turns over the deed to a piece of formerly royal land to one of the 100 Iranian subjects selected to be new land owners. The ruler of the oil-soaked country split up a large tract among the hundred who had no land. The move is significant, coming soon after the unanimous adoption by the Iranian parliament of proposal to nationalize the Anglo-Iranian oil industry.

INFLATION HITS NAVY . . . Inflation is blamed for prices on clothing for the navy's enlisted men. Cap has gone up from $1.70 to $3.25, jacket from $17.50 to $39.65, trousers from $6.30 to $15, blouse from $6.70 to $16.50.

STALIN'S BARBER . . . Joseph Pushkevitch, Bayswater, England, shaving a customer, says he was Stalin's barber, accompanying Stalin up the ladder to power, until Stalin and Trotsky fell out. He met Stalin during a Siberian exile.

Housewives to Study Facilities During 'Demonstration Week'

Some 50,000 home towns across the nation will participate in Home Demonstration Week (April 29 to May 5) with programs highlighting the role of the home in preserving American ideals, supporting defense programs on the home front, and sharing their home-making know-how and leadership experience with other homemakers.

Along the Main Streets of many home towns the merchants will consolidate their efforts to display the latest appliances that make home-making a pleasure to the American housewife.

A strong America needs stronger homes, and during Home Demonstration Week rural women will take stock of their resources and plan to reinforce the most important segments of the home front. One-third of the million and a quarter homemakers who took part in home demonstration program last year live in villages and small cities. A home is the same on the farm or in the city.

Today's home is better equipped than it was five years ago. For example, five years ago about 48 per cent of the farm homes had electricity; now more than 75 per cent of them are wired for mechanization, and three-fourths of the current used goes for household operations.

Usually an electric refrigerator and a water system come first. Grandma's housekeeping tricks have given way to new and modern techniques and appliances.

Now about 57,500 home demonstration clubs in the United States, Alaska, Hawaii, and Puerto Rico hold regular meetings to study and to acquire skill in homemaking. These women are constantly in search of new and approved appliances to make homemaking easier and more efficient.

Today 3,500 county home demonstration agents and assistant agents serve these clubs and organize other programs to meet the needs and desires of local women of the country.

During Sleep Show time (April 16-28) homemakers in the small towns of the nation will have a chance to view all the newest bedding styles and learn how to sleep better.

Local furniture and department stores throughout the country will have on display the latest and best bedding for 1951. It will be a concentrated effort of Main Street merchants to introduce new models, new styles and new construction in sleeping equipment to their communities.

The small town homemaker will see the remarkable advances made in dual purpose bedding since last year. Smartly styled davenport and chair beds with inner construction that can quickly convert them from handsome sofas and chairs to comfortable beds will be displayed.

THE RURAL TEACHER

Community Indifference Causing Teachers to Leave Rural Schools

Much has been written about the small town and rural school plant, the need of new construction, expansion, and new equipment. But little has been said about the small town and rural school teacher, after all the most important part of any school system.

Today rural areas are finding it increasingly more difficult to keep good teachers in their schools. Low pay alone is not responsible. Unpleasant living conditions, lack of social life, public indifference to the job they are doing, are all a part of the dissatisfaction that accounts for the frequent resignation in many communities.

Today, with the shortage of rural teachers so critical, they can afford to be independent, an article in the March issue of Successful Farming magazine points out. They will pick the community which offers pleasant working conditions. They will refuse to stay among people who do not accept them as equal and who do not cooperate in the aims of education.

The physical discomforts, the low salaries, the restricted social life, are definite drawbacks to teaching. But even they shrink in importance if the people a teacher works with are cooperative and friendly. In the teacher's eyes, educating young people is a satisfying and rewarding job. But this can only be so if parents, school boards, and the children themself show a disposition to work with her toward this end, rather than being a block to it.

Some schools have an active and progressive Parent-Teacher association that helps thresh out some of the problems. But even among these groups there is too much emphasis placed on general rather than specific problems. Speakers may be imported to give their views on sex education, or parents and teachers may discuss such questions as whether or not girls should wear jeans to school. But individual problems seldom come to the surface.

Here's what could take place. After coming forward to introduce himself, a father remarks: "My boy has been pretty much of a problem at home these days and I judge he may be at school, too. I wonder if we could work together and try to understand him." Or, "My Tim's grades show he isn't doing well in English. Is there any way I might help?"

Most of the problems teachers face stem from simple misunderstanding and thoughtlessness on the part of parents and the community. Little courtesies, and expressions of friendship and cooperation will make a good teacher want to stay in your school. It will also help turn an ordinary teacher into a true educator, one who brings out the best in your child.

Teachers Desire Normal Community Life

Most rural school teachers room and board in small towns near their schools. Their home life is anything but luxurious. They are forced to hunt long and hard for rooms, and, too often, must all but beg for shelter.

You'd think teachers were an odd breed of cats, the way some people shy away from renting rooms and giving board to them. When Johnny hears his mother remark, "Oh, we don't want a teacher around all the time," it is hard to imagine that his respect for the profession will mount.

Teachers still are looked on in the community not as individuals, but as a group. Most often they are invited "en masse" to social functions. Actually, a teacher is just as anxious to make friends outside her work as anyone else. She's eager to join clubs and organizations and to lead a normal life in the community in which she works.

Congress Forgets Bills

THE MARKED tendency of this congress to resolve itself into an investigating body instead of a legislative body is causing some concern in congressional leaders because important legislation essential to the national security is going by the boards, concern over excessive expenditure of money, and concern that over publicizing through movies, television, radio and other mediums is focusing attention on conditions much less important, insofar as the nation is concerned, than whether our democracy is to survive Communist aggression.

