Tawas City Wins from Alabaster

West Branch Team Plays Here Sunday Afternoon

The Tawas City Indies pulled the major upset of the season in the N.E.M. League, last Sunday, by dropping the league leading Alabaster club from the undefeated ranks 5 to 2. This win by Tawas City brought Alabaster down to a tie with Sterling, who won a 21 to 4 game from West Branch Sunday. This Sunday Tawas City will meet West Branch on the local diamond. Sterling and Alabaster will play off the tie with a game this Sunday on the Alabaster diamond.

Alabaster was gunning for its eleventh win in succession, against Tawas City, who they had beaten twice previously, and who were having a rough season, winning only one out of ten games.

From the first pitched ball the locals were definitely "on," playing their best fielding game of the year, committing only one error during the complete nine innings. Alabaster committed five miscues.

Manager Gackstetter threw in his two pitchers, Merv Warner and Herb Look, against the hitherto unbeaten, Johnnie Martin.

Warner pitched five innings and allowed Alabaster four scattered hits and one run. Look relieved him in the sixth and pitched three hit ball, with Alabaster scoring one more run. Both Warner and Look pitched fine ball and pulled themselves out of several ticklish situations during the nine innings. Martin allowed fourteen hits, and on several occasions pitched himself out of a tough spot, notably in the first inning when Tawas loaded the sacks and failed to score a run.

Bob Rollin, who is now hitting over 400 pct., and Merv Warner led the locals with three hits each. Clare Herriman and Elliott led the Alabaster club with two hits each.

Both team made several fine defensive plays during the game, but the outstanding plays were two perfect throws from right field to third base. Willard Musolf's throw to Don Westcott, cutting down Clare Herriman and a perfect peg by Elliott, cutting down Warner at third, when Warner tried to go from first to third.

After going scoreless four innings Alabaster broke the ice in the fifth when Elliott led off with a single, McDonnell struck out, Martin walked, Hill singled scoring Elliott, Cliff Erickson struck out, and Peterson grounded out.

Tawas City bounced back in the fifth after Westcott fanned, Rollin singled, Groff struck out, Youngs singled, Musolf singled scoring Rollin, Anschuetz was safe on an error and both Youngs and Musolf scored on bad throws. Warner ended the inning grounding out.

In the sixth for Tawas Wegner fanned, Westcott singled when C. Erickson and Hill had their signals mixed up and let a pop fly drop between them, Rollin singled, Groff singled scoring Westcott and Youngs grounded out.

Tawas added one more run in the eighth when Myles flied out, Westcott singled, Rollin was hit by the pitcher, Groff was thrown out at first Westcott scoring, Youngs grounded out to first base.

Alabaster made a last ditch stand in the eighth, when E. Erickson popped to the pitcher, Elliott singled, Roberts singled, Look struck out Bolen, Hill singled Elliott scoring and then Look then threw the last strike past Olen Herriman.

Allied Officials Again Expressing Belief Talks On 'Smooth' Footing

HOPEFUL SPECULATION—As the UN and Red Korean negotiators resumed efforts for a cease-fire agenda at Kaesong (without the "protection" of the armed Communist guards), Allied officials expressed the belief that the problem of getting something on the agenda would be quickly solved. There were hints that the talks were going smoother after the lay-off and the situation was more relaxed.

The man on the American streets, however, was not too full of optimism. Those who had followed the criss-cross, tic-tat-toe pattern of the war and the inevitable breakdown of the initial conferences knew that there was no available sounding board to gauge the pattern of events in Korea.

Most Main Street citizens approved the action of Admiral C. Turner Joy, senior UN delegate, in refusing to continue the negotiations until certain Allied rights were recognized. The spark of aggressiveness offered hope that, years hence, we might ask one another who won the war in Korea.

LET'S CHECK THE RECORD—Administration forces and Truman backers on Capitol Hill started off the week with an eye to the 1952 elections and a beckoning gesture to the voting public on Main Street.

Realizing the pressure from Republicans and anti-administration forces, the parties-in-power felt it wiser to get everything possible in the way of economic control bills in order to prepare some manner of checklist for the voting public.

The Administration decided to move quickly for final action on the new defense-production measure, in whatever form it could be shuffled through to replace the original law which expired June 30; is currently in force only through Congressional resolution. The law carries powers for wage and price control, materials allocation, and other measures. Party leaders only hoped they would not have to compromise too much and too often to get the results.

REASONABLE CEILINGS—The long-awaited Washington explosion came in the House as the battle over federal authority to roll back prices opened with loud fanfare. The Administration's willingness to compromise went for naught as farm-area congressmen balked like the proverbial mule.

Before the debate got under way, minority leader Martin and Republican Wolcott (Mich.) leveled charges that the Administration hoped to load the pending control bill with "socialistic schemes . . . to sneak in the thoroughly discredited Brannan farm plan through a system of so-called production subsidies."

Administration forces sought to compromise by offering an amendment to retain the present 10 per cent rollback on live beef prices, but forego other farm rollbacks. Farm bloc speaker Cooley (D., N.C.) however, suggested a ban on all farm-price rollbacks—including the one already made on beef. Cox (D., Ga.) went further—seeking to bar all price rollbacks; on industrial goods as well as farm products.

The hopes of the Administration thus lay in finding a way to woo the farm-area congressmen and also take advantage of the House Republican leaders' promise to help pass a law that will keep prices "within reason."

UNPROVEN ANGEL—In New York a federal judge gave evidence that life is becoming tough for Communist leaders in the U.S.; for the second time in a week, the Civil Rights Congress was outlawed as a bondsman in federal court.

The dozen-and-two were already out on bond made by CRC, the Red's angel, but Judge Ryan held the Congress had failed to show clear title to bonds; ordered them to find another angel or come back to jail.

MANDATORY SENTENCES—In Washington the House came through with overdue attention to the narcotics problem, voicing approval of a bill requiring mandatory jail sentences for narcotics-law violators.

