Bradley Gets Riled

GEN. OMAR BRADLEY, who doesn't get riled easily, was pretty sore when he heard how one of his own army spokesmen had blurted out to a press conference the name of an airborne division which had been transferred from Korea to Japan.

The incident took place in a press conference at which the army was explaining how Chinese Communists had built up their strength in North Korea while we had weakened ours.

What happened was that General Ridgway had cabled Washington for permission to transfer the airborne division in question to north-ern Japan because of the fact that the Russians had two airborne di-visions poised on the island of Sakhalin, threatening northern Japan. While the two Russian divisions have only enough airplanes between them to move one division at a time, Ridgway wanted to be on guard against a surprise airborne attack on Japan.

Washington accordingly gave permission to transfer the American airborne division back to Japan. Such a troop move-ment is highly secret. But the Pentagon briefing officer, anxious to prove that the Chinese have used the truce talks to build up their strength, blurted out the movement of this particular division to a roomful of newsmen to which foreign correspondents are admitted.

When General Bradley heard of this, he tried to call army chief of staff, Gen. Joe Collins, but couldn't reach him. So he summoned assistant chief of staff Maj. Gen. C. L. Bolte and ordered a full investi-gation of who pulled the boner.

Eisenhower Says No

Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower has quietly passed the word to his GOP boosters that he is not interested in the Republican nomination - if isolationists control the party.

In addition, Ike let it be known that he is upset by the timid and hesistant policy of internationallyminded Republicans and the way they let bitter attacks on him go unheeded.

One close friend who returned from Paris recently put it this way: "If the Republicans want Ike merely to bail out the party and win an election, they're badly mis-taken. That would be like putting a million dollar jockey on a two dollar

"The general is not the least bit interested in running for President just to accommodate a candidate for sheriff. Those who say they want Ike so badly are going to have to do a lot more than say, 'he's a fine fellow and will win the election for us.' They'll have to work and fight to make the Republican party the kind of place where the general would feel at

Eisenhower's close friends agree that this issue will largely decide whether he consents to run - and on which party. They claim Eisenhower is disturbed by four factors:

1. The prospect that as the GOP nominee he might help elect an isolationist Republican congress which would then proceed to dump the military and economic aid program which he has been spearheading.

2. The lack of a hard-hitting, effective international-minded GOP bloc in congress, as existed when Sen. Arthur Vandenberg was active. The last attempt to organize the internationalists among senate Repblicans was in January, 1949, when Sen. Henry Cabot Lodge, Jr., called a meeting. This rump group met only once.

Taft Tightens Grip

3. The way the Taft-isolationist wing has grabbed control of the GOP party machinery. Ab Hermann, the national committee's executive director, boasted to senate secretaries the other night: "We're building a sound organization precinct by precinct, so we won't have to ride to victory on the coattails of a strong and popular figure." The Taft crowd are in charge of the Chicago convention machinery and determined to prevent an Eisenhower gallery demon-

4. The noisy attacks on the general from both the Chicago Tribune and the Gerald L. K. Smith brand of hate mongers. The mails are being flooded with vile diatribes against the general, while his GOP friends sit on the sidelines.

Washington Pipeline

The senate investigating committee is checking on officials who drive around in government automobiles with no identification painted on the sides. This is against the law. (Senators suspect that some officials are using government automobiles for their own personal driving.) . . . The house armed services committee plans to follow up the senate report on military housing with another sharp blast in the very rear future.

Cease Fire Talks Resume in Korea; WSB Advises New Wage Increases

A MINOR DELAY-Negotiations for a cease fire in Korea resumed at Kaesong after Communists leaders pledged to keep the conference town clear of armed troops. Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway broke off negotiations after the Reds violated their pledge to keep Kaesong neutral.

Apparently a minor delay in the deadlocked talks, Ridgway's action nevertheless was a firm reminder that the United Nations expected the Communist to abide by previous agreements. It was also a pointed hint that the UN means business and that peace can only be achieved by honor on both sides.

There still has been no announcement of any progress over the question of a demilitarized zone across Korea, which has deadlocked the negotiations for days. The Reds insist that the line shall be centered on the 38th parallel. The allies want it along defensible positions, south of the parallel in the west but north of the old political boundary in the center and east.

AN ISSUE FOR '52-The new price control law, signed reluctantly by President Truman, will be one of the big political issues in the 1952 presidential campaign as sure as "God made little green apples," as the cracker - barrel philosopher would say.