Nothing this congress will do will stamp out gambling so long as the states retain their sovereignty and maintain control over their own laws. Reform elements in the congress fought through one session and could not pass a bill which would prevent shipping slot machines in interstate commerce. The law finally was passed in this congress. However, the manufacturers of slot machines will still make them and they will get around this law by establishing branch plants in states where conditions warrant their operation to evade the interstate shipment.

There is an old axiom that you cannot legislate faith or morale and the proposal of Senator Fullbright of Arkansas, chairman of the committee probing the reconstruction finance corporation, to set up a code of morals for government employees and members of the congress was simply ridiculed.

The question of jailing gangsters, gamblers and heads of crime syndicates is a matter for local police authorities. All are caught sooner or later. The bureau of internal revenue says it has under scrutiny the income tax returns of 2,500 or more gamblers and questionable characters involving some $50,000,000. The "T" men will get them sooner or later. There are sufficient laws on the state books now to put every law violator behind bars. This congress will never pass a law to outlaw horse racing, nor to prohibit newspapers, or wire services from carrying race results. Good law abiding folks will still play poker and bingo and they'll bet on the outcome of football games and basketball games and other sports events.

Neither Maryland, nor Florida, nor any other state where racing is legal and where pari mutual betting provides a juicy state income will soon abolish their race tracks. The televising of the proceedings of the Kefauver senate committee in New York investigating gambling provided rich entertainment for millions of folks with eyes and ears glued to their sets. However, the televising of a rich, racy murder scandal would prove much more interesting.

McFarland Protests

In this connection, Sen. Ernest W. McFarland, of Arizona, Democratic leader of the senate, after listening to three hours of bickering and name calling over the political significance, if any, of these senate probes, said:

"The time has come when we should spend more time on legislation if we are to do what is expected of us. I say that in all kindness. One investigating committee alone has spent a quarter of a million dollars upon an investigation within the last year (the Kefauver committee), which is a considerable sum of money for one committee to spend. I hope this body will not resolve itself into a group of policemen to such an extent that some will suggest we should wear uniforms. I hope we can get down to the serious consideration of proposed legislation ..."

82 Investigations

This congress has reached the half-way point and has not passed a single piece of vital legislation. It has probed and probed and probed. Someone figured there were 82 separate investigations and hearings going on by congressional committees.

RFC Probe to Continue

Senator Fullbright has finally decided to continue his investigation of the R.F.C., big government lending agency, after telling the senate his probe was complete. The probe unearthed some conflicting testimony and the fact that some government employees accepted favors after loans were made and that so-called "undue influence" was used to obtain these loans.

GOP Pushes Probe

Senator Fullbright was literally goaded into continuing the investigation by Republican senators who baited him with barbed shafts. These digs came principally from Senators Kem, of Missouri, Wherry of Nebraska, Bricker of Ohio, and Capehart of Indiana. Debate came over discussion of RFC loans of $18,500,000 to a company of which Guy Gabrielson, GOP national chairman, was president and counsel.

Nebraska Rural Safety Project Wins Traffic Engineering Award

How one state reduced automobile accidents 91 per cent in one year at a dangerous rural highway intersection at trivial cost, simply by removing an unwarranted traffic signal and installing stop signs and warnings, has been voted the best example of traffic engineering results submitted to the Association of Casualty and Surety companies in its 1950 competition for traffic officials.

First prize of $100 was awarded to J. Edward Johnston, of Lincoln, Neb., state traffic engineer, Nebraska department of roads and irrigation, for his entry in the second annual "Getting Results Through Traffic Engineering" contest sponsored by the association's accident prevention department. It

Taxpayers Bear Expense of RFC Deals and Frauds

By Wright A. Patterson

GENERAL VAUGHN'S bestowal of refrigerators on favorites was but a piker operation compared with the natural mink coats presented to White House stenographers for influence in securing loans for corporations from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

The mink coats have figured prominently in the senate investigation of the R.F.C. scandal that has kept Washington and the entire nation agast for several weeks. But like other scandals of the past that newspaper and radio reporters have dug out of unusual graft conditions, nothing will come of it all.

The White House stenographer has her fur coat and will keep it. The Democratic national committee has collected considerable sums with which to finance the next national political campaign, and it will be used for that purpose. Numerous "fixers" have been paid extravagant sums for their services with directors of the R.F.C. Indirectly the American taxpayers bore the expense through the R.F.C. loans, which are financed by the federal government.

It is reported in Washington that grand jury indictments against R.F.C. directors and "fixers" will be sought. Such indictments may be voted, but, in all probability, convictions will not be obtained by the Department of Justice. Regardless of the sensational evidence produced by the senate committee, nothing will happen. The committee findings will be a political "white-wash." The senate will refuse to confirm the directors for a new term, and they will pass out of official life and quite possibly accept lucrative jobs with some of the numerous corporations to whom they have made extensive loans of government money.

Such a procedure would be but a repetition of other similar instances of the past. During the last war, for example, reporters dug out the evidence of large scale graft on the part of contractors on the international highway through Mexico and Central America. They provided the names, places, amounts and methods. The statements they printed could well have been the basis for libel suits if the suits were instituted. A congressional committee undertook an investigation. For a few days there was much fuss about it all. Then the subject disappeared from the newspapers, and the investigation stopped. Nothing happened. The grafting contractors kept their ill-gotten gains, the tax payers paid the bills, the investigation was called off. It was interfering with the game of politics and politicians.

showed how accidents have been nearly eliminated at the junction of highways U.S. 30 and Nebraska 15, near Schuyler, where 32 accidents had injured 13 persons in eight and a half years. Only on very minor accident occurred during the first year after the change was made, compared with 11 during the preceding 12 months.