The measure, Senate-bound, provides for one to five year sentences for first offenders; five to ten years for second offenders; and a 10 to 30 year term for three-time losers. The law would apply to both peddlers and addicts; should be a strong weapon to fight one of the nation's grave problems. Across the country parents, after watching with growing horror the dope probes and hearings, expressed the hope that here was a strong axe to keep the narcotic wolf from the family threshold.

AN EYE FOR AN EYE—The United States lashed back at Hungary for the expulsion of two American envoys from Budapest two weeks ago; ordered that nation to call home two top diplomats, Peter Varkonyi, legation attaché and Lajos Nagy, charge d' affaires. Varkonyi was to leave "immediately," Nagy as soon as new minister Emil Weil could present his credentials.

The move was retaliation for the expulsion of American envoys and other pressure that had caused cessation of U.S. information and educational activities in Hungary. It marked, however, a new low in diplomatic relations between the two countries—relations that had seemed improved recently by the release of American businessman Robert A. Vogeler.

AND THE RAINS CAME—As the week began, the most costly flood in the history of the nation moved East from Kansas City along the Missouri river, leaving the gateway to the Southwest strangled with slowly receding waters.

Residents along a 400 mile waterway counted the damages. 75,000 or more had been left homeless, 400,000 more otherwise affected. Losses were estimated close to the billion dollar mark, nearly twice as much as that in the 1937 Ohio and Mississippi rivers floods.

NO SIGNIFICANCE—Navy spokesmen in Washington declared there was "no special significance" in Admiral Forrest Sherman's conferences with Franco in Spain, although sources reported that the U.S. officer sought the use of navy bases in Spain for the U.S. Sixth Mediterranean Fleet.

Britain and France, opposing admission of Spain into the 12-nation Atlantic Pact, came into the open against the U.S.-Franco ties, said only the Communists stood to gain anything. Uncle Sam, however, seemed to be envisioning a limited role for Spain in the future Western defense efforts. Supply and demand: Franco needs arms and ammunition, America wants naval and air bases.

SETTING THE GOAL

U. S. Spurs Record Grain Output

WASHINGTON—The Agriculture department set out to spur the nation's farmers to a new record output of wheat and other fall-seeded grains with the release of production goals.

Secretary Charles Brannan set the 1952 goal for both winter and spring wheat at 78,850,000 acres. With normal yields, crop increase would be 100 million bushels.

The increase would not only meet all expected requirements for the marketing year—both domestic and export, but would also provide for some increase in holdover reserve stocks for that fiscal year ending June 30, 1953. As Secretary Brannan pointed out, "The goals for other fall-seeded grains recognize the need to build up feed grain supplies to aid livestock production."

THE WASHINGTON Merry-Go-Round

BY DREW PEARSON

Special Interest Senators

THE PUBLIC was asleep at 3 A.M. when the senate staged its most revealing debate on price control. Asleep also were many newspapermen.

Yet the speeches certain senators made at that time—just as price controls were scheduled to expire—and the amendments they introduced, give the clearest of all pictures regarding who pulls the strings to make certain senators dance.

At about 2:30 A.M. up spoke Sen. Homer Ferguson of Michigan, his silver hair more awry than usual. He had an amendment which would have increased the price of automobiles throughout the nation.

Ferguson did not mention the fact that his wife and son-in-law are heavy stockholders in a subsidiary of one of the biggest automobile companies—Chrysler. Nor did Sen. Willis Robertson of Virginia mention it, as Sen. Elmer Thomas was unkind enough to do three years ago when he threatened to expose Ferguson's family interest in Chrysler unless Ferguson quit investigating him.

However, Robertson, alert to catch the significance of Ferguson's amendment, warned his colleagues that it was "tailored perfectly to increase the price of automobiles."

"Then this is a roll-up amendment," snapped Clinton Anderson of New Mexico. "If we want chaos in price administration, this is the easiest way to get it I have ever seen."

Then, turning to Ferguson, the New Mexico senator observed: "It applies primarily to the automobile industry."

"The senator is correct," admitted Ferguson. "Why should that industry be discriminated against?" "The profits of automobile manufacturers were reasonably good, were they not?" Anderson shot back, referring to the fact that most big motor companies have just celebrated their highest profits in history.

"Now we come to the secret. The senators want to fix prices so as to determine profits," angrily shouted the Michigan senator.

Ferguson had reason to expect his automobile amendment to pass like other special-interest amendments, log-rolled through in the early hours of the morning. But it was defeated—with Michigan's other senator, Blair Moody of Detroit, voting against it.

Heart sick Senator

One of the greatest speeches of the inflation debate was delivered in the senate at about 3 A.M. It was by a man whose banking firm has made him a multimillionaire but who fought vigorously against the big-business lobbies—Herbert Lehman of New York.

Though Lehman is 73 years old and served as governor of New York more terms than any man in history, he is new to the senate. And he seemed hurt and disappointed at the mad scramble of his colleagues to vote for the special interests.

Finally he rose, and speaking sadly, softly, said:

"What I am about to say is not going to please my colleagues in the senate. Yet I must say it. Here we are engaged in a life-and-death struggle, a struggle for survival against the most ruthless enemy in history, fighting on two fronts, on the military and on the economic."

"We ought to be engaged exclusively in considering legislation to benefit all the people of the country, legislation to keep our country on a sound economic basis. Yet, here I see and hear senator after senator rise, not to concern himself with the issues before us, but to play politics, to blast the Administration. I tell you, it has made my heart sick to hear all this. It makes me feel that we are betraying the people who send us down here."

"We are about to pass a bill which is a bad bill, a bill which is not in the interest of the people of our country," Lehman continued. "I know there is nothing I can say which is going to reverse the trend and bring about the ends I and many of my associates and the people seek. Deep down in our hearts, we all know that these ends are necessary. Yet some are acting without regard to what is right. But I hope that we are not going to be supine or satisfied with what we have done."

"I assume that what I have said will not set well with some of my colleagues," Lehman concluded. "Yet I am glad I said it. I think it is something which had to be said on the floor of the senate."