The fact was evident by the President's blast that the nation's families cannot have protection against inflation until "congress repairs the damage done by this new act." He added, with a grimness of tone that startled many reporters, that the measure was "the worst I ever had to sign."

The Republican and southern Dixiecrat coalition that had refused the President the powers he desired in the bill, continued to maintain it was a good meas-ure if it was properly ad-ministered.

WAGE INCREASE PROPOSED—With the recommendation of the wage stabilization board that cost of living wage increases be allowed for all workers, it appears the administration will allow such increases at once. President Truman hinted as he signed the new price control law that the government would allow reasonable adjustments in wages to fit cost-of-living increases.

He Signs

Reluctantly President Truman signs the new control bill which he described as "the worst I ever had to sign." The emphasis was on "had!"

The new regulation would effect workers who are paid by the hour, or are represented by unions, in three general classes: (1) Those who had cost of living provisions in force prior to Jan. 28, 1951, the wage freeze date; (2) those employers and unions who now want to include such clauses in contracts; and (3) those who want to relate wage rates to the cost of living but who do not want an escalator clause in their

It is estimated that living costs have increased approximately 11 per cent above January, 1950.

THE WEST POINT STORY—The announcement that 90 West Point cadets have been dismissed from the academy for cheating on examinations caused considerable talk across the nation last week. The scandal, breaking of the academy's honor system that dates from 1817, wrecked the army's powerful gridiron team and was the largest mass dismissal since the military academy was founded in 1802.

Maj. Gen. Frederick A. Irving, the academy's superintendent, acknowledged that the action taken was "stern and uncompromising." But he added: "After weighing all factors most carefully, I, and the responsible heads of the army, are convinced that there could be no compromise-solution that would preserve the vital honor system of West Point, which is the very heart of the academy."

FOOD PRICES- Home towners throughout the nation welcomed the bureau of agricultural economics' report that plentiful supplies probably will keep food prices from going much higher this year. But most home towners, remembering the past 12 months of rising prices, accepted the statement with reservations.

Since July of 1950 retail food prices have increased approximately 12 per cent. For the whole of 1951 they probably will average at least 10 per cent higher than in 1950.

The bureau said livestock and crop-production prospects indicate that food supplies available during the latter half of this year will be somewhat larger than a year earlier. The bureau also reported beefcattle prices at times may drop below ceilings during the heavy marketing season this fall. However, a strong consumer demand for meat may prevent any substantial decline in prices.

The bureau said future increases in prices probably would be limited largely to revised price ceilings under the new defense production act. The new law relaxes limitations on margins for processing and marketing food and other products. As a result, some widening of farm-to-retail price spreads may occur.

FUNDS FOR DEFENSE— The powerful house appropriations committee chopped $1,542,608,500 off the administration's requested military budget, but the total for defense still is a record in the peacetime history of this country-$56,062,405,890. This amount does not include what the country will spend on Korean War replacements and troops in Japan and Germany.

The bill would allot $20,125,574,665 to the army; $15,552,143,225 to the navy, and $19,854,128,000 to the air force. The committee said a huge outlay is needed "to create sufficient

FIRST AID TO THE AILING HOUSE BY ROGER C. WHITMAN

Question: The woodwork in my home was originally stained gumwood. I sandpapered the stain as best I could and painted it with semi gloss white paint. I find that the white paint keeps chipping off. Would you advise me to sand it off or use paint remover? What should I use for an undercoat to keep it from chipping? Would aluminum paint be all right for an undercoat?

Answer: Aluminum paint makes a very good priming coat, or you could use two coats of enamel undercoater and then a coat of enamel. To remove the chipping paint, try to get a small, portable electric sander, which would save time and labor. You could also soften the paint with paint remover and then scrape it off. Follow by thorough cleaning with turpentine, for if every trace of remover is not washed off, it will continue its action and spoil the

THEY WANT TO WORK

Only One Out of Four Actually Want to Retire When He Is Old

In the face of social security reprograms for retirement at 65, only one American breadwinner out of four actually likes the idea of retiring to a life of complete leisure when he grows old. Three out of four want either to keep on working at their present jobs, or at least to "do something useful" in their sunset years, according to a survey of male policyholders by Northwestern National Life Insurance Company.

Of the 3,000 men covered in the survey only 24 per cent want a life of ease when they reach retirement age; 39 per cent want to be financially able to cut their working hours or shift into some lighter many who don't want to retire may occupation while 37 per cent would keep right on working at their present jobs if permitted, and would only fall back on a retirement income when physically or mentally unable to hold their jobs any longer.