The important contributions to greater highway safety being made by the nation's traffic engineers and officials are indicated by seven case histories of results, including Mr. Johnston's, published last year in the accident prevention department's bulletin, "Getting Results Through Traffic Engineering."

By actual count, according to Thomas N. Boate, the association's director of public safety, the 1950 examples of engineering results prevented 70 accidents, nine deaths and 61 injuries in comparable periods after safety projects were completed in five cities and on two rural highways in seven states—Tennessee, Louisiana, North Carolina, Virginia, Nebraska, California and Michigan.

Nine deaths and 65 injuries had occurred in 90 accidents at locations studied by traffic officials before the changes were made in the seven projects outlined in last year's bulletins. There were no deaths, injuries were reduced to four, and only 20 accidents occurred after the changes were made, Mr. Boate said.

IN THE ASSOCIATION'S annual competition, major factors considered by the judging include effectiveness of a project in reducing accidents and traffic delay or congestion, and relationship of the value of benefits to cost of the improvement made. The example submitted by Mr. Johnston showed that the prize-winning Nebraska rural crossroads project enabled the authorities to increase the speed limit from 25 to 35 miles an hour, thus expediting traffic at the same time accidents were reduced 91 per cent.

Eight times as many accidents had occurred at the Schuyler, Neb., intersection as were experienced at a similar location on U.S. 30 where only stop signs were used to control traffic, a study revealed. Analysis showed that fixed-time signals were not justified, so the lights were removed and 48-inch reflectorized stop signs and stop ahead warnings were erected to control traffic on Nebraska 15.

Other successful traffic engineering projects published in 1950 by the Association, ranging in cost from $5.50 to $30,080, included: establishment of a four-way stop in Nashville, Tenn.; channelizing and installing signals at Y-intersections in Los Angeles and Charlotte, N. C.; but rerouting and signal retiming in midtown Norfolk, Va.; instituting mid-block transit loading zones in the central business district of Shreveport, La., and re-signing a rural junction near Grand Rapids, Mich.

The 1951 "Getting Results Through Traffic Engineering" competition, which again offers a $100 award for the best example submitted, is open to all engineers, police and traffic officials. Entries should be sent at any time during the year to the Accident Prevention Department, Association of Casualty and Surety Companies, 60 John Street, New York 38, N. Y.

LOVER'S QUARREL

By Laura M. Welch

I MUST HAVE been about ten or eleven, a rather intense little girl with a twenty year old sister whom I adored. She was in love with a young druggist, a handsome young man and she always kept a large photograph of him in the center of our upright piano, usually with a small fluted bowl of pansies or violets in front of it. Bess had been going with another young man in town and Clyde had had another girl; then suddenly they only made dates with each other.

3-Minute Fiction

One night about one o'clock my sister came upstairs to the room we shared and came to bed and cried nearly all night. Several times I asked her what was the matter and she'd say, "Nothing, honey, go back to sleep."

I knew she and Clyde had been to a dance and I was sure they had quarreled. The next morning she still won't tell me why she had cried so much.

Later on in the day I went into the parlor to practice my scales and there was his photograph right there in front of me. I couldn't bear to look at it. He had made my sister cry. He had hurt her dreadfully and I hated him. I hated him so much I couldn't bear to see his picture.

I took the picture and slid it along the baseboard behind the piano. I gave it a hard shove and was sure it would never be found again.

Two or three days went by. My

"It was a hateful sort of thing for him to do," Bess said. "I know he's just laughing to himself, thinking how he put it over on me."

sister was still sad. I wondered if she and Clyde would ever make up their quarrel.

Some of her friends got together and decided to do something to help them make up. They came down to the house and brought Clyde with them, stayed a short time and went off leaving Clyde and Bess together. But it didn't do any good. Clyde left early, too, and my sister was just as sad as ever.

One day I heard her talking to one of her girl friends. "It was a hateful sort of thing for him to do. He could have asked me, you know. That would have been the honorable thing to do, even if he had wanted to give it to another girl." She swallowed a sob and went on. "I know he's just laughing to himself, thinking how he put it over on me."

I didn't have the slightest idea what she was talking about.

THE WHOLE TOWN was interested in the quarrel. They'd been expecting a big church wedding with all the fixings and were disappointed. As for myself, I just got madder and madder.

One morning I was sent uptown for the mail and met Clyde on the street. I started to go by him without speaking, which I knew was very rude, but I didn't care if it was. He reached out and caught my hand.

"Look, honey, don't be mad at me," he said. "Don't you know this thing is hurting me too?"

I said angrily, "You made her cry."

He turned a little pale and looked very serious. "Did she really cry, Becky?"

"Yes, she does . . . did, I mean. That's why I took your picture and hid it behind our old piano."

"You took the photograph?" I nodded. "It's behind the piano." "And all this time I thought she took it away because she was going to put another one there."

Quite suddenly I began to understand. "And she thought you took it to give to another girl?"

He took my hand again. "Look, I'm going home with you, Becky. Will you tell Bess what you've just told me?"

I nodded. And we went home together and I told her. There was a wedding after all.