Peanuts and Milk

Senators Ed Thyne, Minnesota Republican, and Warren Magnuson, Washington Democrat, also pushed through an amendment to freeze dairy and peanut products at their present high prices. But Senator Anderson objected.

"The bill we are considering is designed to try to put ceilings on prices," he said. "How is a measure that would prevent prices from dropping germane to a bill that is trying to put on ceilings?"

NATIONAL GUARDSMEN FIGHT RIOTERS . . . Five hundred national guardsmen, their clips loaded and bayonets fixed, took on a mob of 8,000 civilians recently at an apartment building in Cicero, Ill., into which a negro war veteran had sought to move his family. Bricks, bottles and magnesium flares flew through the air. Although no shots were fired, 18 persons were injured and required medical care. Here, crowd surges in on national guardsmen as one soldier grapples to get back bayoneted rifle and companion in jeep radios for help. Cicero is a white section of Chicago, until now uninhabited by other than whites.

HAVE A LIGHT? . . . Unidentified American soldier (left) leans over to offer light to North Korean soldier, perched atop his Russian-built vehicle. The pair were waiting outside the peace-talk building in Kaesong, Korea, while North Korean and Communist officers discussed matters concerning a possible armistice in Korea. This was before the talks were broken off, after the Reds refused to allow allied newsmen to visit Kaesong and surrounded the U.N. delegation with armed guards. However, the Reds later called off the guards and agreed to admit newsmen to the peace-talk area in Kaesong but not to actual talks.

WHOA! . . . Speech by Rep. Louis C. Rabaut (D., Mich.), in which he warned that if congress does not pass the price rollback law and cut the price of beef, the 82nd congress will become known as the "horsemeat congress," prompted Washington restaurant proprietor Samuel W. Rosenberg, being assisted by Louis Smith, to place the above sign in the window of his restaurant. It is not known whether any congressmen have taken advantage of the offer or not.

VET RETURNS . . . Sgt. 1st/Class Theodora Durinski, 26, one of the 250 WAC reservists undergoing field drills at Pine Camp, N.Y. She's a member of elite reserve intelligence corps. She enlisted in 1945, was discharged a year later. A clerical error caused her to be assigned to a male unit in Randolph, Texas. When an attempt was made to transfer her, 500 air corps trainees protested so strongly that she was allowed to remain the lone female in camp.

USING THEIR HEADS . . . Bald members of the crew of the U.S.S. Boxer, aircraft carrier, know how to use their heads. Here they spell out the name of the ship on which they serve. The ship was in Korean waters.

"AN ITEM" . . . Columnists are putting two and two together and getting "an item" from companionship of Robert Preston, actor, and Peggy Lee, singer, at Stork Club in New York. He is in Broadway hit, "Twentieth Century."

SPORTSMAN'S HORIZON

By JIM RHODY

Ricochet Deadly

Bullet is hidden by splash as it almost goes under.

Science cautions shooters against firing rifles where bullets may ricochet off water or stone, warning that such bouncing bullets lose very little of their velocity and will carry almost as far as a direct shot.

Facts to support the warning were established by scientific tests made at the nation's foremost ballistics laboratories. The tests were dramatically documented by super high-speed photographs taken at 2/1,000,000ths of a second.

The tests conducted in the interest of safe shooting by experts at the research and development laboratories of Olin Industries' Western Cartridge Company of East Alton, Illinois, show that a Super-X 22 caliber long rifle bullet has a velocity of 1,240 feet per second at 13 feet from the muzzle.

Ricocheting from water at this distance, the bullet still has a velocity, after leaving the water, of 1,195 feet per second—a loss of only 45 feet per second speed! And bullets will ricochet from water at angles up to 11 degrees, although they will not ricochet at 15 degrees or more, the tests disclosed.

Bullets ricocheting from stone

With practically no loss of velocity, bullet leaves water on its deflected course.

also lost little velocity and were deformed and upset so that they would cause severe wounds.

Cubes of gelatin, backed up by blocks of wood, caught the bullets after they ricocheted, and it was noted that penetrations were almost as deep as those of bullets fired directly into the blocks. The upset bullets which ricocheted off stone did not go so deep, but instead plowed wide channels.

Rifle experts who have warned of the danger of shooting at water or stone now have the scientific data to back up their warnings.

Praise for DU

Canada's prairies, while home to the continent's waterfowl, has an even larger stake in the democratic nation's economy. The prairies produce much of the world's wheat, rivaled only by that produced in Russia's Ukraine, and to a lesser extent, in our mid-west states. The source of all this economic wealth is inevitably tied to waterfowl, for the same ingredients—water and prairie land—are what produces both. Thus sportsmen of the United States, out to produce waterfowl for hunters, have aided the economic recovery of a nation.

Ducks Unlimited has been officially recognized and praised for the role it has played in nearly every corner where water conservation is of primary interest. The water stabilization committee of Alberta recently issued a report showing the work it has done since 1947. Recognition of DU importance in the work is illustrated by its membership on the committee, appointed by the provincial government, consisting of engineers from the government and Ducks Unlimited.

The objective of the committee is the conservation of water, the objective of DU is the conservation of waterfowl. With their objectives so closely knit, the two have provided a model of cooperation. When propagation of wild fowl is the main purpose of a project, Ducks Unlimited pays two-thirds of the cost and the Province one-third. When the major benefits accrue to the people of Alberta as a whole then the distribution of cost is reversed. On one lake where thousands of waterfowl nest, the Province provided $140,000 of the cost as against DU's $10,000.

Use The Reel

Although one can successfully land the average fish caught on a fly-rod by using the line, it is both smart and good insurance to use the reel when playing a really good-sized fish. When the slack is taken up, you can let the fish take line directly from the reel, which will mean that the tension is kept uniform and there is no danger of too much snubbing, as might be the case in hand-playing, and thus losing the fish.

THE RURAL SCHOOL

Holcomb's Consolidated School A Model for Rural Communities

Adequate educational opportunity is a major desire of all American parents for their children.

Because of sparse population that often entails special difficulties in providing financing of housing teachers and transportation of pupils, the rural school system has been the slowest to develop.