Retiring to the life o' Riley appeals to more of the younger men -28 per cent of those under 40 said they would like complete freedom from work when they reach retirement age. But only 23 per cent of those aged 40-49 want complete re-

Hollywood as she knew it, and interviews celebrities, all of whom she knows well. But the real news about Carmel is her book, "Don't Think About It", written for those in great trouble, out of the wisdom tragedy has brought into her life.

Sir Cedric Hardwicke's is the latest big name to be added to the distinguished cast of RKO's "Andocles and the Lion". He was a personal friend of George Bernard Shaw's, has appeared in many of his plays, and so was willing to play a small but important role in this new presentation of one of the famous playwright's m o s t delightful quirements and expanding business tirement, and of those in the 50-59 bracket—in hailing distance of R-day—only 20 per cent want complete leisure while nearly half of this group—45 per cent—would like to keep on at their present jobs as long as they can "pull their weight."

The remainder (25 per cent) of the The remainder (35 per cent) of the older men would like to ease up a bit, or shift to some lighter occupation or money-making hobby, but they still want to be useful.

Results of the survey would indicate, the report says, that a modest supplementary retirement income would fulfill the future desires of most Americans. But the fact needs many who don't want to retire may have to do so when the time comes, because of inability to maintain the peace necessary to "deliver" satisfactorily on the job, even though they may think they are "just as good as ever." Therefore, instead of the usual rigidity, flexibility is a vital need in the retirement income program of the average man, so that income payments can be 'turned on' earlier if needed, or can be postponed while his fund continues to build up, as long as he is able and wishes to keep on at a gainful occupation.

APPROXIMATELY half of those n the survey who want partial reirement would use some of their ncreased leasure for community service such as general charity work, religious work, Boy or Girl Scout work, child welfare activities, etc., the report shows.

Among the part-time money-making activities planned for retirement years, small-scale farming is the most popular objective; operating some form of small business such as a few tourists cabins is the next most frequently named Hunting and fishing are by far and away the favorite hobby to which the full-retirement advocates ook forward; next come gardening, woodworking and photography, in the order named. Three out of four plan to do some traveling when they retire; four out of five of these future travelers want to do their sightseeing in the U.S.; one out of five hopes to do some foreign travel. Twice as many would prefer to spend their sunset years in the country as would choose the city.

Among the survey group who do not care for a life of leisure is a 28-year-old architectural engineer, who observes in his response, "Too many who retire are dead 12 months later. I'll stay in harness." A 52year-old mechanic agrees with him: Would rather wear out than rust out." The 60-year-old president of an iron works declares, "Tried to retire after the last war. Nearly went crazy. Started new business with son as manager — now very contented."

A builder remarks, "I note that most of my friends who retire are poorly adjusted." The manager of a wholesale grocery, 60, says, "Have money enough to retire but am unable to decide what to do with my time." An independent oldster who drives a pickup and delivery truck declares, "Seventy-two and still going strong; I do not ask for old age

A 44-year-old, however, who yearns for complete leisure to enjoy travel and life of ease in the country says, "I might change my mind later, but after 25 years of being dominated by an alarm clock,

LEGALLY SPEAKING

By Irma Brown Craig

TIMMIE'S RED hair fairly bristled with defiance as he stalked up the pathway to Attorney Denton's spacious home. Any other time freckle-faced Jimmie would have jumped lightly over the low cypress hedge that separated the two homes -but not today!

Glancing over his shoulder, Jimmie could see his Dad watching from the dining room window, in all probability chuckling over the predicament old gabby Denton was

3-Minute Fiction in. It was, in fact, J u d g e Reed's words that had sent Jimmie on this errand, "Son, the property and the server to Dentor's and you go right over to Denton's and tell him exactly what happened. He's legally bound to pay off—ne can't very well talk himself out of this one with any of his high-fancy-sounding-legal phrases!" Jimmie knew his Dad and Attorney Denton had been friendly enemies in many a legal battle; he also knew the fast-talking Denton usually bested his Dad. But he'd show Denton today!

"Good afternoon, Jimmie," Attorney Denton smiled as he opened the door, "what brings you here-and why so serious, son?"

Without bothering to return the Attorney's friendly greeting Jimmie took a deep breath and plunged in: "Mr. Denton, while I was in the bakery today, a big dog jumped up on my bike carrier and stole a rib roast-and ran away with it!" Catching his breath, he continued, his words crisp and defiant, "What can be done about it, sir?"