4-H CLUB NOTES

Assistant director of the extension service, H. A. Berg, will speak at a joint meeting of the 4-H Council, Home Economics and Agricultural Councils on Friday, April 20, in East Tawas. The program will start at 8:00 p. m. in the Federal Building.

Some of our young folks have been anxious to get started in dairy, beef swine or sheep work with a good animal. If you will write Marvin Davenport, District 4-H Club Agent, Federal Building, East Tawas, you will receive some help.

4-H Club work, thru its vegetable garden, crops, livestock and poultry projects offers you the chance to get started. If you are interested in developing your own money making program, stop in the R-H Club office and we can talk over the possibilities.

FARM NOTES—

By Harold F. Clark, Farm Agent.

Projects to be covered this year by Women's Extension Groups are "Color in the Home," "Meals for the Middle Years" and "New Finishes for Fabrics."

Thursday the vice presidents and council members met with Beatrice Franquist, assistant state Home Demonstration Leader, to make plans for 1952 projects.

Of course I am pleased that Dorothy Scott, district Home Demonstration Agent, is being assigned to Isosco county. She can direct the home economics program more competently than I, and can offer expert help on the various home problems.

A guest speaker from Illinois at Farmer's Week spoke on the dollar value of soil conservation service. A study on 350 farms showed that the farmers who had adopted soil conservation practices had an increased income of $8.27 per acre over those who had not adopted the conservation plans. Of course the farmers who changed their plans for better practices had to make increased investments as a result of changing fields, fences, terracing, ditching, etc. It was also necessary to spend some money on additional buildings, equipment and machinery. These costs however were paid back by the increased income in about four years.

"Siller be Sold" was the title of Jack Nesbet's Farmers Week talk. He said that more packs of cigars are sold daily than quarts of milk. Why? Advertising is the reason. He said the dairy farmer profits not from producing but from selling. Surpluses in dairy products is not a result of over production, but underselling.

Sweet clover silage makes excellent silage says S. T. Dexter, Farm Crops Department. It is one of the easiest of the legumes to ensile and less spoilage is experienced in making than from alfalfa. Moldy sweet clover silage when fed reduces the clotting power of the blood, although a little other roughage or hay will counteract the non-clotting trouble.

Test soils now. Fertilizer is the best investment a farmer can make. If your credit is good you

Prosecutor Points
Out a Traffic Danger

A considerable number of complaints have been received by the Prosecutor's office, Sheriff's office and State Police in connection with dangerous practice of many motor vehicle operators in disregarding the law pertaining to school buses operating on the roads of Iosco County. The law provides that the operator of a school bus shall bring the bus to a full stop on the traveled portion of the highway and remain stopped until the children have alighted and crossed the highway in front of the bus. It should be obvious to all that this presents a dangerous situation if traffic approaching behind does not stop.

Compiled Laws of the State of Michigan provides as follows:

The driver of a vehicle shall not overtake and pass any school bus proceeding in the same direction, which bus has stopped for the purpose of receiving or discharging passengers. All school buses shall contain such signs on the back and front thereof, with respect thereto, as shall be approved by the State Highway Commissioner.

Any person who shall violate the provisions of this section shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction therefor shall be punished as provided by the laws of this state.

Displaying The Flag
The flag never should be reduced to the role of a mere decoration by being tied into knots or draped over a speaker's stand. For this purpose bunting should be employed. When used on a speaker's platform the flag should be displayed over a staff or from a wall curtain at the rear. When the flag is displayed from a staff projecting horizontally or at an angle from a window sill, balcony, front of building or similar position the union should go to the peak of the staff, unless the flag is flown at half-staff.

He's entitled to take practical steps to make his dreams come true. In short, he's entitled to own a ROADMASTER, and particularly a ROADMASTER as it is custom built for '51. For this great automobile is more than big and roomy and distinguished in its styling. It's more than sweetly willing in performance, and superbly poised in stride. It does things to you, when you let yourself sink deep down in the subtle softness of its cushions, and run a caressing hand over the fine texture of its fabrics.

This is everything a fine car should be! Of course, this brilliant performer is Fireball powered. It is cushioned by coil springs on every wheel. It provides, at no extra cost, the complete relaxation of Dynaflo Drive. It has durable and dependable sturdiness engineered into every mechanical part. But the best is yet to be told. When you check the ROADMASTER price list, you'll find that the car of your choice can be yours for hundreds of dollars less than you'll pay for others with comparable reputation. THE STORY SO FAR:
Dan Frazer has discovered that the munitions are hidden in The Little Bear mine. Simultaneously, the German, Kranz, who is in league with the Mexican bandit, Candino, sets out with his gang for Helen Bartell's house in the hills, thinking she unknowingly possesses a message giving the location of the arms store which he also wants. Frazer rides after them and comes upon them laying siege to the Bartell house where Helen and Wenslow are holding out there and see what's what," he suggested.

CHAPTER XVI

"Stop sparring and get down to business," Helen Bartell said impatiently. "Who were these men who attacked us, and what did they want?"

"Pardon," Gonzales was all politeness again. "I did but joust with Senor Frazer. We go on business."

"By all means do."
"Senor Kranz and I came to Mesa Verde to look after the interests of Vasquez. We drew certain citizens into our ranks, notably the deputy marshal. In his position he could be of great help to us. Soon, however, I began to suspect Kranz. Some of the men he was gathering around him were plain cut-throats. I concluded that Kranz had sold out to some other party, probably Candino."

"Leaving only yourself and Delaplane loyal to good old Vasquez," Frazer murmured thoughtfully.