A model of what the rural community can do to meet its problems is the Holcomb community in Finney county in southwestern Kansas.

The village of Holcomb is situated eight miles west of Garden City, the county seat. It has a population of 200. Transcontinental highway 50 and the main line of the Santa Fe railroad pass through it.

On January 6, 1920, three districts voted for consolidation of a school at Holcomb. On July 23, 1921, another district petitioned to be admitted to the union district.

During the past 30 years the Holcomb school has developed a full curriculum, including instruction in the elementary grades, from the kindergarten up, and in the high school full courses on every subject, including vocational agriculture and vocational homemaking.

By 1950 the school owned 12 buildings and 20 acres of land. The buildings included the main school structure, a grade school, a vocational agriculture building, a teacherage, a bus garage, and seven teachers' cottages.

Clifton Webb seems slated to go on playing fathers forever and ever. The papa of twelve in "Cheaper by the Dozen" is set for 20th Century-Fox's "Elopement", a comedy about the two families of an eloping couple.

Red Skelton, son of a circus clown, practically grew up under the big tents. Now M-G-M is looking for a good story based on a clown's life for him.

Katherine Hepburn and Spencer Tracy made such a wonderful team in "Adam's Rib" that M-G-M obviously had to find another film for them.

Eight of Hollywood's prettiest girls have been signed by RKO Radio for featured spots as drive-in car hops in "A Girl in Every Port", starring Groucho Marx, Maffie Wilson and William Bendix.

GRASSROOTS

California Highways Followed by Spanish Padres

THE VISITOR to Boston wonders at and comments on the narrow, winding, crooked streets of the business section of the city.

Far to the west, on the shores of the Pacific, from San Diego north to the Oregon border, from the beaches of the ocean eastward through the high Sierras, the San Bernardino and others of the several mountain ranges, stretch the magnificent California highways.

To those weary, disheartened, Spanish, and their following of native Indians, they were traversing El Camino Real. Today the tourist follows the same route when his car glides over the concrete marked as Highway 101.

blazed by the padres. On those trails are to be found intensely interesting history, an abundance of adventure and romance, and beautiful scenic effects. Those devout Franciscans did not realize that they were laying out a great highway system to serve an alien people.

THE FICTION CORNER

NO APOLOGIES

By Georgia C. Nicholas

"YOU'RE LATE, Neil Horner!" Taffy handed Neil her jacket to hold for her.

"I know it," Neil said, "And what's more I forgot to bring back that book that my mother borrowed from your mother."

Neil opened the door for her. "I'm only ten minutes late and your mother said she was in no hurry for the book."

Taffy didn't answer until they were in the car and on their way to the Horner residence for dinner.

"When are you going to say you'll marry me?" Neil asked as if he didn't know Taffy was peeved.

"I haven't had any complaints before. Don't I always open doors for you and all the other things a guy is supposed to do?"

"Oh, yes, the manners that can be seen. But just between us two sometimes I think you're downright rude. You never apologize."

"When are you going to say you'll marry me?"

"See why I never apologize," he whispered.

"I won't say it till you say you're sorry you were late and that you forgot the book."

This time Neil was the quiet one. The situation was still unsettled when he turned onto a winding driveway.

Taffy had no chance to answer that one. A maid opened the door for them. She showed Taffy to a bedroom and while Taffy was taking off her jacket Mrs. Horner entered.

"I'm so sorry I wasn't at the front door," Mrs. Horner mourned. "I was all upset this afternoon because the butcher didn't send the kind of meat I ordered. I'm afraid it isn't going to be a very good dinner."

Taffy did her best to assure Mrs. Horner that she was quite comfortable without her jacket. It seemed that the oil burner was out of kilter.

"I don't know how I look in this dress," Mrs. Horner said. "It's one I made myself and I just finished it this afternoon."

Taffy laughed her polite little laugh and they went downstairs. Mr. Horner was a much more comfortable person to meet. He tried to make conversation at the dinner table and cancel his wife's depreciation of everything. After dinner he said, "Mother, I think our guest might like to see some of your paintings."

"Yes," Neil said, "Mother's giving Grandma Moses a run for her money."

Mr. Horner led the way into the living room. Mrs. Horner said, "Oh, they really aren't worth looking at."

Had Taffy said that? Taffy had. She realized it on the word 'look' and that was too late. She put her hand over her mouth and faced Neil. His mouth was open as if he'd started to say something, changed his mind and forgotten to shut it. But there was a sparkle in his eyes, the same sparkle she had loved for a long time.

She wasn't quite clear about who said what during the next minute. But somehow Mr. Horner led Mrs. Horner out of the room and people said goodnight. She still stood there looking helplessly at Neil.

He held out his arms. "See why I ever apologize?" he whispered.

"Yes, I see. I still think you carry it to extremes, but if I can ever be forgiven for what I just said I'd like to marry you sometime."

"Forgiven? That was just what my mother needed. Now let's take this book back to your mother and tell her we're engaged."

Terramycin—New Miracle Drug

A fifth partner—terracycline—has been added to the list of new antibiotic drugs which stifle the life processes of germs so sick people can get well.

The new drug is a purified form of a chemical produced by a particular soil mold. It is an effective weapon against blood poisoning, virus pneumonia, whooping cough, tonsillitis, strep throat, amoebic dysentery, shingles, flu and venereal diseases.

Terramycin was discovered by chemists of Charles Pfizer & Co., Brooklyn, N. Y., who turned it up in a spoonful of Indiana soil during screening of 100,000 soil samples from all parts of the world. Only eight months were needed to find, prove and mass-produce it compared to 12 years for penicillin.

One of its advantages is that it is swallowed, not injected. And it is so free of toxic effects that dosages for children are as big as for adults.

When better automobiles are built BUICK will build them

PARDON us if we play switchman with a familiar railroad phrase, but we aim to flag down some certain people...

Those folks who've always had a great big yen for a new Buick, but a big worry that Buick prices ran too high for their budgets.

