Wind Rips Saginaw

Bay Shoreline

Winds that reached cyclonic velocity ripped the Saginaw Bay shoreline Wednesday night. The blow was believed to be one of the worst in twenty-five years and it played havoc to boats, docks and breakwaters along the outer bay area. Hardest hit was the area near Bay City. No deaths or injuries were reported.

Commander C. S. Everett of the Tawas Flotilla Coast Guard Auxiliary reported Thursday that damage along the Tawas shoreline was slight.

He reported that the area near the point received heavy damage. He also stated that the heavy wind washed out several small docks and washed up old dead heads near the mouth of the Tawas River. The obstructions have already been removed.

Tawas Loses to Alabaster in 8 to 0 Game

Tawas City Plays At Pinconning This Sunday

In a practice game Sunday Tawas City lost to Alabaster 8 to 0 at the Tawas City diamond. The locals committed six costly misplays. Alabaster banged out eleven hits off the Tawas pitchers, Look and Warner, while Clare Herriman held the locals with three. Alabaster gave him perfect support, not committing an error and turned two double plays.

Both sides had only one man reach first base until the fourth inning when the White City boys sewed up the game by scoring three runs on three "Chinese liner" hits.

Manager Bolen's squad was led in the hitting department by Elmer Erickson, Clare Herriman and Pete Peterson who each blasted two hits. Peterson also quarterbacked the team behind the plate.

Myles, Warner and Anschuetz each had one hit for Tawas City.

This Sunday Tawas City will play at Pinconning. Melta will play at Alabaster to start the first week of the second half of the league schedule.

Showers on the "fourth" dampened the spirit of many old timers and caused the postponement of the Old Timers Day Celebration til Labor Day. Potato growers in Isoco county have received ballots this week from the county PMA committee, to use in voting "Yes" or "No" on the question of continuing Federal Marketing Order 60, which regulates the marketing of potatoes in six North Central states. "Price support on potatoes was stopped by order of Congress at the end of the 1950 marketing season. The only question for potato growers to decide is whether they want a means of working with other growers to hold culls and small potatoes off the market, to help keep supply in balance with demand and to give the consumer a better quality potato as a way of getting a better price."

The ballots, mailed to every grower who produced potatoes for market in 1950, are to be filled out and mailed during the week of July 9-13. A self addressed envelope is provided with each ballot.

Temporary Re-Wording

SCANNING THE WEEK'S NEWS
of Main Street and the World

Korean Conflict Is One Year Old; World War May Have Been Averted

SOON, IF AT ALL—A few days ago—June 25—the Korean war was one year old. Today, after a year of fighting Communism in battle, the questions uppermost in the minds of most Americans is what are the chances for world peace? Is World War III nearer or more remote? A great many unknown factors and "ifs" arise with such questions. But there is a growing belief in the world today that a general war is more remote than a year ago. This reasoning is based mainly upon two points: (1) The free nations of the world are growing stronger every day; (2) the free world has demonstrated in deeds as well as words it will resist aggression.

There is one fact that none of the free nations of the world is overlooking. There is the possibility, in the face of the west's growing strength, that the Soviet Union realizes it must act soon, if at all. To wait would only give the west time to grow so strong that victory for Communism would be an impossibility.

The Korean war seems to have accomplished several things. It brought to life the west's lagging plans to marshal military, political and economic resources to meet future aggression. And these moves may have served as a deterrent to ambitious aggressors.

TEXAS TOUR—Gen. Douglas MacArthur flew to Texas for a number of official receptions and speeches. For three days he preached his doctrine of a realistic approach to far east problems. He went so far in a Dallas speech as to say "it is fantastically unrealistic to refuse to accept the fact that we are at war—a bitter, savage and costly war."

But the colorful general who has caused more controversy in a few months than many prominent figures do in a lifetime, departed from his main theme to take a slap at the domestic policies of the Truman administration.

"There are those who seek to make the burden of taxation so great and the progressive increases so alarming that the spirit of adventure, tireless energy, and masterful initiative which built the material strength of the nation shall become stultified and inert," he said. "There are those who seek to make all men servants of the state."

The departure from the main theme of his speeches since he returned to the United States increased speculation that the general may be planning a political career despite his assertion he is not interested in entering politics. The Texas visit has been called a test for future political moves.

GRAIN FOR INDIA—The long delayed grain for India bill, lending India $190,000,000 on easy terms to buy 2,000,000 tons of U. S. wheat and other basic foodstuffs, was signed into law by President Truman.

The bill was subject to months of heavy debate in congress before it was finally passed. Critics argued that India's opposition to some U. S. policies in Korea made her an ill deserving beneficiary. Backers said it had a humanitarian purpose and, besides, it would help line up India with the western world as opposed to the Communist bloc.

In the months of debate many forgot the fact that the food purchased by the loan will prevent famine in India. It was the only humane thing this nation could do.

PRICE CONTROLS—By the time this reaches print the defense production act which gives the government the power to control prices, wages and rents may or may not have been extended. In all probability it will have, but it will not contain the broader powers as asked by President Truman.

Special interests—the cattle industry, landlords, the building industry and others—have used every trick at their command to get amendments tacked to the act that would be to their advantage.