The attorney smiled, "Well, Jimmie, that shouldn't be too difficult It appears to me you have an excellent case against the dog's master. You should have no trouble whatsoever in collecting."

"Is that right, Sir?-well, Mr. Denton, it was YOUR dog!" Jimmie was elated-this was much easier than he'd figured.

"Oh-my dog Rex, eh? Well, Jimmie, in that case I'll be glad to pay the costs. How much was the roast?" Denton reached for his bill-rIMMIE chuckled to himself, "This guy's an easy one! I'm doing okeh -even better'n Pop could do, I bet!" Out loud he said "Attorney Denton, the cost of the roast is a minor matter-there's my time going back and forth-and" Jimmie squared his shoulders, "my injured reputation. No one will trust me to deliver things for them now-and that's how I earn my money!"

"That should do it," Jimmie thought proudly, "That ought to bring me enough to get a Hop-along-Cassidy hat, as well as pay Mom for the roast."

Attorney Denton looked thought-"H-mmmmmm, I guess you've got me on all points, Jim, my boy. How much are the total damages?"

Mentally figuring, "Three-fifty for the roast and two-fifty for the hat," Jimmy replied briskly, "Six dollars, Sir, should cover all costs." Dad would be proud of him-he'd shown the attorney he wasn't so smart after all! Denton looked down at the minor duplicate of his old friend Judge Reed, then slowly opened his bill-

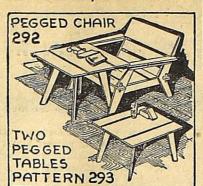

"Thank you Sir!" Jimmie thrust the six crisp one dollar bills into his pocket while making a quick, but dignified, move toward the exit. In his haste to get away, Jimmie fumbled with the door knob-most anxious that the attorney didn't see the smile he was trying to hide. He was pleased as punch with himself, and awfully anxious to show Dad how well he'd come off, "Nothing to it at all if you use your head,' Jimmie thought gleefully to himself as he stepped out on Denton's

"Just a moment Jimmie," Denton's suave voice interrupted his flight, "Didn't you forget some-thing?"

"No-no, sir, I don't think so." Jimmie glanced around-he hadn't We pray for rain, but the Lord never suits us as to time or quanbrought anything with him-not even a hat. "Well, Sir, thanks again, and goodbye!"

"But Jimmie-you HAVE forgotten something. My legal fee for advice. That will be two dollars and fifty cents!"

Congress Has Hard Time Subduing Administration

By Wright A. Patterson

IN A GOVERNMENT such as ours, the people are the top brass. They issue the orders and demand that their orders be obeyed. Their direct respresentatives are those they send to the two houses of congress, senate and house. Any one, big or little, who ignores and flaunts the orders of the representatives of the people, the top brass, must eventually answer to the people.

It has been established as almost a rule that any action taken by congress, if that action did not accord with the expressed wish of the Administration, has been ignored, has been flaunted.

That was true when congress decreed assistance for the Nationalist forces in China, then fighting the Chinese Reds. At the instigation of Secretary of State Acheson supported by the President, China did not receive the aid Congress had said was to be sent. It was the President and his appointee who stopped it. Not the representatives of the top brass, the people.

Over the past decade there have been numerous instances in which the will of the people, as expressed their chosen representativs have been ignored and flaunted.

Another such was when congress instructed that the air force of the nation should be increased to a casions during the years of this total of 70 groups. The President did not agree with the instructions wait until 1952 before that adminiof the representatives of the people, and, at the time, reduced the number. Since doing that he has made unless the people have for-changed his ideas, and has now in-gotten, or unless a sufficient num-headlines in 1921, to 70 but to 84, again ignoring the action of Congress.

His latest flaunting of congressional instructions was in connection with the installation of radar stations on the east and west coasts. Congress not only said such installations were to be made, but appropriated the needed money to pay for the job.

Those radar stations have not been installed nor started, and the people of both coasts are left at the mercy of Joe Stalin's bombers should he wish to send them this way. The destruction of American coastal cities in something the Administration might be called upon to answer for, because of the flaunting, the ignoring of the action of congress, the direct representatives of the people.

It is to be regretted that the people have no immediate appeal from any arbitrary action of the part of any administration, as has England. In the English system, any vote of a lack of confidence in Parliament means the fall of the government and a new election right then.