Gonzales nodded and Frazer felt a quick thrill of satisfaction. The man had ticketed himself. Helen Bartell broke in, however, and his thoughts shifted. For the moment he had forgotten the fact that Delaplane had been making a definite play for the blond girl.

"You mean Ed Delaplane was working for Vasquez?" she demanded incredulously.

Gonzales Explains His Part in the Mystery

"Of a certainty. We felt well pleased to enlist his services. He was able to bring us much information direct from your father."

"Then he simply used his visits to me for . . ."

"Certainly not," Gonzales insisted, his politeness more marked than ever. "Visiting you gave him the opportunity to speak with your father, but I cannot believe that he visited for that reason alone. No man could be so blind."

Frazer chuckled dryly, amused in spite of his perplexity at the Mexican's attitude. "I subscribe to the sentiment," he announced firmly. "Drive on, Senor."

"Very well. Soon I learned that your government has sent a man to investigate. Kranz learned of it, but did not tell me. So I know that he suspects me or does not want me to know. I also notice then that his friends leave Mesa Verde, but I do not know until later that they have identified the government agent and are watching him. Finally came the events of which you know. The stage is held up and a man is shot down, evidently because he is a second government agent. Shortly after that the first agent is killed by one of Kranz's men. I notice that the killer lies out there by the trail."

Frazer nodded grimly. "I stumbled across him when I was trying to get close to the rest of the crew. We shot it out."

"My congratulations," Gonzales murmured, dismissing the matter with a little shrug. "Then came Snagg to town with word that the government man had found something, evidently the munitions which so many people wanted. It was believed that he had written the secret on a piece of paper which he had concealed in a false cartridge."

"And now comes the merry-go-round," Frazer grunted. "Before Snagg can pass the word to his boss I have picked up the dead man's gun and have gone out to do some shooting, first at the killer and a little later at a man who has some ambitions about shooting Miss Bartell."

Gonzales bowed. "Exactly. For Kranz that is bad enough, but what he does not know is that you leave the gun with Miss Bartell. No one knows about that. We know that you are carrying two guns. One you took from Gale, so the other must be that of the agent. It is not until later that we know of the case of Ames. So efforts are made to get the gun from you."

Helen Bartell's eyes were flashing now. For the first time she was hearing enough of the story so that she could piece together the elements which had left her so completely puzzled. Frazer realized her mood and put in a leading question. "Did you have anything to do with any of those attempts, Senor?"

Gonzales shook his head. "I planned it another way," he said with a smile. "Delaplane tried first on his own account when he attempted the seizure in the bar. It was Delaplane again who sent the red-haired girl to your room. That time I think he was working under the orders of Kranz. Certainly the two of them knew she had gone to make the try."

Frazer interrupted with a quizzical glance at Helen Bartell. "Isn't it the limit the way perfume hangs around?" he inquired. Helen ignored the remark, her gaze on the Mexican as she asked, "I understand that I had a gun which held some sort of secret?"

"You have a gun," he corrected. "I'm quite sure Mr. Frazer did not recover it when he went to your house this morning."

"You will please to hand me that gun," he ordered briskly. "If it will make you feel any better I can tell you that I do not propose to use the information for any purposes but a good one. The Mexican government will merely take steps to protect itself."

"But I don't have the gun," Helen protested. "I returned it to Mr. Frazer early this morning."

"That's correct," Frazer affirmed. "You met me on my second visit. I took the gun away earlier."

The Mexican's gun swung a little, subtly threatening the man on the couch.

Gonzales shook his head. "I planned it another way," he said with a smile.

Frazer shook his head, making no other move. "You're crazy if you think this is getting you anywhere, Gonzales. I won't . . ."

"He can't tell you anything," Helen broke in. "He's just taking your attention away from me. When I returned that gun to him there was a fresh set of cartridges in it. He didn't get any such dummy shell as you're talking about."

Gonzales started, then settled back a little grimly. "Then we start over," he said. "It was you who found the message from the government man?"

Frazer Lures Mexican Into Leaving Ranch

"Slow down, mister," she advised, her voice completely cool now that she had taken the center of the stage. "You're jumping at conclusions. I haven't seen any message."

"I looked at the gun shortly after it was given to me—for my protection. It seemed rather odd that I should have been provided with such a lame weapon. It contained one bullet, four empty cases and a shell which held a bullet, but whose primer was dented. For safety's sake I threw out all of the old loads and put in five brand new shells."

"So that's what happened!" Frazer exclaimed. "No wonder I couldn't figure out what you did with the confounded thing."

Evidently he made the remark convincing. At any rate Gonzales stooped promptly, putting his gun away. "That is all I need to know," he announced. "Forgive me if I bid you adios rather hastily. There is still time."

Frazer grinned thinly at the girl when the little Mexican was out of hearing. "Cute sense of humor that hombre has," he commented. "I wonder if he was telling us the truth when he said he was working for the Mex government?"

"Would it make any difference?" she asked anxiously.

"Not too much. I did a little garbage can searching myself this morning."

Helen Bartell sat down suddenly in a big armchair. Her short laugh indicated that the tension of the moment was over, but its tones warned that she was far from satisfied about many things. Her glance at Dan was distinctly severe as she demanded, "Who permitted you to rummage around in our garbage? Surely my father wasn't helping anyone to find a betrayal of his secret?"

There was a giggle gnawing at the edge of Helen's severe comment about burglary being burglary and he decided that he had adopted the correct approach. Apparently Wenslow felt the same way about it, for he stood up suddenly, fumbling with his hat and winking elaborately at Frazer. "I reckon I oughta git out there and see what's what," he suggested.