As a result, the house banking committee voted tentatively to knock out two future price rollbacks on live cattle planned by the office of price stabilization. Also, the senate banking committee voted to renew and expand the government's rent-control program. But the senate committee at the same time recommended a raise in some of the rent ceilings.

The committee felt that a 20 per cent increase should be allowed in some areas. Many of these areas already had from 10 to 30 per cent increases above 1942 levels.

As for the house vote on beef rollbacks, it was a direct slap at the administration's beef policies. The vote was in the form of an amendment that would limit future price rollbacks on all agricultural commodities to 50 per cent of prices on May 19, 1951.

Whatever its form, the new defense production act will be far from what President Truman asked.

MACARTHUR HEARINGS—Any day now the MacArthur hearings will close. It would be interesting to know what historians will make of the incident and read into the millions of words of testimony.

No hearing or debate in American history ever caused so much comment in the big towns and the home towns of the nation. And possibly no incident in modern history, excepting World War II and the Korean war, received such coverage in the nation's press. It made good reading in dailies and small town newspapers alike.

The debate may have been good for the nation, and certainly, was carried out in the best American tradition of free speech and thought. But there was one regrettable aspect of the hearing. Our potential enemies now know the inner thoughts and reasoning of American foreign policy. Our policies are an open book to the entire world.

RESERVISTS TO GO HOME—Home town enlisted reservists — not members of organized reserve or national guard units—are going to be released by the army. Approximately 100,000 will be released in the next six months.

There will be no "point system" or other inflexible standards to determine the order in which the reservists are released. Each unit will set up its own standards, giving "primary consideration" to maintaining maximum effectiveness.

But veterans who served 90 days or more during World War II are to be let out first under the general standards set up by the army. Reservists who have had previous military service other than World War II are to get second priority.

Truman Presented With 4-H Club Key
Marjorie Nold, Savannah, Mo., and Richard Golob, Sunnyside, Wash., delegates to the 21st National 4-H Club Camp in the nation's capital, present 4-H club key to President Truman. More than 200 delegates from 48 states, U.S. territories, and seven nations attended the camp.

AMERICAN DOCUMENTS

Constitution to be Preserved in Glass

America's most precious documents—the Declaration of Independence and the Constitution—will be preserved permanently in glass, it was announced recently in Washington. Work on finding a suitable way of preserving the parchments began a decade ago, but was interrupted by World War II. Since the revival of the project, officials of the Library of Congress, scientists of the National Bureau of Standards and Thermo-pane technicians of Libbey-Owen-Ford glass company have spent nearly four years perfecting special bronze and glass enclosures for the job.

When the two historical symbols of democracy are once safely stored in glass they will be available for inspection by the public.

BEGGAR AND THIEF . . . This is the story of Fuzzy, a mendicant of great stomach capacity, and Pal, a thieving canine. Tourists entering Ontario's northlands stop off to see the antics of these animals near North Bay. Fuzzy does the begging but only profits by gulping. Pal is ever alert to squeeze through the cage bars, grab the loot, and dash back to safety. At left, Fuzzy has just succeeded in wheedling a delicious ice cream cone from a lady tourist. But Pal (center) allows him to enjoy the tidbit only a few seconds before he grabs for it. But, Pal's too late. Fuzzy has gulped it down (right). Everything's fine, less Fuzzy gets mad.

CAUGHT IN THE NET . . . Eleven men (shown) and an eight-year-old boy were arrested in East Harlem during the city-wide roundup of dope addicts and drug sellers. Suspects pictured above were booked and held to add to the mounting number of arrests and convictions brought on by the drive against narcotics. Police said that the youngster of eight was a messenger boy for the alleged dope "pushers." Disturbing reports of addiction among youngsters led other cities to crack down on "pushers" and "users," with new arrests bringing startling reports. One family gave baby heroin to "keep it from crying so much."

KING AND CAT . . . King Paul of Greece, wearing uniform of an admiral, is in jovial mood as he sits with his queen Frederica listening to speeches at dedication of a hospital, built with funds contributed by Greek-Americans at Salonika. At right, Crown Prince Constantine seems equally pleased as he listens and holds his pet cat, who must be pleased, too, demonstrating that a cat may indeed be permitted to gaze upon a king. The queen seems intent on same activity—apparently that causing applause of spectators.

TRUE APPRECIATION . . . WAF Staff Sgt. Mary Lewis is the recipient of hearty gratitude of Air Force Capt. Robert P. Boyd (left) and Capt. Herbert K. Keenan at Mitchell Air Force base, Long Island. Mary "talked" the pilots safely in to the field when their plane was disabled in bad weather. She has received four commendations and been given charge of the control tower. The happy smiles on the faces of the two officers show how appreciative they are for the nice conversation.

SHUTTERBUGGIN' ADMIRAL . . . Responsibilities of commanding naval war are momentarily forgotten as Adm. Arthur W. Radford, commander-in-chief of Pacific and Pacific fleets, snaps a 16-inch gun salvo aboard USS New Jersey off Korean coast.

URGES CONTROLS . . . J. A. Pels, 79 year-old retired Cincinnati necktie manufacturer and salesman whose letter urging Truman to retain controls was quoted in President's radio message. "Too many look only at a dollar," Pels said.