We vote a "lack of confidence" when Congress passes legislation the President has vetoed. Such a "lack of confidence" vote has been passed by congress on several oc-creased the number of groups, not ber of new employees have been added to the bureaucratic payrolls to insure a needed number of votes.

The only recourse congress has to stop that method of vote making is to stop the appropriating of money with which to meet the bureaucratic payrolls. The opposition would quickly stop the appropriations, if they could. They would cheerfully stop the votes, but they do not want to stop the jobs, which they hope to fill should they be successful in the next election.

If the opposition is successful, the flaunting and ignoring of Congress, the direct representatives of the people, will be one of the causes. People of the coast states, east and west, may remember that, through their representatives, they in-structed the administration to install radar stations as their defense against Stalin's bombers, but their instructions were ignored and flaunted.

The British labor party has split over whether England should spend its money for false teeth for the toothless or for war munitions to provide England's freedom. Health Minister Bevan would buy the false teeth, leaving the arms investment to America.

Even yet, the sound made her shiver-made her nerves tingle with dread. She toward other patrons. Together they knew she was silly to mind but she yearned for the time when the clanging behind her of that tall, heavy iron gate would mean freedom and the beginning of a new Willkie, the owner. He, too, treated life. But not yet. She knew that her as an adult and as if she were Mrs. Overton intended keeping her one of his most valued customers. here in the capacity of housemaid | He always asked after the children and children's nurse, without pay, until she should have reached the advanced age of sixteen. Only four months more to go! The matron was fond of reminding her that she owed that much and even moreimmeasurably more—to The Home that had fed, sheltered and clothed her all these years.

Gay Recalls Thad Borden And Her Dislike For Him

Out of sight of The Home, Gay took off the plain straw hat she wore. It was good to feel the warm spring sun on her bare head. Mrs. Overton didn't approve of the current fashion of going about bareheaded and-as she expressed ithalf-clad; but Gay looked forward to the time when she could have her hair short like other girls and dress as she pleased, even to wearing one of the much publicized one-piece bathing suits and spending a full day at Crown Lake Beach-alonequite unsupervised. She had been there several times. The Kiwanis and Rotary Clubs gave picnics for the orphans each season; but on those occasions she had been assigned to the job of minding the younger children and helping with the food. Mrs. Overton had watched her like a hawk each summer, especially last year when Thad Borden had been so fresh.

Thad had been enjoying himself pestering the youngsters, especially Benny Heaton. She supposed it had been just good-natured fun to Thad, but Benny was close to tears and when she interfered he immediately transferred his teasing to her. Much to the amusement of the children and his own chagrin she had slapped his face. She had done it impulsively and instantly regretted it. He had chased her down the beach, and even though she had always been the fleetest runner in Bethesda, had caught her near the pump house and kissed her soundly. It was then she had cried -angry tears of humiliation and hatred, so that while he held her firmly she managed to wrench free and slap him again. It was then the men in the pump house came to the rescue, ordering the angry young man to leave the girl alone. She was thinking of Thaddeus Borden now as she crossed the street to the drug store. This was of the high school and college crowd, having sodas and nut sundaes. And sometimes she felt envious of the fun they were having the pleasure of being one of a crowd. Vivian was easily the leader of the gay younger set in Besse-

Vivian was a golden blondebeautiful and popular. And why not, Gay asked herself. Her father was the richest man in Bessemer and they lived in the big stucco house on North Hill. Gay had walked past it one day when she had taken the long way home. However, she didn't envy Vivian either her beauty or her palatial home. She envied her because she belonged-because she had parents.

mer and Thad Borden's girl.

Even as she approached the store she recognized the blue roadster at the curb and drew back. A swift glance told her that Vivian was inside at one of the small tables and with her was Thaddeus Borden. Gay had forgotten it was the spring vacation-no doubt the store would be overrun with that gay crowd. She would wait or go to that new chain store over on Second Street. Anyway, she would change Mrs. Overton's books first. Perhaps they would be gone by the time she got back. She went on down the street. her bright mood overcast. She wondered if Thad had ever kissed Vivian. Probably he had, but not in the humiliating way he had taken advantage of Frances Gaynor-orphan. Her heavy braids swung defiantly as she mounted the steps of the library building.