Now we'll have to grant you that — on style and beauty and size and impressive appearance — a 1951 Buick looks like a pretty high price tag.

And we'll have to grant, too, that the zooming power and the luxurious ride and the heavyweight steadiness you get in a Buick would also indicate prices beyond the reach of most people.

But honestly, could anything be farther from the truth when you note the sample prices for 1951 Buicks in the panel yonder?

Isn't that beauty — with the big-power, big-mileage, eight-cylinder, valve-in-head Fireball Engine — and with prices starting below those of many of today's sixes — really within your budget picture?

Won't you admit here and now that you can have Buick room and comfort, can have Buick ride and handling, can have Buick style and size — for little, if any, more than you've been paying for lesser cars?

That leaves the next step up to you — stopping in to see us.

Come in soon, look over the SPECIAL, SUPER or ROADMASTER you've always wanted — and let that happy glow go surging all through you as you sign up for your smart-buy Buick.

Special Interest Senators

THE PUBLIC was asleep at 3 A.M. when the senate staged its most revealing debate on price control. Asleep also were many newspapermen.

Yet the speeches certain senators made at that time—just as price controls were scheduled to expire—and the amendments they introduced, give the clearest of all pictures regarding who pulls the strings to make certain senators dance.

At about 2:30 A.M. up spoke Sen. Homer Ferguson of Michigan, his silver hair more awry than usual. He had an amendment which would have increased the price of automobiles throughout the nation.

Ferguson did not mention the fact that his wife and son-in-law are heavy stockholders in a subsidiary of one of the biggest automobile companies—Chrysler. Nor did Sen. Willis Robertson of Virginia mention it, as Sen. Elmer Thomas was unkind enough to do three years ago when he threatened to expose Ferguson's family interest in Chrysler unless Ferguson quit investigating him.

However, Robertson, alert to catch the significance of Ferguson's amendment, warned his colleagues that it was "tailored perfectly to increase the price of automobiles."

"Then this is a roll-up amendment," snapped Clinton Anderson of New Mexico. "If we want chaos in price administration, this is the easiest way to get it I have ever seen."

Then, turning to Ferguson, the New Mexico senator observed: "It applies primarily to the automobile industry."

"The senator is correct," admitted Ferguson. "Why should that industry be discriminated against?"

"The profits of automobile manufacturers were reasonably good, were they not?" Anderson shot back, referring to the fact that most big motor companies have just celebrated their highest profits in history.

"Now we come to the secret. The senators want to fix prices so as to determine profits," angrily shouted the Michigan senator.

Ferguson had reason to expect his automobile amendment to pass like other special-interest amendments, log-rolled through in the early hours of the morning. But it was defeated—with Michigan's other senator, Blair Moody of Detroit, voting against it.

Heart sick Senator

One of the greatest speeches of the inflation debate was delivered in the senate at about 3 A.M. It was by a man whose banking firm has made him a multimillionaire but who fought vigorously against the big-business lobbies—Herbert Lehman of New York.

Though Lehman is 73 years old and served as governor of New York more terms than any man in history, he is new to the senate. And he seemed hurt and disappointed at the mad scramble of his colleagues to vote for the special interests.

Finally he rose, and speaking sadly, softly, said:

"What I am about to say is not going to please my colleagues in the senate. Yet I must say it. Here we are engaged in a life-and-death struggle, a struggle for survival against the most ruthless enemy in history, fighting on two fronts, on the military and on the economic."

"We ought to be engaged exclusively in considering legislation to benefit all the people of the country, legislation to keep our country on a sound economic basis. Yet, here I see and hear senator after senator rise, not to concern himself with the issues before us, but to play politics, to blast the Administration. I tell you, it has made my heart sick to hear all this. It makes me feel that we are betraying the people who send us down here."

"We are about to pass a bill which is a bad bill, a bill which is not in the interest of the people of our country," Lehman continued. "I know there is nothing I can say which is going to reverse the trend and bring about the ends I and many of my associates and the people seek. Deep down in our hearts, we all know that these ends are necessary. Yet some are acting without regard to what is right. But I hope that we are not going to be supine or satisfied with what we have done."

"I assume that what I have said will not set well with some of my colleagues," Lehman concluded. "Yet I am glad I said it. I think it is something which had to be said on the floor of the senate."

Peanuts and Milk

Senators Ed Thyne, Minnesota Republican, and Warren Magnuson, Washington Democrat, also pushed through an amendment to freeze dairy and peanut products at their present high prices. But Senator Anderson objected.

"The bill we are considering is designed to try to put ceilings on prices," he said. "How is a measure that would prevent prices from dropping germane to a bill that is trying to put on ceilings?"

HOMER CROFT'S Jesse James WAS MY NEIGHBOR

THE STORY SO FAR: With detectives after them again, Jesse and Frank more back to Missouri and pick up their old life. There are more robberies, but the band is becoming harder to hold together. Jesse begins to fear that he might be killed for the reward which is offered for him. For the sake of some peace, Jesse moves his family to St. Joseph, Missouri, where they spend Christmas of 1881. Meanwhile, Bob Ford, whose brother Charlie is a member of the James gang, is becoming friendly with Dick Liddell, another member of the band. The two make a deal with Missouri's governor to murder Jesse and collect the $10,000 reward.

CHAPTER XIII

Then Jesse brought his fine friends in.

They had breakfast, then Bob went upstairs to bed in the room with the grim loopholes. Charlie slept in the same bed with Jesse in the big room downstairs. The bed is still there . . . it gives one a grisly feeling to look at it.

His mother, who was more astute as a reader of character, warned Jesse against Bob Ford. "I mistrust him," she said.

Jesse thought she was prejudiced. He knew more than she did about Bob Ford—wasn't Bob going to help him?

Premonition hung over his mother that all was not well, and some of her feeling must have been communicated to Jesse, for when the moment of parting came, he looked at the house where he had played as a child and said, "Mother, if I never see you here again, we'll meet in Heaven." He meant it, for his religion never deserted him.