THE READER'S DATE BOOK Main Street Reaps Big Profits From Millions of U.S. Tourists

If Main Street happens to be on a national highway it will mean big business for the home town during the remainder of July and August. Millions of Americans will take to the highways to see the country. And they will spend millions in the home towns for lodging, gasoline, oil, food, soft drinks, souvenirs, and gadgets.

The home town that has a national park or historic shrine nearby, or is located in a beautiful scenic area, will reap the biggest dividend during the weeks that Americans live on wheels. But this opportunity to further home town economy is often neglected by merchants, civic clubs, and the publishers of local newspapers because they fail to tell the world about their assets. It's not too late for many home towns to do something about it.

The home town who plans to take off on a trip across the country is urged to give careful consideration to the widespread deterioration that has taken place along some of the country's main highways. It is wise to study routes before departure to avoid delays and inconveniences.

Over-all postwar highway construction has not been able to keep pace with the ever-increasing volume of motor traffic. In addition, one of the heaviest snowfalls in the history of the country covered many northern states last winter and resulted in widespread damage to road surfaces. Home towns located on highways in good repair will find traffic through town greatly increased during the next two or three months.

Motoring in the United States has come a long way since 1922 when a national magazine declared "anybody can drive across the country now in fifty days." However, the magazine warned that "anyone undertaking to drive from the Atlantic to the Pacific in thirty days has thrown the scenery of the journey away for the questionable privilege of watching chucks and ricks."

Today the motorist thinks nothing of allowing three or four days for a 1,500 mile journey, and maybe seven or eight for a coast to coast trip.

But due to the weather during the past winter and deterioration during the war years, this schedule should be revised slightly upward this year. Most states have labored to improve their road networks, but the motorist must expect to find many inadequate stretches of highways.

For the home town who has not yet decided where he will spend his vacation this year, here are a few figures on costs and events in the south, east and west.

Florida, nationally known as the winter playground of the nation, is making a big bid for summer vacationers this year. Many cities and towns, in cooperation with hotel and apartment house associations and merchants, are offering special vacation package deals for as little as $3.30 a day per person.

In many towns apartments are available for as little as $40 a week. Hotels are offering rooms at $5 and $6 a day that rent in winter for $22. Efficiency apartments, renting in the winter season for $110 a week, drop to $25 for the summer months. The average cost for motels will be about $2 a person during the summer months.

Motorists in the west will find prices very favorable when compared with the nation as a whole. One of the big attractions in the west as vacationers start rolling down national highways are rodeos. Here are a few dates and places of rodeos in the next few weeks:

63 Million to Take Motor Vacations

According to the American Automobile Association some 63,000,000 persons will take recreation motor trips before the year ends, despite heavy snows and freezing during the past winter. This prediction is made after government sources indicate there will be no shortage of spare parts and gasoline, and that tires will be available in nearly every part of the country.

The A.A.A. reports that prices in motor courts across the country have not increased in proportion to other items and that motorists will find comfortable, clean housing within the average family's vacation budget.

National parks, visited by 32,000,000 people last year, are expecting more than 35,000,000 tourists this season. Of the total, 84 per cent will arrive in private automobiles, the A.A.A. reported.

YMCA Charts Five-Part Program To Cover Rural Areas of Nation

(The second of two articles.)

One hundred years ago the Young Men's Christian Association, known familiarly to four generations of Americans as the "Y," was founded in the U. S. to fight vice, degradation and delinquency in the cities. Now, in planning its next century, the YMCA is going to move into small towns and rural areas.

EVERYBODY but Columbia Pictures has plans for Rita Hayworth; her home studio is just waiting for her to report for work. With a large part of the American public agog to see her because of her much publicized romance, they could put her into a dramatization of the alphabet and make millions. Virginia Van Upp has completed two stories for Rita, and it is rumored that Metro wants to borrow her for "The Merry Widow." What would really make the customers storm the box offices would be a re-selfish interests.

RITA HAYWORTH

make of "The Shiek," co-starring her with Tony Dexter, of "Valentino" fame. Or would that come dangerously close to being autobiographical?

Gertrude Astor begins her 37th year in pictures by playing the role of the landlady in "The Dark Page." She says she must have appeared in 1400 films, beginning in 1914 when she went to California to work in "Under Two Flags."

Jackie Kelk, "Homer" of "The Aldrich Family," has just received an offer of more than $5,000 for his extensive postage stamp collection; it was made by Louis Ramvuela, who owns cattle ranches in Argentina. Kelk hates to sell it.

Meredith Willson's "May the Good Lord Bless and Keep You," written as a theme song for "The Big Show" and introduced six months ago, has been recorded by top artists, become a standard item on programs of Ezio Pinza, Gracie Fields and Jan Peerce, is used for assembly closing in schools, colleges and churches, and is the song most popular with GIs in Korea.

Joan Fontaine got very little publicity when she courted Madam Peron, did somewhat better when she did Paris with Prince Aly Khan, whose marriage to Rita reaped headlines for her.

GOP Again Faced With Lack of Positive Platform

By Wright A. Patterson

THE REPUBLICANS have named their time and place, July 7, 1952, at Chicago. The especially important part of the next presidential campaign remains. I believe the most important is the party program, the stating in clear and definite terms what the party proposes to the American voters. In many ways, it is of more importance at this time than the selection of candidates.