"Hello, Frances!" Miss Boothe, the librarian, greeted her as she placed books and card before her on the desk. "What does Mrs. Overton want this time? More myster-

She waved her hand at a small It's a good thing we're not nervous boy watching from a window on at Bethesda, isn't it?" She laughed

Gay liked Miss Boothe. The librarian treated her as an adult, and in the same friendly manner she used found three fresh mystery tales and Gay departed in lighter spirits. Now for the drug store. She liked the smell of it-liked visiting with Mr. Willkie, the owner. He, too, treated

She often bought a few peppermint or horehound drops for him when she was lucky enough to own a nickel or a dime. Now she was humming softly to herself as she entered the almost empty store and paused when Mr. Willkie came hurrying from the rear room. He seemed perturbed-almost worried.

He went to the telephone and reported that he had no idea where Thad might be and returned to Gay. He smiled.

"What is it you want, my dear?" Gay stated her errand and he brought out the elaborately wrapped bar of soap. "Not for you—I hope," he chided. "You don't need beauty aids and shouldn't for a long, long time-if ever."

"It's for Myra Welles, our cook, Mr. Willkie," she told him, flushing at his implied compliment.
"Oh, well," he grinned, "faith's a great thing, my dear. How's Benny this spring?" "Not too strong, Mr. Willkie," Gay told him, "but I'm hoping that the warmer weather and sunshine will help." "I'm wondering what Bethesda will do when you leave it, Frances," the old man said, his gaze softening as he looked at the tall, slender girl in the shabby coat. "Four months more, Mr. Willkie, Gay caroled. "I can hardly wait." "What are you planning—where are you going?" he wanted to know. "Miss Alden wants me to come to her," the girl replied. "You know I helped out there when her brother's family visited her last fall. The maid she had wants to get married." The druggist shook his head. "You should be in school, my dear. You're far too young to be the slave of a cantankerous old maid."

"But Miss Alden isn't cantankerous, Mr. Wilkie," Gay defended murders, Miss Boothe," Gay told to teach me so that I can finish high school. And I'll earn money, too. I want to go to her-to get away from Bethesda—and yet I dread leaving Benny, Mr. Willkie. He—he clings to me." The wide gray eyes were troubled and the old man hastened to put a scoop of peppermint and horehound lozenges into a paper bag. He held it out to her but Gay shook her head.

"I haven't any money of my own right now, Mr. Willkie," she told him without embarrassment.

"This is for Benny-my treat," he explained. "Share them with him, my dear-and good luck!" The door opened and Thaddeus Borden entered. Gay passed him, head high, eyes cold and straight ahead. Mr. Willkie pounced upon him.

"Your father wants you at once, Thad, Urgent."

"Okay," the young man said, his quizzical gaze on the departing girl. As she reached the door he whistled shrilly, then grinned and called: "Hi, Redhead! Still carrying a chip, I see."

Accident on Playground Cripples Little Benny

And Gay went back to Bethesda and for the first time in her life experienced a feeling of relief as the high iron gate clanged shut behind her. At least here in Bethesda she was somebody. Benny thought so and a lot of the others. Perhaps some day she could become a nurse—a trained one—and maybe the Board would appoint her to the job of watching over the children's health. She had done it for yearsor tried to; but she had felt so helpless at times - not knowing what was best to do. Benny Heaton had been ill most of the winter and now that spring had come Gay was hoping he would improve. He looked very frail and Doctor Borden shook his head and wished he could be sent to some milder climate where he might have a chance. The summer improvement did little more than give the child a fighting chance and he lost all that he had gained before the tough winter was little more than half over. They had tried hospitalizing him but it hadn't worked. It seemed strange to Gay that he should be homesick for Bethesda. She didn't realize that he was homesick for her tenderness and very real affection.

When the boy was able to be up and about she used to take him over to the playground and play jackstraws or roll a ball along the ground to him. He tired easily and munity have a professionally adshe watched him as a mother might | ministered library service which and at the first sign of fatigue would lead him indoors and cover him newspapers and radio carefully rewarmly while he rested. But she view the affairs of the community? was glad to see that he had been howing definite signs of returning "Did you meet Thad Borden on strength and she encouraged him in mild exercise. He would toss a ball asked. Gay stiffened and shook her to her and she would toss it back to him. After all, he was only six. He looked enviously at the swings ately." He went to the door and which the children loved and fought looked up and down the street. Gay to possess. Sometimes, when luck stood irresolute. Should she tell was with them, they managed to Mr. Willkie she thought she had reach one first and Gay would swing seen the doctor's son headed out the Lake Road in Vivian Poole's once he had asked her to let him swing alone. She had done so, standthe roadster and supposed Thad was ing guard, and the lad had been inordinately excited and happy decided against it. The druggist about it, boasting to the others how came from the door, muttering he had been swinging all alone. With Gay's warning eye on them, the other boys merely looked vague, not daring to jeer, and Benny's happiness was complete.