"And look the bodies over," Frazer called after him. "We might learn something."

The girl shuddered at mention of the dead men. "It doesn't seem possible that I've been living through such a nightmare," she said in a troubled voice. "Even when they wear shooting into this house I didn't realize what it all meant. Men have been dying—and all because my father had a good idea."

"Don't worry about it. Lots of men have cooked up nice sounding schemes that have caused plenty of grief for their friends and neighbors. Maybe we can shut this one off before it gets too bad."

Frazer Reveals Guns Are Stored in Mine

"Where is the message that the gun held?"

"In my pocket." He grinned wryly. "Just imagine how our friend Gonzales would feel if he knew how he's been hornswoggled."

She was not to be diverted. "What was the message?"

He pointed to the coat which had been taken off him when the bandaging began. "Look in one of the pockets of that. I don't remember which one."

Wenslow found them smiling but grim when he returned. He concluded that they must have reached some rather amicable agreements, but that both of them were ready to recognize the seriousness of the situation at hand.

"I put all the broncs in the corral," he reported. "There wasn't nothin' on any o' the dead hombres that was much good. Just guns. I bring them along—with the cartridge belts. What's the next step?"

Frazer nodded. "Do you know where the Little Bear mine is located?"

"Sure. It's a dead duck though. Ain't been anything good comin' outa there since the first vein petered out."

"What we're worried about is something dangerous coming out of it," Frazer told him. "It seems pretty certain that the Little Bear is where those filibuster guns are stored. We've got to take some step to make sure that they don't come out. If they do, they'll almost certainly get into the wrong hands—and then we'll have a bloody mess around here."

"How do ye figure that? Couldn't they work out for somethin' useful?"

"You hear the talk with Gonzales," Frazer said, a bit impatiently. "Everything he said was true, unless it was the part about his interest in the deal. If Bartell gives the word to go ahead we'll have a filibuster army marching on the border. Either one of two things will happen. They'll run into Mexican regulars and there will be an international scramble. Or they'll get the Vasquez double-cross and there'll be a massacre. One way or another Mesa Verde will lose a lot of men and gain exactly nothing in return."

"If Bartell's men don't get the munitions out first, but somebody else learns the secret, we'll have an even worse mess. There'll be a race between Candino and Vasquez with a good prospect of a battle between them being fought on this side of the line. That will mean looting, pillage and general murder, particularly if Candino wins."

She shuddered, apparently recognizing the dangers of having such a mob unleashed in the territory. Frazer followed his point up quickly. "The only wonder is that they haven't tried it before this. I'd guess that they've been holding off for more definite information—but now they'll be likely to take the gamble. We've got to move now."

"But what can we do? What can you do? You can't ride a horse while you have that hole in your side."

Wenslow and the girl did not waste any time in getting ready. By mid-afternoon the horses were brought around and Frazer braced himself for the effort of mounting. Every movement brought waves of pain almost nauseated him, and he knew that the jolting ride would probably cause a dangerous loss of blood.

'We Are His People'

Lesson for April 15, 1951

WHEN A Christian today in church repeats the ancient Psalm, "We are His people," if he knows what he is saying he is associating himself with Abraham, Isaac and Jacob. The God of the Bible is not a "great first cause" or a "principle" of any sort. First, last and always He is the God of the Covenant. Over and over again He is called the "God of Abraham, Isaac and Jacob."

The stories of these men are not mere campfire tales of legendary ancestors. They are the story of how these men were related to God in a solemn covenant; they were "God's people" in a special way. In the New Testament we find the strange yet stirring declaration that God was "not ashamed to be their God."

The Living God

THE FULL meaning of what the Bible has to tell us about God can be discovered best by coming toward an understanding of what the covenant idea means. What is meant by the Covenant God, one who makes covenants with men?

First of all, it means that God is living. He is not a mere observer of events with which He has nothing to do. If we could put it into modern American language, God does not sit in the bleachers; He plays the game. He does not, as it were, read the newspapers to see how the war against evil goes on; He is out on the field directing the battles.

God is not something to be talked about, a problem, an X; He is not a creation of men's minds, God is not a name for an idea. He is more alive than any one who thinks about Him. He is more real than any who ever doubted Him.

Only Persons Make Covenants

THE GREAT difference between things and people is that people have wills of their own. And God is a person. You will not find in the Bible any statement directly saying that God is personal, or a person; but every time a Covenant between God and man is mentioned, the idea of personality is there.

No one who ever knew God would think of calling Him "It" even with capital letters. If we say "He" about God it is not because we think He is masculine; it would be quite as true to call Him Mother-God as Father-God. As Dr. Reynolds, Presbyterian missionary to Korea, has pointed out, all the best qualities we associate with motherhood are in the Bible attributed to God. So if we call God "He" what we are emphasizing is that He is personal, that He has intelligence and will of His own, no vague It or That or "All."

Then the Covenant God is one who takes the initiative. The Bible tells of a God who does not wait on a snow clad peak of eternity till lost mankind somehow breaks a trail up the vast ranges to His lofty throne. It tells of a God who walks in the valley of the shadows, seeking men. All religions have gods, some of them very "high and lifted up"; but only the Bible reveals the true God, whose mercy does not have to be bought or coerced, but a God who approaches man in mercy, a God who is all-giving Love.

God Makes His Own Terms

AT THE same time, God remains God. He is not on a level with man. He takes the initiative, but also He makes His own terms. We cannot dictate to Him. We cannot draw up our own contracts, so to speak. God made promises to Abraham, Isaac and Jacob, and we are "heirs of the promises."