That program must be of a positive nature. No longer can the party appeal successfully to the voters by merely "viewing with alarm" the policies and actions of the opposition. What the voters want to know is what the Republicans will do if they are returned to power. They want the assurance that there will be a definite turn to the right; that our free enterprise system will be preserved; that the continuous growth in the bureaucratic army will stop, and the numbers of that army be diminished.

They want to be assured that we will continue our war preparations, but will discontinue, for a time at least, the unnecessary home projects that we can get along without, and by so doing, relieve the taxpayer of a considerable portion of the load he has been carrying.

Such are some of the definite pronouncements the voters are looking for. They will not be satisfied with only condemnation for the present, or any past, administration.

The YMCA began aiding servicemen during the Civil War when Y workers, called "Christians" by the soldiers, followed both armies to serve decently cooked hot meals, help tend the wounded and insist on the humane treatment of prisoners of war. In the Spanish American War, they introduced doughnuts and coffee to soldiers. At one battle they arrived with their rations some three hours ahead of the troops! During World War I, the Y, according to General Pershing, performed 90 per cent of the welfare work for soldiers overseas and during the recent conflict, as now, the YMCA comprised one-third of the soldier-service organization known as the U. S. O.

The best of the Y's hundred years of experience will go into the new five-part program designed to cover non-urban areas. The organization will work this way:

1. The Small City Association, to operate as independent units in cities under 25,000 population.
2. The Town and Country Association, covering both farms and small towns in a single county or group of counties.
3. The County Branch, covering a rural area centered about a large city.
4. The Outreach Program, extending from a thriving city YMCA to cover small neighboring communities.
5. The District Program, all rural, directed by the state YMCA organization but sponsored socially and financially by the area served.

FINANCIAL PROBLEMS, of course, will play a large part in the Y's scheduled rural drive. YMCA officials emphasize that the Y cannot and will not begin at the outset to construct large, streamlined buildings, with hotel space, gymnasium, meeting rooms and swimming pools in order to lure members. A YMCA, they explain, must first establish a firm spiritual foundation and a record for concrete service to the community before it can begin to think in terms of permanent headquarters.

Instead, the organization burden will fall largely on the rural secretary, a YMCA career man who has been given special training for his job and, more likely than not, been educated at one of the Y's twenty-five degree-granting colleges. He will begin, like the founders of the first YMCA in Boston in December of 1851, by interesting social-minded members of the community in the Y movement. He may work through churches of all denominations or through the public schools. Depending upon how report lengthily to his superiors on how, in his opinion, the YMCA can best improve its foothold in your community and extend its services to the people who live there.

The stated purpose of the Y, which is to develop Christian leadership among the nation's youth, has already helped to mould the character of such YMCA alumni as President Truman, U. S. Supreme Court Justice Douglas, Gene Tunney, Senator Robert Taft of Ohio and thousands of other figures of national importance. Its fondest hope for the future is that it can help to build similar qualities in the young men and women who must see the nation safely through its next hundred years.

THE FICTION CORNER ANOTHER GOOD CROP

By James B. Holm

FARM FOLKS are always asking a squire for information and advice on law. Dave Tidwell was no exception.

Dave was a leathery faced man in his sixties. I was attracted by a peach tree on his place, then in full bearing. He gave me a few peaches.

Dave's place didn't look any too prosperous. He spoke of his dilapidated old car near the barn.

"I guess I'll never have money enough to buy a new one," he said. "Can't make anything on this place now."

I could see he had something else on his mind. Pretty soon he started to ask questions.

"Squire, who does money belong to if it's found hidden in a man's barn?"

"Why, I suppose it would belong to him, unless someone else could prove direct ownership," I told him.

More questions were asked, rather cautiously. At length he said:

"I used to have a hired man named Obie Hart. Don't know if you ever heard of him or not. He's dead now. He was a good fellow."

"When he was a young man, he and his brother Sid lived around here. Obie got engaged to a girl but she threw him over for Sid. Obie always hated Sid for that and left home. Never spoke to Sid again. He came to work for me nearly forty years ago and stayed until last year when he died. I didn't pay him much but he saved his money. He didn't trust banks, either, and he never married."

"Now here a couple of weeks ago I was working in the barn and came across a wad of ten dollar bills stuck away in a mortise slot. Wasn't a great deal. I don't know who put it there. Who does the money belong to?"

"Dave," I said, "I can't advise you, but if it had been me that found it, I wouldn't do any hunting for an owner. It's your barn, isn't it?"

We looked at each other with the light of understanding between us.

"I don't know if there's any more there or not," said Dave. "As I said, I don't know what Obie did with his money. He must have accumulated quite a little in forty years. He may have done something with it I don't know about, or anyone. Anyway, he liked to be alone around the barn a great deal."

"Dave," I said, "what people don't know won't hurt them. If I found any money in my barn I would regard it as another good crop. If anyone thought different, it would be up to him to prove his claim."

Dave looked satisfied. "I guess I can trust you, can't I, squire?" I forgot all about the matter until a year later. Then Dave Tidwell came to my office carrying a half bushel basket of peaches. "These are some of the peaches you liked so well, squire," he said. "I had another nice crop this year. Matter of fact, all crops were good this year. No charge. My regards."

The look he gave me was a peculiar, knowing one and confidential like. I looked out my window and saw Dave drive away. He was driving a nice new automobile. It was a make that must have cost twenty-five hundred dollars or more.