Now as she went upstairs in search of him, she wondered if this was to be another happy day for him. She hoped so. He had felt no recurrence of that old pain in his side. The day was warm and sunny -June was just around the corner -lovely June, and she had only three months more to go. She couldn't find Benny and one of the girls told her he was in the playground where the boys were having a game of baseball. Of course Benny wasn't playing or even on the sidelines watching. For the first time in days he had a swing to himself and was making the most of the privilege. Gay stood on the back steps and watched him. He was smiling happily, his thin hands holding tightly to the ropes and his skinny legs straight out before him.

"Poor kid!" she murmured then shouted a warning as one of the bigger boys caught the swing as it lifted and gave it a mighty shove. Benny cried out in terror and Gay shouted to him to hang on. But the youngster seemed to wilt. His hands relaxed and he toppled to the ground where he lay, a crumpled heap on the hard, packed earth.

"I didn't mean it - I didn'thonest, Gay," the culprit cried, as the girl went down on her knees beside the unconscious child. She held back the others who would have carried him inside.

Are You a Citizen?

Lesson for August 26, 1951

LET'S come down home. The official title of this week's lesson is "The Christian's Responsibility in Public Life." That is a big thing, a wide circle; but the center of the circle is you, my friend, and right around you is the community in which you live. What kind of town is it? Not how big, but how good. It doesn't have to be a town Dr. Foreman at all. It may be a section of open country, a few miles of farms, ranches or woodland. But

It is some kind of community.

In New York State the Citizen's Council prepared the following set of questions which can be used to help you rate your community. After each set of these questions write down either 10 for good, 5 for fair, or 0 for poor.

Rate Your Town

"1. Education: Does your community make modern education available to every child, youth and adult? Are its schools uncrowded, properly equipped, and in good physical condition? Are the teachers highly qualified and well paid?

"2. Housing and Planning: Is every family decently housed? there continual planning for improvement of highways and other community essentials? Are parking, transportation problems under control?

"3. Religion: Is full opportunity for religious expression offered to every individual in your community? Are your churches strong and well supported?

"4. Equality of Opportunity: Do people of different races, religions, nationalities have full chance for employment and taking part in community life? Are dangerous tensions kept at a minimum by avoidance of discrimination and injustices?

"5. Economic Development: Are good jobs available? Do labor, industry, agriculture and government work together to insure the sound economic growth of your community?

"6. Cultural Opportunities: Are your citizens' lives strengthened by ample opportunity to enjoy music, art, and dramatics? Does your combenefits people of all ages? Do your

"7. Recreation: Are there enough supervised playgrounds and facilities for outdoor activities? Does your community offer full opportunity to take part in arts and crafts, in photography, and in other hobbies? "8. Health and Welfare: Are medical care and hospitalization readily available? Is provision made for underprivileged children, the aged, and the handicapped? Can families in trouble secure the help they "9. Government: Do capable citizens seek public office? Are your officials concerned above all with community betterment? Does controversy stem from honest differences of opinion and not from squabbles over privilege? "10. Community Organization: Is there any organization (community forum or the like) representative of the whole community, working for the advancement of all? Do your citizens have opportunity to learn about and take part in their local affairs? Is there an organized community-wide discussion program?"*

It's Up to You NOW add the scores you have put down for each of the ten groups of questions. A total of 100 is fine; 50, fair.

But now look over those questions again. Is there anything you could do, personally, about each of those things? If so, have you done it? Have you done as much as you could? Have you ever tried to get other people interested? You can make another score sheet and head it: How I Rate as a Citizen. Then grade yourself under each of those ten heads, 10 for doing all you can, 5 for doing a little something, 0 for nothing at all. If you are a Christian, be especially strict with yourself.

If you were out of it, would your community miss you as much as mark. you miss salt when some one forgets to put it on the potatoes? If you left your community, would it

Male Firefiles Carry the Torch For Lesser Sex

WASHINGTON, D.C .- The firefly season is in full swing, and welcome to millions of Americans is the gentle, lamptoting beetle which brightens warm summer nights.