The three left at night; the next morning they moved into a patch of timber. That evening they had supper at the farm of Jesse's half-sister, Sallie Samuels Nicholson, then started on again. The following night they stayed in a church eighteen miles from St. Joseph.

Jesse Realizes He Has Traitor in Home

Jesse's wife had been waiting for him in the lonely, forever fear-ridden House on the Hill. She was thunderstruck when she saw Jesse ride up with a new bandit. It was always happening—these terrible men who came so suddenly into her life.

He introduced the new man. He was a brother of Charlie's and was all right.

Time was moving along. Jesse decided on the bank at Platt City, Missouri, only a few miles from St. Joseph. A murder trial was in progress; the people would be in the courthouse. And he further decided to do something he had never done before: to kill the cashier whether or not he offered resistance. Cold-bloodedly he told Bob Ford to get him a butcher knife. When they got to the town, Bob was to hold the horses, Charlie was to guard the streets, and Jesse himself was to go in, seize the cashier, and cut his throat. It was horrible. It was a new and desperate Jesse.

In the meantime Dick Liddell, who had heard through Bob that if he turned state's evidence against Jesse he would be pardoned by Governor Crittenden, had surrendered. The news of his arrest had not been published; it was being suppressed until Jesse could be taken.

Then it came out anyway. Jesse was reading one of his newspapers when he ran across the startling news. Bob Ford was in the room at the time, and Jesse asked him casually, "By the way, Bob, where is Dick Liddell?"

"I don't know," Jesse knew that Bob had Liddell's confidence; he realized now that he had a traitor in his home. Bob caught his look.

Bob at once became afraid to go on the bank expedition, for he believed that as soon as it was over Jesse would kill him. Later he said, "I think Jesse would have killed me, then and there, but he did not want to in front of his family."

After a few moments they began to talk about the robbery and how they would carry it out. It was Sunday; on Monday Bob Ford would buy the butcher knife and that afternoon they would ride toward Platt City. Monday night they would hide in the woods. Tuesday morning, when court was in session, the three would descend on the bank.

That night the three men sat around talking as if nothing had happened; finally Jesse went to bed, locking the door to his room. The house was peaceful and quiet. It was Sunday night.

The time was the first week in April. Sometimes, in this part of the Missouri River Valley, there is a kind of rehearsal of spring, and so there was this year, 1882. Monday morning was balmy and there was the lazy feel that comes with this first promise of summer.

Zee James served breakfast in the kitchen. Jesse and Charlie went to the stable and fed and curried the two horses, which had stood all night bridled and saddled. Bob remained with Jesse's wife, playing with the children.

The two came in from the stable, talking casually, Charlie stopped in the kitchen but Jesse walked on through to the front room, which faced on the street. In the room was a bed, really a cot.

On the wall was hanging the picture of a racehorse named 'Sky-rocket'; picking up a featherduster, Jesse started toward it. "It's awfully hot today," he said, and taking off his coat and vest, tossed them on the bed. Then he opened the street door and started to mount the chair to dust the pictures. "If anybody passes they'll see me," he said, so he unstrapped the holster in which he carried two .45-caliber revolvers, one a Smith & Wesson, the other a Colt, and put it on the bed. Then he went back, mounted the chair, and raised both hands above his head to take hold of the picture frame.

Dick said that Wood had grabbed off 100 too much; Wood said he hadn't and called Dick a liar.

From the kitchen the two Fords saw him. This was the moment they had been waiting for. Charlie winked at Bob, who casually strolled in and managed to place himself between Jesse and the bed. He was now behind Jesse. He drew his revolver and cocked it. Slight as the sound was, Jesse heard and started to turn to see what caused it. Bob was about five feet away; he extended his arm with the revolver in his hand until it was about three feet from Jesse. It was the revolver Jesse had given him.

Jesse was knocked forward by the impact but regained himself; he began to weave back and forth. Then he fell on the uncarpeted floor.

The two Fords stood over him a moment, each with a gun in hand, to make sure the deed had been accomplished. Then Bob seized his and Charlie's hat and the two ran out into the yard.

Zee came in and saw the body of her husband on the floor and the two men fleeing. "What have you done?" she screamed. "Bob, have you done this?" she cried in agonized tones.

Bob paused in his flight. "I swear to God I didn't."

"A pistol went off accidentally," explained Charlie.

Bob, Charlie Flee, Leave Jesse Dying

The two men leaped over the wooden fence and ran down the street as fast as they could, leaving her alone with Jesse.

She picked him up and held him in her arms. He tried to speak, but the effort was too great. The children came in, and at sight of their father began to scream. Leaving Jesse on the floor, she went to the kitchen and got a cloth and with it tried to wipe the blood away, but it was running too fast.

The two Fords hurried to the telegraph office and sent three telegrams announcing the good news. The first was to Governor Crittenden in Jefferson City, another was to the chief of police in Kansas City, and the third was to the sheriff of Clay County. Then they went to City Marshal Enos Craig's office to surrender, but found him gone, so they went to a deputy marshal, Frank M. Lovejoy, and gave themselves up. Soon they could collect the reward.

By this time the Ford brothers were tired and worn out from the morning's activities, so they were taken to the marshal's headquarters where they were given a hearty dinner.

The murder was a sensation. People were stunned. Would his friends come to reap vengeance on the killers? Was any home safe? Where was Frank James? What would he do?

The coroner, his inspection completed, notified Undertaker Sidenfaden, who came shortly after ten o'clock and bore the body away in a black hearse. Crowds followed it.

These who caught a glimpse of the dead Jesse saw a man of thirty-five with a pug nose and high cheekbones. The blue eyes, which had become larger and deeper-set with age, were now closed. He was neatly dressed, as he always was; in fact, according to the standards of the day, he was a dandy. His hair was black, but his beard was sandy-colored. It was neatly trimmed. Many, commenting on his appearance, said he looked like a doctor, for at this time it was a common practice for doctors to wear trimmed beards.