AROUND THE HOUSE

Apartment dwellers who have no outdoor place to shake a mop can get it clean by placing the head inside a large brown paper bag; choke the mouth of the bag around the mop handle, and shake. Or, put the mop on the floor upside down, and hold a vacuum cleaner over it to draw off the dirt and dust.

To remove grass stains from washables, add a few drops of amyl acetate to a thick soap solution and rub it thoroughly into the stains. After that, rinse the garment at least three times in clear water. On whites, peroxide may be used if needed. Or flush the stain with alcohol, and then with clear water.

If you must bang a dry floor mop against something to shake the dust out of it, whack it against the heel of your hand. Knocking against windowsills and door-jamb shortens the life of a mop.

Tomorrow's weather is on the wires today for the forces which guard the nation's skies and shores.

Today the largest Long Distance network of its kind brings them detailed "isobar" weather charts around the clock.

These charts are sent by a system known as "facsimile" from the Weather Analysis Center in Washington, D. C. There, an electric eye scans the weather "picture" as it turns on a special drum. The signal waves produced go out over thousands of miles of wire to military installations throughout the country where the picture is automatically reproduced.

This weather network was designed and completed in less than two years. It's another demonstration of the importance of Long Distance lines to the security of the nation—especially right now, when there may be stormy weather ahead.

To help speed your Long Distance call, please give the operator the out-of-town telephone number. Telephone lines are busy with national defense.

Death leaves a heartache nothing can heal. Sadly missed by her parents, grandparents, brothers and sisters.

How to make Wise Tracks to a Beauty

How do you buy a new car?
Are you one of those people who buy on love at first sight?
Or do you check cars feature for feature, price for price—then pick the one that gives you the most for your money?

Whichever you are, we'd like to suggest that you come in and see our 1951 Buicks. It's a sure bet you'll go for the swift, smart look of a SPECIAL, SUPER or ROADMASTER—fall seriously in love with the pace and power of its bonnet-filling engine. And it's a cinch you'll go for the room and richness of those Buick interiors—the serene smoothness of Dynaflo Drive* and all-coil springing.

But don't let your emotion be the only judge—get the practical picture too.

Note that the power that gives you such a big kick here comes from Buick's famed valve-in-head Fireball Engine—which means you get a lot of miles from each gallon of gas you buy.

Note that the silken ease you enjoy with Dynaflo* goes hand in hand with real money savings in maintenance costs.

Above all, note what a Buick's price tag includes—how much more sheer automobile you get in a Buick than the same money would buy elsewhere.

How about making tracks to our showroom right soon—checking thoroughly into the matter—and see if you don't fall in love with a smart-buy Buick?

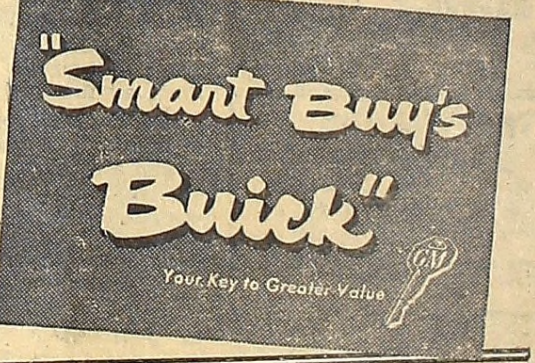

Equipment, accessories, trim and models are subject to change without notice. *Standard on ROADMASTER, optional at extra cost on other Series.

HOMER CROY'S Jesse James WAS MY NEIGHBOR

THE STORY SO FAR:
As Jesse James and the band of which he has become the leader move into their second decade of banditry, they find they have to move farther afield to find lucrative prospects for robbery. One of the gang suggests Minnesota as a likely spot, so they all move north in that direction. Their primary target is the bank at Northfield, Minnesota, but that job proves impossible to bring off. They move on to Northfield, a prosperous college town. There disaster strikes the band in the middle of their job. Citizens of the town discover that the bank is being robbed and rush for their guns, determined to catch or kill the daring bandits.

CHAPTER IX
And now one medical student and two hardware merchants were out to do all the damage they could.

Nor was this all. Three of the good citizens began to throw rocks. They might as well have thrown corncobs. Not a single robber was hit; one horse had his hip skinned.

But what was going on inside the bank? As soon as the acting bookkeeper saw that the three men who entered were robbers, he got down on his knees and began to pray for deliverance. The cashier himself was at the Centennial Exposition in Philadelphia, the most fortunate trip he ever took. His substitute stepped forward.

"Are you the cashier?" one of the robbers asked.

"No."

Which was strictly true. The robber then pointed his gun at the bookkeeper and said, "Are you the cashier?"

"No."

The same question was asked of the assistant bookkeeper, who gave the same answer.

The robbers seemed beaten. But not quite. One of them turned back to the first man they had addressed, Joseph Lee Heywood, and said, "I know you are the cashier. Open that safe."

"The lock is set and it can't be opened now."

This was only half-true, for the safe was actually unlocked; the door happened to be closed and the bolts were in place, but the combination dial had not been turned. The door could have been pulled open.