But these promises are not promiscuous. To put it quite simply: God is not on friendly terms with every one. He is a friend to all who will be His friends. But with those who turn their backs, who go their own ways, who care little or nothing for His great purposes, who do not seek His will, God makes no covenants.

God's will is the welfare of mankind. God's will is the destruction of evil, the creation and triumph of good. God is light and in Him is no darkness at all. If we love darkness rather than light, we have no right to be called His people. We cannot call ourselves His people because we are Americans, or because we belong to some church; we can call ourselves His people only if our hearts are in tune with His.

90,000 People Killed in U.S. During Past Year

CHICAGO, Ill. — The National Safety Council reported 90,000 people were killed in accidents during 1950, 8,900,000 were injured, with a total cost to the public amounting to $7,700,000,000.

Huge as the toll was, it represented a saving of 1,000 lives from the 1949 total—a reduction of one per cent. Motor vehicle accidents led the list as the nation's number one killer, with home accidents second. The darkest part of the accident picture for 1950 was the failure to hold the line against motor vehicle deaths, the council reported. Booming auto production and soaring travel sent traffic deaths up 11 per cent to the highest toll since 1941.

Americans Safer
But away from the wheels of their cars, Americans generally were safer in 1950. Although occupational deaths went up slightly as a result of greater employment, home accident deaths and those occurring in public places not involving a motor vehicle decrease more than enough to offset the rise in traffic deaths.

The 1950 all-accident death rate was 59.9 per hundred thousand population. This is the lowest rate on record, bettering the previous record low rate of 61.2 in 1949.

Nevertheless, one out of every 17 persons in the United States suffered a disabling injury in 1950.

The estimated economic loss of $7,700,000,000 from accidents in 1950 covers both fatal and non-fatal accidents and includes wage losses, medical expense and overhead costs of insurance for all accidents, production delays, damage to equipment in occupational accidents and property damage from traffic accidents and fires.

Aged persons 65 years and older made up the only age group to show a decrease—11 per cent. Deaths of children under 15 were about the same in 1950 as in 1949. There were 6 per cent more deaths in the 15-24 year group and 5 per cent more among persons 25-44 years of age. The 45-64 year group has a 1 per cent increase.

Falls a Heavy Killer
Falls, always a heavy killer, brought death to 18,600 persons in 1950—13 per cent fewer than in 1949.

Deaths from burns numbered 7,000—an 8 per cent increase from 1949. Drowning totaled 6,100 in 1950—a decrease of 9 per cent.

Firearms deaths dropped 11 per cent to 2,100. Catastrophes in which the toll was at least five lives occurred about as often in 1950 as in 1949, but resulted in more deaths. Up to the closing days of 1950, the number of deaths in such catastrophes totaled nearly 1,500—an increase of about 250 from 1949.

Three catastrophes in 1950 caused more than 50 deaths each—the November wind and snow storm in the northeastern states, the collision of two suburban trains in New York, and the crash of a scheduled air transport plane into Lake Michigan.

Eight other catastrophes caused between 25 and 50 deaths.

As in past years, the bulk of the accident total was made up of one or two-death accidents.

Finder Returns Pocketbook And Gets Watch in Return

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. — Strange things happen to many people. Mrs. Fred Huff, Sr., for instance, was parking her car recently when she found a pocketbook containing $45 lying beside a parking meter.

She watched the lost-and-found columns and noticed an advertisement by Mrs. Eunice Baugh, saying she had lost her pocketbook.

The two women met and Mrs. Baugh identified her pocketbook. As she thanked Mrs. Huff, Mrs. Baugh remarked:

"You don't happen to know of anybody who has lost a wrist watch, do you?"

After she missed her billfold, Mrs. Baugh related, she retraced her steps and, nearing the parking meter, discovered a wrist watch.

The surprised Mrs. Huff said she had lost hers, explaining that a link in the watch band was faulty.

"I guess it dropped off when I reached down for the billfold," she added.

The women thanked one another and parted.

WORDS may be little things—but it's allus good to remember that folks are masters o' unspoken words, but spoken words become their masters.

I MAY BE a Grandma in years, but when it comes to cookin', I'm up to the minute. Yep, I look for the picture o' Miss Nu-Maid in choosin' margarine, 'cause I prefer a modern margarine. Yessir, Nu-Maid is modern in texture . . . spreads on smooth! It's modern in taste—full o' sweet, churned-fresh flavor!

STRIKES ME that lots o' times when folks seem to have clear consciences, it turns out they just got poor memories.

Scales Tell Story

How old is this fish? Is it stunted or is it making good growth? About how much did it grow last year, or the year before? What was its length at the end of the second year of life? These and many other questions are of prime importance and interest to the fishery biologist. He needs to know the answers to many of these questions to form an intelligent management plan for any given body of water. If, for instance, it is found that the fish in a certain lake are stunted, that is that they are not growing as well as would normally be expected, then either there are too many fish in the lake for the available food or the lake is not producing as much food as it should. In either case, the biologist can apply remedial measures based on his findings. Or perhaps it is found that the fish in the lake or stream are making such excellent growth that the creel limits can be raised. Again, the adequacy of natural reproduction of fish in a lake or stream can be determined by the numbers of fish of various year-classes, if the ages of the fish can be determined. There are many ways that information of this kind is of value to the biologist.