East of the Rockies along a wide, populous band centered on the 40th parallel, each year brings a race to see which arrives first-the first day of June or the earliest "lightning bugs."

Millions have marveled at the firefly and its strange, cold light. Few, however, know that those on the wing are males signaling to flightless females among the blades of grass. Flashes by the grounded sex answer the airborne glimmers at intervals precise to the split second, Frederick G. Vosburgh writes in the National Geographic Magazine.

1,500 Species

Like lovers everywhere, Vosburgh observes, fireflies are vulnerable to jest. Shine a small flashlight from aloft in imitation of the male beetle's signal and you may get an answer from a female in her bower. Or, from the grass, flash an answer to an aerial spark at the proper ladylike interval, and down comes the male to your mating beaconand perhaps a few of his rivals too.

Science knows more than 1,500 species of the firefly-family Lampyridae-each with its own system of signals. The common firefly of the eastern United States flashes at intervals of about six seconds, usually on a short, rising flight. Codes of some other kinds suggest series of dots and dashes.

England knows the glowworm, as the female and larva are called, but its flying males are virtually fireless. The same is true of northern Europe and our own far West. There are fireless species east of the Rockies as well as those that flash. "Fire beetles" that sustain their light for minutes at a time serve as lamps and party jewels in the American Tropics. The Japanese collect fireflies to brighten night festivities.

Sparking in Unison

Rhythmic flashing of firefly legions has been reported by observers in southeast Asia for two What invisible cheercenturies. leader they follow renains their own secret, Vosburgh comments. Scientists give this explanation as to why our own fireflies sometimes flash in unison over a half-acre area:

A male gets a response from a female, and other males near by wink back, taking their cue from her or from the male who found her first. Their lights together are enough to stimulate another female several yards away. Males near her then answer with one accord, a third female responds, and the chain reaction is on.

Firefly light, scientists calculate, has a usual strength of one 400th candlepower. Cold light of this kind can be produced in the laboratory by oxidation of certain chemical substances, but only at a cost that bars it from practical use.

Microfilm Brings Expense Of Bulky Publications Down

URBANA-CHAMPAIGN, III. - A new way in which bulky or rare. but highly-important publications are becoming available at low cost to the world's libraries is being demonstrated at the University of Illinois.

The system, microprinting, is somewhat like the well-known microfilm system in that a reading machine is used to project the pages back to original size for use. But unlike microfilm, which is a photographic process, microprint is a printers' ink process. When 50 or more copies are desired, this makes it cheaper than microfilm. With it, 200 greatly-reduced pages can be printed on the two sides of a 6x9-inch card.

Prof. Edgar L. Erickson of the University's history department is displaying results of 10 years of work toward editing and micro-printing the 6,000 volumes of the British House of Commons "Session Papers" for the 19th century. He is editor of this project, sponsored by the American Historical association and the Readex Microprint corporation.

Information in the "Session Papers" is highly important for historical and other studies. Yet complete sets of the volumes exist only in two places, the British Parlia ment's own library, and the British Museum.

HADACOL Helps Folks Troubled With Poor Appetite, Tired-Out Feeling and Sleeplessness Caused by an Upset Stomach, If Due to Lack of Vitamins B1, B2, Niacin and Iron in System

Too many folks put off doing something for themselves when they don't feel as good as they they don't feel as good as they should. But when they don't feel up to doing their work the situation demands immediate action. Bert Baldwin, Jr., 1838 Golden Gate Avenue, San Francisco, California, works in a rope factory and for a time he had been feeling tired, didn't sleep well at night and had no appetite. He heard how HADACOL could help folks with conditions like these when due to conditions like these when due to lack of Vitamins B₁, B₂, Niacin and Iron in the system and began taking it. Now he says he feels like working every day. Here is his statement:

"I have tried HADACOL, and it helped me in many ways. Before I took HADACOL I was tired and I took HADACOL I was tired and I did not feel like working and I could not sleep well at night. I did not have a good appetite. After taking the first two bottles I began to eat a good meal three times a day. I am no longer tired and I sleep well all night long. I am 23 years old. I have told my friends what HADACOL has done for me. I feel like working every day since I am taking HADACOL."

A Message From Our County Sheriff

We are nearing the end of the tourist, and summer season which officially ends September 3rd on labor day. This period is probably the most dangerous of all the summer, as a large percentage of our tourists select this period of the summer for their vacation, so consequently the traffic situation probably the worst of the season, the Labor Day week and is also in the Labor Day week end is also in-cluded in this period.