Men Inside the Bank In Desperate Spot

The safe itself was in a vault which was large enough for a person to enter. And this Charlie Pitts tried to do. Heywood, thinking he saw an opportunity, dashed forward and tried to slam the door, hoping to entrap the robber. The other two bandits grabbed the cashier and pulled him back, again insisting that he open the safe. Once more he refused, which was a foolish thing to do. "Robbers! Robbers!" he shouted, very foolishly.

One of the men struck out with his revolver, knocking the brave but shallow-thinking cashier to the floor. Charlie Pitts fired, not to kill him but to frighten him. The bullet entered the vault and went through a tin box containing papers and jewelry left there by a customer for safekeeping.

The third man in the bank, A. E. Bunker, tried to dash out; he went through the directors' room to the rear door of the bank and through that, too, taking the blinds with him. Charlie Pitts followed his flight with two pistol balls, one of them going through his collarbone but not killing him.

The three robbers in the bank knew that things were growing desperate, for they could hear the shooting outside. Worse than that, they heard one of their gang shout, "Come on out, boys. They're killing our men."

And at this crucial moment occurred the cruelest and most foul deed ever perpetrated by Jesse James. The brave and foolish cashier was on the floor, trying to get up, blood running down his face from the pistol-butt blow. Then and there the frustrated Jesse shot him dead.

A great deal was happening on the street. Bullets were still flying through the air, rocks too. And two of the outlaws lay dead: Bill Chadwell and Clell Miller. In addition, Bob Younger had been shot in the elbow, the bullet shattering the bone. But he was cool; in fact, they all were, except Jesse, who had shot in anger. Bob Younger transferred his pistol to his left hand and continued to fire. He had no horse to ride, his own had been killed. "Get on behind me," yelled Cole, and that is what Bob did, the enraged citizens popping away at them all the while.

The outlaws set out on the kind of flight they knew so well. But now it was a bit different; six men were on five horses, and one of the men wounded. Not good.

The initial pursuit amounted to nothing. Two Northfield men caught the horses of the dead bandits and mounted them. The horses, eager to join their companions, flew down the street. Then the Northfield men thought it over; maybe the idea wasn't so good after all, two chasing six of the most desperate men in America. They decided to go back and get reinforcements.

Word was telegraphed to St. Paul and Minneapolis; soon the whole state was aroused. The towns began to organize posses; every hour the scope of the manhunt widened.

The first thing, for the bandits, was to get Bob Younger off Cole's horse. They met a farmer jogging down the road with a team; before he knew what was happening, he had a one-horse team.

They rode on till they came to a farmhouse. They explained to the farmer that they were officers of the law chasing horse-thieves, and could they borrow a saddle for one of their men who had joined so hastily he hadn't had time to get a saddle?

The farmer said he hated horse-thieves and would be pleased to lend a saddle. The officers galloped

Instantly Frank spurred the animal. Instantly, too, the picket shot. Off went Jesse's hat; when it was picked up the next morning there was a bullet hole in it. It had been that close.

Worse luck, the horse got away. Jesse and Frank started to plod on again.

The three Youngers and Charlie Pitts were desperately plodding on, Bob Younger's arm even more inflamed. In the early morning they came upon a Norwegian farmer industriously milking away. They spoke to him and successfully passed on. But the farmer had a seventeen-year-old son. No one yet has ever been able to dodge the curiosity of a seventeen-year-old boy.

"Pa," said the boy, after the men were out of hearing, "I believe that was the robbers."

The boy's name was Axel Oscar Sorbel.

"You go on with your milking, Oscar," said the father.

After the milking was finished, the boy discovered, at the house from his mother, that the men had stopped there and tried to buy food. They were hunters, they said; one of them had been wounded in an accident.

Boy Is Instrumental In Capturing Youngers

"Pa, I'm going in and tell the authorities," said the boy.

"You eat your breakfast, Oscar," said the father. "Why do you always try to think up ways to get out of work?"

But the boy did ride in—and rode into fame in bandit history. It was about eight miles to the town of Madelia, where Cole Younger and Charlie Pitts had registered just a few unworried days before. Oscar Sorbel was there in no time. The first place he saw anybody was at the Flanders House, and there he drew up.

"I've found the bandits!" he gasped.

"What did you do with them, son?" asked Landlord Vought.

"Well," said the boy, a bit put back, "they're still there. They're four of them."

"That's a big haul. Have you had breakfast?"

But the boy was so confident—so sure of what he had seen—that Vought began to believe him. At this moment James Clispin, the sheriff of the county, arrived, and he too became convinced. A body of Madelia citizens was made up, mounted, and started for the Sorbel place.

The robbers, not realizing that fate was closing in, pushed on, without anything to eat, into an almost impenetrable morass known as Hanska Slough. Cole, who had also been wounded, limped along on a staff. Bob Younger, his arm in a crude sling, plodded behind him. They were all dirty and disheveled and weak from hunger and fatigue.

The pursuers, knowing shortcuts and dry paths, followed their sorry trail. At last they caught sight of the bandits, who had sunk down on a dry stump to rest.

"Surrender!" shouted the sheriff. The bandits struggled on.

The sheriff gave word to his men to fire. A bullet struck Cole Younger's staff, knocking it out of his hand.

The bandits turned and fired feebly. They had seen some horses hitched to a wagon. They started to run toward them. But just at this moment a farmer came up.