At the undertaker's the coroner ordered a medical inspection. It was revealed that Bob Ford's bullet had entered the head behind the right ear, had ranged upward, and had passed out over the left eye, near the temple, and on into the wall. The examination further revealed two old bullet holes in Jesse's right breast and one in the fleshy part of his right thigh—the only wounds he had ever received in the course of his nearly twenty years of guerrilla fighting and banditry.

Young James W. Graham had just gotten a job as photographer for a firm in St. Joseph. On the second day of his job, the startling word reached the studio that Jesse James had been killed. It seemed improbable, but he would see what he could get in the way of pictures. He obtained an order from the city marshal and went to the undertaker's. The coroner was still viewing the body. When he had finished, Graham went into the back room and set up his camera on a dry-goods box. He had a photographic dry plate in a studio camera, 8 x 10, but there was only a single plate-holder, for the double plate-holder had not yet come onto the market.

The body was carried into the room on a board, but it could not be photographed in that position, so the young photographer and the undertaker's assistant put a rope around the body, under the arms, and tied it to the board. They then stood the body as nearly upright as they could and the picture was made. It now is famous.

Coroner's Inquest Held in Shooting

When he was through, Graham started to the studio to develop the plate. People were so eager to get a picture of Jesse James that they followed him there and waited while the plate was developed and the prints made.

At three o'clock that afternoon the inquest testimony was begun in the old circuit courtroom in the courthouse. Two juries were prepared. There was a good deal of wrangling among politicians and petty officials, but finally one was selected, and the widow, who had left her children with a neighbor, was brought in. She was rather goodlooking, with blue eyes and brown hair and had a nice figure.

The Fords—armed—were brought in and placed opposite here. At sight of them, she began to weep. The coroner waited until she had possession of herself again, then began to question her. Here follows, in part, the official record as taken down in shorthand:

Question. What is your name?
Answer. Mrs. Jesse James.

Q. How long have you lived here?
A. Since the 9th of last November.

Q. How long have you lived at the place where your husband was killed?
A. Since Christmas Eve.

Q. Had he ever been wounded before?
A. Yes, sir.

Q. Whereabouts on the body?
A. On the right side. Two on the right side, I believe, and one in the leg.

Q. Where was he wounded at, what place and where?
A. Well, some time during the war, I don't know where.

Q. Was he disfigured any way?
A. No, sir, I believe not.

Q. In his hands, I mean, any wound?
A. Yes, sir, he had one finger shot off. I don't remember which one; it was some one of the middle fingers.

Q. How was his mail directed?
A. To Thomas Howard.

Q. Where was this mail from?
A. He never received any except from Nebraska. From an agent in regard to a place he wanted to get.

Q. What was the object in killing your husband?
A. I don't know, sir, unless it was for the reward, that is all I can think of.

Q. At the time your husband went to Nebraska, did these boys go along?
A. Charlie went.

The strain began to prove too much and the coroner, seeing how she was suffering, told her she could step down. She was helped out of the room by Marshal Enos Craig.

Bob Ford was brought to the witness stand. He entered it confidently, feeling certain of the sympathy of the crowd. He was short, with blond hair and blue eyes, and wore a gray coat and vest and green-striped trousers.

No Free Lunch

Lesson for August 5, 1951

YOU cannot find the words "economic relations" in the Bible, but you cannot find the word "humanity" in the Bible either.

Yet you would not say that the Bible has no message for humanity, and if you say that it has nothing to say about the economic life, it shows you have not thought what the words mean.

"Economic relations" is an expression for everything that goes into life from a business or money standpoint, everything we buy and use, make or raise or manufacture or sell. Money's not everything, but money's into everything.

The Bible speaks about life, including the economic aspect of life. Nobody can live for a day without having some kind of economic relations, or sin (as a hobo does) by not having them.

No Free Lunch

ONE vital part of our economic life is earning a living. A learned professor of economics said that the whole subject can be put into one short sentence: "There is no free lunch." He meant, of course, that everything has to be paid for, by somebody, some time. You may get your board "free," but everything on the table costs somebody something, and if you are not paying for it, some one else must.

Now the Bible teaches that every one who is able to do so, should earn his living. Saint Paul made a rule for his churches: "He that will not work, neither let him eat."

That sounds hard-boiled, but makes sense. The Bible has no use for the hobo, the loafer, the "moocher," the "grifter," the person who thinks the world owes him a living. The world owes no one a living.

The Right to Work

IT is the duty of all of us to earn our board and keep, on the other hand the world ought to give us the opportunity to do so. Alone with the duty of earning a living goes the right to earn a living.

We saw, some weeks ago, that a basic Christian principle for right living is the value of individual persons. This holds good for economics as well as for all other areas of life.

What happens to the man who cannot earn a living? If he becomes an "object of charity," in a short while he loses ambition and self-respect. And if he gets no charity, he starves.

So any system or arrangement of society, or any action or condition making it impossible for a man to earn his own living, is harmful to human persons and therefore sinful. No one, in short, has a right to a living, but every one has the right to earn a living.

The Risks of Riches

SO far, you might say that Christianity only says that everybody with common sense can see for himself. But Christianity goes further and says something that most people forget: that getting rich is more dangerous than desirable.

The Bible urges us all to earn our own way; but it does not urge us to get rich. Christ warns us that life does not consist in the "abundance of things" a man possesses. There is no virtue in being as poor as possible.

Still, on the other hand, the more a man's property piles up, the more he is tempted to certain sins: the sin of greed, wanting more than our share, more than we can wisely use; the sin of pride, wanting to have more than any one else in sight; the sin of selfishness, wanting to use what we have for our own benefit exclusively; the sin of hoarding, wanting to fill barns or bank accounts for no particular reason except just to see the pile grow; the sin of materialism, measuring success in terms of dollars.

The main question is: Why do we want it? To have something good, or to do good with it? The big Christian question about every relationship and transaction, economic and otherwise, is a question about people. What is this going to do to people? To me? To those who depend on me? To the community?

Pope Pius XII used two words about the economic life which Protestants will agree are of top importance: Make it more human, he said, and more Christian.