Now a fish can't speak (at least none have ever been reported to do so) and tell the biologist about these things. Fortunately, however, its scales do tell the biologist a fairly detailed story about how tough life has been on the poor fish and how many years it has been alive. The story the scales can tell, answers many of the questions the biologist has in mind when he undertakes the formation of a management plan for better fishing in lakes and streams.

Anyone who has caught a fish which has scales has perhaps noticed that each scale is covered with a series of roughly concentric lines or ridges. These are known as circuli. The distribution of these lines is not perfectly regular but shows breaks at various intervals. Those breaks are the year marks or annuli by means of which the age of the fish is determined.

Target Scopes

A rifle target scope must be carefully adjusted both for the individual shooter's eye and for the range. The effectiveness of a scope is greatly reduced when the adjustments are even slightly in error. The rifleman should spend plenty of time adjusting his scope for the range over which he is to shoot, for it will pay him well on the score board.

Always check your scope carefully before a match. A solid jar or knock could loosen the mounts or possibly cause some parallax. Five minutes before firing time is much too late for such a check—do your checking the day before the match.

Before investing in a scope, it is well to try out some of those owned by friends in order that you may get a better idea of the type and model which best suits you. After you get a scope, take good care of it. Remember, it is a very easy matter to bend the tube or break a glass. Always handle it with care.

Another important thing to keep always in mind is this standard saying among scope-makers and scope users: "There are only two persons who take scopes apart, the man who knows how and the fool."

Try 'Em All!

There is hardly a more pathetic sight to the veteran angler than the "one-lure" man—the fisherman who at some time or another has caught a big fish on a certain plug and, thereafter, will use no other.

The smart angler, when he finds the fish are not hitting as they should, or as he desires, will start digging into the tackle box until he has "thrown everything in the book" at the unresponsive objects of his pursuit.

There are instances too numerous to mention where a lure that was deadly one day or even one hour before suddenly fails even to attract the slightest touch from a fish. When that happens, common-sense or angling intuition ought to direct the angler to try something else.

One of the most expert anglers in the United States carries a tackle box with 10 trays of lures in it—not to show off, but just to be ready in case the fish on any given occasion are exhibiting a terribly finicky appetite. Thus this angler assures himself he will not be caught without any special lure that the finny denizens may want.

Leaders For Pickerel

Whenever fishing for pickerel, the wise angler will see to it that he has on a fairly heavy leader. This is necessary because the sharp teeth of the pickerel can fray a light line or a fine leader. And even if one doesn't lose the fish, it is highly likely the plug will be lost on the next cast after a pickerel has been working on the line. A wire leader is the best bet, with a new-type nylon leader with a fine steel cable through middle the next best.

INSULATION IN ATTIC FLOOR

Question: Please advise whether it would be of any value to place waterproof paper between the joists in the attic (i.e., the ceilings of the rooms below) before pouring or blowing in the insulation material. I intended to do the work myself and would appreciate your advice, since it will require considerable additional work to lay the paper, and unless it will make the insulation more effective, I do not wish to go to this extra expense. If you do consider this waterproof paper an advantage, would you tell me what type to use?

Answer: Your plan is entirely correct, for the paper would act

BADLY WORN LAUNDRY TUBS

Question: The smooth finish—assumed to be cement—has worn off the bottoms and a short distance up the walls of our laundry tubs (twin). They have been in use since 1940. Now the coarser material, fine gravel, is exposed, and from time to time small particles are found adhering to the wash. I shall appreciate your giving me any suggestion which may be translated into a method of repairing this damage.

Answer: If not too rough, you might be able to smooth the surfaces by rubbing with a coarse abrasive stone. If this fails, you might call in a competent concrete worker. He may be able to clean the surfaces with a muriatic acid solution, rinse with water and put in a layer of cement mortar. If he does not think this idea practical, you could have a sheet metal (tinsmith) worker cut a sheet of stainless steel to fit the bottom of the tubs. The sheet should be taken out after each washing for thorough rinsing with clear water and the tubs should be allowed to dry out. Of course, the better plan would be to have good modern porcelain tubs put in, and get rid of the old ones.

Child's World Is Wonderful

Carmelita Plonka

The world that children live in is mighty wonderful... filled with little daydreams and hopes and joys that make the older folks sometimes wish they were school-age again. But boys and girls have their ups and downs, too, particularly when they are not feeling well. Ten-year-old Carmelita Plonka, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. Plonka of 3202 S. Aberdeen, Chicago, Ill., was not feeling good recently and was just too listless to get the most out of her school days. Fortunately for Carmelita, though, her grandmother suggested that her mother give her HADACOL, because she had heard how much it was helping children deficient in Vitamins B, B<sub>12</sub>, Iron and Niacin. Now Carmelita feels fine and her mother says she has a big appetite.

Here is Mrs. Plonka's statement: "My daughter Carmelita, who is 10 years old and in the fifth grade, had always been overweight and I had to positively force her to eat. She had no interest in food whatsoever, but I knew that she had to eat. When we were visiting my mother in Missouri over the Christmas holidays she suggested I give Carmelita HADACOL. I bought a large bottle of it that same day and was amazed at the change in Carmelita. Her appetite picked right up and she now eats three hearty meals a day plus in-between snacks. I have really praised HADACOL, and highly recommend it for everyone."

HADACOL can help you, if you suffer such deficiencies. Ask your druggist for HADACOL today.

If your druggist does not have HADACOL, order direct from The LeBlanc Corporation, Lafayette, Louisiana. Send no money. Just your name and address on a penny post card. Pay postman. State whether you want the $3.50 family economy size or $1.25 trial size. Remember, money cheerfully refunded unless you are 100% satisfied. Adv.