"We want those horses," shouted Charlie Pitts. "We're officers after the Northfield bank robbers."

The farmer leaped into the wagon and whipped his team in the opposite direction.

The outlaws waded across a murky stream and saw something on the public road they could hardly believe: two teams—four horses—jogging serenely along. They started to run toward them.

But the drivers bent over and each picked up a shotgun. They were going duck hunting.

Had ill fate ever pursued four men so faithfully? With groans of despair they turned back into the tanked morass of the slough.

Thomas L. Vought and the sheriff and their manhunters came toward the outlaws. Slowly they advanced, firing from time to time. The bandits, rearing themselves from the mud and water, fired back. The men of law and order came relentlessly on.

The end was inevitable. Charlie Pitts was killed.

And now the three Youngers were alone.

The end soon became inevitable for them, too.

Bob Younger got slowly up from the ground, his wounded arm in its muddy sling.

"All our men are down but me. I'll surrender."

It was soon over. It was found that Charlie Pitts had five bullets in him.

In addition to the wounded arm, Bob Younger had a bullet in his breast.

Jim Younger had five wounds. Cole Younger had eleven. He got unsteadily to his feet—and saw something that made him gape.

It was his landlord from the Flanders House!

Return of Welsh 'Exiles' Moving Musical Rite

CARDIFF, Wales—The "land of foreigners" is preparing a golden voiced welcome for an unparalleled number of its "exiles" in 1951. The "land of foreigners," as if you didn't know, is the Principality of Wales. The somewhat unkind term is the one by which the mountainous, mysterious land was known to the Anglo-Saxons for centuries after they, foreigners themselves, drove King Arthur and his native British knights into the hills, in spite of everything Merlin could do. The "exiles," of course, are any Welshmen unfortunate enough to live in more barbarous, uncouth lands, and, as far as the Welsh are concerned, that includes England, too.

The factor that made Wales "the land of the foreigners"—its inaccessibility for centuries—had an incidental effect which makes it one of the most interesting countries in the world today. To a greater extent than any of the other diverse peoples who make up the British population, the Welsh have preserved an ancient culture and language almost completely uncorrupted by outside influences. To visit the Eisteddfod, the great national festival of Wales, which will begin August 6 this year, is to be transported to the almost legendary world of 1,500 years ago.

Much Ceremony
The welcome to the exiles is one of the most moving of the traditional ceremonies of the Eisteddfod. The exiles, numbering more than a thousand, and headed by the Leader of the Welsh Exiles, are conducted to the stage in a ceremonial procession.

After the ritual welcome, whose origin is lost in the mists of antiquity, the whole gathering joins in the singing of Welsh hymns and folk tunes. Since there are ordinarily more than 30,000 people present and since each of them, as are all Welshmen, was "born with a thrush in his throat," the great paean is an unforgettable musical experience.

This year, according to the British Travel Association, the Eisteddfod takes on added significance for it has been designated one of the 29 major arts festivals being held as part of the Festival of Britain.

It's a safe bet that few of the others will rival it in the eyes of the visitor. The oldest cultural event of its kind in the world, it dates back in more or less its present form to the Twelfth Century, although it is believed that gatherings of the bards may have been held as early as the Fifth Century.

Cultural Expression
There's much more to the Eisteddfod than singing. It is the highest expression of the Welsh cultural tradition. Each day for a week, there are competitions between poets and prose writers, singers, musicians and artists of all kinds. In the evenings there are concerts by the magnificent choir of 700 voices, which has been training for two years for the occasion. This year the choir, drawn from the region of Llanrwst, the site of the 1951 Eisteddfod, will feature Dvorak's Sabat Mater and Brahms' Requiem.

The musical and dramatic events will be interspersed with rituals and ceremonies performed by bards in flowing white, blue and green robes. They will be culminated by the Chaining of the Bard (The Welsh Poet Laureate for the year.)

The ancient Eisteddfod has recently acquired a young and lusty brother in the Llangollen International Eisteddfod which will be held for the fifth time this year, during the week beginning July 3. The National Eisteddfod is strictly Welsh in character; the Llangollen festival annually brings together outstanding choral and folk-dancing groups from all parts of the world. In their picturesque national costumes, they compete for a variety of prizes during the day and join together in the evenings for informal concerts and dances.

Satisfied Customers Keep Restaurateur in Business
BLUEFIELD, Va.—The magic of good cooking was exhibited here recently.

Pete Loizos now owns a fashionable, well equipped restaurant because citizens of Bluefield like his cooking. Pete once owned a $14,000 establishment across the line in Bluefield, W. Va., but it didn't succeed. He lost his lease and was forced to move.

A group of satisfied customers came to the rescue. They raised $14,000 and turned it over to Loizos for stock in a new restaurant. Pete started a new restaurant 50 feet over the state line in suburban Bluefield. He borrowed $70,000 from the bank and set himself up right.

Skeptics said Pete had another failure on his hands because the restaurant was so far from downtown, but in 18 months he had paid back $30,000 of the bank loan. Last year Pete gave a dinner for all those who had contributed to the $14,000 ante. They surprised him by turning over all their stock in his restaurant—no strings attached. Pete's place looks like a sure hit.