THE HOME TOWN REPORTER

IN WASHINGTON
WALTER SHEARD, WNU Correspondent

The Four Pillars

MR. W. G. VOLLMER, president of the Texas & Pacific Railway Company is circulating a beautifully written pamphlet, entitled "The Four Pillars of Freedom." With it is a series of excellent newspaper ads for presentation to the public in the nation's newspapers.

The four pillars of freedom, Mr. Vollmer says, are work, save, vote and pray. Work for increased production; save for both government and private thrift; vote, as a sacred obligation to protect our rights and freedoms; pray for the wisdom and courage to do our duty as good Americans, faithful to God and to our country.

These are worthwhile aims to which no American can object and to which every American should adhere in private and public life. The sad fact is, however, that as you read through this fine pamphlet prepared by Mr. Vollmer, it is like biting into the proverbial luscious red apple and finding the proverbial worm. For unfortunately, as in most cases, Mr. Vollmer has a "gimmick," an axe to grind. And we find it in just one paragraph, which spoils the whole barrel.

For in discussing how to save, Vollmer says: "The various so-called social programs, benefits, bounties and aids should be discontinued." Which adds up to the brutal fact that Vollmer would kick out the window the entire social security program of old age assistance, unemployment insurance, aid to the blind, to needy children and maternal welfare, a program the congress has just seen fit to extend to include more people and to increase the benefits. It is indeed too bad that some pillar of the business hierarchy cannot advance a completely objective and unselfish program without a hidden motive or political booby trap concealed beneath the flowery wording.

Cigarettes Similar

Which is your favorite brand of cigarettes? Well, it makes little difference, according to the Federal Trade Commission, which has been conducting unrelenting warfare against the cigarette companies, charging misleading and false advertising. For the FTC makes a finding there is "no significant difference in the amount of nicotine, acid and throat irritants contained in the leading brands of cigarettes. One case instituted by FTC and appealed by the cigarette company has just been affirmed by the U.S. court of appeals at Richmond. Another appeal is pending in the U.S. court of appeals in Chicago. Others are in various stages of litigation. But if you will notice, the advertising techniques of all brands show a decided change as a result of the FTC orders. Here's what FTC says about all the leading brands of popular cigarettes:

"Testimony of medical witnesses, as well as reports of tests and experiments conducted by chemists, establishes that there is no significant difference in either the tars and resins or the nicotine in the smoke from all the leading brands of cigarettes. The testimony of medical experts also establishes that the smoke from all the leading brands is irritating to the mucous membrane of the respiratory tract and the differences in the chemical constituents of different brands of cigarettes, so slight that the smoke from one brand of cigarettes is no less irritating than is the smoke from other brands." So there!

Farmers and Controls

Of course the farm organization may assert their independence and rebel, but Secretary of Agriculture Charles F. Brannan is still urging controls. This time the secretary declares there is an urgent need for effective use of materials available for control of the corn borer and other insect pests.

Puny Fourth

There was especial emphasis most everywhere this year on celebrating Independence Day, July 4, because it was our 175th birthday anniversary as a nation. Here's how congress celebrated: After unanimously voting to hold a July 4 session to commemorate the occasion, 75 of the 435 House members turned out for the first such session in 10 years, to spend 13 minutes in hearing the Declaration of Independence read. The senate did not meet.

No People's Lobby

Congressman Winfield K. Denton of Indiana probably has hit the nail on the head with reference to price controls. Said the Hoosier representative: "Most people seem to want controls at this time, but unfortunately, many of them want them applied to everyone but themselves. Congress has been besieged by one group after another looking for exemption of their fields of interests from government restrictions. Many groups have protested price control.

When you get paint on the windowpanes, or when somebody else does and you have to get it off, soak the glass with hot vinegar. Give the vinegar a few minutes to work, and then rub or scrape the paint off. A penny makes a safe, effective scraper. If you use a razor blade or something else that is sharp, be careful around the edges. A careless thrust may jab under the putty and eventually cause it to fall out.

CONSTIPATION GONE— FEELS WONDERFUL

"I was constipated for years with no relief in sight. Then I began eating ALL-BRAN every day. Now I'm regular...feel wonderful...thanks a million!" Abraham S. Zelman, 2805 Deerfield Rd., Far Rockaway, N. Y. One of many unsolicited letters from ALL-BRAN users. This may be your answer to constipation due to lack of dietary bulk. Eat an ounce (about 1/2 cup) of crispy Kellogg's ALL-BRAN daily, drink plenty of water. If not satisfied after 10 days, send empty box to Kellogg's, Battle Creek, Mich. Get DOUBLE YOUR MONEY BACK!

Kidney Slow-Down May Bring Restless Nights

When kidney function slows down, many folks complain of nagging backache, headaches, dizziness and loss of pep and energy. Don't suffer restless nights with these discomforts if reduced kidney function is getting you down—due to such common causes as stress and fatigue, over-exercising or exposure to cold. Minor bladder irritations due to cold, dampness or wrong diet may cause getting up nights or frequent passages. Don't neglect your kidneys if these conditions bother you. Try Doan's Pills—a mild diuretic. Used successfully by millions for over 60 years. While often otherwise caused, it's amazing how many times Doan's give happy relief from these discomforts—help the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters flush out waste. Get Doan's Pills today!

Joke Died Too

Changing Woodwork Finish

QUESTION: We bought an old cottage which has grained woodwork. It is badly marred in places. Is there any possible way this can be removed and an oil stain applied? The baseboards are rather wide and I am afraid if we were to enamel them white, it would make them look still wider.

ANSWER: I don't agree with you on that point. I believe that if you were to enamel them to match the color of the walls, the width of the baseboard would not be so apparent as it would be if it were a contrasting, and probably a darker color than the walls. You can remove the present finish with a small portable electric sander (if you can buy or rent one), or else by softening it with varnish remover and scraping it off, then cleaning off the remover thoroughly with turpentine. You can finish with two coats of enamel undercoater and a coat of enamel, or else with your oil stain and varnish. I hope you will not make the woodwork too dark.