What It Means to Grow Up
CHILDREN usually begin life without much we-feeling, if any. They don't naturally share their toys or their dinners or anything else. They grab all they can and they don't like to be grabbed from. The process of growing up—really growing up, not merely getting older and bigger—is a process of developing a healthy we-feeling. Nearly every one develops this to some extent, of course; but when some people say "we" they don't mean very many.

We have all heard of the man who prayed: "Lord, bless me and my wife, my son John and his wife. Us four, no more. Amen!" He doesn't make a very good citizen.

But as the "we"-circle grows wider and wider we get a more and more public-spirited and service-minded citizen, till at the high point of the we-feeling we see a man like St. Paul who calls himself a debtor to all men, or like John Wesley who said, "The world is my parish," or a modern international citizen and statesman such as John R. Mott.

How the Family Helps

The very best place to learn the "we-feeling" is in a good family. This does not necessarily mean an aristocratic family or a wealthy one. Many good families, perhaps most good ones, are quite poor and obscure, as the family of Jesus was.

But whether it is in the city or the country, or however large or small it may be, the good family is one that helps every member of it to grow up into a healthy adult we-feeling. Living in a family teaches the meaning of "all for one."

In a good family, all are proud of what any one accomplishes; the big brothers and sisters are just as pleased with little brother's first steps as little brother is himself. When father wins a prize at the state fair, or when mother is elected an officer in her church society, or when Molly makes the honor roll in school or Jim makes the basketball team, everybody in the family is just as pleased as if they themselves had received the honor.

When any one of the family gets into trouble, they all stand by to help.

The Best Families Are Christian

The best families are those where religion is real; and if we believe that the Christian religion is the best, then we shall agree that Christians ought to have the best families.

Remember that in a Christian home Christ is the real head of the house. If ever any one had the "we-feeling" in its purest form, it was Jesus. No one can ever live long in his company and stay selfish.

So in the home where he is not only the best-loved guest but the true head of the house, every one from oldest to youngest learns to say "we" and lives to say it, and means it and lives it. From such homes come the best citizens and neighbors.

SPORTSMAN'S HORIZON

By JIM RHODY

No More Doubt
With sufficient time having elapsed to prove the conclusion, there is no more doubt that the glass fishing rods—for casting, spinning and fly use—have made a lasting place for themselves in the angler's list of equipment.

The reason for that is instantly obvious to the angler who has engaged in extensive use of all three types of rods. It is simply a popular fact that the glass rod can take more abuse, requires less care and attention than the bamboo and—as yet—has shown none of the tendency of metal rods to snap off while being used, oftentimes on a back-cast.

Why is the glass rod superior? A year ago, we examined the role the glass rod was beginning to play in the angler's scheme of things and that article indicated the trend that was to bring the glass rod to the fore. The fact that the top rod manufacturers in the nation are apparently placing more emphasis on the glass rods and their development than on other types of rod is indicative of their confidence in the future of this type of fishing instrument.

Now, a year later, we again checked fly rod development, this time turning to the Montague firm for our information because these rod-makers have come up with an amazingly light and flexible glass rod which, at the same time, shows no sacrifice of strength or durability.

Ed Maquire answering our query for the Montague firm, wrote, in part:

"Hologlass coreless rods first came out about eight years ago. They were the invention of a West Coast scientist and seemed to work out very well on the West Coast. Unfortunately, when the rods came East and were subjected to the climate around Cape Cod, they became very brittle and broke by the hundreds.

"During the war, duPont developed a special treatment for glass yarn that guarded it against climatic effects with the result that a fishing rod made of glass became practical and the first solid glass rod was developed in the Middle West.

"This same specially treated yarn was then used by both the solid glass and the tubular glass manufacturer.

"We first started experimenting with solid glass about three and one half years ago and we developed our own method of turning out a solid glass shaft.

"The experiments were carefully supervised by Montague experts and only when we came up with a shaft that met the exacting action which Montague had come to expect from bamboo did we stop experimenting.

About a year and a half ago, Montague bought the oldest fiberglass low pressure laminated corporation in the country. Here, too, our experts went to work and special mandrels were designed to produce a rod that would meet the requirements of the experts so far as action is concerned and, after all, a fishing rod is only as good as its action no matter what it's made of.

"Because we wanted to point out to the public that all glass rods are not the same and that our glass rods have what it takes, we approached the United States Test Company, the foremost testing laboratory in the country and submitted to them samples of Monague solid glass and hologlass rods. These rods were subjected to all the tests a fishing rod could ever be expected to meet under actual fishing conditions plus a lot of others. The rods were given extreme cold tests, extreme heat tests, flexing tests that would be equivalent to one hundred years of fishing use, impact tests and still they didn't break down."

Who Knows?
We have been stumped by this question: Are glowworms, "lightning bugs," good for fish bait? Off-hand, we'd say "No," because if it were the bugs' luminosity that was to attract the fish, we imagine it would be non-existent under water. However, since light attracts fish, it might be effective to gather a number of these bugs, put them in a bottle and use this (tightly-corked, of course) as an underwater attraction in States where such tricks are legal.

Dove Fatalities
Although disease usually does not reach peak proportions until summer, mourning doves already are dying in considerable number from the effects of trichomoniasis in Alabama, the Wildlife Management Institute reports.

Current reports being investigated by personnel of the Alabama cooperative wildlife research unit indicate that this year's die-off may be even greater than that which occurred in 1950.
